PINS FACTS ON JOHN A. DIX

ROOSEVELT EXPLICIT

Ithaca Speech Tells Again Of Wall Paper Trust

DIX DENIES DEMANDS APOLOGY

Gives Volume and Pages of United States Reports Two Substantiate His Statements.—To Conclusions Drawn.

Roosevelt at Ithaca on Monday, reiterated his charge of last week that John A. Dix, Democratic candidate for governor, was a director of a corporation (the Standard Wall Paper Company) that was a component part of the so-called Wall Paper Trust, characterized in a decision by Judge Lurton as "one of the most oppressive monopolies ever created." In his speech Colonel Roosevelt declared that Mr. Dix's denial that the Standard Wall Paper Company was affiliated with the Continental Wall Paper Company, showed that the Democratic nominee either knew nothing about the company of which he was a director or else was not frank in his statements about the matter.

"If," said Colonel Roosevelt, "you will turn to pages 227 to 274 inclusive, of volume 211, of the United States reports, you will find the final decision of the Supreme Court, declaring illegal the trust of which Mr. Dix's Standard Wall Paper Company was a member. This decision was rendered in February 1909, over a year and a half after Mr. Dix states that he became director of one of the companies which was in the trust. In the volume to which I refer is bound a copy of the contract between the Continental Wall Paper Company, the trust and the Standard Wall Paper Company, Mr. Dix's company, which was one of those in the trust."

"Justice Harlan, speaking for the court, stated that the Continental Wall Paper Combination was a clear violation of the Sherman law and he quoted as approved by the Supreme Court Judge Lurton's language about this wall paper trust."

The Colonel then mentioned the fact that Mr. Dix's partner, Julius Jackson, was president of the trust. If Mr. Dix could be so ignorant of what was going on in his own private business, then Mr. Roosevelt thought that he is "altogether too innocent to be trusted in public office as a subordinate partner of so able and so astute a gentleman as Mr. Murphy, the boss of Tammany Hall."

"If he could for 18 months be so wholly ignorant of what his partners were doing in his own private business," exclaimed the Colonel sarcastically, "it would certainly take him more than the two years which includes the term of a governor to find out what Mr. Murphy was doing."

Repeating his denials of these charges John A. Dix, in a statement Monday demands from the former President "the apology which one gentleman owes to another for even involuntary misrepresentation."

LOST BALLOON TRAVELED 1,350 MILES LANDED IN CANADA

Came Down in Vast Forest of Northern Quebec—Occupants Lost for Over a Week.—Records Broken.

Alan R. Hawley and Augustus Post, the aeronauts of the balloon America II., for whom search had been prosecuted in the Canadian wilds, are safe and have established a new world's record for sustained flight. They traveled approximately 1,350 miles, and came to earth in Chicoutimi county, Quebec, on Wednesday last, but were not heard from until Wednesday, when telegrams from St. Ambrose, Quebec, reached New York. The balloonists started from St. Louis with nine other contestants in the international contest on Monday, October 17. All the other balloons have been reported.

Two messages from Hawley and Post were received in New York Wednesday night. One was to William Hawley, brother of the aeronaut, the other to Samuel F. Perkins, pilot of balloon Dusseldorf III., which until then had been considered the winner. The message to Mr. Hawley read:

"Landed in a wilderness week ago 50 miles from Chicoutimi. Both well. "Alan."

The Perkins message ran:

"Landed Paribonka River, north Lake Chiloga, nineteenth. All well; returning. "Hawley, "Post."

Of the total population of Samoa 85 per cent. have the hookworm disease.

LEWIS FLAYS TARIFF

Most Satisfactory Meeting Held in Rockville

TALKS TRUSTS AND HIGH PRICES

Spoke in High Terms of the Insurgent Republicans in Last Congress.—One Way to Insure Revision.

Democrats in large numbers from all parts of Montgomery county and Republicans attended a mass meeting in the Opera House at Rockville, Tuesday in the interest of the candidacy of David J. Lewis for Congress. It was regarded as one of the most satisfactory meetings ever held by the Democrats of the county and showed that factional lines have been entirely eliminated, so far as this campaign is concerned, at least, and that the party was never in better shape.

Mr. Lewis attempted no oratorical flights, but what he had to say in his address seemed to make a deep impression upon all who heard him. He confined his remarks largely to a discussion of trusts and high prices, and cited statistics to show that within the last 10 years the cost of living has increased nearly 50 per cent. and that wages have increased only about 25 per cent.

He spoke in high terms of the Insurgent Republicans in the last Congress who fought for a revision of the tariff downward, and severely criticised Cannon, Dalzell, Payne, Aldrich and others for their part in preventing reductions in the tariff on articles controlled by the trusts.

Mr. Lewis said that the statesmen who instituted the idea of a protective tariff did it at a time when there was no thought of trusts or monopolies and declared that the only way to force a reduction in the prices of trust-controlled articles is to reduce the tariff upon those articles.

"There are no Insurgent Republican candidates for Congress in Maryland," declared the speaker, "so the only course open to the Republicans of the State who favor an honest revision of the tariff is to support the Democratic candidates."

The returns from primary and other elections, he said, indicate that the people are thoroughly aroused, and promise a sweeping Democratic victory in Maryland and throughout the country at the November election.

The meeting was presided over by Col. Spencer C. Jones, of Rockville. In assuming the chair, Colonel Jones made a short speech in which he paid a high tribute to the candidate for Congress and predicted his election.

PANAMA LIBEL CASE UP BEFORE SUPREME COURT

Oral Argument Begun on Monday by J. C. McReynolds for the Government and Nicoll for N. Y. World.

The so-called "Panama" libel suit was begun in the Supreme Court at Washington on Monday afternoon. James C. McReynolds, a special Assistant Attorney General, spoke for the Government in opening. He was followed by Delancy Nicoll, of New York for the New York World.

The alleged libel charged that Charles P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and William Nelson Cromwell, with J. Pierpont Morgan and others, by reason of their intimacy with Theodore Roosevelt, then President, and William H. Taft, then Secretary of War, reaped a profit of about $36,000,000 when the Government bought the Panama canal property.

What Will They Do With Peary.

Although his leave of absence expired Sunday, Captain Robert E. Peary, Arctic explorer, did not report Monday for duty as a civil engineer in the Navy. Captain Peary has been on leave of absence for the past ten years under a tacit understanding that he was to devote his time to Arctic exploration. His latest leave was granted last April and he has not applied for further extension.

Expert Accountant at Work.

Mr. A. C. Ashcom, an expert accountant of Baltimore, employed by the Frederick Board of Aldermen to audit the accounts of the city and install a new system of bookkeeping at the City Register's office, is at work on the city books.

The Times Dynamiting Case.

Seventy subpoenas were served on witnesses subpoenaed in the Los Angeles Times dynamiting case when the Grand Jury convened Tuesday. These subpoenas were served on persons living in San Francisco or its vicinity.

The International Bureau of Public Hygiene in Paris recommended the calling of an international sanitary conference to combat the cholera epidemic.

CHOOSE YOUR CONGRESSMAN

BE SURE HE WILL REPRESENT US NOT "IT"

Application Of New Test to Sixth District Candidates

Now Before The People.

(From Chronicle Correspondent in the Field.)

The current number of Everybody's Magazine contains an article by Frederick C. Howe entitled "Choose your Congressman." Mr. Howe declares that the American people are resuming the control of our government, meaning of course that heretofore our elected officials have been serving others and not the people who put them in office. The battle cry now is "Turn the rascals out." Special privilege in all its forms is being opposed with various success. The best way to oppose "It" according to the article in Everybody's is—"By going to the polls on November 8 and voting for men who will represent us; or, if there are no candidates that represent us, then we must defeat those representatives, regardless of party, who have shown by their records that they represent not us but—Privilege."

Putting the test to our candidates here in the Sixth district several things are apparent: First—The Democratic candidate, D. J. Lewis, is beyond suspicion. He does not belong to any privileged class, he has never belonged to any and from all appearances he can never be in such a class. In such company he would be out of place. All he has ever done for himself and others has surely not been accomplished because he was privileged. No. What he has he got through labor; his service to his State was, it is true, a privilege, but inherent to citizenship, a privilege which gives more than it takes. A man of the people he is a man for the people; a man for the people he is against "Privilege." Would he represent "It" or Us? The people should let him answer this in the Congressional halls.

Second—The Republican candidate is pleasing in his manner and to a certain extent polished. If he would he might be able to reflect credit on his district as a representative. But would he? Is the answer to this so apparent as in the first mentioned? Mr. Warner made a mistake in applying to the people for such an office. That young man would have done better had he shown his metal to the people in some lesser office. If he had advanced from place to place, grown up in the service of the people so to speak, given them something to judge from other than a consulship served abroad, then, standing on his own record, his show for success would be better. Would he serve "It" or Us? Frankly the people don't know. He received his nomination by the aid of a machine which if it did not stand for "Privilege" would fall apart at the first turn of its political wheels.

