MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL EXHIBIT.

The Maryland Agricultural Exhibit at the World's Fair occupies block 45 on the southeast side of the Agricultural Palace, and in dimensions is 90x20 feet.

Mr. Wm. L. Amoss, a farmer at Benson, Harford county, and director of the Farmer's Institutes, a department of the Maryland Agricultural college, was, through the courtesy of its trustees, placed in charge to organize and collect products for exhibition. Every assistance possible was given by the president, director and faculty of both College and Experiment Station, where the products were received and stored. Prof. W. T. L. Talliaferro acting as receiving agent, ably assisted by professors Norton, Austin, Simons, Walls and Doane. In the work of installation the superintendent in charge was ably assisted by Messrs. Leo A. Colhill of Washington county, John A. Scott of Baltimore county, and Stewart B. Shaw of Somerset county.

The exhibit in design is unique and attracts more than usual attention, it being fashioned so that the characteristics of the State may at a glance be apparent to the stranger. Approaching the exhibit from the center aisle and west side, high above all banners, in gold letters 17 inches in length, is seen "Maryland" 20 feet long. From the effect of the sky-blue background it seems to be suspended in midair over a map 7x12 feet of the State, held in space as it were, on a bank of dark-blue clouds. No one can fail to find the block if he keep but one eye open when passing through the building. The exhibit, like the State, is made up in sections—Western or Northern, Central, Eastern Shore and Southern Maryland. By the arrangement it is easy to explain why Maryland has within her boundary lines every condition of land and climate found in the temperate zone. All products are exhibited with the names and addresses of the growers attached, tied by ribbons of orange and black, the State colors. The weathered oak cases with plate-glass fronts which were made by J. C. Knipp & Sons of Baltimore, are as good, if not better than any in the building. The plate-glass by its brilliancy and perfect transparency, gives a lustre to the products behind it, a freshness as in the natural, and reproduces that which is lost in the presence of artificial preserving or curing. To the visitor's left, at the north end, is a case six feet long and one foot deep, filled with specimens of forage. Timothy is shown from the farm of the Consolidated Coal Co., near Frostburg, Allegany county, in two lots—the first and second crops from the same field. The second crop is quite four feet long, and shows the unsuspected fertility of the Alleghany Mountain pockets. Another specimen, exhibited by J. T. Hoopes, Harford county, is over five feet in length, which, it is explained, grows on land which often produces 100 bushels of corn per acre. In the same case are three varieties of clover, alfalfa, buckwheat and a sheaf of spring wheat from W. H. Weber & Sons, Garrett county, which shows a growth of four and one-half feet of straw. A case of forage at the opposite or south end contains forage crops of the Eastern Shore and Southern Maryland—winter wheat, barley, oats, cowpeas, soja beans and blade fodder. Forage, it is explained, cannot be preserved with the same ease in the East as in the Western States, where the harvest season is so dry that grain can be left in the fields for months after cutting, while in Maryland crops must be at once stacked or stored in barns; that the frequent showers make truck and fruit growing more profitable than grain; that the nearby markets offer opportunities for sale of these which their Western brothers do not enjoy. The two cases for exhibiting 10 samples of soils and subsoils, collected by Dr. J. A. Bonsteel of the United States Division of Soils for the Maryland exhibit, are located one at each end of the space. The cases are so arranged that the soils can be inspected both in jars and in bins. In front of each case in black letters is the fact, "Maryland has a greater variety of soils than any State in the Union." With each sample is the name, a description, where obtained, characteristics, the list of crops for which it is best adapted.

A feature intended to illustrate the varied conditions, crops and methods found in the northern and southern sections of the State, quite foreign to each other, is the two barn scenes, located at each end and on the wall side of the block. That on the north end is labeled "Western Maryland Barn." The front is built of barn boards painted red. One story only is visible; the second and roof is hidden by a hickory tree, with foliage, true to nature. The trunk, eight inches in diameter, stands at the north corner, while its long limbs, with its many branches, hide completely the second story and roof. A hop vine winds itself around the trunk and spreads its foliage and flowers across the front. A coonskin is nailed to the side. The front has the appearance of an open barnfloor, and is protected from dust and the hands of the multitude by plate glass. On the floor to the right is a pile of yellow Dent corn, each ear of mammoth proportions. Some has been selected for seed and lays in a pile by the bucket, with a bundle of alfalfa on it, where the farmer sat when shelling by hand into the partly-filled half-bushel basket, while in a second pile are the cobs and in a third the nubbed corn. Some sacks have already been filled. At the South end of the same barn is a pile of wheat, quite 20 bushels; and mow to the left is filled with wheat in the sheaf, while to the right is filled with loose timothy hay; overhead is corn fodder, while on the timbers hang corn knives and the flake. The inquisitive visitor is told that straw has a value to the eastern farmer second only to grain, that hay brings a better price loose than when baled, that the coon and fox take the place of the deer and jack rabbit on the plains.

