APPLES IN WESTERN MARYLAND

good. It is neither sandy nor stiff clay but a loose and friable clay loam that suits the growth of apple trees to such an extent that they attain immense size and live to very old age. Chance seedlings come up almost anywhere and persist in holding their own against all opposition but the ax and fire. There is no question about the suitability of the soil and this has long been known, for there are large commercial orchards that have been bearing there for many years past, and on the Virginia and West Virginia side of the Potomac River as well. But somehow there has been almost no attempt at exploitation by the Western Marylanders of their pomological resources. There is room for thousands more of the best of apple orchards. The cost of establishing an orchard there is no greater than elsewhere. A reasonable outlay and a few years time will increase its value ten times at a moderate estimate.

As to the appearance and rich quality of the apples grown, there is abundant evidence. There is held every year a meeting of the State Horticultural Society, at Baltimore, and a fruit show is always an interesting accompaniment. Year after year, the apples of the Appalachian section of the State are shown to the thousands of visitors who come to see them. These apple shows, splendid as they are, are not equal to those in Hood River, Oregon, or of Yakima or Wenatchee, Washington, because the people have not waked up to the reality of their opportunities. They do not give the same attention to thorough tillage, faithful spraying, and careful grading and packing of the fruit. But when they do come to know the priceless value of a good name in the market, they will work for it and then keep it sacred, as the western growers do. They have yet to learn the value of the bushel box, as contrasted with the barrel, no matter how good the apples within may be to look upon or how rich the flavor. A few and but a very few, have learned the a, b, c, of this lesson and are testing their skill at putting their apples into market in boxes. Of the different methods of packing they know almost nothing, and there is a world of difference in the way fruit is placed before the public eye. Western Maryland has good apples, beautiful apples, deliciously flavored apples, but those who market them but lightly appreciate their true worth, judging by the way they grade and pack them. Some day the apples of the Appalachian Mountains will rival those of the Rockies and the Cascades in the markets of the world. That day will not come until the growers do the same things that are done across the Continent. But they will do it when their eyes are opened to the fullness of the privileges that lie before them, now mostly unseen. They are living in an apple paradise and do not know it. Others will step in front of them and inherit the blessings, by dint of mere good sense.

The markets of the world lie at the foot of their mountain peaks. Not only are the cities of the eastern and central States within less than a day's run of an ordinary freight train but the great ports are likewise there, whose thousands of ships reach the very ends of the earth. The trade in American apples has only begun, both at home and abroad. Our people are learning that good apples are of more real value than oranges and other similar fruits and they will pay as much or more money for them. The foreigners are of the same opinion and all they ask is something good, honestly packed, that is alike from top to bottom of the package, and they will pay good money for it and call for more. There is no more danger of the upper grades of the apple market being overdone than of that for beef, pork, wheat, or any other staple article of food. As I have traveled over the hills, valley and mountains of Western Maryland and neighboring sections, the peculiar suitability of that country for making good homes has impressed me deeply. It is a good place to live. There is good soil, out of which comes about all that we need to live upon. There are thousands of springs of living water, pure and cool, fresh from the filtration plant that the Creator made Himself and at no cost to the human race. There is timber in abundance for all ordinary uses. The scenery is always charming and in some places inspiring and magnificent. All that is needed to make more of these homes, of which there are many now, and to surround them with orchards that shall enrich the owners, is the hand of man, intelligently used.

Thirty persons were drowned when the Pere Marquette car ferry, No. 18, bound from Ludington to Milwaukee, sank in the middle of Lake Michigan. Thirty-five were rescued by a sister ship which was summoned by a wireless.

NEW FACES IN WASHINGTON

Senator Culberson's ill health may cause him to retire from the race. Senator Frazier, of Tennessee, is not expected to be re-elected on account of his factional affiliations. Representative Butler Ames is making a stiff fight to defeat Senator Lodge in Massachusetts, with the odds at this time in favor of Lodge. Of the entire 30 Senators now up for re-election only Senators Clapp, of Minnesota, Clarke, of Wyoming, DuPont, of Delaware, La Follette, of Wisconsin, McCumber, of North Dakota, Oliver, of Pennsylvania, Page, of Vermont, Rayner, of Maryland, Scott, of West Virginia and Sutherland, of Utah, seem certain to "come back."

The Democrats stand to gain seven Senators. They are expecting to capture seats from Indiana, Nebraska, Montana, New York, Nevada, Ohio and Missouri, provided the party sweeps the country, as they now predict. Insurgent Republicans have a chance to win in Michigan, California, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Washington. They cannot win in any other States and do not hope to do so.

Each of the Democratic States electing Senators this fall will send to Washington members of their party. Claude A. Swanson has already succeeded Senator Daniel, Charles T. Cates will probably defeat Senator Frazier, of Tennessee. John Sharp Williams will come to the Senate from Mississippi, Senator Rayner has been re-elected from Maryland and Governor Broward will come to Washington in place of Senator Taliaferro, of Florida.

Farm and Garden

ANTI-FAMINE INSURANCE.

New Science of Fertilizing by Inoculation of Seeds.

The most expensive manurial substance the farmer has to purchase is the commercial fertilizer which contains nitrogen, such as nitrate of soda, guano, tankage, etc. Nitrogen, which forms four-fifths of the atmosphere, is a necessary ingredient in animal and plant food. The nitrogen in the air should supply the ground with plant food, but nitrogen is hard to catch, or "fix," as the process is technically called, and, while it is possible to secure it with the aid of static electricity and also by chemical processes, the cost is at present prohibitive. When living things die or animal products decompose, a process which is brought about through the medium of disintegrating bacteria, some of their nitrogen is converted to plant use, which explains why manure brings such a high price.

CLOVER FROM INOCULATED SOIL AND FROM NONINOCULATED SOIL.
[From Harper's Weekly.]

Another nitrogen fertilizer, nitrate of soda or Chile saltpeter, which has been secured from ancient deposits of guano, is fast being exhausted, not only by farm demands, but by the demand for gunpowder. We must therefore look elsewhere for nitrogen to nourish plants, for soon the supply of natural nitrogen fertilizers will fall short of the demand, says Harper's Weekly.

Now, certain plants have the property of absorbing nitrogen from the atmosphere through the medium of millions of bacteria which gather the free nitrogen from the air, and this nitrogen can be used in place of expensive commercial fertilizers. The most beneficial nitrogen gathering bacteria form excrescences called "nodules" on the roots of certain plants of the pod bearing family. These plants are called legumes and include clovers, peas, beans, alfalfa, peanuts, etc. These bacteria have one function only to perform—they form a copartnership with the plant to supply it with nitrogen. They gather in great numbers on the roots of legumes, forming nodules, which are large colonies of bacteria stored with nitrogen. In exchange for sugar food which the legumes give the bacteria and on which they thrive the bacteria gather nitrogen from the air and feed it to the plants as desired. The plant by giving 2 per cent of sugar receives 95 per cent of nitrogen from the bacteria. When roots of legumes die in the ground the nitrogen which the bacteria have already gathered and stored in these little bunches or nodules on the roots is given to the soil, which is then rich in nitrogen. When the next crop is planted in that soil, no matter what crop it may be, nitrogen is there—the more nodules the more nitrogen. Therefore it is to the farmer's advantage, to the advantage of the world, to encourage the increase in growth of these nodules.

