OUR NEW COIN

Comments on Rejected Motto.

DOESN'T EFFECT VALUE

"In God We Trust" is Omitted From New Gold Piece.

ST. GAUDENS' COIN CRITICIZED.

Mr. Roosevelt's Argument Various Constructed in the Public Press.—Episcopal Convention Declares Against Removal of the Words.

Setting aside the pulpit eloquence and President Roosevelt's elaborate explanation, the truth is that hitherto our coins have been cluttered up with a mass of detail, not meaningless, perhaps, but superfluous. There was the eagle, the Indian, the goddess, the wreath, the date, the denomination, "e pluribus unum," stars, and so on. The result has been a set of coins useful for purposes of trade, perhaps, but not the kind which our descendants will take much pride in seeing dug up. Other designers have felt obliged to get everything in—with the result that the coins look more like mosaics than medallions. St. Gaudens dared to exercise the artistic prerogative of selection, that is to say, exclusion. It is to be noticed that he kept the most characteristic elements, the Indian, the eagle, and the stars. If he omitted the pious motto he did so because it did not fit the design.—Boston Transcript.

The motto, "In God We Trust," did not merely happen to get placed on various coins of the country, as might be inferred from President Roosevelt's letter on the subject. It was placed on the coins by virtue of an act of 1873, which declared, among other things, "and the director of the mint; with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may cause the motto, 'In God We Trust,' to be inscribed upon such coins as shall admit of such motto." This provision seems never to have been formally repealed by act of Congress. But the Hon. George S. Boutwell of Massachusetts cut it out of the statutes when he revised them in 1877-78, and Congress, by adoption of the revision, let the motto "slide."

We do not see how anybody can disagree with the argument which Mr. Roosevelt makes for omitting the motto altogether from our coinage. There is no better reason for putting such a sentence on coins than there is for compelling people to have it inserted in gilt letters on their hatbands.—Hartford Times.

Fortunately, the absence of "In God We Trust" from the new coins will have no effect on our credit at the grocery store.—Washington Post.

If we must have a motto on the coins, we suggest as more appropriate that one adopted for use on the first coins struck under authority of the Continental Congress: "Mind Your Business."—Springfield Republican.

President Roosevelt's attitude toward the subject of the omission from the new gold coins of the words "In God We Trust" will appeal to the average citizen as the proper one. The President states that the use or omission of the words will have no effect upon the general feeling of Americans about the reverence due to God.—Chicago Tribune.

As to the President's attitude, it is shown by his statement that his motives cannot be successfully attacked. We all "trust in God" as much as ever, nevertheless—and probably a little more so.—Charleston, N. C., Times.

HOME-MADE ASTRONOMER.

Farmer's Boy Attracts the Attention of Scientific World by His Discovery of a New Comet.

With only a home-made telescope, J. E. Mellish, of Cottage Grove, Wis., a farmer's boy scarcely out of his teens, and having only a country school education, has discovered two comets and attracted the notice of the astronomical world. Prominent scientists have become interested in him, and opportunity has been made whereby he can pursue more effectively the study of his favorite science.

ABOUT STOCK FOODS

Result of Trials Conducted At Dozen Stations

VALUE OF FEEDS OVERESTIMATED

Nothing Gained by Feeding Healthy Animal With These Condiments.—Money Expended on Condition Powders is Thrown Away.

There is a good deal of misunderstanding about the real value of the various condimental stock foods as a part of the ration for either stock or poultry. Professor F. W. Woll of the Wisconsin Station in Bulletin No. 151 has summarized some feeding experiments with them. Trials were conducted by about a dozen experiment stations—in all twenty-three different trials. In twenty-one out of the twenty-three experiments nothing was gained by including these foods in the rations and they were a detriment in that the cost of the ration was increased by their addition, thus increasing the cost of the products. Therefore there is nothing to be gained by feeding a healthy animal with one of these condiments. As a medicine they are not much better, as has been pointed out by the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station in Bulletin No. 87. One half or more of these foods is composed of common feeding stuffs and are worth about $1.50 per 100 pounds. About one-tenth is composed of common salt, another tenth of charcoal, which leaves only about three-tenths of the bulk to be made up of such simple drugs as anise, sulphur, ginger, red pepper, sassafras, and Epsom salts, all of which possess mild medicinal properties but because they are fed in such small daily quantities really do no good. To show how little good these drugs do when fed in a stock food consider the gentian, for instance. This is the most important remedy found in a stock food and really is the backbone of the preparation. A dose for a horse is one ounce, for a cow two ounces (a tablespoonful) of the pure drug; but as the stock foods or tonics contain only about two per cent., the animal gets only about one-fiftieth or one-hundredth of the required dose of the drug if fed the "food" in the quantities recommended by the manufacturers. It is obvious from the light thrown on the subject by these experiments that money expended on condition powders is thrown away.—Garden Magazine.

A BETTER CHRISTMAS

Restore the Holiday to Its Old Time Dignity

THE ART OF CHRISTMAS GIVING

Let Your Gift Be a Token of Your Individual Affection.—The Fine Art Of Expressing Oneself in Presents to Children.

The way to restore Christmas to its old-time dignity and charm has never been better told than in these words by Walter H. Page in "The Intimate Art of Christmas Giving."

"If you really know your child and its inner life, you will have a happy thought that you can express by a present—a token of individual affection, a thing that does not hint of the bargain counter; a stimulating suggestion—something individual, a thing that would fit that particular child best of all children in the world.

"Nor does such a present take the savings of your year. It is not likely to cost much, but whether it cost much or little, it carries no suggestion of the cost. More than likely it will be a present that will give joy of occupation for a long time.

"There is a fine art in expressing oneself in presents for which no ready-made method is a substitute. We shall teach our children to make the things they give. Thus we may fill our homes and lives with things and thoughts of beauty and of use and of individual intimate value. The gaudy shop-window before Christmas will seem what they are, merely the first act in a dreary tragedy, the second act of which is a perfunctory exchange of gifts that do not gladden, while the last act is the filling of the garret or ash-barrel with discarded things which have lost their momentary significance and are of no use. Recall your Christmas presents of last year and see how many of them give you pleasure now—either those that you received or those that you gave. This is the first lesson in the cultivation of a beautiful and delicate and joy-giving art."

THE WEARISOME MR. BRYAN

Little Praise For Man From The West Who Stampeded A Convention

BRYAN AND THE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION

His Announcement Arouses Almost Every Conceivable Emotion Except Enthusiasm

SHOWED HIMSELF AS UNSTABLE AS WATER, AS DANGEROUS AS FIRE

If He Gets the Nomination it Will be By Skilful Use of the "Organization."—Enormous Centralization of Power Involved in His Government Ownership Of Railroads Could Receive Little Support.—His Platform Will be Made Of Any Old Plank that May Appeal.—What are Self-Respecting Democrats Going to Do About It?

