POOR HE FEEDS 100 A DAY

HUNGRY NEVER TURNED AWAY

Daily Makes His Rounds Begging Food.—Daughter Aids in the Work.—Each Guest Helps Himself to Food Without Stint or Hindrance.

One hundred men a day, according to the New York Herald, are being fed free of cost by John Morgan, of New York, a poor working man, and so quietly that not even residents of the neighborhood have known what was going on.

Every evening at seven o'clock scores of hungry men out of employment appear in groups of eight or ten, and for a full hour they come and go, crowding the small room to its full capacity. Every man helps himself to soup and bread and coffee without stint, and he is at liberty to obtain his breakfast and dinner there for a reasonable time until he shall have a chance to get work.

Mr. Morgan has been carrying on the work on a small scale for the last two or three years; but the demands on him have increased so that his accommodations are now taxed to their full capacity. He has no money, and has found co-operation in his work from his daughter, Calvina, who helps him to pay the rent, while he collects food for his proteges as best he can. The expense of renting suitable accommodations is divided between them, and for their provisions they largely depend on the bounty of bakers, butchers and grocers, among whom Mr. Morgan makes his rounds at five o'clock every morning.

"As a rule," said Mr. Morgan, "I manage to get enough in this way; and when we fall short I find I generally have enough ready cash to fill out the deficiency.

"Helping men who are down in their luck has always been a hobby of mine. In my boyhood home in Kentucky I remember my parents always kept a certain room where we would entertain any stranger who happened to be in hard luck for a reasonable time till he could get work. And during that time he was our guest. I suppose I got the habit there."

RUNS AMUCK WITH A HAMMER

Madman Attacks Five Persons in Reading Township Across the Line.—Captured and Chained.

John Basserman, twenty years old, suddenly became a raving maniac and before he was captured had attacked and wounded five persons. The Bassermans live near East Berlin in Adams county. Father and son were driving along the road when the boy suddenly leaped from the conveyance, ran across the country until he came to where a tinsmith was at work. He picked up a hammer and without any warning hit the tinner on the head. Another man at hand was also attacked as were three others. He was finally overcome by two men and chained. Later he was taken to the State Asylum at Harrisburg.

Two of the victims had their skulls crushed and a woman who was threatened by the madman, is seriously ill with nervous prostration.

CONSTITUTION FOR CHINESE

Gradual Development of Form of Government.—Nine More Years of Growth Before Change.

An edict was issued on Sunday, setting forth in detail the stages that will be reached each year in the conversion of the form of Government in China to the foreign system, and assuring the people in the name of the emperor that a constitution will be granted nine years hence. An edict issued last year promised a constitution within a decade.

I heard one say so is half a lie.

"NAUTICAL DAYS" RUN Moving Westward With The Sun Lengthens Time

SLOW SHIP MAKES SHORT DAY

Near the Poles Week Might Elapse Between Sun Up and Sun Down, Going West.—Eastward Sailing the Reverse Would Happen.

When we are reading of the remarkable runs made by the fastest of liners or warships of the Indomitable type, says the Boston Transcript, we should bear in mind that the nautical day is not invariably twenty-four hours long, its length varying with oceans and courses. There is a distinction between the "day's run" and the distance covered in twenty-four hours which landmen may not realize but which record-makers or breakers never forget. For instance we were recently told that the Lusitania "logged the mighty total of 650 knots in twenty-four hours" from Sunday noon to Monday noon. The explanation is that the Lusitania was running westward, with the sun, and the sun could not overtake her on Monday until more than twenty-four hours from Sunday noon had passed. She was thus able to steam thirty knots farther before the sun caught her and "made it eight bells." When a ship is moving west, the faster she goes the longer the day. Eastward bound, a ship runs to meet the sun, and the "day" is shorter than twenty-four hours. A correspondent commenting on this subject writes:

"Since near the poles the meridians come closer together than at our latitude, it is obvious that, if the sea near the pole were open, the Lusitania might, by steaming round on the same parallel at about one hundred miles from the pole, keep the sun due south of her as long as she pleased, prolonging her "day's run" for many days or even weeks, until her supply of fuel was exhausted. It would be a run of many times twenty-four hours, but it would be all within one day."

The moral, is, be careful how you wager on what a ship can do in "a day."

GAVE HER LIFE FOR OTHERS

Telephone Operator Warns a Town of Impending Disaster.—Message Saved Forty Families.

Last week the town of Folsom, New Mexico, devastated by flood. Where the town stood a raging torrent thirteen feet deep and a mile wide rushed with such force that the rails on the railroads were twisted like wire. The pluck and superb courage of a woman saved the lives of the members of forty families, residents of the town. Mrs. S. J. Rooke, telephone operator, received a message from up the stream that a mighty flood was approaching the town and if she valued her life she should flee immediately. Although this magnificent woman held her life in as high esteem as anyone, yet she did not flee to higher ground; instead she warned others even as she had been, and when the waters reached her two score families had been saved. She died with her lips still calling to the few she had not yet been able to reach, with the telephone headgear gripped to her ear, an example of womanly courage and unselfishness.

ENGLISH WORD OFTEN MISUSED

What Does "Lurid" Mean?—Definite Signification Forgotten or Changed.—Peculiar Legal Terms.

The law may designate a man who hammers his mother-in-law's countenance or boisterously inflicts a few irreparable fractures on his neighbor's skull as a "reveller," but general usage is guilty of breaks that are fully as queer. There is the word "lurid." When the average person speaks of lurid language it is meant to convey the idea of language "highly colored." It is not uncommon to read a description of a fire and find mention of the "lurid flames."

"Lurid," as we are informed by reliable lexicographers, is derived from the Latin, "luridus," which means pale, or wan. The English definition is "gloomy," dismal, having the color of a tempestuous sky; in botany, of a dingy brown." Yet a large part of the population goes on complacently under the impression that "lurid" is synonymous with the "gorgeousness of an Italian sunset."

PARCEL POST AND POSTAL BANK Speedy and Widely Effective Measure For Bettering Conditions

FOOLISH OPPOSITION PREVENTS ENACTMENT

Experience in England Shows Improved Business Followed In Private Savings Banks

THEIR CAPITAL WAS INCREASED BY TEN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

No One Person Allowed to Deposit More Than $500 in One Year.—Interest to Be No More Than Two Per Cent.—Parcel Post Just as Desirable.—We Pay a Higher Price for a More Limited Service Than In Any Other of Thirty-Three Countries.—Particular Benefit, Turning Tide of Business From City Back to Country and Aiding Small Enterprises.

Among the many plans suggested of late for the bettering of conditions in farm and village life none promises to be more speedily or widely effective than the proposed measure to increase the efficiency of the postal service by extending the present parcel post system, installing a special parcel post on rural routes and establishing a postal savings bank in connection with every rural delivery route and every office having a money order department, writes the editor of the Craftsman. That this measure, so strongly urged upon Congress by Postmaster-General Meyer during the past session, will be passed either during the next session or in the course of the coming Administration is practically a certainty now, for not only has the wide publicity given it won cordial support from all parts of the country, but it has been formally endorsed in the platforms of both great parties.

The benefits that would accrue from such a measure are obvious, both from a theoretical point of view and from the results of actual experience in other countries, yet hitherto the opposition of the interests arrayed against it has been strong enough to prevent its enactment. This opposition, which comes chiefly from private savings institutions, is precisely the same as that encountered in England during the fifty years that elapsed between the first suggestion of postal savings banks and their actual establishment, but there, as in all the other countries where the plan has been tried, the postal savings bank, far from injuring the business of private savings institutions, has greatly increased it because of the opportunity given to the great mass of the people to cultivate habits of thrift and economy from very small beginnings. In England the private savings banks increased their capital by more than ten millions of dollars during the first fifteen years that followed the establishment of postal savings institutions, and the statistics show that in all of the eighteen countries

BETTERING FARM CONDITIONS

Roosevelt's Scheme Meets With General Approval.—President Selected For Commission.

Professor L. H. Bailey head of the New York College of Agriculture, who at first declined to become a member of the commission appointed by President Roosevelt for the betterment of farm conditions and farmers has advised the President that he will accept the presidency of that body. He has done so at the urgent insistence of the President. President Roosevelt has sent to Washington a long list of letters he has received from parties throughout the country with reference to his farm commission. They are from farmers, educators in agricultural colleges, agricultural writers and the like. The letters as a whole view improvement of the country schools as of first importance, then good roads, betterment of conditions for women on the farm and improvement of sanitation, extension of opportunities for reading and improvement of moral conditions in the country in the order named as essentials.

