Highwayman Robs Farms of Fertility and Leaves in His Wake Impoverished Land, Abandoned Farms and High Prices.

The tenant farmer is a menace. He is the highwayman of the soil. In his wake are impoverished land, abandoned est agricultural evil in existence. So says Henry J. Waters, President of the Kansas State Agricultural College.

For several years the yield per acre whereas with recent revolutionary improvements in farming machinery it should have increased at least 15 per ship of about 300 firms in the United cent., according to Mr. Waters, and States. the tenant farmers are the men to blame. They are squeezing the fertility from the soil, robbing the land of its power to produce, and leaving vast areas of once rich country exhausted, barren and dead. They have marched across half of America in the wake of cently its movements have been markand wherever they have tarried they have left blight and desolation.

According to figures compiled by President Waters four out of every ten farms in the country are occupied by tenant farmers and the number of them is increasing rapidly, but already it is David R. Forgan, President of the Natlarge enough to make felt its weight in the increased cost of bread and meat. The tenant farmer, he says, is a migratory agricultural vagabond. He stops long enough to skin the soil and then through a rural parcels post and the moves on to greener fields. He takes everything and gives nothing. He farms for to-day only, to-morrow may take care of itself. His one object is to wring from the tortured soil the logue, the cost would be reduced to 10 trade had this to say: "The business they could possibly attend to and more.

The tenant farmer produces only the crops that are easiest of cultivation and surest of raady sale, such as corn or wheat. As was told in another issue of the CHRONICLE Baltimore's remarkable segregation ordinance has been passed and signed. The ordinance seeks to compel by law the separation of the white and to determine whether there are grounds black races in their place of residence; to prohibit the Negro from intruding himself and his family as permanent residents in a district already dedicated to the white race, and equally, to prevent the white man from forcing himfighter, who has been retained to con self upon a district given over to the Negro.

borhood would no more think of occupying or leasing that property to another Negro than a white man would-simply because he knows that such an act would result in the depreciation of the value of his property perhaps one-half. There are several instances of this kind of which I know."

"This ordinance was passed after due deliberation by all those concerned in and connected with its passage. Several hearings were accorded all parties in interest, either directly or indirectly. Such hearings, it is admitted, even by those opposed to the measure, were eminently just and fair. It was passed, not in the heat of prejudice or passion, but after calm, judicial consideration and determination; it was passed because those in whose hands lay the power to pass it judged that it would bring the greatest good to the greatest

"It was not passed in a spirit of race antagonism; most of us concerned in its passage are the best friends the colored people have: but it was passed to meet a critical condition that was crying out for a solution-and in this ordinance we think we have found that solution."

George W. McMechen, the Negro lawyer whose occupancy of the premises at 1,834 McCulloh street practically precipitated the whole matter into the form of the present ordinance, is a native of Wheeling, W. Va., and after being graduated in the academic course from Morgan College, Baltimore, in 1895, took the law course at Yale, whence he obtained his degree of B. A. in 1897. He is one of the most successful of the Negro members of the Baltimore bar. He says:

"As to the ordinance in question, it is my opinion as a lawyer that it is clearly unconstitutional, unjust, and discriminating against the Negro, although on its face it appears to be equally fair to white and black. But there never has been and there never will be any houses erected here in Baltimore exclusively for Negro occupancy -outside of some small hovels in the alleys. The consequence is that we, who desire comfortable quarters and have the ability to pay for them, are compelled to seek the houses abandondoned by the whites. This is all that is left for us to do.

"So far as having any disposition to live among the whites, I vastly prefer living in the midst of of my own kind. But I cannot get the comfort there that my purse permits me-and which I think I am entitled to under the law, if I pay for it-and hence I am compelled to live next to the whites. I am sure I have never done anything since I have been in that neighborhood that could offend the most fastidious."

VOTE SELLERS' RUSH

Over 850 Plead Guilty, Pay Their Fine, Receive Suspended Sentence and Lose Franchise For Five Years.

