CONVENTION

BE HELD AT FREDERICK President Taft and Other Big Men To Attend

THIS STATE AND CONSERVATION

Representatives Likely Will Be Sent to Congress in Kansas City Next Month Where Practical Farming Will Be Considered.

Arrangements are fast being completed for the Annual Convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Maryland, which will be held at Frederick, November 16th. President Taft has already promised to attend and invitations have been extended to other prominent public men. While Governor Wilson of New Jersey writes Governor Crothers regretting that he cannot accept an invitation because of already being involved in so many engagements, it is still hoped that he may be induced to honor the occasion with his presence.

Capt. D. John Markey of Frederick, Secretary, has communicated with the members of the Executive Committee for suggestions as to subjects to be discussed and speakers to discuss them. It is believed that the attendance and success of the Convention will be very beneficial to people throughout the Members of the Chamber of Commerce and of the various trade organizations in Baltimore are very much interested in the approaching convention at Frederick. Between them and the farmers and merchants throughout the State there is a close business relationship and very often the interest of one is linked with the interest of the other. Maryland is a fine agricultural State and Baltimore a great manufacturing center. There is every indication that both the City and State will enjoy rapid development in the near future.

It is expected that among those that will attend the Convention will be:-F. C. Meyer, President and Herbert Sheridan, Traffic Manager of the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce; H. F. Beck, Traffic Manager of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association; Wm. H. Fehsenfeld, President and Norman M. Parrott, Secretary of the Travelers & Merchants Association; Jacob W. The Vote For Gorman and Lee. Senator Lee received a heavy vote in this county for Democratic candidate for Governor. His total vote was about 51 2,170 as against 751 for Gorman. Buckeystown, precinct one, gave Lee 151; this was the heaviest vote in any of 145 the precincts in the county. Gorman got his heaviest vote in Walkersville.

Motter-Lewis Race.

The contest for nomination as State's Attorney on the Democratic side was extremely close. Delays in returns from Woodsboro and Linganore kept the fight open until they were heard from. Without this vote the fight stood in favor of Lewis, his vote being 1,397, while Motter's was 1,358. Up to noon yesterday with one district still to be heard from, the probable result was that Lewis won by some forty 105 votes. Mr. Lewis was strong in Middletown, Creagerstown, Hauvers, Woodsboro and Woodville.

Fagan Democratic Nominee for Sheriff. In the Democratic contest for Sheriff Mr. Fagan secured about 1,600 votes as against about 1,100 for Mr. Jones.

the congratulations of the army officers who waited to greet him he had ended a flight of 1,265 miles, railroad distance, which beats the best previous mark by 101 miles. To this should be added at least another mile for the distance between the Erie station in Jersey City Governors Island. Moreover, he covered probably 100 additional miles in detours along the route. Atwood's time in the air from St. Louis to New York was 28 hours and 31 minutes, an average speed of a little more than fortyfour miles an hour for the entire journey. His financial reward for the trip is about $6,000.

How Pat Was Working When Eileen Arrived A Labor Day Story

By NORA C. M'CARTHY Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"Pat," said Eileen when Pat started for America, "I hope you won't git mixed up in the labor troubles in that country. They say sometimes there's fightin', and Oi'm skeert ov yer gittin'

"But they say, Pat, that in America they don't have pigs. Anyway, they don't keep 'em in the house. Oi've heard that the pigs is all kep' together and killed together-sometoimes a mather of tin or a dozen at one killin'."

"That won't mather to us. We'll have one just to remind us of home. And we'll have the shanty Oi'm tellin' ye about wid the ladder goin' up to the second story".

"Och, Pat, they don't have ladders in America, they have stairs."

"Well, we'll have a ladder in our shanty just as we'll have the pig. And by that same token we'll have a coo for milk."

"But Oi'm told people don't keep coos of their own in that country. All the milk is put in a big tub and it's peddled out in wagons."

