STREET LIGHTS PAY WELL

AS A BUSINESS ASSET

Economy To Community Of Lighted Thoroughfares

PROPERTY VALUATION RAISED

Dollars and Cents Talk on Important Subject.—Fallacy of Moonlight Schedule as Maintained in Emmitsburg.

A writer in The Illuminating Engineer, a journal published in New York, on the subject of the economy of street lights, the lighted street as a business asset, touches on a subject just now before the people of Emmitsburg. He says that good street-lighting, or even spectacularly brilliant illumination, generally pays a city in dollars and cents.

Property valuations, generally speaking are proportional to the number of people who make use of the streets as a thoroughfare, particularly so on a business street. This proposition of the writer is illustrated by land values in New York City. "It not unfrequently happens," says the article, "that opposite sides of a street on the same block have considerably different values, due to the same cause. Anything which adds to the traffic of a given street must, therefore, add to the value of the abutting property. While conditions of accessibility to necessary utilities, such as railway stations, hotels, banks, public buildings, etc., have doubtless a preponderating influence in determining the traffic of a street, it is equally true that no subsidiary condition has such a vital effect as the lighting. Cincinnati has a long open square in the center of its business section, which naturally affords a prominent location for business. It happens that one side of this square has been brilliantly lighted up, mostly by private enterprise. As a result nine-tenths of the pedestrians in the evening take that side of the square, with the result that it is far more valuable as a business location than the opposite side.

"In a more general way, lighting the entire business section of a city up to the standards of modern illumination does for a city as a whole what the lighting of a particular street does for that section; it increases values by increasing the traffic, not only from the city itself, but from the surrounding country and near-by towns. That good light increases the value of residential streets by making them more desirable needs no argument. Good street-lighting, more than any other thing, gives to a city an air of progressiveness and prosperity. 'Nothing succeeds like success,' to appear prosperous is the first step to being prosperous."

The same writer objects to the midnight schedule for street lighting, calling it a "piece of petty economy entirely out of keeping with the wealth and civilization of our country at the present time." Of the moonlight schedule, the one that prevails in Emmitsburg just at present, he has even a greater dislike.

"What is called the moonlight schedule is even a greater fallacy, if literally carried out. Moonlight is far too uncertain a quantity to be reckoned with in so vital a thing as street-lighting. To consider the phases of the moon in a public lighting contract is as much behind the times as regulating the planting of crops or the prediction of the weather on this basis. A city should not only be lighted up adequately in every part, but should be kept lighted up during the entire part of the twenty-four hours when sunlight is not available.

ELECTION COST SENATOR RAYNER A PRETTY PENNY

Senatorial Primaries Took $13,208.05.—Other Expenses Make Bill Foot Up To Sixteen Thousand Dollars.

The sworn statement filed by Senator Isidor Rayner in the office of the Circuit Court and sent to the governor, as required by the corrupt practices act, shows the Senator's campaign expenses in connection with the Democratic Senatorial primaries and the recent election, which were held on the same day, were $16,924.40.

As Senator Rayner was the only candidate in the primaries, he had to bear the entire expense of holding the primaries throughout the State, which amounted to $13,208.05. In addition, Senator Rayner contributed $2,794 for the expenses of the campaign, and spent $922.35 for advertising.

Ambassador Thompson has been elected president of the Pan-American Railroad. The election took place at Mexico.

COOK'S DATA SHIPPED

Story of Polar Trip Strongly Guarded on Ship

FORWARDED TO COPENHAGEN

With Ending of Interesting Story Begins New Chapter in Fight For Recognition as Discoverer.

The last installment of Cook's story appears in this issue of the CHRONICLE and closes the first part of the explorer's fight against Peary's contention. Yesterday a new chapter in the affair was opened when, under a strong guard, the voluminous report prepared by Dr. Frederick A. Cook for the University of Copenhagen, setting forth in detail the explorer's claim to having reached the North Pole, were taken on board of the Scandinavian-American liner United States on Thanksgiving Day and started on its way to Copenhagen.

Dr. Cook is taking no chances of his report miscarrying in any way. He has arranged for it to be placed under lock and key in the strong box of the steamer, where, in the captain's room, it will repose until a committee from the University of Copenhagen boards the vessel and offers proper credentials to show that they can be trusted with the document.

No one on board the United States will have a key to the ship's strong box except the captain. But even this precaution has been supplemented by Dr. Cook. The explorer's secretary, Walter Lonsdale, who accompanied Dr. Cook here from Copenhagen, has taken passage on the United States, to make sure that the report shall be well safeguarded.

The report consists of 50,000 words and is an analysis of the explorer's data entered in his notebooks while in the Arctic regions. A verdict will probably be given the latter part of next month.

GEORGE WASHINGTON MEMORIAL PLANNED

Dollar Subscriptions Asked by Association to Raise the Necessary $2,000,000 for Building.

The George Washington Memorial Association, the purpose of which is the erection of a suitable building as a national memorial at Washington to the first President of the republic, announces the completion of its plans. The scope of the project recently has been broadened and the association now proposes to raise a fund of $2,000,000 by national subscription for the erection of a building at the capital where the national patriotic, scientific, educational, literary and art societies and organizations of the country may have a place of meeting or conference at any and all times. The association proposes to carry out the design expressed by Washington in his will when he left a small legacy of $25,000 for the endowment of an educational institution and urged "the promotion of science and literature throughout the country."

The appeal for subscriptions is made directly to the humbler people of the country, the working classes, the school children and the citizens of moderate means, to give them an opportunity to do their part, and the fund will be raised principally by $1 contributions. Mrs. Susan Whitney Dimock of New York is president of the association.

FOOTBALL GAME CALLED BRUTAL BY EDUCATORS

Western College Professors Urge a Radical Change in Rules to Eliminate Brutal Features.

The Chicago Record-Herald Monday said: "With the presidents of four of the leading western colleges enlisted in the fight to eliminate brutal football, the move received fresh impetus Monday. That the gridiron game of the present day is doomed for a sudden overthrow was the stand maintained by four prominent educators. Statements urging the immediate revision of the mode of play were received from President Judson of the University of Chicago, President Cyrus Northrop of Minnesota, President Van Hise of Wisconsin, and Chancellor Samuel Avery of the University of Nebraska.

