THE POWER OF THE FOOL.

A child was born one day, Whom God had blessed: Fate chose him, as he lay Upon his mother's breast, To please the hearts of men. Through trying years he bravely wrought

And many a hard, grim foe he fought To find his ordered place, and when 'Twas found he toiled through other years

And prayed for Heaven's aid And often shed despairing tears Before his brush was laid Upon the canvas that at last Crowned all his efforts of the past.

Another child was born one day, With little space between his eyes; He grew and idled in the way, With no desire to be wise, No wish to stand among the great; But in the breast there burned a hate Fools have for men who win the prizes

Fate Bestows on worth. Doomed from the moment of his birth To drag among the crawling things of earth,

He saw no wonder in the autumn leaf, he knew Naught of the artist's ecstasy nor tried To learn the songs the wind sang as it blew

Among the golden sheaves the reapers tied.

The careful work of many years was done, And men beheld it, and were full of awe;

A life's whole range was centered in that one Supreme creation, wherein neither flaw Nor lack was found—but even as they gazed

One with a low, blank brow strode forth and raised A gleaming blade, And while they stood, confounded and dismayed,

He cut the canvas down!—The world with vain regret Beheld a useless ruin where The life-work of a genius had been set, Because a fool had paused a moment there.

—S. E. Kiser in Chicago Record Herald.

A HISTORIC VOYAGE.

THE PRESIDENT'S GRANDFATHER AS A PIONEER EXPLORER.

The fact that the spirit of enterprise and adventure is in the Roosevelt blood is to be credited, in large measure, for the rapid development of Louisiana after it came into American hands, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The complete success attending the experiment in steam navigation made on the Hudson and the adjoining waters previous to 1809 turned the attention of its principal promoters to the idea of its application on the Western rivers. In the month of April of that year Mr. Roosevelt, of New York, pursuant to an agreement with Chancellor Livingston and Mr. Fulton, visited the river of the Mississippi Valley with the view of reaching a conclusion as to whether steam navigation would be practicable along the largest water courses.

He surveyed the Ohio and Mississippi rivers from Pittsburgh to New Orleans, and as his report was favorable it was decided to build a boat at Pittsburgh. This was done under Mr. Roosevelt's immediate direction, and in the course of 1811 the first steamboat was launched on the waters of the Ohio.

This bold navigator was the grandfather of the President, and it is as added light in the illumination of the vigorous, decided and fearless character of our present Chief Executive that his grandmother the pioneer steamboat man's wife, insisted on accompanying her husband on the trial trip and upon taking with her all of her children. It was easily to be seen in advance that the voyage would be a dangerous one, but nothing could deter the brave woman from sharing her husband's fortunes, good or evil. No freight or paying passengers were carried, the trip being only an experimental one. The voyage was to be from Pittsburgh to New Orleans, and if navigation of the river was found practicable the boat was to be put in the New Orleans and Natchez trade. Besides Mr. Roosevelt and his family there were no other persons aboard except Mr. Baker, the engineer; Andrew Jack, the pilot; six deck hands and a few servants.

There were, of course, no wood-yards along the river banks at that time, and Captain Roosevelt had taken his precaution on that score. On his reconnoiter of the river a few months before beginning the voyage he had discovered two beds of coal, about one hundred and twenty miles below the rapids at Louisville, and took along tools to work them, intending to load the coal instead of frequently detaining the boat while wood was being cut and hauled to the banks.

Whether we are to attribute something of the President's literary quality as well as something of his heroic quality to this same sturdy ancestry cannot be said with certainty. But there is a delightful little volume, called "Rambler in North America," describing this voyage, of which Captain Roosevelt must have been at least a collaborator. Or it may have been Mrs. Roosevelt who preserved for posterity such records of the voyage as we now have. The lady encountered many and much more serious dangers than she had anticipated for it was while the steamboat was on the Mississippi, in the months of December and January, 1811, that the greatest earthquake ever felt in North America changed the physical geography of much of the country watered by the Mississippi river.

The convulsions, which came at intervals during nearly two months put an end to the pretensions of New Madrid as a rival of St. Louis. In and around New Madrid, for many years, had been one of the largest populations west of the river. For a considerable length of time the population there, including the settlement of Little Prairie, which was practically a part of the town, had been larger than that of St. Louis proper, excluding Carondelet and other little suburbs.

Aside from the interest such a tragedy must in itself arouse, the earthquake of 1811 has now a peculiar interest for many persons. It changed the physical geography of Louisiana so markedly and in so many places that the country today in its physical conformation, bears no close resemblance to that which came to us from the French. That around St. Louis is not materially changed, but all of southeast Missouri presents a new appearance, and all of the west bank of the Mississippi, from New Madrid south nearly to New Orleans, underwent decided changes in topography.

When the news of this frightful calamity reached the world to the East, the old superstition which had made of Louisiana a land of terrors for a resurrection. There is no reason to doubt that for several years, and perhaps for a decade, the earthquake of 1811 was a distinct injury to the new country. The London Times used the old phrase, "a land of terrors," as one fitly describing Louisiana. It was freely prophesied, and generally believed, that the country was to be as volcanic as any in South America, and that earthquake shocks would be frequent. All of this for a time kept people out, and even some who were already in the country got out of it. But the opportunities for making money were too many and too easily to be seen to make even "a land of terrors" uninhabitable. But the earthquake put back the admission of Missouri as a State for several years.

Captain Roosevelt and his family aboard the New Orleans were in the worst fury of the earthquake, having come out of the Ohio into the Mississippi river at about the time of the worst damage at New Madrid. A vivid idea of the danger encountered by the vessel is found in a letter of L. F. Linn, a member of Congress, to Congressman Davis, the chairman of the Committee on Commerce, dated February 1, 1836, "relative to the obstructions to the navigation of the White, Big Black and St. Francis rivers." The report says: "In the region now under consideration, during the continuance of so appalling a phenomenon, which commenced by distant rumbling sounds, succeeded by discharges as if a thousand pieces of artillery were suddenly exploded, the earth rocked to and fro, vast chasms opened, from when issued columns of water, sand and coal, accompanied by hissing sounds, caused, perhaps, by the escape of pent-up steam, whilst ever and anon flashes of electricity gleamed through the troubled clouds of the night, rendering the darkness doubly horrible. The current of the Mississippi, pending this elemental strife, was driven back upon its source with the greatest velocity for several hours in consequence of an elevation of its bed. Hills disappeared and lakes were found in their stead. Numerous lakes became elevated ground, over the surfaces of which vast heaps of sand were scattered in every direction. In many places the earth for miles below the level of the surrounding country without being covered with water, leaving an impression in miniature of a catastrophe much more important in its effects, which had, perhaps, preceded it ages before. One of the lakes formed on this occasion is from sixty to seventy miles in length, and from three to twenty in breadth. It is in some places very shallow, and in others from fifty to sixty feet deep, which is much more than the depth of the Mississippi river in that quarter."