Mr. Warner does not eat with his knife. No one ever saw him wear a dress suit with tan shoes and a red necktie. He does not say "I done It" nor does he fail to observe the amenities of polite society. He can win friends easily and it is supposed hold them. Personally Mr. Warner is a nice man. But there is a new standard being set up in American politics. Mr. Howe says "It is applying by the test not of personal character, but of representative character, to a man; it is asking, not whether he is honest, but whether he is true to the people."

On what ground can the voter base his belief that Mr. Warner will represent the people? And who are the people that Mr. Warner will represent? "It" or Us.

Summing up the whole matter and making a just comparison it must be admitted that in this particular election above all others the man who will serve the masses as opposed to the privileged is Mr. David J. Lewis. He has been tried and was not found wanting.

FLAG RAISING AT HIGH SCHOOL

Interesting Patriotic Ceremonies Attended The Event.--- Big Parade and Audience.

On Tuesday evening before a large and appreciative audience the Emmitsburg High School unfurled its flag on the new pole placed in position on Monday night. The ceremonies connected with this event were appropriate and very interesting. Half an hour before the exercise began the entire membership of the High School escorted by the Vigilant Hose Company and headed by the Emmitt Cornet Band paraded through the streets receiving applause from the throngs that crowded the thoroughfare.

On reaching the grounds the Hose Company formed a large semicircle near the flag pole and uncovered as to the strains of the "Star Spangled Banner" the beautiful new flag was hoisted to the breeze by Burgess Rowe. When the flag reached the top of the pole the audience gave three rousing cheers and filed into the school house where an elaborate programme was given. Prof. Strauss welcomed the audience and announced the first speaker, Miss Naomi Harbaugh, who recited with great feeling and effect Whittier's "Barbara Freitchie" so popular with Marylanders. Miss Ethel Annan next recited "George Washington," a very amusing little sketch which she delivered very well. Drake's "The American Flag" was then rendered with true American spirit by Mr. George Stokes, a graduate of last year.

The Rev. Leighton B. Hensley, of the local Presbyterian Church, who as Prof. Strauss said, needed no introduction to the people of Emmitsburg, delivered the oration. His speech was very patriotic and very instructive, taking his hearers back beyond England, which has always been looked upon as the mother country, to The Netherlands, from which most all of what we consider truly American institutions emanated, he unfolded some interesting bits of history with which the average man is not familiar. From this he came down to the flag with all it stood for. He brought home to his audience the necessity of living up to all the ideals for which the American flag is an emblem.

Between the recitations and the oration the school under the leadership of Prof. Strauss, sang the "Star Spangled Banner" and "Maryland, My Maryland," and the programme ended by all uniting in "America." The Vigilant Hose Company looked its best and the beauty of the parade was enhanced by the Japanese lanterns carried by every member. Immediately following the Firemen came six little girls bearing the Stars and Stripes which was afterwards to be unfurled. The flag pole was presented to the Emmitsburg High School by Mr. Isaac B. Pecher, of Liberty township, Pa., a faithful and efficient teacher now retired after twenty years service. Although Mr. Pecher's time is devoted to the development of his large farm, yet as a most interested friend in public education, he is constantly showing that he has not forgotten the schoolhouse by the road.

Everything connected with this event was spontaneous and gratuitous, everybody cooperating with Prof. Strauss and the pupils to make it a success.

Furious Storms in Mediterranean.

The Island of Ischia, a short distance southwest of Naples suffered from a furious storm and a tidal wave. Many lives were lost. Naples also felt the storm and Mount Vesuvius is throwing out mud and stones.

Campaign Against White Slaves.

Doughty Colonel Calls New "Ism" Utter Twaddle

HE APPEALS TO BUSINESS MEN

Attacks Those Who Try To Frighten Citizens With King Roosevelt.—Denies That He Is Dangerous.

The New York campaign grows livelier as Theodore Roosevelt travels about Central New York State. Every place at which Colonel Roosevelt stopped crowds of citizens gathered to cheer him.

Hundreds stood in the rain to hear his outdoor speeches at Syracuse, and every building in which he spoke was jammed to the doors.

"Rooseveltism" as an issue was the subject largely discussed. The Colonel told the people that some business men of the State were afraid of it. He said that any fear of him or Henry L. Stimson, Republican candidate for Governor, was baseless and that the alarm had been raised by Wall street.

Colonel Roosevelt also replied to John A. Dix, Democratic candidate for Governor, who said that the Colonel had misrepresented him by saying that he had been connected with the Wallpaper Combine. The Colonel did not make the apology which Mr. Dix demanded.

Colonel Roosevelt spoke at Penn Yan, Canandaigua, Geneva, Waterloo, Seneca Falls and Auburn, arriving at Syracuse in time to take dinner with Francis J. Hendricks, the Republican leader of Onondaga county, who has long been identified with the Old Guard organization. He addressed a large crowd at night and spent the night at the home of Mr. Hendricks.

The speech at night was in large part an appeal to business men not to be alarmed at "Rooseveltism." He began by reading the circular sent out over the names of Charles F. Murphy and other members of the Tammany Hall campaign committee, appealing for contributions to defeat the Roosevelt policies.

"It is a naked appeal to the power of the purse," said Colonel Roosevelt, "a naked appeal to the twin emotions of fear and greed, and a frank admission that only by a large outlay of money will it be possible to beat Mr. Stimson. This appeal from Tammany Hall is in substance precisely the appeal which has been made by the great financiers who desire to obtain or retain improper special privileges."

"There has been a deliberate effort on the part of these business men who

GOVERNOR CROTHERS NAMES NEW ASSOCIATE JUDGE

M. E. C. Peters of Rockville Well-Known Lawyer for Sixth Circuit Position Held By Henderson.

Governor Crothers announced Wednesday afternoon the appointment of M. E. C. Peters, of Rockville, Montgomery county, as associate judge of the Sixth circuit, to succeed Judge James B. Henderson, whose term has expired.

Judge Henderson recently declined reappointment because of the condition of his health. The Sixth circuit comprises Montgomery and Frederick counties.

Mr. Peters is a well-known lawyer of Rockville, and is the son of the late George Peters, who was state senator from Montgomery and president of the Maryland Senate in 1898.

Frostburg to Have Postal Bank.

Frostburg, Maryland, has been chosen by the government as one of the towns where the new system of postal savings banks will be inaugurated. The system will be tried in 48 towns, one in each state and territory. Nowhere have large cities been selected. In Virginia, Clifton Forge has been designated and in West Virginia, Grafton. No date has been fixed for the beginning of business.

Horses Poisoned in Stable.

Two horses in the stable of Liveryman A. Foreman, at Waynesboro, were given poison by some miscreant. One valued at $200 died. The other horse, owned by Miss Amanda Eyler, recovered. The lock of the stable was picked by the poisoner.

Murderer Rescued by Armed Friends.

John Moore, under sentence to be electrocuted for murder, held in the Nelson county, Va., jail, was liberated by a mob of his fellow mountaineers who stormed the jail after having stormed the building. The State has offered $300 for his rearrest.

Mgr. Tonti, the Papal nuncio at Lisbon, has left Portugal, probably recalled as a protest against the anticlerical attitude of the republic.

PHILADELPHIA PAPER SUED

BY CANDIDATE TENER

Results of Recent Attacks By North American

HEARING WILL BE GIVEN TO-DAY

Charges Have Been Reiterated Daily Ever Since October 13.—Plaintiff is The Republican Candidate for Governor.

The gubernatorial campaign in Pennsylvania is very bitter. As an outcome of the various attacks made on the different candidates, John K. Tener, Republican candidate for governor of Philadelphia, Monday swore out a warrant for the arrest of E. A. Van Valkenburg, editor and president of the North American Company, of Philadelphia, charging him with criminal libel. The warrant was issued by Magistrate William J. Gallagher, but it was not served.

Francis Shunk Brown, A. S. L. Shields and George S. Graham, counsel for Mr. Tener and leading lawyers of Philadelphia, sent a letter to Mr. Van Valkenburg informing him of the action the gubernatorial candidate had taken and notifying him that a hearing in the case would be held on Friday.

Mr. Van Valkenburg, through his counsel, James Gay Gordon, immediately replied that he was ready for a hearing any day this week, preferably Monday. Mr. Tener's counsel, in their reply, stated that as Mr. Tener was on a speaking tour it was impossible for him to appear then and, therefore, the case would be heard Friday.

The warrant issued is based on an attack begun by the North American on October 13 against Mr. Tener's business integrity.

The charges have been reiterated daily. Briefly they asserted that Mr. Tener was "a friend and associate of swindlers." It is charged that Mr. Tener at the time a member of Congress, sold his name to the National Public Utilities corporation so that he could be exploited as the president of the corporation. For this, the charges aver, he agreed to accept $50,000 per year salary and was given $50,000 worth of stock in the concern.

The charges characterize the National Public Utilities corporation as a "fraudulent and swindling corporation" which is supposed to be interested in Pacific Coast development and the owner of a projected railroad in Oregon, known as the Astoria, Seaside and Tillamook Railroad Company. The charges further declare that this is a paper railroad, having no physical existence.