The investigation by the grand jury of Adams county, Ohio, of the buying · and selling of votes has led 852 men to plead guilty. On Tuesday, all day long, wagon loads of farmers and citizens from other cities were arriving in town to attend to "business matters." The only ""business" that any really had, however, was to see Judge Blair and Special Prosecutor W. B. Shoemaker, to plead guilty to charges of bribery, pay their fines, receive a suspended sentence of six months in jail, and the ruling of their names from the voting lists for five years.

Judge Blair has decided upon a second investigation. He says there are hundreds who have escaped the Grand Jury, and that as soon as it completes its survey it will begin where it started last week and go over the same ground again that none may escape.

"We have been using a harrow thus far," Judge Blair said, "and many culprits have dodged its teeth. But after we have gone over the county this first time, we are going back and rake it with a fine-tooth comb."

In the issue of the Baltimore Sun for Dec. 20th, three articles appeared where civic house-keeping had been undertaken by women. One in Salisbury, Md., where one of the women of the town, Mrs. L. D. Collier, was appointed a committee of one to start a system of garbage collection in that town. In Atlanta, Ga., the houskeepers of that city set apart one day, and be tween 5,000 and 6,000 women actually went out and swept the streets. Another account was given of Rev. Mrs. Caroline B. It is certainly a matter of local standards of morality, whether the evident how |degrading such influences are in a small town and it we visit the congested district of a large city, we are overwhelmed by the number of saloons. Here the young boys and girls, after working all day, meet for their recreation especially where the dance hall is annexed. The gambling dens offer many attractions to young men. When Maryland women have the vote, we do not think we will be able to abolish all these evils, but we can help check them and take our stand on the questions of public morality.

Margaret Long, daughter of ex-Secretary of the 'Navy Long, has lived in Colorado for years, She writes: "The most noticeable effect which women have had in actual legislation is the advance along humane lines in the greater protection given to children. The child labor law of Colorado is the best in the world. There is a large constituency of women who are interested in these laws, and the Legislature has therefore passed them, where the Legislatures of other States have failed to do so. The women have secured them because more attention is paid to their interests than to those of women who do not vote."

Alice Stone Blackwell says: "Almost everywhere the schools are pinched for Burton F. Blough, of Harrisburg, and Superintendent of Public Instruction said to me: "Some people in Colorado ing chair, which will take his name. grumble about the size of the school tax, but our schools have money enough." General Irving Hale, of Denver, says: "The extension of suffrage to women has made it easier to secure liberal appropriations for education. Colorado appropriates more money per capita for education than any of the Eastern States, which are so much older and richer."

The archdiocese of Baltimore contains no dissenters to the oath prescribed by the Pope. Every priest is against the "modernistic tendencies." The oath in question was sent out last September and caused a good deal of trouble to some German priests. The final clause of the oath as translated reads:

Finally, and in a word, I profess myself opposed to the error of the modernists, who hold that there is nothing divine in sacred tradition; or, what is still worse, admitted in a Pantheistic sense, so that nothing remains of it but the bare and simple fact, just as is the case with other historical facts.

French Defeated in Africa.

The most serious check that French arms have received for years in Central Africa was administered last month, when a column was attacked near Diriel. in the Wadai region beyond Lake Chad. The news has just reached Paris of the engagements, in which 47, including 5 officers, were killed, 73 wounded, and 50 missing. The fatalities include Lieut. Col. GOOD FOR EARLY OAT CROP.

Sixty Day or Kherson Oats Beat Others by About Ten Days.

The two varieties of oats, Sixty Day and Kherson, look so much alike that the same description may be applied to both. The plant is a vigorous but not rank grower, usually less inclined to lodge than varieties with coarser straw. The head, or panicle, is loose and spreading, bearing a large number of grains. The grain is small to medium in size, long and rather slender, but under favorable conditions plump and well filled. Heads of Sixty Day oats are shown in the illustration taken, with the reading matter, from a bulletin of the United States department of agriculture. The color of the Sixty Day and the Kherson oats varies with the locality. In the corn belt the grain is a deep golden yellow, while farther north and in main street and running back 120 ft. to a public alley, with a broad public alley adjoining the same on the West side.