In the midst of such a terrible convulsion as this the first of Western steamboats was pursuing her way to the South. The voyage, considering all of the untoward conditions under which it was made, was certainly one of the most remarkable in history.

The Roosevelt family was in the van of progress which made the new Louisiana, a fact which well may be considered in estimating the attitude of that member of the family who is now in the White House toward the Centennial Exposition. The demonstration of the practicability of steamboating on the Western rivers solved a great many Louisiana problems. It set this section in the foreground as the country with unlimited possibilities of wealth and development which could be reached easily, and in which it had become possible to make easy distribution of the products of wealth and outside exchanges of such products. The earthquake, coincident with the voyage, postponed for a few years the day of heavy immigrations, but, if the steamboat had not come when it did, that day would have been much longer postponed. The steamboat taken down the river by Captain Roosevelt assured the future greatness of all of the country west of the Mississippi. It made it possible for population to come in and the products of the soil to go out.

It seems strange that it was six years after the Roosevelt family had demonstrated the practicability of the navigation of the Mississippi river before a steamboat reached St. Louis. But that fact gives the highest confirmation of the value of steamboating to the new country. In 1814 the Territorial Legislature made a census showing the entire population of upper Louisiana to be less than 25,000. The population came with the era of steam navigation.

A Physician Testifies.

"I have taken Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and have never used anything in my life that did me the good that did," says County Physician George W. Scroggs of Hall County, Ga. "Being a physician I have prescribed it and found it to give the best results." If the food you eat remains undigested in your stomach it decays there and poisons the system. You can prevent this by dieting but that means starvation. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. You need suffer from neither dyspepsia nor starvation. The worst cases quickly cured. Never fails. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

AUNTIE—Don't you know, Bobbie, that it's very bad manners to put your knife in your mouth?

Bobbie—Don't you think, auntie that it's very bad manners to stare at your guests when they are eating?"—Glasgow Times.

SCULPTOR'S ODD EXPERIENCE.

Proctor, the sculptor, tells of an encounter with a truly Dickensian female during a sojourn in London. She was the true Mrs. Raddle of Lant street, but since Mr. Proctor was in the habit of more or less paying his rent she was Bob Sawyer's "Mrs. Raddle" in good humor.

Mr. Proctor is a late sleeper. It had been his habit to secure the services of some "trusty" to keep up a racket in the morning until he was compelled to get out of bed in order to secure peace. The sculptor got himself into "Chambers" and it fell to "Mrs. Raddle" to see that he arose in the morning. She found, after a short experience that after she had awakened him, Mr. Proctor was in the habit of turning over and going to sleep again; so she changed her method. One morning Proctor heard her call, in addition to her usual fusillade upon the door:

"Show a leg, sir, show a leg."

He was compelled to get up and meet the peremptory demand. He planted his foot just without the door; there was a feminine staccato shriek and a hurrying of footsteps down the hall. The door was closed and Mr. Proctor went about his toilet.

After a time this female appeared at the door with the breakfast service. She stood with the tray in her hands and made a peculiar squat courtesy before him and dropping her eyes remarked, deprecatingly:

"Ho! Mr. Proctor. If honily yer'd a 'ad on a stockin', ye know!"

This formula never varied while the sculptor occupied the "Chambers."—Baltimore Sun.

Lieutenant Heffernan was saying the other day that he had hardly ever seen an Irishman who wasn't ready with a quick retort, no matter what the circumstances might be.

"It was about three weeks ago that I arrested a certain fellow. He was about the drunkest man I ever saw to be still standing on his feet. As soon as I got hold of him he wanted to make trouble. He was just like many others from the 'old sod' when they get full of bad booze and they think there is a chance for a scrap. He made a pass at me, but I reached over and tapped him once on the head with my stick. He became quiet right away, and he looked up at me and said:

"And what toime is?" "Of course I couldn't help but answer. Just struck one." "Well, if that's so," he answered "O'm dum glad yer didn't hit me an' haur sooner."—Louisville Times.

Recommends It To Trainmen.

G. H. Hansan, Lima, O., Engineer L. E. & W. R. R., writes: "I have been troubled a great deal with backache. I was induced to try FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE, and one bottle entirely relieved me. I gladly recommend it to any one especially my friends among the train men, who are usually similarly afflicted." T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

He threw back his shoulders, assumed a look of haughtiness and walked up to the door and rang. A lady with a red nose and thin lips answered the ring. "Whatjowant," said she.

"Madame," explained Tatterton Ragges, with a voice through which ran a vein of melancholy, "you see before you de wreck of a once noble man. A wreck, madame, of—"

"Ye've made a mistake then," said the uncompromising female. "The junk shop is four doors down!" and she slammed the door in his face.—San Francisco Bulletin.

"Some men," said Uncle Eph'm, "is like fish. Dey don't never come to de top ontell dey die."—Chicago Tribune.

Just A Little Sermon.

"One ought every day," said the great poet Goethe, "at least to hear a little song, read a good poem, see a fine picture, and, if it were possible, to speak a few reasonable words." This wholesome advice, thinks the Chicago Post is worth trying. So little good comes from melancholy, turning over past troubles, crossing unbuild bridges and musing on the shortness of life, that we wonder why more sensible folk don't abandon their gloomy way once and forever and brighten up a little. Poets talk of "sweet sorrow," but who has ever experienced its blessings, if it has any?

The junior partner fumed and fretted and made things generally uncomfortable for everyone.

"What's the matter?" asked the typewritist.

"Oh, he's accumulated a bit of real hard luck," answered the private secretary.

"Real hard, is it?" suggested the typewritist.

"That's his idea of it,"

"Do you suppose," inquired the typewritist thoughtfully, "that he thinks if he can acquire a sufficient degree of heat he can melt it?"

In truth, it seemed very probable, for apparently that is a popular method of attempting to dispose of it.—Washington Post.

A Liberal Offer.

An Edinburgh professor went to Strathmore for a day or two's fishing and took fishing tackle and worms with him. After fishing for hours without success and blaming the worms he said to a boy who happened to be sitting on a paling near by:

"Do you know, my boy, where I can get good worms here?" "Ay," said the lad.

"Where, my boy?"

"In the grung," was the reply.

Cut this out and take it to T. E. Zimmerman & Co.'s drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, the best physic. They cleanse and invigorate the stomach, improve the appetite and regulate the bowels. Regular size 25c. per box.