The more nodules that are formed on the roots the more nitrogen is fed to the plant, and this makes the plant grow more healthily, makes the foliage deeper in color, makes the stalks stronger and longer and the stalks stiffer and sturdier.

Experiments in transferring nitrogen rich soil from some sections of the country where these bacteria flourish to new localities, to mix with worked out soil, have been made. More often, however, some harmful ingredient of the soil is also spread to the new soil. The only safe way is to apply healthy bacteria direct to the seeds of the crop before planting—to inoculate the seeds with bacteria which will gather nitrogen from the air to feed to the growing roots.

When every farmer whose soil lacks nitrogen employs the aid of bacteria there will be a wonderful increase in size and weight of crops; there will be a wonderful increase in the protein value of food for cattle, which will make for increased food value for man.

Harvesting Clover Seed.
The seed should be well matured before being cut. The heads must be well browned, and the seed should rub out in the hand. If the clover is cut too green much seed is lost, so it is a very important point to let it get thoroughly ripe before cutting.

How many farmers rotate crops? How many are exhausting the fertility of their farms instead of increasing it?

VANITY'S VISION.

The Popularity of Black and White Combination Suffers No Eclipse. The butterfly motif is conspicuous in many of the modes of the hour. For instance, on a bodice of silk or satin will appear an arrangement of loops to simulate the outspread wings of the butterfly, and the same idea is utilized by the milliner.

Black and white make the best combination for the dinner frock at the hotel when en tour. Black taffeta and charmeuse and some of the silk and wool mixtures made in one piece style with gimpes and undersleeves of net or lace give admirable service.

A lovely evening gown was made of many layers of chiffon in beautiful tones of golden yellow, maize, flame and rose, all toning to a begonia effect. The frock was trimmed with a great handful of begonia flowers carried out in satin and panne.

A great many girls like pajamas better than any other form of sleeping garment. These can be made with a shaped band finishing the neck and front edges or with a collar. As illustrated dotted madras is used, trimmed with bands of plain white linen.

LINGERIE STYLES.

Japanese Sleeve Feature of the New Modes In Underwear.

It is the sleeve that lends distinction and originality to many of the new nightgowns. The short puffed sleeve is still used, but the large open sleeve is newer and more popular.

The simplest of the domestic petticoats are made with deep flounces, machine embroidered. Outline embroideries filled in with valenciennes, a combination of English eyelet and heavy raised embroidery designs supplemented by set in ribbons—all these are to be had in ready made flouncings if one is willing to pay the price.

Swiss and batiste embroideries play a very important part in fashionable lingerie, and by using them in combination with valenciennes charming models are achieved without resort to hand embroidery.

Upon handmade lingerie eyelets worked in the material often take the place of beading. A favorite effect is obtained by setting these eyelets at each side of groups of hand tucks so that the ribbon will pass under the tucks and over the plain spaces between the group of tucks.

Simple little school dresses like the one illustrated are both practical and serviceable if made of suitable materials. A frock made of shepherd's plaid and trimmed with plain material would be very smart.

ONE VIEW OF FARMING.

Read Here About Conditions Found Thirty Miles From Chicago.

"I am willing to believe anything about the prosperity of western farmers after a recent adventure of mine near Chicago," said a man just returned from his vacation. "My wife and I were visiting friends in Chicago when I received a letter from an old schoolmate asking us to 'run out to the farm' and pay them a little visit. The farm, he wrote, was some thirty miles out of Chicago, and we were to come informally.

"We started out to the farm. The train would land us there at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and, remembering my boyhood up in New Hampshire, I knew that at that hour they would just be washing up the dinner dishes. So we took particular pains to have an early luncheon before we started. Our first surprise was at the station, a small, one horse affair. Up to the station at a spanking trot came my old friend X., driving two well bred horses in a smart carriage.

"But this was as nothing to what awaited us. At the end of a three mile drive X. turned in at what you'd call a lodge gate in England, with the house back nearly a quarter of a mile from the road. It didn't look so very large or very fine, but the first thing I sighted on the piazza was X.'s three small children playing, attended by three nursemaids in white aprons and caps. Mrs. X. came out to greet us arrayed in a dress that my wife says couldn't be bought for less than $100.

"It grew worse and worse or better and better, according to your point of view. X.'s 'man' escorted our small satchel upstairs, and Mrs. X.'s maid appeared with a large dressing bag for my wife and a kimono that fairly made her eyes water. A third mental of some fancy variety announced to us that dinner was ready. It seems that they had it regularly at 3 o'clock.

"Dinner was served by the butler. It began with oysters on the half shell. Besides the usual fixings of a six course dinner, they had crabs, frogs' legs, alligator head and champagne. I hardly dared look at my wife, remembering the luncheon we had so carefully taken at the Chicago station to avoid making extra work for the farmer's wife. When the champagne came on that nearly finished us.

"Back to the farm? Well, I guess, but not in the rocks of New Hampshire. When I take to farming it will be raising garden truck for Chicago or St. Louis."—New York Times.

Outbreaks of dangerous and contagious disease among live stock should be reported to the state department of agriculture at once.

Cracker Box Compartment.
Having a number of small wood cracker boxes, the seventy-five cent kind, we conceived the idea that they could be easily converted into a handy compartment for the many little things that accumulate around the shop. We made one from three boxes, as illustrated, and it was amazing the amount of floor space it cleaned up when set in one corner of the shop and filled with paint cans, plow lays, hinges, etc., that had theretofore been occupying floor space.—Iowa Homestead.

Water Farming Recommended.
Among the multitude of wise sayings from the lips of Secretary Wilson this comes back to us frequently:

"The time will come when a farmer will realize a greater profit from the acre of fish pond that lies on his place than from any single acre of land."

Suppose we write to the department of agriculture for whatever literature it may have on this subject and then ask the state fish commissioner on what terms the state will stock that stream. Even if there is no money in it there's the possibility of a good many tasty Friday dinners.—Farm Press.

Sunflower Seed For Poultry?
Sunflower seed is recommended for feeding poultry from the fact that the kernel of the seed contains oil that is thought to be beneficial for improving the quality of color and gloss upon the plumage of fowls and as an aid to poultry during molt. The facts are that sunflower seed is more than 90 per cent waste matter, the hulls of sunflower seeds being very difficult for the fowls to digest and of little or no feeding value, says the Country Gentleman. A few sunflower seeds may be of benefit to poultry. Any considerable amount of them would be a detriment.

THE OUTSIDE SCHEME.

Without fear of contradiction one may reasonably make the assertion that when the average citizen of the average community is asked by others in that community to join in a mutual investment that is intended to further local industries, to build up home business or to direct money and profitable energy into home channels, there is a very noticeable lack of enthusiasm on the part of those to whom the plan is presented and a very perceptible absence of any desire to go into particulars or even to listen to the carefully thought out and easily demonstrated proposition.