The said lots are improved by a GOOD DWELLING HOUSE on the corner of said alley and said street, and a GOOD HALL, known as "Gelwicks" Hall," In ninety to a hundred days, or about the said street and running back 120 ft. to a driver sections it is much paler, becoming almost white in the extreme west and northwest. The hull is very thin and the weight per bushel usually high. The crop ordinarily reaches maturity in ninety to a hundred days, or about drier sections it is much paler, becom-

> It is not wise to trust the seasons with only one or two crops. Good business judgment requires that several crops be planted, all of which are adapted to your soil and for which there is a demand. This is diversified farming.

Making Mulch of Litter.

Don't burn up any kind of coarse litter that accumulates around the feed yards, but save to mulch different plants in the garden. If some manure is mixed with the litter, so much the better. Such mulch will make melons, cucumbers and many other plants bear more heavily and will save cultivation after they are well started.

CATALOGUE BUSINESS.

The amount of money taken out of small towns in a year by catalogue houses is already enormous in proportion to the population drawn from, and the custom is steadily increasing. There is nothing new about it; it has been going on for years, but not, we believe, on such a big scale as at the present time. The habit is general and it is interesting to note the inconsistency of many who though loudly advocating home patronage are nevertheless continually aiding and abetting far away firms who, even indirectly, never return a cent to the distant communities from which they obtain their support.

Why is it that people who are dependent on the local territory for their living ignore local or nearby business houses conducted by their neighbors, their friends and daily associates and send to entire strangers for what they need or think they need? We assume that there must be some alleged reason for it and this reason we would, for the benefit of all who are interested, like to have explained.

Will those who have had experience in buying from a distance answer these questions honestly: Can goods from far Whether we will it or not, there off points be bought more satisalways comes to us, just as the factorily and at cheaper prices, old year is about to take its flight, freight or express charges inthe thought of what might have cluded, than they can be obbeen and the hope of what yet tained at home? #### Forgetting The Past.

Because a man has failed in achieving success, or because he has gone even further and wilfully wrecked the life that once promised so much, it does not follow that he can never get up again. Yet there are men everywhere who believe that certain incidents in their lives have placed them beyond redemption and that it is useless to try and begin over again. Sometimes they become impatient for the success that seems so far away and frequently give up just before it comes within their grasp. Repeated failures seem only to ves to live only in the present. # EVERY YEAR.

HE Spring has less of brightness Every Year. And the snow a ghastly whiteness Every Year. Nor do Summer flowers quicken, Nor does Autumn fruitage thicker As they once did, for we sicken Every Year.

It is growing darker, colder Every Year, As the heart and soul grow older Every Year, I care not now for dancing Or for eyes with passion glancing-Love is less and less entrancing Every Year.

Of the loves and sorrows blended Every Year, Of the joys of friendship ended Every Year, Of the ties that still might bind me Until time to death resigned me My infirmities remind me, Every Year,

Oh, how sad to look before me Every Year, While the clouds grow darker o'er me Every Year. Where we see the blossoms faded That to bloom we might have aided And immortal garlands braided Every Year.

To the Past go more dead faces Every Year, Come no new ones in their places Every Year, Everywhere the sad eyes meet us, In the evening dust they greet us, And to come to them entreat us Every Year.

You are growing old they tell us Every Year, You are more alone, they tell us Every Year. You can win no new affection. You have only recollection, Deeper sorrow and dejection Every Year.

Thank God no clouds are shifting Every Year, O'er the land to which we are drifting Every Year, No losses there will grieve us, No loving faces leave us, Nor death of friends bereave us Every Year.

Americans Not Popular.

Considerable anti-American feeling was manifested at a bull fight Monday in the City of Mexico, where the visiting Japanese naval officers and cadets were the guests of honor. When the Japanese entered to take their seats, they were enthusiastically applauded and cheers were given for Japan. "AL MARTIN'S COUNTRY STORE."

Well Acted Comedy Presented By The Scholars of The Emmitsburg High School, December 22.

Last Thursday night a large audience greeted the scholars of the Emmitsburg High School in their splendid production of "Al Martin's Country Store," a laughable comedy full of satire, innocent fun and amusing situations. The stage setting was that of a typical village shop with its characteristic array of varied wares, a postoffice and the usual collection of boxes occupied by the leisure contingent of the male sex ever found in such places.