"Do you guarantee these goods not to fade?"

"Absolutely! And if it does we will sell you new goods to match the 'orange' color."—Louisville News.

HUSBAND—Do you know, dear, last night I dreamt I bought you that sealskin coat and—

ELECTIONS IN OTHER STATES

In Virginia the latest returns show that the Democratic State ticket is elected by over 25,000 majority. The Republicans will have at least 20 members of the House of Delegates. In the last House the Republicans had but five members.

Seth Low, for Mayor, carried Greater New York by 28,864 plurality.

The Republican plurality for the State ticket in Pennsylvania is about 50,000. John Weaver, Rep. defeats P. F. Rothermel, Fus., for District Attorney of Philadelphia by 43,667.

The Republican victory in New Jersey exceeds even the anti-election predictions of the party leaders. The plurality of Franklin Murphy for Governor is estimated at more than 17,500.

In Ohio the Republican plurality is estimated at 67,661. It was the biggest off year record ever made by the Republican party in that State.

Estimates of the Republican plurality in Nebraska vary from 3,000 to 12,000.

The plurality of W. Murray Crane, Rep., for Governor of Massachusetts is 70,304.

BEARD CAUGHT IN MACHINERY

An accident which may cause the death of Robinson Vaughn, of near Concord, Pa., occurred Monday. He was working in a cider mill when his beard, which was over a foot long, caught in a revolving shaft. Before the engine which furnished the power for the mill could be stopped Mr. Vaughn's whiskers were wrapped around the shaft and torn completely from his face. He suffers excruciating pain from the many lacerations about his face.

At Atlanta the Lyceum Theater a vaudeville house, was destroyed by fire, caused by crossing electric wires. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. ## DEAD WITH GAS TURNED ON.

Jesse L. Phillips, 23 years old, son of Mr. Nathan Phillips, 706 Roland avenue, Baltimore, asphyxiated himself with illuminating gas Sunday in a room at the Eutaw House, Baltimore. It is believed that despondency over lack of employment caused him to end his life. He went to the hotel early Sunday morning and engaged a room. He was not seen about the hotel during the day and Sunday night the manager became uneasy and sent for Night Watchman Michael Leland. The latter summoned Patrolman Lawless, of the Western district, and together they forced open the door of the room occupied by the young man.

The apartment was filled with gas, which was flowing freely from a jet turned on full. An incandescent light in the room was burning. Young Phillips had carefully planned self-destruction, for the police found that he had torn his handkerchief in strips and stopped up all holes or crevices in the room.

Coroner Hiltshire made an investigation and said it was a clear case of suicide. Patrolman Charles Sheib, of the Western district, who lives at 1925 West Lafayette avenue, had been looking for young Phillips all day Sunday. Miss Ella Phillips, a sister of the young man, had sought the aid of the patrolman, who is a friend of the family, when she found that her brother had not returned home Saturday.

Patrolman Scheib said that Phillips had been a machinist, but a short time ago lost his position, and since then had been melancholy and dejected. Phillips was unmarried and formerly took an active part in religious work at the Roland Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church.—Sun.

GOLD AND COPPER

Jacob Shaw, an electrical engineer, made the discovery that copper and gold bearing rocks underlie a lot belonging to him at Ellicott City, near the Patapsco river, over against the granite slope that borders that stream on the Baltimore county side. Dr. Thomas B. Owings became interested in the matter and joined with Mr. Shaw in securing options on adjoining property. It is said chemical tests revealed 65 per cent. of gold and copper in a specimen of rock taken from the Shaw lot. Excavations made to level the ground for building purposes first directed attention to the matter. A quantity of rock and earth used in making a deep fill at the lower end of the property is thought by the promoters to be rich in gold, copper and other metals. Siftings from the same material were used to plaster the house, and the walls of Mr. Shaw's dwelling are said to sparkle with metal. Within a few hundred yards of the Shaw lot a deposit of coal was recently found. It was brought to the surface by men who were blasting at the bottom of a deep well on Granite Hill.

"Some years ago while at Martinsburg, W. Va., I was taken with cholera morbus, which was followed by diarrhoea. The doctor's medicine did me no good. I was advised to get a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I did, and it cured me sound and well.—G. A. MORRIS, Embreeville, Pa. Sold by T. E. Zimmerman & Co., druggists.

SERIOUS AFFRAY NEAR ROMNEY.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 5.—Late yesterday evening Charles Messick, of Romney, W. Va., met at the bridge over the south branch of the Potomac river, near Romney, by Noah Boyce, his brother and four others. Boyce asked Messick if he had made a statement to the effect that he could whip any two Boyces that ever lived, and Messick replied in the affirmative, provided the fight was fair. There upon Boyce whipped out a knife and made a lunge at Messick, cutting through the latter's clothing and inflicting a dangerous wound. Boyce is being pursued by Deputy Sheriff R. J. Ruckman and posse through the mountains of Hampshire county.

THE RIGHT THING TO PUT ON.

(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

From the natural impulse to "put something on" a painful spot all applications for the relief of pain have arisen.

The most successful have ever been poultices or plasters, and the best of these is Benson's Plaster.

No other has anything like the same power as a curative agent; it is highly and scientifically medicated, and its standard is advanced year by year.

Use Benson's Plaster for coughs, colds, chest diseases, rheumatism, grip, neuralgia, kidney trouble, lame back, and other ailments that make winter a season of suffering and danger. It relieves and cures quicker than any other remedy.

Do not accept Capsicum, Strengthening or Belladonna plasters in place of Benson's, as they possess none of its curative power. Insist on having the genuine.

The people of every civilized land have testified for years to the superlative merit of Benson's Plaster; and 5,000 physicians and druggists of this country have declared them worthy of public confidence. In official comparisons with others, Benson's Plaster has been honored with fifty-five highest awards.

For sale by all druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on the receipt of 25c. each. Accept no imitation or substitute. Seabury & Johnson, Mfg. Chemists, N. Y.

TRUCK FARMERS FOR FLORIDA.

Three enterprising farmers of Caroline county have just gone to Florida to engage in truck farming there during the winter months. They are Chris Hoffman, of Greenboro; William Detweiler, of Ridgeley; and William Harding, of Henderson. They expect to be able to grow and market a crop of tomatoes, cantaloupes, cucumbers, etc., and return in time to market strawberry crop, which is on in Caroline county about the middle of May. Several other persons in that section of Maryland have declared their intentions of joining them about the last of the present month.