Mr. Bryan's announcement that he will not seek, but is ready to accept, another nomination for the Presidency, will arouse almost every conceivable emotion—except enthusiasm. This is one great trouble with him. He has gone stale. Everything that he can say, he has already said a thousand times. It is impossible to quicken interest in him. He has tired people out.

The advantage of having a new man as a candidate is often very great for any political party. * * * People are optimistic in the case of a new man. He will do better—the new broom will sweep away the old cobwebs. But with Mr. Bryan up again, all this would be out of the question. Instead of causing hope to spring eternal, he would make dejection sit like an incubus on every breast. During half a generation citizens have now formed the habit of voting against Mr. Bryan, and such habits are fearfully hard to break.

Mr. Bryan says he is not going to be guided by the opinion of newspapers "calling themselves Democratic." The mandate that he will obey must come, if at all, from the plain people in the party. The fallacy and the insincerity which lurk in this cannot evade close examination. No newspaper can stand apart from its clientele. When it expresses opinions about a candidate, it usually reflects the sentiments which come to it from the community. Thus the fact which Mr. Bryan doubtless has in mind, that a great many Democratic papers in the South have been outspoken against his candidacy, cannot be dismissed as a mere vagary of their editors. It speaks, rather, of a widespread feeling. * * * And when he attempts to set over against this sentiment that of the working members of the party, he really means that he is going to depend upon the Democratic machine. Of that, he very likely remains in pretty secure control. And it is probably true that he can grind out of it another nomination if he decides that it is worth while. But it ought to be clearly understood that, if he is named for the Presidency next year, it will be due to skilful use of the "organization," not to any spontaneous demand of the mass of Democrats, North or South, plain or fancy.

From beginning to end, Mr. Bryan's manifesto harps on "availability." But the real objections to him go deeper than any weighing of the chances of success. He might be "sure to win"—and we do not deny that very hard times next year would make the election of any Democratic nominee highly probable—and yet we should have the same conviction that he is not the man for the Presidency. He has shown himself as unstable as water and as dangerous as fire. On an issue which he now himself admits to have been artificially created, and which he has since abandoned, he convulsed the country in 1896. He would do it again, if he could find an inflammatory cry. That he is now in search of something of the kind, appears plainly in his announcement. He says he cannot tell what the issue will be next year. Leave that to a shifty candidate to determine! Mr. Bryan speaks smoothly of "Democratic principles," but any definition of them that could pass outside of a lunatic asylum would shut out such enormous centralization of power as is involved in his scheme for Government ownership of railroads. No; there can be little mistake about it. Mr. Bryan is after the nomination, depending mainly upon his command of the party machinery, and ready to stand upon any platform, or any whimsey, which the cunning of the hour may cause to seem taking.

The challenge is now plainly sounded to those sober and constructive Democrats, particularly in the South, who are as wearied as they are distrustful of Mr. Bryan. Will they have courage and initiative enough to organize a movement within their party against another staking of its fortunes upon him? It would be necessary to secure only one-third of the delegates in the National Convention. Bryan could not afford to make an open fight for the nomination. Even he must perceive that, if it is not conceded, it is not worth his taking. A determined rally of a few States would make his candidacy impossible. The question is, What are self-respecting Democrats going to do about it? They will have to answer very soon.

THREE CATHOLIC LIBERALS ARE PUNISHED

Churchmen In This Country Conform To Papal Injunction Against "Modernism"

FATHER TYRRELL'S ENGLISH ADMIRERS AKE DEEPLY STIRRED

Two German Ecclesiastics Have Fallen Under The Ban.—One is Denied Students And University Authorities Petition the Minister of Education for Protection.—Action of Catholic University in Washington.—Explanation of "Lesser Excommunication."

Catholic authorities in this country, as well as abroad, are, outwardly at least, conforming to the injunctions of the Pope's encyclical against "modernism." The trustees of the Catholic University at Washington have recently passed a formal vote against the teaching of modernist heresies in that institution. Father Tyrrell, who in two able articles in the London Times replied to the arguments of the encyclical, has just been sentenced to what is known as the "lesser excommunication." Under this punishment he is forbidden to approach the sacraments, though he is not barred from ordinary communications with the faithful. The sentence has deeply stirred Father Tyrrell's admirers, who regard him as the Roman Church's "greatest master of English style and her subtlest apologist since Newman." Moreover, according to press dispatches, two German ecclesiastics have also fallen under the ban. * * * The first of these has been ordered by the Archbishop of Munich to leave the diocese; and the second, by order of the Cardinal Archbishop of Cologne, finds himself without Roman Catholic students. For some time Professor Schrors, who fills one of the chairs of Catholic theology, has been lecturing in favor of applying scientific methods not only to Biblical criticism, but also to the interpretation of the Fathers of the Church. Suddenly Cardinal Fischer of Cologne issued instructions to all Catholic students at Bonn University to absent themselves from Professor Schrors' lectures. The faculty of the university is reported to be indignant at what is regarded as outside interference with the freedom of scientific research, and has petitioned the Minister of Education to protect Professor Schrors against the Cardinal.—New York Post.

MONCURE D. CONWAY

Man of Moral Courage and Great Attainment

WAS BORN IN VIRGINIA IN 1832

Resigned His Pulpit to Preach Human Liberty.—His Convictions and Friendship for Lincoln Exiled Him from the South.

Moncure Daniel Conway died in Paris last Friday. As an author and minister his reputation was world-wide. A native of Virginia he opposed slavery and was a warm friend of Lincoln.

"Rarely has moral courage," says the New York Post, "been better personified than in the late Moncure D. Conway. Born and bred in the atmosphere of slavery, he yet, by reason of his open-mindedness, was able to perceive clearly its iniquitous nature. Many in a similar position would have held their peace when to speak meant exile from home, and almost a complete break with those dearest to him. But exile was to him a small price to pay for freedom of speech. Later he could cheerfully resign his pulpit in Washington to another when the alternative was to be silent on the subject of human liberty. Hundreds of his fellow-preachers were choosing that easy way out of a dilemma; but for Mr. Conway it was impossible to conceal his beliefs. His change of religions frequently exposed him to the charge of instability, of being a turncoat, but nothing of the kind ever affected him in the least degree. From Methodism to Unitarianism, and then to freedom of thought, were easy transitions for the author of the best biography of Thomas Paine, in which he did valiant service for a much misunderstood and shamefully misrepresented man. Mr. Conway's mind set for itself always the attainment of the truth, whether it led him to a disavowal of religious forms or to express his belief in the superiority of Eastern over Western faiths. Disagree with his reasoning processes many might, but challenge his sincerity, his courage, the accuracy of his knowledge of men and events, or his intellectual honesty no one could."

The railroad killed 196 persons in Chicago during the first nine months of this year, the street cars 106, teams and wagons forty-eight, and the automobiles only ten.