Seven and A Half Tons of Eggs Seized

Seven and one-half tons of eggs, every one of which is alleged by the United States Government pure food inspectors to be absolutely bad, have been held at a Detroit cold storage warehouse since July 26, pending an investigation as to what use it was intended to make of them. It is claimed that the eggs were gathered in an already spoiled condition in the vicinity of Cincinnati, and that they were shipped to Detroit to be used in the manufacture of fancy cookies and crackers.

TO FIGHT COCAINE CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

Will Not Allow Drug to Go Through the Mails

EVIL EFFECT ON HUMAN WILL

It is the Most Difficult Habit to Break and Easiest to Acquire.—Use Among Southern Negroes Causes Government Action.

Baltimore is now waging a war against the cocaine sellers. All through the South this insidious drug has gotten such a hold on certain classes of people that the only way to counteract or hold in check the use of this otherwise valuable alkali is to limit its sale. It is notable, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, that the Postoffice Department has gone to the extreme length of refusing to transport cocaine or any of its compounds through the mails.

It may be said that the Department is going to have a great deal of difficulty in executing its orders. The demand for cocaine has been growing of late and the growth is largely in directions which ought to be suppressed. As a local anesthetic it has great value and seems to be increasing its scope to major operations, but the unpleasant fact is that it is being used as a drug by people who formerly used opium or whiskey, and the demand is so great that authorities are taking steps to stop its distribution except under medical supervision.

Cocaine is an alkali derived from the leaves of the cocoa plant. In mild doses it has a pleasing and soothing effect on the nerves, but always with a bad reaction. It is an insidious drug because it abolishes pain so easily, and the partaker does not really understand the terrible results to his own system. To escape from pain many persons will pay any price, but it is a fact that once fastened upon the individual the cocaine habit is more difficult to shake off than that of any other drug-poison. In the South, where prohibition has made such strides, the use of cocaine is increasing. Among the Negroes it is more esteemed than the vile liquor they used to get.

LEWIS MEN ARE ENTHUSIASTIC

County Democrats Join to Make a Great Fight to Defeat "Promising" Pearre for Congress.

On Saturday the Democratic County Committee met in Frederick and organized for the fight that is now on between Lewis and Pearre for Congress. Mr. Lewis attended the meeting and urged all the Democrats to begin the fight with vigor and continue it until election day. Arrangements were made for the organization of campaign clubs all over the county. It was the sense of the meeting that voters without regard to party are tired of their present representative and that now is the time to win. Mr. Lewis has been enthusiastically greeted wherever he has gone and he "looks good" to his party.

In Emmitsburg there has been much said that would not sound nice to Mr. Pearre's ears, and it is thought that the character of the Democratic candidate will turn some of this talk into votes. Heretofore the candidates opposed to Mr. Pearre have not carried sufficient weight to materially hurt the Republican vote.

EXPERTS AND NEW WHEAT STORY

Doubt That It Is a New Variety and Government Warns Farmers Against Believing Too Much.

Dr. B. T. Galloway, chief of the Bureau of Plant Industries, has written a letter to the Saturday Evening Post, which first published the story of the marvelous Alaska wheat which yields 222 bushels to the acre, warning the farmers against accepting too readily the reports of enormous yields of wheat until the Department has made an investigation. The grain in question is a composit that is the Alaska variety so grows that the head of the stalk consists of a number of smaller heads clustered together. The sample heads received by the Department are large and healthy looking. No milling test has been made but it is low in protein which means that it is not a high-class wheat for milling purposes. It is a white, rather soft wheat, the kernels being considerably above the average wheat in size.

Popular Among All Classes

CAREER OF J. D. LEWIS

Started to Work in Mines When Nine Years Old

ADVANCED BY HIS OWN EFFORTS

His Keen Insight Into Affairs and Incidents in Illustration.—Wide Experience Eminently Fits Him for Position To Which he Aspires.

The new candidate for Congress from this district seems to combine in his person just the qualifications that fit him for the position to which he aspires, and furthermore to compete with Pearre for that honor. The Democrats think they have picked a winner and it is beyond a doubt that he will draw not a few votes from the Republican party.

David J. Lewis, the man in question, was born, says the Frederick Citizen, of Welsh parents in Clearfield county, Pa., in 1869, and there began digging coal in his ninth year with his father, the family being poor and in need of every support. He came to Maryland and continued the occupation of mining, and began a series of studies at night under the Reverend John Nott, of Mount Savage, Allegany county, acquiring a good education in this manner. He took up the study of law for four years under the direction of the Honorable Benjamin A. Richmond, while still mining, and was admitted to the bar of Allegany county in 1892. He was later married to Miss Florida Bohn, daughter of William Bohn and his still surviving widow, Mrs. Mary Bohn, an old German family of Cumberland.

In 1901 Mr. Lewis was elected to the Maryland Senate, where he served during the sessions of 1902 and 1904. In addition to the general legislation of both sessions, in the formulation and enactment of which he took a prominent part, he drafted and with the aid of the county delegation had passed the present mining legislation of Allegany and Garrett counties. In the sessions of 1902 and 1904 he led the debate for the passage of the Telegraphers' eight hour bill, since enacted into a law, for the promotion of safe transportation. In the interest of the taxpayers he secured the passage of the present laws effectively limiting the salaries of

OBJECT TO TECHNICAL APPEALS

American Bar Association Adopts Law To Prevent Unnecessary Delays in Litigations

The American Bar Association adopted a report of the special committee appointed a year ago to suggest remedies and formulate proposed laws to prevent delays and unnecessary cost in litigation. This action puts the body on record as favoring the restriction of appeals by the higher courts to cases where actual prejudice is shown, rather than on purely technical grounds. The report contained a bill to be presented to Congress making proposed amendments to several sections of the act regulating judicial procedure in the courts of the United States. They covered appeals both in civil and criminal cases.

Truly the poor man may be happy, but we are still ready to share the miseries of the rich.

IS A THEOCRATIC CANDIDATE

New Party in Texas.—God is With Him and He Oppose Prohibition.—Expects to Win Election.

A man without a party has come forward as a candidate for the governorship of Texas. He is Scuddy Richardson, who has worked for various Southern newspapers. In his announcement he says: "With the help of God, I intend to be Governor. I enter the race seemingly handicapped, cut off from the great parties that have ruled the land, but I shall win, as God is with me, and I stand for what is right. It is stated that he is opposed to prohibition."

JOY IN SUFFERING.

Hebrews 12:2 Who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame.

When we study the life of our Saviour as it is set before us in the four Gospels, one of the things that strikes us is the fact that he is continually moving forward to the cross. The cross haunted him from childhood; its dark shadow fell upon his cradle at Bethlehem. Joseph and Mary had to take him to Egypt to escape the murderous wrath of Herod. In Raphael's Madonna della Sedia we see also the cross. Without the cross that beautiful picture would not be complete; Christ and the cross are inseparable. It is sometimes said that Jesus did not know how his life was going to end until he drew near to the end. Nothing could be farther from the truth than that. Time and time again Jesus utters expressions which clearly indicate that he knows that he is moving forward to the cross. The multitudes did not understand what he meant, but we understand now that he said these things signifying by what manner of death he should die.

Furthermore, it is in the cross that Jesus Christ found true joy. On that never-to-be forgotten night when he and his disciples were gathered together in that "upper room" in Jerusalem he talked to them about his joy. Imagine, if you can, the scene: Judas has gone out from them, and in another part of the city he is selling the life of his Lord into the power of the enemy. Jesus has told his eleven remaining disciples that the time has come for him to be taken away from them. This knowledge is too much for them and immediately sorrow fills their hearts. The room is filled with gloom. And yet it was in the midst of this gloom that Jesus lifted up his voice and talked to them about his joy. "These things," he says, "have I spoken to you, that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be made full." It were strange indeed for Jesus to use such words as these if he did not feel any joy at all. I believe that in the midst of his greatest sufferings he felt also joy, and this joy came to him from consciousness that he was doing his Father's will, and the doing of that will bringing of salvation to the human race.

We have seen that the way of Christ is the way of the cross. It is the way not only for him, but for all his followers also. His experience was not to be exceptional, but it was to be the established, Christ never attempted to conceal from his followers the fact that they would suffer persecution. When he was sending out the twelve to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom, he lifted up his voice and said: "Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves." So he spoke at first, and so he spoke until the end. And what he said unto those first disciples he says unto all. He offers no compromises; if we would be followers of him we must accept this the bearing of a cross. And as his own terms found joy in the cross, so, too, may we.