GOLD ON HIS FARM

Mr. John Bull, a Washington county official, while enjoying his vacation in October discovered on his farm near Cabin John, in Potomac district, Mountgomery county, a vein of gold carrying dirt three feet below the surface. One man washing averages $3 a day it is said. Mr. Bull was so much encouraged by the daily washings that at the end of his vacation he asked for 15 days additional, which was granted. "Buck" Lynch, a prospector in that vicinity, says that the vein is one of the richest struck in the county. Mr. Bull's farm is in the vicinity of the Sawyer, Huddleston, Bready and Maryland Mines.

ADOLPH BLUMER, Grand Mound, Ia., writes: "I have used FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR in my family and think it is the best cough cure on the market. I would not be without it in my home, as there is nothing so good for coughs and colds. T. E. Zimmerman & Co."

YOUNG WOMAN FOUND DEAD

ATLANTA, Ga., November 6.—Nora Brittain, a young white woman, was found dead in bed at a house on South Forsythe street this morning. A hole in the temple, evidently made with a sharp but rough instrument, proved that the woman had been murdered. J. J. Carroll, a news agent running between Atlanta and Brunswick, was arrested tonight, charged with the crime. Carroll denies that he was implicated in the murder, but admits that last night, in an argument with the woman, he "put a piece of coal against her face, scratching her," but claims he did not injure her.

SEYMOUR WEBB, Moira, N.Y., writes: "I had been troubled with my kidneys for twenty-five years and had tried several physicians but received no relief until I bought a bottle of FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE. After using two bottles I was absolutely cured. I earnestly recommend FOLEY'S." Take only FOLEY'S. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

TO CUT OFF LONG GRADES

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has a corps of engineers at work at Martinsburg running a short line from Tabbs Crossing to Harper's Ferry, a distance of about 22 miles, to avoid the nine-mile grade. The new tract will run to the north of the old line and will pass some what in the vicinity of Shepherdstown, following the river. The new line will be used for east bound freights only, as the distance will be longer and the only advantage to be gained by it will be the gradual down grade all the way.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes, causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the affected parts. "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

Mr. Thomas is now doing very well and will be able to be out in a few days.

REGISTRATION CASES.

Judge Motter decided last Friday afternoon to dismiss all the appeals in the Mt. St. Mary's registration cases except three, and these were sustained. The decision of the court was based on the fact that all the seminarians and those students of the college who intended to enter the priesthood had practically abandoned their homes and had rooms at the college, and that for the time being that was their legal residence. The three appeals which were sustained were in cases of students who were at Mt. St. Mary's college for the single purpose of educating themselves, like the students of any other college, and therefore they had no legal residence at the college—News.

HEAVY FINES ARE IMPOSED.

Justice Fechtig, Central Police Station, Baltimore, had a half dozen colored men before him last Saturday on charges of assault and disturbing the peace, and heavy fines were imposed. None of the prisoners were able to pay up, and they went to jail. They were Daniel Baird, 29 years old, who said he belongs in Norfolk, Va., and was waiting for a street car to take him to the steamboat wharf, $20 and costs; Julius Haley, 23 years old, for assaulting Sam. Balewitz, 48 Center Market Space, $5 and costs; William Ford, for assaulting Peter Gillen, 305 Rogers avenue, $10 and costs; Walter Young, assaulting Edgar A. Taylor, 1839 East Biddle street $5 and costs; Arthur Johnson and Richard Alford, using profanity on Center Market Space, $10 and costs each.

REOPENED AFTER EXTENSIVE REPAIRS.

The Methodist Protestant Church, of Westminster, which had been closed for several months while extensive improvements were being made, was reopened Sunday with appropriate and interesting services, the first of which was a children's day missionary service by the Sunday school, of which Dr. J. W. Hering, comptroller of the State Treasury, is superintendent. At the morning church services the principal feature was a sermon by Rev. Dr. S. B. Southerland, of Baltimore, a former pastor of the church there and now the oldest clergyman in the Maryland Annual Conference. The choir sang several specially prepared selections. The sermon at the evening services was by the pastor, Rev. Dr. W. R. Graham. The improvements cost about $1,800, all of which has been subscribed and paid, and the church is now one of the handsomest in that city. The frescoing, which is by Emmert & Quarty, of Baltimore, is especially neat and attractive.

BOLD ATTEMPT TO ROB.

A bold attempt was made to rob Mr. James W. Chapman in his own home, on Mill street, in Chestertown, at 10:15 o'clock Saturday night. Mr. Chapman is a widower, and takes his meals at the Voshell House, a hotel in Chestertown, and sleeps alone at his home. Shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday night he started for his house and, as was his custom entered by a rear side door. No sooner had he stepped inside than he was grabbed by a muscular man, who commenced a search for Mr. Chapman's pocketbook.

Mr. Chapman is one of the most muscular and finely built citizens of Chestertown, and a tremendous struggle ensued. He usually kept matches on a small table inside the door, and while being held by his assailant reached for a match. At that instant the man dealt him a blow just in front of the left temple with what is supposed to have been brass knuckles. He was dazed, but followed his assailant, who then dashed from the house into the darkness outside. Neighbors awakened by the scuffle in the Chapman house saw the man escape, but neither they nor Mr. Chapman know whether he was black or white. An ugly wound was made near the temple, and the victim of the outrage is otherwise injured, but is doing as well as could be expected.

Mr. Chapman is the father of James W. Chapman, Jr., of the Baltimore bar, and of Cashier William Walter Chapman of the Chestertown National Bank. He is a member of the well-known firm of Chapman & Lambert, builders of farm implements, blacksmiths and wheelwrights. He is one of the largest owners of real estate in Kent county, is a director of the Chestertown National Bank and is conceded to be one of the wealthiest men of Kent.

The object of the assault was evidently robbery, and the intruder had carefully arranged for his escape, as he had unlocked every door in the house in order that there might be no obstacle in the way of a hasty retreat.

"GREEN GOODS" OPERATORS.

"Green goods" men or counterfeiters of New York have been flooding Carroll county with letters for the past few weeks. A number of these letters have been sent to the Westminster Postoffice and the matter is now in the hands of the Department at Washington.

Each letter contains a copy of a telegram which is to be sent in case the person receiving the letter desires to purchase any "goods." Upon its receipt a sample of goods is sent and a place of meeting appointed. All the telegrams are to be sent to Greenville, N. J. A prominent citizen of Westminster, through curiosity, sent the telegram and in a few days received a sample. The sample was taken to one of the national banks and pronounced a genuine silver certificate.

The sender of the letter claims to have been employed in the Bureau of Engraving for 13 years and is in possession of a set of plates used by the Government. Enclosed in the letter with the sample were two other telegrams, which were to be sent before starting, instructions as to time and place of meeting, a price list of goods and a Government counterfeit detector.

