How many people in the United States know what the International Bureau of the American Republics is?

"It is an organization," to quote its present director, John Barrett, "which has no counterpart in the world. It is not a Bureau subordinate to any one from Atlantic tide water at Newport department of the United States Govrnment, but it is the independent of-fice of the Governments of Latin America, as much as of the United States, Its control is in the hands of a governing board, made up of all the diplomatic representatives in Washing-ton of the American republics, and preton of the American republics, and presided over by the Secretary of State of

It was the desire of the delegates to dispel the ignorance which they discovered existed in the United States about her sister the world under a single management. From the very outset, by reason of its affiliation with immense business inter-closer diplomatic, commercial and social relations between the United States and the others was recognized by Mr. Root as soon as he became Secretary of State. This led to the decision of the Administration that Mr. Root should make a tour of South America and that at the third Pan-American Conference at Rio steps should be taken to reorganize the bureau and enlarge its scope and usefulness. When the Conference assembled it unanimously passed resolutions which will make the bureau a of undeveloped coal. Then Rogers

RAILROAD CONTROLLED BY OIL TRUST IS THE LATEST.

Within Two Years it Will be in Working Order. - Next to Siberian Railroad it Will be the Longest Main Line in the World.

After the publicity given to the affairs of the Standard Oil Company in the recent trial at Chicago comes the story that this immense corporation will shortly own an "ocean to ocean" railroad. The New York World is responsible for the following; "The Standard Oil company within two years will own and operate a complete trans-continental railroad system is from Atlantic tide water at Newport News, Va., to Seattle and Portland by from Newport News, Va., into West Virginia and soon to be connected with the Ohio river; the Detroit, Toledo and The twenty-one republics represented on the governing board are, in order of population, United States, Brazil, across Ohio and Michigan; the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, from Chicago and Milwaukee west to the Pacific coast. Every road in the group is now under Rockefeller control. There is one gap to be filled, from Toledo or Detroit to Chicago. This will be covered It was in 1890 that the bureau was first established by the action of the first International Conference of Americal Theorem (1890) that the bureau was by the early purchase of a minor line. The Standard Oil system when completed, will have a main line mileage of about 3,700 miles from ocean to ocean. Next to the Siberian railroad it will be the longest continuous main line in the world under a single management. republics and also among the latter concerning the United States, which prompted the establishment of this institution.

That something should be done on new and broader lines to bring about allowed dislocations and the states are rests, it will be assured all the freight it can possibly handle. The new road will be in position to compete for the grain business of supplying coal to the northwest. Part of the plan is to develop New-port News as a great port of export. port News as a great port of export. The control of the road is to be held closely within the Standard Oil group so that if necessary at any time in the future it can be used as an instrument for punishing competing roads with manifest hostility to the big oil concern. Several years ago Henry H. Rogers became owner of about 300,000 acres of coal land in West Virginia. He increased his holdings and interested other people until his powerful and practical institution "for the building up of international Ameri-railroad to tidewater in order to market can trade, for providing avenues of approach to each other upon political, educational and intellectual lines, for detailed to the to market this coal and also because he saw that there was certain always to be a big tonnage for a road through this region. ucational and intellectual lines, for developing closer acquaintances and closer intercourse. The united efforts of firemen, citizens in general and visitors made the Fourth a day long to be remembered by all who attended the monster picnic given by the Vigilant Hose Company of this place on that day. Fairer weather, a better natured crowd and good wholesome sport never combined to make a more pleasant day's amusement. Emmitsburg is to be congratulated and the firemen and their assistants thanked. At half past eight the Hose Company formed in front of Firemen's Hall and led off by three youngsters in fantastic but appropriate costumes and accompanied by the Emmitsburg Band marched down Green street to Broad alley, up Main street to the Emmit House, counter the content of the firement o The united efforts of firemen, citizens and one to the Sebolders' score. All along the route houses were decorated with flags and bunting and the pavements were thronged with crowds of people, old and young, who were loud in their applause of the gallant firemen.

The picnic grounds, ideal for such an entertainment, were soon filled with people and the day's sports were begun. Three games of baseball, races, dancing.

Were the multitudes disappointed. The ball tore a large rent in the azure and like a meteor greeted the eye. Again the trusty Duke ran the sphere to ground and Sam staid on second. Mr. E. Moser received permission from Mr. Ashbaugh to make a hit and he proceeded to do it. Samuel scored. Charles Rowe received his orders again and exciting.

At half past twelve the second game of ball was begun. This was between a team representing the firemen and the High School boys. After nine innings the score stood 7—6 in favor of the High School. Although the winners were not able to hit Horner yet costly errors on the part of the older men gave the boys the advantage.

UNSPOTTED RECORD.

DAVID H. GUISE, A FAITHFUL HONEST REPRESENTATIVE.

A Brief Review of the Legislative Record of the Adams County Delegate. - Was a Supporter of the Teacher's Salary Bill.

"The record of a faithful legislatureman is so hidden in the hundreds of pages of the Legislative Record that is quite a task to find out what he did and did not do. When such a search has been made for the record of Hon. David H. Guise, Adams county's representative in the last Legislature, it will be found that Mr. Guise and his county have a right to be proud of a clean, honest, faithful and highly efficient service on the part of our representative.