The barn at the south end is labeled "Southern Maryland Barn." Here the grapevine and muskrat skin take the place of the hickory tree and corn. The dark-green foliage with bunches of half-ripe grapes have been frequently taken for the "real" thing. The front is not painted nor whitewashed, but stained a weathered gray. Oyster tongs lean against the barn. The front is also protected with plate glass. The loft to the right is filled with tobacco hanging from sticks, while on the floor is a stripping scene, as when the farmer and his help drop all and go to dinner. To the extreme left is a "burden" of seasoning tobacco, while opposite is a full hoghead ready for the French market. Hanging from pegs and nails are corn-husk collars (the only exhibit of the kind in the building), baskets, mats and implements commonly seen in a tobacco barn, and a basket of cotton sent from St. Mary's county. A spinning wheel which came from Calvert county hangs from a beam above, and is said to be over 200 years old. It is a surprise to many that cotton was once grown for market in Southern Maryland and lower Eastern Shore. The stranger is told that man does not have to work for a living in Southern Maryland unless it is work to gather what the waters of the Chesapeake Bay abundantly supply, without care or forethought on the part of the people whose farms lay along the shores of its many inlets. It is the barn hang the decoys, gill net, crab net, oyster hammer and knives, fishing rod and tackle. The north end of the barn is filled with blade fodder, which is a new product to the Western farmer, and is the only exhibit of the kind in the Agricultural Palace.

The corn exhibit, consisting of samples of 10 ears each, collected from nearly every county, is displayed in a handsome case 4x12 feet, protected by plate glass. Each sample is tied with orange and black ribbons, with the names and addresses of the growers attached. On the top shelves in jars is a comparative analysis of Maryland corn, high in protein, presented by H. J. Patterson, of the Maryland Experiment Station. Here, too, is displayed a diploma awarded by the Paris Exposition in 1889 to "Sir" J. P. Silver, of Harford county, for corn exhibited by him. The certificate is immediately below a sample of the same variety exhibited by his son, Mr. J. P. Silver. This case of Maryland corn often causes remark and expressions of surprise that Maryland has land that will grow such. A second corn exhibit is made in a special exhibit in the middle aisle of this mammoth building. Here are displayed the four staples—tobacco, sugar, cotton and corn. Through President Silver and Director Patterson of the Maryland College and Experiment Station, a special corn exhibit is made, the design being built of staff and wood, with three mammoth ears of corn weighing each 100 pounds as decoration in part. Around this on tables will be seen a duplicate exhibit, with many additions, of the samples shown in the general exhibit. It was thought by making this display before the Western corn-growers they would be convinced of the evident fertility of Maryland land.

The tobacco exhibit is displayed in a case of like construction and proportions to that occupied by the corn, and is located at the opposite end and in front of the "Southern Maryland Barn." It makes an attractive showing of the planters' tobacco from both Southern Maryland and Frederick county. The broad membrane-like leaves readily catch the eye of the visitors, and they are frequently heard to read aloud the sign, "Maryland Tobacco." A special tobacco exhibit is also made in the middle aisle on a space 20 feet square; in the center stands a giant Indian on a pedestal over seven feet high with a long-stemmed pipe in his mouth and a horn of plenty on his left arm, from which the manufactured products of the weed fall to the ground. The whole is apparently built of tobacco. To his right and left are cases 12 feet long, in which are displayed on the one side the several types of tobacco sold on the Baltimore market, and which were furnished by the Tobacco Relief Association, while the other case contains a duplicate exhibit of the Southern Maryland planters. On the front of the pedestal in tobacco leaf is the word "Maryland"; also a placard telling where to find the Maryland Building and the several exhibits of the State.

The middle section of the space displays products of Central Maryland. Against the wall, and exactly in the center, is the Dairy (a springhouse, not common in the West), built of staff in imitation of round stones. Under the eaves is a peewit's nest, a hornet's nest, and in the corner, beneath the overshoot, is a spring of crystal water, which reflects the visitor's smiles as if it were a mirror. A gourd hangs by, while a churn, butter-worker and print are as we find them on the average farm. Large milk-cans, coolers, strainers, etc., indicate that the Maryland dairyman is in the milk and cream business, leaving butter and cheese making to his less fortunate Western brothers. The dairy exhibit is supplemented by a display of bottles (full of milk) from S. N. Shoemaker's Walker-Gordon Dairy and the New Hygeia Dairy. The visitor is amazed to learn that it is expected during the Exposition to have here an exhibit of fresh milk from Mr. Shoemaker's dairy, 1,000 miles away, as a clinching argument that Maryland produces good milk and cream such as needs no preservative or other care than scrupulous cleanliness.

The canned-goods industry is in evidence in this section to the right and left of the "Springhouse." Placed against the wall, which has been covered with black cloth, are three pyramids of cans of peas, corn and tomatoes. Over each respective group is placed the fact from the United States census of 1900 that Maryland packs one-fourth of the peas, one-eighth of the corn, one-third of the tomatoes packed in the United States. Between each pyramid is a shield, covered with orange cloth, with cans of small fruits arranged and attached to the face of each, while over and above all, to the right and to the left, are two globes, five feet in diameter, on pedestals of cans, with the outline of the two hemispheres in evidence. Canned goods with gold labels encircle each, and illustrate the fact that "Maryland canned goods are around the world." To the front and at the end of each wing stands a pyramid of cans on pedestals, one of crabs and the other of oysters. The base of each is covered with its respective shells.

In front of these, and close to the nickel-plated two-inch iron pipe rail which encloses the whole exhibit, are two extension tables, with a barrel and a half of big-stemmed sweet potatoes piled on each, and a card bearing the following: "These potatoes were grown on land 20 miles from Washington, bought eight years ago for $3.38 per acre." Few visitors pass the tables without reading this typewritten information.