A prominent New York hotel was named as the place of meeting.—Sun.

IN MEMORIAM.

The great gathering that attended the Requiem Mass, sung by Rev. J. McNellis, C. M., on Wednesday morning, 6th inst., at St. Joseph's Church, was like the interpretation of some universal bereavement, touching all hearts alike.

Perhaps amid their flowing tears, many were contrasting the sad occasion with another of such happy prestige only a few months ago, when, on her wedding day, Gertrude, eldest daughter of Mr. John T. Long, knelt before that same altar with James Kerrigan, the chosen partner of her life, to receive the nuptial blessing, both pledging fidelity until death. And now, within one short year, the youthful bride had been called to her eternal home. "But a spotless life is old age."

Fortified with the Sacraments of the Church, with calm resignation, proving her heart's self-mastering power to part with all, Gertrude had passed from earth on Nov. 3rd, bequeathing to her friends the hallowed memory of her virtues. Her funeral was attended by the Sodality of the Children of Mary, of which from her school days, she had been a devoted and exemplary member. Most fervently all mingled their prayers for the dear departed.

Her record at St. Euphemia's gives assurance that with her intelligence she was docile, obedient, a model of piety, and unselfish in her sweet thoughtfulness of the needs of others; and these enviable qualities strengthened with mature years. Just twenty-three, her life's brief day was luminous and full; for "being made perfect in a short space, she fulfilled a long time."

Heartfelt sympathy is tendered to her sorrow-stricken parents and relatives, grieving over their loved and early lost. We may by their tears embalm Gertrude's grave. But,

"For the love of the Heart of Jesus, she loved it too—
By all sweet home affections that once she knew.
As we hope in our utmost need to find our stay
In the prayers of those who loved us once, good Christian, pray!"

FATHER McHALE'S FIRST MASS.

The Rev. Daniel McHale, who was ordained a priest at St. Joseph's Seminary, Baltimore, on last Friday, the feast of All Saints, celebrated his first mass at St. Anthony's Church, at Mt. St. Mary's last Sunday. The mass was solemn high, with Rev. Justin McCarthy, president of Epiphany College, Baltimore, deacon, and Rev. B. J. Bradley, vice-president of Mt. St. Mary's College, subdeacon, and Rev. J. B. Manley, assistant priest; Mr. Charles Keepers as master of ceremonies. The sermon, on the dignity of priesthood, was preached by Rev. Charles Manley, of Kingston, Pa. Among the clergy were: Revs. B. J. Lannon, James J. Kearney, Thomas J. Eaton, Patrick H. Boyle and James G. Burke. Among the laity from a distance were the Hon. Stonewall Jackson Healy and Mr. J. B. Mulvan, altar builder of Baltimore; Miss Ellen McHale, sister of the young priest; Mr. John Monaghan, of Philadelphia; Mr. P. D. Manley, Dr. James A. Manley, wife and two children, of Scranton, Pa. Eight members of the Benevolent Legion acted as an escort to the procession and recession of the clergy to and from the church before and after the mass. The music was of a high order, Miss Moore, the organist, having prepared an elaborate program. The principal soloists were Mrs. M. Spalding, Miss Teresa Harner, Miss Olivette Weaver, Mr. Charles Eckenrode and Mr. J. S. J. Healey. The mass was directed by Mr. B. with the "Gaudete" by Diabelli, with full chorus and orchestra at offertory. Dinner was served at the rectory to the visiting friends of Father McHale by Mr. Peter Burket, caterer.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure any case. Cuts, burns, bruises and all other wounds are also quickly cured by it. Beware of counterfeits. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

MOURN HIS DEATH.

Kansas City Common Council and Associations Pass Resolutions on the Death of Wm. A. Kelley.

The following account of the action of the Kansas City Common Council and other associations upon the death of our former fellow townsman, Mr. William A. Kelley, who died in Kansas City, Oct. 30, an account of which appeared in these columns last week, is taken from the Kansas City Journal of November 1.

"At a joint meeting of the two houses of the common council, held yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, a fitting tribute was paid to the memory of the late William A. Kelley, of the upper house, who died Wednesday afternoon, in the adoption of appropriate resolutions on his demise. The resolutions were prepared by a special committee of five, composed of Aldermen Huff, Peck and Beardsley, of the upper house, and Aldermen Pendergast and Lynch, of the lower division of the council, appointed by President George M. Shelley, of the upper house, who was selected to preside over the meeting.

"The resolutions follow: 'Be it resolved by the common council of Kansas City, Mo., in special session, That in the death of William A. Kelley, an honored member of this body, the city has lost one of the most efficient and energetic members of its legislative department; the public one of the most fearless of its municipal servants, and the members of this body one of their valued associates.

"Courage, determination, force of character and unflinching, uncompromising devotion to whatever cause he espoused, signalized his career. Loyalty to his convictions, whatever the result, made him a reputation which extended wherever he was known. We hereby express our appreciation for these traits of character, and of our feeling of regret at his untimely death. The tenacity and constancy with which he clung to the faith of the church of his fathers will prove a great comfort to his wife and children, to whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of trial. May he rest in peace and may light perpetual shine upon him.

"Resolved, further, that the city clerk be, and hereby is, instructed to furnish an engrossed copy of these resolutions to his widow and copies to the press of Kansas City, and to spread the same upon the official records of the city as a perpetual memorial of his life and death."

"The upper house chamber, in which the session was held, was appropriately draped for the occasion. From the ceiling hung festoons of black bunting while on every hand decorations of the same material and other evidences of mourning were noticeable. In the center of the semicircle of desks Alderman Kelley's desk had been placed and upon it was a picture of the deceased draped in black. Nearly stood his chair which was covered with black bunting as was the desk. An air of deep reverence prevailed the entire session and the solemnity of manner with which the dead alderman's fellow members of the council partook of the exercises bespoke the love and respect they bore him.

"All the members of both houses, with the exception of Alderman Batt, were present. Alderman Batt was unable to attend and his regrets were expressed by Alderman Wayne for him.

"Several of the members of the upper house spoke briefly about Alderman Kelley, his life as a citizen and a public official. Alderman Beardsley, who was one of the deceased alderman's closest friends, said in part: 'My intimate acquaintance with Alderman Kelly began about eighteen months ago when he took his seat in this council. It was but a short time until I saw in him a true man, one who was clearly outspoken upon his convictions and a man who was not afraid to stand by what he thought was right. From the very first he won me and I loved him. He was a royal fellow and in his death we have lost a valued friend and the city has lost a faithful official.'