'He gave his hearty support to the two cent R. R. fare bill, the trolley freight and eminent domain bills, the Creasy trust buster, Creasy anti-discrimination, Creasy taxing express companies, Dinsmore railroad commis-sion bill. The bill prohibiting the consolidation of competing lines of rail-roads. To require railroads to maintain safety gates at street crossings. To require sleeping cars to be lighted by electricity. Lincoln, Heir to the Thought of Christ, and Grant the Immaculate. - Earnest Love of the Italians for the United States.

In an editorial on Garibaldi the Boston Transcript prints, by permission, a hitherto unpublished letter from Garibaldi. The paper says, "That the great Italian cherished for the United States an earnest love and a profound admira-tion is evidenced by a letter which we are permitted to publish, and we be-lieve, for the first time. It was written to an uncle of Dr. Roversi, editor of the Italian Araldo di New York. Dr Roversi gave a copy to Professor J. THE WORK OF VANDALS

The Palisades, Home of Cliff Dwellers, Mount Vernon, Luray Caverns and Even Personal Property of Celebrities are Fastened Upon by Them.

"The recent looting of the rooms of the Duke of Abruzzi when his ship was anchored off Jamestown," writes Frederick J. Haskin, "shows to what Frederick J. Haskin, "shows to what extremes crazy souvenir hunters will sometimes go. The word crazy is not too strong to be applied to people who will take such liberties when striken by the relic-hunting fever. When the present King of England came to this country as the Prince of Wales, nearly fifty years ago, and stopped at the old New York Hotel near Washington Square in Manhattan, a bevy of girls hung outside his rooms and he was hardly down the corridor before they invaded the apartments and bottled the invaded the apartments and bottled the water in which he had washed the princely hands and face. They also cut up his towels into convenient bits and carried them away. When Paderewski first played here some college girls entered his dressing room and bottled the hot water he had dipped his hands in to rest them after his concert. Who will dispute the statement that such behavior is idiotic? Young people who conduct themselves in such a manner not only reflect discredit upon their bringingup, but cause foreigners to believe that Americans are a race of fools. fools. The guards who stood day and night on watch around the cell of Jefferson Davis at Fortress Monroe, took his pipe, towels, spoons, knives and forks to send back home to wives and sweethearts as souvenirs from the person of the nation's captive.

"The Palisades of the Hudson, rich in amethyst and opal tints that brought forth praise from Henry Hudson and his men, became to the fourth or fifth generation a gigantic signboard, where-on might be inscribed the virtues of pills and powders. The women of the ater nineteenth and early twentieth century rescued them from further vandalism. The Cliff Dwellings in Casa Grande Canyon, Arizona, have been injured in some instances beyond restoration by tourists, who, rather than take home a complete picture of the ruins in their mind, took bits of stone from the lintels of the doors, until the original idea of architecture, so valuable to archaeologist, has been lost. In Yellowstone Park the Government finally had to take a hand in matters and make it a law that the incrustations from the sides of the geysers be not removed, and that no writing be left on the stones. The walls of the 'Devil's Kitchen' have been inscribed with names of insignificant beings from all over the United States. Every national rk, every park en park, every, park enclosing a historic spot, and many other enclosures throughout the country bear sign-boards naming a penalty for breaking twigs, pulling flowers, or removing stones or pebbles as souvenirs.

Even the sepulchers of great men are not spared. It is said that one reason that hastened the removal of Washington's body from the old to the newer tomb at Mount Vernon was that some one broke into the vault and removed a skull from one of the coffins, believing it to be that of the great statesman. As it happened it was the skull of some member of the Blackburn family, but the ghoulish act proved the necessity for further safeguarding the remains of Washington. Even after they had been placed in the present vault another invader climbed over the iron gate, now the inner gate, and removed a large portion of the stone from one of the sarcophagi. This caused the building of the outer gate, with its arched top that effectually excludes adventurers. "In the early history of the Luray Cave in Virginia learned men pointed with the pride of the student to the skelton of some prehistoric man that was firmly held and petrified in the stalactites. In some far-distant age, mayhap in the very dawn of the world, this man had died, his corpse had been laid in the recesses of the cavern, and the dripping of the lime water throughout countless centuries had covered it in a half transucent substance, until history was rich in a unique page that few could read. But the souvenir collector got in his deadly work. The preservation of this treasure as a national spectacle was as nothing to his acquisition of a bit of it, so inch by inch, piece by piece, the great curiosity was borne away until by 1878 it was almost gone, and a few years later people had forgotten it was ever there." ever there.

UNRESTRICTED generosity on the part of the citizens of Emmitsburg and the untiring efforts of the Vigilant Hose Company to please everybody who attended the fete, combined to make July 4th a day long to be remembered in this community. The citizens, one and all, rose to the occasion and filled the coffers of the Fire Company with a goodly sum. And in return for their liberality they were given a day full of pleasurable excitement, innocent amusement and unbounded pleasure.

