ANY ONE ELSE BUT PEARRE

CHANGE IS DEMANDED

Frederick County is Against Figure Head

SENATOR MATHIAS SOUNDS GOOD

Democrats and Republicans Both Keen for Strong Man to Represent This District in Congress.—David J. Lewis in the Game.

In the Sixth Congressional district especially in regard to the next election for congressman, things political are looking up. In Frederick county Mr. H. Dorsey Etchison favors his own nomination on the Democratic ticket while mention is being made of State Senator Mathias to lead the Republican ticket.

In opposition to Mr. Etchison's plans stands the little man from Allegany county, Hon. David J. Lewis, who gave Promising Pearre, our present representative, such a close run for the office at the last congressional election.

Concerning the Republican nominee: Before Sen. Mathias is chosen it looks as if there might be quite a struggle. Congressman Pearre is for Pearre, that's pretty well known. Besides this Promising Pearre thinks nothing good comes from Frederick county except votes for himself, and sees to it that nothing good goes to it as far as he is concerned. This is realized by all local politicians and the friendship felt for the man from Cumberland is not strikingly manifest. At the pow-wow in Baltimore last week there was little done to encourage the ambition of Pearre to succeed himself or even to name his successor. Frederick was selected instead of Cumberland for the place of holding the nominating convention and his enemies named the dates for the primaries and convention. As Frederick county seems to be the center of Pearre opposition and as the opposition is made strong by Frederick men it seems natural to suppose that some effort will be made to name a Frederick county man for the place. Under these conditions candidates are not lacking and as before said Sen. Mathias' friends may look forward to a struggle. Mr. William Schnauffer, president of the Brunswick Savings Bank, is to be reckoned with; Reno S. Harp, Esq., could be persuaded to run and there are others as yet too modest to make public their claims and fitness for the honor. It has been thirty-four years since the Halls of Congress have been graced by a Frederick county man and the time seems propitious for such a gentleman to assert himself.

Mr. Joseph C. Roulette, of Hagerstown, says he won't run although his friends are persistent in their efforts to change his mind. With all these so far named the people would be satisfied, in short, name any one other than Pearre seems to be the Republican public mind.

FROM OCEAN TO OCEAN ON FOOT IN SEVENTY-SEVEN DAYS

Twenty-Thousand Cheering People Welcomed Weston As He Arrived in New York From Los Angeles.

Edward Payson Weston on Monday completed his long walk across the continent, 3,483 miles, in 77 walking days. He left Los Angeles on February 1 last and finished in New York on May 2nd.

Weston is 72 years old and has been making long trips on foot ever since 1861 when he tramped from Boston to Washington, 453 miles in 208 hours, that he might be present at Lincoln's inauguration, money being scarce in the Weston family in those days.

When the grey-haired man reached New York fully 20,000 people welcomed him. Mayor Gayner presented him with a purse of $400 raised by the crowd who gathered around the City Hall where the mayor greeted him.

Conspicuous Cardinal Merry del Val.

Cardinal Merry del Val, who came into unpleasant collision with Col. Roosevelt, is to some extent a Londoner, for he was born about 45 years ago in Portman square, where his father, descended from the Irish family of Merry, was secretary to the Spanish embassy. He also received his early education in England at a private school near Slough, where his propensity for playing practical jokes procured for him the punning nickname of Merry Devil. The cardinal-secretary of state is one of the few members of the sacred college who can speak English with fluency, and is the only cardinal who plays golf.

For violation of the Interstate Commerce act the Standard Oil Company was fined $20,000 by a New York jury.

RALLYING RECRUITS

To Fight Weeds, Tramp Clods and Slop Pigs

"BACK TO THE FARM" MOVEMENT

National Farm Homes Association Proposed by Governor Hadley of Missouri to Show Them How.

With the high cost of living as an excuse and "back to the farm" as a motive Governor Herbert S. Hadley proposes the organization of a "National Farm Homes Association," with philanthropists as stockholders, the game being to furnish farms, equipment and instructions for worthy applicants who are seeking to escape from the cities to the soil.

With this end in view the movement was inaugurated in St. Louis yesterday at a preliminary meeting of interested parties called by Gov. Hadley. A committee was named and a call issued for a final meeting at which the association will be formally organized.

Headley's plan is to incorporate the association for $1,000,000, the stock to be divided into 1,000 shares of $1,000 each. These shares, it is expected, will pay dividends which will either be taken out by the stockholders or added to the capital.

It is then proposed to locate colonies on model farms in Texas, Missouri, Alabama and other States where land is cheap and fertile. Each farmer will be allotted 40 acres; a home will be erected for him, and fences, utensils and live stock furnished. Thirty-two of these 40-acre farms will constitute a colony.

Each colony will also include a central farm, presided over by an expert agriculturist, who will oversee the work on the farms, the proper rotation of crops, etc. Tenants will be given ample time to pay for their farms, and their profits have been figured out by Hadley as averaging $3,500 a year.

Each colony will have a school, where scientific farming will be taught in addition to the usual curriculum.

Entertainments will be provided for the colonists, so that farm life will lose the monotony that is now largely responsible for the rush to the cities, in Hadley's estimation.

Each group of 32 farms will cost complete, it is figured, $50,000, thus allowing 20 colonies, or 660 farms, on the original investment, the number of farms constantly to increase as the tenants pay off their indebtedness.

POLITICAL DREAMS OF NEXT DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS

Many Named For High Position.—Blair Lee, Joseph D. Baker, Buchanan Schley and Some Others.

Governor Crothers two years ago announced that he would not be a candidate for reelection. If he still holds to this he is not among the possibilities now being considered by the politicians for the important office of chief executive of this State. But the fact does not cause any serious thought to the Democrats for available men are plentiful.

Foremost among these, and the one that would be most pleasing to the people is the name of Senator Blair Lee, of Montgomery county. Another very popular choice would be ex-Governor Warfield. Then from Frederick county is Joseph D. Baker, who would find many friends were he chosen. Col. Buchanan Schley, Isaac Lobe Straus, William L. Marbury are also being talked of in this connection. It will be remembered that A. P. Gorman delighted many of Maryland's citizens at the time he announced that he would retire from active public life, since then he has rested and unfortunately may be selected.

Interest in the situation is increased by the fact that the next nomination will be made under the Lee direct system of voting, which places the primaries in the hands of the people. While the nomination is to be formally made by the convention, yet the delegates who will be elected to the convention will be pledged to vote for different candidates. The nominee is not selected according to the plurality of votes, but the nomination goes to the candidate who has the most delegates.

Ballinger Denies It.

"If I were disposed to consider the question of resignation I would not do so as long as these vicious and unwarranted attacks continue against me," said Secretary of the Interior Ballinger at Washington in denying the renewed rumor that he contemplated retiring from President Taft's cabinet soon after the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation is concluded. "I have no intention of resigning," he emphatically declared.

England gave Peary a gold medal.

RESULT OF MONDAY'S ELECTION

Elected, Samuel Rowe, Burgess; M. F. Shuff, E. E. Zimmerman and Dr. J. McC. Foreman, Commissioners

At the town election on Monday, May 2nd, the following ticket was elected:

Burgess—Samuel L. Rowe.
Commissioner for one year—M. F. Shuff.

Commissioner for two years—E. E. Zimmerman.
Commissioner for three years—Dr. J. McC. Foreman.

This was the ticket nominated and endorsed by the Business Men's Association to carry out the provisions of the new charter which was drafted and approved by that organization.

Unusual interest was felt in the election and the largest vote ever polled in the history of Emmitsburg is an evidence of this fact. The polls were open from nine in the morning until two in the afternoon and in that time out of the 169 registered voters 162 declared themselves by ballot. Two tickets were in the field and a great many of both were cut but none spoiled. The judges of election were Messrs. William Morrison and John A. Horner. The following is the result; the first named in every instance being the one elected:

For Burgess:—
Samuel Rowe ..... 159
Commissioner for one year:—
M. F. Shuff ..... 96
H. M. Ashbaugh ..... 65
Commissioner for two years:—
E. E. Zimmerman ..... 85
J. H. Rosensteel ..... 79
Commissioner for three years:—
J. McC. Foreman ..... 88
Oscar D. Frailey ..... 72

One vote was cast for M. F. Shuff for burgess and two tickets were voted that did not name a burgess.

