DANGER IN THE HIGH DIVE.

Deafness a Frequent Injury to Those Not Inured.

"Except for those who have an especial aptitude for it—and they are few—high diving is a dangerous pastime to indulge in," said a diving expert the other day. "A good diver may occasionally lose his balance, but, being generally cool headed, he can regain it, or at any rate sufficiently so as to prevent injury to himself.

"In the majority of cases deafness is the most frequent injury inflicted by diving. The cause of this is that few find it easy to drop the head sufficiently to get it well between the arms. The result is they receive some tremendous blows on the head, and if the water is struck a bit sideways the ear gets most of the concussion, and the result will frequently be a rupture of the membrane of the tympanum. A good preventive for such an accident is to place in the ears a little medicated wool or cotton dipped in oil.

"Another injury to health caused frequently by diving arises from getting large quantities of water into the lungs. The extent of the harm done in cases of this sort depends on the condition of the water as to its cleanliness. I have often seen boys, for instance, dive into water at places where it was absolutely filthy from the emanation of drains ago into it. The danger to health, especially to those with not overstrong constitutions, can readily be seen.

"The higher the dive the longer, of course, will be the duration under water. Now, an inexperienced diver is rarely able to hold his breath under water for more than a second or two at a time, and if the dive is an unusually high one he will in nine cases out of ten give up the struggle in trying to retain his breath and invariably, too, just before his head reaches the surface. The result not infrequently is that the water that has escaped into his lungs and stomach is far more than is good for him, and to many it is positively injurious.

"The best thing I know of to bring one quickly to the surface in high diving is to have a piece of cork fastened under each armpit. Corks weighing four ounces each are sufficiently strong in buoyancy for a man of 150 pounds in weight. There are many devices by which the corks can be kept secured under the armpits. Perhaps the simplest is to sew each cork into a tight fitting canvas or cotton bag and then again sew each bag on to the bathing suit by a couple of strands, allowing the strands to run over the shoulders.

"Those with weak hearts," the expert added, "cannot be too strongly advised against high diving. The spring, the rush through space, the break and the entering and cleaving of the water are altogether too exciting for weak hearts, and especially so in cold weather."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Miser's Last Wish.

A Greek died in the small town of Caracal, having always lived on the alms of his compatriots. Before dying he made his wife swear that she would bury him in the dirty old overcoat which he wore every day. The poor woman had to ask the Greeks of Caracal to help her to provide the costs of the funeral. A good hearted Greek went to see her in her affliction and, pointing to the body, said he would give her a better coat to bury the man in. Then she told him of the dead man's last wish. The Greek, whose suspicions were awakened, told her that she should certainly not part with the body before she had well examined the coat, for there must be some particular reason for the request. The widow unpicked the lining of the overcoat and found 85,000 francs in bank notes which the miser wished to take into the grave with him.

The General's Nose.

Mike Cyrano de Bergerac, General B. of the regular army was possessed of a nose which excited curiosity, if not comment, wherever he appeared. At one of the hops given at the post the dancers wore fancy dress and masks. The general's partner chanced to be a vivacious young thing who had never met him before. Nor was she any the wiser as to his identity when, following the custom at such balls, he removed the covering from his face. His partner followed suit, and her prattle ceased for awhile. Then she remarked, reproachfully: "Oh, but it isn't fair! You haven't taken off your nose!"—New York Herald.

The Kulling Pastors.

The prospective heirs of the dying miser came silently into his sick room. The physician is seated by the side of the patient, a finger on his pulse. "How is our dear uncle today, doctor?" ask the prospective heirs. "There is small change in his condition," whispers the doctor. "The dying miser rouses himself by a supreme effort. 'Small change?' he gasps. 'Put it in my pocket!'—Judge.

On the Sabbath.

In Scotland once a drunken man met a clergyman chasing his runaway dog on Sunday. "Tammas," said the breathless clergyman, "I am sorry to see you in this condition, but whistle for my dog. He is running away." Tammas regarded the speaker with gravity and said: "Whistle? I may drink whisky, but I'll no whistle for any dog on the Lord's day."

His Souvenir.

"Bring any souvenirs back from your trip?" "One only, but it cost a lot." "What was it?" "Empty pocketbook."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

THE KING COBRA.

It is Considered the Most Dangerous of All the Snake Family.

Snakes, venomous snakes, may be divided into two classes, the cobras and the viperoids. The cobras, inhabitants of distant India, form a class apart. To the viperoids belong all other venomous species, including our own splendid rattler, the moccasin, the fer de lance of the West Indies and the deadly bushmaster of Venezuela and the Gulaans.

Diametrically opposite, though equally fatal, are the effects of the cobra and the viperoid poison. Diametrically opposite, also, are the two methods of attack. The cobra at times is aggressive, the king cobra being said even to pursue man. Silent, without the least warning and from a place where you would least suspect, the round head darts out of a thicket, a sharp pain causes you to exclaim, and the frightful fangs of the snake are buried in your flesh. Like the grip of a bulldog they hold fast, while from five to ten feet of animated cable come stretching out of the thicket to coil lazily beneath the dread head.

For this eternal hold on the victim there is a natural reason. The fangs of the ten foot cobra are but a third of an inch long. It is impossible, therefore, to squirt the venom deep in a single stroke. In order to give the venom time to absorb the snake must retain its hold. The fatal poison contains about 95 per cent of nerve destroying and about 5 per cent of blood destroying elements. Within five minutes the pain leaves the wound, and even the shock of the attack begins to wear off. There is little suffering, nor will there be to the relentless end. Only if by chance the bite is one from a small snake or if a fresh supply of antitoxin happens to be at hand is there a chance for your life. If one recovers from the immediate effects within a week one is as healthy as ever. While the poison of the cobra often kills within an hour, there have been cases where the "strike" of a rattlesnake and a bushmaster have caused death within ten minutes. Naturalists accept, however, that the king cobra, owing to its great size and the consequent quantity and quality of poison emitted, is the most dangerous of all the snakes.—McClure's.

TURNPIKE SAILORS.

The Term by Which Tramps Are Known Throughout England.