To the right and left of the center are two pyramids, 12 ft. high and eight feet at base. On one are the manufactured animal products, while the other displays the manufactured vegetable products. In black letters on the face of each we read Maryland has 46,000 farms, with an acreage of 2,032,000, and a total value of farm crops of $30,217,000. Each of the eight steps of the latter carries a product with a legend of its value to the State in the following order: Corn, $7,463,000; hay and forage, $4,709,000; potatoes, 1,337,000; vegetables $4,354,000; miscellaneous, $1,792,000; tobacco, $1,438,000; orchard fruit, $1,416,000; small fruit, $1,224,000. The pyramid of animal products has five steps, with the following information: Dairy products, $5,229,000; meat products, $4,546,000; poultry, $3,650,000; wool, $145,000; honey and wax, $39,000. On the summit of each pyramid is a group of jars containing fruit and vegetables in preserving fluid, looking as natural as when on the tree or vine. A few things of interest on the pyramids are a pair of socks made by Mrs. Ann L. Hill of St. Mary's county, aged 70 years, knit from cotton spun by her and grown by her son the past year; maple sugar and syrup from Silas C. Beachy, Garrett county; some jars of fruit put up by Mrs. George T. Chambers, Calvert county; peaches packed in 1893; pears and wine of 1896; English walnuts and other nuts grown and exhibited by Arthur J. Ford of Cecil county.

The proverbial hospitality of Maryland is asserted by a "Lawn Bower," built of the native laurel by Robert Cremens & Sons of Baltimore, which stands in front of the "Dairy," close to the aisle. Here at all hours congregate visitors from the world over, as the register, standing on a rural desk, will testify. Nearly 300 have registered at this bower in one day, though many stop and do not leave their names. This gives some idea how it attracts the eye of the passer-by. The whole has been thickly covered with English ivy. On opposite sides the morning-glory vines, one white and the other purple, have crept through the tangled mass to the roof. A wild rose, full of bloom, has thrown its spray across and over the front, and here and there are little bird's nests. The comfort and apparent coolness of the whole halts the weary to read the sign: "All are welcome—Walk in." On the inside he finds the Baltimore American, the Sun, the News and county papers. In glass-covered racks are pamphlets supplied by real-estate firms of the State. Two placards call attention to the census records for Maryland, one the average yield per acre, the other the average value of farm products. The latter gives Maryland a standing with the highest of her sister States.

By ingenious construction, the superintendent has made his desk by dropping a section of an exhibition of grain; through this, also, unobserved doors open to closets back of the canned goods, where are stored the samples intended for the inspection of the Committee on Awards.

Though the arrangement and the display of the products are convincing of the varied conditions found in the State, nothing probably leaves with the visitors a more lasting impression than the five snapshot pictures, five feet long and 16 inches wide, taken by J. W. Schaefer of Baltimore with his wonderful camera on films specially prepared by the Eastman Co., and colored by Miss E. S. Jackson of Washington. The one standing on the soil case at the north end was taken at Braddock Heights, and lays before the visitor a view of the Middletown Valley, Frederick county, a strip of land across the State 16 miles wide and over 50 miles in length, from the Mason and Dixon Line to the Potomac and Old Virginia.

In the Southern Maryland section over the soil case is a typical plantation scene, the home of Hon. Thos. Iglehart, "Indian Range," 12 miles from Annapolis and five miles from navigable waters on South River and on the Baltimore and Southern Railroad. A card contains the information that the land is naturally fertile and has a market price of from $10 to $30 per acre. A third picture, over the grain exhibit, in the same section, was taken three miles from Cambridge, on an inlet of the Choptank River, from Mr. Monday's barn roof. In the foreground oyster tongs are seen at work, while across the river the peaceful farm homes illustrate a life that is ideal. The fourth picture, taken off Solomon's Island, is a beautiful water scene of the second natural harbor in the United States and the proposed terminus of the Baltimore and Southern Railroad at the mouth of the Patuxent river, where some of the finest oysters grow. The fifth is the Maryland Agricultural College.

The display of each product on this space is intended to show the several industries in which the people of the State are engaged, and through it and the superintendent in charge, every resident of the State producing or manufacturing the agricultural products (not horticultural) will have every opportunity of securing the benefits of an advertisement which an award from the official committee can give him through a diploma, the same as if he spent his time and many thousands in making a display of his own construction, and that, too, without cost to him. No manufacturer or producer of products intended for seed or to be sold direct to the consumer should let this opportunity pass. The committee making awards will not pass on canned goods or tobacco until September. Nothing has yet been scored except that which is perishable.

A Power For Good

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are Dr. Williams' Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot, of Albany, Ga., says: "During a bilious attack I took one. Small as it was it did me more good than a calomel, blue mass or any other pill I ever took and at the same time the effect was pleasant. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by T. E. Zimmerman.

RELIEVING THE PREACHER.

A popular preacher tells a good story of a young clergyman who launched out on a strong temperance sermon. When he had finished a deacon said to him:

"I am afraid you have made a mistake. Mr. Jones, who pays the highest pew rent, who practically supports the Sunday school and who is ever ready with a contribution when asked, is a distiller. He is bound to be angry."

"I am sorry," said the minister. "I will go and explain it to Mr. Jones and remove any unfavorable impression, and tell him I did not mean him."

Accordingly he waited upon Mr. Jones, who, in addition to the profession of distilling, also carried on a good many other branches of trade and indulged in a good many amusements of various kinds.

The pastor expressed his deep regret to Mr. Jones for anything he might have said in the sermon which could hurt his feelings. He was extremely sorry, indeed; he did not mean anything by it, and hoped Mr. Jones would not feel hurt.

He was somewhat relieved when with a jovial air, the other said: "Oh! bless you, don't mind that at all. It must be a mighty poor sermon that don't hit me somewhere."—London Tit-Bits.

A Matter of Taste

FRIDAY, SEPT. 9, 1904.

TALBOTT RENOMINATED.

He Is The Democratic Candidate For Congress.