"That the sport is fast becoming a menace to the life and limbs of all participants is the opinion of the educators. On local gridirons yesterday three victims were added to the list of injured."

Heroic Congressman Burned to Death.

Congressman David A. DeArmond, of the Sixth district of Missouri, was burned to death in a fire that destroyed his home in Butler, Mo., on Tuesday. The statesman died like a hero. When found his arms were locked around the charred body of his grandson. It was in an effort to save the life of this 6-year-old boy that the Congressman met his death.

ROME FAVORS CANONIZATION

POPE'S INTEREST IN MOTHER SETON'S CAUSE

If Recommendation Is Favored She Will Be The First Real American Saint

HER SHRINE AT EMMITSBURG MOST VENERATED SPOT ON CONTINENT

Process of Beatification and Canonization Most Exhaustive Investigation Possible.—Final Services All Take Place In St. Peter's, Rome.—Congregation of Rites Considering the Virtues of Illustrious Woman Who Founded the Sisters of Charity in America.

MOTHER SETON, WHOSE SANCTITY IS BEING ESTABLISHED BY CONGREGATION OF RITES IN ROME.

The Archbishop of Heliopolis, Mgr. Robert Seton has returned to Rome quite recently from an extended visit to Spain. Mgr. Seton is the highest American prelate living in Rome and has the further distinction of being a descendant of Mother Elizabeth Ann Bayley Seton, the foundress of St. Joseph's Academy.

Naturally Archbishop Seton is concerned in the process for the canonization of his illustrious and saintly ancestor, and his friends in this country will be delighted to hear of the manifest interest taken in the investigations which the Congregation of Rites, presided over by Cardinal Martinelli, late apostolic delegate to the United States, is carrying on to establish the virtues of Mother Seton. This interest is not confined alone to the American clergy for the Pope, himself, is deeply concerned in the process.

Just as the state honors its heroes for their achievements whether for their intellectual works or ability, their courage or patriotism, so the Catholic Church honors those who have been eminent for their virtues, purity and spiritual courage. As a proof of that virtue which merits such recognition the Church requires miracles wrought by or through such an one's intercession. These are proved by a process most minute and searching.

In the sixteenth century, 1587, the Congregation of Rites was charged with the duty of investigation of the causes of beatification and canonization; beatification preceding canonization. The process by which beatification is reached is a lengthy one. Thirteen or fourteen steps are distinguished: The reputation of the person proposed is inquired into by the bishop of the diocese; it is ascertained whether veneration was paid to the person, or whether anything was done contrary to the prescribed form of beatification and canonization laid down by Pope Urban VIII. The third step consists of the presentation of the minutes of these two inquiries to Rome which brings the matter before the Congregation of Rites.

The Promotor Fidei, better known as the "devil's advocate," is appointed, and it is his duty to raise objections against the process or the person. Does the candidate pass this ordeal then begins the apostolic process. After a most searching investigation, provided nothing is found to warrant the rejection, the Pope appoints a day for the ceremony which takes place in St. Peter's Rome.

After the beatification it is necessary to prove that at least two miracles were wrought through the intercession of the "blessed" one.

In this event, that is after the most strict examination to prove the truth of miracles, a decree is drawn up by direction of the Pope and canonization takes place in St. Peter's and the Pope declares and ordains that the servant of God in question shall be inscribed in the register of Saints ("Canon Sanctorum") and that his or her memory shall be celebrated on a given day in every church. In case the proceedings end with the beatification of the person veneration is paid only in a certain specified place.

If the character and virtues of Mother Seton are found so perfect that she be canonized, then will be created the first real American saint and her shrine, here at Emmitsburg, the most venerated spot to Catholics on the American continent.

William Jennings Bryan is supporting the prohibition movement.

YALE LEADS COLLEGES

Exciting Football Season Closed For 1909

MICHIGAN UNIV. HEADS THE WEST

Blue Downs Crimson in Close Game.—Lafayette Closes With Victory.—Indians Paralyzed by Brown.

The football season is over and the victory of Yale over Harvard gives that institution the championship of the year, and along with that honor goes the additional one of not being scored on. Yale leads the country in points scored also; it has beaten all comers decisively and has kept its record clean.

In the West, Michigan by defeating the University of Minnesota has the best claim as champion.

The fatalities due to the game have had some little effect and indeed measures are already being taken to make the record of next year cleaner in this regard. Legislation which would require all football games in the District of Columbia to be played under a license of the police, who would be privileged to stop any game when it becomes dangerous to life and health, has been suggested by Corporation Counsel, as one of the direct results of this year's long list of fatalities on the gridiron.

The following scores were made last Saturday:

At New York, Brown 21, Carlisle 8.
At New York, Fordham 9, Holy Cross 5
At Minneapolis, Michigan 15, Minnesota 6.
At Annapolis, Navy 45, Davidson 6.
At Chicago, Chicago 6, Wisconsin 6.
At South Bethlehem, Lafayette 21, Lehigh 0.
At Baltimore, Johns Hopkins 18, St. John's 0.
At Lancaster, F. and M. 23, Delaware College 0.
At Cambridge, Yale 8, Harvard 0.

COAL LAND INQUIRY BEGUN AT SEATTLE

Commissioner Taking Testimony in Affair that Caused Ballinger-Pinchot Controversy.

The inquiry instituted by the Department of the Interior into the validity of the 33 coal land entries in Alaska, that are included in the Cunningham group around which the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy centers, began at Seattle, Wash., last week before Commissioner W. J. McGee. At least four days were required to take the testimony at Seattle. At the conclusion of the sitting in Seattle Special Commissioner McGee resumed the inquiry at Spokane, Washington.

The aggregate acreage involved is 5280. An estimate of the value of the coal in these claims is $50,000,000. The land department claims that entrymen did not make locations for their own exclusive benefit, but that prior to making the locations they entered into an agreement to consolidate and hold the lands. It also contended that the lands have not been improved as required by law. The patents were held up originally at the instance of L. R. Glavis, former chief of the field division of the general land office at Seattle. It was the disagreement between Secretary Ballinger and Mr. Glavis over the disposition of these claims that caused Glavis' removal.

WESTERN MARYLAND ROAD SOLD TO ONLY BIDDER

Reorganization Committee Buys Property at Public Auction for $6,500,000, Minimum Figure Fixed.