GREATER PITTSBURGH.

Allegheny and Smoky City At Last United.

SEVENTH CITY IN POPULATION.

A Municipality Know All Over the World for Its Wealth, Industry and Push.—Cities United By Action of Supreme Court.

The decision of the National Supreme Court on Monday made Pittsburgh and Allegheny City one. The Philadelphia Press says of the greater city—"By the last census, Pittsburgh, with Allegheny, would have been the seventh city of the Union, ranking ahead of Cleveland, Buffalo, San Francisco and Cincinnati, and following next after Baltimore. It is quite probable that the population of Greater Pittsburgh will exceed that of Baltimore in 1910, bringing Pittsburgh next to Boston in the rank of American cities. The union of Pittsburgh and Allegheny was necessary in order that the city at the source of the Ohio should be able to demonstrate its real strength in population, manufactures, capital and general resources. * * * The people of Pittsburgh will rejoice at this addition to the prestige and power of their city. * * *

Though a majority of the votes in Allegheny were adverse to the union it will grow in favor where it has been resisted. The smaller city never had the standing that belonged to it, because it was eclipsed and belittled by its greater neighbor, with which it is now and henceforth incorporated. The people of Allegheny will not experience the advantage of a municipality whose names signifies all over the United States a great, prosperous, wealthy and growing city.

The population of Oklahoma is about 1,500,000 and the increase in Oklahoma City, the metropolis, which now has 32,452, has been 232.3 per cent. in seven years.

Games Played Last Saturday

YALE IN FIRST PLACE

How The West Fell Before The East In Two Games

HARVARD TEAM OVERWHELMED

Yale's Goal Line Has Been Crossed By But One Team, Princeton.—Game At New Haven Was Won By Better Team In Remarkable Game.—Other Scores.

The football games played last Saturday were the best from every standpoint in the history of the game. Yale won from Princeton in the second half of the game when the score was 10 to 0 in the Tiger's favor. The University of Pennsylvania defeated the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor—the first game lost by Michigan on her own grounds. The Carlisle Indians won from Minnesota by a small margin. Harvard sustained a crushing defeat at the hands of Dartmouth. Annapolis retrieved her defeat last year by winning from Pennsylvania State College, and Bucknell snowed under Dickinson. The following table gives the comparative scores of two years of some of the leading institutions:

	1907	1906
Pennsylvania	6	17
Michigan	0	0
Yale	12	0
Princeton	10	0
Harvard	0	22
Dartmouth	22	0
Cornell	18	28
Swarthmore	0	0
Annapolis	6	4
Penn State	4	5
West Point	21	12
Tufts	0	0
Lafayette	4	4
Syracuse	4	12
Indians	12	17
Minnesota	10	0
Haverford	0	4
F. and M.	4	0
Lehigh	27	15
Ursinus	0	0
Bucknell	48	—
Dickinson	0	—

The game at New Haven was the most important one of the season and the 38,000 spectators saw the greatest and most skillful exhibition of football ever witnessed.

At the end of the first half the score stood 10 to 0 in favor of the Tigers. In this half of the game they had outplayed Yale at almost every point, kept her constantly on the defensive and never once had allowed her to get within striking distance of the goal.

But in the second half, with two substitutions in her team, Yale put up a new and entirely different game. The Elis at once took the aggressive and put Princeton on the defensive, and in just fourteen minutes' time they had scored two touchdowns and kicked two goals by the most determined football ever witnessed on a Yale field.

The New York Post says "The better team won, but it had to show its full game to do it. There was no disgrace in the defeat for Princeton. Her team fought the good fight, and that is all the best can do. She forced Yale to show Harvard coaches some plays that were not intended to be disclosed, and gave the Blue the battle of the season.

The Carlisle Indians won their game with Minnesota by 12 to 10, the Indians using the open game, and Minnesota making her gains by line-plunging. Carlisle made two touchdowns, from which goals were kicked, and Minnesota one, and a goal from the field.

Pennsylvania beat Michigan by 6 to 0 in a game in which the Eastern team always had the best of it. The touchdown came in the first fifteen minutes.

Mr. Bryan's open declaration of a willingness to sacrifice himself for the benefit of his party sounds heroic in the extreme. It has in it all the elements of the martyr's stoic determination to die, if necessary, rather than give up a cherished cause.

The truth of the matter is that for twelve long years Mr. Bryan has been in the foreground of politics and that for twelve long years he has sought the presidency; the office has not sought him nor has the Democratic party ever been unanimous in regard to his fitness for the place.

It cannot be doubted that a great many of Mr. Bryan's theories are correct; there can be no question as to his ability; nor can anything detrimental be raised against his private character. Yet, notwithstanding all this, Mr. Bryan has that dominant and seemingly unconquerable quality of becoming erratic and impetuous, which makes it next to impossible for the more conservative element of his party to look upon him as its leader.

eral, but for his erratic, impetuous actions and his over strenuousness in particular; and on top of it they would choose from their own ranks a man whom their claim is Mr. Roosevelt's counterpart.

However, just at present Judge Gray seems to be the one on whom the sinew of the Democracy looks with favor. Up to the present time at least, no probable candidate measures up to the required standard as does this big man from the little State of Delaware. Judge Gray, though he has not been featured as Mr. Bryan, needs no introduction to the people of this country, nor to those abroad for that matter.

SINCE 1621 when the Pilgrim Fathers kept the first harvest thanksgiving, down to the present time, it has been the custom and the privilege of Christian America to assemble on a certain day, each one in his own place of worship, and before God's altar, to render thanks for the mercies of the closing year.

The President, in his proclamation naming Thursday the 28th as Thanksgiving Day, calls attention to the peace which this country enjoys in its relations with other powers, to the greatness of our resources and opportunity which "a free people have to develop to the fullest extent all its powers of body, of mind, and of that which stands above both body and mind—character."

As individuals and as a people we have been given much, and as from us much will and should be expected in return, may we not falter nor prove unworthy of our trust but on the contrary, may we exert our faculties to the utmost, may we make the most of our opportunities, may we put forth our best endeavors—all to make our homes and our communities, and thereby our whole country, the better for our very existence.

OUT in Michigan relic manufacturers, until recently, have been reaping a veritable harvest. Many a home-made 'antique,' it is said, has been palmed off on unwary travelers, and many an 'ancient piece' has been sold to relic hunting expeditions headed by the very promoters of the graft-shop which has been so ably and profitably conducted for years.

This little affair recalls the relic craze at Gettysburg where, in years gone by, business was so brisk that bullets had to be moulded over night to supply the demand of the eager collectors. History does not relate that General Reynolds met his death in front of a gatling gun, or that Armistead was spitted on more than three or four hundred swords and bayonets; and yet until a comparatively short time ago, any one who was willing to dis-annex himself from a five dollar bill (on flush days; two and a half during the dull season,) could become the possessor of any one of the fifty-seven thousand varieties of bullets that riddled the former, or any particular sword, bayonet or cane that put an ending to the latter.