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 6.—The Second District Democratic Congressional Convention on the two hundred and twentieth ballot today nominated Hon. J. F. C. Talbott as the party standard bearer for this district.

This convention will go down in the political history of the State as one of the most protracted and stubborn struggles for a nomination for Congress.

It was nearly 3 o'clock this afternoon when the convention met, although it had taken a recess at 1 o'clock this morning to reassemble at 2 P. M. The delay was said to be due to the fact that State Senator Robinson, of Harford county, had called the Harford delegation together and had told them that he had felt grateful to the delegation in supporting him so consistently throughout the long hours of the struggle and that he had come to the conclusion that it would be unwise to continue in the fight, and that in the interest of the party he felt that the struggle should be ended. "I have no one to ask you to vote for," he said. "I leave that to your own good judgment. I thank you for your loyalty to me and now ask you to use your own pleasure as to how you will vote."

While this meeting was going on the delegates from Baltimore city and Carroll and Baltimore counties were waiting in the opera house, Dr. Frank T. Shaw, of the Carroll delegation, grew impatient at the delay and said: "Mr. Chairman, the hour for the continuance of the Punch-and-Judy show of the Second Congressional district has arrived, and as the audience seems to be impatient, I move that the performance be continued. I see that some of the troupe is absent, but we who are here can well play their part."

Mr. Crouse, the chairman, said: "I would state that the Harford delegation has asked to be allowed a short time for consultation, and I beg Dr. Shaw to withdraw his motion." To this Dr. Shaw cheerfully assented. The chairman then read a letter from the manager of the opera house, giving notice that other shows have been billed, and that the convention could not have the hall after today.

At this point the Harford delegation entered the hall and took their seats, and a roll call was made without any change. Mr. Walter Preston, of the Harford delegation, moved a recess of 30 minutes. To the surprise of all, the Baltimore county delegation seconded the motion. This was the forerunner of what occurred later. During the recess the Harford delegation took a walk around the block, and a poll was made as to how they stood. This poll resulted in a vote of four for Talbott and one against him. It was thereupon decided to cast the vote of Harford county for Mr. Talbott. The news of this decision quickly became known, and Mr. Talbott's friends were greatly elated when the convention had been called together upon the first roll call. When Harford was reached Mr. Hollis Courtney, Jr., arose and said:

"I have voted 41 years for the Democratic party. Two years ago I stood on this very spot and voted for J. F. C. Talbott. This time when I came back I did not expect to find Baltimore county again pushing his claim. They have stood by him, and I now cast the five votes of Harford for Mr. Talbott." Then there was pandemonium among Talbott's supporters. The Baltimore city delegates cheered and yelled. As soon as order had been restored the chair announced that Mr. Talbott had received the following votes: Baltimore city, 3; Baltimore county, 7; Harford 5, making a total of 15 votes, and he was therefore nominated.—Baltimore Sun.

A LEGAL SURPRISE.

Dry Times Fishing In The Potomac or Canal

Consternation has been produced among the fishermen of Washington county by the provisions of a new law, which became known only upon receipt of copies of the published laws of Maryland enacted at the recent Legislature, prohibiting one person from giving to another a drink of liquor on a boat upon the Potomac river or upon the property of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal. It is declared unlawful for any person or corporation, with or without license, to sell, give or barter any intoxicating beverages to any person on the Potomac or on the canal property. It is also unlawful to issue to any person or corporation a license for the sale of liquor in any quantity upon the Potomac or canal property. The penalty for violation is a fine of from $100 to $200 or three months' imprisonment.

The law was enacted to reach the floating saloons that have bothered the railroad contractors who are building extensions for the Wabash and the Baltimore and Ohio along the Potomac river. It is alleged these floating saloons were responsible for much disorder and lawlessness among the railroad workmen, especially the foreign class. A couple of murders have been committed by drink-crazed workmen.

The law applies only to Washington and Allegany counties, and while it will abolish the floating saloon it will also affect the pleasures of fishermen, who love to take a drink between the bites of the fish.

SLAUGHTERED SHEEP

Over 1000 thoroughbred sheep belonging to Morrow & Keenan, of Willow Creek, Crook county, Oregon, have been killed at Little Summit Prairie, forty miles east of Prineville. While the herder was alone and occupied with the care of his flock about 20 horsemen, with faces blackened, emerged from the timber and commanded him to throw up his hands.

Leaving the herder behind a tree for protection from the bullets, a general fusillade with rifles was commenced by the mob, which lasted nearly two hours, by which time the entire band of sheep had either been killed or scattered in every direction.

Wheat Crop of the Northwest

E. W. Wright, commercial editor of the Oregonian, who has just completed a trip of 2,000 miles through the wheat districts of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, estimates the wheat crops of these three States for the cereal year 1904-05 to be 45,100,000 bushels. This compares with a crop of 33,785,000 bushels last year; 41,600,000 bushels in 1902 and 46,600,000 bushels in 1901, the latter being the record crop for the three States.

Coinage at the Mints

The mints of the United States during the month of August turned out 17,391,750 new coins of an aggregate value of $3,182,020. The gold coins, which were half and double eagles, were valued at $1,385,000; the silver coins consisting of half and quarter dollars and dimes, at $1,591,000 while 2,460,000 nickels and 8,302,000 pennies added a total of $206,020. The mints also coined 2,256,000 silver pesos for the Philippine Government.

The large bank barn at the York county Almshouse, the erection of which cost $16,000 and which, the directors say, would cost twice as much to replace if built of the same material, was completely destroyed by fire at 7.30 o'clock Friday evening. The greater part of this season's crop and the farm machinery was destroyed with it.