One of the last steps in the reorganization of the Western Maryland Railroad was taken Friday when the road was sold at public auction to the reorganization committee, the sole bidder for the property. The price was $6,500,000, the minimum figure fixed by the United States Circuit Court for Maryland.

As soon as the details are completed a new company will be formed to take over the road and its franchises. This company will have an authorized capital stock of $50,000,000 common and $10,000,000 four per cent. non-cumulative preferred stock. It is expected that the receivership will be lifted by Jan. 1 next.

STANDARD OIL

LOSES CASE

ORDERED TO DISSOLVE

Thirty-three of 70 Subsidiary Concerns Excepted

MOST IMPORTANT CIVIL ACTION

Big Company to Appeal to United States Supreme Court.—Court Says It Is Illegal Corporation.—All Judges Concur In Opinion.

The United States Government won its suit against the Standard Oil Company. The United States circuit court at St. Paul, Minn., on Saturday last ordered the corporation dissolved, it being pronounced an illegal corporation. All the judges concurred in the opinion.

This is one of the most important and far-reaching civil actions ever considered in the American courts. The Government filed its complaint in November, 1906, before the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Missouri. The complaint was directed against the parent organization, known as the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, with its various subsidiary corporations. It was also directed against seven individuals, namely, John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Henry H. Rogers (now dead), John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne and Charles M. Pratt. The main company, its branches and these individuals charged in the complaint with having entered into an agreement, combination and conspiracy to restrain trade and commerce among the several states, to monopolize the trade in petroleum, both in its purchase and its shipment and transportation by pipe line, steamships and by rail, also in the manufacture and refining of petroleum.

The Standard Oil Company will appeal the case to the Supreme Court of the United States. The decree enjoins the seven individual defendants, the Standard Oil Company and its subsidiary corporations, from continuing or carrying into effect the illegal combination they have formed and from entering into any like combination of conspiracy the effect of which will be to restrain interstate commerce in petroleum or its products, or to prolong the unlawful monopoly of such commerce, etc. Thirty-three of the 70 odd subsidiary corporations are excepted from the order of dissolution.

Another question than the mere dissolution of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey awaits the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States upon the appeal to be taken from the decision of the Circuit Court of the Eastern District of Missouri, filed in St. Paul and St. Louis, granting the injunction prayed for by the Government. It is that of the criminal prosecution of the individual defendants found guilty by Judges Sanborn, Van Deventer, Hook and Adams of violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

The opinion of the Circuit Court declares very emphatically that the seven defendants named individually, John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Henry H. Rogers, John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne and Charles M. Pratt, "have been and are violating the Sherman law. And, as if in invitation to the Government to undertake a criminal prosecution, it cites section 2 of the Sherman law as 'pertinent to the issues in this case.' Section 2 is the one which makes it a misdemeanor for every person 'to monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize any part' of the interstate or foreign commerce. The Government's action is not known.

(TWELFTH ARTICLE)

IN my wakeful watches to get a peep of the sun at just the right moment I was kept awake during much of the resting period, and for pastime my eyes wandered from snoring dogs to snoring men. During one of these idle moments there came a solution of the utility of the dog's tail, a topic with which I had been at play for several days. It is quoted here at the risk of censure, because it tions had been possible, and our location could only be guessed at. The maddening struggle was daily forced, while the spirits were pressed to the verge of extinction. Now that the object of our trip had been accomplished much of the incentive was gone. At times it seemed as if our life's work had been accomplished and to have lain down for the final sleep would have been easy, but the feeble and we found ourselves far down in Crown Prince Gustav sea, with open water and impossible small ice as a barrier between us and Heiberg island.

With the return to Annotok rendered impossible by the unfortunate westerly drift, our only alternative was to go south with the ice. We hoped

CROWD GREETING DR. COOK IN COPENHAGEN.

In this course to find game for food and fuel. The Scottish whalers enter Lancaster sound and touch at Port Leopold. The distance to this point was shorter than that to Greenland, and by this route I hoped that I could return to Europe during the same year, 1908.

Passing through Hassel sound between the Ringnes Lands bears and seals were secured, and slowly we moved southward over Norwegian bay into Wellington channel. The ice was small, there was much open water, and progress was slow, but the drift carried us along.

At Pioneer bay we were stopped by a jam of small ice over which sledding was impossible. Unable to wait for the ice to move because no large game was here secured, we crossed in early July to Jones sound. Here, again, no big game was found. There was much open water, and the folding canvas boat was spread for use.

Unable to feed the dogs, they were given the freedom of their wild progenitors, the wolves.

One sled was left here; the other was taken apart and placed in the boat. Then followed a long and perilous adventure by boat and sled, during which our last ammunition was expended in securing birds for food. After that, by looped lines and slingshots, birds were still captured.

Early in September we were beset on the shores of Baffin bay with neither food, fuel nor ammunition. New implements were shaped, and we returned westward to Cape Sparbo to seek a place to pitch a winter camp. An underground den was built of stones, bones and turf, and with our primitive weapons we fought the walrus, the bear, the musk ox and other animals. Thus food, fuel and skins were secured, and death by famine was averted.

The winter and the night of 1908-9 fires of the homing passion kept the eye open.