And his joy came to him from the consciousness of doing his Father's will, so to those who follow in his footsteps will come the same consciousness, and therefore the same joy. The shame, the stigma, the disgrace that was attached to death on a cross meant nothing to the Master when he knew he was doing his Father's will. So may it be with the Christian.

There are many examples in Christian history that go to prove that true joy is to be found in the way of the cross. Take, for example, St. Paul. In the sixth chapter of the Book of the Acts we read that the Lord appeared unto Ananias and said: "Ananias, go and tell Saul of Tarsus how great things he must suffer for my sake." And the great apostle was not found wanting. As he goes from Jerusalem to Antioch, and from Antioch to Ephesus, to Greece, and from Greece to Rome, the song that is ever breaking from his lips is a song of joy; "I have been crucified with Christ; and it is no longer I that live, but Christ within me and that life which I now live, I live in faith, the faith which is in the son of God who loves me and gave himself up for me." St. Paul entered into fellowship with the Master in suffering, and in that suffering, found his highest joy.

If you want to know the mind of St. Paul read the third chapter of the Epistle to the Philippians. After enumerating his social advantages, his educational advantages, his religious privileges, after enumerating all the things that the world speaks of as the greatest and best things in life, then it is that he stops and says: "But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ; yes, doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but refuse that I may gain Christ and know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death." And so you see, my brethren, that there is something deeper than merely being a Christian; there is something deeper than living an ordinary Christian life,—it is to enter into fellowship with Christ in suffering, to weep for him, to be lonely for his sake, to toil for him, to sacrifice for him, to give up life for him, to experience a little, oh just a very, very little of the deep meaning of Calvary. That is Christianity; that is life, life abounding and life abiding.

It is the Christian hero who goes to his death rejoicing.

Some of the remaining missionaries of the Boxer Rebellion tell us that when the great riot passed and they stood in the wrecks of their homes, friends and loved ones torn from them and killed, and with blood streaming down their cheeks, they could hardly tell whether they were in heaven or on earth, so great was the joy that flooded their hearts at the consciousness of suffering for the Master's sake. Oh, what a spiritual environment is that in which we live! It is made up of the host of the redeemed of all the ages. "Wherefore, seeking we also are encompassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the same, and is set down at the right hand of God." Amen.

An effort has been made to have the next annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic meet in Washington. The explanation of the reason for the sudden withdrawal of the proceedings to annul the marriage of Miss Helen Maloney, daughter of Martin Maloney, of Philadelphia, to Arthur Herbert Osborne, of New York, says that the Catholic Church refuses to sanction the annulment or permit the remarriage of Miss Maloney to Samuel Clarkson, with whom she eloped after her marriage to Osborne. Martin Maloney holds highest honors in the Church of Rome and is personally known to the Pope and many members of the College of Cardinals, but even his influence there and his tremendous wealth could not swerve the church from its adherence to the rigid rules regarding marriage and divorce.

MR. KERN'S CONCEPTION.

Mr. Kern's article in last week's Collier, entitled "My Conception of The Vice-Presidency," is an explicit and well-timed statement of the relation which the vice-executive should bear to an administration and to the people.

The Democratic nominee for the second place on the ticket remarks that "it has been a rather flippant jest for many decades that the vice-presidency has ceased to be a position of influence and high honor."

Mr. Kern's conception of the duties and the position of the vice-president is a sound one and will no doubt receive the sanction of a great number of people who believe that his interpretation is correct and who also believe with him that men elected to fill the positions of President and Vice-President should realize that they must govern, not according to personal prejudice, but in the manner prescribed by law.

THE NEW EMANCIPATION.

Some forty years ago the negro was emancipated from physical slavery under circumstances that were tragic in the extreme, and to-day, according to one of their number—a preacher and presumably a leader of the race, the Rev. S. D. Corrothers—there is a movement to be inaugurated that will free the man of color from a voluntary bondage under which he placed himself coincident with the close of the Civil War.

manifested in him by those dwelling North of the Mason-Dixon line—expressed chiefly by outward show and florid political speeches—was genuine, and that it proceeded solely from a desire to befriend a "down-trodden race."

In a sermon delivered the other day in Washington, Rev. Corrothers, quoting Booker T. Washington, very pointedly remarked:

"Is there any reason why the negroes in the South should continue to oppose the Southern white man and his politics? Is not this the source of nearly all the trouble?"

Continuing in his own words the preacher further explained the cause of this trouble as follows:

"Unconsciously we seem to have gotten the idea into our blood and bone that we are only acting in a manly way when we oppose the Southern white men with our votes. In some way, by some method, we must bring the race to the point where it will cease to feel that the only way for it to succeed is to oppose everything suggested by the Southern white man. This I consider one of our real problems."

"I believe there are thousands of white Democrats in North Carolina who are 50 per cent. better friends to the negro than Gov. Russell. I see no necessity in continuing to follow Gov. Russell, who has no power to protect; or, if he has the power, does not exert it, rather than these other white men who can protect us if we cease continually and forever to oppose them."

"If we cease continually and forever to oppose them"—that is the point exactly. Opposition and unfaithfulness to those who know the negro better than the people of any other section of the country, and who befriend and support and care for the negro just as long as and whenever he proves himself worthy of it—this is what has been unceasingly preached to him and encouraged by those who either do not and cannot understand him or who make capital for themselves by holding out to the negro the false hope of "social equality" between the races and political preferment—that which can never be and that which the very ones who promise it know full well would never be tolerated.

When the negro begins to heed the teaching of men like Corrothers, who would lead his followers out of the mire of mistaken ideas; when he realizes, as he inevitably must, that the people of the South are the only people who really know his nature, his characteristics, his temperament and his limitations, and that they are ready to give the education and employment best suited to his interests; when it becomes his ambition to live a sober, energetic, law-abiding, and decent life—then will the negro be aided and uplifted and befriended by the very people whom he has been taught (fortunately without entire success) to hate and despise.

ENOUGH LAW—MORE EDUCATION.

No doubt many men who read about and listen to criticisms aimed at overrating the importance of wealth-getting and underrating men and methods are so absorbed themselves in the process of accumulating fortunes that they pay little heed to the subject. And yet these are the very ones who, when they are suddenly aroused to a realization of the bad political and other conditions that often exist, condemn everybody in power, everything in general, and then deplore the lack of legal statutes which they think will bring reform.

Just about a month ago Lieut. Gov. Chanler, of New York, touched on this subject in a speech in which he said:

"I know there is a widespread belief among the poor that if a man has money enough the law can't touch him. This is the most serious evil of our times, for it is a temptation for the youth of the land to get rich quick, no matter how. This breeds anarchy and makes the poor man think he must get rich to enjoy the protection of the law."

As a cure for this evil Mr. Chanler did not suggest the making of more laws, but pointed to the need of more religion and education to uphold the laws we already have. To talk about bad men in politics who buy their way to positions, Mr. Chanler intimated, was foolishness, for the people themselves are the only ones to blame as they elect them and are therefore indirectly responsible for their acts.

More religion and more education are undoubtedly needed, but in addition to this there is also a need for greater interest in public affairs on the part of the better element among the people—men who do not live on the results of graft or political spoils. The place to begin to show this interest and to exert an influence for good is at the caucus and the primary. Failure to do this is just what results in the formation of political rings which when once formed are hard to break.

Every unprincipled ward politician, every questionable character who wields a power for evil in any political ring, holds his place by reason of the fact that the decent element has failed to do its part; and as soon as the change takes place and these men come forward and assume the responsibility that it is their duty as citizens to assume, and use their influence in educating others up to the point of believing that right principle, and integrity, and decency and justice have no commercial value, there will be no further cause for clamoring against monied power which it has been said the law cannot touch, and little need for condemning men who hold political positions.

RAISE FUNDS FOR LIGHTS.

Although no official announcement has been made of it up to this time, the people of Emmitsburg are anxiously awaiting the Festival to be held for the purpose of raising funds to properly light the town. A great deal of interest is being manifested and a great deal of preliminary work is being done by the ladies, the men, and their sub-committees in preparation for the big event which will occur on the evenings of September 17, 18, and 19. There is no doubt whatever as to the success of this undertaking, for lights are badly needed. The people know this only too well, and they are already showing their public interest and their loyalty by letting it be known that they will liberally patronize this festival in the interest of such a worthy object.

It is proposed to adopt a kind of light that will be bright and effective, one that will give satisfaction under all conditions, and to place these lights at the most important points, so that they will shed a brilliant glow from one end of the town to the other.