In subsequent publications the North American printed names of men connected with the company, who, it asserted, are either convicted or unconvicted swindlers. The newspaper also charged that Mr. Tener, with several business associates, sold a controlling interest in the Security Life and Annuity Company to a man it declared to be a swindler, and that the latter merged this company with a concern which has its headquarters in Chicago.

SOME CENSUS FIGURES ON VARIOUS CAUSES OF DEATH

Tuberculosis Heart Disease and Accidental Violence Based on Over Half Total Population.

Tuberculosis of the lungs, heart disease and accidental violence, in the Census Bureau's death registration area of the United States, which represents more than 55 per cent. of the estimated total population, caused more than 37 per cent. of the deaths from all causes in 1909 among certain classes. These classes are those "gainfully employed or occupied males." The same causes led to 39 per cent. of the deaths from all causes among the "occupied females."

The Census Bureau, in a bulletin on mortality statistics, says that of a total of 210,507 deaths among these gainfully employed males, typhoid claimed 2.2 per cent.; tuberculosis of the lungs, 14.8; cancer, 5.5; apoplexy and paralysis, 7.3; heart disease, 11.9; pneumonia, 8; Bright's disease, 8.5; suicides, 2.6 and accident, 10.5.

Among the occupied women the percentage included tuberculosis, 21; typhoid, 2.8; cancer, 8.1; apoplexy and paralysis, 5.9; heart disease, 10.3; pneumonia, 7; Bright's disease, 7.3; suicides, 1.6; accident, 3.2.

Great Britain has proposed that all the powers recognize the republic of Portugal at the same time, but while Germany approved the United States will probably wait until a constitutional government has been established.

UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION'S EARNINGS

Net Profits of $31,048,725 for Quarter of the Year.—Total Earnings $115,153,023, Higher Than in 1909.

Earnings of the United States Steel Corporation for the third quarter of the calendar year, as announced Tuesday, following the regular meeting of the directors, aggregated $37,365,187. Net earnings, after deducting $6,316,462, of which $5,555,555 was charged to "depreciation and extraordinary replacement funds," were $31,048,725.

These figures compare with $40,170,960 gross and $33,380,755 net earnings for the previous quarter, and $38,246,907 gross and $30,855,019 net for the third quarter of 1909.

Total earnings of the Steel Corporation for the first nine months of this year amount to $115,153,023, against $90,508,666 for the corresponding period of 1909.

The surplus net income for the quarter reported is $11,078,063, or $2,832,030 less than that of the previous quarter. Regular quarterly dividends of 1 1/2 per cent. on the preferred shares and 1 1/4 per cent. on the common were declared.

RECORDS BROKEN AT NEW YORK AEROPLANE MEET

At Belmont Park the Altitude Distance Increased to 7,303 Feet by Johnstone in Wright Machine.

The American altitude record held by J. Armstrong Drexel was beaten Tuesday by Ralph Johnstone in a headless Wright climber.

Drexel reached 7,105 feet, but Johnstone topped him by 193 feet, with a new mark of 7,303 feet. He came down chilled to the bone and his goggles rimmed with frost.

For half an hour he had battled with a snowstorm above the clouds, seeking still higher levels. The undemonstrative Wilbur Wright danced with joy when he glanced at the barograph.

"It's better than 2,000 meters," he cried, and began to prance again. He knew then that the fourth day of the international aviation meet at Belmont Park, L. I., had brought him his share of honors.

Hubert Latham, in an Antoinette monoplane, frightened the crowd when he began to do aerial flip-flaps under the edge of a nasty looking storm cloud, half a mile in the air. He righted and then shot to earth in one steep, rushing swoop.

Suppose Colonel Roosevelt Had Kept Out of It.

If Colonel Roosevelt will look back over the files of some of the newspapers which are now daily berating him for his activity in the New York Campaign, we think he will find that they were just as much put out with him when he kept quiet. Were they not then demanding to know what sort of citizen he was who, with all his influence, would hold his hands and not come to Governor Hughes' assistance? Did they not indignantly inquire if he proposed to stand idly by while Barnes and Woodruff and Ward and the Old Guard wrecked his party?

They are saying much that is bad of him, but we are of the opinion that it is mild compared with what they would have said if the Colonel had decided that his political interests would be best subserved by keeping out of this very bad mess.

If he is so anxious to become the "American Diaz" and if his confidently anticipated defeat is going to put him down and out, one wonders why so astute a politician ventured into a fight which was absolutely desperate without him and which looked like a forlorn hope with him.—Baltimore News.

Martyrs of Aviation.

Lieut. Selfridge fell with Orville Wright at Fort Myer, near Washington, in September, 1908, and died almost instantly. His death was the first resulting from an aeroplane fall, and since that fatal accident the list of fatalities has grown rapidly.

are crooked to mislead and frighten their colleagues who are not crooked and especially to mislead and frighten the small business men by telling that disaster impends if Stimson is elected Governor, because Stimson is closely allied with me, and I, forsooth, am a dangerous man, and especially dangerous to business."

The rally held at Auburn was one of the largest. In this speech also the Colonel referred to the Rooseveltism, and said:

"I want to use moderate language, but it is difficult to do so in speaking of something which is folly. So I shall say that I wish the unwise creatures who say I wish to be king—the men who talk that utter twaddle—could have been at Saratoga to see the fight we had to make me temporary chairman."

MAYOR GAYNOR SAYS TAFT IS BROADMINDED

Admires Our Progressive and Prudent President.—Washington Worse than New York After Dark.

Mayor Gaynor, who returned Monday night from a visit to Washington, where he was the guest of President Taft, had some impressions of his trip to make public the next day. Asked whether he thought Washington was better or more orderly than New York, the Mayor said:

"Dear me, dear me. Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; but I fear that Washington, from what I saw in a three-mile walk after dark Sunday evening, is no better than New York. Now, I do not presume to say whether it appears to be any worse than New York. But there is no one over there who tries to befoul the city and scandalize its name constantly."

Of President Taft the Mayor said: "He is a broad-minded, progressive and prudent man. It is always fortunate for the American people to have such a man for President."

Where the Late D. B. Hill Showed His Honesty.

It is a little surprising and decidedly instructive to learn that there is a little over $4000 standing in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the late David Bennett Hill for the reason that during his life-time he insistently refused to receive it. This amount represents Mr. Hill's salary as a Senator of the United States from the beginning of the term to which he was elected up to the time when he actually qualified and took his seat. During that period he was Governor of New York and he did not feel that it would be proper for him to draw two salaries simultaneously. It was in vain that the financial clerk of the Senate explained that in giving this credit he had merely followed the regular practice, that Senatorial salaries were always reckoned from the beginning of the term, rather than from the date of qualification, and that he had no right to make the change in his books which a deviation from this precedent would involve. Mr. Hill continued to insist that he was not entitled to the money and that he would not accept it.

Now, what makes this incident notable is the fact that during the greater part of his career David Bennett Hill was one of the most abused men in the country. There was scarcely anything too bad for the political pharisees and purists of his time to say about him. They called him all the opprobrious names in their copious vocabulary of vituperation, and any one might suppose from the account they gave of him that he was a monster in human form of whom nothing but evil could be predicated. He was denounced as a political debauchee of the worst kind, and when they had said of him all the mean things they could think of the Mugwumps, who were the "insurgents" of that day, would hold him up to public reprobation as the finished and perfected type of the machine politician. That capped the climax. There was nothing more to be said. It was understood that the wretched Hill was as bad as they make them and that the only good use he could be made to serve was as a dreadful example of everything that should be condemned and shunned.

But it has since transpired that Mr. Hill was not so black as he was painted and now it appears that his seared conscience remained sufficiently sensitive to restrain him from accepting money to which he had at least a legal right and which most men under the same circumstances would have taken without a second thought, including doubtless many of those who found so much to censure in the former Senator and Governor's official course. The moral is that the community should learn to take a large discount off the abuse to which so many successful public men are subjected. Every successful career invites envy's shafts, and some of the best, the purest, the ablest men in American history, beginning with Washington himself, have been the most abused.

It will have to be admitted that Mr. D. B. Hill was a politician and an extremely skillful one, but he was also a good citizen and an honest man, although there are those who would have us believe that a politician can be neither the one nor the other. As the great Dr. Johnson used to remark, "Let us clear our minds of cant."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Significant.

The other day a merchant in a nearby town saw a farmer receiving goods at a station from a Chicago mail order house. The goods were in his line, and the same had been carried in his store for years. He approached the farmer and said:

"I could have sold you every article you have here for less money than you paid the Chicago house, and saved you the freight besides."

"Then why on earth didn't you say so?" answered the farmer. "I have taken the local papers for years, and never have seen a line about your selling these goods. The Chicago house sent me advertising matter, asking my trade, and they got it."—Valley Register.

Apple Whip.

For an apple whip, put the unbeaten whites of two eggs in a bowl and beat just enough to foam slightly. Add two tablespoonfuls of fine granulated sugar and beat for a moment. Grate quickly two peeled and cored tart apples. Begin to beat, adding the apple pulp a spoonful at a time. Beat until the mixture has swollen to almost three times its first amount and is quite stiff. Add a drop or two of vanilla and heap in glasses. It should not stand more than an hour at most.