On the other hand let an outsider, a total stranger of prepossessing appearance and with a glib tongue, approach almost anyone in that same community and unfold a scheme whereby, according to the stranger's representation, "all kinds of money" can be made; let the newcomer spread before his victim a highly colored and beautifully executed map describing the location of a mine or well from which gold or copper or oil will literally gush forth without being dug or worked the moment a sufficient amount of funds are available; let the gentlemanly but wily seeker after one's confidence make clear to him (for whom he has such a feeling of high regard that he is positively impelled to let him in on the "ground floor") the incalculable value of a commodity being manufactured by his, the outsider's, company, in the future enormous profits of which company he, the home community man, will share if he is "wise" enough to disannex himself from some of his hard and honestly earned exchequer, a receipt for which will be a piece of parchment highly ornamented by an American eagle, numerous dollar marks and a signature that would make John Hancock's chirography look like the feeble effort of a kindergarten scrawler; in fact, let almost anybody from the outside "hand out a pretty line of talk" and show a patent right to any kind of simple or intricate looking contrivance, or a line of samples representing something that is "absolutely indispensable to every man, woman and child," or a model of a machine that will make work on the farm seem like recreation, or a cooperative plan whereby anything from a snow shovel to a brown stone house may be purchased by the cooperators for one sixtieth of what others would have to pay;—and it will be found that the local citizen's interest will be immediately aroused. He will give any amount of time to the outsider, will believe implicitly all that he says, and for fear that his neighbor will get ahead of him or get in on the ground floor, he will run to the bank in his working clothes—perhaps with a tool or a bit of unfinished work in one hand—draw out a wad of sweat-gained lucre to hand over to the kind, liberal and interesting stranger so that he will let him "get in" way down in the very sub-cellar of the investment.

And when the local man has been imposed upon by the lightning rod agent, and "stung" by the imposter, and "bamfoozled" by the short change artist, and robbed by the schemer, and "flim-flammed" by the stock certificate seller, and duped by the man who sells silks and satins so cheap because the goods were "smuggled in," and after he has been deceived by all kinds and conditions of schemers, does he become wary and swear off? Never! He patiently waits for the next bunco man to separate him from more of his "wherewithal", and in the meantime he disregards his local interests, refuses to have confidence in his fellow merchants, buys, "sight unseen" and for cash, from Western catalogue houses everything he needs. But he "can't see why home enterprises don't grow, why we can't have improvements like other towns; why there is no public spirit here."

How would it be if these people would stop biting on outside schemes, and would spend their money in enlarging their own legitimate business, in patronizing their fellow business men and in joining in practical plans that would bring money and people and enterprise to their home town?

THAT INVESTIGATION.

Governor Crothers has issued an invitation to everybody, to tell everything about anybody on the police force of Baltimore city. It is a sort of "from soup to nuts," a "go as far as you like" affair, with the Pooh Bah of the State standing by to encourage the tattlers. But will the outcome justify all this hullabaloo? There are a great many people, the majority, of people, in fact, who are of the opinion that the Governor's actions in this "investigation" are quite undignified and quite unnecessary. No doubt there are many things in the police department that need correction here and there; but there is a board appointed by the Governor and paid by the taxpayers to attend to just such cases. To ignore this board is to nullify its jurisdiction, cast a stigma on the intelligence of its personnel and to drive into force the first real wedge of demoralization. This is what is being done now, and the fallen fruit of this disorganization must be credited to him who shook the tree.

Pick out the vest from the moth balls, Dig out suspenders, too; Put the straw hat away, For now comes the day When the chills of autumn are due. —Washington Herald.

It is a mistake to believe that good blood is everything. The Frenchman who said "it is better to be a lion born of an ass than an ass born of a lion," knew a thing or two. And the old fellow who said "although mosquitoes are born of poor parents, they have in their veins some of the best blood in the country," was also a pretty keen observer.

SAYS the Cleveland Leader: "The Maine man who was bitten by a dogfish has nothing on the Alabama man who was scratched by a catfish." Nor anything on the Florida Negro who was drowned by a blackfish, nor the Los Angeles carpenter who was killed by a sawfish. —Washington Herald.

But what of that army of poor devils who have been utterly destroyed by the deadliest fish of all—the loan shark?

ANALYZE the man who "knows it all" and you'll invariably find that he is full of prejudices; and moreover that he has had very little experience either of the world or of mankind.

FOR once again the State of Maine appears to be ecstatic. The people there seem glad for fair, to see it Democratic.

The Lure of the Street.

CHART PITT. The hot sun beats on the stone-paved streets, Where the jostlers come and go, With never a dream of the whispering stream, Where the free-born breezes blow. We feel the spells of the witch who dwells In the purr of the hurrying feet, And it binds men down to the stifling town— The lure of the crowded street. The reckless pace of the nerveless race Who people the haunts of trade, Silently speaks from the pallid cheeks, In the city's grim parade. It levies its toll on the stunted soul, Where the turbulent jostlers meet, It marshals its clan from the fallen man— The lure of the stone-paved street. Mid the factories' stroke, 'neath the pall of smoke, And the bilious blue of the sky, With sullen tread and downcast head, The city's slaves drift by. Without a gleam of hope's bright dream In the years that stretch ahead; Their funeral knell is the factory bell, Where they grind their grist of bread. —Farm Journal.

Enterprise and What It Means.

The trade territory of a town is not all dependent upon the distance to neighboring trading points, says the Aberdeen Enterprise. The trade territory depends upon the enterprise of the residents of the town. If a town does not reach after the trade it will come only as fast as it has to, and it will grow as it is forced to. But if the merchants go after business in the surrounding country, advertising in every possible way, and make good every word of their advertising, trade will come from an ever increasing radius, the town will gain a reputation for being awake and it will force to the front. It is the men in the town and not altogether the men living within a certain number of miles from it that makes the town good for nothing.

One of the personal attendants on the Pope seemed too prosperous for the wages he received and upon investigation it was found that the source of his revenue came largely from the sale of the shorn locks of hair from the Pope's head to the faithful. The attendant is looking for another job.

POLITICAL PARTIES---THEIR ORIGIN AND DEVELOPMENT

Series of Articles by George P. Rowe, Esq., Prepared Especially for The Chronicle

Free Soil Party.—Rise of Republican Party, Its Rapid Growth and First National Convention.—Campaign of 1860 and Lincoln's Nomination at Chicago.—Johnson and Grant.

The Free Soil party of 1848 to 1855 was the old Liberty party and favored the direct abolition of slavery. They merged with the Republican party in 1856.

The Republican Party.

We now come to consider the last, but not least of our great national parties which have controlled the political destinies of our country, and which has been in power since 1860, with the exception of the Cleveland administration. The repeal in 1854 of the Missouri Compromise, by the fight over the Kansas-Nebraska Bill and the disintegration of the Whig party, led to the formation of a new party, founded on principles broad enough to become a national organization. The Republican party germinating in the Free Soil movement and inheriting Whig and Federalist traditions, happily combined a great moral principle with other theories of government. It is said its origin cannot be ascribed to any particular time or place but its real origin is found in the crystallization of public opinion on the mighty problem of the right of man to hold in bondage his fellow-men and raised and issue well termed "The Irrepressible Conflict." It is said the name was first suggested in a letter written by Horace Greeley.