The term "ocean tramp" is known to many landsmen. Its verbal antithesis, "turnpike sailor," is probably less familiar outside thieves' circles, whose, Mayhew tells us in his "London Labor and the London Poor," it is used to denote a beggar masquerading in mariner's garb. Among the Westsex peasants, whose vocabulary, if limited, is singularly effective, it bears a rarer meaning. Thus they designate a particular class of "traveling folk" who roam the country from place to place as a sailor roams the sea. The name might well be applied to the whole nomad tribe—thinkers, hawkers, gypsies, itinerant showmen and the like—but for some reason or other it is confined to the tramp proper, the seedy, out at elbows individual who is to be seen slouching along the highroad or begging from door to door in the villages. Sometimes he is alone; more often a friend of his own degree keeps him company; occasionally a depressed looking wife and ragged children straggle at his heels. He tells not, neither does he spin; he "pays no rent," as an aggrieved householder remarked to the present writer, and he seldom puts his port for longer than a night at a time unless compelled by circumstances beyond his control, when he is lodged in a spacious mansion, is boarded gratis and is provided with the "job" which he professes to be always anxiously seeking and seldom manages to find. As a rule, he sleeps "rough"—in the open, that is—or in any convenient shed, except when the state of his finances permits him the luxury of the tramps' lodging house, which, on the evidence of a country policeman, is "the noisiest, drunkest"—he had almost said "the filthiest"—place in the town.—London Spectator.

Between Feminine Friends.

Of course they love each other dearly and have been on intimate terms for a long time, but this is what was said on the occasion of the estrangement that lasted for nearly two days: "New shoes?" "Yes." "They'll torture you for the first few days." "Oh, no; they're very large." "Unquestionably. But still they may be a tight fit."—Chicago Post.

WHEN THE SEA IS ANGRY.

Those who live beside the sea know the helplessness of mankind in the presence of unbridled Nature. And they know also the impossibility of bridling her so that she will not again assert herself when, where and how she may please. Men exert all the ingenuity of which they may be possessed in the hardening of metals and woods and in so joining them as to furnish the most resistance to the buffeting of the waves when the sea is angry. They take the vessels out in a rough sea and try them. The little bark rides lightly and behaves well. The men laugh at the sea. Then Nature bestirs herself and there comes a gale that is worth while; a gale whose sound makes the strongest men tremble and know themselves helpless. And the bit of wood and metal into which all the skill of its makers had been concentrated is dashed hither and thither until her broken spars are lying upon the shores to be gathered up as junk and driftwood by the coast scavengers. Some bodies may also wash ashore with the other wreckage.

The men "Who go down to the sea in ships" always take their lives in their hands and they always will. Until there is some human means for controlling and regulating Nature man is helpless, for he cannot successfully combat her, except when she chooses to be kind and humor him. The ocean is nature typified. The sailors along the shore, with their dingy dories, seem helpless in the surf. Yet they are just as safe in the breakers as the strongest iron-clad would be if caught in the worst storm possible for the waves and the winds to concoct. Poverty and philosophy have kept the fishermen humble. Yet in their humility and the lack of progress they have shown in the construction of their vessels they have gained in the effort to conquer the sea as have the rich governments that have built marvelous, splendid, steel-clad, mar- framed navies to wrestle with the deep. True, the latter can go farther. But in the final count, in the ultimate pitting of strength against strength, both are equally helpless. And man has always the discouraging thought to face—"I have done the best I can do for years to come. The sea, within a few hours, could be lashed into a fury before which my best efforts would be as the sand fort built by a child."—Baltimore American.

Distress After Eating Cured.

THE PLEASURE OF VISITS.

It is a pleasant sensation to wake up in the morning and feel that one is a guest. Strange wallpapers and strange furniture surround one's bed and there is a strange view out of the window. All the jostling demons of worry, anxiety and responsibility, whether domestic or professional, who stand ready to crowd upon our consciousness vanish in the unfamiliar environment. We have got away out of the claws of the usual, and lie blissfully waiting for a knock at the door which shall have an unfamiliar sound.

Down stairs we find new faces, new pictures, strange books, a fresh standpoint. Life has a new savor. We taste it everywhere, in the atmosphere and in the conversation, even in the bread and the salt. Our first sensation is that everything depends upon something else. It is nothing to do with us whatever happens. But presently the old truism of our childhood—that every situation in life has its duties—comes back to our mind, and though with our waking thoughts we cast off those of the home dweller, we must immediately prepare to take on those of a guest—at least if we are constitutionally conscientious, which, alas! all guests are not. They may, indeed be divided by this conscience test into visiting sheep and goats. The motto of the conscientious guest is Mine. Mohl's well-known saying: "It is a shame to eat another man's bread and give him nothing in return!" Such a one should be a joy to his hostess, but in the holiday world of hosts and guests, as in workaday life, good intentions do not always insure success—the conscientious sometimes fail where the unconscientious succeed.—American.

A SHORT STORY WITH A MORAL.

Patrick Flood, a boy of 16 years, and the eldest of a family of eight children, was arraigned in a New York police court on the charge of stealing a loaf of bread last week. He admitted having committed the crime of which he was accused, but having refused to make a defense, an officer was detailed to make an investigation. The facts arrived at were these: "Six months ago his father was called out on strike. Two weeks later the son, who was working at the new residence of United States Senator Clark, on Fifth Avenue, was ordered to quit work. What little money the family had saved was soon expended for food and rent, and then a struggle for bare existence.

"Because of the fights their unions were making, neither father nor son could secure employment, and at last recourse was had to the pawnbroker. Stick by stick the furniture was removed from the house, until Monday all that remained was a bed and a mattress, on which Mrs. Flood lay, fighting, unattended by physicians, for life. About two weeks ago the son decided to leave home.

"I couldn't stay any longer,"

he said, "I tried my best to help the folks along, but when I saw my little brothers and sisters and my mother wasting away for lack of food, I had to go; I couldn't be a burden to them. Since then I have earned a few dollars at odd jobs and have given what I could to my mother.

"On Tuesday I went to see her and found her too ill to leave her bed. I had no money and rather than beg I stole the loaf of bread for her and the children."

The Magistrate discharged the boy and work was procured for the father. The story is only one out of ten thousand similar ones resulting from the same cause.—Ez.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

MONO RAILROADS.