A BAN should be put upon the practice of marketing cold-storage eggs under the guise of the genuine fresh-laid article. If cold-storage eggs are to be sold, they should be branded as such and the buyer thereby given the opportunity to take his choice. It is a well-known fact that out of the thousands of dozens of eggs sold to consumers at this time of the year, considerably more than half the number are of the cold-storage variety.

THE discontinuance of the street work has been only temporary. As made known before, it is the purpose of the Commissioners to lay as much limestone as they possibly can with the amount available for such purposes, and then rely upon the residents of Emmitsburg to subscribe a sum sufficient to enable them to complete the paving of of the entire town.

hanced the appearance of the town a hundred per cent. Even more money will be needed if the commissioners' ideas are to be properly carried out, and it is to be hoped that now that the community has had a practical demonstration of the plan, everybody in the town will give something towards this good and lasting work.

It must not be forgotten that the present charter does not permit the Commissioners to borrow money, and therefore they must appeal to the public-spirited citizens who take pride in their surroundings.

The Town Lover; or, How the Lady-Killer Blew Up In the Stretch.

[Copyright, 1902, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.]

NO SCANDAL.

There once lived at a prominent Junction a local swell known as Wilbur. He was what one might call a Half-Portion. That is, he was a little shy on weight, but what he lacked in Avordupois he made up in Nerve. He was a Fresh Gazabe, who could get away with anything. For instance, he could sit in a Lady's Lap for an Hour at a Time without starting any Scandal, and yet if a full-grown Man tried to hold this same Lady's Hand for a couple of Minutes, just to be sociable, she would tell around that she had been insulted.

In speaking of Wilbur the Girls usually said that he was Cute, or else just too Cunning for any use. The Men said various Things about him, but what they said does not come under the head of Sunday Reading.

Every Debutante wanted to wear him on her Chatelaine, but most of the Men were plotting to drop a little Prussic Acid into his Ice-Cream Soda.

For some Reason or other the gabby young Squab who is a Ten-Strike with the Dolly Grays never stands very Ace with the Poker-Players.

When a man has put some blonde Esmeralda up on a Pedestal a mile high and is silently waiting for the Day when he will know her well enough to carelessly throw one Arm over the back of the Chair, it makes him Hop-Eyed to see some 90-pound Rabbit with an Immortal Rind chase up to the Goddess and give her the kitchy-kitchy Business under the Chin and call her "Babe."

The Pocket-edition Society Boy can take Liberties that would cause the Six-Footer to be murdered and thrown into the River.

Wilbur was the busiest little Insect that ever buzzed, and his Work had a Mahogany Finish. He could put in an Afternoon with five or six boulevard Netties and make every one of them think that she was the High Card.

His Den was richly decorated with Trophies of the Chase, and the Post-man became lop-sided from delivering his Mail.

There is such a Thing as being too Popular, and that was what ailed Wilbur. He was being passed around all the while and never had time to devote himself to any particular Queen, and, besides, he didn't meet very many that were Particular. He flattered from Flower to Flower, and he did not have the Heart to tie up with any one of the Bunch and make her his Steady, because he knew that the others would pine away or else renounce the World and enter a Convent.

One Reason why Wilbur had such a strong Pull with the Buds was that he never permitted his Work to interfere with his Social Duties. They could get him on the Phone at any time and book him for any kind of a Stunt from a Luncheon to a Golf Tourney. He kept his Evening Clothes at the Office, and he could respond to a Dinner Invitation like a Fireman going to a Fire. He never side-stepped a chance to eat.

One of his prize Specialties was to play sympathetic Companion to the Woman whose Husband belongs to a Club. He cultivated the antique Hens who make out the Invitation Lists, and that is why Wilbur usually led the German and distributed the Favors when the Smart Set pulled off a Cotillon.

Although he was on Salary, he somehow contrived to hold up his End. Fortunately, his Board did not cost him anything, and he squared all of his Society Obligations by making Party Calls instead of sending American Beauties.

Inasmuch as all of the real Tessies were more or less crazy about Wilbur, it seemed a lead-pipe Certainty that he would land an Heiress who would take him to Palm Beach on a Wedding Tour and then pay his Tailor Bills for all time. However, so many were on his Trail that not one of them had a chance to monopolize him. Just when Hortense would get him off into a Corner to tell him that she loved Blue Eyes, Beryl would come along and begin to stroke his Hair, and then Clarice would come up and pin Violets on him.

WILBUR'S MAIL.

There never was a time when he could have put a Tag on any Dulcinea without putting a Blight on the entire Female Community; so he waited. In fact, he overdid the Waiting Act. a Promise, but the Honey Boy has to play a Circuit all the Time. Wilbur usually had about 47 Names in his Date-Book.

He never ran short, because when the June Brides dropped out, a new Crop, fresh from the Boarding-Schools, came in to fill the Vacancies.

Year after Year the Ladies' Idol continued his heart-breaking Career, not because he wished to be Cruel, but because he couldn't help being so all-fired Entrancing.

EVENING CLOTHES ALWAYS READY.

Little Wilbur, the has-been Midge, found that he could drift into a Drawing-Room without causing the faintest Ripple. Now that he was becoming Bald and Shelf-Worn, no one cared to use him as a Pet.

He was lucky if he got a few kind Words from some elderly Patroness. As for the Girls who owned a Million Dollars apiece, they couldn't see him with a Spy-Glass.

So he became that pathetic Figure, the played-out Beau—the extinct Volcano in the Landscape of Gayety. He tried to butt in, from Force of Habit, but he had the Ice Pitcher handed to him so often that at last he got wise to himself and realized that he belonged on the Top Shelf.

He did what every Man does—viz., the best he can. He looked up with a Maiden Lady who looked all right in the Dark, and although a Bundle of Money came with her, he earned all that he got.

GOOD TASTE IN DRESS.

Particular Attention Paid to Shoes and Gloves.

If you would dress in good taste, pay particular attention to shoes, gloves and veils, to nicety in the matter of neckwear and to trifles that give pretty finishing touches to a plain costume.

The woman who is dressed in good taste is not always the one who spends the most on her clothes, but rather the one who can afford so few frocks that she sticks to plain modes and colors best suited to her.

The woman who will give a little thought to the matter of dress manages to spend less money and get better results and service than the careless, indifferent woman who is content to wear "just anything."

A woman's gown is one of the indexes to her character. If for no other reason, it should merit careful consideration.

Some women always dress loudly, always wear the extremes of fashion and even exaggerate extremes.

If checked cloth, pointed shoes, short skirts or long coats are in style, they insist on broader checks, more pointed shoes, shorter skirts and longer coats than the fashion prescribes.

In other words, everything is exaggerated, so that people will think that they are not only right up to fashion, but also a little ahead.