The earliest convention of importance was held at Jackson, Mich., July 6, 1854, soon followed by numerous other states, and the Republican party was born and became a complete, well defined political organization. On the roster of the 33rd Congress the name Republican does not appear; in the 34th Congress which met Dec. 3, 1855, there were in the Senate, 15 Republicans, 42 Democrats and 5 Americans; in the House of Representatives there were 108 Republicans, 83 Democrats and 45 Americans; the Whigs had disappeared. These figures show the very rapid growth of the new party. Nathaniel P. Banks, of Mass., was chosen Speaker of the House by fusion of Republicans and Americans, after a most exciting contest. The next step was to place a ticket in the field for the coming presidential election. The chairman of the state committees of Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana called an informal convention to meet at Pittsburgh, Feb. 22, 1856. This meeting called a national convention to meet at Philadelphia on June 17, 1856 to nominate candidates for President and Vice-President. The call was addressed to "the people of the United States without regard to past political differences or divisions, who are opposed to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, to the policy of the present administration, to the extension of slavery into the territories, in favor of the admission of Kansas as a free state and of restoring the action of the Federal government to the principles of Washington and Jefferson." John C. Fremont, of California, was nominated for President and Wm. L. Dayton for Vice-President. The main plank of the platform was as follows: Resolved, That the Constitution confers upon Congress sovereign power over the territories of the United States for their government, and that in the exercise of this power it is both the right and the imperative duty of Congress to prohibit in the territories those twin relics of barbarism, polygamy, and slavery. This was the crucial test of the voter, the gauntlet was thrown down for the advocates of slavery to take up. There was also a plank in favor of the building of a Pacific railroad, and later on in 1860, the party was committed to the protective tariff system to which it has steadily adhered to the present day.

It might be noted here that at this first National Republican Convention, Abraham Lincoln was placed in nomination and defeated for Vice-President but at the election headed the electoral ticket for Fremont.

The campaign of 1856 result in the defeat of Fremont and the election of Buchanan, the former receiving 114 and the latter 174 votes in the Electoral College.

The Campaign of 1860.

The Republican National Convention met at the "Wigwam," in Chicago, on May 17, 1860, for the second time, to nominate a presidential candidate. This convention, on account of the tremendous issues involved, and the consequences which followed it, was the most memorable in our country's political annals, and upon it hung the destiny of the Republic. The eyes of a nation were turned toward the 'City by the Lake,' soon to be the giant of the west, and millions of hearts beat high and anxious with alternate feelings of hope and alarm. The crisis had come.

Seven candidates were presented in this order:

- William H. Seward, of New York. Abraham Lincoln, of Illinois. William L. Dayton, of New Jersey. Simon Cameron, of Pennsylvania. Salmon P. Chase, of Ohio. Edward Bates, of Missouri. John McLean, of Ohio.

The first ballot resulted as follows:

Table with 4 columns: Candidate, 1st, 2nd, 3rd. Seward 173, Lincoln 102, Dayton 14, Cameron 50, Chase 49, Bates 48, McLean 12.

Lincoln and Hamlin received 108 electoral votes, all others had 123. Looking backward, it seems as if the curtain hiding the future had been lifted and his prophetic vision had caught a glimpse of the future, the nation's perils and troubles, a land in travail and all the anguish and horrors of four years of civil war. On the 11th day of February, 1861, he left his home in Springfield, Ill., for the last time, never again to return save amid the tears and lament of the nation upon his bier. Listen to his pathetic and farewell words on that occasion as he felt the mutterings of the coming storm: "My friends, no one, not in my position, can appreciate the sadness I feel at this parting. To this people I owe all that I am. Here I have lived more than a quarter of a century; here my children were born, and here one of them lies buried. I know not how soon I shall see you again. A duty devolves upon me, which is greater than that which has devolved upon any other man since the days of Washington. He never could have succeeded except for the aid of Divine Providence, upon which at all times he relied. I feel that I cannot succeed without the same Divine aid which sustained him; and in the same Almighty being I place my reliance for support, and I hope you, my friends, will all pray that I may receive that Divine assistance, without which I cannot succeed, but with which success is certain. Again I bid you all an affectionate farewell." Was this a portent of the 14th of April, 1865, when the great liberator of three million slaves, the preserver and defender of the Union, one who said "with charity to all and malice toward none," on that darkest day in the history of the Republic, fell by the hand of the assassin?

Now came the long and unfortunate contest between Andrew Johnson and Congress, which caused his impeachment by Congress—the vote of which was 35 "guilty"—19 "not guilty"—one less than the two-thirds required. He was saved by the vote of Senator Ross, of Kansas, who suffered political ostracism for his conviction.

Again the choice of the people fell upon a soldier, the hero of Appomattox, who served two terms and sought to restore the Union of ante-bellum days, whose motto was "Let us have peace." Since that time the main issues between the two parties have been upon a high or low tariff, the financial questions, the government policies in regard to Porto Rico and the Philippines, growing out of the Cuban war under President McKinley.

TENNESSEE RELIEVED OF GOVERNOR PATTERSON

He Resigns as Nominee of Democrats For Re-election.—His Enemies Impel Success of His Party.

The State of Tennessee is to be relieved of the necessity of defeating Governor Patterson for reelection. He has decided to resign as Democratic nominee. Patterson's political career has been a stormy one, including his defeat of former Senator E. W. Carmack for the gubernatorial nomination in a sensational campaign, followed by the killing of Carmack by the Coopers, their trial which attracted nation-wide attention and Patterson's pardon of D. B. Cooper, within a few minutes after his conviction was sustained by the Supreme Court.

AERO RECORDS SMASHED AT BOSTON EXHIBITION

Target Practice With Rifle And Imitation Bombs.—Americans Excel all Competitors in Tests.

The aviation meet at Boston has turned out to be a remarkable performance. Ralph Johnstone in a Wright plane broke the world's record for accuracy and also won the distance and endurance points. Lieutenant Fickel of the United States Army from a Curtiss aeroplane hit near the target with every shot but one and Wilbur Wright, the only Wilbur, demolished imaginary warships with imaginary bombs. The flight which Johnstone had brought to an end with the accuracy world's record was a continuous flight of 98 miles around the mile and three-quarter course and it establishes a new American record for remaining in the air.

PERSONALS.

It is the aim of THE CHRONICLE to publish as many personal and social items as possible, but it frequently happens that those who have guests visiting them, and those who entertain, fail to send a list of their friends, or an account of these events, to this office. Readers who live at a distance are always interested in what is going on "at home," and for that reason, if for no other, this column should be filled every week. It is of course understood that anonymous contributions will not be published. Names of persons furnishing items will be withheld.

MUCH APPRECIATED.

The prompt and courteous response by the subscribers of the CHRONICLE to the request that has been appearing in this column is very much appreciated by this office.

It is quite natural for subscribers to overlook the date on which their subscription expires, especially if their attention is not directed to the matter.

Therefore THE CHRONICLE begs to remind those who are still in arrears that an early adjustment of their subscription will enable the publication to conform to the mandatory ruling of the postal authorities.

This is not a dun—not a demand, but a request made necessary by the Government authorities and one which THE CHRONICLE feels assured will meet with a prompt and appreciative response.