MISS SIMONTON'S SECOND LETTER FROM CHINA

Celebration of the New Year Ushered in By Festival of Lanterns, Long Parade and Fireworks

GRAPHIC ACCOUNT OF THE PICTURESQUE SIGHT AND BIG CROWDS

Foreign Ladies Admired by the Curious Natives And Courteously Treated.—Gyrations of the Tremendous Dragon Carried by Ten Men.—Illuminations Crude and Tawdry Compared With Festival Occasions Here.

TSINAN, Shantung, China, March 2.—The festival of Lanterns, lasting three nights, took place last week and was a joyous time. There was none last year on account of the deaths of the Emperor and Empress Dowager, so this year it was participated in by everybody. For days before one could see the preparations. Lanterns of every description and of all sizes were everywhere. We went on the second night, when the revelry was at its height, and were fortunate in securing seats on the balcony of a large silk shop on the main street. To get there we had to go at 5 o'clock in the afternoon on account of the crowds thronging the city gates.

You know we are in the south suburb, so have always to enter the city gates—which are double, several hundred feet apart—whenever we go into the city. Five o'clock was too early for dinner, so we had our afternoon tea just before starting and carried with us a supply of sandwiches. There were nine in the party, four ladies and five men, all English but Dr. S. and myself. The ladies were in sedan chairs, the men walked by, while two Chinese servants walked ahead and made a way for us.

The streets were thronged with a happy-looking crowd, mostly men and boys, but with a good many women and little children. The open fronts of all the shops were full of people waiting for the evening's fun. We made slow progress through the crowds, but that gave us a fine chance to see the decorations of all the houses on both sides of the streets, and over the streets from house to house bunting and flags and lanterns, lanterns, lanterns! Finally we reached our destination, but saw we could not leave our four chairs outside in the crush, so we sent the bearers back with them and decided to run the risk of getting home in safety on foot.

The men in the silk shop were most courteous, but informed us that only the ladies could go upstairs to the balcony, as it would be occupied by Chinese ladies also and the men must stay below, so we had to separate, and presently we four ladies found ourselves seated out on the balcony with the street below a solid mass of upturned faces to see the foreign women. And so was it all the evening.

We seemed no end of a curiosity. Everyone who came along was told to look up, and that one passed the word on to the next one. It was rather disconcerting, but there we were and there was nothing to do but sit it out, for our chairs were gone and the streets by that time quite too crowded to attempt walking on the uneven paving, where a false step might throw one down, only to have the crowd close over one, or to get an ankle broken in one of the century-old ruts worn so deeply into the stones.

This, I am told, has often happened, and every festival of lanterns means death or broken legs to many a poor fellow. But the balcony was a fine place to see up and down the long street, across to other balconies filled with well-dressed people, seemingly family parties. They were eating, smoking and drinking tea when we arrived and continued to do so all the while we were there.

On our balcony were only women, but they too ate all manner of sweetmeats, drank tea and smoked their silver water pipes. The servants offered us cigars, watermelon seeds, peanuts, tea, oranges and pears. We accepted all but the cigars, so with the sandwiches we took with us were not hungry, and as we had taken an extra supply of wraps were quite comfortable during the long hours we sat up there.

But the hours, though long, were not tedious. There was much to look at, and after seeing the gradual lighting up of the shops and the decorations in the street there was the procession of the dragon and smaller ones of curious lanterns, shaped like shoes, flowers, fishes, etc. As one of the city electric arc lights was quite near us we could see very plainly all that passed by us. The gyrations of the dragon as it came down the long stretch were really lovely. As it passed I observed as closely as I could its makeup. There was first a huge head, which twisted this way and that to catch the spider that is always vexing it. You have observed, have you not, that whenever you see the dragon represented you also see the spider? Then between the head and the long, flexible tail, curling and twisting in a most realistic manner, there were eight joints. Each joint was a sort of cylinder about the size of a barrel, made of bamboo and covered with cloth and well lighted within. The joints were connected with yards of cloth, white with large black figures on it.

Ten men were required to carry the dragon, one each for the head, tail and eight joints. These men had practiced well, and knew just how to twirl and twist the thing, so that as it came down the long street, hedged in by a throng of men and boys, hooting and yelling, well lighted and twisting and writhing, it did present a realistic picture of one's childhood conception of a terrible dragon that could gobble one down with a gulp. As it drew near enough to see just how it was made and worked the illusion vanished, but left a good deal of admiration for the skill required to manufacture it and for the cleverness requisite to execute its gyrations.

Following in the wake of the dragon came fireworks—rockets, beautiful flower-pots and showers—and an unceasing noise of pack upon pack of crackers here, there, everywhere. I watched several men who carried long sticks wrapped around and around with cloth, and into this cloth were stuck the packs of firecrackers, with every now and then a cannon cracker mixed in. They lighted the pack at the end and then unwound and unwound, so that the explosions were unusually prolonged. I hope this Chinese idea will not be adopted by anyone at home on the Fourth of July, for it is about the worst form of noise from continuous explosions.

By the time the dragon had passed the crowds below were so densely packed together that albeit everyone was in a good humor, it began to look dangerous. Instead of having the people on one side of the street go to the right

TAFT PRAISES KNOX

Criticism of Zelaya Upholds State Department

IS AN INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL

Killing of Young Groce and Cannon Admitted to Be Unjust by Both of the Nicaraguan Factions.

In his speech at the Grant Day dinner in Pittsburgh President Taft spoke of Zelaya and upheld the State Department. He said in this connection:

"The course of our State Department with respect to certain small Central American states has been subjected to criticism, which to me seems wholly unwarranted. Turbulence and unstable conditions in Central America have a perennial occupation for the department of state. The great disturber of Central America in recent years has been Zelaya, the tyrannical and unprincipled president of the republic of Nicaragua. With respect to every plan for the promotion of pacification and friendly relations between the five republics, he played the part of marplot. When his brutal and cruel exactions drove a part of the people of Nicaragua into rebellion and an extended civil war, he violated the laws of war and the rights of American citizens, who had regularly enlisted in the ranks of the revolutionists, by taking their lives. He thus gave a right to the government of the United States to demand reparation and to decide, by reason of the character of his government—exemplified by his cruelty toward American citizens—to withdraw all diplomatic relations by a letter to Secretary Knox which gave full reasons therefor and which notified the contending forces in Nicaragua that the United States would hold each one to strict accountability were the rights of American citizens further outraged.

"It is undoubtedly the attitude of the United States toward Zelaya which so injured his prestige and brought him so clearly to the bar of public opinion of the world, as an international criminal that prompted him to abdicate and to leave his government to a better man. It is hoped that the war between the factions is now drawing to a close and that a far better government may be established which shall have regard to the interests of its own citizens as well as of those of friendly nations. The leaders of both factions, Madriz and Estrada, have admitted the unjust character of the killing of Groce and Cannon."

ATROCITIES CONTINUE UNABATED IN NICARAGUA
American Consul Receives Letter Re-counting Tortures Inflicted to Extort Confessions.
A letter written to the American consul at Managua, Nicaragua, says: "I think it best that you should know that those people are at their old work again. They are torturing men and even boys, whipping them, suspending them from the thumbs with cords, all this to wrench out confession from them. They have also burned property, pastures and wrought damage to an incalculable degree, but this we pass lightly out of mind. It is the rest I lay stress on. I am ashamed that such cruelties should be committed by men who profess to be Christians and are Nicaraguans—such ferocity is more the work of fiends than human beings. Under date of April 10, from Managua, a subsequent note to the American consul at Managua, from the same source, says that the author has received reliable information of 17 cases in which men have been hung up by the thumbs. He gives the names of the 17 victims, and the name of the man shot and two who were lashed. Another document, detailing those alleged cruelties and mentioning specific instances of insults to women by officers, alleging in one case that a woman was shot because she resisted a government officer who tried to assault her, has been submitted to the state department by Senator Castrillo.

The law which prohibits the sale of liquor by the glass and by the bottle over the same bar in Massachusetts, becomes operative in a year.
Only One of Its Kind.
The first number of the Journal of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology edited by Professor James W. Garner, of the department of political science of the University of Illinois, will appear this month from the Chicago office of the publication. It will be the only journal of its kind in the English language and will be issued bi-monthly.

ACCIDENTS IN BASEBALL

FEW AND FAR BETWEEN

Chances Are One Out of a Million For Player

A FEW SERIOUS ONES RECALLED

Hugh Jennings Incapacitated by Amos Rusie, Hoffman's Eye Knocked Out, Lush Almost Killed and Hart Lost His Chin.