Thirty-four characters were represented embracing every role from the ardent lover to the traditional villian. There was the close-fisted patron of the place, the man of small intellect and long tongue, the swagger capitalist, the voluable and ubiquitous gossip, the frightened animal ran off, but was horse trader, the sheriff, the parson, caught after it had gone a short dis- the town wit, the newly-wed, the darkey servant, the love sick swain and the pretty village maid. The action of the play took place in this mart and of what there occurred the audience had a full and unobstructed view. Special mention, however, should be made of Miss Naomi Harbaugh, who, as "Marie" the heroine, acted her part and spoke her lines to perfection; Miss Pauline Baker and Miss Hazel Boller, country gossips; and Miss Eva Gosnell as "Mandy." Mr. William Morrison made a very acceptable storekeeper, and Mr. Clarence Seabrook as the capitalist and Messrs. *Previously announced. It will be seen that all the towns show an increase of population, although in some cases it is not very vigorous. Thus, for instance, Annapolis in the past ten years has only accumulated 84 more souls. Cumberland is evidently forging steadily to the front. Its rate of increase of population, too, is consistent, having been almost the same in the two past decades. From 1890 to 1900 Cumberland increased by 3,397, and from 1900 to 1910 it increased by 4,713. Hagerstown seems to be the next city in rank. It, too, shows a steady growth, although its record from 1890 to 1900, when it increased by 3,475, is better than its growth from 1900 to 1910, when its increase was 2,916. Armenians soliciting money for an orphanage at Nineveh from church members are crooks. Four of them under suspicion are being looked for by the police. They got several hundred dollars at Atlantic City, N. J.

There was disappointment in Hagerstown town when the figures appeared. Few persons expected the figures to be under 18,000, while others predicted as much as 20,000. It is estimated that over 4,000 people reside in the immediate suburbs and additions to Hagerstown but outside of the corporate limits, and therefore not included in the last census.

E. H. S. LITERARY SOCIETY.

The regular meeting of the High School Literary Society was held last Friday. The programme was opened with singing "How Firm a Foundation." This was followed by a speech by Prof. Strauss and the singing of "Joy to the World." The judges for the debate which followed were Elizabeth Rowe. Clarence Seabrook and Frank Shuff. The question under discussion was Resolved, That Christmas should be observed the same as Sunday. On the affirmative side were Frank Weant and Jones Baker; on the negative Dunn Black and Flora Welty. The decision was given to the affirmative speakers. Select readings were given by the following: Louise Beam, "Just Before Christmas;" Rosana Ohler, "A Christmas Story;" Charles Fuss, "Didn't Bother Her;" Mae Seiss, "Things to The Spirit;" Donald Agnew, "Peace of Good Will to Man;" Wade Stonesifer, "A Christmas Story;" Samuel Keilholtz, "Taking Chances;" Frank Topper, "A Christmas Selection."

Among those who recited were Eva Gosnell, Pauline Baker, and Bessie Dorsey. The following compositions were prepared: Clarence Seabrooks, Benefits Derived from the Play; Fred Wivell, Christmas; Hazel Boller, Joys of Christmas; Elizabeth Rowe, How to spend a Happy Christmas; Eston White Xmas Gifts; Delbert Hospelhorn, A Good Way to Spend Christmas Day.

Mary Weant spoke extemporaneously on Pleasures of Christmas.

The Reading Circle was composed of the following: Edith Ohler, discussion of poem; Frank Shuff, life of poet and reading of poem. Charles Dickinson was selected as the author and his "Christmas Carol" will be read.

MANURING THE GARDEN.

Work That Can Be Done In Winter to Make It Productive.

Cabbage, onions and other gross feeders require more manure than such vegetables as peas or beans. Henhouse droppings and hen manure are cold, but very rich, and should be put in large quantities on the plat where you expect to plant onions, cabbage or celery. Do not manure the potato patch with hen manure.

Ashes are good for the onion bed, as they are for most vegetables, if properly used, possibly being better for the grape vines and strawberries, as these plants require large amounts of potash, says a writer in Farm Progress. I have heard it said that tomatoes do not need fertilizer, but I have not found this true. Well rotted cow manure ? consider the best for plants requiring warm soil, as the tomato, eggplant, okra and pepper. Peas and beans will require some manure, but less than any other vegetables. Lima beans will stand considerable fertilizing.