Much of the unjust criticism of the trial light will no doubt shortly be overcome and in this connection it might be said that unfamiliarity with new mechanism is bound to cause trouble and delay at the outset and that it is only reasonable to expect it. Notwithstanding it has been in position for some time the real test of this new light has only just begun, and it may be counted on that no further expense will be incurred unless it proves thoroughly satisfactory.

But whether it be this or some other make, new lights are needed and new lights are promised the citizens of the town, and in order to make it possible to get them there is but one thing for all the people of Emmitsburg to do, and that is to lend their aid, their encouragement and their patronage to the festival which will soon be held.

MAYBE it hasn't occurred to those United States food inspectors who are said to be holding up seven tons of bad eggs in Detroit—pending an investigation as to what use it was intended to make of them—that the theatrical season will soon open in the West.

YOUR duty lies nearest at hand.

OUR WONDERFUL LANGUAGE.

Eight rowers stood up in a row, The boat was all ready to go, One said he would show them all how— The rowers broke up in a row. The captain said: "Come, let us row," And silenced the one that said "No." And then from the stern to the bow The rowers went on with their row. A man tried to speak, and he spoke: "I'd treasure to seek, and I soked; The bold robbers crept And robbed as I slept— I'd vengeance to wreak, and I wrote. "They wanted to steal, and they stole; One thought he should squeal, so he squealed. He told me the facts Concerning their acts— What he could reveal he revolved. "I dared them to fight, and they fought; My dog tried to bite, and it bough; It ran them away— This tale of the fray I wanted to write, so I wrought. "Hence, thus you may see, as I saw, That what I would be I have had; The robbers cried: 'Peace! Our robbing shall cease If you will agree.' I agraw. "I've wanted to sing, so I've sung A tribute to our mother tongue Which runs in such ways— The tribute of praise I wanted to bring I have brung."

A stranger sat under a bough And though it was pleasant enough Until with a cough came a cough Whose hide was a beautiful bough. The stranger leaped up on the bough, And cried for the cow to go through To where there was hay in a mough— The cow ambled on, with a 'Mough.' —W. D. NESBIT, in Chicago Evening Post.

"Mark Twain," said a Chicagoan, "crossed the Atlantic with me on the Minneapolis, and his conversation made the captain's table very gay. 'The ladies, continually encircled the humorist, and the last night on board he proposed a toast in their honor. 'The ladies,' he said, raising his glass and bowing. 'The ladies—second only to the press in the dissemination of news.'" —Utica Observer.

What He Knows. "Does he know much?" "Well, he not only knows that he doesn't know much, but he knows enough to keep others from knowing it." —Exchange.

He Will Remedy It. "They say his wife has money." "Well, that isn't his fault. They've been married only a short time." —London Opinion. "Our business is all run down." "What shall we do?" "I guess we'd better wind it up." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

CURRENT COMMENT AND VARIOUS OPINIONS

Discussion of Affairs in General from Leading Journals of The Country.

Idle Currency. (From the Indianapolis Star)

One of the New York bank circulars calls attention to the plethora of idle currency lying in bank vaults throughout the country, and particularly in New York, and its effect upon stock market operations. While not as immediately disastrous as the sharp currency famine of last autumn, this redundancy of money is, in its way, almost as dangerous. This money is not wealth; it is not capital. Composed of demand notes issued by banks, it adds no more to the real wealth of the nation than would a flood of farm mortgages. Existing thus in excess of the legitimate demands of industry and commerce, it serves no better purpose than a temptation to engage in speculation or in enterprise of more than doubtful utility. Herein is found the explanation of the very considerable rise in stocks, only partially justified by improved conditions in the railroad and industrial situation. The return of the stock market to a price level not much below the highest point of last year does not represent a rise in earning power of the railroads and great industrial corporations, but rather a rapid decline in the earning power of money mixed with optimism for the future.

Why Men Will Vote for Taft or Bryan. (From Topics of the Day, in Providence Journal)

Of course, the respective partisans want to see Taft or Bryan elected; that's all. They will mark their ballots for one or the other candidate, according to deeply rooted political preferences, which do not appear on the surface in all cases. The reasoning that will seem to dictate stalwart party action is not the less interesting, since it is so engagingly varied. For instance, Republicans are going to vote for Mr. Taft because—

- (1) He will pursue the Roosevelt policies;
(2) He will not pursue the Roosevelt policies;
(3) He is sound on the tariff, (a) the standpatters are for him, (b) the revisionists are for him;
(4) He believes in the sufficiency of the courts;
(5) He holds that modifications in judicial procedure might be desirable;
(6) Bryan is a radical;
(7) Taft is not a reactionary;
(8) He is a man of judicial temper and experience;
(9) His temper and experience will not be employed to check popular enthusiasm for progressive measures;
(10) He is a friend of labor;
(11) He is a friend of capital;
(12) He stood by the President in the Brownsville matter;
(13) He had nothing to do with the Brownsville matter;
(14) He triumphed over the allies;
(15) The allies are all his supporters;
(16) He is all for Hughes;
(17) He will not interfere in local politics;
(18) He is the protege of Roosevelt;
(19) He is standing alone;
(20) His election will insure prosperity;
(21) There will be prosperity, anyway.

These are not all the reasons why Republicans will vote for Taft. But perhaps they constitute a fairly representative assortment of samples. As for the Democrats, they are going to vote for Bryan because—

- (1) His election will be a rebuke to Rooseveltism;
(2) He will out-Roosevelt Roosevelt;
(3) He has grown conservative;
(4) He has 'nt;
(5) He is the free choice of the Democratic party;
(6) The party has got to swallow him;
(7) He represents Democratic principles;
(8) The principles will be able to survive his incumbency;
(9) After two defeats he deserves an election;
(10) To elect him is the only way to get rid of him;
(11) He wants the people to rule;
(12) The people need Bryan-rule;
(13) He is against the bosses;
(14) He is a bully boss;
(15) If elected, he will be powerless without Congress;
(16) If elected, he will throw Congress;
(17) Taft will not carry out the Roosevelt policies;
(18) Bryan will carry out the Roosevelt policies;
(19) Taft will;
(20) Bryan won't.

Mr. Bryan's Speech. (From the Philadelphia Record)

"There will be no effective answer to Mr. Bryan's speech, defending the position of the Democratic party on the tariff issue. There can be none. "It is as merciless in its exposure of the inequity and hypocrisy of the tariff schedules as enacted and defended by the Republican party as it is clear and concise in pointing out the means of remedy.

"No editorial summary of the speech is here attempted. The Record desires to afford no man—not even the busiest—an excuse for failure to read the speech in full. It comes home to every person in every household of the republic. The tariff issue underlies and embodies all the other issues that divide the parties. It is every man's and every woman's personal affair. "If the Record had control of Mr. Bryan and his campaigning this tariff utterance should be the beginning and the ending of his canvass before the people. No more important matter can engage the popular thought; no less or less relevant controversy should be thrust forward to divert the attention of the mass from the single great issue to be determined in November."

Time for Tariff Revision. (From the New York Evening Post.)

Even Representative Seno E. Payne, the most bigoted "stand-patter" alive (unless we except Speaker Cannon), admits that "the time has come" for revision of the tariff. Last winter he thought it unwise to attempt revision "on the heels of a panic and in the course of a Presidential election," but he can see no reason for postponing action after March 4; and, as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, he has "now at work a force of experts" who will, he believes, "be able to lay before the committee all the information necessary." But in his speech yesterday accepting a renomination he reiterated his belief that "the tariff must be revised by the friends of the American workmen. There is no safety in any other way. Rates must be raised where it is necessary and reduced where they are higher than necessary." Twaddle of this kind deserves serious comment. The tariff was never framed with the interests of the American workman in view. The manufacturer who could contribute to the campaign funds was the only man whose desires were considered. No doubt an effort will be made to raise the rates on certain articles; some beneficiaries of the tariff will never be content. But the essential thing, after all, is that the question of revision shall fairly come up for discussion. There are many dark places in the Tariff law which need the light; but the Republicans, with their fine brute majority, have hitherto choked off every one who has ventured to mention the subject.

Woman and Her Figure. (From the Washington Herald.)

We rather shudder to read that woman—bless her, anyhow—will cultivate the "broomstick figure," so-called, during the forthcoming winter. We suppose this is the natural result of the late sheath gown agitation; but it is, we fear, something we shall all regret, nevertheless.