INAUGURATION OF DR. GRANVILL
Governor Stuart, Woodrow Wilson and Ira Remsen to Be Present at Gettysburg.
Gettysburg, Pa., September 13th—The inauguration of Dr. William A. Granville, formerly of Yale University, as president of Gettysburg College on October 20th promises to eclipse in unusual features any similar event held by any Pennsylvania College in recent years.
Among the guests will be Governor Edwin S. Stuart, Dr. Woodrow Wilson, Dr. Ira G. Remsen, and a large number of the most prominent college and university men in the eastern part of the country. A special effort is being made to secure President Taft as the principal guest of honor.
No building in Gettysburg is large enough to accommodate the crowds of alumni and friends of the institution who are coming to this event and arrangements have been made to secure a huge tent which will be pitched on the college grounds and in which the ceremonies will take place. A chorus of several hundred voices is being trained and will be accompanied by one of the largest orchestras in the eastern part of the country.
The inauguration ceremonies will consist of addresses by Secretary Anson Phelps Stokes, of Yale; Dr. Granville and several other well known educators, while Governor Stuart or a representative of the State Department of Public Instruction will also be on the program. The ceremony will be preceded by a parade of the representatives of scores of colleges and universities all in academic garb. Following it will be a collation and in the evening a reception by the new president. Arrangements have been perfected for a brilliant electrical display in the evening, the beautiful campus to have all its numerous paths festooned with varicolored lights while arches will be erected and the various buildings illuminated in the same way.

"A Family Reunion"
(Contributed.)
Mr. and Mrs. William H. Weaver, of Mt. St. Mary's enjoyed a happy reunion of their beloved children and a few of their close friends. The event continued throughout the entire week and each one enjoyed himself to the closing hour.
The reunion was sprung as a delightful surprise upon the parents. The home meeting was planned and accomplished by the children, who left nothing undone to make the union one of extreme pleasure and enjoyment.
Many useful presents were donated to the parents, who in return joined in to make the time one of happiness.
It afforded the children and friends much pleasure to witness the smile of pleasure that this unexpected union caused the Mr. and Mrs. Weaver to wear.
The parents, also expressed their many thanks for the beautiful presents bestowed upon them, and truly displayed their joy in meeting both children and friends.
Those who united in the reunion were: Mr. and Mrs. William H. Weaver, of Mt. St. Mary's, Md. Mr. and Mrs. John S. Weaver and children Allan, Madeline, Julia and Lourdes, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Weaver and son Francis Eugene, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Weaver, Miss H. O. Weaver, all of York, Pa., Messrs. Ernest A. and D. Angelo Weaver who returned home from Cleveland, Ohio, Miss Rosa Margarette Weaver, a graduate nurse of St. Joseph's Hospital, Philadelphia, and Miss Genevieve and Mr. Wm McMurdy Weaver, of Mt. St. Mary's and Miss Mayhugh, of Emmitsburg.

Mr. Johnston Eyer, driving in a buggy met another team in front of Mr. George Gillelan's on Saturday and as a result of the collision, a wheel was broken.

Mr. Thomas Frailey, Jr., has entered Mount St. Mary's College.

Considerable concrete work has been done by Messrs. Hoke and Rider in the rear of Mr. Michael Hoke's property.

Mr. Ignatius Lingg has made extensive improvements on his property near town. A new 2-story kitchen and concrete walks are among the improvements.

The Emmitsburg W. C. T. U. will hold its September meeting at the home of Miss Ida J. Zimmerman, Willowdale farm, Thursday, Sept. 22, at 7 P. M. A full attendance is desired.

Fair View Farm Entertains.
The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Harbaugh was the scene of much pleasure on Monday night. A lawn social was given by Miss Ruth Harbaugh in honor of her sister Naomi's 17th birthday.
As Mr. Harbaugh's home is always hospitably open to the visitors it is needless to say that all present were delightfully entertained by the young ladies. The lawn was brilliantly illuminated with Japanese lanterns and the shrubbery lent its aid for the occasion. The house was decorated with a profusion of cut flowers and golden rods. At ten o'clock all were invited to the large dining room. The table was groaning under the weight of all the delicacies of the season to which all did ample justice. Miss Naomi received a number of handsome and useful presents. At twelve o'clock her young friends 46 in number bade her good night with best wishes for her future and many happy returns of the day and to each one she extended a token carved by her own hands.

Flying Machine Coming.

Choice specimens of the animal kingdom, a host of happy, mirth-provoking clowns. Tremendous free spectacular street parade at noon. Two performances will be given here at 1 and 7 p. m.

Emmitsburgers Under Suspicion.
The saloon of George W. Kettoman at Cascade was entered and robbed of $30 worth of whiskey. When the loss was discovered a search was instituted with the result, according to the Waynesboro Herald, of the finding of two young Emmitsburg men in the woods near Lake Royer. They were under the influence of liquor and Kettoman was so certain that they were the thieves that he went to Smithsburg and swore out a warrant for their arrest.
By the time a constable got back with him to the scene, they had disappeared.

Court Postponed Case.
In the case of Mary Beaur vs. Edward H. Rowe and Martha Hoppe, administrators of Reuben Morrison, a suit on an open account in the Frederick court, the defendants offered a demurrer to the declarations, when the plaintiff amended the declarations and the demurrer was overruled by the court and the case was postponed. Vincent Sebald and Stoner and Weinberg represented the plaintiff, and M. G. Urner, Jr., and E. L. Rowe represented the defendants.

Motter's Station Defeated.
The Emmitsburg High School baseball team, the star players of the forepart of the season, again clashed with the Motter's Station lads, who were heavily padded with players from the St. Euphemia's Club and beat them 17 to 10.
Old times came to Stokes, the twirler for the High School lads, and the result was fifteen strike outs. Rowe's touching up of Topper for two stations twice, and Eichelberger's fielding were features of the game. Errors on the part of the High School caused the runs credited to their opponents, although the game was played loosely on both sides.
The High School team would like to have a game with the St. Euphemia's club in order to close the season with a good game.

Elaborate Luncheon at Emmitt House.
On Saturday evening Mr. L. E. Motter entertained his friends at a lunch served at the Emmitt House. The affair was a most pleasing one to all who partook of Mr. Motter's bounty. While it was in a way informal yet the menu was elaborate and the speeches very entertaining. The host took this time to say goodbye for awhile to Emmitsburg. He expects to go back to Kansas City in a week or so. Among those present at the luncheon were: Dr. D. E. Stone, Messrs. E. L. Frizell, Thomas Frailey, J. Brooke Boyle, William Sellers, E. L. Higbee, Andrew Annan, E. L. Annan, A. A. Horner, C. R. Hoke, Clarence Rider and Charles Rider.

Concerning Registration.
Election day this year is on November 8, the latest date possible. The days of registration are October 4 and 11. Revision day comes on October 18. On this last named date no new names can be placed on the books. Those who have moved into this county from another county, or who have moved from one district in the county to another district must appear at the registration office in his present district and get registered on one of the two days if he expects to vote this year. If he has moved from one district to another it is necessary to get a transfer certificate from his last voting district and take it in person to his present voting district and get registered.

Safely Passes Four Score Years.
Mr. Simon Lohr, of Thurmont, was four score years old last Monday. His friends, who are very numerous in this vicinity, remembered the occasion by sending him many presents and postal cards. In all he received over 150 cards. For these and the presents he desires to thank his friends.
Mr. Lohr visited THE CHRONICLE office on Tuesday, and considering his very advanced age, he is a most remarkable man. His visits here are frequent but not often enough, and THE CHRONICLE hopes to have the privilege of congratulating him on many more such occasions.