$800,000 FIRE IN MEMPHIS.

Memphis, Tenn. Sept. 3.—Fire on Front street in the heart of the wholesale district today destroyed property approximating in value $800,000.

The flames originated in the Oliver-Finnie Company's grocery from an unknown cause. The stock and building were destroyed. The building on the north of the Oliver-Finnie store, owned by John Denie's Sons, stored with lime, was partly crushed by falling walls. The Memphis Paper Company's building was crushed. It was also partly burned, as were the building of W. C. Early & Co., wholesale commission merchants, and the rear part of the S. T. Ferguson & Co. building.

The Oliver-Finnie Company's loss is between $400,000 and $500,000. Winne, Love & Co. and Behr & Co. were also among the firms that suffered loss.

Frank Giffenbaugh, a fireman, was severely injured by falling from a ladder. Six other firemen were overcome by heat and smoke and were removed to hospitals. All will recover.

WANTED HER UNDERSHIRT

For robbing the grave of Emma Gibbs, a colored woman who died at Ridgely, Md., about a month ago, and who was buried in an old grave yard near Denton, Caroline county, John Bell, Joseph Bantum and Elberta Eaton, all colored, were arrested and taken to Denton Jail. It appears that Emma Gibbs was buried in an undershirt of Elberta Eaton. A few weeks after the burial Elberta was haunted with the fear that if she did not get back her shirt, she too would be hastily called to the happy hunting ground. She could not sleep well and the colored population around the neighborhood said something had to be done. John Bell and Joseph Bantum, two colored men who are known among their race not to be afraid of anything, were told of the fears of Elberta, and they volunteered their services to return the shirt. So one night last week they, in company with Elberta Eaton, went to the graveyard, took up the dead woman and exchanged the undershirt for another.

DEATH OF MAJOR SETON.

Distinguished Army Officer Expires at the Preston

Major Henry Seton, United States Army (retired), died about 6 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Preston apartment house, Preston street and Guilford avenue, Baltimore, Md., where he had made his home since February last. Major Seton was 66 years old and had spent a large portion of his life in the military service. He was a grandson of Mother Seton, whose name is known to all Catholics as the foundress of the Sisters of Charity in America. He was a son of William Seton, of Cragdon, N. Y., formerly an officer in the United States Navy.

Major Seton received his military education in Austria, being appointed to a cadetship by Field Marshal Count Nugent, and became a lieutenant in the Franz Josef Regiment of Rifles. When the Civil War broke out in this country his father called him home, and Lieutenant Seton was granted a year's leave of absence by the Austrian Government. He became an officer in the Fifth New York Regiment of Infantry, and was placed on General Seaman's staff as an aide de camp. Upon the expiration of his year of leave the Austrian Government recalled him, but he declined to return and resigned his commission in the Austrian Army in order to remain in the United States. At the close of the war, in 1865, he was appointed to the regular army, receiving a commission in the Fourth United States Infantry. He served with distinction in the Indian wars, was with General Crook on his famous "starvation march," and fought against the Indians who massacred Custer and his devoted band, at the Rosebud and other engagements.

After 40 years of service on the plains Captain Seton embarked for Cuba, with a portion of the Fourth Infantry, and distinguished himself at El Caney. At the close of the short Cuban campaign he returned to the United States, was promoted to his majority for meritorious conduct under fire, and shortly after embarked from New York on the transport Sheridan for the Philippines, as a member of the Twelfth Infantry. After a year's distinguished service in the Philippines, Major Seton was retired at his own request and returned to the United States.

Major Seton is survived by his widow, who was the only child of Maj.-Gen. John G. Foster, of Nashua, N. H., and a grandchild of Col. Samuel Moale, of Baltimore. He had two sons, one of whom, John Foster Seton, died in 1897, while the other, Dr. William Henry Seton, died at Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 11, 1904. His remains were taken to Baltimore for interment, and his parents have since lived in that city.

Major Seton was well known in this place, his family having resided here for a number of years.

The deceased soldier is survived by two brothers—William Seton, LL. D., of New York, and Archbishop Robert Seton, D. D., now of Rome, Italy—and three sisters—Elizabeth, Helen (a Sister of Mercy) and Isabel, the latter the wife of Thomas S. Levons, of New York.

Two of the great piers for the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington railroad bridge over the Susquehanna river, between Perryville and Havre de Grace, are reported completed. The work will be pushed with great rapidity, the company having in view the completion of the piers before the freezing weather sets in. When the new bridge is completed the tracks at both ends, which now makes a wide bend, will be straightened thus shortening the distance between Baltimore and Philadelphia by more than one mile.

George Evenden, aged about 40 years, was arrested in Hagerstown Friday by Constable Alexander on the charge of stealing a horse and buggy from Edwin A. Funk several weeks ago. The horse was recovered at Eakle's Mills and the buggy near Burkittsville.

GRIEF CAUSED SUICIDE.

John G. Stichter, of Westminster, aged about 55 years, committed suicide Tuesday night by swallowing nearly two ounces of carbolic acid.

Stichter was a native of Baltimore and a son of the late John G. Stichter, of that city. His mother still resides in Baltimore. He was twice married. His first wife died about twenty-five years ago, and he soon afterward went to Westminster. His second wife, a native of Westminster, died several weeks ago, and he said he could not live without her. He leaves two daughters and two sons, children of his second marriage.

He died at 10:30 o'clock, within half an hour after swallowing the poison.