Electrical experts and transportation managers of this country are watching with interest the latest developments of highspeed traction, as indicated by the construction of the "monorail" line between Manchester and Liverpool, England, the Berlin-Hamburg tests in Germany and the "limited" service between Cleveland and Toledo. All these represent different types of locomotion. The German tests are practically a continuation of those made two years ago on the Berlin-Zossen short military line, and are to determine the practicability of maintaining high speeds with both steam and electric locomotives. The "monorail" system is a development of the idea which in this country took the form of the Meigs electric railway and the Boynton bicycle railway. In spite of those who laughed at the inventor year after year appeared at the statehouse, seeking an extension of the time in which to build his experimental line from Boston to Brockton, the Boynton bicycle railway contained an idea which is being applied practically abroad, and which has vitality enough to withstand not only the fiercest attacks of competitive systems, ridicule enough to have crushed out a worthless scheme. The experimental lines of the "monorail" type which exists as ruins at Coney Island and Patchogue are monuments to the germ of an idea which is full of possibilities. And the great railroads know it.

The weightier articles in THE ELECTRIC MAGAZINE for October include a thoughtful and somewhat critical review of the pontificate of Leo XIII from The Quarterly Review; and a discussion of Mr. Chamberlain's preferential tariff proposals, by Viscount Goschen. There is a second instalment of "Sigma's" delightful "Personalia" from Blackwood's, which is full of witty stories about lawyers; and from the same magazine is reprinted a graphic account of experiences "With the Ruck to the Derby." The literary element is even stronger than usual. There is a striking poem, hitherto unpublished, by William Blake: "Glimpses of Ruskin" as seen in the recently published letters to Miss Gladstone; a description of The Goncourt Academy by J. H. Rosny; an appreciation of "Charles Read's" Novel" by Walter Frewen Lord and a characteristically pleasant paper by Augustine Birrell on the new editions of Charles Lamb. There is a striking short story by Katherine Cecil Thurston; a travel paper, "Jottings About Jerusalem"; an account by the Hon. Mrs. Bertrand Russell of Four Days in a Factory; and a sharp article from Blackwood's on the revived Carlyle scandal. Among the poets of the number are Wilfrid Wilson Gibson, Nora Chesson, and Rosamund Marriott Watson. The Living Age Company.

THE AVERAGE OF LIFE.

For some years it has been asserted by scientists and others that the span of human life is being gradually lengthened and they have presented formidable statistics to show it.

There is no reason, however, for accepting these Roman records. Had the census-taker given vouchers showing his own knowledge of the facts it would have added to their value, but the practice of shortening or lengthening one's age is the most common of weaknesses.

INDIAN RELICS FOUND IN CAVE. The efforts of J. B. McGuire, a representative of the National Museum at Washington, who has been making explorations in the cave at Caveaton, Washington county, for two weeks, have been rewarded by the discovery of numerous relics of Indians and bones of wild animals.

The most important find was a stone slab on which was cut in profile the figure of a white man holding a gun in one hand and pointing with the other to a hole in the slab.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh.

BEATRICE SURELY LOST.

NOFOLK, VA., Sept. 18.—Captain Bussells, of the Atlantic Fishing Company at Cape Charles, Va., who brought safely into port the fishing steamer Atlantic, said that their own can be no doubt of the fact that the Atlantic's sister ship Beatrice foundered during the recent coast storm, going down with all hands aboard.

The last seen of the Beatrice was when the steamer Atlantic left her off the Maryland coast about 6 P. M. Tuesday. The weather was then fair and the Beatrice was heading for the Virginia Capes.

There was a report this afternoon that the Swan had been heard from in Delaware Breakwater, and that all hands aboard were safe.

KILLED WHILE AT BREAKFAST.

Ada, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. Martin Remsburg, who moved from Middletown, this county, several years ago to a farm near Manassas, Va., met with a shocking death Saturday morning. While seated at the breakfast table a gun, which was being carelessly handled by a colored boy in the yard, was accidentally discharged, the lead passing through the window and tearing the top of the girl's head off, causing instant death. Her body was taken Middletown Sunday, where there is a large family connection.

An inquest was held by the authorities of Fairfax county and a decision reached that the shooting was accidental.

Ernest McGill, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, officiating. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. E. Winthrop Bosley, of the Towson bar. The bride was given away by her father.

The bride's gown was of Paris mousseline, trimmed with point d'esprit. She carried American Beauty roses. The couple left for a Northern trip. They will reside in Towson.

Owes His Life to a Neighbor's Kindness

Mr. D. P. Daugherty, well known throughout Mercer and Salumer counties, W. Va., most likely owes his life to the kindness of a neighbor. He was almost helplessly afflicted with diarrhoea; was attended by two physicians who gave him little, if any, relief, when a neighbor learning of his serious condition, brought him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him in less than twenty-four hours. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman, Druggist.

Bank Organized.

A private bank, a branch of the Farmers' Banking and Trust Company, of Baltimore, was organized at Hancock, Washington county, Saturday with the following officers: President, J. F. Diehl; vice-president, R. E. Taney; directors, E. C. Henderson, J. W. Burgess, Dr. J. A. West, Frank Bauck, Samuel Sixman, W. B. Stigers, Dr. J. E. Swartzwalter, R. L. Henderson, Joseph Dixon, Joseph Ezline, Charles Runyas and Daniel Spitzler.

AN AGED FAMILY.

On Sunday, Sept. 13th, five Harner brothers attended services at St. John's church, Littlestown. The two oldest are twins, they are Emanuel, of near Kemp's and John, of near Harney. Their ages are 82 years, Ephraim, of Kingsdale, aged 79, and Josiah, of Littlestown, age 76. There are seven in the family, two sisters and five brothers. Their ages range from 62 to 82. They are all enjoying the best of health at the present time.

Behind The Bars

Officer Chas. H. Wilson on Friday arrested John B. Carson, of Fountaindale, and brought him to Gettysburg. Two warrants were sworn out before Justice Meals, of Gettysburg by the defendant's wife, Mrs. Lauretta V. Carson, the one charge being nonattendance the other for assault and battery.

The defendant was held in $300 bail in each case, in default of which he was committed to jail.—Gettysburg Star and Sentinel.

Pastor Elected

Rev. Dr. Charles F. Steck, of Springfield, Ohio, was unanimously elected pastor of the Lutheran church in Frederick at a congregational meeting on Sunday morning to succeed Rev. Luther Kuhlmann, who resigned to accept a professorship in the church's college, at Gettysburg, Pa. Rev. Mr. Steck formerly resided in Middletown, Frederick county, where he was born.