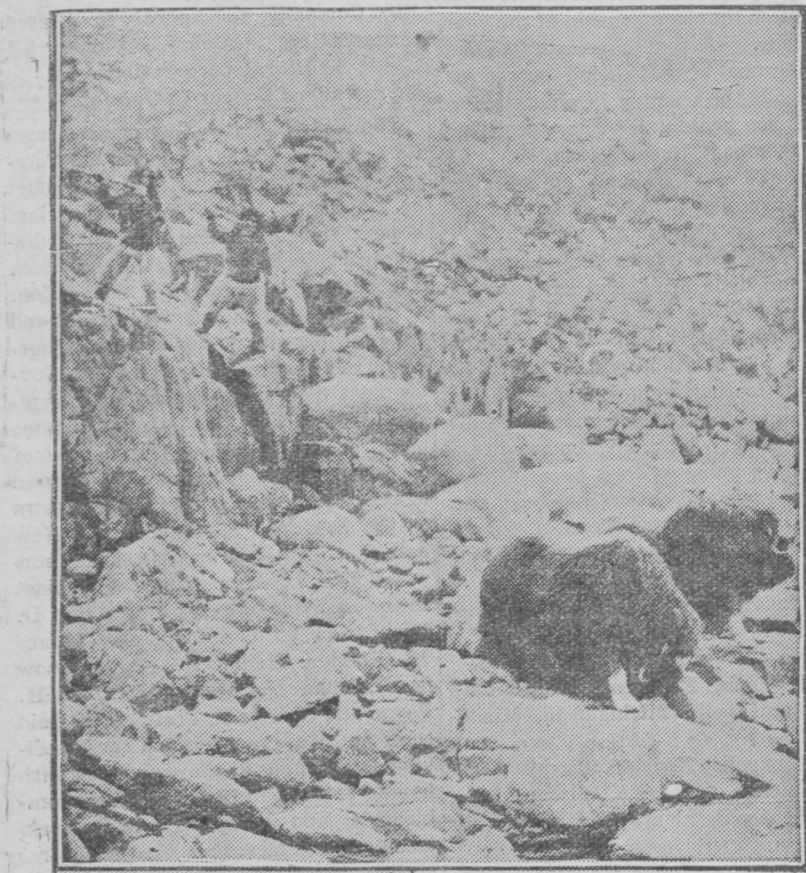

At the Eighty-fourth Parallel.

On May 24 the sky cleared long enough to give us a set of observations. We were on the eighty-fourth parallel, near the ninety-seventh meridian. The new lands were hidden behind a low mist. The ice was much crevassed and drifted eastward.

The pack was sufficiently active to give us considerable anxiety, though pressure lines and open water did not then seriously impede our progress.

There remained on the sleds scarcely enough food to reach our caches unless we averaged fifteen miles daily. On the return from the pole to here we had only been able to make twelve miles daily. Now our strength, even under fair conditions, did not seem to be equal to more than ten miles. The outlook was far from hopeful to me, though the sight of the cleared sky infused new courage into Etukishuk and Ahwelah.

Trying to make the best of our hard

is a typical phase of our lives which cannot be illustrated otherwise. Seemingly trivialities were seized upon as food for thought. Why has the dog a tail at all? The bear, the musk ox, the caribou and the hare each in its own way succeeds very well with but a dwarfed stub. Why does nature in the dog expend its best effort in growing the finest fur over a seemingly useless line of tail bones? The thing is distinctive, and one could hardly conceive of the creature without this accessory, but nature in the arctic does not often waste energy to display beauties and temperament. This tail must have an important use, otherwise it would soon fall under the knife of frost and time. Yes! It was imported into the arctic by the wolf progenitor of the dog from warmer lands, where its swing served a useful purpose in fly time. A nose made to breathe warm air requires some protection in the far north. No animal feels this shortcoming as much as man. The dog supplied the need with his tail. At the time when I made this discovery a cold wind charged with cutting crystals brushed the pack. Each dog had his back arched to the wind and his face veiled with an effective curl of his tail. He was comfortably shielded from icy torment by an appendage adapted to that very purpose.

A Heavy Snowstorm.

On May 6 we were stopped at 6 a. m. by the coming of the gloom of an unusual gale. The wind had been steady and strong all night, but we did not heed its threatening increase of force until too late. It came from the west, as usual, driving coarse snow with needle points. The ice about was old and hummocky, offering a difficult line of march, but some shelter. In the strongest blasts we threw ourselves over the sled behind hummocks and gathered new breath to force a few miles more.

Finally, when no longer able to force the dogs through the blinding drift, we sought the lee of an uplifted block of ice. Here suitable snow was found for a snow house, and a few blocks were cut and set, but the wind swept them away like chips. The tent was tried, but it could not be made to stand in the rush of the roaring tumult. In sheer despair we crept into the tent without erecting the pole. Creeping into the bags, we then allowed the flapping silk to be buried by the drifting snow. Soon the noise and discomfort of the storm were lost, and we enjoyed the comfort of an icy grave. An efficient breathing hole was kept open, and the wind was strong enough to sweep off the weight of a dangerous drift. A new lesson was thus learned in fighting the battle of life which was afterward useful.

Several days of icy despair now followed each other in rapid succession. The wind did not rise to the full force of a storm, but it was too strong and too cold to travel. The food supply was noticeably decreasing. The daily advance was reduced. With such weather starvation seemed inevitable.

Camp was moved nearly every day, but ambition sank to the lowest ebb. To the atmospheric unrest were added the instability of broken ice and the depressing mystery of an unknown position. For many days no observalot, a straight course was set for the musk ox lands of the inner crossing.

At the eighty-third parallel we found ourselves to the west of a large tract extending southward. The ice changed to small fields. The temperature rose to zero, and a persistent mist obscured the heavens.

With a few lines on paper to register the life of suffering, the food for man and dog was reduced to a three-quarter ration, while the difficulties of ice travel rose to disheartening heights.

At the end of a struggle of twenty days through thick fog the sky cleared, were spent preparing food and equipment for the return.

On Feb. 18, 1909, we started with a remodeled sled and reached our camp at Annotok in the middle of April. Here I met Mr. Harry Whitney and told him of our conquest of the pole.

Because a ship was to come after Mr. Whitney to take him direct to home shores, most of my instruments were intrusted to his care. Anxious to gain a few months in the return home, I proceeded by sled over land and sea southward to Upernavik and from there onward to Copenhagen by Danish steamers.

Max Davis has sold his house on East Middle street to A. D. Bream, of Cumberland township, on private terms.

George Wolf, of Cumberland township, employed by the Gettysburg National Park Commission, was seriously wounded by being shot Friday afternoon. Mr. Wolf was hauling stone with a horse and cart in the vicinity of Spangler's Spring and had completed his labors for the day. He started for his home and coming to a small stream, stopped to let his horse drink. While standing in the cart he felt what he supposed was a stone, strike him in the back. He sank in the cart and thinking it might be serious, called for help. Edward Lightner, who lives nearby, heard his cries and went to him.

On examination Mr. Lightner found that Mr. Wolf had been struck by a ball from a rifle and hurried the injured man to town, where he was examined by Drs. Hartman and Stewart, but the ball could not be located. Later in the evening he was removed to his home along the Emmitsburg road. On Sunday another examination was made and the bullet located and removed. The ball evidently struck a rib and followed it, as it was found near the lower ribs, near the medium line. Who fired the shot is a mystery, as Mr. Wolf heard no report, which is evidence that it was from a high power weapon and had come considerable distance. Mr. Wolf is resting easy and is getting along as well as can be expected.