TILE DRAINING A FIELD.

Importance of Paying Attention to All Details of the Work.The first and most important consideration in the draining of any field is how to secure a proper outlet. This, if possible, should have a free outfall always above water and so protected as never to become obstructed. If the outlet is permitted to terminate beneath water a certain section of the drain must remain continuously full of water, and under these conditions
there is danger of silt depositing, closing the drain and rendering the whole system ineffective.It should be so made as to be uninjured by freezing and not in danger of being clogged through the tramping of animals about it. Either sewer tile or vitrified drain tile, which will not be crumbled by the action of frost, should be laid for the first fifteen or twenty feet. If neither of these are available the next best plan is to bed the ordinary tile in a good concrete to a depth of four or five inches and at the mouth build up with the concrete a protecting face sufficient to prevent the caving of earth about the outlet. It is well, too, to extend the concrete in a sloping apron two or three feet, on which the water may spill without eroding.
Across the mouth of the tile there should be bedded in the concrete when it is laid a few vertical bars of half inch iron rod to prevent the entrance of animals. The outlet may discharge into a stream or lake or into an open ditch, but in whatever place there should be no possibility of it ever being more than temporarily under water or otherwise obstructed.Unless the fall for the drain can be very considerable its laying must be done with great care, the amount of care to secure perfectly uniform grade increasing the smaller the fall must be. To illustrate, in case the fall must

POOR WAY TO LAY TILE.

be as little as an inch in a hundred feet it is clear that an error of three inches either up or down in the proper laying of the tile might cause water to stand to a sufficient depth in the tile to practically fill one three inches in diameter, and this would cause the sitting up of the tile so as in time to render the section above the error in laying entirely inefficient.When the tile has been brought finally into place great care should be taken to turn each piece until a close joint is secured on the top and as far as possible down the side and to see that it lies solidly upon its bed before any filling is placed over it. Enough earth should then be added to hold the tile firmly and prevent their becoming displaced when the final filling is done.
It is important that the filling or all but the final leveling should be done as early as practicable, as there is great danger from heavy rains washing soil into the drain through the joints when they are still loosely covered with only a foot or so of soil above their tops.—American Agriculturist.

Orchard and Garden.

The really only successful garden is the clean garden.Good fruit and vegetables in clean, attractive packages need no salesman.
If you have any San Jose scale spray
the trees this fall and again next spring.It does not pay to plant crops in the peach orchard. Some people do it, but it is generally believed to be a bad practice.A covey of quail in an orchard will prove a good friend to the grower, because they eat a tremendous number of insects.Carnations intended for winter blooming should not be allowed to flower. Pinch off the buds as soon as they appear.When doing the tree planting, do not forget to put a few trees in a corner of the pasture fields if there is such a thing as a fenced pasture on the farm.
Protect these for a few years and they will protect the stock for many more.The city dealer profits by the laziness of the fruit grower by grading and repacking his badly assorted product.

New York and the Surf.

Few New Yorkers ever stop to think that one of that city's chief attractions is the surf. Philadelphians must go fifty-six miles to the ocean. Though the folk of Baltimore and Washington live on tidewater, they must travel for surf bathing to the capes. Boston is the only other large town on the Atlantic seaboard besides New York that has the ocean at its back door. San Francisco and Los Angeles are the only Pacific coast cities within trolley ride of ocean beach. None of the Mexican gulf cities can be compared to New York as a seaside resort, and as to New Orleans, another Mecca of the pleasure seekers, that lies more than 100 miles above the mouth of the Mississippi. But, including Coney Island and Rockaway, a good many miles of Greater New York are bounded by the ocean. This fact, just to consider the money making side of it, means an enormous revenue to the metropolis
from the inland parts of the country.
It is an advantage other great world centers, such as London, Paris and Berlin, do not enjoy.—Argonaut.

The Short Step Between.

"I was on an ocean liner when she ran on the rocks off the English coast
some years ago," said a traveling man.
"and in the panic that ensued there is one incident that stands out in my memory, illustrating the slender thread between the tragic and the ridiculous.
We had a fellow on board who had managed to keep pretty well loaded all the way across, and when we struck the rocks he was in his usual condition. When everybody thought for sure we were going to the bottom
he sat down at the piano in the saloon, and what do you suppose he began playing? 'Home, Sweet Home.' Somebody went to him and begged him to stop. Immediately he switched off from the doleful strains of the old song to the rollicking melody of 'Down Went McGinty.' The absurdity of the thing seemed to strike everybody at once, and a general laugh followed.
The tension was relieved, and there was good order after that."

The Restaurant Piccolo.

Writing from Dresden, an American says: "There is at least one thing in a German restaurant for which one would look in vain in our country.
That is the piccolo. You may think that I mean a musical instrument and that any orchestra in any country might have one of these, but you are wrong. My piccolo, the one at the restaurant, is a human being. He is a boy twelve to fifteen years old, who assists the regular waiters. He wears the regulation waiter's costume and looks funny in his spiketail coat. He is as solemn as a funeral, knows how to extract a tip and for the high privilege of retaining his place and taking his first degree as a waiter must endure much abuse at the hands of the head waiter and his underlings. He is a funny little fellow, this piccolo, who because of his appearance could never prosper in our country."—New York Tribune.

Created a New Word.

It was the third Earl Spencer who added a word to the language in consequence of a wager. The bet was that by cutting off the tail part of his overcoat he could bring into fashion overcoats so short that the skirts of the undercoat would show beneath. He won his wager, and "spencer" became the name both of that garment and of the feminine one afterward constructed in its likeness. The peerage has added more than one name to the terminology of costume. Everybody knows "Wellingtons," and the billy-cock hat is said by some to be really
"Billy Coke," from Coke of Norfolk, earl of Leicester. But none of these examples in the sphere of clothes rivals what the Earl of Sandwich did when he contrived the slice of meat between bread as a device to enable him to go on gambling without leaving off for a meal.—London Chronicle.

Getting Acquainted.

"We hesitated about renting this place," said the woman who had just moved in, "until we learned that the families on both sides of us owned their houses. It is so unpleasant to live where the people next door are always changing and you never know what kind of neighbors you are going to have.""Yes," responded the woman on the other side of the fence. "That's one reason why we're trying to sell our house."—Chicago Tribune.

A Bright Student.

During a recent examination in the theology of the Old Testament the following question was asked a young clergyman: "What language did Ba-laam's ass speak?" After a moment of thought a smile flashed across his face, and he wrote his answer. I looked at the paper. He had written, "Assyrian."—Lippincott's.

Things He Sees.

"He's a terrible drunkard, isn't he?"
"Yes, but he's a good citizen."
"How can that be?"
"Every time he has jimjams he goes to the courthouse and pays taxes on a pack of pink and blue dogs."—Cleveland Leader.

Anticipated.

Margaret—Did you tell the girls at the tea that secret I confided to you and Josephine? Katharine—No, truly
I didn't. Josephine got there first.—
Harper's Bazar.

Knew Better.

"They say Brown is ten years ahead of his time."
"Well, it's not true. He's six months behind. I'm his landlord and know."

FOR SCHOOL DAYS.

Sensible Fashions For Girls in Their Teens—New Blouses.A good school gown for a young girl
in Russian style is of dark blue serge.
The coat is beautifully cut and strapped with black braid in military fashion, and the shawl collar and cuffs are trimmed with dark blue taffeta. The skirt is plaited, and the waist is made with a shaped yoke which continues in epaulet style in a long line down the outside of the sleeve to the wrist.Wash blouses of white silk striped with color are practical school waists.

GIRL'S SCHOOL BONNET.

They are much better than the finger-blouses, because they do not soil so readily and require less frequent trips to the laundry.Norfolk coats or various modifications of the Russian blouse idea, with basques or skirts, are shown in youthful coat and skirt costumes. The skirts are usually plain, with a joined band at bottom, and trimmed simply with stitched strappings of the material.In long coats for very cold weather there is a fine assortment this year, and among the best are the models of blanket cloth.Close fitting bonnets are much in demand by the girls just now for school wear. This one is very simple and easy to make. The bonnet consists of the crown and brim. The crown is shirred at the neck edge and joined to the brim. When the plaited brim is used it is arranged over the plain one,
which serves as a foundation.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

Hoods on Evening Wraps—Black Velvet Ribbon Modish.Hoods are seen on many of the handsomest evening capes. These are often finished with a tassel more or less elaborate.The rage for black velvet trimming is sure to hold over into winter and should be welcome to women, for it makes possible very effective trimming touches at comparatively slight expense and affords opportunity for easily freshening old frocks.A new petticoat is of imported moreene of light weight in moire effect.
The design of the skirt is novel. The

NEW FANCY BLOUSE.

upper part fits the figure smoothly to well below the knees, being carefully gored. Well below the knees the skirt meets a sectional flounce showing clusters of tucks, tiny and novel cording, the lower edge finished with a ruffle. The colors are wistaria, Copenhagen blue and black. The price is $2.25.Gowns will be much elaborated this season with broad bands and all kinds of odd ornaments of passementerie in the gayest of designs. Crystal and gold figure prominently in these new trimmings as well as bead fringe.A fancy blouse of this character is available for a great many occasions.
As pictured it is built of crepe de chine combined with lace and trimmed with beading, but any two contrasting materials can be used. The oversleeves are cut in one with the main portions,
and the finished effect is smart as well as novel.