THEY QUIT WORK.

The men engaged in breaking stone on the streets of Emmitsburg went on a strike Wednesday. They did not strike for higher wages, but for the purpose of maintaining the present wage scale, as the contractor wanted them to break the stone at five cents a perch less than they were receiving.

Promoted To Manager

Mr. George S. Nusser, formerly of this place, has been promoted to manager of the Branch department of the Charles M. Steiff piano business, at Norfolk, Va., succeeding Mr. John J. Foster, who has been made manager of the New England Branch with headquarters at Boston. Mr. Nusser has been with Mr. Steiff about eight years.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Democratic Convention Nominated Candidates For County Offices Last Saturday

The Frederick County Democratic Convention was held in Frederick on Saturday last and nominated candidates for the various county offices. The Convention was held in the City Opera House and was called to order by Jacob M. Newman, chairman of the County Central Committee. Mr. Emory L. Coblenz, of Middletown, was elected chairman, with Messrs Clayton Trundle and George R. Stottlemeyer, secretaries.

The resolutions of the Democratic State Convention were adopted as the resolutions of the County Convention, with the addition of a recommendation of additional pay for public school teachers and longer school terms.

The Ticket

The convention nominated the following ticket: State Senator—Jacob Rohrbach. House of Delegates—Guy K. Motter, Benjamin J. Phobus, Dr. John Gardner Chas. N. Freshour, Richard E. Murdock. Clerk of the Court—James M. Newman. Register of Wills—Dr. Maximus Whitehill.

Sheriff—John W. Fogle. State's Attorney—John E. R. Wood. County Commissioners—James O. Harne, G. A. T. Stouffer. Judges of the Orphans' Court—Francis T. Rhodes, Russell E. Lighter, Jas. T. Waesche.

Treasurer—C. C. Holtz. Surveyor—Oscar R. Coblenz.

VISITED EMMITSBURG.

Sixth Pennsylvania Cavalry Association Made a Brief Visit to This Place.

The Sixth Pennsylvania Cavalry Association from Philadelphia, made their twentieth annual visit to Gettysburg on Saturday, Sept. 19, arriving there at 3 p. m. After supper a campfire was held in Xavier Hall, W. W. Swesfort presiding. Addresses were made by Capt. Long, of Gettysburg; J. H. Robinson and J. S. Moore, of Philadelphia, and Major Robbins, of Confederate fame, also made quite a patriotic address.

On Sunday the visitors took in the battlefield, having every point of interest explained to them in a pleasing manner by a competent guide. On Monday the members of the association, numbering between two and three hundred, were driven to this place, and took in the "sights" here. They remained here about 1 1/2 hours. Just before their departure, Capt. Long delivered an address from the porch in front of Hotel Spangler, where the visitors made their headquarters. In the course of his remarks, Captain Long said that the Sixth Pennsylvania Cavalry Association brought more people to Gettysburg than any other association of a similar kind.

A large number of the visitors had never been in Emmitsburg before Monday, whilst many of the veterans passed through our town during the war between the States. The visitors were highly pleased with what they saw of our town in so short a time especially its beautiful surroundings and picturesque scenery.

We had the pleasure of meeting Messrs. J. H. Robinson and John S. Moore, both of Philadelphia, who visited the CHRONICLE office while in town on Monday. Come again and stay longer.

A Boy's Wild Ride For Life.

With a family around expecting him to die, a son riding for life, 18 miles, to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, W. H. Brown, of Leesville, Ind., endured death's agonies from asthma; but this wonderful medicine gave instant relief and soon cured him. He writes "I now sleep soundly every night." Like marvelous cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and Grip prove its matchless merit for all Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at T. E. Zimmerman's drug store.

FAIRFIELD ITEMS.

Mr. Morris Marshall and family, of Taneytown, and Mr. Mervin Marshall and family, of Blue Ridge Summit, were recent guests of Mr. John Marshall and family, of Fairfield. Last Saturday and Sunday nights were very cool but no frost has been seen as yet. Mr. Wagner, of Fairfield, who has been at the Hospital at Mount Alto, has improved in health very much, and expects to come home this week. The largest tree in the county is on the tract of timber land which Dr. W. G. Dubs sold to Dr. Kalback. The tree measures 21 feet in circumference, near the ground, and seven feet from the ground it measures 19 feet in circumference. How to get the tree down is somewhat of a puzzle. Some of the saw mill men suggest putting up a scaffold about 10 feet high and then saw the tree off. The tree is about 7 feet in diameter.

Mr. F. Shully, who is in business at Taneytown, spent last Sunday at his home in Fairfield. He expects to stay there until about the holidays. Mrs. F. Shully and Miss Belle With-crow were called to Reading, Pa., on last Friday to attend the funeral of a child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Shully, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Shully, of Fairfield. The baby was about 6 months old.

PROHIBITION CANDIDATES.

The Prohibition County Convention Met in Frederick And Nominated a Full Ticket.

The Frederick County Prohibition Convention was held in Frederick on Tuesday. Frank B. Sappington was made Chairman of the Convention, after which the following ticket was nominated:

The Candidates

State Senator—Dr. Robert L. Hammond, of Woodsboro. House of Delegates—Geo. L. Twenty, Jr., of Tincora; Jesse Wilson, of Woodville; Jonathan T. Biehl, of Frederick; William D. Furdum, of Urbana; Dr. John D. S. Young, of Creagerstown. Clerk of the Court—E. Marshall Gilbert, of Frederick. Register of Wills—J. Hollin Kefauver, of Middletown. Sheriff—Millard F. McBride, of Bal-lenger. County Commissioners—George D. Norris, of Linganore, Jacob Crum, of Mt. Pleasant.

Judges of the Orphans' Court—D. Edward Kefauver, of Middletown; Geo. F. Nichols, of Woodsboro; Calvin Metcalf, of Liberty. County Treasurer—Jacob P. Hesson, of Mt. Pleasant. Surveyor—Adam Roser, of Woodsboro.

The Platform

The Convention adopted this platform: We, the Prohibition party of Frederick county, Maryland, in Convention assembled, do again publicly declare our faith in Almighty God, as the author of government, and the supreme ruler of the same. We believe that the prohibition of evil has its divine sanction, and that He will lend assistance to human effort to accomplish its over-throw.