Thanksgiving Day.

Over the river and through the woods,
To grandfather's house we go;
The horse knows the way
To carry the sleigh
Through the white and drifted snow.
Over the river and through the wood
Oh! how the wind does blow!
It stings the toes
And bites the nose,
As over the ground we go.

Over the river and through the wood,
To have a first rate play.
Hear the bells ring,
"Ting-a-ling-ding,"
Hurrah for Thanksgiving Day!

Over the river and through the wood,
Trot fast, my dapple gray!
Spring over the ground,
Like a hunting hound!
For this is Thanksgiving Day.

Over the river and through the wood,
And straight through the barn yard gate.
We seem to go
Extremely slow,—
It is so hard to wait!

Over the river and through the wood,
Now grandmother's cap I spy!
Hurrah for the fun!
Is the pudding done?
Hurrah for the pumpkin pie!

LYDIA MARIA CHILD.

Thanksgiving Song.
The happy thank-you day has come
And harvest time is past,
We've gathered fruits and nuts and grain,
We'll say good-by at last;
Good-by to Autumn, Autumn dear,
And with our parting words
We'll sing our thanks to God above,
For fruits and trees and birds.

[Editorial from The Chronicle, June 8, 1906.]

START A BANK ACCOUNT.

A man by the name of Lowndes who was Secretary of the Treasury during the reigns of King William, Queen Anne and King George the Third used to say, "Take care of the pence; for the pounds will take care of themselves." This saying, because of the wisdom in it has been kept alive for several hundred years. It is a byword among careful, thrifty people, and many men who have a competency today will acknowledge that the foundation of this wealth was built by observing this precept. They will probably tell you that they began to save when they were mere boys, boys ambitious and hopeful of the future, and the chances are that they will confess that their initial working capital when they started in business was the first hundred dollars they were able to amass.

From time to time the magazines contain write-ups of big financiers and prominent men of affairs—sketches full of interesting details as to how they added to and invested their savings until they finally had thousands to their credit. Newspapers, are full of interviews with railroad magnates, corporation presidents and heads of large mercantile establishments, and the most attractive features of all these accounts are those which depict the early struggles of these men—how they saved enough to make a start in life.

These experiences point a moral. They show, they prove beyond question that every boy, every lad, every laborer, every mechanic, in fact every single person who looks forward to a future of comparative independence must learn to husband a part of his allowance, his wages, or his salary. And as one's ability to earn is discounted by swiftly passing time it is evident that the sooner the saving habit is acquired the sooner a future of success will dawn.

To-day institutions that encourage the habit of saving are located in every city and in almost every town. There are two right here in Emmitsburg—banks that not only take care of deposits and depositors but that pay a high rate of interest on savings accounts. This should be an incentive to every wage earner in the community. With the splendid banking facilities that are in their very midst and with no restrictions as to the smallness of the deposits every child should find it easy to acquire the good habit of taking care of its pennies, and every man should be stimulated by a desire to have his spare dollars earn him something.

Take the case of the boy who receives a weekly allowance or who earns a small amount by occasionally working after school—a boy ten years old for instance. If he were to start a savings account and deposit twenty five cents a week, (which he could easily do) in ten years he would have one hundred and fifty-nine dollars and fifty-eight cents to his credit. Take the wage earner. Let him deposit one dollar a week. His amount in ten years would be six hundred and forty dollars and seventy-eight cents—pretty neat sums for each.

But whether for a savings account or for one that is to be active the bank is the logical place for the safe keeping of money. There it remains subject to your order—payable to any one you designate—and your check is your receipt.

INSPECTION OF STATE INSTITUTIONS.

That it is essential that frequent and thorough inspections of the houses of correction and reform schools be made in every State may be gleaned from the confession of two lads who were arrested in Brooklyn, N. Y., the other day. Larceny was the charge against them. On being arraigned they acknowledged their guilt, but plead for clemency because they had been incarcerated for several years in the "Disciplinary Training School" where, in the language of the young culprits, "there was nothing to do when we were not getting punched by guards except to learn from older boys how to be burglars." The testimony of these youthful law-breakers—and it was supported by evidence adduced when an expose of that school was made—supports the well-substantiated impression that generally prevails in the mind of the public: that state institutions everywhere are, as a rule, inspected in a decidedly perfunctory manner. This incident is also a reminder that legislatures are proverbially parsimonious in appropriating funds for the maintenance of institutions where wards of the State are housed. For this very reason in seven cases out of ten the buildings are inadequate for the proper segregation of the inmates, the wage of caretakers is too small, and the supervision open to criticism. The result is a subversion of the special object for which these institutions were founded and a monument to legislative indifference.

A more frequent and thorough inspection of these places in our own county would not be amiss, and a more attentive and sympathetic hearing by our county representatives at Annapolis when needed appropriations are asked for would certainly not tend to lessen the prestige of our estimable lawmakers.

MARSE HENRY'S prediction about Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt being "at daggers points" is nothing of a surprise to a goodly number of observers.

THE Bell people appear to have been doing some quiet wire pulling.—The Columbia State.

And a little ringing in of other interests.

AFTER wading through what is claimed to be the important part of the Anti-Trust Act and endeavoring to fathom the judicial constructions put upon it, the discriminating lay majority will agree in characterizing the whole matter (like the New York Times did a part of it with reference to the Standard Oil dissolution decree) as "the purest crystallized unreason." Going after and penalizing this and the Sugar combine, or any other trust that is operating "in restraint of trade" is proper and wholesome, but the unfortunate feature of the law as it now stands is that it will impose unjust hardships on many a business that is entirely legitimate. No wonder Mr. Taft is in favor of some amendments to the act.

WE take it for granted that there will not be even a man "bouncer" in the Suffragists' hotel about to be erected in New York, but we can't exactly figure out how they'll manage when a "gist" gets pickled in the rathskeller department of that hostelry and starts the rough house act, or what kind of a being will come to the rescue when a "gette" with closely manicured nails is about to have her peroxide switch torn off by a long clawed waitress who has not been sufficiently tipped. We will not rest until these points are satisfactorily settled.