"But we'll have the coo for the same raison we'll have the pig and the ladder, to remoind us of our beautiful islant and the home one couldn't have in it, because we're too poor. But in America Oi'll git together the money for the shanty and the pig and the ladder and the coo, and we'll live like fightin' cocks."

So Pat folded the poor girl in his arms, the tears streaming down her cheeks at parting with him.

"What's the mather, darlin'?" he said, patting her fondly. "Don't be cryin'. It'll not be long before I sind ye the money to come over to me, and be the toime ye git there Oi'll have the shanty ready, so ye'll think ye're right here in ould Oirland."

"What's that?" said Eileen. "It comes hoppin'? Oi thacht it come by a ship.'

Pat remained several years in America before he sent for Eileen. When he got a start he wrote, "Darlint, Oi'm buildin' the shanty." When he made some money he wrote, "Oi've bought the pig." Then the cow followed, his shanty was ready and Pat was ready to send the passage money that was to bring his sweetheart to him in America.

Before starting Eileen wrote that she wished he could bring the shanty and the pig and the cow to Ireland, but she supposed that if he could he wouldn't be able to make the money necessary to keep up the establishment. So she made her preparation to join him.

Pat knew the day she sailed and the day the steamer was due in New York. He wrote her that she would arrive ed Labor day. He would be busy on that day, and he would send his friend, many dollars; same with dandelion. Mike Fogarty, to the steamer to meet and she was glad and proud of him.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scoth-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.-Maruland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

TO THE VOTERS OF FREDERICK COUNTY.

As a candidate for the State Senatorship I very respectfully and earnestly solicit your influence and support during the campaign and at the polls; pledging you in return therefore that, if elected, I shall employ every honorable means and exert every effort to further at all times and under all conditions the interests of the taxpayers and citizens of this big and important county.

That a "Public office is a public trust" is a part of my political faith, and I maintain that an office-holder under the State is a PUBLIC servant.

Firmly believing this I feel that I am qualified to consider all legislative measures without bias, without fear or favor, and therefore to the best interests of ALL the people.

Yours very truly,

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR THE STATE SENATORSHIP.

The Sense of Smell.

There's naught too good for Emmitsburg, its people crave the best, and all that's worth the behest. What e'er they want they work for, and what they need they get, so, little wonder that this place is quite the best

THE number of murders and suicides recorded during the summer has been something more than usual; while the railroad accidents, aero flight mishaps and automobile casualties have reached an appalling figure. Ruled His Servants by Fines. Sir Richard Newdigate, a seventeenth century Warwickshire squire, whose papers were published some years ago by one of his descendants, ruled his servants by a system of fines. The value at which he rated domestic crimes is shown by such entries in his diary as: "Nan Newton, for breaking a teapot, 2s. 6d.; Richard Knight, for pride and slighting, 2s. 6d.; William dictment designated his scheme Thomas Birdall, for being at Nuneaton from morning till night, 5 shillings; cook, dead drunk, 10 shillings." As his cook's wages were only £8 a year she paid pretty dearly for her lapse from sobriety. Sir Richard had a system of rewards as well as penalties. "To my three daughters," he writes, "because they came to prayers, 3 shil lings," and "to Tom Cooper, who worked hard after he broke his head, 2s. 6d."

> Origin of Foxe's "Book of Martyrs." Foxe's "Book of Martyrs" was published in March, 1652, as the "Actes and Monuments" of the martyrs, a title borrowed from an earlier book, says the London Chronicle. The famous volume might never have ap peared at all but for the association of Foxe with the printer Day of Aldersgate street, in whose business Foxe took an active part. On the tombstone of Day in the church of Little Bradley, Suffolk, the partnership is thus immortalized:

> > Iron In Plants.

Iron is the substance which gives the green appearance to foliage. It forms a constituent part of chlorowhich stains the bodies inside the cells of leaves, called plastids. When the first organized food is being formed in the leaves from water and carbonic acid gas a certain amount of energy is required. This is obtained from the sun's rays, but the work of absorbing it is carried out by the chlorophyll. It requires very little iron for the production of all the cholrophyll found in a crop, and nearly all soils contain an abundant supply.