"We believe and publicly declare that the liquor trade is the greatest evil and curse that the world has yet known. We believe that this trade is a curse against humanity and an offense to heaven for our National, State or county governments to legalize or in any way to protect or defend it. We believe that the total destruction of this foul trade would bring, in a few decades, universal peace, prosperity and happiness to our people who are now oppressed by it.

"We therefore promise, if our nominees are elected, to destroy it, together with the vile resorts of its making. The deplorable moral depravity of the old political parties calls for a radical change in political methods. Words fail to express our abhorrence of the bribery and general corruption to legislative assemblies and executive departments, and official positions to govern criminals of their own making.

"We shall give an administration of public affairs which the citizens of our county will have reason to be proud of, instead of our own shame and reproach as the government of the old parties is at the present time. Undaunted by the terrible assaults of the liquor trade and its allies and friends and not discouraged by repeated defeats to secure the instead of our own shame and reproach as the government of the old parties is at the present time. Undaunted by the terrible assaults of the liquor trade and its allies and friends and not discouraged by repeated defeats to secure the

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman, Druggist.

LITTLE GIRL KILLED.

A distressing accident took place at Annapolis at about half-past 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon which resulted in the death of Mary Hardesty, aged 11 years, who was shot by Ashby Sherbert, aged 7 years. The shooting was done with a 32 caliber pistol. A verdict of accidental death was rendered by Justice Feldmeyer, who conducted a inquest. The shooting took place at the house where both of the children lived, on Market Space. The little girl had just returned from a walk, and as she entered the house the boy aimed the pistol at her and discharged it. The ball entered the heart and killed her almost instantly. Dr. J. J. Murphy was summoned, but arrived after her death. The children were cousins and the little fellow is almost frantic with grief. He procured the pistol out of a trunk unknown to any other people.

The Genuine vs. Counterfeits.

The genuine is always better than a counterfeit, but the truth of this statement is never more forcibly realized or more thoroughly appreciated than when you compare the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve with the many counterfeits and worthless substitutes that are on the market. W. S. Ledbetter, of Shreveport, La., says: "After using numerous other remedies without benefit, one box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me." For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy is equal to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by T. E. Zimmerman.

FOUND DEAD UNDER A TREESTLE.

John Murphy, a laborer, aged 45 years, home unknown, was found dead last Friday under the big trestle that crosses the Potomac river and Chesapeake and Ohio canal near Big Pool. Justice Hoffman held an inquest, the verdict of the jury being that Murphy came to his death by falling from the trestle or by being struck on the head. Murphy was last seen alive Wednesday. He had been working on the Western Maryland extension from Big Pool to Cumberland.

THE OYSTER AND CRAB INDUSTRIES OF MARYLAND.

We favor a system of public road improvement to be added to both national and State appropriations and to be applied on equal terms throughout the State. These appropriations should supplement, on reasonable terms, the money raised for that purpose by the counties and individuals.

We favor such additional appropriations for our public school system as will aid each county in lengthening its school year and in increasing the salaries of its corps of teachers.

The schools should be kept free from partisan political influences of every kind. The oyster and crab industries of Maryland are of paramount importance and shall be protected by wise and liberal legislation.

First—We condemn the Democratic Oyster law of 1900, which has fastened upon the taxpayers an army of useless officials.

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

Hon. Stevenson A. Williams, of Harford County, Nominated for Governor.

The Maryland State Convention was held in Baltimore city on Thursday of last week, when the candidates for Governor, Comptroller and Attorney-General were nominated by acclamation. Congressman Pearre of Allegany County, was elected Chairman of the Convention. After the Chairman addressed the Convention, the following nominations were made.

The Party Nominees

For Governor—S. A. Williams, of Harford county. For Comptroller—Lemuel E. P. Dennis, of Somerset county. For Attorney General—Geo. White-lock, of Baltimore city.

There was a unity and vigor about the cheers for the candidates, particularly for Mr. Williams, that left no doubt that the discordant elements of the party will rally under his leadership and, so far as he is concerned, there will not be a break in the ranks.

The party platform adopted by the convention is as follows:

THE PLATFORM.

The Republicans of Maryland rejoice in the results of Republican administration in the nation. It has promoted the welfare of the whole country. We commend President Roosevelt's adherence to a great ability and courage, showing him in every way worthy of election by the people to the presidency. We favor his nomination for President next year.

The Maryland Republican delegation in Congress has honored the State in both Houses. They (our Republican Senator and Members) have greatly helped Baltimore city and Maryland by the wise appropriations from the Federal Treasury obtained for our buildings, our rivers, our harbors and national public works.

The Democratic party obtained power in Maryland four years ago under false pretenses, by promises it has not kept, with purposes it did not dare avow. It elected a Governor who called an extraordinary session of the Legislature for purely partisan advantage against the protest of an enlightened public opinion and at great needless public expense.

As a part of this conspiracy he aided the same leaders in procuring a useless and untrustworthy State census—another false pretense—a heavy cost to the taxpayers.

He condoned the trick-ballot fraud and rewarded the faithless Supervisors of Elections by reappointing them to the trust they had just betrayed. He has been careless as to the reputation and antecedents of public officers appointed to prominent positions.

He has exercised the pardoning power partially and ungenerally and to the detriment of the public interest. In the words of our Declaration of Rights, we declare that "The rights of the people to participate in the Legislature is the best security of liberty and the foundation of all free government, and every male citizen having the qualifications prescribed by the Constitution ought to have the right of suffrage."

We further demand that the Legislature shall remedy the ascertained defects in our present Election law, resulting solely from the changes made in that law by the Democratic managers at the special session in the interests of fraud and oppression.

We must put an end to the increasing disfranchisement of many citizens, through accident or fraudulent marks on the ballots. We must insure the canvass of the vote by the Supervisors without error or confusion due to any uncertainty or omission in the law.

A Republican Governor and Legislature will bring back to the people fair election laws. The Governor and Legislature are pledged to complicate the ballot, to confuse the voter, to throw out the vote after it is cast, and to extend the disfranchisement of the people.

We condemn the employment of the Police Board and forces of Baltimore city and the Board of Liquor License Commissioners in the interests of the Democratic party and in furtherance of the political ambitions and fortunes of individual members of that party.

