FEEDING ANIMALS.

but Add to It. There has been considerable said on the importance of making rations appetizing and suggestions made which would contribute to that end. Water makes a food taste better, makes it mere enjoyable and increases its value. Early cut hay, for instance, is best not only because it contains more protein than that cut late, but because its aroma and flavor make it more palatable. It is not well to feed animals too much at one time, as they pick out the most Shelter, Comfort and Kindness. There are three factors in the feeding the mental comment of each upon the ling were entirely different people." of animals that are as much peglected as any other, and, in fact, many people have come to study the needs for making a "well balanced ration" and have entirely ignored these essentials. The attention to shelter, comfort and kindness for animals will save many a pound of food and do much toward in creasing the products obtained, no matter whether the returns are to be work performed, milk and butter or meat

Winter quarters for animals should be warm and dry and should be furhished with plenty of pure air and good sunlight. Stubles should be well ventilated, but without being drafty. There is entirely too little attention paid to having the stable well lighted, especially to having such arrangements as to admit of a flood of sunlight. Sunlight is an effective destroyer of disease

Whatever adds to the comfort of animals increases their ability to properly utilize the food and will enable them to give better returns for that which is being consumed: Kindness is an efficient aid in making animals more productive, and it costs nothing. Abuse and excitement will interfere with digestion and cause a loss of food and product. Kindness and petting make animals contented and put their nervons systems in a condition to properly utilize food and to return their fullest measure of profit.

Feeding For Beef. In feeding for beef very different rules may be used as a guide from feeding for milk. Even with the calf the object is to produce as much fat as possible, at the same time making growth. If possible, the ealf fat with which it is born should never be lost, but continually added to. This means forcing with plenty of muscle and fatmaking foods. In feeding for beef more attention should be paid to the age of the animal and period of fattening than is commonly practiced.