It is surprising to know that only one baseball player out of 1,000,000 is ever seriously injured while playing the game. This is more astonishing when it is considered how swift the ball passes the plate with the batsman within a few inches of its supposed course, and the way the balls fly around in practice both batted and thrown. The Springfield Republican in an article of some length gives an account of several accidents that have marred the game.

Hugh Jennings, when with Baltimore, was hit by a curved ball from the speedy and famous Amos Rusie. Jennings stood close to the plate and got one full in the head. He fell flat. For four days his life was despaired of, but a powerful constitution pulled him through, though he never was the same nifty man again at the plate, and it was months before he could play.

Dan Hoffman, the center fielder of the Browns, was the victim of a blow at the hand of Jesse Tannehill, then with Boston, some years ago. Hoffman was at the time deemed the most promising young player in the American league. He was having his first season, and a most brilliant one it was. One day he made a triple, a double and a single off Tannehill in three trips to the plate. The fourth time up Tannehill hit him over the right eye. The optic was driven out on the cheek. It almost killed the trained and muscular young athlete. Hoffman lay as if dead, and it was four days before he recovered consciousness. Then his nerves were ruined. From 170 pounds he declined to 128. He could not sleep nor eat for six months and the following season saw him play with but one eye to see. Hoffman says it has taken him six years to get back his full strength. He has never been able to hit left-handed pitchers since that day. Now, six years after, Hoffman is at the mercy of the average left-handed pitcher.

"Johnnie" Lush of the Cardinals was hit by Andy Coakley on the neck and all but killed. His neck has never been straight since that time, and for years his health was so impaired by the shock that he felt that he was degenerating into a consumptive. Bresnahan of the Cardinals was hit and severely hurt by Jack Taylor in 1904. For a long time after this injury Bresnahan assumed a semimask that protected the exposed side of the head against the mistakes or designs of the pitcher. Hundreds

ARCHITECT HUSTON FOUND GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY
Jury Says He Falsely Certified Padded Bill for Desks at The Pennsylvania Capitol Harrisburg.
Capitol Architect Joseph M. Huston was convicted at Harrisburg, Pa., Friday of conspiracy in falsely certifying to a padded bill for desks for the state capitol, after a trial of almost four weeks and by a jury which deliberated almost 26 hours. The verdict was reached late Friday when the 27th ballot was taken. The verdict was accompanied with a recommendation for mercy "on account of his (Huston's) irreproachable reputation prior to this charge."

A motion for arrest of judgment, or suspension of sentence so that reasons might be presented for a new trial was made at once and granted. Huston was not in court when the jury handed its verdict to the judge.

America's Greatest Sculptor Dead.
John Quincy Adams Ward, one of America's greatest sculptors, died Sunday at his residence in New York, in his 80th year. His greatest work, one which Saint Gaudens pronounced the finest equestrian statue in the world, is the statue of Gen. Thomas in Washington. Among his celebrated works may be mentioned the one to John F. Reynolds, at Gettysburg, finished in 1871; the Garfield monument, one to Gen. Sheridan and the figure of Poetry all in Washington.

Archbishop William H. O'Connell of Boston, characterized Col. Roosevelt's action while visiting in Rome, as an insult to the Pope and further said John C. O'Loughlin, who conducted the negotiations with the Vatican, was a disloyal Catholic.

How He Became Chief of Scouts

Several "vets" of the civil war were comparing notes as to the why and wherefore of their advancement during their term of active service.

I enlisted in the ranks with the rest of the boys I knew in 1861. I didn't seem to have been cut out for a soldier. I was not easily disciplined.

Well, one day when we were cavorting around in Virginia, marching in one direction one day, another the next, never still forty-eight consecutive hours, not having had regular rations for some time, I got hungry and took the first opportunity to drop out and do a little foraging.

There was nothing in the place but a girl, one of the southern girls of the period, with an olive complexion and hair cut square around her neck.

"What d'y want?" she asked. "I'm looking for something to eat," I replied. "I saw the door opening out to the road very convenient, so I thought I'd just step in and see what I could find."

"That's just the way that door has looked to all the stragglers in the army," she replied. "There's not been less than 5,000 men come in here. At first we had some provisions, but they were soon eaten up by soldiers, so we didn't put any more here.

"Well, if there ain't I don't mind showing you where we keep our eatables. Do you see that wall? That shuts off a part of the cellar. Come upstairs and I'll show you how to get into it."

I went up to the floor above, and the girl opened a trapdoor. I went down and was looking about for a snack when I heard the door shut and locked.

There was no getting out, so after awhile I stretched myself on a table and went to sleep. I was awakened by a tramping above. The cellar was dark, so I knew it was night.

Hearing the clank of a saber, I listened to discover if some of our men hadn't come in. They were not Federals, but Confederates of high rank. I could hear every word they said.

When at last they settled on a plan to concentrate and attack our forces, they went over each detail again and again to be sure there should be no mistake. While they were doing it I was fixing it all in my memory so that if I got out in time I could warn our general.

In the morning the trap was opened and a couple of Confederate soldiers took me in charge. The girl wasn't there, but an old man and woman seemed to know all about my having been trapped. I doubt if either of them knew that their living room and kitchen had been used for a conference.

While I was on my way to the general with my information I wondered how I would explain my being made a prisoner without giving away the fact that I had been straggling. Then it occurred to me that my story wasn't very probable anyway.

The result of all this was that I was given a commission and a place on the staff of the general commanding, with charge of the scouts. During the rest of my army service I told lots of men how to scout, and after my remarkable feat in that line they all believed I was fully competent to instruct them.

F. TOWNSEND SMITH

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations. It is far better to confess ignorance than to pretend to the knowledge which we do not possess.—Rev. Dr. Curtis Lee Laws, Baptist, Brooklyn.

Power For Good. Who knows what a power for good under God you may be by simply acting quickly when a good suggestion comes to you?—Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, Presbyterian, Pittsburg.

Effect of Personality. Every man carries his own atmosphere and gives it off. Every man has his own ministry and power. You cannot hide your personality.—Bishop William Quayle, Methodist, Chicago.

A Truth of Great Value. If the world owed nothing more to the Bible than this one truth, that God is our Father, it would outweigh in value the literature of the ages.—Rev. Junius B. Remensnyder, Lutheran, New York.

A Harvest That Means Much. The most important harvest is not in Manitoba or Dakota or Illinois or any of the outside fields. The tremendous harvest is growing in your own nature.—Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, Presbyterian, Pittsburg.

God the Playwright. God reserves the right to compose the play and to assign to the different actors their parts in the drama of life in which he is ever using men to show forth his glory upon earth.—Rev. J. S. M. Lynch, Roman Catholic, Utica, N. Y.

Value of Pain. Pain is a great savior. Its warnings keep from death, teach us how to prolong life. It is foolish to think we shall ever conquer, overcome or learn to live without pain. It is right to avoid it, for that is the way of life.—Rev. David Utter, Unitarian, Denver.

Influence of the Spirit on Life. Everything depends upon the spirit with which we think and live. We must not serve Christ by rote. Our prayer book must not become a prayer wheel. We must not say our devotions as they might be said by a music box.—Rev. H. C. Swentzell, Episcopalian, Brooklyn.

Hope of the World. The religion of spiritual perceptions and spiritual fellowship, of spiritual aspirations and spiritual joys, is the hope of the world. Without it no nation can endure, for it alone gives to the moral law the sufficient sanctions of spiritual verities.—Rev. Dr. Andrew V. V. Raymond, Presbyterian, Buffalo.

The New and the Old. No man will get far unless he is fearless to fight for the new when he is sure that the new is true, but neither will he get far unless also he be reverent toward the old, unless he receives with gratitude the truth which the old brings. The man who would multiply his newly discovered and hitherto fruit must not ignore the tree upon which he would graft it.—Rev. C. W. Collier, Congregationalist, Bangor, Me.

Best Book and Best Friendship. Of all books the Bible is the best, for it passes as iron into the blood and gives vigor to the will. Of all friendships the sense of the companionship of the Man of Nazareth is the most invigorating. The power and purity of his life may be claimed and used in every hour of temptation. Devote yourself to God and you will find God fights the battles of a will resigned.—Rev. Dr. William C. Stinson, Reformed, New York.

One of Earth's Chief Blessings. There are blessings in family life. The natural life is the married life. Unless there is some good reason people should love and live together in the heaven ordained way. The tendency of young men to be satisfied with club life and of young women with commercial success is to be deplored. One of the greatest blessings in the world is a Christian home. Happy is the man who has had a good mother and has a good wife, for these are two of earth's greatest blessings.—Rev. W. W. Bustard, Baptist, Boston.