Women who dress in this manner suffer because such things indicate certain character qualities—insordinate vanity, an overestimation of one's importance, superficiality, foolishness.

Character is estimated by little things, and when people seem to spend most of their energies in thinking about themselves it is taken for granted that they are not much good for the solid, substantial things of life.

People who are given to thinking too much of themselves always think too little of others.

They are proverbially selfish, and selfishness is instinctively despised by every one.

An Ambitious Prince.

When Prince Edward, son of the Prince of Wales and heir apparent to the British throne, was about nine years old he said to his nurse one night before going to sleep: "You know that some day I shall be king. Well, when I am I shall do three things. First, I shall make a law that no one is to cut off puppy dogs' tails, for that is very cruel. Then I shall make a law that no one is to put bearing reins on horses, for that is another cruel thing. And I shall try to do away with all sin."

Colliers as Scouts.

This year's army maneuvers in Italy are signalized by the introduction of the dog as an element in tactics. A small group of scouting and messenger dogs is attached by way of experiment to the First army corps, and if the results are deemed sufficiently good dogs are likely to be largely used by the intelligence department. It is worth noting, too, that the dogs selected as pioneers in this work are Scotch colliers.—London Globe.

What The Sphinx Thinks

—That a "tight wad" and a loose tongue are ordinarily found on the same person.

—That if consistencies were the only jewels in existence, very few would be entitled to wear them.

—That unfortunately there are characters mean enough to tempt others beyond their power to resist and then condemn them.

—That although intemperance is not confined to overindulgence in strong drink, many gluttons and many detractors are looked upon as temperate persons.

—That the foreign missionary habit sometimes takes such a hold upon people that they apply it to business and positively refuse to buy anything at home.

—That even when he's "up against it good and hard," a man with grit and energy and a proper belief in his capabilities can pull through, and with credit to himself.

—That it may be very satisfying to the well fed sentimentalist to sigh for the "wings of a dove," but to the ear of the hungry hustler something like the breast of a fat turkey sounds better.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

Pattern For Child's Frock Designed by May Manton—No. 5805.

Such pretty little frocks as this one are always needed for the small folk, who have an unconquerable habit of destroying garments with amazing rapidity. It is made of fine white lawn and is trimmed with frills of the material and embroidered disks, but it is appropriate both for all the lawns and other pretty washable materials which are worn at all seasons and for cashmere, challis and similar lightweight wools, while the fact that it can be made with either the half low or high neck and with the short or long sleeves means that there are practically two designs in one. Cashmere with ribbon frills makes an exceedingly serviceable and pretty dress for the coming cool weather, while both white and colored wash materials are charming, and if something very dainty and very pretty is desired the front portion and yoke could be embroidered in some design suited to it, or it could be made from all over embroidery.

The dress consists of yoke and front portions, with the full skirt, which is gathered and joined thereto. Both the short and the long sleeves are gathered and finished with straight bands.

The quantity of material required for the medium size (four years) is 2 1/2 yards 27, 2 3/4 yards 32 or 2 1/2 yards 44 inches wide, with 5 yards of ruffling to trim as illustrated.

Sizes for children of 2, 4 and 6 years.

DIRECTIONS FOR ORDERING.

Send 10 cents to this office, give number of this pattern, No. 5805, and state size desired. It will then be sent to you by mail postpaid. Be sure to write plainly and always give full address. Several days must be allowed for delivery of pattern.

ODD ACCIDENTS.

In an effort to help a wounded sparrow William Longberry of Philadelphia fell off the roof of a house and was killed.

Mrs. Mary Carman was killed near Osage, N. J., by a freak of the wind which tore up a chicken house, whirled it around and threw it on the woman, crushing her skull.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pool, aged fifty-six and fifty-two respectively, were killed at the same minute, the husband by an explosion in a coal mine and the wife in the railroad yards at Centralia, Ill.

A fighting water bird, known as the stake driver, was captured near Portland, Mich., by Byron Aldrich. When he blew smoke at the captive the bird plunged its bill deep into the man's eye, the sight of which will probably be destroyed.

Boy Babies in Athens.

Among the poorer classes of Athens necessity has mothered the pretty invention of covering a new born boy with a dress made from an old shirt belonging to his father, while under the baby's tiny pillow were smuggled a black handled knife, a gold coin and a copy of the gospel—sign and symbol of the courage, wealth and piety that the hopes of fond hearts treasured for the little son and heir.

A boy's hair grows one-half slower than a girl's. In boys the average rate of growth is three feet three inches in six years, being an average of .018 inches per day. During his twenty-first and twenty-fourth years a man's hair grows quicker than at any other period.

THE ROYAL BOX.

Boiled eggs form the chief element in the sultan of Turkey's diet.

Queen Maud of Norway is very clever at woodcarving, and she frequently makes pipes for her husband's friends.

There is no more perfect master of German, says an English paper, than King Edward, whose German is far more idiomatic than that of the majority of educated Germans living abroad.

Don Carlos, obeying the orders of his medical adviser, takes his meals on a chair fitted with a weighing apparatus, and as soon as the index marks a certain figure the king quits the table. He hopes with this regime and much exercise his weight may be reduced to 260 pounds.

An Ancient Flying Ship.

In the Evening Post, a London newspaper published in the reign of Queen Anne and bearing date 20-22 December, 1709, there is a curious description of a flying ship, stated to have been invented by Bartholomeo Lorenzo, a Brazilian priest. The paper has an engraving of the airship and a long letterpress description. The inventor claimed that he could travel 200 miles in twenty-four hours.

Where Warm Clothing Is Useless.

In a hospital for soldiers' wives in India a poor woman was about to be invalided home. A lady got her some warm clothing for the voyage. Unfortunately the patient died before she could be got away. The matron, anxious to improve the occasion, said to the lady who had provided the clothes, "Ah, well, poor soul, she's gone where she won't never want no more warm clothing!"—Cornhill.

In a police court two lawyers became very much excited over a legal argument. Matters went to such a pitch that they finally began to call each other names.

"You're a liar!" was the quick retort.

Then the judge said: "Now that the counsel have identified each other, kindly proceed to the disputed points."

"But it's true, sir," rejoined Turner.

"Whose baby was it?"

"The elephant's, sir."

What to Do When You Drop an Egg.

At a breakfast party in England which Joseph H. Choate attended while he was American ambassador a young lady at his right accidentally spilled the contents of her plate.

"Oh, Mr. Choate," she exclaimed, "I don't know what to do, for I've dropped an egg on the floor!"

"If I were you I'd cackle."

As She Heard It.

A fashionable woman had a bit of statutory bearing the inscription "Kismet." A housemaid dusting the room asked the mistress:

"Shure, ma'am, what's the m'anin' of the writin' on the bottom of this?"

"Oh, you mean 'Kismet.' It means 'fate.'"