"Alderman Peck, another of the dead alderman's personal friends, eulogized his memory in a short but forceful speech. In conclusion he said: 'On his dying day Alderman Kelley called his friends to his bedside and said: 'Some of the members of the council may feel hatred against me over little differences that have arisen in the council in the past. I want them to forgive me and forget all.'

"After the adoption of their resolutions preparations were discussed for attending the funeral. It was decided that the members of the two houses of the council shall attend in a body. Carriages will be summoned to the city hall at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning which will convey the aldermen to St. Patrick's church, Eighth and Cherry streets where the funeral services will be held at 9:30 o'clock. Mayor Reed has issued a proclamation ordering the city offices closed Saturday morning to permit the city employees to attend the funeral.

"There will be no funeral services at the Kelly home, 1326 Charlotte street tomorrow. The casket will be conveyed to the church at 9 o'clock, where solemn high Requiem mass will be said by Father T. F. Lillis. The body will be placed in a receiving vault at St. Mary's cemetery for a few weeks before interment takes place.

MARYLAND ELECTION.

EMMITSBURG DISTRICT VOTE IN FULL. REPUBLICANS ELECT COUNTY TICKET.

DEMOCRATS CLAIM THE LEGISLATURE.

Election day dawned bright and clear and the air was quite chilly; being a perfect November day. The elements were favorable for the polling of a large vote, but the actual result shows that the vote cast was not nearly as large as would be expected on such a fine and delightful day. Whether the lack of interest in the election was purely indifference as to who should manage the affairs of the county and State, or thereat the new election law, which received its first thorough test on Tuesday, or through the influence of political persuasive powers, we cannot say.

As to the new election law, it met with the approval of some persons, whilst by others it was vigorously condemned.

The total number of registered voters in Emmitsburg District is 805. Of this number 685 exercised the elective franchise, and 120 voters remained away from the polls.

In Precinct No. 1 there were 46 spoiled ballots, and in Precinct No. 2, there were only 8 spoiled ballots. The ballots thrown out were marked in many different ways.

The official vote in Precinct No. 1 was as follows:

In Precinct No. 1 the head of the Prohibition ticket received 2 votes, and in Precinct No. 2, 3 votes.

The Union Reform ticket received no votes in either Precinct.

Frederick County.

The Republicans carried Frederick county by pluralities ranging from 300 to 800, electing their entire ticket, as follows:

For House of Delegates—William H. Harry, rep., Thomas Hightman, rep., John P. T. Mathias, rep., Augustus W. Nicodemus, rep., James W. Smith, rep.
For County Commissioners—William H. Blentlinger, rep., Lewis H. Bowls, rep., John H. Etzler, rep.

In the State.

The latest returns from the Maryland election indicate that the next Legislature will be composed as follows:

Senate—
Democrats..... 17
Republicans..... 9
Democratic majority..... 8
House of Delegates—
Democrats..... 51
Republicans..... 44
Democratic majority..... 7

Democratic majority on joint ballot..... 15
On the State ticket Dr. Joshua W. Hering (D) is apparently elected Comptroller by 453 plurality, and Thomas Parran (R) Clerk of the Court of Appeals, by 1258 plurality.

The Republicans carried Baltimore City by a good sized plurality, electing nearly all their candidates. The Democrats probably one or two Legislative candidates. The following nominees on the city ticket are elected:

Robert Ogle, R., Clerk of the Superior Court.
Thomas A. Robinson, R., Clerk of the Circuit Court, No. 2.
George Warfield, D., Sheriff.
Frank H. Sloan, R., Surveyor.

On the State ticket Herman S. Platt, Republican candidate for Comptroller, carried the city by 3,072 plurality. The vote was:

Platt..... 41,782
Hering..... 38,710
Thomas Parran, Republican candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, carried the city by 3,847 votes, as follows:

Parran..... 41,776
Turner..... 37,939
The returns indicate the election of Dr. Joshua W. Hering, Democrat, Comptroller of the Treasury by a plurality of about 453, and Thomas Parran, Republican Clerk of the Court of Appeals by a plurality of about 1,258. These figures may be changed by the official returns. The Democrats appear to have elected 51 members of the House of Delegates and 17 Senators, including the hold-over Senators. This, if confirmed by the official returns, will give the Democrats a majority of 15 on joint ballot, the total membership being 26 Senators and 95 Delegates. The Republicans will have 9 Senators and 44 members of the lower house.

The contest in the State between the Republicans and Democrats is very close and in some counties the official count will be necessary to determine the result.
The correct returns from the election in Maryland will probably be known sometime before Christmas.

On one night last week some unknown parties gained an entrance to Mr. Trimmer Riley's spring house, taking two pots of milk, one ham and carried a wash tub into the potato patch, which they left there, also four or five bushels potatoes were missing out of the barn. The parties were well acquainted with the premises. Mr. Riley says if the parties will let him know when they are coming again he will have the meat ready for them. This is the first sealing that has been done in this place for a number of years.

F. Shulley heard a noise in his chicken house one night last week. He took his revolver and went out but could not see any one. Had he seen any one he would have given them a warm reception. People should be on the watch this winter and give the thieves such treatment as they deserve.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I can recommend it with the utmost confidence. It has done good work for me and will do the same for others. ### POTOMAC WATER.

The Pulp and Paper Company is building a wall 500 feet long at Luke, Allegany county, to protect the plant from high water. The filtering plant of the company, in which the gravity process is used, is made up of 16 large filters. It is necessary to filter the water to make paper, and for fine-book paper the water must be quite pure. Alum is used in large quantities, and the deposit on the filters, which are cleaned reversing them, is of a dark color. The refuse is said to be composed largely of offal from tanneries—laurel root, leaves, etc. The water in the Potomac, which reaches Cambridge, it is now stated, is far better than that above the dam at Luke, as nearly all of it has to pass through the large filtering plant at Luke, and the soda process of paper-making does no injury.

There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, completely cures catarrh and taken in time prevents consumption. We cannot see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its radical and permanent cures. # MATTER AND FORCE.

ENERGY CANNOT BE CREATED NOR CAN IT BE DESTROYED.

If you could imagine an earthworm trying to run the Niagara Electric Light and Power Transmission works, you would have some idea of the capacity of the greatest human genius that ever lived to run the visible universe. That is probably why the wisest of us is not permitted to understand the final secrets of nature.

Here is a good example. Take a rifle into a place sufficiently far from the habitation of men; put the butt on the ground and support it so that the barrel points straight up and pull the trigger. The bullet will leave the muzzle with a velocity of 3,000 feet a second. It will rise to an enormous height, come to a standstill for an infinitesimal fraction of a second and begin to fall back again. It will strike the earth with very nearly but not quite the same velocity as it left the muzzle of the gun. It would be exactly the same but for the resistance of the air.