Stable and farm manure is better for the garden than commercial fer tilizer, because it brings out a better mechanical condition of the soil, ea abling it to stand both drought and excessive wet much better when . contains leaved vegetation. In case of beans or sweet potatoes, for instance rotted straw, which contains but little elements of fertility, is ample because it is more essential to keep the soil loose and moist than to manure exces-

I break the garden in the fall and apply manure in the winter, harrowing it in when the ground is dry in the spring. The plat where late cabbage and celery are to be grown should be manured heavily and replowed late in the spring after the weeds have

Every one should compost every available bit of manure. Build a rail pen in the garden, and into this throw all the ashes and trash about the place that will rot and become fertilizer. Pour the wash water into it, for it has some value. The pile will be ready to scatter over the garden in the

Keeping Cabbage In Fall.

Early in December turn each head over to the north and bank the soil over the stem and base of the head, leaving merely the top exposed. Some make the mistake of turning the heads south, and the heads will be certain to get damaged, for the stem and base of the head are the most tender parts, and these will be to the north, while the morning sun will strike the open head to the south when frozen and damage it, says Progressive Farmer.

The Corn Knife.

A good corn knife makes the work of cutting corn easier. One with a strap for the wrist relieves the ache wonderfully.

The Hum of the Hive.

Economy in the use of foundation is wasteful, and it is a poor practice to put first strips or slatters of foundation in the section boxes, for it is an indisputable fact that a full sheet of foundation in each section box means not only their ready acceptance by the bees, but also the building of straighter combs.

By selection and restriction in the matter of queens we can improve our bees just as we can other stock, and there is always present in every apiary some choice queen far ahead of the others which will give us most excellent queens for requeening. Don't keep bees unless you mean to give them the proper care and attention. If you can't do that you had better leave some one else keep the bees and buy your honey from him.

A man who knows "all about bees" and does not believe that anything more can be gained by reading bee journals, books on bees, etc., will soon be far behind the age.

The present improved system of management requires that hives should not stand too near each other. There should be at least six feet between them, and ten feet would be a preferable distance. Be sure that your bees have a good, prolific Italian queen and the ants will not bother them.

Amending His Constitution.

A well known attorney of heavy build and pompous to a degree that frequently reaches the state of being overbearing was leaving his office in a Broad street building the other day. With his high hat on and carrying a walking stick, he had stepped upon the sidewalk when he slipped and landed flat upon the pavement with a thud that shocked him as well as caused embarrassment.

Just then another attorney who enjoys an equal distinction in the legal world passed and laughed at the fallen lawyer. When the latter was trying to get up he remarked to the other:

"I guess I am getting old. My constitution will not stand what it did vears ago.'

As he arose to his feet his friend facetiously remarked, "Well, then, Dick, you ought to get an amendment to your constitution.'

Looking at his friend with a cold stare, as cold as the ice he had fallen upon, he asked:

"Well, what kind of an amendment would you suggest, if you know so

"I don't know exactly," was the re-"I don't give advice to my clients without some kind of a retainer, but as you are an old friend of mine I would suggest a cushion or a mattress."-Minneapolis Journal.

Salt Water Cataracts.

There are a good many salt water cataracts in existence. They may be found in Norway, southern Chile and British Columbia, where narrow flords, or arms of the sea, are obstructed by barriers of rock. The rising tide flows over and filters through such reefs into the great natural reservoirs beyond, but the water is held back at the ebb until it breaks over the obstruction in an irresistible torrent. Most curious of all is the waterfall at Canoe Pasapproaches the British Columbia main- you enter basis."-Washington Star. land. Here the flood tide from the gulf of Georgia to the southward is held back at a narrow cleft between two islands until it pours over in a Rhine. At the turn of the tide, howback into the gulf, producing a cascade of equal height and volume. The waterfall actually flows both ways.

In the Spring.