CONSIDER WELL.

To guard this country against the mal-administration of our laws, to wrest dominating power from the hands of a few who have usurped it, to demolish boss rule wherever it exists, and to follow the intent and purpose of those who established our form of government—this should be the ambition of every voter who goes to the polls on November eighth. But ambition without action amounts to nothing, and neither does action without previous careful consideration. Bearing on this subject and under the caption, "How to Vote In The Congressional Election," the Baltimore News rightly says:

In this situation the thing for the independent voter to do is to examine candidates with a view to finding out what they stand for, not what party label they wear, and to vote for the man who seems most likely to respond to the demand that is sweeping over the country for honest government, less partisanship, economy—in a word, for more business and less politics at Washington. Vote for the candidate for Congress in whom you would rather put your trust if the business to which he is to attend concerned yourself personally rather than as one of ninety million people, and you will not go astray.

The voter, as we have heretofore said, should put himself in the position of one who is a stockholder in a tremendous business concern. This government is nothing if not a big business concern, and congressmen but directors in that concern, directors who are chosen by the vote of the stockholders to manage its affairs, not for the benefit of a few chosen ones, not in the interest of a powerful money clique or a combination of individual bosses, but impartially and for all.

In the Sixth district the voters will be called upon to name their Congressman, their director, and the choice must be made between one who—himself nominated by one-man power—stands on a platform advocating the un-American principle of legislating for the few and doing the bidding of "those higher up," and a man of the people, nominated by the people, identified with the people and who if elected will represent and stand up for the people. Consider well.

THAT GOOD ROADS BUSINESS.

If it costs anywhere from eight thousand to twelve thousand dollars a mile to build a few, a very few, so-called "model roads" about a mile or so in length; and if these roads are of no practical service except as "show" roads, so far as the people are concerned, how long will it take to use up that five million appropriation? With the new and very original bookkeeping system said to be employed in the office of the Good Roads Commission and the hop-skip-and-jump methods of choosing locations and deciding where to begin and end road work of any kind, and with salaries going on all the time during a very long period it would appear to the close observer that there is nothing very satisfactory or economical or acceptable to the taxpayers about any of this road business as operated in Maryland under this system.

The people who pay the taxes are the ones most concerned in good roads. They have a right to demand good roads that will benefit the greatest number; and the right of criticism is theirs. They are not pleased with what has been done, they are incensed at the expense already incurred, they (except a few) have received no benefit from this expense and in their judgment the Good Roads Commission is incompetent. Why then does not Governor Crothers respond to the wishes of the people and remove this Board and appoint another one? Senator Rayner has advised him that "the Governor of Maryland has the absolute and arbitrary right to remove, without cause, if he sees fit, any of his subordinate officials."

SOLVING OF CHRISTMAS GIFT PROBLEM.

The November magazines are teeming with Christmas advertisements and many of the woman's journals already contain innumerable helpful little suggestions that make Christmas gift preparations a perfect delight. All one has to do now is to check off from these published lists the practical and appropriate things for men, or follow implicitly the carefully thought out directions for making a dozen or more useful and dainty presents for either men or women. What labor and worry is saved in this way! For instance, Father is always in the family's thought. The list fixes him in a moment, knowing that he is practical and loves to attend to the fire, carry the coal, chop the wood and shovel the snow off the front pavement you run your eye down the column and find something like this: plush covered pokers with ribbon loops for hanging; enamel coal scuttles with ball bearing castors and gilt monogram; asbestos slips for axe handles, gun metal buckle attachment; aluminum snow shovels with painted panel in five colors. Of course should father not have a practical turn of mind the following from the same list will appear most suitable: fifty burlap cigars, cologne flavored with red bands, and in shiny varnished box; neckties woven from cigar ribbons, or gilded cord; a pen wiper made by stuffing one of grandfather's neck stocks with pine needles and covering it with japalac sprinkled with white sand. But there is practically no end to these lists. They embrace everything from directions how to convert soap boxes into grand pianos, down to instructions for constructing baby carriages out of mackerel-keg tops and old umbrellas. How thankful, then, all should be for this invaluable work of these helpful magazines.

MRS. EMMA ZIMMERMAN.

Faith, faithfulness and service, the one a prized possession, the other a distinctive characteristic, and the last that which is a part of one's very self given up for others—these three are what some noble men and women have abided in and shown and willingly and honestly given throughout their whole lives, and these were the guiding influences in the career of one whose death, last week, caused this whole community to mourn with a sorrow both genuine and deep.

Death has severed many ties in this little town. It has removed from its midst many whose friendship meant much to those who shared it, whose charity meant a great deal to those who knew it; but few have gone to the great beyond who will be more sincerely missed than Mrs. Emma Zimmerman. In the ripeness of age, after a lifetime of honest work, of loyalty to friends of love to kindred, she faced death with resignation, the future beyond death with the eagerness of perfect faith and she leaves behind her a christian example that should be an inspiration to all.

DRAWING NEAR.

The sage is in the sausage and mayhap some dogtags too, and soon the worn-out trunk strap will adorn the kidney stew. And who can tell how often, in the hunting days to come, how many old welsh rarebits will be served with cold bay rum? Hard cider's on the sideboard and soft soap is in the soup. Eftsoons the wabbling waffle will begin to loop the loop. They're chopping ehop for suey and the pumpkin pie is here, and the scraps are in the scrap-ple, so Thanksgiving day is near.

A New Definition.

"Pa, what is an equinox?"
Why, it's—it's— Don't they teach you anything at school? I thought you studied mythology. An equinox, my son, is a fabled animal, half-horse, half-ox. Its name is derived from 'equine,' meaning horse, and 'ox.' Schools are different now from what they were when I was a boy."—Everybody's

Good Bye Paper Cigarette Boxes.

That cigarettes are soon to be sold in tin boxes instead of the paper or pasteboard boxes in which they have been handled for years, is an announcement made in the steel trade at Pittsburgh. The American Can Company at the earnest solicitation of the American Tobacco Company has made inquiry of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company there for experiments in the making of light boxes for the cigarette trade. Those experiments are now being carried out and have proceeded far enough to justify the forecast that cigarettes of the near future will be bought "by the can." The tin plate in use is known as No. 38 gauge or one-thirty-eighth of an inch in thickness.

He found the school teachers everywhere complying with the vaccination law. During the year he issued 300 child labor permits. Forty children were rejected on account of educational and physical defects. He says: "In my opinion this law is a farce. There is nothing in it, because it has no foundation to stand upon. For example, when I reject an applicant for a permit he roams around the streets and alleys. There should be a base compulsory education law." Dr. Pitsnogle urges the appointment of a food and meat inspector for Washington county, a health officer in every election district in the county and that the office of county health officer be taken out of politics.

SIXTH DISTRICT POLITICS

Warner Assailed in His Own County.—His Fitness and Right to Position Denied.—Few Excerpts.

Carroll Record, Taneytown, says: The political situation in the Sixth district, this year, is decidedly peculiar, and the result will be awaited with more than the usual interest. Mr. Warner, the Republican candidate, is unquestionably handicapped, not only by the fact that he was the choice of only one county (Frederick) out of the five in the district, but because he is regarded as being more a resident of Washington, than he is of the district, and because his candidacy was forced on the people rather than because of any pronounced strength or fitness personally possessed. He is said to be a very clever gentleman, and all that, but still he is not exactly the candidate to become enthusiastic over.

Montgomery County Sentinel.

Altogether apart from the factional troubles of the Republicans, which are matters for them to deal with, what real claim has Brainard H. Warner, Jr., upon the people of the district? At no time has he lived a year continuously in the State or district which he seeks to represent; has never owned a foot of ground in it, or paid a dollar of taxes to support the local or State government; has never been identified with its business interests or contributed to the promotion of its trade; has never turned its sod or mingled with its people except as a solicitor of political favors which he does not deserve and which he has given no evidence that he can wear with credit to his constituents. To all intents and purposes Mr. Warner is a non resident of Maryland, using a technical domicile for the gratification of political ambitions.

Furthermore, Mr. Warner is untried in the field of Federal politics and is entirely without the training needed to fit one to deal with the great questions that are now pressing for solution. In a blind sort of way he has endorsed all that has been done during the Taft administration, including the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, under which the burden of life has been made heavier for the man who earns his bread in the sweat of his face; but he has failed to show that he possesses the rudimentary elements of statesmanship or that he knows the A-B-C of politics.

Certainly, this great district, intelligent, progressive and enterprising, has no desire to be represented by a man who has no identity with its interests, no grasp of its needs, no influence to promote its welfare. All this would be true if it were settled beyond peradventure that the next Congress will be Republican. It is doubly fortified when every prospect points to a sweeping Democratic victory, in which event he would be the merest cipher.