BOGUS CHECK CASES

A well dressed man, aged 32 years, has been working the bogus-check business in Frederick and succeeded in victimizing the firm of B. Ebert & Son out of $8.57. The young man represented himself as John C. Smith. He made a purchase of $5.27 from a clerk in Ebert's store, giving him a check for $18.84, drawn by Harry Lehman, payable to Smith, on the First National Bank of Hagerstown. The check proved to be worthless. The same man attempted to pass a check for $20.40 on W. N. Jelliffe for clothing and asked for the difference in cash, but failed.—Sun

Farmers' Telephone Line

The farmers in the southern section of Allegany county and the adjoining territory of West Virginia have organized a mutual telephone company, to be known as the Red House Telephone Company of Garrett county. Its lines will extend to the line of the West Virginia Central railroad and cover the southern section of the county. Mr. Henry Sisler, of near the Red House, is the president; Mr. Arnold, of near Wilson, vice-president, and P. F. Snyder, of Sunnyside, secretary. The company already has some line in operation, and will add more as it is needed.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

Trial of Cases On Appeal Docket Begun

The Frederick County Circuit Court convened Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock with Chief Judge James McSherry and associate Judge John C. Motter on the bench.

The appeal docket was at once taken up, the first case being that of Clara V. Lizar vs. Cyrus F. Flock. The jury was impaneled but the case was not tried because of the fact that in taking the appeal the magistrate did not take the bond of the appellee for twice the amount of judgment and cost. The case concerned the replevin of a sorrel colt. Frank L. Stoner represented the appellee and Joseph W. Gaver represented the appellant.

The appeal case of Sarah E. Woodcock vs. D. C. Heim was next taken up before the court. Mr. P. F. Pampell and J. F. R. Hengy represented Heim and Harp & Etchison represented Mrs. Woodcock. Upon motion of attorneys for the appellant the court reversed the decision below, as the note upon which suit was brought was not properly indorsed under the acts of 1898.

This term of court promises to be one of the longest in this county for many years on account of the fact that for five hundred witnesses are summoned before the grand jury on about one hundred and fifty cases. The grand jury went to work immediately after adjourning to their room Monday morning and were kept busy for the remainder of the day.

The appeal case of P. F. Pampell vs. William H. Leberz for damages caused by the issuance of a notice to quit as tenant served by Mr. Leberz on Pampell was next taken up. This case was squashed on account of a defective writ. William P. Mansley represented Pampell and J. F. and Edward F. Smith represented Leberz.

ACCUSED OF ARSON.

Theodore Miller, who two weeks ago was released from the penitentiary after serving two years for stealing wool, was arrested in Hagerstown Tuesday by Constable Alexander on the charge of arson. Justice Hoffman held Miller for the action of the grand jury.

Miller is accused of setting fire to a small log house, near Halfway, which he formerly owned. Before he went to the penitentiary he deeded the house to Annie Crawford. When he went to prison the woman deeded the property to John Harrigan. According to the story told the officers by the Crawford woman Miller became jealous when he returned recently and found Harrigan installed in the house and suggested to the woman that she should burn down the house and get the insurance. On the day of the fire Miller went to the house and soon after his arrival the roof was in a blaze.

The Crawford woman stated that she had to threaten to send Miller to the penitentiary before he would assist her in putting out the fire. No one saw Miller set the house on fire. He denies the charge.

"Jim-Crow" Law Enforced

A negro from Harsburg, Pa., holding a through ticket to Winchester, Va., was requested by Conductor Sipe Saturday morning, on the Cumberland Valley railroad, as the train approached the Maryland State line, to vacate his seat in the car for white persons and occupy the "Jim-Crow" car. The negro became very impatient, said no State had the power to take away the negro's rights and refused to budge. When the train reached Mangroveville, Md., just across the line, Conductor Sipe wired to Hagerstown to have an officer ready at the depot to arrest the negro. After the train started and the colored man realized that the conductor meant business he hurried over to the "Jim-Crow" car in double-quick time, and when the train pulled into Hagerstown he was very apologetic.

Millions Of Culp

The sudden discoloring of the Conococheague creek below Kemp's Mill was traced to the carp in the stream. It was found that the fish after the rebuilding of the dam at the mill were corraled and they went on a rampage, stirring up the mud. In a short time the stream below became muddy. Fishermen were surprised when the muddy water reached Williamsport, as there had not been any rain. The carp were so thick that their backs could be seen above the surface of the water. Mr. R. F. M. Hurley landed a 17-pound carp while fishing in the canal basin at Williamsport. Charles Startzman landed a 5-pounder. Colonel Hurley also caught several suckers and a string of sunfish.

A Stabbing Affray

William Hanes is at the Emergency Hospital in Frederick suffering from a knife wound in his back inflicted in a quarrel with Robert Shipley. The latter is in the Frederick County Jail. Shipley and Hanes quarrel last Thursday night near the factory of the Frederick City Packing Company. Shipley, it is alleged, first struck at Hanes with a stone and then drew a large pocket knife with which he stabbed Hanes as the latter turned to run away. Hanes was almost exhausted from the loss of blood when he reached the hospital and his condition is still serious. Shipley fled to the farm of Melville Houck, near Frederick Junction, where he has been employed. Two deputy sheriffs found him hiding in a hay loft.

COURT TERM BEGINS.

Chief Judge McSherry Calls Attention To The New Law Regulating The Sale Of Cocaine.

The circuit court convened in Frederick for the September grand and petit jury term at 10 o'clock Monday morning with Chief Judge James McSherry and Associate Judge John C. Motter on the bench.