It is of the utmost importance to the people of Baltimore city that these agencies should be taken out of politics, and we pledge the Republican party of Maryland to such acts as will accomplish that purpose.

We favor the enactment of a primary election law and a corrupt practices act applicable to the entire State. We favor the delegation of the legislative power to grant charters to a public officer, under liberal and certain rules, as being the most effective method of curbing the lobby and diverting the revenues regularly derived therefrom by its members into the treasury of the State.

We favor a system of public road improvement to be added to both national and State appropriations and to be applied on equal terms throughout the State. These appropriations should supplement, on reasonable terms, the money raised for that purpose by the counties and individuals.

We favor such additional appropriations for our public school system as will aid each county in lengthening its school year and in increasing the salaries of its corps of teachers.

The schools should be kept free from partisan political influences of every kind. The oyster and crab industries of Maryland are of paramount importance and shall be protected by wise and liberal legislation.

exercise of their just rights and we denounce all attempts to inflame sectional or race prejudice as a cloak for dishonest government and further outrages upon the elective franchise.

IN MEMORIAM.

For The Chronicle In tenderest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. James K. Glennon, of Mobile, Alabama, this Tribute to their daughter, Mary Zilpah, who died at her parents' home, September Eighth, 1903, is offered, by St. Joseph's Academy.

Mary Zilpah had been a pupil of the Academy for the past four years, and was a member of the class of '04. With all the grace and attractiveness of artless innocence, this dear child had endeared herself alike to her teachers and her companions. Uniform excellence of conduct challenged for her the esteem and just appreciation of all, whilst earnest endeavor developed the natural intelligence and mature judgment that secured her success as a student. Like a beautiful sunbeam, flashing its light for a moment, she passed from the Valley Home, to which she knew not that she was bidding her long farewell, last June. The honors she bore away with the spontaneous and effusive congratulations of her companions, were well merited.

To all, she has bequeathed the precious memory of a bright and beautiful example of virtue and self-denial, admirable even in persons more advanced in years. Long will the "missing link" in the broken chain of the class of '04, keep many hearts bound in the strong union of love and sacrifice. On the morning of September Eighth, at the classes assembled for the first session in the scholastic year, the sad announcement herein recorded reached us. The graceful and beautiful Assumption Lily was then in its gorgeous bloom, suggesting the comparison we have borrowed for our dear departed one.

From Sunny South a bud in blossom fair, Its chalice deep of dazzling snowy white, To realms celestial Angels bear, Least breath of evil o'er its beauty blight.

The valley yields its treasured prize, The radiant lily near our Mother's shrine; For flowers potent live beyond the skies, Such bloom, sweet child, such privilege rare was thine.

How keen the anguish in thy far-off home, Where tears explain our Zilpah's memory best, Alas! O'er earth no more thy footsteps roam, For thou, God's favored one, hast endless rest.

Thy father, mother, sore are grieving still, Fond hearts bereaved with sorrow shrouded o'er, The aching void none other e'er may fill, Till Faith and Hope, and Love, thy lost restore.

But why should those who mourn thee thus regret, Since Wisdom hath declared that ripe old age Means but a spotless life, and such was thine, For innocence is all thy childhood's page.

We marvel now e'en as we breathe thy name, That we could e'er have dreamed to keep thee long, So beautiful a soul you should we claim For this sad world so bleak with woe and wrong.

'Tis true, thy school days had not reached their prime, But how full those garnered years so brief! Thine early lot, immortal thought sublime, Forbidst thy loved ones sadness, gloom, or grief.

Great God! no mummery from our lips shall part, Thy will be done. Thy holy, just and right; Who would our perishes thy will recall, Let e'er it drop and fade through sorrow's night.

O Child of Mary, in dread judgment's scale, How heavy must thy cherished Medal press, The southern secret of Saint Joseph's Vale, To win thy Mother's tender, warm caress.

Pray for us, dear happy child, that we Too multiply our years in shortest space; Till from our grand Commonwealth Day, like thee, We pass from earth to see God face to face.

GERMAN SYRUP. We want to impress on our readers that Boschee's German Syrup is positively the only preparation on the market to-day that does relieve and cure consumption. It contains the specifics, such as pure tar, extracts of gums, etc., which have been so highly endorsed for the cure of coughs, colds and consumption by the great medical congresses. The consumptive, whether his disease is in the throat or lungs, must have rest at night, and be free from the spasm of dry and racking cough in the morning. The diseased parts want rest, healing and soothing treatment, and the patient needs fresh air, good food, etc. German Syrup will give free and easy expectation in the morning with speedy and permanent relief. Small bottles, 25 cents; regular size, containing nearly four times as much 75 cents. At all druggists.

PROPERTY FOR SALE. A two-story dwelling house, situated in Emmitsburg. Property in good repair, and an excellent location for a business stand of any kind, the property being suitable for business purposes as well as a residence. LOST.—A pocket book containing $60, and a card with the name of M. A. Briggs. Reward of $5 if returned to the care of Mr. George A. Eckenrode.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula— as ugly as ever since time immemorial. It causes bunces in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." Mrs. K. T. Hays, Ohio.

TWO SEVERE ACCIDENTS.

Mrs. Lewis Smith, who is supposed to be the tallest woman in Carroll county, her height being 6 feet 2 inches, met with a serious fall on Friday night. She was on a stepladder performing some domestic duty at her home, near Gist, when the ladder broke and she fell to the floor with such violence that her thigh bone was broken within two inches of the hip joint. As she is about 50 years old the fracture is a troublesome one, but her physicians think she will recover.

which are also four inches wide, one inch apart.

When ready to begin topping place this bench on top of two crates if you wish to sit at your work or on top of two barrels if you wish to stand.

To begin with, you must have a sharp knife, and keep it sharp, as a dull one will surely tear the skin of the onion, and as soon as that is done it begins to rot.

Never top onions close to the bulb unless you want them to begin to grow at once, and do not top them until you want to market them, as they keep better with the tops on.

BARS TO MATRIMONY

FEAR KEEPS MANY MEN FROM THE BLISS OF WEDDED LIFE.

Some instances of a lack of sufficient pluck to take the fatal trip to the altar—Various reasons that all spell "afraid."