The Human Clock. The Spanish painter Ribera, Mr. Haldane Macfall recalls in his "History of Painting." worked with such fervor that all count of time was lost to him "He made a living clock to check the passing hours. His servant came every hour to the studio to say in a loud and stately voice, 'Another hour has He Was Cured.

"What do you usually breakfast on?" "Oh. no! At least two miles in the morning and a motor ride after lunch.' "How many hours do you sleep?"

"Well, doctor, I was fifty-nine my last birthday."

"Are you married?". "Thirst."

With a gesture of impatience, the physician turned and wrote out a simple remedy for dyspepsia. The patient, as he departed shouted in the loud, harsh tones of the very deaf:

"Doctor, can you cure deafness?" The other shook his head in the neg-

Seiling Papers on the Roof. Not all enterprising newsboys are in the United States. The small street merchants of Paris, when forbidden to enter tramcars and omnibuses, got over the difficulty in real Yankee fashion. It was easy, of course, to sell papers through the windows to passengers seated in the vehicles, but how was it possible to reach would-be customers perched on the seats provided on the roof? A youth promptly solved the problem. He procured a stick seven or eight feet long, with wire clamps fastened to the sides. Papers were put in the clamps. On top of the stick there was a small cup with a hole in the bottom. The hole was an important part of the apparatus, for it reached all the way down, and through it came the copper coins of one or two sous, according to the price of the paper the patron selected when the boy held up the stick.-Chicago Rec ord-Herald.

Louis' Compliment to Conde. One need not overlook the enormous shortcomings of Louis XIV. as a man and as a king to admit that in some important respects he "tried to do his the acid. Though the white man is duty." He was a hardworking sover eign both in the sphere of administra tion and in that social sphere which was, to his mind, no less important So courteous that he never passed the poorest woman about the palace with out lifting his hat, he carried polite consideration to the level of a fine art. In the way of courteous speech there are few things nobler than his remark to the great Conde as the old hero was slowly ascending the great marble staircase at Versailles. Conde apologized for being so long in mounting the steps, at the top of which the king stood waiting. "Ah, cousin," Louis replied, "one moves slowly when one is, laden with laurels."

Reading For the Sick.

"And now a word about patients who may feel like reading," said the house physician to the nurse. "When they ask for something to read be sure to give them continued stories-always continued stories.'

"Is that wise?" she ventured to remonstrate. "Won't the excitement over what is going to happen in the next number have a bad effect?"

"No. Even if it does it will be counteracted by the encouragement. Sick people have queer fancies. One of the queerest pertains to literature. Feed a patient's mind with nothing but short stories and he will certainly get into his head that he is going to die so soon that it isn't worth while to start him on a long one, and he will droop accordingly. But give him only yarns of the to-be-continued-in-our-next variety and he will take it for granted that you expect him to get well so he can finish the story, and he will perk up amazingly. Just try it."

The nurse did try it and found that the doctor's theory was built on a sure foundation.-New York Times.

Lion Signs In England.
In the middle ages the country houses of the nobility in England when the owners were absent were used as hostels for travelers. The family arms always hung in front of the house and gave it a popular name among travelers, who called a lion "gules" or azure simply "red" or "blue." As these mere intimations of good cheer and entertainment innkeepers adopted the idea. Lions have always been and are now very favorite signs in Englandlions white, black, red, brown, golden, yellow-red being the most common. Probably the Red Lion originated with the badge of John of Gaunt, duke of Lancaster, who married the daughter of Don Pedro, king of Leon and Castile, and who adopted the lion rampant gules of Leon to represent his claim to the throne. Under Richard and John lions became the settled arms of England and were generally used by those who could find any Rook and Gull. The rook appears to have become the bird whose name stands for swindlers in a distinctly unfair way, the London Chronicle says. At first "rook" meant a dupe, then the verb "to rook" came to mean to cheat, and out of this was evolved "rook," a cheater-a complete topsy turvy process. It is curious that the same thing has not happened to "gull." Here also the verb came from the substantive meaning a dupe, and, as the gull strikes one as rather a knowing bird, one might have expected the same evolution as in the case of the rook. It should be observed, however, that "gull," a dupe, did not refer specially to the seagull, the word having formerly meant a young bird of any kind. In Elizabethan English it signified a callow youngster who wished to be thought smart.