Hearing God's Voice. Whether we hear or not, God still speaks to us. When we are "disturbed" by the presence of elevated thoughts" truths of God are pattering on the surface of minds he would fain awaken to attention. In the occasional hours of our profounder experience God speaks to us from within us. Great realizations throb through our minds and startle us with a surprise which no sophistry can quell and no art of skepticism can exorcise. Ah, believe me! When the clatter of care is quieted and the evening shadows temper our minds to meditation we shall, like another Adam, hear the voice of the Lord God walking in his garden of creation in the cool of every day.—Rev. Dr. J. G. Van Slyke, Reformed, Kingston, N. Y.

Peace of Soul. There is nothing that men and women need today like peace of soul. The "worrying society" has a large membership and is continually replenishing its ranks. Men and women everywhere are in need of peace and a more quiet temper of mind. It is said that the patron saint for women today is St. Martha and the patron saint for men St. Vitus. These unhappy conditions of the soul are showing themselves in the people's faces. There is already the American type of face that reveals a worried, restless, unhappy condition of soul. Men and women seek for happiness and peace by absorbing their thoughts on the outer world. They establish a truce, but never effect a lasting peace. Peace and happiness will be found today just where they have always been found, and that is in Almighty God and in Jesus Christ, in whom he has sent.—Rev. Albert J. Lord, Congregationalist, Meriden, Conn.

Stella's Dignity.

"Glenn paid me a dandy compliment last night, mother—one that will please you, too," said Stella Harding. "He was talking about the girls in this block and how disgusted the boys were getting with them. He said the trouble with the girls round here was that they had positively no personal dignity, and he never seemed to take into account that I lived in the block myself. But he made up afterward for forgetting. He said not much, he guessed, he didn't mean me; that I was noted for my dignity with all the fellows, and he'd often heard them speak of it. What do you say to that?"

Mrs. Harding was listening with motherly satisfaction. "How did it happen to occur to him that you might be applying it to yourself?" she asked.

"I put it to him straight. I just waited until he stopped for breath, and then I said, 'Well, jiminy, Glenn, is this a slam?'"

"Stella, what a speech! There's no dignity about that!" "Oh, too, mamma!" was the laughing response, made without the slightest intention of disrespect. "That's just the way we all talk. Things like that don't count on dignity one way or the other—not in our bunch. It's how you act, don't you know?"—Youth's Companion.

Foxes' Scalps and Salvation. Some years ago at a session of the legislature of Kentucky an effort to repeal the law offering a bounty on foxes' scalps was made, but was defeated by the appeal of a member from a mountainous and sparsely settled region. "Do the gentlemen want to deprive my constituents and me of the benefits of hearing the gospel preached?" he demanded, with indignation in his tone and overspreading his rugged countenance. "We are all Methodists up my way, and our preachers won't come without we can give 'em chickens, I know. We can't raise chickens unless the foxes are killed by somebody, that's sure, and there ain't anybody that can afford to spend their time hunting foxes and get nothing to pay for it. So, gentlemen, if you repeal this law you'll be depriving my constituents of the benefit of hearing the gospel preached; that's the way it looks to me!" The law was not repealed at that session.—Argonaut.

Hairs and Feathers. Hairs are found on almost everything that grows, and, if we may so call the fine fibers of asbestos, they even invade the mineral world. From a piece of mineral asbestos quarried from the earth and looking like a stone with a satiny fracture the silken fibers can be rubbed with the finger till the lump is worn away.

Secure a feather somewhere—it will be much better than a picture—and you will see that it has a main stem or midrib. Along each side of this extend the thin part known as the vane. Look closely and you will see that this vane is composed of tiny feathers, called barbs, fastened together throughout their whole length from where their bases join the midrib to their tips. You can easily separate one of these from the rest, when you will see how like a tiny feather it is, with what seems a fine fuzziness along each edge.—St. Nicholas.

Astronomy. If there were any money to be made in astronomy everybody would be studying it. About all we can see is figures, and these are so big that they stagger the understanding. Every child in the United States knows how to find the north star (Old Polaris) from the pointers of the dipper, but no child can appreciate the statement that this star is distant from the earth 210,000,000,000 miles—two hundred and ten trillions! The Twentieth Century Limited, traveling at one mile a minute, would have to run without stopping for 479,000,000 years in order to traverse this distance. If light really travels 187,500 miles a second, a ray from the north star would be thirty-six years in reaching the earth.—New York Press.

Would Not Pay Charges. He was an impecunious nobleman with air castles in sunny France. After much deliberation he sent the following note to the pretty heiress: "Dear Miss—I love you, but do not know how to express myself. How would you advise?"

And the heiress penned the following: "Dear Count—Express yourself any way you wish except C. O. D., as you are not worth the charges."—Chicago News.

More Worry. "It used to be my ambition," said the business man, "to accumulate a fortune and then retire." "Well," answered the friend, "haven't you realized it?"

"No. I've got the money, but I don't dare retire. I've got to stay awake night and day to keep somebody from taking it away from me."

A Safety Match. "Papa, what is a safety match?" Mr. Henpecked (looking carefully to see if his wife is within hearing)—A safety match, son, is when a bald-headed man marries an armless woman!—Short Stories.

Couldn't Lose. "Things seem to be coming your way of late." "Couldn't be any softer if I was the hero of a poker story."—Kansas City Journal.

Steadiness of national character goes with firmness of foothold on the soil.—David Starr Jordan.

Where Greek Met Greek.

The marble clock in the dining room had just announced in mellow tones the hour of 3 a. m., when the wife of the plumber nudged him and whispered nervously: "Horace, there's a burglar in the house!"

"There is, hey?" answered the husband, now thoroughly awake. "I'll see about him." With cunning stealth he got out of bed and tiptoed out of the room. For ten minutes no sound broke the awful stillness. Then the house shook with a crash. There was a century of silence. Then a chair fell, the front door slammed and a heavy bundle thumped down the front stairs and into the street.

The terrified wife fainted, to be brought back to consciousness by the voice of her husband. "It's all right, dear. I threw him out," he chuckled as he turned on the light. "But the scoundrel had only $4.30 in his clothes."—Judge.

How Mayne Reid Won His Bride. It was through his novel, "The Scalp Hunters," that Captain Mayne Reid won a bride. He was thirty years old when he met a damsel of thirteen, with whom he at once fell in love. The child took no notice of him, but he gave her the story to read. Two years later the young lady was at a public meeting where Captain Reid spoke on behalf of the Polish refugees. "An electric thrill seemed to pass through me as he entered the room," she said afterward, and when the meeting was over she went up to him. "I leave for London on the next train," he said hurriedly. "Please send me your address." "I do not know where," she replied, with some embarrassment. He instantly handed out his card and was gone. A formal little note followed: "Dear Captain Reid—As you asked me to send you my address, I do so." By return of post came the answer, "Only say that you love me and I will be with you at once," and then the reply, "I think I do love you."

Whittier's Applause. In his declining years the poet Whittier was extremely absentminded. He attended a church meeting where there were a large number of persons. As his presence was known, it was deemed fitting by one of the speakers to quote the poet's lines:

I know not where his islands lift Their fronded palms in air; I only know I cannot drift Beyond his love and care.

Great applause greeted the quotation, and Whittier was noticed to join in the handclapping. "I suppose I must have had my mind on something else. I had no recollection of having written the verse," he said apologetically when his attention was called to the authorship.—Boston Post.

Legal Fiction. Says Sir Henry Maine in his "Ancient Law": "A legal fiction is the assumption which conceals or affects to conceal the fact that a rule of law has undergone alteration, its letter remaining unchanged while its operation has been modified. The fact is that the law has been changed; the fiction is that it remains what it always was."

New "Maryland My Maryland."

To some the revised words to Ran- dall's "Maryland, My Maryland," as ordered to be sung in the schools of Baltimore county are distasteful. Prof. John T. White, our county superintend- ent of schools revamped the martial hymn to a more peaceful purpose. The new version is given below.

We dedicate our song to thee,
 Maryland! My Maryland!
 The home of light and liberty,
 Maryland! My Maryland!

We love thy streams and wooded hills,
 Thy mountains with their gushing rills,
 Thy scenes our heart with rapture fills,
 Maryland! My Maryland!

In twain the Chesapeake divides,
 Maryland! My Maryland!
 While oceanward its waters glide,
 Maryland! My Maryland!