How is this for a side swat at an erstwhile political warhorse of Maryland? It comes from the Philadelphia North American and is as follows:

Nearly twenty years ago Quay, who not only was United States senator, but who had been the Republican party's national chairman, worked in conjunction with Gorman, of Maryland, United States Senator and former national chairman of the Democratic party, to do the Sugar Trust's bidding in Congress.

The accusation is pretty rank, but the worst part of it is that the late senator's name is linked with Quay's.

So they are coming around at last to Mr. Warfield's plan for reducing the expenses of the Legislature by printing, instead of engrossing, bills! A somewhat tardy acknowledgement of the ex-Governor's honest endeavor to save money for the State, but nevertheless a very sensible move. As time goes on it will be found that Mr. Warfield had excellent ideas about very many things.

SINCE upon the education of its children and upon their civic and moral conduct in after life depends the welfare, the degree of civilization, the real greatness and the prosperity of the nation, no tax-payer in the United States should begrudge the expenditure of almost any amount of money, if that money be rightly used in training the youth of our land and preparing them for the responsibilities of good and enlightened citizenship.

THINK of the amount of Turkey it will take for the Thanksgiving dinner of Abdul Hamid and his eleven wives.—Schenectady Union.

Late private advices confirm our prediction. Ab. had so little to be thankful for that he tabooed turkey—likewise very sensibly, Turkish Trophies—and took hash.

NEVER volunteer to be the peacemaker unless you are prepared to take blows from one or both combatants.

Discussion of Affairs in General from Leading Journals of The Country.

Fire Cannon, Reform Rules. (Chicago Advance.)

But if we may believe the statements made in a volume on "The Speakers of the House," Cannon's claim of merely representing the will of the majority is the worst of hypocrisy. As an instance of the manner in which the speaker sometimes treats the majority, the author refers to a public building bill which was ready to be reported and which a majority wanted passed. A petition to that effect was signed by a majority of the members, but Cannon threw it in the wastebasket. He is a tory by nature and training, says the author, "aggressive, disposed to be arbitrary and addicted to having his own way." He has developed into the dangerous man in the speaker's chair who was dreaded when the Reed rules were adopted. He is the committee on rules and with it he has made the House of Representatives "the most arbitrary legislative body in the world." Responsible to but one congressional district for his conduct, Cannon has in practice apparently represented the 391 districts of the United States. In a word, Speaker Cannon conceives himself to be the majority, or in common vernacular, the whole thing.

This is "Cannonism," and it is not merely a personal disposition but a product of an evolution which has been going on since the advent of Henry Clay in the chair. The great Kentuckian ruled by persuasive power; Cannon rules by the brute force of his power to appoint all committees, to recognize whomsoever he will, to make the committee on rules absolutely obedient to his will, and so to manipulate the machinery of legislation as to crush all opposition.

The remedy therefore must be of a twofold character—it must apply to the man and to the system. Cannon should be relegated to the ranks, and the system should be reformed. As matters now are, the power of the majority to legislate has been largely displaced by one-man power.

Don't Drink Slave Cocoa. (Chicago Post.)

Probably one-half of the 125,000,000 pounds of cocoa which came to the United States last year was gathered by slave labor, it is said, on the Portuguese Islands of San Thome and Principe, in the Gulf of Guinea. The Anti-Slavery and Aborigines Protection Society of London has succeeded in inducing the English chocolate manufacturers—most of whom are of Quaker origin—to cease using this cocoa. A similar agitation in Germany has further cut down the market for slave-grown goods, but the supply formerly shipped to those two countries is now being sent to the United States.

Now a movement is on foot to close America to the traders who persist in using slavers for their ends. Some of the large American manufacturers—notably Baker, Lowmyer, Huyler and Maillard—do not use, or have agreed not to use, the San Thome and Principe product, and the agitation, it now appears, must be directed against a host of small chocolate manufacturers. The National Consumers' League has undertaken the campaign in this country with the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burt of London, who are familiar with the chain-gang and flogging methods of the Portuguese islands.

It is ordinarily difficult to awaken or guide the conscience of the consumer, who is notably careless, but the American prejudice against slavery can do it if anything can. As the details of the movement develop they will doubtless be given the assistance that publicity can provide and the American conscience can do the rest.

The Edge of Civilization. (Haverhill Gazette.)

In the recent lynching of a Negro at Cairo, Ill., the atrocity took place under the shadow of churches and school-houses. The veneer of civilization and Christianity is very thin and it takes but very little excitement to throw men back into savagery. The instinct of the primitive man breaks through all restraint when the courts and the jury system fail in the performance of their duty.

Taft And The Sugar Trust. (Washington Dispatch to the New York Evening Post.)

Much to Mr. Taft's dislike, it is inevitable that his own attitude should be contrasted with that shown by Mr. Roosevelt in the sugar fraud investigations. The most persistent and energetic efforts were made to get Mr. Bonaparte and Mr. Roosevelt interested in the evidence of frauds against the sugar trust, but without success. It must be confessed, even by Mr. Roosevelt's adherents, that his whole series of prosecutions of "bad trusts" came perilously near bordering on pure farce. In the beginning there can be no doubt that the trusts were greatly frightened by Mr. Roosevelt's preachments against them, and his off-expressed threats of action. But as his administration progressed the trusts became more composed, and at the end were openly amused, as were the members of Congress when the messages were formally read to them containing

Mr. Roosevelt's angriest outbursts and severest denunciations.

It is the commonest form of comment here on the prosecution by the Taft administration of the sugar trust that if it is successful, and the men "higher up" convicted, Mr. Taft will have done in the first year of his administration more than Mr. Roosevelt was able to accomplish in seven years. Mr. Taft is very impatient with those who venture to present this aspect of the situation to him. He does not permit in his presence criticism of Mr. Roosevelt, or of Mr. Roosevelt's administration. All the same, it is perfectly true that no trust prosecution of the Roosevelt regime was undertaken with the same fire, skill, energy, and intelligence that are now being displayed in the investigation of the sugar trust frauds.

A Farmer Who Failed. (Atchison (Kan.) Globe.)