It seems to us that no appeal could be stronger than the plain statement of the case to induce our people to make a special effort to elect Mr. Lewis to Congress. If the voters are dissatisfied with the prevailing conditions, they possess the only means by which the evils may be suppressed and a better order of things brought about. The law of the land has made the people the masters of the situation. If they are indifferent political matters are sure to go wrong. If they are alert, active, determined to have the right, it will prevail.

Montgomery Press, Kensington.

Maryland sticks to the old-fashioned notion that her congressmen should be actual, permanent and continuous inhabitants of this state; that they should be closely identified with the people; and that the business and social interests of their representatives should be in Maryland. They fail to discover anything in the candidacy of Mr. Warner except a desire to gratify a family ambition.

Open Letter from Republican.

Editor the Montgomery Press:—

The time has come when Maryland Republicans of the Sixth Congressional District must consider the question of what they will do in the congressional election to be held in November. The Republican candidates have assembled together and attempted to formulate a platform and in that platform have placed themselves among the stand-patters and while silent as to Cannonism, one reading their platform can come to but the conclusion that these representatives are in favor of the return of Cannon as Czar of the house of Representatives. Of course, the platform is indefinite enough to permit any one of the candidates to repudiate this and make a straight-forward and honest statement as to where he stands on this issue. This has not been done by the Republican candidate in the Sixth Congressional District. He, therefore, must stand for the tariff as it is and for Cannon as he is, and if that is so, why should a Republican in this Sixth District, having at heart the interest of his party, support him? The tariff which is so highly commended by the Congressional candidate is a tariff that makes the rich man richer and the poor man poorer, and the candidate cannot in one breath commend and endorse President Taft, who said that this tariff bill was the best ever, and in the same breath be in hearty sympathy with the great moral awakening inspired by the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt, who speaking of Senator Beveridge having voted against this tariff says:

"Senator Beveridge did not split from his party, he merely stood by the bulk of it, because the real party consists of the mass of the people. The mass of the people wished to see done what he did. And before the next Presidential election comes around, the Platform will be fairly and squarely the platform on which Senator Beveridge stands."

So this is what Theodore Roosevelt, the greatest living Republican, thinks of the tariff bill that is so highly commended by our congressional candidate. What is there then in this platform that warrants Republicans in supporting it.

It is against facts and Republicans are blindly asked to adopt this platform and support a man who must know that the tariff bill is wrong, because in the very platform in which he commends and endorses this tariff, he also commends the tariff commission, which was the compromise the progressive Republicans wrought from the stand-patters on the tariff question.

Why should the people of this District turn the clock back and support a stand-patter, when at heart every Republican in this District, unless he has an axe to grind, is a progressive Republican? Again, what is there in the candidate himself that should call for the support of a progressive and true Republican of Maryland? Is he progressive? He says not in his platform. Has he ever done anything for the Republican party in this state? Nothing. Has he lived among our people and been one of us? The answer is no.

A mere sojourner to obtain the franchise, living in Washington, most of the time, owning no property in this State, having no ties of blood or hardly friendship in the District, nominated by one man in a primary that was questionable, why should Republicans in this District consider themselves bound to support this candidate, merely because he calls himself a Republican? Would it not be better for the Republican party to turn its back on this nonprogressive candidate, this man who is not one of us, and, by defeating him, clear the party of him and make our Republican party in the Sixth Congressional District a party of the people of that District? This question answers itself and should be answered by the voters of this District on election day, and this man should not be made the most prominent Republican in the Sixth Congressional District.

That he will laud it all over other Republicans is no question, as shown by his action at Rockville, when a committee, that was willing to try to be friendly to him, was insulted. We think that the Republican voters will know how to answer on this question, and that they will see to it that this man is not elected to Congress.

REPUBLICAN.

Success Magazine, New York.

In Maryland, the contest will be, as usual, exceedingly close. The Republicans are expressing high hopes of general success throughout the State, but our own information indicates that these hopes are not fully justified and that the probabilities are that the three present Democratic districts will return Democrats again, while the 3rd and 6th Districts, which are now Republican by majorities of less than 1,000, will return Democrats. The 5th District will probably still be Republican by a narrow margin.

A Millionaire in Jail.

New York is much impressed by the fact that a millionaire must go to jail. True, the term is only ten days, but iron teeth bite hard even in that short time. A. P. Heinze was convicted of obstructing justice in the course of a trial in which he was interested, and was sentenced to jail. He carried the case to the Supreme Court of the United States, which upheld the conviction, and there is no escape from incarceration. This is impressive, not only because of the prominence of the convicted man, but because he attempted methods in court which hitherto have been looked upon with some leniency by the judges.

In the last few years there have been many instances where the courts have shown that independent spirit which the people demand. The judges have been sorely tried at times, and have not punished any man without grave occasion, but the tendency to make the application of justice swifter and surer is one which will receive the approval of all but evil men. A millionaire has no more right in court than the meanest dressed citizen. The power of wealth has been greatly abused of late, and as the courts are the last bulwark of the people they will rejoice to see them using courage in enforcing impartially the mandates of the law.

Mr. Heinze will find out that there is a great difference between the administration of justice in the East and in Montana, where things have happened in recent years which have soiled the judicial ermine and have made honest men blush.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

JUST A REMINDER.

Subscribers for THE WEEKLY CHRONICLE are as a rule—and it is a pleasure to state the fact—very punctual in paying their subscription bills.

Many pay them in advance; others remit the very day their subscriptions fall due. It happens every now and then, however, that some overlook the matter—not intentionally, and not from indifference. They simply forget it.

To the latter this notice is intended to appeal. It is not a dun, simply a reminder made necessary by the ruling of the Post Office Department.

The reason for it has been fully explained and it is taken for granted that all who are still in arrears will be courteous enough to settle promptly.

Changes at B. &amp; O. Station, Frederick.

Plans for Baltimore and Ohio terminal improvements have been received in Frederick, and work, it is understood, will be commenced shortly. Division Freight Agent Charles F. King, of Baltimore, submitted drawings to Mr. Elmer Keefer, local freight agent, who pronounced them commendable in every respect.

The plans consist of a rearrangement of tracks in the freight yard and the construction of extra trackage. A new freight depot and warehouse will be erected and shipping facilities provided. Extra storage space for cars will also be furnished. The cost will be about $60,000.

The improvement was promised some time ago, but for various reasons has been held up. A new passenger depot was also asked for at the time. The present passenger depot is entirely inadequate and has long been a subject of unfavorable comment by strangers. The old freight depot, which is to give way to the new one, is the oldest in the United States.

ERVIN VALENTINE'S SKULL CRUSHED IN ACCIDENT

Team Collided With Telephone Pole on Pike and Occupant Survived His Injuries but a Few Hours.

On Wednesday afternoon at 4.50 Ervin Valentine, of near Rocky Ridge, died in the hay shed at Boyle Brothers warehouse from injuries he received a short time before when his team collided with a telephone pole just South of the creamery.

Mr. Valentine and Mr. Ray Hahn, of Detour, were in Emmitsburg transacting some business in connection with a horse Valentine had purchased from Hahn. They were on their way home and just after they turned down the pike Valentine struck the horse several times with the whip. Hahn was fearful that the animal would get beyond control and jumped. The team ran down the pike and at the creamery struck the telephone pole. The buggy was badly broken and Valentine was thrown out. It is said that his head struck the pole where a dent is shown. But whether it struck there or the ground it was with such violence that his skull was fractured above the right eye.

He was taken to the hay shed nearby and Dr. Stone was summoned. There seemed to be but little hope for his life but the physician took every precaution. While Dr. Stone was administering to the unconscious man Drs. Clifford and James Sappington, of Liberty passed in an automobile and were called in to Dr. Stone's assistance. The physicians as a last measure to save his life decided on an operation. Dr. Stone opened Valentine's skull and relieved the pressure on his brain caused by the fracture. Normal salt solution and stimulants were administered and for a while the patient rallied but it was only for a short time. The accident happened about ten minutes after three and at ten minutes of five he died.

His body was removed to M. F. Shuff's where it was prepared for burial. He is survived by his wife and four children.

GETTYSBURG

Last Thursday, October 20th, marked a day in the history of Pennsylvania College which will long be remembered by hundreds of educators and friends of the institution.

Possibly never before has Gettysburg entertained such a distinguished gathering of educators and clergymen. The cause of this meeting was the inauguration of Dr. Wm. A. Granville, formerly of Yale University, as president of the college. It is authoritatively stated that more of the alumnus were present for this function than have met here at any previous time. Beside these, representatives from a large number of institutions of learning were present.

A large tent had been erected south of Recitation Hall, in which the imposing ceremonies were held.

Preceding the ceremonies an academic parade, participated in by more than six hundred, formed in rear of Recitation Hall, and proceeded around the walks of the campus to the tent. Hon. John F. Dapp, as chief marshal, had charge of the parade, which was made up as follows:—The board of trustees and the professors of the college, seminary and preparatory department followed, all in academic garb and wearing the insignia of their various degrees together with the hoods showing where the degrees were conferred. The delegates from half a hundred colleges and universities followed in similar garb, the officers of the college, the alumni and students following.

