NOAH'S ARK. The Chaldean Record of Its Dimensions And Contents.

Many readers of the Times would, believe, be interested in a fresh witness to the Chaldwan tradition of the Deluge. The best known account of this tradition is contained in the late George Smith's "Chaldwan Genesis." CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Rough Chart Hethers

William Austin, of Hill City, S. D., hoped to be a new corn king Tuesday. That he failed is due to the vigilance of New York and Chicago brokers, who, had they executed his orders, would have sold the enormous total of 1,850,000 bushels for Mr. Austin's account. The Westerner hoped for a drop in the market, and had there been a downward fluctuation, and with him on the short side of the market, he wouled have harvested a fortune. There was a drop, but he failed to gain by it, as his orders failed to satisfy the firms which received them. While Mr. Austin's expectations were great, he expected to accomplish them on yery little. Although each order to the New York firms, as well as those in Chicago, was accompanied by a check, the bank in Omaha, Neb., on which the most of them were drawn, declared he did not have as much as $1,000 on deposit there. ON THEIR SEA LEGS.

Cattle and Horses Do Not Get Frightened In Rough Weather.

"Do the horses and cattle get frightcaed and make much disturbance in rough weather?" asked the writer of n New York dealer who ships cattle nbroad.

"Bless you, no. They've got sea legs that would put an old salt to shame. Occasionally a horse will lose his ballance, but a bullock is the greatest balancer you ever saw. They are knowing brutes too. You know, we put them four in a pen. Well, you'll never find all four standing up or lying down at one time. They figure the thing out and decide how they'll get the most room and most comfort. So two of them stand up while two lie down. When they get tired, they shift the watch.

"The horses like to be talked to when there's a big sea on and things are pretty lively. They always like certain men better than others. So do the cattle. We have one man who can do anything with them. Every bullock and horse on the boat knows him by the time we've been out two days. He comes in handy when there's an accident.

APPLE CANKER.

What the Practical Men and the Scientists Say About It.

The orchard disease caused by the fungus Sphæropsis malorum is very common in the state of New York. It has been known to scientific investigators for only a few years, and though noticeable in many orchards its effects have been ascribed by practical men to sun scald, frost injuries or varietal weakness rather than to a specific disease. The Geneva (N. Y.) station says, however, that the blackened, enlarged