To "keep house" in one way or another will be the career of probably ninety girls out of a hundred, and ought to be the career of nine of the remaining ten. That every one of them should at the age of sixteen to nineteen, put on a white dress, read an essay on "The Heroines of Shakespeare," and go through the form of being graduated from what is supposed to be an education, without knowing as much as a cavedweller about the simplest elements of domestic work, is a folly made possible only by viciously wrong conventionalities. It is postively surprising to find how many women there are, more particularly in the cities, to whom cooking is a veritable mystery and whose acquaintance with proper housekeeping methods is but a slight acquaintance at best.

It is equally surprising, and something of which they should be thoroughly ashamed, that a large percentage of married women pride themselves on their ignorance of nearly everything pertaining to housekeeping, instead of regarding a proficiency in this really vital factor of every day life as an accomplishment of which they were proud.

This is only a suggestion of the annoyance that will be created when the new system goes into effect; there are many other cases quite as bad, and the only consolation, if it may be called a consolation, is that other parts of the country will be treated in the same manner. We understand that numerous petitions will be sent to the Post Office Department complaining of the readjustment of mail routes, and it would not be a bad move on the part of the people of this locality to follow the example with a view to acquainting the postal authorities with the exact state of affairs and of having them change back to the former satisfactory plan of collections and deliveries.

Good Tariff Reform Argument.

A surplus of $87,000,000 is unwieldly, and if the the Treasury's receipts continue to grow as they grew last year sound national policy will dictate a reduction of taxes. The fact that imports are increasing even more rapidly than exports, and the further fact that a larger and larger share of import duties is collected on materials needed for manufacturing, suggest the conclusion manufacturing, suggest the conclusion that the Dingley schedules have done their work in certain lines and need revision. The balance of taxation on imports could be shifted, so as to readjust burdens and encourage trade. We just burdens and encourage trade. We do not want to collect taxes just for the sake of piling up money in the Tracesure.

Federal Court at Chicago, as a witness to testify as to the workings of the Oil Trust. Judge Landis wished to know definitely whether there was any connection existing between the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the defendant in the case before Judge Landis, the Indiana Company.

Mr. Rockefeller said, in answer to the existing the standard of the section.

the question, "Have you any connection with the Standard Oil Company?" "I am president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. The position is purely an honorary one and has been for the last eight or ten years. I have taken no active part in its affairs during that time?"

ing that time."

When asked as to the business of the company the president of the Standard S. E. S. Oil trust said:

"Your Honor, I have been so long out of business, so long out of this business, that I could not well answer that question. It is a dozen years since I have been actively related with its affairs. It is eight or ten years your affairs. It is eight or ten years, your Honor, since I have been in the office

After a few more questions Mr.
Rockefeller was excused for the time.
"When the United States Government last August secured the indictment of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, for having accepted rebates from the Chicago & Alton Railroad Company, neither United States District Attorney.
Sims nor the attorney representing Standard Company. Sims nor the attorney representing Standard Oil interests anticipated that Mr. Rockefeller would ever be called as a witness in the case," says the Philadelphia Press.

After a hard-fought legal battle before a jury in Judge Landis' Court a verdict was returned finding the oil company guilty of violating the antirebate laws, and it was then incumbent upon the Judge to assess a fine against upon the Judge to assess a fine against the corporation, it being within his discretion to place the penality as high as $28,000,000 Judge Landis, after reading over the entire testimony, covering thousands of typewritten pages, concluded he could reach no satisfactory decision as to the amount of the fine unless he knew positively how large were the resources of the defendant company and whether it is owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey Judge Landis pany of New Jersey. Judge Landis found there was no alternative but to call upon the officers of both concerns Judge Landis is empowered to fix the fine at any sum between $1000 and $20,-000 for each count, of which there were 1462 in the indictment. Thus, the maximum fine is $29,240, but as the capital stock of the Indiana company is but $1,000,000 the Supreme Court might deem the maximum fine as falling in the class of maximum fine as falling in the class of cruel and unusual punishment, prohibited by the Constitution. If it is shown, however, that the Indiana company is merely subsidiary to the New Jersey concern, with a capital of $100,000,000, no such appeal could be made.

Judge Landis found out from Secretary Pratt, of the Standard company, that this company owns 4995 shares in the Indiana company whose stock the Indiana company whose stock amounts to $1,000,000 in shares of $100

The following statement was prepar-ed for publication by the president and vice-president of the company:

"Since the enactment of the Interstate Commerce law in 1887, the Standard Oil Company has most carefully observed its provisions and in no case has wilfully violated the law. It welcomed the passage of the law, and the principal of equity which was embodied in it. The old system of special rates and relates was obnovious and rates and rebates was obnoxious and was never a source of profit to the company. The net rate paid for freight was always used as a basis for the selling price in the markets and the consumer uniformly had the benefit of it. Moreover, every shipper could secure such special rates and it was no uncommon experience for the Standard Oil Company to discover that its competitors had lower rates than it was shipping under.

"The assertion so often made by careless and sensational writers and critics that 'rebates' were the basis of Standard Oil prosperity is absolutely untrue. Its prosperity has come through its correct apprehension of the possible magnitude and importance of the petroleum business; through its having provided better and more old.