The parade was a most imposing and dignified feature of the day. Proceeding slowly and without any music or blarney notes the dignitaries slowly moved to the tent. After their admission the large throng of spectators was admitted.

The exercises were presided over by Justice J. Hay Brown, of the supreme court of Pennsylvania.

The opening prayer was made by Dr. J. A. Singmaster, president of the Seminary.

The singing was led by the Harrisburg Orchestra and a male choir of one hundred voices. Led by these talented musicians the large assemblage sang "Blessing and Honor and Glory and Power," after which Justice Brown delivered the salutation.

He strongly condemned those who would change the name of the institution from "Pennsylvania College" to "Gettysburg College." He concluded his address with an appeal for individual and civic righteousness.

The audience sang "Now Thank we All Our God" and the introduction of the new president by Hon. S. McC. C. Swope, vice president of the Board of Trustees took place. President Granville received from H. C. Picking, treasurer of the college, the keys of the institution, from Dr. Karl J. Grim, librarian, the charter; and from Dr. Charles M. Stock, secretary of the Board, the seal. The new president then took the oath of office.

The presentation of the delegates from other institutions took place and greetings from them were extended by Secretary Anson Phelps Stokes of Yale University. Greetings from the faculty were conveyed by Dr. John A. Himes; from the alumni by Dr. Allen Smith, and from the students by Earl J. Bowman.

Following the inaugural address degrees were conferred as follows:—

Doctor of Laws, Martin G. Brumbaugh, Philadelphia; Dr. Ira Remson, Johns Hopkins University; Judge Henry W. Harter, Canton, Ohio; Hon. Louis H. Clement, Salisbury, North Carolina.

Doctor of Divinity: Anson Phelps Stokes, Yale University; Emil Meister, Lancaster.

Doctor of Science: Dr. Allen J. Smith, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

Doctor of Literature: Colonel John P. Nicholson, Philadelphia.

"A Mighty Fortress," Luther's battle hymn, and the benediction pronounced by Dr. William Gerhart, of the class of 1844, closed the inauguration ceremonies.

Following the inauguration a collation was served to visiting delegates and former students and alumni in Recitation Hall, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Following the collation addresses were made by President Remsen, of Johns Hopkins University; President Reed, of Dickinson; President Heckert, of Wittenberg; Professor Ormud, of Princeton, and Dr. Brumbaugh, superintendent of the Philadelphia public schools. Charles S. Duncan, president of the alumni association, presided.

Later in the afternoon a game of football was played between Lebanon Valley College and the home team, resulting in a victory for the latter by the score of 24-0. The game was witnessed by a large number of the visitors.

In the evening Dr. and Mrs. Granville gave a reception, which was attended by hundreds of the alumni, guests and friends of the college.

The electrical display and decorations were conceded to have been the most elaborate ever witnessed in Gettysburg. The Old Dormitory, lighted with one thousand electric bulbs, presented a handsome appearance. In addition to the electrical display about five hundred Chinese lanterns were distributed through the campus on Wednesday evening, but were spoiled by the rain of that night, detracting somewhat from the beauty.

Dr. Granville's address was able and full of promise for his college. In conclusion he said: "We are looking forward to a future for Pennsylvania College that will fittingly complement her glorious record in the past; yes, we are hoping and praying that her usefulness and her power for good may be increased in manifold measures. But all this will not be realized unless we who are here and the good friends of Gettysburg everywhere resolve on a forward movement. The new era which is apparently opening up for Gettysburg College will prove to be merely an illusion unless we are willing to put our own shoulders to the load. Gettysburg needs your interest, your sympathy, your prayers, and your money, and I am certain you will not fail her. This is not begging, I am merely calling your attention to an investment which cannot fail and from which the returns are sure in both time and eternity. This is an opportunity to invest, not in books, stock and bonds, but in lives, lives of young men thirsting for knowledge and eager to prepare themselves for the greatest service to their fellowmen and to their God."

The sixty-fourth anniversary of the Woman's Bible Society of Gettysburg was held in the College Lutheran church Sunday evening. The sermon was preached by Rev. Joseph B. Baker.

On Saturday, October 29th, the statue of Father Corby, will be unveiled with fitting ceremony. A number of prominent men will speak.

Edward H. Culp died at his home on York street at 4 P. M. Monday, of cancer of the stomach, aged 51 years.

Mr. Culp was a life-long resident of Gettysburg, being a son of the late Henry Culp. For some years he has conducted a successful grocery business. He served several terms in the borough council from the 1st ward.

H. W. Taylor, Republican nominee for Director of the Poor, has withdrawn his name from the contest, claiming that by virtue of the Constitutional Amendments, adopted last fall his term does not expire for another year. He says he intends to test the validity of the Amendment if a successor should be elected.

FOLDING WORKBENCH.

Here is One That Does Away With Objections to Ordinary Kind.

In the tool house or stable there is always a need at times for a workbench, with a safe place to keep the tools needed for any repair jobs that may be needed. This is a greatly needed many times in the year, but when not in use is, if stationary, often in the way.

By hinging the table or top of bench to the studding, as shown in illustration,

WORKBENCH AGAINST WALL.
(From Orange Judd Farmer.)

tion, it may be folded up against the wall, where it is held by hooks, entirely out of the way and ready for use in a moment's time. When lowered the legs, which are hinged to the top, let down to the floor, and the hinges against board on studding hold bench firmly.

The space behind the top is an excellent place to keep all the small tools, as boards may be placed between studding at top and bottom, thus making it a tight box when top is raised, and when lowered your tools are all within easy reach just where you want them.—Orange Judd Farmer.

MELONS ALL YEAR ROUND.

Delicious Fruit Can Be Produced by Cultivation Under Glass.

In the summer melons are plentiful on the market, but few there are who know the delicious flavor, not to mention size, of a fully developed and well ripened fruit grown under glass. Nor is the season of such fruit limited, for melons can be produced all the year around. During the summer they can be produced in fourteen weeks from time of sowing, winter months taking a few weeks longer. To keep up a steady supply four small houses must be devoted to them. These must have adequate pipe heat to maintain the temperature through the cold weather and also to furnish bottom heat for the plants. Raised benches with pipes underneath answer both purposes well.

When sowing the seed use a good open compost and place very lightly in three inch pots, inserting one seed in each pot and water in. Place the whole in a house having a temperature of 70 to 75 degrees night and cover with paper to maintain the moisture. Good seed should germinate in about four days. When seedlings are through prepare bed for permanent planting. Good, heavy loam with old lime rubble mixed into it is all they require. Cover bottom of bench with sod, adding more with lime rubble and ramming as firm as possible until the whole is four inches thick. Mix more of same compost and also add a little charcoal for the mounds. These should be placed on the bed twenty inches apart and the seedlings planted in. Maintain a night temperature of 70 to 75 degrees and syringe twice daily. Take one shoot up until the plants are three-quarters up trellis and then stop.

Lateral will now appear bearing female flowers. Stop these one leaf beyond the flower. If possible three or four of these should be fertilized the same day to insure an even crop. As the fruit swells it will need support. Nets made for the purpose should be used. During the time the fruit is swelling the plants will take lots of water and feed, which can be given in the form of light top dressing and quick acting manures.

As soon as fruit shows signs of ripening cease syringing and keep a drier atmosphere and give all air possible. Quality is usually to be preferred to size, especially as medium sized fruit is easier to serve on table, being cut through and cracked ice placed in center.

Scarlet fleshed varieties usually are of best flavor, but there are good green and white fleshed varieties.—Horticulture.

The cost of two battleships would pay for four good experiment stations and a section of land for each, not only in one state, but in every state of the Union.

Dairy Doings.

Whitewash the stable occasionally. It is a short task if you have a whitewash machine, and it keeps everything sweet and clean.

A nervous cow is preferable to a stolid one. The chances are that she will give more and better milk than her dull, mopey sister.

It is impossible to tell the profitable cows from the unprofitable animals unless you test your milk. The quantity of milk is not enough. The butter fat must be considered.

Every farmer cannot have a prize winning herd, but he can have a few prize winning animals. The number of good animals can be gradually increased until the entire herd is good.

The dairyman should always be ready for any emergency that arises. With her first calf the young cow often has trouble. Caked udder or whatever the trouble may be should be carefully looked after.

The National Flag.

The first display of the national flag at a military post was at Fort Schuyler, on the site of the present city of Rome, N. Y. The fort was besieged early in August, 1777. The garrison was without a flag, so one was made according to the prescription of congress by cutting up sheets to form the white stripes, bits of scarlet cloth for the red stripes, and the blue ground for the stars was made from a piece of the blue cloak belonging to Captain Abraham Swartwout of Dutchess county, N. Y. This flag was unfurled over the fort on Aug. 3, 1777.

The national flag was first unfurled in battle on the banks of the Brandywine Sept. 11, 1777. The flag was first hoisted over a foreign stronghold June 28, 1779, when Captain Rathbone of the American sloop of war Providence captured Fort Nassau, on the Bahama Islands. Captain Paul Jones was the first man to display the American flag on an American vessel. This flag was made by the women of Portsmouth, N. H., for the Ranger, which was fitted out at that port for Captain Jones. The Ranger sailed from Portsmouth on Nov. 1, 1777.