What has happened is this: The explosion of the powder has changed a solid into a gas, and the expansive energy of this gas has driven the bullet upward. In other words, it has for the time overcome that mysterious force by which the earth draws everything toward its own center.

But when the energy of the exploded powder is exactly balanced by the pull of gravitation the bullet falls back. In the first second after its turn it falls 16 feet, in the next 32, in the next 64, in the next 128, and so on till it returns with ever increasing velocity whence it started.

Nothing has been lost, nothing gained. The gases set free by the explosion of the powder weight exactly as much as the solid. Some of the energy has been used as heat, some in propelling the bullet. Gravitation, overcome for awhile, has reassessed itself. The sum of matter and force in the universe is absolutely unchanged.

This is as true of the quickened heart of a girl's heart when she meets her lover as it is of the march of the planets and suns through the fields of space. Every atom of matter, every unit of force, throughout the universe is constant, external and exactly balanced, and the whole strength and genius of humanity could not increase or diminish them by the slightest fraction.

Now, let us imagine what would happen if man could make that bullet strike the earth with greater or less force than it left the muzzle of the gun. He would either have increased or decreased the total of universal energy, and in either case he would have thrown first the solar system and then the whole universe out of gear.

The earth and all the other planets would begin to revolve in different orbits. The sun, with its family of worlds, would alter its path round the unknown center about which it revolves. Then world would be hurled against world and sun against sun, and stars and planets would be reduced to the flaming gases from which they cooled into solids and liquids before time began to be.

Just the same catastrophe would happen if man could either create or entirely destroy a grain of sand on the seashore. The balance of the universe, in which swing stars and planets, whose weight is inexhaustible in human figures (this tiny world of ours weighs 6,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons), is infinitely more delicate than that which the chemist has to keep in an airtight case and at an even temperature lest a breath of air should throw it out of gear.

Thus the destruction or creation of a grain of sand would change the orbit of the earth round the sun. In the case it would be drawn closer and closer to the sun, perhaps after thousands of revolutions it would be swallowed up in fiery ruin. In the other case it would gradually leave the sun and year by year wander farther away into regions of space where human life would be impossible.

The result of the dislocation of such a stupendous system, which has worked with unflinching exactitude for countless ages, is, of course, utterly beyond the scope of human imagination, and yet such a seeming trifling as the creation or destruction of single grain of sand might, and probably would, plunge it into utter chaos and ruin.—Pearson's.

HANDLING STRAW.

How to Make a Light Barrow For Moving Small Quantities.

When straw is stacked outside the barn and some of it is wanted in the stable for feeding or bedding purposes, the usual plan is to carry in a little at a time on a fork or in a rope or strap sling. This in the use of a fork is anything but a speedy operation, next to using a very unpleasant job in cold weather, as an Ohio Farmer contributor remarks. He therefore suggests and sketches an easily and cheaply made contrivance to facilitate moving the straw, which may also be useful for transporting small quantities of hay from place to place. Procure first some light laths, say three-fourths by two inches, and make an almost square frame, using eleven of the lath pieces as if making a box with one corner left out. On the inside of this frame at the desired height nail two heavier and longer pieces for handles. A couple of with one end of each narrowed down to fit the hands, will answer for the handle pieces. On the bottom of the frame nail lath or boards, letting the two nearest to the center project about six inches in front. These two should be a little heavier than the others to prevent springing. Between the projecting ends place a small wooden wheel six or eight inches in diameter. This wheel may be a circular piece cut from a one or one and one-half inch board and have a light iron band fitted on to keep it from splitting or be a wheel from an old barrow or something similar. A light wire spoke wheel from a toy wagon is excellent for the purpose. The axle on which the wheel revolves is attached to the under side of the projecting pieces of the frame by a staple driven over it into each piece. The two rear upright pieces of the frame extend down level with the lower rim of the wheel for act as feet. Put braces across the front (as indicated by dotted lines) to strengthen the frame and hold in the straw. Other light strips may be tacked on the sides of the frame to serve the same purpose.

If the contrivance is made of the right material, it will combine strength with lightness and be very durable. It made only 2 1/2 by 3 by 4 feet, it will hold a considerable quantity of straw and be found a time and labor saver.

THRASHING THE POTATOES

A Harvester Built on a New Principle—Good on Smooth, Fine Lands. For a long time those who produce large quantities of potatoes have felt the need of a machine that would do away with the hard and slow method of hand digging and picking. An implement which is used to some extent

AN ENGLISH POTATO HARVESTER.

In England and is said to work satisfactorily is illustrated by The Rural New Yorker, which says: This machine digs, cleans, sorts and delivers the potatoes into baskets. The separator part works on the same principle as the ordinary grain thrasher, so that those who use it may properly speak of thrashing their potato crop. There is apparently nothing to prevent small stoves or hard lumps of dirt from getting in with the tubers, and the natural conclusion is that the machine is intended only for use on soil that is free from stones and not wet or lumpy.

It ought to work to perfection on the prairie lands of the central west, and if it should come to general use the probabilities are that the bulk of the potatoes could be grown on these smooth lands on a large scale at a figure which could not possibly be met by the small grower in the east, who must depend largely on hand labor.

Hollyhock For the Hens.
Somebody says hens are as fond of hollyhock leaves as cats are of catnip. In fact, it is found that cats like the hollyhock and will eat it as the fowls do. A writer in one of our exchanges urges the planting of hollyhocks for chicken food and gives directions for their cultivation. For a hedge row there are few if any flowers more attractive or more suitable, but when used to feed the poultry the flowers, it seems, must be sacrificed. We would suggest that they be planted in quantities sufficient both for ornament and for hen food.

"I have been using hollyhock for poultry green fodder," says a poultry man, "for 20 years. I learned the trick from a Hollander. I saw him feeding armfuls of the leaves to his hens. Ever since that I have sowed hollyhocks regularly. The trouble is very little. The plant is a biennial—that is to say, it requires two years to come to blossom. In the first year it merely develops the root and lots of leaves of large size on stout stems from one to three feet high. These leaves are tender, and the hens relish them."—Farm, Field and Fireside.

IN THE APIARY.

Young, Healthy Bees and Full Stores For the Winter.

Like preparing bees for the honey season, preparations for the winter should be commenced some two or three months before the actual time for packing the hives with chaff or placing in the cellar, according to whichever method is practiced, says a Missouri correspondent of Farm, Field and Fireside.

When we close the hives for the last time in the autumn, we should see that the colonies are strong and have sufficient stores to last them until nectar can be gathered the following spring. We should know also that they have a good prolific queen, and if she is of the current season's rearing I consider her better than if older, though a queen may be two years old without necessarily being inferior as to prolificness.

