Warsaw, April 3 .- A serious conflict occurred last evening in Dzika street, where a Jewish Socialist society, known as the Bund, had organized a demonstration. The troops which came to disperse the gathering fired into the crowd, killing four persons and wounding 40 others. The trouble began when, under the pretext of holding a memorial meeting for a late Jewish Socialist leader, a crowd of over 1000, mostly Jews, carrying red flags, marched into Dzika street and was met by a mixed police and military patrol of 20 men. The police declare the Socialists fired revolvers at them, the leaders inciting the mob to attack the patrol, which thereupon fired several volleys into the crowd. Four were killed and 40 wounded. The crowd removed all but nine of the wounded, two of whom were women. These were taken to the hospital. It is expected that two or more of the wounded will die. The dead and wounded were all Jews. Indicted For Postal Frauds. Washington, April 4.- The federal grand jury returned indictments against William G. Corbett, August W. Machen and George E. Lorenz on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the purchase of straps for mail pouches. An indictment under the same charge was returned against the same individuals in 1903, at which time the name of Mrs. Lorenz was included with the others. The present indictment differs from the former only in the omission of the name of Mrs. Lorenz.

Their Lonely, Dreary Life Tends to

Drive Them Crazy. Do you realize what it means to watch 5,000 sheep alone in the desert? You have read welrd, grewsome stories of the horror of the solitary lighthouse keeper's life, but compared to the days of the Mexican shepherd those of the average keeper of the light are filled with gayety and noise. Even with their one or two dogs the shepherds often go insane, and were it not for the company of their shaggy collies the lunacy among them would rise to an almost incredible percentage, if we are to believe those who have followed the sheep in the desert and therefore may be supposed to know. Once in old Santa Fe, N. M., I met a man who for twelve years had followed the sheep. His work was done. All day long he sat in a chair in the rear of a little dobe store, crouched over, gibbering to himself, bleating-an idiot. He still saw his sheep swaying like a great white wave among the sagebrush, and ever in his ears sounded the killing monotone of their bleats. One boy, though fifteen years of age, is mentally no further advanced than the average child of five. His father is a shepherd, his mother died when he was four years old, and his father took him out upon the range. All his life has been spent among the sheep. He is one with them today.

How is it possible, then, you ask, that men are to be found willing to watch them? It is very easy. Sheep herding is the laziest creature on earth. For $20 a month he is willing to sit in the sand until the little mind he has gives way and they fetch him in from the range Isane. He is glad to take the chance

The greaser is not the only shepherd in the west. On the vast ranges of Nevada and Wyoming you may run across robbing stores in Mauch Chunk, Pa., an occasional college man tending the sheep. Once, indeed, a college professor, ill of consumption, undertook to follow 5,000 bleaters for the summer. In autumn they found him insane, on his hands and knees among the sheep. bleating with them. Day after day his eyes behold only a brilliant turquoise sky, in which hangs a sun of brass; an ocean sweep of sage flecked sand and a slowly moving, compact mass of sheep. His ears hear no sound save the steady "Baa, baa!" day and night, affecting him as the Chinese criminal of ancient days was affected by the regufar tap, tap of a hidden drum.

And yet so long as the desert continues to provide food for the "bleaters" so long will shepherds go mad among the flocks, and for ten years the desert's greatest value to man has been the food it has offered the sheep, nor yet is the store depleted.—Pilgrim.

ANIMALS' WANDERINGS. Country Mouse and Town Mouse Fable Has Foundation In Fact. The fable of the country mouse and the town mouse has a foundation in fact. Mice occasionally migrate in large numbers when food grows scarce and travel considerable distances to fresh houses. Farmers in a part of Perthshire had a good reason to become aware of this fact when a couple of years ago vast swarms of mice invaded their cornfields at harvest time. But the mouse only travels when it has to. The rat, on the contrary, seems to take a yearly outing, in very much the same fashion as do human beings. Rats are the most migratory creatures in the world. Troops of rats leave the du" (humming bird) or the name of towns at the end of summer and spend a month or two in the country, apparently in order to enjoy the change of food which the country affords at that time of the year in the way of fresh fruit and grain. Before the cold weather sets in they are all back again in their old quarters.