Saw, Woodcutter and Ax.
The following effusion was handed in this week. It reads:

ACROSS THE LINE

FAIRFIELD.—Death removed another of our former citizens. On August 21 John A. Shulley died at his home in Emporia, Kansas. He had been confined to the house for a year and his death was not unexpected by the family. Mr. Shulley was born in Fairfield August 26, 1852, and lived here until in 1878. Then he moved to Kansas. On the 26th of November, 1878, he married Miss Alice J. Ramp, of Emporia. He moved to Emporia in 1883 and was employed as a plumber by the Emporia Plumbing Company and worked at the trade until a year ago. He was a kind and loving husband and father and was devoted to his family. His good nature and ability to see the bright side of things made his last illness the more easy to bear. The funeral was held on the 23rd of August with services at his late home, conducted by Rev. Dixon, of Grace Methodist Church. Interment in Maplewood cemetery, Emporia. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Maggie Jackson, of Wichita, and three sons, Frederick, William and Earl, of Emporia. He is also survived by two brothers, Frederick and David Shulley, and one sister, Mrs. Maria Shertzer, all of Fairfield. Harvest home services will be held in the Lutheran Church, on Sunday, September 18. Emanuel Cluck, administrator, sold the small farm of the late Michael Kugler, situated along the Fountaindale road, at public sale last Saturday, to U. H. Cromer, 28 acres at $91 per acre. John F. Peters is remodeling the interior of his dwelling house in this place. C. P. Bream is converting the old wagonmaker shop on Centennial street into a dwelling house. Mrs. Evannah Artzberger has had a new metal roof put on her house. Dr. N. C. Trout has purchased a Buick automobile. Marshall Edward Brown, son of Mrs. Helen Brown, of this place, a railway mail clerk on the New York and Pittsburgh division, and Miss Anna Miller, of Harrisburg, were married at the home of the bride last Thursday evening at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Helen Brown, Mrs. Fannie Hartzell and Harry Brown, of this place, attended the wedding. We extend our heartiest congratulations. Jacob Hoke and wife, of Emmitsburg, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Musselman. Miss Carrie Kittinger has gone to Baltimore, where she will spend the winter with her uncle, W. E. Kittinger. Mrs. John Marshall and daughter, Mrs. Haugh, and Miss Ruth Haugh spent Sunday at Highfield, with Mervin Marshall and wife. Fairfield was glad to welcome home Rev. Mr. E. W. Stonebraker, of the Reformed Church, who has been abroad for some time. The schools of Hamilton township opened on August 29, with a good attendance. The first educational meeting of Hamilton township will be held at Weeping Willow school, Miss Pearl McCleary, teacher, September 30th. The public is cordially invited.

FRIENDS' CREEK.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Stemm, of Sabillasville, made a business call at the home of Mrs. C. Hardman, recently. Mrs. Rosa Hahn and son, Amos, spent Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. Hardman. Miss Fannie Armstrong of Baltimore is spending some time at the home of Mr. Tilghman Alexander. Mrs. Jerome Myers, of Taneytown, spent a few days here as the guest of Mrs. R. L. Eyer. Messrs. W. H. Kipe and R. L. Eyer made a business trip to Emmitsburg. A dog belonging to Mr. Ananias Turner went mad on Sunday while hunting a cow; the dog showed signs of madness by biting into trees and rocks or anything with which he came in contact. Mr. Turner cut a club and killed the animal. Mr. John Eyley spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Mr. S. H. Duffey, of Fountaindale. Mr. W. T. Miller and daughter spent a few days with his daughter, Mrs. A. C. Eyer, of Taneytown. Mrs. John Faulstich and daughter have returned after several weeks' stay at her home in Baltimore. Mr. Charles Eyer and Mr. and Mrs. Nerville Eyer spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Martin Eyer. Miss Emma Carrill and niece Katherine are visiting Dr. B. F. Carrill and Mrs. John Faulstich.

MOUNT ST. MARY'S

Mrs. Daniel Roddy, who for the past few weeks has been quite ill, is rapidly recovering. Miss Carrie Sanders, who several days ago was operated on at St. Agnes' Hospital, Baltimore, has returned home. Mr. A. V. D. Watterson, President of the Mt. St. Mary's Alumni Association, visited the College last week. Among the young gentlemen at Mt. St. Mary's Seminary who received the order of deaconship last week was Mr. John Eckenrode, a well known young gentleman of this vicinity. Mr. Eckenrode is the son of Mr. Henry Eckenrode, of Thurmont. Along with the order of deaconship Mr. Eckenrode has been made prefect of the seminarians. The students returned to the college on Thursday evening of last week. The register Friday morning pointed to 124 to begin with. By the old boys many improvements were noticed, one in particular—the beautiful lawn and walks that have been made on the upper terrace in front of the college proper. This old terrace where many a Mountaineer tossed the baseball, played tennis and other games, has this summer been converted into a beautiful lawn. The old board walks have been abandoned and are being replaced by gravel walks. The old wooden fences and benches along the upper and lower terraces have been abandoned, and the old benches replaced by lawn chairs. Another improvement noticed by many is that nearly all the private rooms are lighted by acetylene gas. These improvements along with the new chapel, which is practically completed, are greatly admired by all. The church will be ready for occupancy on Oct. 12, when it will be dedicated. Mrs. Emanuel Noel, who has been quite ill, is rapidly recovering. Many farmers in this locality has begun cutting their corn. Miss Veronica Knott spent last week at the home of Misses Katherine and Mary Roddy. Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly, of Baltimore, who have been visiting their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Kelly in this locality, have returned home, accompanied by Master William Kelly, where he will spend the winter and attend school in St. Mark's parish. Miss Mary Knott spent Thursday at the home of Misses Catherine and Mary Roddy, of Thurmont. Messrs. William Seltzer and John Rosensteel, who have been quite ill with typhoid fever, are rapidly recovering and in a few days their doctors hope to permit them to return to work. Monday being Old Defenders' Day, a State holiday, there was no school at the college.