Yet we in thought and purpose one,
 Pursue the work so well begun,
 And may our State ne'er be outdone,
 Maryland! My Maryland!

Proud sons and daughters boast of thee,
 Maryland! My Maryland!
 Thine is a precious history,
 Maryland! My Maryland!

Brave hearts have held thy honor dear,
 Have met the foeman far and near,
 But victory has furnished cheer,
 Maryland! My Maryland!

"Sail on, sail on, O ship of State,"
 Maryland! My Maryland!
 May we, our children, make thee greet,
 Maryland! My Maryland!

May gratitude our hearts possess,
 And boldly we thy claims express,
 And bow in loving thankfulness,
 Maryland! My Maryland!

Don't forget Victor Infants Relief for baby. It contains no opiates.

Founder Gallaudet Resigns.

After fifty-two years of service, Dr. E. M. Gallaudet, founder of Gallaudet College, has resigned as president. He will spend his remaining years in an official capacity. He is seventy-three years old.

ACROSS THE LINE

Fairfield.—Mr. John D. Brown is building a new fence on the property he recently purchased. He is also mak- ing other improvements.

Mr. Kebil, proprietor of the hotel has invented a brooder for which he is seeking a patent.

The Fairfield High School held its first annual commencement on Monday evening in the school building and was enjoyed by an appreciative audience.

The High School was organized two years ago and the first commencement was proof of the wisdom of the under- taking. There were three graduates, Ethel C. McCreary, Anna M. Landis and Alma K. Slonaker. The complete programme was as follows, the music being furnished by a select choir:

Music; Invocation, Rev. E. W. Stone- braker; Music; Oration, "Joan of Arc" Ethel C. McCreary; Music; Recitation, Anna M. Landis; Music; Oration, "Lady Jane Grey," Alma K. Slonaker; Music; Annual Address, Rev. Oscar G. Klinger; Music; Presentation of Diplo- mas by Supt. H. M. Roth.

Rev. Father John O'Donnell has been designated as the successor of Father McDermott at Waynesboro. Father O'Donnell has been rector of St. Mary's Catholic Church at Fairfield and left this place last week to take up his work at Waynesboro.

Mr. Howard Sanders had several ribs broken while peeling bark. A falling tree caught him with the above result.

The Board of Health has asked the citizens to clean up the streets in front of their homes. The suggestion met with prompt response.

On Thursday evening of last week Mr. Henry Cool's house in Liberty township was discovered to be on fire by Census Enumerator W. P. Hull. While Mr. Hull was at the house tak- ing the census, one of the children opened the door leading up stairs. The stairway was filled with smoke and one of the bed rooms was in flames. An alarm was at once given and a buck- et brigade formed by the neighbors who soon got the flames under control. The contents of one room were entirely destroyed besides considerable dam- age done to the building. Mr. Cool is still suffering from the effects of the smoke he inhaled during the fire.

The toll gate house at Zora was rob- bed on Friday night. The keeper, Mr. E. Eyer, who is blind, was aroused by his wife who heard the noise made by the robbers who used a bench as a ram to break in the door. As soon as the thieves knew that the inmates of the house were aroused they left. Upon investigation it was found that they had secured $1.35, all but twenty-five cents of which was in pennies. As Monday was the time for Mr. Eyer to send in his monthly receipts he took the precaution of taking the greater part of the money with him when he re- tired. It is supposed that the thieves were familiar with the place and the helpless condition of Mr. Eyer, and al- so knew that he was about to send in his monthly receipts and thought it a good time to make a strike.

Miss Susan M. Shorb, who is spend- ing her vacation at her parents' home, is the teacher of the primary school of Washington township, Franklin county, that this year made a record in its number of pupils who did not miss a day of school that is probably not equaled in that county. Seventeen scholars were in daily attendance not missing a single day. The Waynes- boro papers were very complimentary in their notices of Miss Shorb's work. One of them states that she is one of the most successful teachers in the township and her pleasant personality has had much to do in establishing the record for attendance on the part of her young pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Shorb entertain- ed a few of their friends last Sunday at their hospitable home. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Sam- uel Myers, of Waynesboro, Mr. and Mrs. George Wilhide and daughter, of Keysville, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spiel- man and daughter, of Detour, and Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Ohler, of Emmitsburg.

Course of a Mad Dog.

A West of England paper recently published the following report of the career of a mad dog:

"The infuriated animal was soon tearing up High street at full speed, and we regret to state that it severely bit the Mayor's son and several other dogs which happened to be in the vicinity."—London Tribune.

Impulses.

"So you can't help stealing?" said the magistrate kindly.
 "No, your Honor; an impulse comes over me that I can't resist."
 "Too bad, too bad. An impulse to commit you for three months is getting hold of me. There! It's got hold. Three months; can't resist. Impulse is is a wonderful thing."—London Tit- Bits.

Baltimore City Collector Brown has almost declared himself candidate for Governor on a platform of low taxes and economy.

FRIDAY, MAY 6, 1910.

THE CHRONICLE will be independent in politics, progressive in spirit and a champion of what it conceives to be right.

[Editorial from The Chronicle, June 8, 1906.]

Calendar for May 1910 showing days of the week and dates from 1 to 31.

Communications intended for publication in this paper, letters of a business nature in relation to the Chronicle, and all orders for Job Printing to be done at this office should be addressed to THE WEEKLY CHRONICLE.

LET EVERYBODY HELP.

One of the most striking and commendable traits of the American people—indeed the very thing that stamps them American—is that which leads them to accept and abide by the result of the ballot.

In no place is this spirit more manifest than right here in Emmitsburg, a community made up of big hearted and progressive people ever ready to respond to any cause that will better local conditions and push forward their many and legitimate interests.

The local election is over, a splendid Board has been chosen and it only remains for the people—all the people—to cooperate with the new Burgess and Commissioners in their effort to administer the affairs of the corporation according to the terms and the spirit of the new charter.

PROVISION FOR RUBBISH.

Until a short time ago every householder was asking the question, "What are we to do with the rubbish that accumulates on our premises?" People were in a quandary.

From now on, however, there need be no anxiety about the question. Through the courtesy of the Emmitsburg Railroad a place has been provided, near the freight siding back of the engine house, for this purpose, and any and every body will be permitted to use it, subject to the regulation of the railroad and providing, of course, that nothing deleterious to health is placed on the reservation.

The courteous action of the Emmitsburg Railroad should be, and unquestionably will be, appreciated by the people, and as no possible excuse can now be offered for disposing of rubbish contrary to the law of the Corporation it may be taken for granted that the Burgess and Commissioners will give particular attention to this important matter.

BACK TO OLD PRINCIPLES.

SENATOR BAILEY wishes the Democratic party to go back to its old principles. At least, the Senator wishes it to go back on some of its new principles.

In days gone by the Democratic party truly had and held on to the splendid principles which it originated and of which it was justly proud. They were principles which, had they been adhered to would have led the party to victory more than once in recent years.

HERE is a bit of pretty sound advice for those who have a tendency to "blow up" at the slightest provocation. It is from the Atchison Globe the editor of which is a good student of human nature as well as a keen observer of things in general.

The man who can control his tongue has made the longest stride toward controlling his temper. The man who can get mad without blurting out his angry thoughts will finally get over it without exploding, although you might not think so.

"It is the consensus of opinion of those who have given the idea consideration, that if a movement in favor of Governor Crothers for president were given encouragement in the State the nomination might be secured," says the Free Press, of Greensboro.

ALTHOUGH each year old-fogyism is found tottering and stumbling about more wabbly than before, and though we may be certain that it will not be long until it will be literally on its last legs, we cannot escape the fact that even in its present advanced stage of decrepitude it causes no little trouble to all who would forge ahead and try to make the world a little better than it was before.

"We have fanned and cooled off the terrors of hell until there is hardly any fire left there," says a bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. Welcome news, no doubt, to many, and a cause for special jubilation to those who claim that they have succeeded in lowering the temperature of that dreaded place.

WONDER if Col. Pearre ever heard the story of the pitcher that went to the well once too often?

STRENGTHEN THE SPIRIT OF PROGRESS NOW AT WORK

Valuable Hints and Aids to Those Interested in the Progress and Material Betterment of Town.

The new charter governing Emmitsburg is liberal in its provisions and wise in its regulations. Under proper supervision and with the hearty co-operation of its citizens a new era of prosperity will be ushered in and things material will look up.