Reindeer migrate with the same regplarity as swallows. They move south when winter sets in, But as soon as ever the snow begins to melt they travel steadily north, sometimes for as much as a thousand miles.

To end a holiday by deliberate suicide is so strange a phenomenon that for a long time naturalists looked upon the stories of the migration of the lemmings as an improbable fiction. Yet the facts are beyond dispute. At irregular intervals these ratlike creatures start out from their homes in the fastnesses of northern Scandinavia in huge droves numbering tens of thousands and travel steadily southward. Death pursues them in a hundred forms. Hawks and other birds of prey hover above them. Thousands are drowned in rivers. Yet the rest struggle on until they reach the sea. They do not stop. They plunge in, swim out and struggle on until at last their strength fails and they drown. Not one ever returns from this journey of death .- London Answers.

COTTON IN A FABRIC.

How to Tell if Worsted or Woolen Cloths Are Adulterated.

Worsted cloths are less often adulterated than woolens and are more easily detected. A cotton worsted is a lie on the face of it, for the cotton stands out with prominence. But often a cotton thread is twisted with a worsted thread, and to determine its presence it is only necessary to take the twist out of the thread and then examine its component parts.

Cotton, having a long staple, can be carded and combed with wool to be spun into worsted varn. This is done to cheapen the cost of production. Cotton is carded and spun with wool and shoddy, not so much to cheapen the yarn, for cotton is generally as expensive as some shoddies, but is introqualities to the stock. In many cases the shoddy is of such short staple that to be done or to the caprices of those it would not stand the drawing in in authority. BORORO INDIANS.

How the Boys of This Brazilian Tribe Get Their Names. In an interesting article on the aborigines of Brazil in the current Southern Workman the method of naming boys is thus described:

The ceremony of initiation into the the Bororo tribe is interesting. The litand plated with white feathers: then early in the morning before the rising of the sun the family and friends and the priest or conjurer betake themselves to an eminence near the village. And as the sun, the supreme power, sweeps majestically upward from behind the eastern wilderness the conjurer bores the lower lip of the embryo warrior with an instrument made especially for the occasion and beautifully decorated with brilliant feathers and at the same time whispers "Piadusome other animal or object that the child is to bear, "Pladudu," softly repeat the family and friends in turn, and thus Piadudu, a favorite name, becomes the name of the little one. They are very jealous of their names and will not make them known to aliens. In order to become a citizen of the tribe a person of alien birth would have to reside with it for some time and be initiated much as the child is.

The young man was plainthe bronze body of the baby boy is more or less daubed with gum or pitch ly puzzled. He was a good-looking man and he appeared to mean always to do his best by everyone.

"Have you got a headache?" he asked, with the proper note of sympathy, as he took his favorite chair.

"Oh, no!" said the pretty girl, with gentle pity for his denseness. 'It's much more serious than that, Herbert. I've been thinking-it just struck me today and it worries me so. Do you suppose that after we've been married 10 or 12 years we'll be like all the married people

Herbert's imagination, like that of the majority of men, was a negligible quantity. His effort to cast his mind into the future ended in failure. "I suppose we shall," he admitted, cheerfully. Then he was astounded to see the pretty girl sink back against the cushions of the ouch in despair.

"I knew it;" she wailed. "And you can sit there calmly and not care! You don't care a bit!"

"See here," said the young man forcibly, awakening to the fact that he was facing a crisis, "what's the happy and all that, aren't we? And What's wrong?"

"That's just it," she cried. "They jog along. Who ever heard of engaged people 'jogging along?' Why, mash of tea leaves, out of which the time and are so glad to see each other tin cup.