Twenty-five years ago there lived near the town of Odebolt, Ia., a prosperous farmer named Hiram C. Wheeler. He had 18,000 acres of the best land in Iowa, and he farmed on the department store plan; that is, he tried all kinds of farming suited to that greatest of farming regions. He employed the best help at the head of each branch of farming. The planting, cultivation, harvesting, feeding and shipping the crops was carried on in a wholesale and scientific manner. His livestock usually topped the Chicago market, and commission men would even handle his shipments at a loss, in order to have it said they had been trusted with a Wheeler consignment. His wheat was cut at a certain stage of maturity, thus insuring high-grade product. His dairy was selected by experts, was well-fed, well-housed, and paid dividends, as did every branch of the great farm. Just what his income was is uncertain, but those in a position to know said Wheeler made more each year than the president of the United States; probably from $50,000 to $75,000 a year.

Then fell an evil day, when Wheeler was tempted to enter politics. His party, the Republicans, wanted a man to run for governor, and selected Wheeler, because he was a good man and because the farmers' alliance movement had made a farmer candidate the most likely. But the party was split over the prohibition question, and the opposition won with another farmer, Horace Boise. The defeat crushed Wheeler's spirit, the profits of his farm decreased, became a loss, and he sold out for half what it was worth. In Texas he tried again, first in the dairy business and then to raise figs. But neither proved a success. The big fortune dwindled, and, at last reports, Wheeler was penniless in Chicago, an example of what politics can do to a good farmer.

Socialists Force Strike. (Boston Transcript.)

Australia is now in the throes of a serious coal strike; which has its roots only to a small extent in trouble between operatives and owners, but rests more particularly upon an attempt of labor leaders and Socialists to force upon the Government the ownership of the mines and the abolition of private property. The State Government of New South Wales has stoutly resisted this pressure and will neither purchase and operate the collieries for its own requirements, or even temporarily to supply pressing public needs. This attitude is the more commendable since the strike leaders have openly declared that this movement was intended to force the hand of the Government.

Wanted Another Leader to God. (Springfield Republican.)

Mrs. Stetson's confession of faith in Mrs. Eddy, after all, did not save her. The directors of the mother church were unmoved by the declaration that "for 25 years I have gladly obeyed her leading in every question. I have always found that by doing this I drew nearer to God." With a hard-headed, masculine decision, almost painful to contemplate, the directors have dropped Mrs. Stetson from the roll of membership and she is a Christian scientist no more. Mrs. Stetson now faces the stern necessity of drawing nearer to God by some other route than Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy's.

Economy An Individual Duty. (Providence Journal.)

Mr. James J. Hill's persistent pessimism in the face of our unprecedented national prosperity is in a measure justified. He believes that there is a grave menace in the general tendency towards extravagance, and nobody with his eyes open will venture to dispute him on this point. Government, having increased its paternal functions, is constantly demanding new revenues; the armies and navies of the world, instead of contracting in these piping times of peace, are forever requiring added millions and tens of millions. Individuals of wealth, seeing their incomes phenomenally augmented, are prone to more lavish expenditure and display; and innumerable persons of lesser resources cannot altogether escape the golden contagion. Seemingly forgetful of the dictates of prudence, they spend to the limit of their income and frequently beyond it.

Paul on Self Denial. (World's Temperance Lesson.) Rom. xiv:10-21.

Golden Text—It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth. Rom. xiv:21.

Verses 10-13—Is the Bible a book of rules in any sense, or is it a book of principles only?

Principles never change, but may a good rule under one condition become a bad one under another? Give examples.

There was a controversy in the church at Rome between the Gentile and the Jewish believers about meats and days; but in the eyes of God was it in any sense a moral issue, as to which were right those who observed certain days and refrained from certain kinds of meat, or those who esteemed all days alike and ate all kinds of meat fit for food?

Did one Christian in Rome have any right to impute sin to another Christian who believed and, therefore, acted differently in the matter of meats and days, to what the objector's conscience would allow him to eat?

Does this commandment not to judge, forbid us forming an opinion concerning any doubtful action of our brother; and if not what does it forbid?

Today one party in the church thinks that renting pews is wrong, another that any kind of games in the church parlors are wrong, while others think quite the opposite on these matters; now has either party any right to "judge" the other party to be guilty of moral wrong?

What should be both the constraining and the restraining influence with us in all matters of conduct? (v. 12.)

Verses 14—Does God morally estimate actions in themselves or the motives which prompt the actions?

Give an example of how it is possible that one man may do a thing and please God, while another may do the same thing and commit sin.

How many outward actions can you think of that are always wrong under all circumstances?

It is feared that the illness of ex-Secretary of Treasury John G. Carlisle will prove fatal although he is in no immediate danger.

Verses 15, 16—If your neighbor is very ill and your singing and piano playing hurts him, and you refuse to deny yourself the pleasure of singing and playing, what kind of a person are you?

If you enjoy and drink your glass of wine, when you know wine drinking is doing vastly more harm than good, what sort of a person are you?

To what extent should I deny myself any pleasure the gratification of which hurts my neighbor?

No sensible parent will allow anything in his family, however good it may be in itself, if it proves to be injurious to the children, should he or not, apply the same principle to his neighbors?

Verses 17—Should our chief thought be given to the needs of the body or of the soul?

What does the Kingdom of God pre-eminently stand for?

What, in the last analysis, is the real wealth of the individual, the family, the community and the nation?

Can the highest good be enjoyed if the Holy Spirit is not recognized as its source?

Verses 18-20—What do we need to be, in order to be pleasing to God and to good men?

* Verse 21—If we deny ourselves things we enjoy, for the sake of others, what is the effect upon ourselves, and do we get as much, or more, out of self denial as we would out of self gratification? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

If all who drink wine, in moderation, would obey the principles of self denial in this verse, how long would it be before we should have total prohibition of the liquor traffic?

Lesson for Sunday, Dec. 5th, 1909. Paul on the Grace of Giving. II Cor. viii:1-15.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. ESTABLISH ORPHANS'
HOME AT HARNEY

Philanthropy of Late George W. Hoffman Gives Potomac Synod of Reformed Church Much Needed School.

By the will of the late George W. Hoffman, during his life a resident of near Harney, Carroll county, the Potomac Synod of the Reformed Church of the United States has fallen heir to two excellent farms situated between Harney and Littlestown, Pa., and $5,000 for the establishment of an orphan's home. This bequest became available upon the relinquishment by the widow of her share in the estate and was accepted at the recent meeting of the synod at Woodstock, Va.

The synod elected a board of directors to take charge of the farm and fund and empowered them to establish an orphan's home according to the terms of the will. This board held a meeting at the place last week and an adjourned meeting at Hanover on Wednesday. The proposed home will probably be in charge of Rev. Mr. J. Stewart Hartman of Woodstock, Va.