After a roll call of the entire jury, the grand jury was drawn as follows: John P. T. Mathias, foreman; J. Henry Stackman, Peter N. Hammaker, John L. Jordan, J. M. Leatherman, Bradley P. Suteley, G. Ernest Bantz, John W. Lloyd, Augustus Kreitz, William L. Richards, Charles A. Staley, Charles Groff, William E. Stump, Wm. A. Ransparger, Claggett Biser, Charles S. Ridgely, Lewis A. Zimmerman, J. T. Bargee, J. E. S. Wagner, John T. Taylor, Luther S. Kephart, Henry F. Ruprecht and Edward Cramer.

The petit jurors are as follows: Lincoln J. Dinterman, A. P. Marsh, Wm. H. Harry, George P. Altman, Clarence Moberly, Samuel E. Etzler, Robert S. DeLauter, John H. T. Rudy, Tilghman T. Grossnickle, J. E. Harley, Christopher Woerner, Charles E. Speak, Edward B. Miller, Truman G. Albaugh, David D. Thomas, Charles S. Kline, C. O. Hummer, Daniel E. Hightman, Charles B. Darnier, Jacob Dadsman, Frederick J. Stunkle, John W. Smith, Peter Slookbier and Marion Runkles.

Clerk Fearhake then swore in Mr. Mathias as foreman of the grand jury. The grand jurors were then sworn as a body.

Chief Judge James McSherry then delivered his instructions to the jury. He first spoke of the jurors' oath as to secrecy, partiality and favor. He also spoke of the indiscriminate sale of cocaine, and read the act passed by the recent legislature, which act, he said, was prepared by Judge Motter, relative to the sale of cocaine. He then said that the court had been advised of the prevalence of the use of this vile and harmful drug and that prescriptions had been repeatedly refilled by druggists in direct violation of the law. He also called attention to the law prohibiting women from frequenting saloons and bar rooms. The court, he said, has been advised that this law is being evaded. The court advised the jury that if a proprietor should be found to be guilty of an evasion of this law, but could not be convicted of breaking the law, the jury should advise the stopping of the issuing of the license, to that party. He then called the attention of the jury to other portions of the statutes—abortion, defaulting public officials and the hanging of the doors on public buildings. He said the court had not been advised of offenses under these heads.

The grand jury then retired and the docket was gone over and cases were marked for trial.

The regular statement of the sheriff, as handed to the court Monday morning shows that fifteen prisoners are now confined in the county jail for State offenses. Six are for assault, four for larceny and two for assault with intent to kill. Frank T. Taylor is the only prisoner charged with murder. The remainder are charged with petty crimes.

LAY DEAD IN THE WOODS

Henry Baer, 25 years old, who disappeared from his home, 914 North Patterson Park avenue, Baltimore, on August 26, was found dead in Helderfor's woods Middle river, Monday morning at 11 o'clock by two boys.

The body was badly decomposed and beside it lay two bottles, one of which had contained laudanum and the other whisky. Justice Jenkins was notified and summoned a jury of inquest, which gave a verdict of suicide.

From 148 To 92 Pounds.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says:—"The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by T. E. Zimmerman, Druggist.

THE CONSTABLE MURDER.

A house-to-house canvass is being made at Elkton, to find, if possible, the owner of the white cloth mask and the dark cotton handkerchief found near the scene of the murder of Mr. Constable. The detectives think that finding the ownership of these two articles will furnish a clue that will eventually lead to the guilty party. The theory that the murder was committed by a stranger has been pretty well dissipated. The actions of the local officials and detectives would indicate without a question that they were strong in their belief that the crime was not committed by a stranger, but by a local man. The two colored men, Hopp and Holland, held as suspects, while not under arrest, have not been released from custody, and the officials will not commit themselves as to when they will be.

FREDERICK DEMOCRATS

At a largely attended meeting of the young Democrats of Frederick, held in the City Hall building last Friday evening, a Parker and Davis club was organized with a membership of 134.

FARMERS' MONTH AT WORLD'S FAIR

Biggest Department of the Great Exposition Ready For the Inspection of the Army of Men Who Made Its Creation Possible.

Now that crops have been or are being laid by, the farmer prepares for his trip to the World's Fair, a treat that has long been promised him, and for which he has patiently waited. No exposition has offered so many inducements for the farmer's presence as this one at St. Louis, nor has any previous exposition given the prominence and space to the subject of agriculture.

August and September are ostensibly the farmer's months at the Exposition, for it is at this season that the agriculture exhibits are the freshest and best. Products of the new crops are pouring into the booths from every state in the Union, and additions are constantly being made to the gorgeous display.

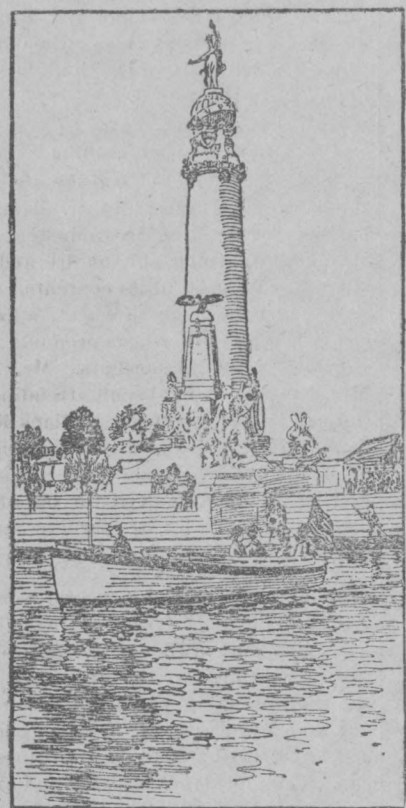

Headquarters for visiting farmers may be found in every state section of the great Agriculture Palace, but for their special convenience there has just been completed a Grange House, situated in the south end of the building. It is equipped with a reception room, ladies' retiring rooms and check rooms, where parcels may be left free of charge. Here will be kept a list of moderate priced rooms to aid visiting farmers and their families in procuring accommodations.