We find nothing to warrant us in the belief that a "broomstick figure" was ever in this world accepted as a model of beauty. Certainly, the earlier Grecian and Italian sculptors furnished no evidence leading us to think they entertained such ideas. On the contrary, everything they left us from which we may reasonably draw conclusions tends to the other theory. And that which is true of the sculptors is equally true of the painters. Surely the Venus de Milo suggests nothing angular or of a "broomstick" persuasion; and we defy the most searching investigator to find a "broomstick" woman anywhere displayed in Michael Angelo's work. Helen of Troy, who probably flourished about the time the Venus de Milo was fashioned from cold marble, must have been a graceful, dimpled, undulating beauty; and this seems to have been the accepted standard on down through Michael Angelo's day until almost, if not quite, this good year of our Lord 1908! Of course, other authorities might be cited; but what's the use? They all tell the same story!

Besides, we don't think the "broomstick figure" is calculated to give all the women a square deal. Those who are naturally blessed—if it may be called a blessing—with figures of this style will have little to make them immediately melancholy, to be sure. But we fail utterly to see how the rounded and shapely contingent is going to prescribe proportions without excessive discomfort, to say the least of it. A curve shoved out of place here is sure to bulge yonder. The plump girls will inevitably find themselves face to face with a physical problem sure to tax them to the limit! On the whole, we feel sure the forthcoming "broomstick figure" will soon be found to be a grand mistake. There is, so far as we are able to see, nothing attractive about it from any point of view. Even those women who incline to excessive thinness will grow tired of it all too early in the game, we fancy, and advocate a return to the good old fashions, the which they understand all too well the how to handle! Let us frown down this "broomstick" business. It is a delusion and a snare!

HEALTH BULLETIN FOR JULY

Fourth of July Fatalities Decreased.—Warning Concerning Increase in Typhoid Cases.

The usual cause of death after a fourth-of-July accident is tetanus, commonly called lockjaw. Lockjaw is due to a specific germ of microscopic size, discovered by Nicolaier in 1885, and cultivated artificially by Kitasato of Japan in 1889. It might be of interest to mention in this connection that Kitasato, the eminent Japanese sanitarian and bacteriologist, is one of the delegates to the International Congress on Tuberculosis, to be held in Washington, D. C., September 21st to October 12th.

In Baltimore City, on July 4, 1904, there were 35 accidents; on July 4, 1905, there were but 6 persons injured. In 1907 there was one case of fourth-of-July tetanus or lockjaw in Baltimore City. It resulted fatally. In 1908, in Baltimore City, there was one fourth-of-July accident, and not a single case of lockjaw. In the State proper, that is, exclusive of Baltimore City, not a death from fourth-of-July lockjaw was reported in either 1907 or 1908. This decrease in the number of fourth-of-July casualties and fatalities is greatly due to a wide dissemination of useful knowledge through the medium of the medical and lay journals, and last but by no means least, the newspapers. The newspaper has justly been styled a "great educator," notwithstanding the fact that its pages contain much that could be omitted without detriment to itself or to its readers. However, there is scarcely a reform, political or social, that is not thoroughly aired in the newspaper; and "free speech and free press" are still the inalienable rights of every citizen of the Old Line State. Concerning the infectious and communicable diseases, with the glaring exception of typhoid fever, the normal low level for June remains practically constant for the month of July. Typhoid fever, one of the gravest of transmissible diseases, shows a very decided and alarming increase. The number of deaths from typhoid fever in the month of July has increased 120 per cent.; the number of cases reported has reached 215, an increase of 200 per cent. over and above the returns for June. This marked rise in typhoid mortality and morbidity is probably due to two causes:—

First:—The prolonged drought of the present summer.

Second:—The exceptionally high mean temperature.

The prolonged drought has kept the ground, or subsoil-water at an unusually low level, which increases greatly the chances of infection of wells and springs and the continued high temperature is favorable for the growth of the typhoid bacillus, which is practically always present in the soil, "the great repository of bacterial life."

During the typhoid season, if any person has reason to believe that a well, spring, or other source of drinking-water supply is polluted, he should immediately communicate the facts in the case to the local health officer or to his family physician who knows the name and address of the local health officer, and will at once seek his advice and cooperation. The local health officer will make a sanitary survey of the suspicious water-supply, and refer the results of his investigations to the State Board of Health, requesting a water-box and sterile bottles for bacteriological examination, or collection blank and directions for chemical analysis. While the investigations are being made, it compelled to use the suspected water, it can be rendered safe by boiling, or by artificial purification, that is, filtration; but the filter must be kept clean and sweet.

Tuberculosis.—Number of deaths reported 91, as compared with 100 in June, 73 in May, and 105 in April. Of the 91 deaths, 59, or 65 per cent. occurred in white persons; the remainder, 32 deaths, or 35 per cent. occurred in colored persons. Five deaths occurred in institutions. The youngest decedents were aged, respectively, 4 months, 7 days; 4 months, 25 days; 7 months, 8 months, and 9 months. Two of these infants were white females, and two were white males.

Probably the most effective solar engine yet devised is the invention of a Philadelphian, who uses the heat obtained from the sun's rays to vaporize either, which boils at a lower temperature than water, and may be used over and over again.

CURRENT COMMENT

Views of State Editors on Topics of The Times

Never Invited Him

(From the Middletown Valley Register)

Two farmers were not long since discussing their local paper. One thought it had too many advertisements in it. The other replied: "In my opinion the advertisements are far from being the least valuable part of it. I look them over carefully and save at least five times the cost of the paper each week through the business advantages I get from them." Said the other: "I believe you are right—I know that they pay me well and rather think it is not good taste to find fault with the advertisements after all." Those men have the right idea of the matter. It pays any man with a family to take a good local paper for the sake of the advertisements if nothing more. And if business men fail to give farmers a chance to read advertisements in the local paper, they are blind to their own interests, to say the least of it. "You never trade with me," said a business man to a prosperous farmer. "You have never invited me to your place of business and I never go where I am not invited; I might not be welcome," was his reply.

Governor Crothers.

(Democratic Advocate, Westminster)

It has not been quite eight months since Austin L. Crothers was inaugurated Governor of Maryland, but it has been sufficient time to show that the people of the State made no mistake in electing him to that high office.

From the day upon which he entered on the duties of his office he has busied himself in getting a fair and full understanding of the complex features of our state government just such an understanding as would enable him to know, somewhat in detail, the work of each of the departments.

He is a man of broad comprehension, a man of affairs, and full of industry, working himself and wanting every other official of the state, high and low, to be working also. And this is right. The people of the state will commend the Governor for setting so good an example. He has been for some time, and is now, engaged in working out such reforms in the state government as he thinks will be beneficial. These relate more to detail than to general management. The state in the past has been well managed, but the Governor is doing what every careful and successful business man does, that is looking around to see if some improvement cannot be made.

Our Candidate For Congress.

(Sentinel, Dem., Rockville.)

On Thursday of last week the Democrats of the Sixth District nominated Hon. David J. Lewis, of Cumberland, as their candidate for Congress, to oppose the present incumbent, Hon. George A. Pearre. Mr. Lewis is entitled to the unqualified support of the Democrats of the District, both on account of his record as a party man and on account of his qualifications for the position to which he aspires. His popularity and standing in his own community is attested by his election to the Maryland Senate some years ago in a strong Republican county, and his record in the Senate gave evidence of ability and courage in public affairs, and of that kind of industry and honesty which insures for the people efficient service in the councils of the republic.

The Sixth District has come to be regarded as hopelessly Republican, but we are persuaded that with the proper appeal Democratic victory is possible now as it has been possible heretofore. The issues of the campaign ought to be secure for the Democratic party the warm support of the masses of our people and we are sure that Mr. Lewis will present them in a convincing way to the voters of the district.

The Sentinel will exert every influence within its reach to secure for him the united support of the voters of Montgomery county, and similar exertions in the other counties of the district will surely redeem it from the bossism which has dominated it for so many years.

SHOT IN LEG WHILE CAMPING

Brother Eleven Years Old Extracts Ball.—Ticket Agent Sweigert's Son Wounded by Accident

Yesterday morning Fry Sweigert, thirteen year old son of Mr. Webster Sweigert, ticket agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Bruceville, was shot accidentally in the leg by a thirty-two calibre revolver. The boy was a member of a camping party and was in a tent at the time of the accident. The revolver was lying on a cot and when the young man sat on the edge of the cot it fell to the ground and was discharged. Warfield Sweigert, eleven years old, brother of the lad who was shot, extracted the ball with a pen knife. If blood poisoning does not set in the young man will soon be none the worse of the accident.

Surprised By His Friends.