RELIABLE RECIPES

Chicken Pudding, Southern Style. Singe and clean two small chickens and joint them as for fricasse. Put them in a saucepan, add just enough boiling water to cover and one scant teaspoonful of salt. Put at the side of the fire and simmer gently for an hour, then take out the chicken and set the broth aside. Make a smooth batter with one quart of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one quart of milk, and six well-beaten eggs. Grease a deep earthen dish, and put in the batter and chicken in layers, having the first and last layers batter, and seasoning the chicken well. Bake in a moderate oven for forty-five minutes to an hour, according to the thickness of the pudding. When almost done reheat the broth and season rather highly; draw to the side of the fire and add the beaten yolks of two eggs mixed with two tablespoonfuls of cream; take from the fire as soon as it thickens, and serve with the pudding. Glazed Ginger Apples. Core and pare eight apples. Make a sirup with a cupful of sugar and a cupful of water. Cook the apples in the sirup, putting them in as fast as they are ready, cooking them until tender. Turn the apples during cooking and do not cover the dish, as the steam would cause them to break into pieces. Have ready rounds of stale sponge cake. When the apples are cooked place them on the cake, generously sprinkled with granulated sugar from the dredger, and set them in the oven to glaze. In the meanwhile add half a cupful of finely chopped crystallized ginger to the apple sirup and fill the open spaces with pieces of the ginger. Serve hot with cream. Wine Sauce. Break an egg into a small saucepan, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of madeira, and two tablespoonfuls of ginger sirup. Stand in a saucepan of boiling water at the side of the fire, and beat without ceasing until the mixture is thick and frothy. Must be served at once. Fried Mushrooms on Toast. Melt plenty of butter in a frying pan. Peel the mushrooms and cut off their stems, scraping the latter. Place the mushrooms, with their scraped stalks, in the frying pan and cook, turning often, until done. Serve very hot on rounds of buttered toast. The German dirigible balloon Zeppelin VI, while entering her shed at Baden Baden was blown up by an explosion of the motor in the rear gondola. Three of the airship's crew were seriously injured. Lee O'Neil Browne, minority leader in the Illinois legislature, charged with bribery in connection with the election of William Lorimer to the United States Senate, was found not guilty by a jury in Chicago. It is reported that Secretary Nagel may be appointed to the Supreme Bench. It is said that his name is being considered by President Taft in place of that of Lloyd W. Bowers, who died last week. Nearly 75,000 persons attended the open air ceremony of the Eucharistic Congress in Montreal. Archbishop O'Connell, of Boston, preached the sermon.

McALLISTER'S

DO YOU HAVE HEADACHE? Eighty per cent. are due to Eye Strain. It may be glasses, not medicine, that you need. Relief will be obtained by a properly fitted pair of glasses.

WHAT GLASSES WILL DO. If your work or reading tire the eyes, glasses will rest them. If you are subject to headaches, the chances are that it is caused by Eye Strain. Special glasses will relieve them.

DON'T wear glasses unless prescribed by a reliable Optometrist.

A REASON WHY. If you were ill you would call in the best Physician; if you had a law suit, the best Lawyer. If your eyes are bad why not take equal precaution to select a reliable Optician and Optometrist?

WE FIT HUNDREDS of pair of eyes with glasses and can point to scores of persons whose eye troubles we have relieved entirely or greatly helped.

Albani and Gye.

The story of Mme. Albani's first London engagement is as follows: Colonel Mapleson heard of her singing at a theater at Malta, and, thinking that she would be successful, he made her an offer through an agent of a contract to sing in Her Majesty's theater. She agreed to it and went to London, but on arriving there she told the cabman to drive her to the Italian opera house. He, instead of going to Her Majesty's, took her to Covent Garden, which was also devoted to Italian opera. She was shown up to the manager's office and stated that she had come to sign the contract which Mr. Mapleson had offered her. Mr. Gye, thinking to play a joke on his rival, Mapleson, made out a contract, and Albani signed it. Mr. Gye then told her that he was not Colonel Mapleson, but that he could do much better by her. He offered to tear up the contract if she liked, but told her that Nilsson was singing at Her Majesty's and would brook no rival. Albani decided to let the contract stand and thus became one of the stars of Covent Garden, eventually marrying the son of Mr. Gye.

His Final Plea.

A Chicago man appeared at the White House one day during the McKinley administration with a petition containing 7,000 names recommending him for appointment as Brazilian minister. He was a picture framer, and when he was canvassing for orders he took along his petition and asked everybody in the picture frame business to sign it. Almost everybody did. The man was insistent and finally reached the president. Always gentle and considerate, President McKinley explained to the candidate that he would have to consult the Illinois senators and representatives about the matter before making the appointment. "You know," said the president, "we have to select big men for these big places."

"Well," asked the picture framer, "won't I be just as big as any of them if I get the job?"—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

The Lost Umbrella.

"I have been coming here for my lunch for years, but never again," said a man to the head waiter of a downtown restaurant recently. "Sorry," began the waiter. "Sorry nothing. I left the umbrella here not five minutes ago, there was no one near our table, and the waiter must have seen it." "If we find it?"—"Find it? It is found, I tell you, and I'll have it now or you'll never see me here again."

The man, flushed with excitement, was walking away when he was hailed by a man who had entered by the rear door: "Say, Frank, is this your umbrella? I picked it up when we finished lunch. Glad you were still here." "Here, but not still," the head waiter whispered. "The umbrella has been found, but our customer has been lost for a few days. He'll be ashamed to come in for a little while."—New York Tribune.

Gone For Good.

Some folks in foreign lands have their own way of determining whether their relatives who have migrated to this land of ours have become hopelessly Americanized. One old lady in Germany reached her conclusion in a way that can be appreciated only by those who know the type of the German butter dish, deep as a bowl, and the German reverence therefor. Last week her granddaughter in New York received this sad lament:

"You will never come back. You are lost to us. Hans (a cousin) arrived here from New York on Monday and reports that you have even given up our deep German butter dishes and are using those shallow little plates that Americans like."—New York Times.

Modern Kids.

"So you love your new little brother?" asked the visitor. "Well, dearie, will you sell him to me? I'll give you $1 for every ounce he weighs."

"No, I won't!" answered the angel child.

"Dear, loyal little sister!" beamed the visitor. "And why not?"

"Because," answered the tiny tot, with a quivering lip—"because he only weighs six pounds. Come back next month an' I'll see if we can't make a deal."—Cleveland Leader.

His Weak Point.

A man who takes a business view of things when recently asked his opinion of a person of quite a poetic temperament replied:

"Oh, he's one of those men who have soarings after the infinite and divings after the unfathomable, but who never pay cash."

The Case Altered.

Brown—Is it correct to speak of a man as "of the male persuasion?"

Jones—Yes, if the subject is not married.

"What has that to do with the matter?"

"Why, when he is married his wife persuades him."

Recipe For Longevity.

People live longer in North Carolina than anywhere else in the world, chiefly because they lead the simple life, drink buttermilk and eat blackberries fresh in summer and dried in winter.—Raleigh News and Observer.

No Profit In It.

"What are you kicking about? She returned all your presents, didn't she?"

"Yes, but the expressage amounted to more than the presents were worth!"

Puzzled the Packer.

The first organized work of women in a relief corps was led by Florence Nightingale in the Crimean war of 1855. So unaccustomed were people to that service at the time that it called out some curious comment. Writing of "Chinese" Gordon, Dr. Butler tells in his book, "Ten Great and Good Men," how the boys at Cambridge met the call upon them for hospital stores.

One day a letter came suddenly from the war office telling us that any warm clothes for the invalids at Scutari would be prized by Miss Florence Nightingale. At once in every college a committee was extemporized of leading undergraduates, charged to collect presents of flannel jackets, trousers, "blazers," rugs, greatcoats, furs, even sealskins.

In a few hours box after box was filled with these treasures, and all the boxes were kindly and gratuitously packed for us by the leading upholsterer of the town, his foreman simply remarking to me in a tone which General Gordon would have enjoyed:

"A nice consignment for a lady, sir."

Cause of Twilight.