Literary Cure For Snoring. To the snorers who ask for the cure let the cause be announced. Snoring is the result of stomachic repletion and mental vacuity. A correspondent who has suffered from both prescribes the cure—a light supper or none, to oid repletion, and the frequent repe tition of some literary phrase to provide occupation for the mind during sleeping hours. Go to bed and think of some short literary phrase to occupy your mind. The combination of the two prescriptions against snoring-the abstention from food and the meditation upon a literary phrase-may be found in Ecclesiasticus, the ninetieth verse of the thirty-first chapter, "How sufficient to a well mannered man is a very little, and he doth not breathe hard upon his bed."-London Specta-

Dead Men's Teeth.

Before artificial teeth were created deficiencies had to be made good by the real article, so body snatchers ravaged the cemeteries at night, breaking up the jaws of the dead to extract their teeth to sell to dentists for insertion in live men's mouths. An army of these ghouls followed Wellington's army. They were licensed as sutlers, but once night fell out came their nippers and they prowled over the battlefield extracting the teeth of the dead or dying.

The popular view of the close connection between fat and good nature and weight and balance is not wholly without rational foundation. Fat, unpleasant and stodgy as it is, is one of the most valuable tissues in the human body, and any man who reduces his share of it below a certain reasonable level not only takes the smooth edge off his temper and balance off his powers of judgment, but exposes all of his higher tissues, notably the muscular, nervous and secreting, to danger of both starvation and disease. A moderate cushion of fat is one of the best buffers and bucklers against the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune," whether in the form of disease germs or in strains upon endurance. The man who makes himself into a lean and hungry Cassius even with the best of intentions is very apt to get himself into a state of both mind and body where he is more fit for treason. stratagem and spoils than for comfort, wholesomeness and a long, happy life. -Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Outing.

A West Indian Fish Dish. A novelty to the jaded palate and a delightful luncheon or supper dish is made of equal quantities of potatoes and fish, halibut or cod preferred. Butter well a deep baking dish and first put in a layer of breadcrumbs, then a layer of sliced onions, then a layer of the fish. Cut in fairly small pieces and entirely free from skin and bones. Season well and repeat until the dish is nearly filled. Sprinkle each layer with small bits of butter. Now pour over it all a pint of tomato ketchup and finish with a layer of buttered breadcrumbs. A layer of sliced tomatoes may be put in and will improve the flavor. Bake in a very slow oven for at least four hours and baste three or four times with a mixture of vinegar, flour and water, watching it carefully to prevent scorching. This dish has an unpronounceable and decidedly unspellable name, but it is very good and decidedly out of the ordinary. -Philadelphia Press.

The Absolute Zero.

What is the absolute zero of temperature? The zero of thermometers is purely conventional. The inventor of the centigrade simply took for zero the coldest temperature known in his day, while Fahrenheit had even less ground for his selection. Absolute zero is a point fixed by nature and may be arrived at in a variety of ways. All gases expand or contract equal amounts for every degree of heat. The amount of 1-273 of their volume for each degree centigrade. If, then, a gas is cooled down continuously it must reach a point at which further contraction is impossible. If a gas loses 1-273 of its volume at each downward degree of centigrade then in 273 degrees it would exhaust this power and become a solid; hence (minus) 273 C. is the absolute zero of temperature. This answers to 461 F. -Louisville Courier-Journal.