A "few rules for booming a town" from another exchange contains a wholesome warning. In part it reads—"Kick. Kick hard. Kick at everything. Don't pay a cent under any circumstances—advertising or otherwise—and kick continually. Refuse to enter any combination that will be a benefit to anyone but yourself.

Discussion of Affairs in General from Leading Journals of The Country.

One Of Taft's Reforms. (Philadelphia Press.)

In April every Congress talks of adjourning in June. It does this rarely. This year it probably will, because of the important and far-reaching reforms worked by President Taft in the preparation of legislation for Congress instead of waiting for legislation to shape itself.

When President Taft organized his cabinet he placed in it four strong lawyers, Knox, Wickersham, Ballinger and Dickinson. With President Taft himself, the cabinet was stronger on the side of law and practical legal experience than any for years past. Congress was to meet in December for general business. Long before it had assembled President Taft and his cabinet were at work on two tasks. They revised the department estimates, cut them $92,000,000 and sent to Congress the first budget in our history.

When Congress met the estimates were reviewed, revised and ready for consideration. They are farther along than in years before. Usually the committees are appointed in December. Chairman and leading members get to work on important measures. They are introduced in February. They come out of committees by April or later. Debate begins on them in May and runs to July or August.

This year the committees had before them draft measures in December. With time, knowledge and leisure the committees did in January and February what they usually do in February, March and April or even May. The bills were reported in better shape, because they were drawn by trained experts to begin with. For once in this work the best legal ability has been serving the people, who want legislation, and not the corporations, who oppose it.

Legislation is two to three months ahead of the usual record in Congress. It is being considered with deliberation. It will go to its inevitable trial in the courts well drawn. Congress can close in June if it acts promptly.

This is great reform. It improves legislation. It quickens congressional action. It saves blunders due to haste and inexperience. The reform is none the less great that it has come without bellow or bruit, but through the application of business methods to national business.

Force Of Habit. (Philadelphia Ledger.)

"Pardon me Governor," began the interviewer, "I—"

"Certainly, certainly," replied the Tennessee executive, reaching for a blank. "What are you guilty of?"

No Occupation. (Atchison Globe.)

If the census taker is occasionally greeted with a rolling pin, a broom stick or a kettle of hot water, instead of a polite response to his questions, it will be but an example of resentment trying to become justice. It will be unfair to the army of men entrusted with the official count, but it is what it is coming to someone. The man who devised the census blanks has classed housewives as "persons who have no occupation." The voice of several million women is raised in protest, but the protest will probably be unavailing, as the blanks have gone to press and are now in the field doing business. It may, however, soften the sting of a classification which seems to place indolent housewives on the same plane with the truck-riding tramp, to assume that the census commissioner was referring to gainful occupations. There are a lot of housewives who work fourteen hours a day, who will admit they have failed to locate the gainful end of their occupation.

A Little Wreck-Creation. (Annapolis Capital.)

If Halley's comet strikes the earth and the entire solar system should go to smash, the enterprising newspapers of the next day—if there were any—would refer to the matter as a little wreck-creation.

Not Entitled To It. (New York Evening Post.)

The House of Representatives, which is sometimes swayed in an unaccountable way by pure sentiment, appears to have maintained its sense of things when it refused to approve the bill reported from the House military committee authorizing the President to appoint Maj-Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, United States army, retired, to be a lieutenant-general on the retired list. While that committee recommended the passage of the bill, there was a minority report submitted, signed by the chairman of the committee, two other Republican and two Democratic members, so that the "committee" approval was by an exceedingly narrow margin and did not include the names of such influential members as Messrs. Hull, Stevens, Price, and Slayden. Much was made in the committee report and in the debate by the advocates of the bill of the fact that Gen. Sickles had a gallant record and that he lost a leg in the civil war. This was no more than several thousand men have to their credit, and who have been satisfied, or had to be satisfied, with a pension of $50 or less a month.

Gen. Sickles has been a distinguished citizen and has occupied lucrative positions in the government service, at home and abroad, and while holding such positions, including that of a member of the House of Representatives, he drew full pay attaching to the civil or legislative offices, as well as the full pay of a major-general on the retired list of the army. In the views of the minority members of the military committee, it was set forth that the government had given Gen. Sickles, in the way of army pay, nearly a quarter of a million dollars. He does not need the increase of $2000 a year which would come to him by being a lieutenant-general on the retired list, and he does not need the title as an additional honor to the distinction he already enjoys. It did not, moreover, add to Gen. Sickles' fame to appear in Washington on the day when the bill was before the House nor did it contribute to the dignity of his position when he appeared as an applicant for this unusual favor.

There is no doubt that the project is "bad legislation, uncalled for by any of the exigencies of the case," as was stated, in the views of the minority. It is, moreover, gratifying to note the disposition of Congress to stop this advancement of army and navy officers on the retired list, especially those who have high rank and should not require the extra emolument.

In Drastic Training. (Springfield Republican.)

The Republican party, stoutly declares the New York Tribune, never was in a healthier condition than now. It ought then to be in the very pink of condition when the purgative treatment is over.

A Look Ahead. (The Commoner.)

It is always unsafe to guess what ex-President Roosevelt will do at any future time or under any set of circumstances—the law for each day being announced that day, and sometimes late in the afternoon. But there are certain signs which, in the case of most men, would indicate that Mr. Roosevelt will return more of an insurgent than a standpatter.

First the Outlook, after its representative had met Mr. Roosevelt at Kartoum, contained two significant editorials, one praising young Garfield, and insurgent, and the other weighing the Taft administration and severely criticising certain phases of it. Second. He received Pinchot cordially and accepted his invitation to speak at the conservation convention.

Third. The stenographer to whom he dictated fifty-five letters gained the impression that he would make things interesting on his return.

Fourth. Senator Root goes to Europe to meet him after a long conference with President Taft.

Fifth. So far as is known he is not in correspondence with the President, whom he nominated and elected.

No Cause For Worry. (Houston (Tex.) Post.)

It is said that the expenses of the Roosevelt party in Europe are $250 a day. Well Teddy can write 250 words in 10 minutes; so what's the use of worry about it?

Hopeful Of Pennsylvania. (Philadelphia Ledger.)

This example of the power of an elevated personality ought not to be lost upon the practical politicians of other states. The situation in Pennsylvania to-day is not unlike that which existed in New York when Hughes was nominated for governor. There may be no one in this state to whom circumstances point so unmistakably as they did to Hughes; but he was even then quite outside of politics and had never been in public life; he is to be looked on simply as a type of the clean, forceful, upright and independent man of affairs to whom the people of any state would gladly commit their trust in preference to any mere representative of party. There never was a time, indeed, when party labels counted for less or party machinery was less esteemed. The ideals of public responsibility that are potent now cannot be satisfied by any perfunctory declarations. They must be embodied in the personality of the candidates, and the party that can go outside of its own roll of useful survivors to find a candidate of the type of Gov. Hughes is likely to elect the next governor of Pennsylvania.

To do this may involve, as it did in New York, the surrender of machine supremacy. But in any event machine supremacy is doomed. In spite of the long record of past success, it is very doubtful if a recognized machine candidate can be elected this year. The candidate of the regular party organization may be elected, if he shall be a man of known independence and force of character, with no entangling alliances of any kind. The Republican party can supply such men; the question is whether its responsible leaders have the good sense to put them forward as the New York leaders put forward Hughes at the sacrifice of their own command. If they have not, there is a very good chance of their losing both the command and the continued domination of the party itself.

Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club.

(Copyright 1909 by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D. D.)

May 8th, 1910.

Temperance Lesson—Prov. xxiii:29-35.

Golden Text.—At the last, it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder. Prov. xxiii:32.

Verse 32—What is the general rule concerning the first personal effects of bad, or good things, are they generally pleasant or otherwise? Give some examples.

Why is it that God has so arranged nature, that some of the most dangerous things look so pleasant, and taste so sweet?

Verse 29—Why is it that none of us are exempt from trouble?

What is the difference in the effect of trouble caused by our own sins, and trouble which comes from providential causes?

Is a self-inflicted wound worse than any other? Why, or why not?

Verse 30—What is the effect upon the individual, his family, and the community when a man taries long at the wine?

What is the effect when a man drinks wine in so called moderation?

Verse 31—What proportion of the victims of drink, have deliberately started out to become drunkards?

What are the first steps to the life and destiny of a drunkard? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Which is the wiser, and stronger man and why—the one who shuns the first approach of a temptation, or the one who carefully looks at it, and deliberately feels its charm, and then refuses its solicitation?