Bridget was limping painfully when out with her sweetheart not long afterward and apologetically explained, "Faith, I have the most terrible corns on me kismet."—Ladies' Home Journal.

THE PROPOSED CANONIZATION OF MOTHER SETON

Ecclesiastical Court Now Holding Weekly Sessions At Residence Of Cardinal-Archbishop Of Baltimore

INQUIRING INTO THE SANCTITY OF FOUNDER OF ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY.

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY, EMMITSBURG, FOUNDED BY MOTHER SETON.

An interesting and in many respects very remarkable Ecclesiastical Court is at the present time holding weekly sessions at the residence of the Cardinal-Archbishop of Baltimore. The members of this Court are Very Rev. Dr. Dyer, Very Rev. Dr. Tarro, Very Rev. Dr. Thomas, Judges; Notary, Rev. Joseph Cunnane; Fiscal Promoters, Rev. O. B. Corrigan, Rev. Michael Foley; Cursor, Rev. D. de Wulf; Postulator, Rev. James Oliver Hayden.

The whole proceeding is an inquiry into the sanctity of Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton, foundress of the Sisters of Charity in the United States, who died at Emmitsburg in 1821. The first step in these proceedings, the end of which may be the Canonization of Mother Seton, is to establish her reputation for sanctity. Mother Seton founded the order of the Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph at Emmitsburg in 1809, and the work she there started has spread to all parts of the country, the number of Sisters now reaching more than 5100.

Prior to her death, Mother Seton's reputation for holiness had spread from the neighborhood where she lived, not only throughout Maryland and Pennsylvania but to all parts of this country and to Europe as well. This fame for sanctity has increased as the years have passed, until now, nearly one hundred years after she began her work for the good of humanity, efforts are being made to have her name placed in the Calendar as one of the Saints of the Church. In the usual course of events the matter will not be fully determined in less than twenty years. The preliminary proceedings, which will take probably a year or more, will be sent to Rome, and if the case is made out to the satisfaction of those in authority, Mother Seton will be declared "Venerable," and her title will be the Venerable Mother Seton. Further proceedings, lasting for years, will be undertaken and after they are concluded to the satisfaction of the authorities, she will be declared "Blessed," and her title will be the Blessed Mother Seton, and after still further investigation and proof she may be raised to the Calendar as a Saint.

Mother Seton's reputation as one of the great figures of the early days of the Catholic Church in the United States has spread over the entire civilized world. She was born in New York City before the Revolution and all her people were members of the Protestant Episcopal Church in which faith she herself was brought up. On the death of her husband she joined the Roman Catholic Church, and after passing a short time in Baltimore, where she opened a girl's school, she went out into what was then the wilderness at the base of the Blue Ridge, near Emmitsburg, Frederick county. There, after all sorts of struggles and hardships, she founded St. Joseph's Convent an order of the Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph, and this Convent is still the mother house of the order in the United States. In 1850 the order thus founded was united with the order of Daughters or Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, founded in France two hundred years earlier. At the present time the combined order is the most powerful organization on earth working for the salvation of suffering mankind.

Many people in all parts of the country firmly believe that Mother Seton died in the odor of Sanctity, and that she is now a Saint in Heaven and even before the Church has pronounced judgment in the case her intercession is invoked by thousands of devout people. Reports testifying to her sanctity have been current ever since her death, and these reports have grown with the years until her tomb at Emmitsburg is now looked upon by many Catholics as a holy shrine. The late Archbishop Bayley, of Baltimore, who was Mother Seton's nephew, and who is believed to have become a Catholic through her intercession, was so impressed with her sanctity that he violated all precedent and instead of being entombed at his death in the Cathedral crypt, as have been all other Archbishops of Baltimore, by his own expressed wish, his body was taken to Emmitsburg and laid to rest where it now lies, in the same vault with that of Mother Seton at St. Joseph's. Bishop Brute, of Vincennes, Indiana, who was for many years one of Mother Seton's friends and who acquired the title of Angel of the Mountain while President of Mt. St. Mary's College, was also impressed with the holiness of Mother Seton, as was made evident from certain memoranda left by him at his death, and hundreds of other men and women eminent in and out of the Church, testify in regard to the same matter.

"The fame of her holiness and charity has spread beyond the limits of her own land, and even those of other faiths testify in her behalf."

Catholics who may be interested in this inquiry, and especially those who may have information which would prove of value, are requested to communicate with the Very Rev. James Oliver Hayden, St. Vincent's House, Emmitsburg, Maryland.

[Written especially for THE CHRONICLE by PAUL WINCHESTER.]

Every reader of a newspaper has ideas. Every reader of a newspaper has a preference for certain features which to him or her, as the case may be, are particularly attractive and interesting. It is the object of THE CHRONICLE to give its readers just what they want, and therefore an invitation is herewith extended to every subscriber of this paper to state just what that preference is. All suggestions sent in good faith will be carefully considered, and a new department will be added to THE CHRONICLE whenever a preference for the same feature has been indicated by several readers. NEWS FROM FREDERICK

The Masons of Frederick gave a reception and banquet to friends on last Friday evening.

It is understood in Frederick that the next Legislature will be asked to grant a liquor license board for this county, to be composed of three or five members to be chosen by the Governor. This board is to have charge of the granting of all liquor licenses in the country, and the advocates of the bill think it will have the effect of weeding out many of the low grade saloons.

The Board of Election Supervisors of Frederick county have filed with the County Commissioners a statement of expenses of the late election, showing a total cost of $6,861.80. In Frederick county there are about 26 election districts, with a total of 38 voting precincts. The ballots cast at the election, now in the custody of the supervisors, will be burned.

By the bursting of a boiler at the Hyattsville Creamery at that place last week, N.L. Nicodemus, a plumber, and J. W. Wilson, the proprietor of the Creamery, were badly scalded. Both are doing well and are out of danger.

Miss Maria Diehl, daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Diehl, a former Lutheran minister here, died last Wednesday of a complication of diseases while visiting relatives at Easton, Pa.

Miss Diehl was a teacher of music at the Woman's College, Frederick, and her health failing last Spring she was granted one year's leave of absence. Getting no better she went, late in the Summer, to Easton, Pa., and was treated by a specialist. Her death was not expected and was quite a shock to her friends here. The interment was made in Easton where her father's body is buried. Many friends of the family here attended the funeral.

Judge William H. Pearre has just been named by the Governor as chief Judge of the Orphans' Court for this county. This was expected as the Judge has served one term as associate judge.

Foster C. Ramsburg, Cashier of the Woodsboro Savings Bank, has been Elected treasurer of the Valley Savings Bank at Middletown, vice J.L. Rutzahn. Mr. Rutzahn is interested in a new banking institution to be started in Middletown shortly.

IN THE COURTS.