Mr. G. M. Doolittle, that studious and careful observer, states that during the busy season a worker bee will live forty-five days. He has also had bees to live from Sept. 1 to July 4.

As the queens usually quit laying some time in October and do not commence again until February in this latitude, it is evident that the bees that live over winter must attain considerable age as compared with the life of a worker during the working season.

As comparatively little brood is reared in February and March it may be seen that it is not until April or May that the young bees are able to take the place to any considerable extent of the old bees that have gone through the winter.

Therefore the bees that go through the winter, we may say, must live on an average to the age of six months. From this it must be evident to all that if we start into winter with young, healthy bees our chances of wintering them successfully are far greater than if we should commence the winter with old bees whose lives have already been partly exhausted.

FEEDING LAMBS.

Fattening For the Fall Markets. Some of the Nations Used.

In preparing lambs for the early market the best gain in the writer's experience at the Wisconsin station has been made by four lambs that were fed a mixture by weight of four parts of bran, four parts of cornmeal and one part of linseed meal. When the experiment started, the lambs were about three weeks old, and they were fed for ten weeks on this grain ration, receiving in addition the milk of their mothers. The average weight of each lamb at the beginning of the experiment was 18.6 pounds and at the end 62.5 pounds, an average weekly gain per head of 4.38 pounds. They each ate 26.6 pounds of the grain mixture during the ten weeks, costing 18 cents per head.

Under some conditions it may not be profitable to put the lambs on the market early or to carry them over the winter, but it may be better to sell them in November before housing is required. The best weights that we have obtained at the Wisconsin station with lambs fed until November have been made by the lambs previously mentioned as receiving bran, cornmeal and linseed meal before weaning. After weaning they were fed two parts of ground corn and one part of linseed meal by weight. On Nov. 19 each lamb averaged 102.7 pounds in live weight, and in the nineteen weeks that elapsed after weaning they had made an average weekly gain of 2.60 pounds per head. They each ate 183 pounds of the grain mixture. In addition to pasturage, at a cost of $1.47 per head for the grain.

In another trial five lambs being fattened on pasture after weaning were made to weigh an average of 97.6 pounds by Nov. 8. In the twelve weeks before weaning they had gained an average of 3.4 pounds weekly by eating fifty pounds of equal parts of linseed meal and bran, costing 47 cents, and after weaning they received old oats and pasture. During the fourteen weeks so fed they made an average weekly gain of 1.4 pounds, and they ate 52.1 pounds of oats per head, costing 56 cents.

More economical results were obtained by restricting the amount of oats to five-tenths of a pound per head daily while the lambs were on good pasture—J. A. Craig.

The Business Side of Dairying.

The business side of dairying is what Superintendent Converse is endeavoring to bring prominently before the people in his practical illustrations at the Pan-American. If he succeeds in awakening an interest in this sadly neglected side of dairying, he will have accomplished a great deal. It is not so much the results of a particular dairy, important as they are, but the fact that the different breeds of cows may be shut up in a building on the fair grounds and every scrap of feed brought at the market price and a steady profit derived from each herd every week. The most careless farmer possesses advantages that these exhibition herds do not have, and in summing up the totals account should be taken with this side issue.

THE WIDOW TAX.

In Mindanao, a Wife's Death Costs the Widower One Hundred Dollars.

Becoming a widow or a widower is a much more serious business than getting married among some of the tribes in the Philippines. In Mindanao "marrying in haste" often leads to a prolonged "repenting at leisure," for they have an institution there known as the "widow tax"—"chabalalan" the natives call it. Upon the death of the wife the widower must pay a certain sum of money or its equivalent in goods to his father-in-law before he can go about his usual life again. As money is a scarce article among these natives, the tax generally is paid in plates of common "stone china," which are much used by the natives as a medium of exchange. It is considered the proper thing for the bereaved one to pay 100 of these plates to his father-in-law for permission to look about him for a successor to the deceased helpmate.

If the husband dies, the widow at once becomes the property of her parents-in-law and so remains for life unless some relative comes forward and produces the necessary number of dinner plates. The natural result of this is that married people are all extremely solicitous for the health of each other. In sickness the invalid is sedulously attended by the partner of his or her joys and sorrows, the well person perhaps being moved more by the thought of those hundred plates than by real affection.

Divorce is unknown among these people, but a man may have as many wives as he pleases. It will be seen that in case of an epidemic which would sweep away his wives a married man would be in dire extremity. In the case of a death of a much married man his parents come into a small fortune, for they either have enough slaves to render future work on their part unnecessary or they receive enough plates from the families of the widows to set up a crockery store.

DWARFING AN OAK TREE.

The Japanese Trick by Which It is Accomplished.

The Chabo Hiba, a dwarf Japanese pine tree, was recently sold for $1,200. It is six feet high and alleged to be 830 years old. It has long been supposed that the process by which Japanese gardeners succeeded in dwarfing forest trees was a long and costly one. It is now said that it is a simple process and that any one can do the trick. The following directions are given for producing a miniature oak tree.

Take an orange and scoop out the pulp. Fill the interior with a rich mold and plant an acorn in the center of it, leaving the hole in the rind for it to sprout through. Put it in a sunny place and water it frequently. Soon after the first shoots have appeared the roots begin to break through the orange skin. Take a sharp knife and shave these off carefully and keep them shaved. The tree will grow about five or six inches high and then stop. In a year it will be a perfect miniature oak. When the roots cease to grow, the orange skin should be removed over and imbedded in a flowerpot.

The Japanese dwarf all kinds of trees and make them live to a great age. Some of these dwarfs, like the Chabo Hiba, are well known, and their owners have documentary evidence attesting their great age. The older they are the more valuable, of course, they are. In Japan certain families follow the calling, trade, or what you will, of growing dwarf trees from generation to generation, and you can buy a miniature oak 500 years old from a descendant of the man who first planted the acorn. Not only forest trees, but fruit trees and flowering shrubs, are dwarfed by these clever gardeners.

Swimming.

"No man can ever hope to be a strong swimmer unless he cultivates the power of endurance in the water," says a professional. "It costs me no more exertion to swim for an hour than it does to walk for the same period of time."

A swimming man should time his stroke with his breathing. He should take but one stroke to each breath. In this way the muscles of the body work in conjunction with the lungs, and no energy is wasted. In salt water, which, of course, is more buoyant than fresh water, a man who has trained himself in this way should have no difficulty in keeping afloat, say he were shipwrecked, until sheer weakness from hunger and thirst would force him to succumb.—Philadelphia Record.