"There is a great deal of speculation," said a well known lawyer, "as to why men are so reluctant to marry, but one reason seems to occur to the speculators, and that is that many of them are afraid to. No, I am not joking. It is a sober and well considered statement of fact, for which I can adduce as many proofs as you want, that many men would almost as soon think of patting a fierce bull on the head or facing the midnight burglar as taking a trip to the altar."

"I remember as a boy an amusing specimen of this kind of man in Iowa. He was a farmer and was as notorious for his amorous entanglements as for his ingenuity in getting out of them when marriage began to loom near. It was said he had been engaged a dozen times, and though he left all his fiancées in the lurch he never found any difficulty in getting a successor. One day my father, who was his lawyer, asked him: 'Why don't you get married, John?' It isn't for want of opportunities, you know, and it's quite time you thought of settling down."

"Well, sir, John answered, 'It's this way: You see, I like cooing well enough, but I can never summon up pluck to go any further. To tell you the truth, I'm afraid of getting tied for life to one of 'em.'"

"If you have heard many breathless promises suits you will have observed that this wholesome dread of matrimony is the cause of a good proportion of them, though all the defendants have not the courage to say so. "One client of mine had allowed matters to proceed right to the eve of the wedding day, when he disappeared mysteriously and was not discovered for some months. The young lady promptly sued him for damages for breach, and at the hearing the reason for his conduct came out. He admitted that he was fond of the girl, but sundry exhibitions of her temper and jealousy which he had witnessed had so scared him that he simply hadn't the courage to marry her. "I meant to marry her right enough," he said, "but when it came to the point my courage failed me, and I thought it safer to bolt."

"In another case in which a widow sued a widower for playing her false the defendant put in a singular plea. It seems that the widow's family strongly objected to the match, and as passive opposition was useless to prevent it one of the sons, a stalwart young fellow, called on the middle aged wooer and told him that if he persisted in his suit he (the son) would give him such a thrashing as would effectually cure him of any further sentiment. "So what could I do?" the defendant pathetically asked.

"The more one sees behind the scenes the more one realizes that there is often a great deal to be said for the man who loves and runs away. One of my clients a few years ago found himself in an awkward quandary. He had engaged his fiancée at different times and had having canceled his engagements with two, was on the eve of marrying No. 3. No sooner was his intention known than the two jilted ladies threatened him with legal proceedings if he persisted in his proposed marriage, and the favored lady in turn threatened a similar fate if he didn't.

"Here was a dilemma, for whatever he did would end unpleasantly. However, like a prudent man, he decided to run the smaller risk. He pacified his two former fiancées by canceling his engagement and prepared to face the music of the third lady.

"The mother-in-law is often a fatal disturber of love's young dream. One breach of promise defendant declared me the plaintiff's wife had married the plaintiff's only child, and she had her mother at any price, and the prospect of having his married happiness disturbed by her interference so scared him that he decided it was more prudent to break off the engagement, while another frail lover actually stated in court that he was afraid to marry the plaintiff lest she should 'grow up like her mother,' whose 'tongue and temper had shown him some of the less desirable possibilities of married life."

FOUGHT AT SIX PAGES.

Sanguinary Duel That Took Place in London in 1808.

Duelling in England in 1808 was often a very sanguinary business. On a Friday morning in March of that year a most extraordinary duel took place in Hyde park, London, between Lieutenant W. of the navy and Captain J. of the army. The antagonists arrived at the appointed place within a few minutes of each other. Some dispute arose respecting the distance, which the friends of Lieutenant W. insisted should not exceed six paces, while the seconds of Captain J. urged strongly the rashness of so decisive a distance and insisted on its being extended.

At length the proposal of Lieutenant W.'s friends was agreed to, and the parties fired per signal, when Lieutenant W. received the shot of his adversary on the guard of his pistol, which tore away the third and fourth fingers of his right hand. The seconds then interfered to no purpose. The son of Neptune, apparently careless to pain, wrapped his handkerchief round his hand and swore he had another which never failed him.

Captain J. called his second aside and told him it was in vain to urge a reconciliation. They again took their ground. On Lieutenant W. receiving the pistol in his left hand he looked steadfastly at Captain J. for some time, then cast his eyes to heaven and said in a low voice, "Forgive me!"

The parties fired as before, and both fell. Captain J. received the shot through the head and instantly expired. Lieutenant W. received the ball in his left breast, and immediately fainted. His friend if Captain J.'s wound was mortal. Being answered in the affirmative, he thanked heaven he had lived thus long, requested a mourning ring on his finger might be given to his sister and that she might be assured it was the happiest moment he ever knew. He had scarcely finished the words when a quantity of blood burst from his wound, and he expired almost without a struggle.—Glasgow Herald.

GOOD THINGS TO LEARN.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine.

Learn to attend strictly to your own business; very important point.

Learn how to tell a story. A well told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick room.

Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in this world keep the bad to yourself.

Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows.

Learn to greet your friends with a smile. They carry too many frowns to their own hearts to be bothered with any of yours.

Learn to hide your aches and pains under a pleasant smile. No one cares whether you have the earache, headache or rheumatism.

Must Eat His Fee. Dr. Pighead visits Mr. Coldham, the great pork manufacturer.

"Well, my dear sir, I don't see that there is anything radically wrong with you. Go to bed early, don't drink anything stronger than coffee and you'll be all right in a week."

"What! Are you not going to give me any medicine?"

"Certainly not. You don't need it."

"But you get your money just the same."

"Yes, just so."

"Well, I don't think it is a square deal. S'pos'n you bleed me, put a mustard plaster on the back of my neck and gimme a dose of salts. Everybody that works for me 's got to earn his salary."—London Tit-Bits.

ANCIENT CIVILIZATIONS.

Jerusalem in the days of Solomon probably did not contain 20,000 people.

Constantinople at the time of its greatest splendor as capital of the eastern empire had a population of about 1,500,000.

Babylon, whose name has come to be synonymous with dense population, never had over 1,200,000 inhabitants in its palmiest days, so the archaeologists declare.

Athens, when she led the Greek states in repelling the invasion of Xerxes, had only 30,000 inhabitants, but Herodotus speaks of this number as if it was something to boast of.

Rome, the mistress of the world, the great city to which all roads led, "Rome the Eternal," did not exceed 2,000,000 in population. Gibbon, indeed, believes that it had only 1,200,000, and in this estimate he and Milman agree.