Messrs. E. L. Coblenz and C. C. Waters, attorneys, who with L. M. Biser are trustees in Bankruptcy of Augustus Ebert, trading as B. Ebert and Son, have filed with the referee, Maj. E. Y. Goldsborough, a petition to set aside a sale of the store goods made by the receiver before Mr. Ebert was adjudged bankrupt.

Mehrl Ridgley, twelve years old, a son of Mr. Charles Ridgley, was arrested for stealing five dollars, the property of Mr. Charles Fagan. The lad was given the money and told to buy a cigar for Fagan, instead he skipped off to Hagerstown. The boy's father made good Mr. Fagan's loss. The case was not prosecuted.

Charged with stealing a football from the Frederick College football team, George Duvall, colored, was arrested and taken before a magistrate. He was released after he made good the loss. Upon the suggestion of the magistrate the boy was soundly whipped by his father.

Florence Tracey, who was supposed to have been abducted by Jacob Harmon, in an interview with State's Attorney Williard said she went away of her own accord. After hearing her statements Sheriff Martz was instructed to notify the authorities at Norfolk to release Harmon, who is in jail there awaiting extradition papers, to be brought to Frederick to be prosecuted on the charge of abduction.

Sheriff-Elect George Edward Myers announced the following appointments: Office deputy, William H. Smith, of Tuscarora district; turnkey at the jail, Charles Clingan, of Frederick; and riding deputy, William E. Darner, of Jefferson.

Fannie M. Waite has obtained a divorce from her husband, Frank H. Waite, in the District of Columbia Courts. Both parties are well known here.

Fred Simonson, charged with assaulting Frank Strawsburger was discharged on Tuesday by Justice Ritter after hearing the testimony, but Strawsburger was ordered to appear before the Justice.

The County Commissioners decided to pay their share of the cost of a sewer on Court street from Church to Council streets. The sewer runs from Second street to Carroll Creek.

A test case will be made as to the right for the city to prohibit selling on market before 8 a. m., the new hour established. It is expected that the recent ordinance on markets and licenses for selling on streets will be taken before the Court for final discussion.

STRICKEN ON THE STREET

Mr. David Hoff Suffered an Attack of Apoplexy on the Street.—His Condition Pronounced Serious.

On Monday afternoon Mr. David Hoff, a well-known citizen of this place had a stroke of apoplexy while on the street in front of Mr. Colliflower's store. His condition was noticed by several men who came to his assistance. Mr. Charles Shorb carried him to his house while others notified Dr. Stone.

For over a day Mr. Hoff remained unconscious and it was not until Tuesday evening that he could be given nourishment. Messrs. Joseph R. Hoke, Richard Zacharias, Mr. Knode and others attended the old gentleman until some of his relatives, who had been notified, had arrived.

The stroke has left Mr. Hoff in a very precarious condition although there is good hope for his recovery. His right side is paralyzed. On Wednesday he was taken to the Emmitt House where better care can be taken of him.

Sports at the Opera House.

The events to be pulled off at the Opera House to-morrow evening will be of unusual interest. The manly art of boxing, which is not prize fighting any more than a shooting match is a duel, and scientific wrestling, both of which will be splendidly illustrated by the talent Mr. McGreevy has persuaded to come here, are sports that should appeal to all healthy manhood. A large audience should be present on this occasion for the reception given this entertainment may have much to do with future exhibitions.

In Praises of Local Poet.

The Baltimore Sun printed the following notice of the book of poems recently published by THE CHRONICLE Press written by Rev. Mr. Kenneth M. Craig: Kenneth M. Craig, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Emmitsburg, Md., publishes through THE CHRONICLE Press of his own town a volume of very acceptable verse. Mr. Craig has the gift of rhyme. Although he does not, and therefore we cannot, claim for his verses the quality that makes them masterpieces, nevertheless they have a most pleasing ring and the true spirit of poetry. Of various classes are these poems. Some of them have the rush of the wind and the smell of the heather, the glint of the sun or the frown of cloud, the purl of lake or the roar of river. Others deal with subjects within the realm of the abstract. But all are worth reading, and some worth remembering. The cover of this book of verses is by Mrs. Craig, and is daintily designed.

Letter to Geo. Zimmerman.

Emmitsburg, Md.

Dear Sir: You've got 200 cows; how much will you take for calves and milk of 100 of 'em next year—you pick out the 100?

How much for the other 100?

The point is: cows are not all alike, and you know which is which.

It is so with paint. You've got one best cow in that herd. There are 200 different paints in the United States; and one best. You know your best cow, we know the best paint.

The best cow is the one that gives the best calves and milk. The best paint is the one that covers most surface and stays there longest—neither paint nor cow goes by color—nobody asks whether Holstein or Jersey is better to look-at.

10 gallons Devoe will cover your barn and wear 10 years; it'll take 15 of another paint, and that paint'll wear 5 years.

Reckon costs. Devoe: 10 gallons $1.75, $17.50; about 10 days' work $3, $30; the job, $47.50 for 10 years; $4.75 a year. The other: 15 gallons $1.60, $24; about 15 days' work $3, $45; the job, $69 for five years; $13.80 a year. Devoe $4.75 a year; the other $13.80 a year. Difference $9 a year.

Yours truly

"Wooltex" Coats for The Little Miss.

"Wooltex" Coats for children are just as different in little girls' coats as they are in girls of larger growth and for women. Different in Style, in Quality, in Service. "Wooltex" means Pure Wool, it means a certain designed style, it means two seasons of wear for good, it means an interlined yoke over chest and back. It means, too, that they cost less than qualities such as "Wooltex" usually cost.

NOTE.—Have the Branch send for some of them to look at or send to us for illustrated catalogue if you cannot come to see us.

The College Coat

For the Miss of Larger Growth or the Young Woman.

They show such snappy style that they instantly suggest the up-to-date college girl or stylishly dressed young woman. Look at the cut, note the mannish effect in its rather broad shouldered design. It is an overcoat, long, loose and easy. Pure wool—which gives a maximum of warmth with a minimum of weight, while tailoring is perfection in every detail.

If you care for clothes—it's the coat you'll want. The price is less than you'd expect, after seeing it on yourself.

Look up the coat question at once. There will be trouble to get selection a little later on.

LIVE CAPITAL TOPICS.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

The reports that have been rendered to the War Department of the recent experiences of the Coast Artillery with the militia artillery are decidedly gratifying. In some of the northern coast states the artillery branch of the national guard went into camp in company with the Coast artillery or rather made its camps at the coast artillery points. The militiamen were drilled by the regular officers in handling the big guns and seem to have done good work. The Coast Artillery is woefully short of men, more so than any other branch of the service and it was doubtless glad of the support of the Militia. It is doubly gratifying that the militiamen made a good showing and it is proposed that they will drill with the Coast Artillery whenever practicable in the future. It is possible also that there may be established a regular branch of the national guard for the especial purpose of handling the big guns. This would be no more foreign to the every day work of the citizen soldiers than being members of the naval reserve.

