FITZHUGH LEE

Famous Confederate General Succumbs to Stroke of Apoplexy.

WAS STRICKEN ON A TRAIN

Washington, April 29.—General Fitz-Virginia's foremost sons, died at the visit. Providence hospital here from an attack of apoplexy, which he suffered on a train while en route from Boston Military Organizations Escort Remains to Washington, After General Lee had

FITZ-HUGH LET. been removed to the hospital it was evident to the attending physicians that his case was a very scrious one, but they believed that his strong witality and will power would assist materially in a partial recovery at least from the attack. His condition remained fair, considering the severity of the attack during the day, but shortly after 9 o'clock last night he began to grow weaker, his breathing became more rapid and his pulse lower, terminating in less than two hours in death. The end was peaceful and without pain, the general remaining conscious until within five minutes of the end. Half an hour before death General Lee recognized his brother, Daniel Lee, who came into the room for a moment. In the moors when he died were Dr. Montgomery, Miss Dorsey, a relative, and a nurse, two of the attending physicians, Drs. Edie and Kean, having retired temporarily. A pathetic feature of the case is that General Lee was blessed with a family of his wife and five children, but not one of them was with him at the time of his death. The general was 68 years of age.

General Lee boarded the Federal He passed the early part of the night apparently resting comfortably in his berth. The train had just left Fall River, when other passengers near the general heard him groaning. The porter was called, and he discovered that his distinguished passenger was ill. No stop was advisable at that place, however. A telegram was sent to a doctor in New York, who was asked to meet the transport that carried the train around New York in Jersey City. The news of General Lee's death was a severe shock to his numerous friends in Washington. General Lee's attack is attributed largely to his activity in behalf of the military and naval review which is to be held in the vicinity of Jamestown, Va. His heart and soul have been in the work, and he labored zealously to make it a success.

Sketch of General Fitzhugh Lee.

General Fitzhugh Lee was a lineal descendant of the famous "Light Horse Harry" Lee of the Revolution, and a nephew of General Robert E. Lee. He was born at Clermont, Fairfax county. Va., November 19, 1835, and was gradnated from West Point in 1856. He was severely wounded in a fight with Indians, and in May, 1860, he was ordered to report at West Point as instructor of cavalry. At the beginning of the Civil War in 1861 he resigned his commission in the United States army and entered the Confederate service. At first he was placed on staff duty and was adjutant general of Ewell's brigade until September, 1861. when he was made lieutenant colonel of the 1st Virginia cavalry, and later promoted to colonel. In all of the campaigns of Northern Virginia he took a prominent part. On July 25, 1862, he was made brigadier general, and on September 3, 1863, he was appointed major general. In the battle of Winchester, September 19, 1864. three horses were shot under him, and he was disabled by a severe wound which kept him from duty for several months. In March, 1865, he was placed in command of the whole cavalry corps of the army of Northern Virginia, and a month later he was compelled to surrender to General Meade at Farmwille, after which he retired to his home in Stafford county, Va.

In 1874 General Lee made a speech at Bunker Hill which attracted wide attention. In the winter and spring of 1882-3 he made a tour through the Southern States in the interest of the Southern Historical Society. In 1885, after a spirited campaign, he defeated John A. Wise for the governorship of Virginia. Upon retiring from the governorship, General Lee engaged for a time in agricultural pursuits, and was afterward elected president of the Glasgow Development company. He was a delegate-at-large from Virginia to the Democratic national convention at Chicago in 1892, and was earnest in his advocacy of the nomination of Grover Cleveland for the presidency. In June, 1896, General Lee was appointed as United States consul general to Cuba, which position he held until the opening of the war with Spain, when with wife murder, has been completed. noon. ## WHY TRAVEL ABROAD?

An American Should Give His First Study to His Home Land. When Payne wrote "There's No Place Like Home," he gave poetic expression to the love he bore toward the ingle nook more precious than "temples or palaces." What flowers of rhetoric could approach in power of assertion these five little monosyllabic words, "There's No Place Like Home"-to gainsay which were impossible!

It is the great privilege of Americans to be able without hyperbole to apply them to travel, for what is there in any part of the habitable globe more fraught with interest, instruction, education, refreshment of mind and body and uplifting of soul than nature has provided, with hand so lavish, for the delectation of those having the good fortune to dwell in this goodly land?

Would he see a Riviera? We have several on the shores of the azure waters both of the gulf and the Pacific, far distancing that laved by the Mediterranean.

Does he pine for snow capped mountains? Let him repair to the plains whence Pike's Peak, Mount Logan and our other great elevations rear their hoary summits into cloudland. Would he witness a majestic cataract? There is but one without a rival. the imperial Niagara-in the chain of our great lakes, most turbulent of links. Neither Nile, Niger nor Ganges, great rivers though they are, are comparable to our own Mississippi, well named "The Father of Waters." Our peerless Hudson excels in picturesque effects the vaunted Rhine.

What of the beauties of the Golden Gate, on whose shores sits enthroned queenly San Francisco, pronounced peerless among cities by a much traveled European prince of imperial blood? Where is there, even in miniature, anything to vie with that earthly paradise, the valley of the Yosemite; what to compare with the deep and rugged gorge through which passes to the sea the impetuous Colorado river?

The Mammoth Cave of Kentucky, one of the world's wonders, is as yet but partially explored.

Why, then, travel abroad, while all these and vastly more than can be enumerated remain unseen at home? "Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel?" said Naaman the Syrian of old when ordered by the prophet to betake himself to the Jordan for healing. Who can help admiring his pride of country and robust patriotism? Most worthy are they of emulation.

Be it for health or recreation, there is no grander travel field than that we have at home.-Travel.

The Rainy Day.

A well known artist recently received a letter from a chap who has regularly made it a practice to borrow money of him. In this letter the chap who is always in financial difficulties surprised his correspondent by saying:

"This time I have decided to reverse the usual order of things, and, instead of borrowing from you, I inclose herewith $50, which I am going to ask that

On receiving an affirmative reply the man hastily apologized, saying, "Sure, your honor, I'm sorry I kept you waiting, but I was tould to look for an intellectual gintleman." Sir Robert thought that under the circumstances it would be better not to inquire what was the man's idea of intellectuality.

Old Time Railway Travel.

Third class passenger coaches in England used to be coupled on next to the engine. The travelers came in for terrible treatment when any accident occurred. At times the engine was driven tender first, in which case frozen hands could be warmed at its smokestack. The passengers were packed, seventy of them, into a truck eighteen feet in length by seven and a half in width. There was no roof and not, as a rule, proper protection at the sides.

Marital Persiflage.

"I must confess," remarked Mrs. Crabbe, "I don't believe there ever was a really perfect man," "Well," replied Mr. Crabbe, "Adam would have been perfect, I suppose, if Eve had only been made first." "How do you mean?" "Well, she would have bossed the job of making Adam."-Philadelphia Press.