On Monday evening a number of Emmitsburg's young people gathered and made their way to "Brook Dale," the home of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Sebald near town, to tender a surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Sebald's son, Mr. Raymond Sebald. The latter gentleman, totally unaware of the proceeding, was in town when the guests arrived. It was designed to bring him to his home without divulging to him what was going on. By very good management Mr. Walters induced Mr. Sebald to take a ride and drove him to his home, where he was completely taken by surprise. Different games were started by some of the company while others engaged in conversation. At midnight the most ample supply of delicious refreshments were served. After this the former amusements were resumed and it was nearing morning when expressing their thanks for the enjoyable time they had spent, the guests said, "Good Night."

The guests were: The Misses Fannie Hoke, Jeanette Topper, Grace Lansinger, Pearl Topper, Valerie Welty, Nellie and Anna Felix, Agnes Reilly, Blanche Dukehart, Olivia Hardy; Messrs. Smith, Charles Reilly, Robert and Joseph Topper, James Arnold, Cecil Rotering, Ernest Walters, Robert and Ward Kerrigan.

Efficient Police Work On Circus Day.

Last Friday Officer Daywalt and his deputies, Messrs. McGreevy and Burdner, kept excellent order notwithstanding the large crowd that was attracted to town by the circus. Two pickpockets were pulled in the morning and were given a hearing by Squire Stokes. On account of the inability of the man upon whose complaint they were arrested to furnish the necessary bond to appear against them they were released after the circus management paid the cost of their hearing. Later in the day Wastler, who was mixed up in the little riot of several weeks ago, after some argument, paid his fine of five dollars. One of the men previously held on the charge of being a pickpocket after being pretty badly bruised up by some one connected with the circus, hung around town until he landed in the coop where he spent the night.

RIPE FOR BASEBALL LEAGUE

Business Men and Fans Planning to Unite Neighboring Towns.—Seven Places Mentioned.

There is talk of a baseball league being circulated among the business men and fans of this place. The idea as far as it has been already formulated is to unite the neighboring towns in a compact whereby the lovers of the national game will be given the opportunity during the next season to witness games between Emmitsburg and others who may join the league according to a regular prearranged schedule. The sport will be purely amateur and there is no idea of making money out of the scheme, but only to put it on a businesslike basis whereby the expenses incident to such a schedule will be met.

Fairfield, Thurmont, Rocky Ridge, Taneytown, Littlestown, Gettysburg, and Emmitsburg all have teams that are pretty equally matched and all that would be necessary for the formation of such a league would be the assurance of the cooperation on the part of the several managements and the support of the public at the regular games. The first can be easily arrived at if those having charge of the above mentioned teams would meet together; the other is a matter of conjecture as it always is, but there is plenty of ground to believe that in all cases the local team would be supported at home.

ECKENRODE—VOLZ.

Miss Anna G. Volz, daughter of Michael Volz, of 421 West Mulberry street, Baltimore, was married, September 1st, at St. Alfonso's Catholic Church, corner of Park avenue and Saritoga street, to Mr. James E. Eckenrode, son of Mr. E. G. Eckenrode, formerly of Mount St. Mary's, now residing at 1121 Forest Place, Baltimore.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. F. Eckenrode, of Sacred Heart Church, Washington, D. C., who is a brother of the groom. Miss Mary Volz, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mr. George Eckenrode, brother of the groom, was best man. Only the relatives and a few intimate friends of the young couple were present. The bride wore a dark blue traveling suit with a large picture hat.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home, and the couple left for Philadelphia, New York and Atlantic City, where they will spend some time. On their return they will reside at 423 West Mulberry street.

FAIR AT HANOVER

Bigger Than Ever.—All New Buildings.—Splendid Attractions.—And Fine Races.

From September 15th to 18th inclusive, the 24th Annual Hanover Fair will be held and there is every indication from the demands for space, that the number and variety of the exhibits in all lines will be increased. That the races will be a leading feature of the fair, is guaranteed by the increase in speed purses, which this year amount to $3100.

The free attractions have also been strengthened—Luken's Lions, seven trained lions, with four cubs a few months old in addition; the Six Flying Banvards, American's leading aerialists, and Francis and Francisco, comedy acrobats in a burlesque bull fight, combining to furnish sensation and amusement for all. There will not be a dull moment during the fair.

All new buildings, fine racing, sensational attractions, enlarged exhibits, and big crowds of visitors, will undoubtedly make the Hanover Fair of 1908 one long to be remembered.

All of the above was done under contract by Mr. Charles E. Gillelan.

The concrete pavement in front of Dr. D. E. Stone's residence, the work of Messrs. Hoke and Rider, is completed and makes a fine appearance.

Magnificent Asters.

As there are many lovers of flowers in Emmitsburg, each having a penchant for cultivating some particular species, a great variety of plant life is seen in the numerous gardens of the town.

One of the most beautiful displays of the season is that of Miss Eva Shulenberg whose collection of China Asters is magnificent. Every specimen is of unusually large growth and such a formation of blossoms, many of them resembling chrysanthemums, and such richness of coloring are rarely seen outside of pretentious green houses.

STATE JOURNAL

Paragraphs of Maryland News for Hasty Reading

With the close of business on Saturday last the town of Rockville, Montgomery county, found itself with out a telegraph office. For a number of years the business of the Western Union company has been handled by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, but that company has ordered its telegraph office closed, which also put the Western Union out of business so far as Rockville is concerned. It is thought, however, that an office will soon be established by one or the other of the big companies.

Those having in charge the midwinter fair of farm produce of Frederick county are making great preparations for the first annual exhibition. This fair will be of great value to farmers of this section of the state.

Over 6,000 persons attended the Sunday School reunion held at Middletown on Saturday.

Congressman Pearre has been invited to deliver an address at a big union picnic that will be held next Saturday in Locher Grove, near the old Dunkard Church, on Antietam battlefield. Other speakers will be Sylvester L. V. Young, of Hagerstown, Socialist candidate for Congress from the Sixth district; Justice Elias B. Hartle and former Mayor Abraham C. Strite, of Hagerstown.

The Republicans have outlined a vigorous campaign in Washington county. It is understood that the organization of Taft-Sherman-Pearre clubs throughout the county will shortly begin.

Governor Crothers' determination to stamp out tuberculosis in the industrial establishments of the State, by appointing health inspectors to see that the employes work under sanitary conditions and with plenty of sunshine and fresh air, is receiving indorsements from prominent men throughout the State who are interested in the crusade.

Charles B. Robert, Jr., who was shot at Atlantic City while in the company of Mrs. Williams, both prominent in Baltimore society and both from that city, will not die from the wound. The assailant has not been caught but the police of both Atlantic City and Baltimore are doing all they can to clear up the mystery.

For the second time the Maryland Steel Company, of Sparrows Point, has named a price lower than all other ship-builders in a competition of sealed proposals for the construction of three large colliers for the naval service.

Death by asphyxiation with suicidal intent is the verdict given by the coroner investigating the death of Earle Nicodemus at Washington, D. C. on Tuesday morning. Nicodemus was a native of Buckeystown, this county, where his relatives are prominent.

Dr. J. E. Pitsnogle, Washington county health officer has advised the residents of Hagerstown to boil their drinking water as long as a portion of the city's supply is taken from the Antietam creek.

The tenth annual opening of the Maryland Collegiate Institute, the college of the Church of the Brethren, at Union Bridge, took place on Tuesday. The number of students promises to be larger than at any time in the history of the institution.

Hugh Dalton, of York, Pa., was run over in the Cumberland Valley freight yards at Hagerstown, and escaped his life by almost a miracle. The engine, one of the very largest in the yard, passed over his body and he is still living. He was taken to the Y. M. C. A. Hospital and will recover.

Carl V. Mong, the Washington county school teacher who was arrested on the charge of raising banks notes, has been held for the action of the Federal grand jury. Mong was arrested on a similar charge in Pittsburgh last winter, but later was released and afterwards brought suit for $50,000 damages against Joseph Washer and other Secret Service men for false arrest. Mong's wife was arrested at the same time in Pittsburgh in the same connection, but the charge against her was not proven, and she was acquitted.

On Wednesday a big twenty-two foot fly wheel in the power-house of the Frederick and Middletown Electric Railway near Middletown burst, badly injuring William Eader, an electrician, and wrecking the building.

Rev. Dr. Henry Caleb Cushing, professor of systematic theology in Westminster Theological Seminary and an eminent minister of the Methodist Protestant Church, died Wednesday morning on his farm near Manassas, Va., where he was spending his summer vacation. His death was caused by paralysis. Dr. Cushing was nearly 80 years old.

Mr. William H. Fisher was granted an absolute divorce Wednesday from his wife, Edith Ridgely Fisher, in Circuit Court No. 2, Baltimore, on the ground of improper relations with William B. Rayner, son of United States Senator Rayner, and with whom Mrs. Fisher eloped several months ago. No defense was entered.