The estate consists of 190 acres of land and each farm has its complement of farm buildings in good repair. By the text of the will all male children are to be taught farming and all girls householdwork. Other courses of study usually pursued at such institutions will also be given at this home. When established this will be the only orphan's home under the care of the Potomac Synod. Heretofore all orphans taken in charge by the churches in this synod have been either sent to the home at Womelsdorf, Pa., maintained by the Eastern Synod, or to Greenville, Pa., the Pittsburgh Synod home.

POSEY—ROHRBACK

Wedding Bells at Gayfield, the Home of Ex-Senator Rohrbach.

The marriage of Miss Lauretta Jarboe Rohrbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rohrbach, of Gayfield, Frederick, to Mr. Fabian Posey, editor of the Frederick Examiner, took place on Wednesday last at solemn nuptial Mass in St. John's Church, Frederick. Rev. Fr. Kane celebrated the mass. Among his assistants were Revs. P. A. Coad and T. C. McGovern of the faculty of Mt. St. Mary's. The dean of the faculty, Dr. Lagarde, and Mrs. Caroline and Benedicta were also present.

As the family of the bride has been traditionally represented both at St. Joseph's and Mt. St. Mary's there was a large attendance of former students of both institutions. Among those taking prominent part in the ceremonies were Mr. Clinton McSherry, '07, Mr. Thomas Rohrbach, '08 and Mr. Joseph Willoughby, ex-'08; and of St. Joseph's, Miss Margaret Powers, '08, Miss Natalie McCarthy, '08, Miss Alice Galvin, '07, Miss Helen Rohrbach, '10.

Frederick has never before witnessed a more exquisitely arranged wedding party, the costumes of the bride and bridesmaids in particular being triumphs of millinery art. The capacious church of St. John's was crowded to overflowing by a distinguished gathering of relatives and friends of the families.

After the ceremony a sumptuous banquet was served at hospitable Gayfield, covers being laid for seventy five guests. Mr. Posey is a native of old St. Mary's county and a Georgetownian.

Mr. J. Lewis Topper Entertains 200.

On Thursday evening the home of Mr. J. Lewis Topper was the scene of one of the largest surprise parties ever held in this vicinity. Mrs. Topper's father, Mr. Joseph Florence, of Rouzer-erville, was sixty-six years old last Friday, and as he was spending Thanksgiving with his daughter, his many friends took this occasion to honor him. Over 200 guests were entertained, many coming from Gettysburg, Waynesboro and other neighboring places. The Misses Starner managed the event. Mr. Florence was formerly from this place.

Fatal Accident to Former Citizen.

News was received here of the accident in Arizona which caused the death of Mr. George Guise, brother of Hon. David Guise, of Liberty township. All that can be ascertained of the accident is that Mr. Guise fell down a mine shaft and was instantly killed. His remains, it is thought, will be brought here.

BUY IN FREDERICK

IT IS CONVENIENT TO DO SO.

Frederick is the logical trading place for residents of Frederick county and nearby sections of adjoining counties.

Three steam railroads and a trolley line enter the city, their schedules furnishing convenient transportation facilities.

Frederick has good hotels and restaurants, at which meals can be secured at low rates.

For persons who drive to Frederick, there are abundant stable facilities for the care of teams.

Well-lighted store-rooms make it possible to examine goods carefully, and proprietors and clerks are always ready to give courteously any aid needed in making selections or securing what is wanted.

There's no town in Maryland that has better stores.

There's no town anywhere in which you can do your shopping to greater advantage, or greater satisfaction.

There's no town anywhere in which there is keener competition--and keen competition means up-to-date and complete stocks of goods, and low prices.

Frederick's stores fear no competition. They ask only that what they have to offer be compared fairly with what the stores of any other city have to offer.

And when you come to Frederick to see what its stores have to offer, you will find a cordial welcome at every one of them.

IT WILL PAY YOU TO DO IT.

Frederick's stores are noted for the reasonable prices charged by them.

Rents and other fixed charges are lower in Frederick than in other cities, making it possible for Frederick merchants to put low prices on their goods--and they must make the prices low to meet competition.

This is true in all lines of trade. Frederick is well supplied with stores in all lines of merchandising, and competition keeps prices down.

Frederick's stores are prepared to match prices with the stores of any other city. They do not fear comparison, and if given a chance will prove to you that it will pay you to buy in Frederick.

THE OLDEST NEWSPAPERS

One as Far West as St. Louis.—Pennsylvania Leads All States.

Eighty-two newspapers constitute the Century Club of American Newspapers this year, that many having survived a century or more of publication, says the Atchison Globe. All but one of these are situated in states east of the Mississippi, the St. Louis Republic, which attained the century mark last year, being the single exception. It is a curious fact that the very oldest of these publications is to-day one of the most noted and prosperous publications of the world: the Saturday Evening Post, of Philadelphia. This paper traces its existence back in an unbroken line to Benjamin Franklin's Weekly Gazette, established in Philadelphia in 1728. The name was changed to the Saturday Evening Post early in the last century. Philadelphia is also the home of the oldest daily newspaper in the country, the Philadelphia North American, which, like the Post had its beginning with Franklin in 1728. It branched out and became a daily, however, in 1771, or four years before the beginning of the Revolution.

Pennsylvania leads all other states in the number of publications more than a century old, having nineteen in that class, while New York is second with fifteen. Ohio has nine publications more than a century old; Massachusetts, 7; New Hampshire 5; Connecticut, Virginia and New Jersey, 4 each; Maryland and Vermont 3 each; Maine, 2, and Georgia, Indiana Kentucky Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee and Missouri, 1 each. Of the New York City dailies, three—the Commercial, Globe and Evening Post—are in the century-old class, the latter established in 1735, being the oldest, and the only one dating back to the eighteenth century. The first newspaper established in the United States was Boston Post-boy, in 1690, followed by the Boston Public Occurrences, in 1699.

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, boasts the first newspaper, the Frankfort Journal, established in 1615. Antwerp, Belgium, had a newspaper the following year, and the first English newspaper was the London Weekly News, established in 1622. These are the dates of the origin of newspapers in the Western world, although Chinese authorities claim the Tsing-pao, or Peking News, has been published continually for 1,400 years.