The country schoolteacher had been telling her scholars about the seasons and their peculiarities, and to impress their minds with the facts she questioned them upon the points she had Several queries had been put, and finally she reached the stupid boy

"Well, Johnny," she said, "have you been paying attention?"

"Yes'm," he answered promptly. "I'm glad to hear it. Now, can you tell me what there is in the spring?"

"Yes'm, I can, but I don't want to." "Oh, yes, you do. Don't be afraid. You have heard the others. Be a good boy, now, and tell us what there is in the spring.'

"W'y-w'y-mum, there's a frog an' a lizard an' a dead cat in it, but I didn't put 'em there. It was another boy, for I seen him do it."-Exchange.

Sending a Man to Coventry

The expression "sending to Coventry" had a military origin. It arose, ground is about so it is said, in the days of Charles right. This gives I., when the inhabitants of Coventry you a first class strongly objected to any intercourse serviceable farm with the military quartered in their town, and a woman known to speak to a man in a scarlet cloak was at once the subject of scandal. So rigid were the natives that the soldier was confined to the mess room for conversation. Thus the term "sending a man to Coventry" if you wished to shut him from society took root in the English language.-London Chronicle.

He Wanted Figs.

At a small stag dinner the only young and unnoteworthy person present sat throughout the meal commun ing with his own bashful soul, afraid lest by speaking he betray his sophistication. Dessert being served, he fell he must have some of the candied fruit at the other end of the table Clearing his voice, he fixed the nearest waiter with a glittering eye and, amid a sudden total silence, peremptorily called out at the top of his voice, "Pigs. fleas!"-Exchange.

The First Advertiser.

The author looked up from the first chapter of his mammoth "History of Advertising."

"I wonder," he murmured, "who could have been the first manufacturer to advertise. It is an item that would fit in well here."

"There is no extant data on the subject," said the farmer, "but I have every reason to believe that the hen is the person you are looking for."-New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Distances at Sea.

That man was laughed at who on his first voyage said that the ocean did not look so large as he supposed it would, but he was not alone in experiencing disappointment. The horizon at sea gives no idea of the limitless water beyond. A sea captain declares that the average landsman cannot see more than ten miles from the ship in any direction, and it would have to be a mountain or some stationary object for him to be able to distinguish it.

Daddy's Bedtime

"They Found Him Plowing"

AR back in the days of very long ago," said daddy, beginning his bedtime story for Jack and Evelyn, "there lived in Rome a wise and good man named Cincinnatus. He had been rich and great, but he had lost his money, so that he lived no longer in the city, but on a little farm near Rome. He was known to be a wise and brave man, so that the people came to him when they needed advice.

'At one time there lived in the mountains not very far from Rome a tribe of savage men who thought they could take the city away from the Romans. These savages were good fighters, and they got together a large army, so that all the Roman soldiers had to leave the city to fight them, save some old men and boys and a few soldiers who were left to guard the walls from a sudden attack. The Romans thought they could beat the savages easily. The Romans were a very proud, haughty people.

"But soon there came bad news to the city. Some messengers came back to tell that the great army of the Romans had been caught in the mountains with the enemy on all sides of them, so that they could not get out. Help was badly needed, or else all the Roman soldiers would be killed and the city would be captured. What could the Romans do?

"'Let us go to Cincinnatus. He will help us,' said some one. So they went to Cincinnatus. They found him plowing in his little field. When he heard the bad news he left his work at once and went to the city. There he was told that if he would try to help the Romans in their trouble he would be made king of Rome, and they would give him permission to do whatever he "Cincinnatus said he did not care for honors. But he took all the boys and the old men and the soldiers who were left in Rome and led them against the enemy. A few days later there came good news from the mountains. The enemy had been beaten by Cincinnatus, the Roman army had been set free and was on its way back to the city, and there was no more danger from the savage men of the mountains.

"When the army go back to the city, with Cincinnatus at the head of the soldiers, great honors were paid to him. He might have made himself king of Rome, for no one would say a word against the man who had saved the city. But Rome was a republic, in which all men were equal in those days, and Cincinnatus did not believe that it would be well for the city to have a king. So he declined the honor and went back to the little farm and the plow which he had been using when the messengers called on him. He was ruler of Rome for only sixteen days."