ELECTRIC CHAIR NOT FATAL

Startling Statement of Physician Who Is Willing to Prove His Assertion.— Man Came To Life.

"Not a murderer whose body ever went to the grave from the death chairs in use in New York and New Jersey was ever killed by the electric current. Every one met their real death from the dissecting knives of the surgeons, or were smothered in quicklime, with which their bodies were surrounded after their so-called deaths."

That is the astonishing statement made in New York on Wednesday by Dr. Peter J. Gibbons; following the resuscitation of a laborer supposedly killed by electricity in a city manhole.

Dr. Gibbons is petitioning the state authorities for leave to resuscitate any criminal killed in the chair. "Not," he says, "because I want to embarrass the state, but as a means of providing that in the hundreds of accidental 'deaths' by electric shock many a life now lost may be saved by prompt and intelligent treatment."

In support of his contention Dr. Gibbons cites the case of a Negro murderer, Taylor, who, he says, came to life in Auburn prison after he had been "killed" by electricity in the death chair.

"Taylor," the doctor declares, "came to life again, and as the armature of the dynamo had been burned out the prison physicians were forced to destroy his life by chloroform and by strychnine. Fearful of public sentiment, the state kept the ghastly secret for many years, and it is only recently that it has been published in official reports."

It is with the view of aiding general medical practice that Dr. Gibbons is moving to get permission to revive executed murderers.

"A man 'killed' by electricity," he declared, "is simply a parallel to the stopping of a clock by arresting the motion of its pendulum. Another push, often a very slight one, will again start it ticking off time. The man is no more dead than is one who has been under water until his sensibility has fled."

"In 99 out of 100 cases of 'death' by electric shock animation may be, and if physicians realize the situation would be restored."

Unitarianism vs. Methodism.

The slow growth of the Unitarians is a constant puzzle to them. Not long ago the papers contained the naive plaint of a member of that Church who sorrowfully confessed himself utterly unable to understand how it is that the Unitarian Church, which holds the truth, grows so slowly, while the other churches which are preaching false doctrine are winning nearly all the converts, says the Zion's Herald.

Why do they not grow? Go to the Water Street Mission in New York, or to the Salvation Army barracks in Boston, and watch the proceedings. What could a Unitarian service do for the unintellectual wretches who drift into these meetings and as a result of a despairing prayer to a "divine Christ" are raised from debauchery into a joyous, righteous life? How long would it take to convert a great city by an appeal exclusively to the intellect? Wealth, culture, social prestige, may meet in assembly and expound a refined religion which is without a divine Saviour, without an inspired Bible, without conversion. And while these wealthy and cultured representatives of intellectualism are wondering why men do not accept their abstract propositions, other men of the old faith are telling the story of a God who so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life; and, somehow, this message melts the stubborn heart, and men fall at the feet of the crucified Saviour, and their hearts are filled with speechless joy.

But our religion is not all emotion. We must repudiate the suggestion that all the intellectual men are in one Church and all the emotional people in the other churches. All the intellectual people in one Church! What role has Unitarianism ever played in England? What influence has it in America today outside of a limited circle in New England? Some of the greatest intellects of our race have accepted and believed the fundamental tenets of orthodox Christianity. There are in our faith mysteries that tax the most profound intellect; but some mysteries are better understood when a man is on his knees than when he is in his study.

MENDING RUBBERS.

We have found that thin spots in our rubbers can be mended at home by applying a cement made from five cents' worth of real rubber dissolved in chloroform. Keep the bottle containing the cement tightly corked and apply with a mullage brush as quickly as possible that it may not harden. We used rubber darn for an actual hole. Cut a piece of the rubber the right size, fasten it with a few stitches over the hole, and brush with the cement. Both kinds of rubber may be obtained from a dealer in dentists' supplies.—Harper's Bazar.

CANNOT PRINT PRIZE LISTS

Newspapers That Do Are Liable to Fine of $500, Imprisonment and Disbarment From the Mails.

Under the present postal laws it is no longer permissible for a newspaper to print lists of prize winners at any euchre party, fair, or game of chance, or even to announce such affairs in advance.

Following is a portion of Section 499 of the Postal Laws and Regulations on unmailable matter:

"Nor shall any newspaper, magazine, pamphlet or publication of any kind containing an advertisement of any lottery, or gift enterprise of any kind, offering prizes dependent upon chance, or containing any list of prizes awarded at the drawings of any such lottery or gift enterprise, whether said list is of any part or of all of the drawing, be carried in the mail or delivered by any postmaster or letter carrier."

Disbarment from the mails is not the only punishment prescribed under the above section, as any person who deposits in a mail box, or offers for delivery, any such matter as described above is guilty of a misdemeanor, which is punishable by a fine of $500 or one year's imprisonment, or both.

FAREWELL TO SUMMER

Summer is fading; the broad leaves that grew

So freshly green, when June was young, are falling;

And, all the whisper-haunted forest through

The restless birds in saddened tones are calling,

From rustling hazel copse and tangled dell,

"Farewell, sweet Summer, Fragrant, fruity Summer, Sweet farewell!"

Upon the windy hills, in many a field,

The honey-bees hum slow above the clover.

Gleaning the latest sweets its blossoms may yield,

And, knowing that their harvest-time is over,

Sing, half a lullaby and half a knell,

"Farewell, sweet Summer, Honey-laden Summer, Sweet, farewell!"

The little brook that babbles mid the ferns,

O'er twisted roots and sandy shallows playing,

Seems fain to linger in its eddied turns,

And with a plaintive, purling voice is saying

(Sadder and sweeter than my song can tell),

"Farewell, sweet Summer, Warm and dreamy Summer, Sweet, farewell!"

GETTYSBURG LETTER

The regular August term of Court opened on Monday of last week. A number of criminal cases were not passed owing to insufficient evidence to establish cases. One case of more than ordinary interest was that of the Commonwealth vs. Daniel Weist, bar clerk at Hotel Gettysburg, charged with selling liquor to a man of known intemperate habits. Twenty-nine witnesses were heard in an effort to establish the fact that the buyer was a man of intemperate habits, but without success, and as a result Mr. Weist was not guilty of a misdemeanor.

John Waddles pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill, but on request of his attorney, William Hersh, Esq., his sentence was not made public on Saturday when the other prisoners were sentenced. The Court fixed September 21 as the day for his appearance, until which time he will remain in the custody of Sheriff Colestock.

George H. Little, convicted of larceny, as bailee, was sentenced to undergo an imprisonment of eighteen months in the Eastern Penitentiary at Philadelphia and was taken to that institution Monday morning.

Randolph Norris, alias Randolph Tickle, colored, was found guilty of stealing. Sentence suspended.

Frank Pool was found guilty of gambling and sentenced to ten days in jail. He had been in jail about thirty days prior to court.

John Bosserman, aged 26 years, of near East Berlin, was brought to the County Home at this place Friday. The young man suddenly became bereft of his reason and made vicious attacks on three men injuring them severely. His condition while here became so alarming that he was removed to Harrisburg on Saturday.

Mr. John P. Martin, the enterprising manager of Hotel Gettysburg, has had a large electric sign erected on the roof of his hostelry.

Our venerable townsman, J. L. Schick, Esq., is regaining his usual health after a slight indisposition.

The Printers' baseball team will play the Arendtsville boys on Wednesday afternoon.

A pick up team from this place was defeated by New Oxford on the latter's ground Saturday. Score 11 to 1.

Pennsylvania College will reopen on Thursday, September 13. Indications point to a large attendance.

The past week has been one of unusual activity in educational circles. County Superintendent Roth some time since issued a call to the teachers of the county to assemble in Brua Chapel on August 26, and notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather quite a number had gathered for the occasion. The meeting was addressed by prominent educators and proved interesting to all. Committees and dates were selected for district institutes to be held during the coming term.

On Thursday, the 26th of August, the graduates of the county schools, high and rural, held their second annual reunion at Round Top. The condition of the weather prevented the number in attendance being as high as last year but otherwise the meeting was most successful. These gatherings are a new feature in this community, having been introduced by Prof. H. M. Roth, who deserves much credit for his work.

Quite a number of people from Gettysburg and the surrounding country attended the Grangers' Picnic at Williams Grove last week. A great many of the visitors at the latter place took advantage of the excursion rates to Gettysburg and came here to view the battlefield.

The new school building, now in course of construction at the intersection of Hanover and York streets, will not be ready for occupancy at the opening of the school term, although work is being pushed as rapidly as possible. Rooms have been secured on Carlisle and Chambersburg streets and these will be used as classrooms until the new building is completed.