Twilight is a phenomenon caused by atmospheric refraction. When the sun gets below the horizon we are not immediately plunged into the darkness of night. Although the sun is below our horizon, rays of solar light are bent or refracted by the terrestrial atmosphere and continue to furnish some slight illumination. The process continues with diminishing intensity until the sun is so far below the horizon that the refracting power of the atmosphere is no longer able to bend the rays enough to produce a visible effect. The time after sunset that the sun reaches such a position varies with the latitude of the place. There is less twilight at the tropic zone than at the temperate or frigid zone. This is due to less time taken by the sun's rays to pass through the atmosphere, at the tropic zone the sun's rays being perpendicular and at the temperate and frigid zones oblique.—New York American.

With a Grain of Salt.

The earliest record of the saying "with a grain of salt" dates back to the year 63 B. C., when the great Pompey entered the palace of Mithridates and discovered among his private papers the description of an antidote against poisons of all sorts, which was composed of pounded herbs. These, according to the recipe, were to be taken with a grain of salt. Whether this was meant seriously or as a warning sarcasm is not known, but thenceforth it became the custom to say that doubtful preparations should be taken with a grain of salt. From this the meaning got transferred to sayings of doubtful truth. "Attic salt" was a Greek synonym for wit or penetration, and the Latin word "sal" had somewhat of the same meaning. It is thus easy to see how the saying "cum grano salis" could have come to mean the necessity of accepting doubtful or suspicious statements "with a grain of salt."

A Poor Player.

Griggs—So you got home from the club at midnight. Well, I suppose you told wife you had to work late at the office. Played upon her sympathies, eh? Brigs—Well—er—yes, but either her sympathies were out of tune or I'm a darned poor instrumentalist.—Boston Transcript.

SNAPSHOTS OF LA MODE.

Little Change in Fashion's Silhouette This Fall—Chantilly Veils.

Modes remain simple in appearance this fall, the waist portion being made on kimono lines. Among the winter displays of fabrics many striped effects in gray and white are in evidence.

Chantilly face veils in all colors are much in vogue and likely to continue so. The finer qualities with narrow borders are generally becoming. The veils are worn to a considerable extent in Paris, and when properly adjusted they are undeniably smart.

An autumn model for mountain wear is a hat of heliotrope felt, medium brim with side rolls. The trimming consists of heliotrope messaline satin and a broad quill in a deeper shade of mauve.

Collarets of plaited mousseline edged with ribbon loops are very pretty in the modish shades of purple, old rose and brownish tones. They may be had also in black.

Coats that are made in what are known as finger lengths are fashionable just now. The coat illustrated is very odd and natty.

Molokai and the Lepers.

The general idea of the leper settlement on the island of Molokai is wrong, says a writer in Harpers Weekly. Instead of the entire island being used for the leper colony the settlement comprises only eight square miles out of a total area of 261 square miles. It occupies a tongue of land on the northern side of Molokai. The north, east and west shores of this tiny spit are washed by the Pacific, while on the south side rise precipitous cliffs of from 1,800 to 4,000 feet, which make the isolation seem even more hopeless than the beautiful deep blue waters of the sea ever could. The most difficult and dangerous trail, constantly manned by government guards, foils escape, if it were ever contemplated, by the land side.

"Well, Boy, What Is It You Want?"

The Alert Man.

"Calmness is a fine trait," said Mr. Bliffly, "but does it always get there? You take the case of two men standing up in a car holding on to straps, both the same age, but one of them quiet and the other quick, and now let the man they are standing in front of get up to leave the car at a station, and suppose these two men are both at exactly the same distance from the seat, each with the same chance as the other for seizing it, which would get that seat? Would it be the calm, cool man who moved deliberately and always with some thought for others, or would it be the ever alert man, quick to move and always on the lookout, not caring a continental for what anybody thinks and always ready to jump in any seat he can nab? Why, while the calm man is thinking it over about what he shall do and beginning to turn that way the alert man is in the seat. I certainly do admire the calm, tranquil man and his good manners, but it is the man ever on the alert that gets the seat in the car—and other things."—New York Sun.

The Back of a Glove.

The meaning of the three marks on the back of a glove and the clocks on a stocking were two of the little mysteries of dress explained at a lecture on clothes in London. The lecturer said that the three marks on the back of a glove correspond to the fourchette pieces between the fingers, and in olden days these pieces were continued along the back of the hand, braid being used to conceal the seams. A somewhat similar origin was assigned to the ornamental clock on the stocking. In the days when stockings were made of cloth the seams came where the clocks do now, the ornamentation then being used to hide the seams. The useless little bow in the leather band lining a man's hat is a survival of the time when a hat was made by taking a piece of leather, boring two holes through it and drawing it up with a piece of string.

Fashions in Borneo.

According to the rules of Bornean fashion it is deemed necessary to mold one's limbs into a more shapely form than that bestowed by nature. This is done really effectively by winding strong brass wire round the ankles, the wrists, under the knees and above the elbows of children. Growth at these points is, in consequence, greatly hampered, with the result that the limbs come to be deformed or, according to Dyak ideas, brought into proper shape. The headdress consists of a curious headwork cap, and around his neck a bridegroom to be wears bangles of plaited fiber and strings of cowrie shells. These shells, by the way, as in other parts of the world, are used as currency. A yard of fiber or twenty to thirty cowrie shells represent the value of a penny. The white armbands are made of another species of shells.—Wide World Magazine.

What a Toad Enjoys.

There are few things more amusing than to watch a toad submitting to the operations of a back scratching. He will at first look somewhat suspiciously at the twig which you are advancing toward him, but after two or three passes down his back his manner undergoes a marked change, his eyes close with an expression of infinite rapture, he plants his feet wider apart, and his body swells out to nearly double its ordinary size, as if to obtain by these means more room for enjoyment. Thus he will remain until you make some sudden movement which startles him or until he has had as much petting as he wants, when, with a puff of regretful delight, he will reduce himself to his usual dimensions and hop away, bent once more on the pleasures of the chase.

In Hearing.

They stood upon the crest of the mountain and gazed off through the purple distances.

"Darling," he whispered, bending closer, "give me a kiss—just one!"

"No, Clarence," she answered timidly: "some one will hear us. There may be other ears around."

"Other ears! Why should you think so, dearest?"

"Oh, because I have so often heard of mountaineers I thought perhaps there might be some around, and"—

But just then there was a mighty crash. A mountain goat had heard the awful pun and jumped over the cliff.—London Tatler.

Making Money Two Ways.

Our five cent pieces, of course, are merely tokens, deriving their purchasing power from the fiat of the treasury. The metal blanks for them cost only about 14 cents a hundred. When the expense of stamping the designs upon them is added they come to something like $3,510 a million—that is to say, for this amount the government produces $50,000 worth of nickels, making a clear profit of $46,490 on the transaction.—Saturday Evening Post.

Not Surprised.

Real Estate Agent—I tell you, sir, the death rate in this suburb is lower than in any other part of the county. Near Victim I believe you. I wouldn't be found dead here myself.—Chicago Journal.

Not Much.

She—Well, I hope you are going to write a letter to the man who insulted you. He (an actor)—What, make him a present of my autograph? Not much.—Pele Mele.

Whatever disgrace we have merited, it is almost always in our power to re-establish our reputation.—La Roche foucauld.
