CELERY BLIGHT.

Completely Controlled by Spraying. Shading is an Advantage.

Many failures with celery are due to blight or rust. The most favorable condition for the fungus which causes it is a period of drought...

SHADED PLANT. UNSHADED PLANT.

Over the plant, and over the framework was spread a single thickness of muslin. The shading was begun about the middle of July...

In spraying experiments the same year the best results were obtained with the ammoniacal carbonate of copper. This fungicide not only kept all the healthy and new leaves free from the fungus...

Bordeaux mixture gave results that were in every way satisfactory except that the plants were somewhat retarded in their growth.

While shading is of considerable advantage to the plants, it does not prevent the attacks and development of the blight fungus. It is an interesting question in this connection to know what results could be obtained by a combination of shading and spraying.

It is not probable that there is danger of spraying too early, and it is important to keep the leaves free from fungus, which can only be done by spraying before they are attacked.

The ammoniacal carbonate of copper used was prepared by placing one ounce of copper carbonate in just enough water to dissolve it and then diluting to nine gallons with ordinary water from the well or the hydrant.

The effects of ammonia upon the complexion are directly the opposite to that of arsenic. The first symptom of ammonia poisoning which appears among those who work in ammonia factories is a discoloration of the skin of the nose and the forehead.

Celery blight may be kept under complete control by spraying either with ammoniacal carbonate of copper or with bordeaux mixture. The spraying should be begun while the plants are still in the seed bed and should be continued at intervals of from one to two weeks after the plants are transplanted until the cool weather prevents further development of the fungus.

Shading will retard the progress of the disease, but will not entirely prevent it from doing more or less damage.

A Study in Poker.

One journalist who is an expert in practical psychology walked a couple of squares with a member of the cabinet trying to elicit an expression of opinion on a certain matter of moment.

"How did you get that information, Mr. —?" "From you, sir," said the reporter, smiling.

"From me, sir?" said the secretary. "I never said a word."

"That is so," replied the correspondent, "but you acted it."

"Well, you were wrong in some things, anyhow. Still, I think I'll have to take a course of congressional poker playing until I can disguise my thoughts."

"Such people are the easiest of all to read."

"And how do you do it?" "Why, you read their hands by reversing their expression. The man who seems to be on an ace full probably holds a boatful flush, and the disconsolate surveyor of a probable boatful flush is likely laying for you with the ace full, and there you are. There is always some way to figure it out."

Development of the Hammer. Man's first tool was the uplifted hand grasping a stone, and from this came, after many years, the hammer.

Where it Failed. The young man drew himself up to his full height.

He was quick to push his advantage. "I am the possessor of a town and country house, a yacht, a stable of thoroughbreds and a box at the opera."

She hesitated, and a slight flush betrayed that she was listening.

As evidence of the extent to which the ornamental precedes the useful Explorer Humboldt noted the fact that the Orinoco Indians in fair weather strutted about attired in all the finery they were able to procure.

When the weather was bad, Humboldt found that the same men would doff their clothing and carry it about to save it for display on future sunny days.

The same traits are seen today in the North American Indians, little modified by many years of intermingling with civilization.

That part of Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, running from Second to Sixth street is the favorite promenade of visiting Indians.

A number of photographers in the vicinity are the chief attractions of this neighborhood for the aborigines.

Showing the same disposition Humboldt noted, the visitors get themselves up more barbarously the closer they get to civilization.—St. Louis Republic.