As is customary after summer vacation the churches of town have resumed their regular schedule of services.

The Presbyterian Church of this place has lately been refrescoed, which adds greatly to the appearance of the auditorium.

Notice was received here last week that a site for the Federal Building had been selected and that it includes the properties of William McSherry, Esq., on Baltimore and East High streets, Dr. J. W. C. O'Neal and C. E. Stahley, Esq., on Baltimore street. The purchase price is said to be $24,000 divided as follows: Mr. Stahley, $5,500, Dr. O'Neal, $8,000 and Mr. McSherry, $10,500.

Conan Doyle at it Again.

"It is clear, Potson," said Herlock Shomes, "that the farmer who raised this spring chicken was very tender hearted."
"How in the world do you know that?" asked the astonished Potson.
"It's simple enough. The farmer hesitated so long before striking the fatal blow."—Boston Transcript.

Last Saturday the local team defeated the "Monarchs," a ball team from Waynesboro. At this game for the first time this season Fairfield went on the field with all her best players and the score shows what a combination we have. Marshall, Horner and Cunningham made the game look like those that were played here last season.

The visitors were pretty confident of winning having had a particularly fortunate season so far, but it was all over from the first jump. Swope had them on the anxious bench all afternoon. Only one hit was made off his delivery and the strike-outs were plentiful; out of the twenty-seven put-outs Marshall, the catcher, had eighteen. Swope's work was the feature of the game. To-morrow the same teams will play here and from reports it will be more closely contested. The following is the score:

CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

the sheriff of Allegany county to $3,000, and the State's attorney to $2,000 a year, breaking up the fee evil in connection with the Cumberland magistrates by substituting a moderate salary, had passed the present law governing the treasurer and the road law by which road building and administration is taken out of politics and placed in the hands of two Democrats and two Republicans, elected under a method which gives the voters of each party an effective veto on the bad nominations of the other party, and is perhaps the most unique system in America. The above measures are said to have saved Allegany county thirty thousand dollars a year, besides eliminating the political abuses connected with the old system. It may interest the bar of the State to know that Mr. Lewis was the author of and introduced the law under which the reports of the Court of Appeals are printed by contract with the State by the lowest bidder and sold to the profession now at $2.00 a volume instead of $4.00 as formerly; that in 1910 the Code of Public General Laws will be published in the same manner. These measures show him not only a reformer, but a practical and constructive law maker. A daily student of political economy and public questions, it can be readily appreciated that the circumstances of Mr. Lewis' early life as a miner and of the struggling Welsh family have implanted in him a passion for the uplifting of the working masses. For example: As a student of social affairs he learned that in the perilous profession of mining one miner is killed for each given number of tons mined, and then reached the conclusion that has been adopted in England and other countries, that since coal cannot be mined without killing miners, as war cannot be prosecuted without killing soldiers, a part, at least, of the value of the miner's life should be charged up to the cost of the coal mining, and the whole burden of the necessary catastrophe should not be thrown upon the widows and orphan children. He prepared the bill imposing a tax of half a cent on each ton of coal and clay mined, which according to the statistics would have raised a fund of two thousand dollars for the family of each miner killed. The bill was introduced by Senator Shannon, passed the Senate, and the second reading in the House, but was strangled by unseen hands on the third reading file of the House of Delegates. Mr. Lewis spent two months at the session of the Legislature in his effort to have this bill passed.

Such is a brief sketch of a life unusual even in America, and a life just entering its fortieth year. On fire with an ambition to promote the public welfare and especially to improve the lot of the laboring masses and unusually successful, the unprejudiced voters of the Sixth Congressional District, who do not know him in person, may rest assured that he is no mere upstart seeking the profits of political office, but a publicist with a laborer's experience to make him earnest, and the business and legislative experience to qualify him for the making of conservative and progressive laws.

GET AN EQUIPMENT

The soldier going to war without his gun or his ammunition is no more to be laughed at than the farmer starting out to plow with his team hitched to a land roller. Both are queer. But the employe that has the nerve to go to headquarters and ask for promotion or a raise in pay, when he is without the ability to fill even his present no-account position, is the limit. If Johnny would only get wise and spend in qualifying himself for a higher position some of the time he wastes dreaming over imagined grievances, he would not only be of greater value to his present employer, but would also be wanted by other firms. Don't waste your strength carrying a grouch—no one wants a kicker.

Unwritten Law for Thoroughbreds.

There is an unwritten law for people who are thoroughbred—the real gentleman and the real lady—which compels them to keep their troubles, their ailments, their sorrows, their worries, their losses, to themselves. There is a fine discipline in it. It mellows the character and sweetens the life. But when these things are not borne heroically, they mar the character and leave their ugly traces in the face; their hideous forms appear in the manner and disfigure the whole life.

Learn to consume your own smoke. If you have misfortunes, pains, diseases, losses, keep them to yourself. Bury them. Those who know you have them will love you and admire you infinitely more for this suppression. A stout heart and persistent cheerfulness will be more than a match for all your troubles.—Success.

The publishing department of the Christian Endeavorers at Boston did a business of $66,579 during 1907-08, of which amount a little over $6,800 was turned over to the society for its general expenses.

PARCELPOST AND POSTAL BANK.

villages and towns, afford an incentive to shop keepers already in business to improve and increase their stock and give to the farmers a service as adequate as could be obtained in the city. This extension of the postal service is no newer than the question of postal savings banks, nor is its desirability less assured. As the matter stands now, the United States is far behind other countries in the matter of postal service. We pay a higher price for a more limited service than obtains in any other of the thirty-three countries with which we have postal conventions, with the result that the express companies reap a rich harvest while this important branch of the public service does not fill more than a fraction of the field intended for it. In this country everything that exceeds the weight limit of four pounds must be sent by express and even within the limit it is cheaper to send a package by express than by mail at sixteen cents a pound. In twenty-four foreign countries with which we have postal conventions the weight limit is eleven pounds and the postage in all but four cases is twelve cents per pound, so that it is actually cheaper to send a package abroad by mail than it is to send it from one point to another within the limits of the United States.

The postal savings bank is first of all intended for people whose savings are small and whose deposits are frequent. It goes to places where the express company does not reach and where banks cannot afford to locate, and it makes the beginning of a bank account for the man, woman or child who has from ten cent to a dollar to put away at a time, as well as affording a means of temporary safe deposit to the farmer who has just received a cash payment for crops or stock. Much of the opposition to this measure has come from the country store-keeper, who very naturally dreads that such largely increased facilities for delivery by mail would simply extend the already wide domain of the department store and drive him completely out of business. But this objection has been met by the plan for a special postal service for the rural routes, which would be given at a much lower rate than that prevailing throughout the general system of parcel post. This special rate as advocated by Mr. Meyer would be five cents for the first pound and two cents for each successive pound up to the limit of eleven pounds, thus enabling any one along the line of a rural route to use the mails for delivery of packages at a charge of twenty-five cents for the maximum weight, as opposed to one dollar and thirty-two cents for the same weight if sent at the regular rate of twelve cents a pound,—which regular rate would necessarily have to be used by department stores unless they should go to the trouble and expense of maintaining a large system of rural agencies throughout the country.

Glass For Summer Use

An Austrian, Richard Szigmondy, is the inventor of a new kind of window glass, whose chief peculiarity is that it prevents the passage of about nine-tenths of the heat of the sun's rays. It is well known that ordinary window glass allows nearly all the heat derived from the sun to pass through, but on the other hand intercepts nearly all heat from non-luminous sources, such as a stove, or the heated ground. This is the reason why heat accumulates under the glass roof of a hothouse. If covered with Szigmondy's glass a hothouse would become decidedly a cold-house, as the heat could not get into it. One advantage claimed for the new glass is that a house whose windows were furnished with it would remain delightfully cool in summer. But in winter perhaps the situation would not be so agreeable. Indeed, the panes would have to be exchanged for others of ordinary glass, since no heat could enter.—Ambition

Why He Did Not Dance

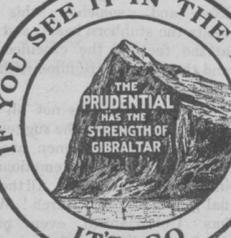

The other day a young man gave a reason for not dancing, the spirit of which might be made to apply to a good many failures in life. "I should like to dance," he said, "and I should dance, only the music puts me out and the girl gets in my way."—The London Tatler.

The discovery of the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky was due to a search for saltpeter in 1807. Congress had forbidden American vessels to sail for Europe, and foreign vessels to land cargoes in this country, and saltpeter was needed for gunpowder.