Is it, or not, always a legitimate source of pleasure to feast our eyes upon beautiful sights, our ears upon pleasant sounds, and to inhale sweet odors? Why?

Give a reasoned answer as to whether it is ever right to be governed by our senses?

Verse 32—Specify some of the things which drink does for a man? Describe some of the horrors of delirium tremens?

In considering an act, or a habit should we be governed by it present or its ultimate results? Why?

Verse 33—Is the drink habit generally or ever a single vice, or does it always engender other vices, and, if so what are they?

When any kind of sensual temptation assails a man, or a woman, under the influence of drink, what are the chances of its being resisted or yielded to?

How much confidence can you place in a promise or an opinion, or a sentiment, uttered by a man under the influence of drink?

Verse 34—How does a man not a sailor, feel on "the top of a mast," and what analogy is there between such feelings and the sensations of a drunkard?

Verse 35—Compare some conscious and unconscious hurts, either spiritual or physical, and say which are the more dangerous?

What is the fascination, or the cause, which influences drinkers to keep on in the course which they know is ruining both body and soul?

Lesson for Sunday, May 15, 1910.—Growing Hatred to Jesus. Matt. xii: 22-32, 38-42.

TO PATRONS OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Discussion of Educational Problem Prepared by Public School Teacher.

The teachers of Frederick county have formed a press association and propose from time to time to furnish articles for the public press with the idea of creating a spirit of closer cooperation between the schools, their teachers and the patrons.

"It is by far too much the tendency in these days to consign the education of the child entirely to the school, and parents often find fault with the progress of their children, with the subjects taught and the method employed.

We all know how easy it is to criticize, but it is not so easy to point out the remedy. Then, too, lack of proper investigation often brings unmerited criticism. The parent often asks the child to read aloud from the newspaper and if the child stumbles or mispronounces difficult words, the parent at once condemns the school.

Or perhaps the child is asked to spell some word he has never heard, or he is asked to locate a certain small town that is hardly large enough to be on the map, the decision is at once made that the school is a failure.

"I believe our schools are making better readers, better spellers, better mathematicians and better users of English in this year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and ten, than ever before in the history of the world.

And so, we deny the charge that our schools are a failure; but that the best education for the child is not yet reached by far, we readily admit. That we may approach more nearly to the ideal, I would like to make use of all the factors that may be and should be employed to that end.

Who then are responsible for the education of the child? There are at least five factors, namely, the home, the school, civil society, the state and the church.

Each of these has its allotted duty, which if neglected can scarcely be provided for by any or all of the others. We will consider one of these factors each month. Next month will appear 'The home training of the child.'

OLD MATCH HOUSE GONE

Thurmont's Historic Building Loses Its Identity Through Repairs.

Thurmont's most interesting and historic building the little stone house on the south side of West Main street, has almost lost its identity through the recent repairs and additions made to it by Mr. Rudolph Eyer. This building was the first match factory in America.

It is proposed to erect a handsome building in Gettysburg to house the cyclorama of the great battle. Gentlemen interested in the project have been on the ground looking for a suitable site.

The officers of the Gettysburg Cyclorama Amusement Company are as follows: Major-General C. F. Humphrey, U. S. A. retired, president; S. M. Bushman, Gettysburg, vice-president; Harry S. Snyder, Gettysburg, treasurer; John B. Randolph, Washington, D. C., secretary; E. W. McConnell, Chicago, general manager; W. H. Matthews, general manager.

The directors are the following: Major General Humphrey, General L. L. Lomax, Hon. Benjamin K. Focht, Admiral A. R. Couden, Hon. Thad. Mahon, W. B. Matthews, George J. Roesch.

School Board Elects Officers.

At the last meeting of the Board of School Commissioners held in Frederick Wednesday, Rev. Isaac M. Motter was re-elected president, Prof. John T. White, secretary, treasurer and county superintendent.

Two new commissioners were received into the board, Messrs. A. W. Nicodemus, Jr., and John C. Leatherman. By action of the Board Whit Monday, May 16, was declared a school holiday.

Result of Taneytown Election.

At the election this week in Taneytown a regular citizen's ticket was elected, as follows: Samuel H. Mehring, for burgess; Edward E. Reindollar, Edward Kemper, Judson Hill, George A. Arnold, Dr. Frank H. Seiss, commissioners. Some independent opposition was made, but out of a total vote of 157, the largest cast for many years, received but 15.

E. H. S. 2; B. H. S. 11.

The Emmitsburg High School nine went down to defeat yesterday afternoon before the strong Brunswick aggregation. A feature of the game was the base running of Kerrigan, and he was the only local man to make a hit.

Assessors Not Satisfied.

The assessors appointed by the County Commissioners qualified on Tuesday morning. As there is no extra compensation for the clerical work, these gentlemen acting as clerks, much dissatisfaction was felt. It was understood that they were to receive two dollars a day over and above the regular per diem five dollars.

"GOOD WINE NEEDS NO BUSH"

This Expression Very Applicable Here Where All Know Harry Hopp.

In the epilogue of Shakespeare's "As You Like It" appears the expression "good wine needs no bush," and among the explanations of the phrase is one which informs us that in the olden days the wine merchants hung a small bush—usually pine—in front of their places to indicate that palatable refreshment could be obtained within.

There were some who kept such excellent stocks that in course of time patronage came to them solely on this account. Then the bush was done away with, for everybody knew where the wine was.

In Emmitsburg everybody knows Harry Hopp and everybody knows that he sells good wine and liquors. His business is wholesale, and whether it be table wine or beer or liquor for beverage, medicinal or cooking purposes, Harry Hopp—successor to H. C. Harner—can supply the wants of all.

And if it is some special brand that is needed, he will get it, and get it promptly. Hopp's place needs no bush.

Frederick's Banking Business.

The Frederick Clearing House Association's report for the year ending Monday last shows a total of $13,066,996.24, which is the largest of any year since the organization of the association. The figures for the past year show a gain of $1,107,390.46 over the year ending May 2, 1909, when the clearings were $11,959,605.78. The previous year the clearings were $10,899,112.36.

The balances during the year show a total of $3,256,526.26, a gain of $331,338.12 over last year, when the balances were $2,925,188.14. The showing for the present year is considered a remarkable growth by local bankers. Mr. Edwin C. Markell, of the Frederick Town Savings institution, is president of the Clearing House Association.

Runaway Hurts Mail Carrier.

On Monday afternoon Mr. James Bishop, rural mail carrier, was badly hurt in a runaway accident. His horse became frightened at some store boxes near the residence of Prof. Jourdan and became unmanageable. Mr. Bishop was thrown out on his face and beside several ugly skin wounds he was much bruised. The buggy was badly broken and the mail, money, postal cards, etc., were scattered over the road.

MISS J. MARIA COLLIFLOWER.

Miss J. Maria Colliflower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Colliflower, died on April 28 at the home of her parents at Graceham, aged 15 years, 9 months and 18 days. The funeral took place Sunday at 11 o'clock. Services were held in the Moravian church at Graceham, conducted by Rev. Mr. Huebener, and interment was made in the cemetery adjoining the church.

MARTIN SLAGLE.

Martin Slagle, a well known citizen of Harney, died suddenly on April 27. In the afternoon of that day he was on his farm helping his tenant at pulling watercress. He went home and was engaged at work around the barn, fell over and was found dead. He was 72 years old. Funeral was held on Sunday, interment at Woodsboro cemetery.

Myersville Relieved of Ridgely.

At last the bellicose burgess of Myersville must step down. Robert Ridgely no longer governs. He will sit no more on prisoners and look down the pike for the sheriff. Young men and maidens are relieved of the terror of his mighty fist and the cruel lashings of his bitter tongue. Robert Ridgely sinks to oblivion. All this is but the introduction to the news item that Myersville elected Samuel Pattengill Burgess and George W. Bittle, John Horine and Melvin Shepley Commissioners.

Walkersville for Fire Protection.

At the annual corporation election in Walkersville John W. Strine, Jacob L. Crum and Robert Moberly were elected commissioners. Two tickets were in the field and a larger vote than usual was polled. The plan to increase the tax rate of the corporation from 20 to 32 1/2 cents on the $100 won by a majority of 17. The increase in taxes is for fire protection. Party lines were disregarded.

EMMITSBURG WINS DEBATE

Large Audience Hears High School Debate With Brunswick School.