Belief In Ghosts.
In most of the Oriental countries, notably in China and in many quarters in Europe, the belief in ghosts is still active, quite as much so as it was a thousand years ago. The peasantry of Russia, and especially of Siberia, are in constant dread of ghosts, and much of their time is taken up with devising ways and means of safeguarding themselves against their visitations. Not even in the United States of America is the ancient superstition defunct. The negroes are notorious believers in ghosts, and thousands of white people, remote from the center of intelligence, are still the victims of the old idea.-New York American.

grading or improving, there is one matter in which men have been steadily growing better. That is in their treat- satin gown were of thick green ottoment of women. Half a century ago man silk, edged with the tiniest emamong young men of the world there was not the high sense of honor in the treatment of women there is now.

In the days of palatial steamboats, as they were called, on the Mississippi Roland Storms, traveling between St. Louis and New Orleans, met on the boat Adele Southwood, a young girl seventeen years old. Storms, who was ten years Miss Southwood's senior, had considered making a "conquest" now and then one of those accomplishments that was to be expected of a young swell of the period. To him love was a game in which all was fair. If beaten at it he would have considered that nothing remained for him but to take the consequences. If he beat the girl it was her part to grin and bear it.

Miss Southwood was not only igno rant of such warfare, but was a girl of deep feeling. She and Storms would sit on the guards during the day looking out upon the ever changing panorama, now passing under some high bluff, now sailing above the surrounding lowlands on a river built up by the levees. In the evening they would go up on to the hurricane deck, watching the lights on the shore go by and, when the boat stopped to "wood up," looking down on the line of deck hands in the glare of pitch pine knots transferring a wood pile to the boat for fuel.

All this was new to Miss Southwood, and what was not only new but much more fascinating to an impressible girl was having a young man in constant attendance, saying pleasant things to her one moment, talking seriously the next and finally laughing at her for being so matter of fact. In this way he kept her in a puzzled state as to whether a mature man was really falling in love with her, a chit of a girl, or whether he considered her merely a child. Storms before reaching the Crescent City talked love to her-such love as pertains to the emotions without any prosaic references to marriage. But she was too unsophisticated to consider this. To her it was spontaneous love, something she had never experienced before and the more serious features of which were still a blank to her.

At New Orleans the two parted, Miss Southwood to remain there for the winter. h was coming on, Mr. Storms going by the gulf of Mexico to Texas. The young girl considered that the event of her life had occurred, the young man that a pleasant episode had occurred to relieve the tedium of steamboat travel. This is what he considered it at the time. He did not know that a seed had been planted in his heart which was not destined to germinate for a long while. He knew that this case was many other affairs, but he did not consider it any more serious.

It was four years before he met Miss Southwood again. He was walking on the principal street of Cincinnati, swinging a cane, a "beaver" frock coat, a profusion of cravat on his bosom, his tight trousers strapped | the gown. down over his instep, in short, dressed for a swell of the period, when he met, incased in a diminutive bonnet of pink silk, one of the sweetest faces he had ever beheld. It belonged to a lady about twenty-one years old, and she was looking at him intently. In an instant he recognized the girl he had flirted with on the Mississippi and jilted at New Orleans.

Naturally he was embarrassed. There was no expression in Miss Southwood's face sufficiently defined for him to tell how she felt toward him. He stopped to speak to her, standing uncovered. and asked if he might walk with her Receiving permission, he joined her. stammering things to her which she. on her part, received with composure. She had been through the agony of getting over a first love and a first jilt, and he could see no traces of suffering, of reproach or of forgiveness. All seemed to be neutralized or, rather. fused into an absolute nothingness.

