GROWING CLOVER.

Early and Thick Seeding - A Belles Based on Experience. We have grown clover for fifteen years. We have had two or three partial failures and at least one total failtre. We have followed early sowing all but one season. Then we sowed furing the month of April and failed completely. Our favorite time to sow for from the middle of February until The 10th of March owing to the condition of the land and soil, says an Ohio Farmer correspondent, whose further views are as follows: We never sow when the ground is covered with snow, as the seed is liable to be bunched by wind or by the water as the snow melts. We never sow when the ground is sticky or settled down flat by the wind or when the frost is coming out.

bunched and our crop streaky. Conditions That Suit. as soon as the ground begins to get the least sticky we stop for the day and wait for the next favorable morning.

The more the soil is honeycombed the better, as much of the seed will fall in the small crevices and become covered as soon as the surface crust melts. The seed that falls on top of the ground will sink deeper and deeper as the ground freezes and thaws. Much of the seed will be covered one-half to one inch deep by the time it starts to grow. This gives it a deep root from the start. The plant is then able to withstand a good deal of freezing and dry weather. By the time dry weather comes, during the late spring or summer, the plant is able to get its moisture from the depths below. It does not do to spare the seed, although it may be high in price.

Place to Start Garden Plants. place for starting a warfety of garden say, an actual cash outlay for labor in plants. The accommodations are not sufficiently ample, and the boxes are times the actual cash ontlay in producmore or less of a nuisance in the kitchen, as Farm Journal remarks in figuring 'a little house that just fills the bill for a place to start all kinds of garden plants. The plan of the house is sufficiently shown in the cut. A little stove can be used to keep up the needed warmth at night, or a small hot water heater can be put in, with pipes running along beneath the beuch.

The seeds should all be sown in boxes in order that the latter may be turned end for end, as the sun "draws" the plants toward the light. The house should face a little east of south and need not be more than six feet wide, with such length as is desired. Have some of the windows made so that they can be opened; then the room may not be overheated at midday.

Latest Onion Culture.

Here are instructions from an experienced gardener for obtaining a good crop of onions with the least possible labor: Sow early in March in cold frames. Good varieties are Adriatic, Barletta White, Prizetaker, Southport, White Globe and Red Wethersfield.

Seed can be sown in shallow drills four inches apart. The seed must be well covered and the soil pressed firmly with a board. Keep the frames closed till the young onions appear and then give an abundance of air on all favorable occasions, bearing in mind that the cooler they are kept the sturdier the growth.

Keep the surface soil constantly stirred about the young plants and all weeds removed Water thoroughly when needed.

Pruner's Wisdom.

The conclusion (from experiments and my general opinion) in respect to the season of pruning, as far as the healing of wounds is concerned, is this: The ideal time is in spring before growth begins (late February, March insects. and early April in New York), but more depends upon the position of the stub than on the time of year.-L. of the career of De Foe, "Robinson Crusoe" can properly be considered a story intended to illustrate the heavy burden of trouble placed upon any single individual isolated from his fellows and compelled to maintain his existence without their aid. The tale shows in an inimitable way how all civilized men are interdependent. Regarded from this point of view, the author of the most widely read work of fiction ever written becomes an object of particular interest to all thinkers upon politics .- William N. Hill, M. D., in Watson's Magazine.

Always Raining. There is a group of islands to the south of New Zealand called the Sisters, or Seven Sisters, which are reputed to be subjected to a practically constant rainfall. The same may be said of the islands and mainland of Tierra del Fuego, saving for the difference that the rain often takes the form of sleet and snow. On a line running round the world from four to eight or nine degrees there are patches over which rain seldom ceases to fall. This is called the "zone of constant precipitation," but at the same time there are little rainfall.