Last night the local high school debating team won from the Brunswick school in the discussion of the question "Resolved, That Immigration to the United States should be further restricted by law." The Emmitsburg boys, Messrs. Thomas Frailey, George Stokes and Lawrence Mondorff, took the negative side and were adjudged the winners. Their opponents were Messrs. George Roeder; George Grubb and Myer Kaplon. The judges were Prof. Wentz of Gettysburg College, and Rev. Wheeler, of Taneytown.

Beside the debate the audience was further entertained by several musical selections by Master George Roeder, whose ability in this line, considering his youth, is remarkable.

ANOTHER AERIAL PRIZE OF $50,000 OFFERED BY ENGLAND

Paulhan Given Check in Gold Casket.—From London to Edinburg and Back The Next Prize Event.

England is now as enthusiastic over aerial flight as France. As an evidence of this fact immediately after Louis Paulhan was presented with a check for $50,000, which by the way was encased in a gold casket, steps were taken for another competition for a similar prize of $50,000. Paulhan was given the handsome prize above mentioned for his flight from London to Manchester, by the publishing concern headed by Lord Northcliffe, before a distinguished company at London.

It was later announced that the new $50,000 aeronautical prize will be given to the first British aviator flying from London to Edinburg and back. The distance between the two points by rail is 409 miles.

Frederick's Annual Musical.

The annual music festival of Frederick will be given this year on May 24 and 25, when "The Bohemian Girl" will be sung. Thieves at Pen Mar.

Thieves have been operating with more or less success at Pen Mar during the last week. Three places were burglarized. The bowling alley and store of H. C. Crilley was entered and a lot of candy and cigars taken. The candy kitchen and Mr. Libbey's cottage were broken into, and some articles stolen. An unsuccessful attempt was made to rob the store of H. H. Myers.

House Burned at Bruceville.

Fire thought to have to have originated from a spark from a passing locomotive burned the house of William H. Ott at Bruceville, with nearly all its contents. The flames started under the roof, and when discovered had gained too much headway to be checked. As much of the furniture was removed as possible. The loss is about $1,800, nearly covered by insurance.

Frederick Again Wins From Locals.

Mt. St. Mary's baseball team was defeated by the Frederick Y. M. C. A. at the latter's grounds on Tuesday. This is the second game lost by the collegians to Frederick. The score was 8 to 3. Engle was a little wild in the third inning and five runs were scored. Guy Sebald, of this place, caught for the college. He had one hit off Muth and one passed ball.

Priest Aids Boys and Bank.

Father Samuel J. Kavanaugh, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church, Liberty, and a director of the new Libertytown Bank, presented each of his altar boys with a sum of money and went with them to the bank, where they deposited it. The gifts were starters for savings accounts.

Taxpayers Will Get $5,000,000.

The court of claims at Washington rendered a decision that certain tax collection on legacies made as a result of legislation enacted to carry on the Spanish-American war should be refunded. The decision means the return to the taxpayers of about $5,000,000.

Thurmont realizing the advantages to be derived from civic cooperation has organized a Citizens League or Business Men's Association for the purpose of "boosting" that town. This is in line with the progressive spirit of most Maryland towns—especially Emmitsburg.

MISS SIMONTON'S SECOND LETTER

and the other to the left, they were hopelessly mixed and the way the same person got turned and twisted around and around was really comical to see, even though one had fears for his safety. Once only did I see a fight. Two men seized each other's queues and one was thrown to the ground and the crowd seemed to close over him, but a policeman had seen the occurrence and, quickly brandishing his sword to left and right, he made a path to the fallen man and helped him to his feet. Another time I saw a policeman clear a path to where a little child had fallen and lift him up. That was an intense moment, as he struggled among the surging masses, guided to the spot by a woman's shrieks.

Several times men swinging long sticks opened a path for an official in his sedan chair, preceded by a squad of soldiers and several men on horseback, both in front of and following the chair.

And so the hours wore on, and still we watched the crowds in the streets, always changing yet ever the same; saw the fireworks to the right, to the left, both near and afar off, and the swinging lanterns; heard the clang of cymbals, the notes of fifes, the beating of drums and tom toms, the unceasing noise of the firecrackers and, above all, the hum of human voices in the streets. Compared with parades and illuminations at home all was crude and tawdry, but taking it all in all it was very picturesque and very oriental looking.

The people in the streets were poorly dressed; those in the balconies and in the shop fronts were well dressed. Sometimes groups of eight or ten young men, with their hands on each others' shoulders to keep themselves locked together, would push their way through the crowds, just as young men or boys would do in a crowd anywhere. Some were masked and dressed in clownish fashion, adding to the merriment in that way.

When there seemed to be sufficient abatement in the revelry for us to venture forth we started along the street to the West Gate in this way: First, a man swinging a long stick to make a pathway for us; then two policemen who kindly volunteered to lend their services; then two men of our party, the four women walking two and two, and the other three men and two servants to bring up the rear. Thus we wended our way among the throngs of people until safely outside the gates, where the policemen and the man with the stick left us, and we proceeded homeward slowly, because we were in the midst of many of the revelers. I found myself walking side by side with a dragon, while another animal kept my companion company. We thought it was a mammoth rooster until we discovered it had four feet, and since then we have been at a loss to know just what beast or fowl it represented. Then, with rockets still shooting up in the sky on every hand, we came home to warmth, a hot supper and a comfortable bed, while the noise of exploding firecrackers continued in our dreams.

And now all the festivities of the New Year are over. The shops are open again and once more the workmen are seen in their everyday clothes. Their holiday attire is laid away for another year. The first of the season's kites have been seen--sure evidence that another springtime is at hand.

of lesser lights have been injured to a degree less serious than those above mentioned. It all goes to show that baseball is not without its great dangers, especially to men at the bat. Most of the injuries on the field have come about through collisions between fielders, such as that in which Hub Collins died when he collided with Harry Stovey at Boston, many years ago. But field accidents have been infrequent and unimportant compared to those which have taken place between pitched balls and batters at the plate.

Batted balls injure very few players. The most notable accident of this sort that ever occurred was when Schriver of Pittsburgh hit Pitcher William Hart of the same club on the chin with a ball batted in practice. The line drive shattered Hart's jaws, and his face fell down upon his breast, "like a beard," as one player who saw the accident described it. It was wired up again and the man given a semblance of human appearance. Hart is now 50 years old and is rated the best pitcher in the Southern league. Withal, the paucity of accidents in baseball is a tribute to the great skill of the players.

Mark Twain on Advertising.

When Mark Twain was editing the Virginia City "Enterprise," writing copy one day and musing the next, a superstitious subscriber once wrote and said he had found a spider in his paper. Was this good or bad luck? Twain replied to him in the "Answers to Correspondents" column as follows: "Old Subscriber—the finding of a spider in your copy of the 'Enterprise' was neither good luck nor bad. The spider was merely looking over our pages to find out what merchant was not advertising, so that it could spin its web across his door in anticipation of leading a free and undisturbed existence forever after."

CONFINED IN ICE HOUSE FOR TWO DAYS AND NIGHTS.

Missing Wilson College Girl Thought To Have Been Suicide Found Almost Dead by Ice Man.

Last week the authorities of Wilson College, Chambersburg, one of the large colleges for women under the control of the Presbyterian Church, were very much exercised over the disappearance of Miss Carola Craig. The young lady, it is said, had been dismissed from the institution and at the time of her disappearance was visiting her aunt. The day she left a note was found which seems to have indicated that, suffering under the disgrace of her dismissal, she had committed suicide.

On Saturday she was found in an ice house in which she had been accidentally confined. For two days without food she had waited for someone to open the heavy door. She says she was out walking and noticing the icehouse door open walked in. Soon afterward she found the door had blown shut and tried unsuccessfully to open it. She screamed and pounded on the door, but could make no one hear her. Unable to sleep, she passed the night in walking around to keep up circulation.

She managed to quench her thirst with ice, but there was no food. The day passed and then another night, with no food and the ice chill numbing her flesh.

Third Sutton Inquiry Ordered.

There is to be another investigation into the circumstances surrounding the mysterious death of Lieut. James N. Sutton, of the Marine Corps, at Annapolis three years ago. This time the probe will be inserted by authority of the House Committee on Naval Affairs through a sub-committee of six of its members. Preliminary steps have already been taken by an official call for the voluminous record in the case. The sub-committee intends to make a thorough and impartial analysis of the testimony taken at both of the Annapolis investigations and ascertain whether there is anything in the evidence upon which the Navy Department has twice acted to support the contention of Mrs. Sutton, mother of the unfortunate officer, that her son was neither accidentally killed nor the victim of suicide.