Buried Landscapes.

One of the most curious results of geological exploration is the discovery of "buried landscapes," by which is meant parts of the former face of the earth now covered under later deposits, but yet retaining so many of their original features that the geologist can ideally reconstruct the scenes that would have been presented to the eye of man if he had been present among them. Sometimes buried landscapes exist in countries now densely inhabited. Investigation has shown that one lies beneath the region in England known as Charnwood forest. The rocky projections seen there are the peaks and aretes of a buried mountain chain belonging to the old red sandstone period. Several different phases in the history of this landscape have been traced. At one time it contained salt lakes and desert expanses. In its modern form it is a pastoral region, with barren, stony tracts and rocky eminences where the ancient mountains project through the soil.—Detroit Free Press.

Whistler as a Horseman.

Boggs, a cadet cavalry officer at West Point academy, was an assistant in the riding hall. On one occasion he overheard Whistler, who thoroughly disliked to ride, objecting strenuously to the horse brought for his use. The horse, he argued, was too heavily built and much too large for a man of his size. Whistler, with much vehemence, urged the man next him to "swap." The man with whom he wished to exchange horses was of muscular build and a "pretty generous size," and his horse a lightweight animal, so it seemed to Whistler that it would be a "most fitting exchange."

"Oh, don't swap! Don't you swap, Mr. Whistler!" cried the dragon.

"Yours is a war horse, sir!"

"A war horse!" exclaimed Whistler. "That settles it. I certainly don't want him."

"Yes, you do, sir," reiterated the man. "He's a war horse, I tell you, for he'd rather die than run." Century.

Among Those Present.

Commenting with light irony on the pretensions of a certain well-known contributor to Paris Figaro questions whether men of this type are any sillier than those of a past generation who belonged to well known families of long descent.

"There was one of the family of Croy," this contributor writes, "who was fond of showing an old painting of Noah entering the ark and crying out:

"Sauvez les papiers de la maison de Croy!" (Save the records of the house of Croy!)

Bringing Her Round.

Bingo (tip-toeing into his wife's room, in a whisper)—I've brought three friends home to dinner unexpectedly.

Mrs. Bingo (aghast)—What!

Bingo—Yes, I have. They're down stairs.

Mrs. Bingo—You wretch!

Bingo—Now, my dear, I couldn't get out of it.

Mrs. Bingo (haughtily)—Then you'll have to take the consequences.

Bingo—But—

Mrs. Bingo—You'll have to put up with practically nothing.

Bingo—That's what I told them.

Mrs. Bingo—You did?

Bingo—Yes. I told them that they needn't expect a single thing; that we'd scrape round in the kitchen if necessary and pick up whatever we could and that, as I hadn't let you know, that was the best we could do.

Mrs. Bingo—What did you tell them that for?

Bingo—It's the truth, isn't it?

Mrs. Bingo—Certainly not. As if it makes any difference to me how many friends you bring home! I'll show you!—London Tit-Bits.

Little Known Republics.

Within the domain of the United States on the North American continent there have been divers independent republics, says Mary W. Hazeltine in Harper's Magazine, the very name of three of which is known to but a few. How many Americans of today have heard, for example, of the commonwealth of Watauga, which in 1772 was organized as an independent community by North Carolinians who had crossed the Alleghenies and descended into the basin of the Tennessee, had made themselves homes in the valley of the Watauga river? How many remember the commonwealth of Transylvania, which was organized in the eastern part of what is now Kentucky in 1775 and which sent to the Continental congress a delegate, who, however, was not admitted? How many have heard of the short lived state of Franklin, or Frankland, which at a somewhat later period was self created out of certain western counties of North Carolina?

A Remarkable Concert.

A Carlsbad letter calls attention to a remarkable concert which took place at the Spa on Aug. 6, 1812, a program of which is still preserved in the city archives at that place. The entertainment was given for the benefit of the sufferers by the fire which had laid waste Baden and took place at the Saechsische Saal. The only performers were Beethoven and Polledro, who played their own compositions. There were two pianoforte and two violin solos and several numbers in which both took part, says the writer. The account of the entertainment also mentions the fact that one of the interested listeners was a "tall, elderly man, wearing a great blue coat, who sat perfectly erect throughout the performance, never looking anywhere but at the stage. This was Goethe." The amount realized for the fund was about $200. The letter ends with, "Beethoven at the piano for charity and box receipts $200." Philadelphia Press.

A Dog's Tongue.

Have you ever wanted to know why a dog's tongue lolls out of his mouth on a hot day or when he has been running? People sometimes say that it is because he is thirsty, but that isn't exactly right. If you look at it you will see little drops of water dripping from it. Well, you know that when you get very warm you get covered with perspiration. The dog's body never perspires. When he gets hot all the moisture comes out through his tongue, and as the moisture on the tongue dries up the dog's body cools.—Philadelphia Press.

"I Am Afraid That Fox Has Been at My Hens"

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Greedy Fox

"ONCE upon a time," said daddy, "there were two foxes which were great friends. Of course they were both cunning, for that is the nature of foxes, but one of them was a great deal cleverer than the other. He used to tell his friend, who was very greedy, that he ate too much at a meal—that some day it would do him harm."

"One evening the greedy fox said to his friend: 'Do you know, I feel quite hungry. Let's go out and hunt for something to eat.'

"I have just heard from Brother Weasel," said wise Mr. Fox, "that Farmer Robinson has raised a fine flock of fat hens, but I am afraid to take you there for fear you will eat yourself sick."

"When he mentioned the fat hens greedy Mr. Fox's mouth began to water. 'Yum, yum!' he said. 'Let us go there right away. How far is it?'

"All right, come along," said his friend, "but mind you don't overeat."

"When they reached Farmer Robinson's henhouse they easily found a hole through which they could crawl."

"This hole isn't any too big," said the wise fox. "Don't eat too much, lest you should not be able to get out in the morning."

"That will be all right," said the other fox. "Just leave that to me."

"Well, the foxes made short work of Farmer Robinson's poor hens. They ate their fill, but greedy Mr. Fox's fill came to a great deal more than that of his wiser brother. You shall learn the result."

"In the early morning Farmer Robinson began stirring around his farm. The two foxes heard him. The wise one said: 'Well, it is time for us to be gone. I don't think it will be well for us to be caught around here.'

"Just wait until I finish this bone, can't you?" said the glutton.

"No," said the other, "I'm off. I'll meet you at the den. Goodby." And with that he crawled through the hole and was off like a flash just as Farmer Robinson reached the henhouse.

"I'm afraid that fox has been at my hens," said the farmer. "I'll go and see what mischief he has done."

"The other fox heard him rattling at the door and jumped for the hole. But he had eaten so much and had become so fat that he could not get through the hole, no matter how hard he tried. He stuck halfway. There was a club near by, and I need hardly tell you that thereafter the wise fox had to go bunting alone."

FANCIES AND FADS.

Smart Trimmings of the Coming Winter and Other Accessories.

More fur will be used than usual as a trimming this season on gowns, coats and hats alike. It combines especially well with velvet, and, as this will be the leading material for dressy street frocks, most of these will be decked with strips or ornaments on cuffs, neck, girdle and hem or marking the opening when that is the front of a garment.

CAPE FOR SMALL TOTS.

Smart high boots for the winter are made of black satin or of black velvet. They are buttoned and quite high.

Fancy hand bags with broad metal tops are carried by means of long double silk cords. These cords match the color of the material in the case of suede, but where the bag is made of one of the Persian fabrics or of plaid the cord must match the color of the gown or suit with which it is carried.

The best lace to have dyed to match the gown is Irish crochet. This lace is so strong and durable that it may be employed again and again and will outlast many finer real laces, which are also far more expensive.

Simple circular capes are much worn by small girls. The cape in the cut shown has openings in the front through which the hands can be slipped and is finished either with a hood or a collar. When the hood is lined with a bright color the effect is very pretty. JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Manton pattern comes for girls one, two and four years of age. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 6778, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

VISTAS OF LA MODE.

The Bell Shaped Hat is Popular. Waistcoats Are In.

Some of the smartest hats of the smaller type are the cloche models, very reminiscent of the mushroom hats with a decided bell shape. They are of felt, velvet, fur, and are trimmed with ribbon bows at the back or with plumes and wings.

Waistcoats are brightening up many of the black or dark colored walking costumes. Moire in some suitable shade and Japanese embroidery, cloth and old brocade are smart.

While many girls cling to the comfort of the Toby collar, the up to date girl will adopt the pretty, narrow turnover embroidered linen collars, such as were worn by our grandmothers. This no doubt will create a call for the large brooches of those days.

Quite a few of the imported skirts have the habit back, which is an indication that the once popular style will soon be in vogue again.

Many of the utility coats show raglan sleeves, but for the regular street garment the plain tailored sleeve is the correct thing.

Tailored shirt waists are always needed. This one can be made in a variety of ways. With the tucked fronts and strapped shoulder seams it is adapted to linens and heavy wash materials, but made with gathered fronts the softer and thinner fabrics are more appropriate. JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes from 34 to 42 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 6774, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.