The largest building on the grounds is the Palace of Agriculture, covering twenty acres, while the Palace of Horticulture near by covers about a third as much space. These two immense structures are filled with exhibits of the farm, garden and orchard of the most extensive and elaborate character, every state in the Union and most of the principal countries of the world being represented.

Agriculture is given more prominence than any other department at the Exposition, the paramount importance of this great industry having been fully appreciated from the very beginning of the World's Fair movement.

About seventy acres of ground are covered by the agriculture and horticulture department at the Fair, large outdoor spaces being devoted to this industry. Outside there are growing crops, trees and flowers, an instructive six acre farm maintained by the United States Government Plant Industry, and gardens in all parts of the grounds.

There are more exhibits in the Agriculture building than in any other section of the Exposition. This building is considered by many people the most interesting part of the World's Fair. The exhibits in the palaces of Agriculture and Horticulture constitute a display vast enough and instructive enough to occupy the attention of visitors for many days. Nothing to compare with them was ever attempted before. They are the climax of several decades of educational work which is placing farming on a high plane and is making scientific agriculture a pleasing reality.

The conspicuous role played by agriculture at the World's Fair should bring untold benefits and wealth to the farming community of the world and impress all farmers with the importance and dignity of their calling.

Passing through these colossal buildings, studying the attractive exhibits and fascinated with the bewildering encyclopaedia of rural life which is spread out before his eyes, the World's Fair visitor is impressed with the important part the farmer plays in the great world of industry, and every farmer who views these interesting exhibits is given a new pride in his vocation if filled with inspiration and impressed with new ideas in harmony with the progressive strides that farming has been making for the past few years. The visit will give an insight into up to date farming on the most approved plan and will bring new hopes and blessings to the farm.

How properly to rotate crops, how to get the best results from fertilizing and irrigation, how to protect crops and fruit from the ravages of insects—all these and many more things of vital interest to farmers and fruit growers are taught at the World's Fair.

FARM GARDEN IN SILO BUILDING.

Details of Setting Up Staves, Fastening Hoops and Cutting Doors.

There are several ways in which the silo staves may be set up. A cross section of one method is shown in the first cut. Posts 6 by 6 inches, as shown at A, are set up on the meeting points of the radius of the circle and of the same length as the silo. Set up vertically, they are stayed securely in place. For the scaffold set 2 by 4 scumpling in line with A, as shown at B. Nail boards indicated by light dotted lines on these 2 by 4's, B, and to the 6 by 6's, A. The scaffold planks, indicated by broad dotted lines, are laid across these pieces. For facility in handling the staves they should be placed inside the scaffolding or set up in the pit before the scaffolding is erected. Carefully plumb the first stave set up. This is too nailed at the top to one of the 6 by 6 posts first set up. One man works at the top and one at the bottom in placing staves. Another is required to raise the staves to position. Each stave immediately it is set in place is toe nailed at the top to the last stave set.

Round iron or steel rods five-eighths inch thick are used for hoops. With the post construction shown in the first cut, it is more convenient to have hoops in sections for ease in handling. Three sections will be sufficient for a twelve foot silo, with four for a sixteen foot.

Where the upright posts are omitted, a practical way of fastening the ends of hoops is shown in Fig. 1 of the second cut. Lugs should be either welded or turned up at the corners of the plate, as indicated, high enough to positively catch the hoop and hold it from turning in its place from the cross strain.

To provide against swelling and strain the hoops should be made amply long to let out as required. It is well to begin placing staves near the point where the line of doors is to come. Select the place for the door and start sawing in the edge of the stave at the line where the top and bottom of the door will be. Insert the saw, as shown by the line in Fig. 2, making a bevel with the opening largest on the inside. A good size for a door is about two and one-half feet long by two feet wide.

Use cleats 2 by 3 or 2 by 4 inches in length the exact width of the door.

WON HIM A FORTUNE.

How Genie Got Barium to Advertising Him All Over the Country.

When Jenny Lind, the great Swedish singer, visited America in 1838 she not only won a fortune for herself, but made two men wealthy as well. One of them was Barium, the showman. It was Barium who brought her to America. He ventured all that he could raise in advertising the wonderful woman, and his successful management of her tour in this country lifted Barium to grand business success.

But there was another man who got rich without having anything to do with the management of the Jenny Lind concert tour. It was Genie, the New York hatter. His name and business were advertised by Barium wherever the Jenny Lind concerts were advertised, and it didn't cost Genie one penny for all of the advertising that Barium did for him.

There was no hall in New York big enough to accommodate the crowds which attended the first concert in this country, so Castle Garden was fitted up for the purpose, and the seats were sold at auction. Now, Genie was an unknown hatter, although he was a good one. He went to the auction sale of seats at Castle Garden and outbid everybody. He ran up the price of the first ticket until some of his friends thought he was going crazy and tried to induce him to desist. But Genie was not crazy by any means. He kept on bidding until he finally got the first ticket for $750. He had outbid the richest men in New York.

The next day and every day afterward for many months it was announced that "Genie, the New York hatter, had paid $750 for the first Jenny Lind ticket."

And wherever Barium advertised his concert he advertised the fact to show what a great attraction he was touring with. As a consequence Genie's hats were in demand all over this country, and he became enormously rich.