A Unique Command. At Boulogne, during a royal reception, a number of English ladies in their anxiety to see everything pressed with such force that the soldiers who were keeping the line that the latter were forced to give way and generally were to use the expression of policemen—"hindered in the execution of their duty." The officer in command, observing the state of affairs, called out:

"One roll of the drum—if they don't stand back kiss them all!"

After the first sound of the drum the ladies took to flight.

"If they had been French," said a Parisian journal, "they would have remained to a woman."—Illustrated Bits.

Policeman's Caution Wasted. Just now the companions of a recent recruit to the police force are poking fun at him because of a remark he made a few nights ago when he found it necessary to arrest a very old offender. Arrived at the police station, he ushered the culprit in with the injunction to "mind the steps."

"G'lang with you!" said the prisoner scornfully. "I knowed these steps afore you was born!"—New York Press.

Harmony Was in Danger. "I have here," began the chairman of the political caucus, "some charges against this organization which."

His voice was overwhelmed by the rumble of rising indignation. When the noise subsided he continued:

"which I will refer to the treasurer. They're for hall rent and light."

And harmony continued to reign.—Baltimore American.

ASKING QUESTIONS.

The Art of Interrogation Should Be Devoid of Impertinence.

"Do not ask questions!" is the worst piece of social advice which age can give to youth. A man who never asks questions is the dullest fellow in the world. He had better ask too many than too few. We can defend ourselves against curiosity, but no armor avails against indifference. We must resign ourselves to be bored to death.

What is the secret of the art of interrogation? Putting aside quick sympathies, which lie at the root of every social art, we believe the most essential quality for those who would excel in it is directness. The art of asking questions so as to learn, instruct, please and influence is not the art of beating about the bush. The questions which offend and silence are the questions which suggest some ulterior motive. It is a found out scheme which makes men angry. Anything of the nature of a trap keeps us on our guard. If we once fall into one we resolve it shall be the last time. Suspicion kills confidence. Interrogative hints are utterly useless. The average man does not dislike to be questioned. He hates to be started, crossed, interfered with, reproached, worried or betrayed. He hates the questions which are not asked with a simple intention.

There are questions which are not asked not because the asker wants to know, but because he intends to tell. Others, while ostensibly directed to find out a man's opinion, are really intended to reflect upon his character. Some men inquire as to their neighbors' projects in order to put difficulties in their way. Strings of meaningless questions are poured out by those who desire to pretend an interest in some subject which they neither know nor care anything about.

We believe the conclusion of the matter to be this: The art of interrogation is a serious branch of the social art. Well asked questions are of the essence of agreeable intercourse, but the interrogative mood will not justify an impertinence, an interference, a verbal assault—nor, for the matter of that, a bore.—London Spectator.

ODD NOTIONS OF WOMEN.

Rosa Bonheur treasured a small lead image of St. Anthony of Padua as a lucky charm.

Caroline Herschel firmly believed that if she met a cross eyed beggar in the morning it presaged the discovery of a new star that night.

George Elliot was a slave to the influence of the hunchback and club-footed man and did no literary work upon the day when she saw one.

Lady Milniks, the wife of the great painter, was convinced that the crack of doom would sound for any one who stepped on a crack found in the sidewalk.

Harriet Beecher Stowe believed that it was bad luck to throw away a toothbrush which had outlived its usefulness, and to the anguish of her household, preserved every one that she had ever used.

Queen Victoria cherished a number of superstitions, and among them, she believed that the removal of her wedding ring would surely bring calamity and that a pet Manx cat would bring good luck to the royal household.—Ev'rywhere.

Didn't Care to Be Presented. The wife of a well known naval officer tells an amusing story of some of her experiences in Washington society. On one occasion when she was asked to receive at an army and navy german a congressman entered with a lady leaning upon each arm. One of the former committees at once approached him, with the polite request that he give his name in order that he might be presented to Mrs. Blank, who received the guests of the evening.

"No, thank you," was the nonchalant reply. "I don't care to be introduced. I have two ladies now to take care of, and that is about as much as I can manage."

Grace in Old Forests. Some trees are more graceful than others. The elm and oak are noted for their perfect and graceful form. All their branches appear to be perpetually moving, stirred by every wind that blows, and the same may be said of the pine. The graceful movements of its limbs, the sighing sounds of its stems and evergreen needles, send forth a solemn symphony. Everything contributes serene grace and simplicity to old forests.

Behind Her Back. "She's very studious," said one woman.

"Yes," answered the other. "And doesn't seem to care for gossiping in the least."

"Oh, I don't know about that," answered the other with a smile; "she merely prefers to talk about Helen of Troy and Romeo and Juliet to paying attention to what is going on in her own neighborhood."—Washington Star.

A Sure Sign. When a young man talks about the business of "our firm" in a pitch of voice that can be heard from one end of a street or to the other it is a sure sign that his wages have been raised to $6 a week.

The Prize Winner. Naggeby—How did the contest in optimism result last night?

Waggeby—Gagster won the prize by laughing most heartily at one of his own jokes.—Baltimore American.

Versatile. Hobson—How is your brother doing at college?

Dobson—Fine. He's singing first tenor and playing second base.—Indianapolis Journal.

He Knows. "I don't see how a man can be so mean," expostulated Mrs. Cobwigger. "Just because I'm going a few miles out of the city to spend a day or two with an old school friend you rake like a madman about the expense. You know very well, Henry, the railway fare is only 40 cents."

"I know that, my dear," replied Cobwigger, "and I know also that every time you go on one of these little trips you spend at least $25 for the things you say are absolutely necessary to make you presentable."—New York Times.

Mrs. Fred Unrath.

"After my first baby was born I did not seem to regain my strength although the doctor gave me a tonic which he considered very superior, but instead of getting better I grew weaker every day. My husband insisted that I take Wine of Cardui for a week and see what it would do for me. I did take the medicine, and was very grateful to find my strength and health slowly returning. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was able to take up my usual duties. I am very enthusiastic in its praise."

Wine of Cardui reinforces the organs of generation for the ordeal of pregnancy and childbirth. It prevents miscarriage. No woman who takes Wine of Cardui need fear the coming of her child. If Mrs. Unrath had taken Wine of Cardui before her baby came she would not have been weakened as she was. Her rapid recovery should commend this great remedy to every expectant mother. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow.