The conference of the Central American States in Washington this week is one of the most important gatherings held here recently. It marks a drawing together of the warring states such as will in all probability settle their individual differences. There may be an even more important outcome than that. President Zelaya of Nicaragua has sent word to the conference by his representative that he would be willing to resign if by so doing, he could secure the formation of a single state out of the now antagonistic Central American Republics. This announcement came as a complete surprise for Zelaya has been in office twelve years and is generally regarded as the most tenacious of the practical military dictators of the small states. He has also been credited with being the chief trouble maker among the little republics. If he is willing to get down and out from purely patriotic motives and see one state established where there were five weak and warring states before, it argues well for the outlook in Central America. It is a move that would have the hearty support of the United States and of Mexico as well, it is believed as of the other South American states. It would be a further guarantee of the inviolability of the Monroe Doctrine and would make a much more difficult task for any European power that wanted to encroach on Central America.

Nearly every executive government officer who comes into office turns up some dereliction or develops some new point that his predecessor had overlooked. Commissioner of Internal Revenue Capers has discovered something of this sort that is more important than the average. He finds on examination that in a number of states, especially in Virginia and North Carolina, there has been systematic cheating of the revenues going on for some years. The reports thus far have been made to the Treasury Department show that the revenue frauds in the two states named have amounted to almost $2,000,000 in the past two years. They have been committed by the collusion of gaugers and store keepers with the whiskey manufacturers. Some of the big distilleries have run through twice or four times as much grain as they were given credit for on the revenue books and almost a quarter of the whiskey that has been made in the regions under suspicion has been made without paying the government tax.

A raid has been made by the Treasury agents on one of the suspected stills and workmen were found carrying whiskey in buckets and filling up barrels outside the bonded warehouse. There was a lively fight before the men were captured and sever penalties will be inflicted as a warning. There is evidence in hand for a score of other arrests and the whiskey men do not know where the lightning is going to strike next.

The announcement of Mr. Bryan, that he would be a candidate again for the Presidency "if needed" has been received with a great deal of interest in Washington. It at least puts the Democratic party in a more assured position than their opponents because they now know what they have to expect while the Republican party is still "up in the air." It is generally conceded that Mr. Bryan will think he is needed and that his announcement of willingness is tantamount to a demand for the nomination. Of course it is possible that he will not get it, but those who have been watching the course of politics believe that he can force his own nomination if he so desires just as surely as Mr. Roosevelt could force his renomination if he desired. The only difference is that the one party knows what to expect and the other does not. The sentiment for Bryan is strong in the South, according to people who have just come from there, and if the conservative wing of the Democratic party wants to get a man to beat Bryan for the nomination, it will have to come out in the open and pick him speedily and positively. The announcement will force an almost immediate lineup of the two factions of the party. It has been estimated that Mr. Bryan will not run again if President Roosevelt accepts another nomination and people profess to think that the Bryan announcement will be the one thing needful to draw a third term announcement from the White House. It can be said however, that there are many people who think Bryan would be the one man who might defeat President Roosevelt for re-election with the third term as an issue.

ABOUT JOB PRINTING.

GOOD PRINTING means more than the use of type and ink and paper. Any printer can "set up" a quantity of type and "run off" a number of impressions. This is printing; but it is not always Good Printing.

The Chronicle Press

GOOD PRINTING is the result of using appropriate type in an appropriate manner, with due regard for the purpose for which the finished product is to be used.

And Good Printing

GOOD PRINTING requires judgment, an appreciation of the artistic, a positive realization of effect, and a nicety of distinction with regard to the color, the quality, the very texture of the stock—the paper—used.

Are Synonymous Terms.

BAD OR DIFFERENT PRINTING misrepresents the one who makes use of it. It is a poor introduction for any business man—and it is the most expensive kind of printing.

The Chronicle Does Good Printing Only.

A Difficult Art.

There was a good story told of Dr. Joachim when he was in Hanover. During the winter there was a great deal of skating going on, of which he had a good view from his window. It looked so easy and every one seemed so happy that he thought he would have a try. Accordingly he strolled down and was soon pounced upon by the ice cleaner, who asked him if he wished to skate. "I have never tried yet," Joachim replied. "I will show you, Herr Hofconcertmeister," the man said, screwing on a pair of skates. "So! Now stand up. Now slide the right foot so and the other so, and then off!" Joachim slid his right foot and prepared for the left, but before he had righted himself he was indeed "off" and sprawling on the ice. "Ja, ja, ja!" the man exclaimed, as he raised the famous violinist. "It is not quite so easy as playing the fiddle."

To Farmers---A Word of Explanation.

There seems to be an impression that the Fine Set of Harness offered by the EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE for the best article on farming will be awarded to the farmer who has raised the biggest crop.

This is a decided mistake.

The sole idea is to get a series of articles for publication, written by practical farmers, explaining the methods by which they have succeeded with various crops.

Thus the man who farms 30 acres is on the same footing with the one who farms 300, for the one who cultivates the small farm may have far better ideas than he who owns a greater number of acres, and his product, in proportion, may be greater.

It is simply a question of who has the best ideas.

Valuable Offer to Farmers

In order to benefit farmers in general by giving them—

Free of Cost

—the most practical suggestions about raising paying crops of various kinds, gained from actual experience,

The Chronicle Will Present a Set of Fine Harness to the farmer who sends to this office before January 1st, 1908, the best article on the methods by which he has raised the most successful crops.

As substance is what is wanted, writing, punctuation or expression will not be counted—thus an article indifferently written, but containing the best ideas, will count for more than a well written but less practical one.

CONDITIONS:

- 1. Every competitor must be a yearly subscriber to THE CHRONICLE. 2. The number of acres cultivated, the character of the soil and the reasons for everything done, must be given. 3. Under each article must appear a fictitious name, and accompanying it must be a sealed envelope containing the real name of the writer. The outside of the envelope must bear the same name that is appended to each article. 4. Every manuscript submitted is to become the property of THE CHRONICLE. 5. Articles must be written on one side of the paper only. 6. None but the assumed name will be published with each article. 7. The decision as to which article is the best will be made by three farmers residing in another county and unknown to those competing. 8. The result of the award will be published in some issue of THE CHRONICLE as soon after January 1st, 1908, as possible and the real name of the successful competitor and his name only will be published, and the harness delivered. 9. Any farmer or farm worker, no matter where he resides, may submit articles and any number of articles may be sent in by the same person.

SUGGESTIONS:—Send in your articles as soon as possible. In giving your experience with any particular crop state the kind of weather that prevailed when you began to plow—why you plowed deep or shallow as the case may be—what work you did on the crop before it was harvested and for what reason—what fertilizer and how much you used and why—when you harvested your crop or crops—the gross and net weight or measurement of the same.