Storms walked with her some ten minutes, at first trying to regain his equipoise, then to discover some indication of the young lady's feelings toward him. In the latter he failed. But since there was no indication of unfriendliness he made bold to hint that he would like to renew the acquaintance. Before parting Miss Southwood invited him to come to see her the next afternoon at 2 o'clock. He

Charles W. Griffin, son of William H. Griffin, was seriously injured near Lewistown Monday afternoon while returning from a motorcycle trip. As he passed a buggy containing W. S. Powell and J. D. Stottlemyer, the horse shied and the machine struck the team. The animal reared and fell upon Griffin pinning him under the heavy machine at the same time the vehicle upset. Griffin was picked up unconscious and bleeding from many cuts. He was placed in an automobile belonging to Thomas Hughes, of Baltimore, and taken to a nearby house. Three hours later he was removed to his home. It was thought he has concussion of the brain. He regained consciousness and rallied.

Bled to Death From Cigarettes.

A young man of North York, Pa., died last week in a peculiar manner. He was in the habit of smoking cigarettes and a short time ago a soreness developed in his neck. MANY INTERRUPTIONS

Mr. Davidson and Friends Meet With Many Mishaps on Trip.

The motorcycling tour scheduled for last Saturday was a grand success in the way of complete failure of every plan. Intending to start at 3 a. m., inclement weather interfered, and at 3 p. m. only three cared to go, namely, Berkelight, Davidson and Stambaugh, intending running all night if need be to reach Wilmington. Near Wrightsville, on the edge of the Susquehanna river, Berkelight's lamp generator refused to go on duty to juggle the gas, so they stopped with Proprietor Steven Wilson, genial and accomodating head of Hotel Wilson. Intending to speed out in the gray dawn of early morn and make the return trip Sunday night, they were sadly fooled again by old Jupiter Pluvius, who stayed at the helm until after the dinner hour. Later Berkelight motored across the mile and a quarter bridge for Delaware, and the others headed homeward. Gliding and sliding in the mud and running water, both momentarily expected to "take the airship.' Near York, Davidson opened wide the > Tourist Climbs Six Formidable Peaks in Sixty Hours. - Few Swiss Have Accomplished This Feat.

John S. Brady, of Baltimore, has astonished the Alpinists of Switzerland by making a series of brilliant ascents of the highest Bernese Oberland Mountains.

Accompanied by two guides, Mr. Brady set out from Grindelwald and in eight hours reached the Bergli hut, 10,-825 feet high, on the Jungfrau. Leaving the hut again after a short rest, at midnight the party ascended the Gruneckeihat at 4:15 A. M.; the great Fuscherhorn, 13,285 feet high, at 5:20, and the summit of the Jungfrau itself, 13,670 feet in altitude, at 10:15 A. M. After a short stay to enjoy the splendid view, Mr. Brady and the guides climbed the Moine, 13,466 feet high, arriving on the summit at 1:30 P. M., and the Eiger, 13,040 feet high, at 7 P. M., where they witnessed the brilliant "Alpenglum."

The descent was continued, and the Alpinists arrived at 3 A. M. the next day at Grindelwald, having been on their feet the greater part of sixty hours. It was a performance which few climbers have accomplished.

A CHICK FOUNTAIN.

Can Be Made by Anybody, and the Little Peepers Enjoy It Immensely.

Here's an ingenious little fountain for keeping a constant supply of water for youthful chickens. It is simple in the extreme to make, and any boy who can use a saw and drive a nail can make one in an hour. Just take two pieces of board, one six inches square and the other 6 by 12 and nail them so as to form a right angle. Get an old milk bottle and nail two thin strips of tin so that the bottle will slip easily in and out and remain supported head down. Then nail the lid of a tin can under the mouth of the bottle, and enough water will escape to keep the little receptacle always full and be bandy for the chicks to get at whenever they want to liquidate their little bills. It goes without saying that the contraption should be kept in a cool, shady

WANT REAL PARCELS POST.

Entirely Too Much Energy Wasted on Roads From Town to Country.

As to some products of the farm, there is a difference of 40 to 50 per cent between the price that the grower receives and the price that the consumer pays. There are even cases in which this price difference amounts to 300 per cent. Part of the loss is due to a bad system of retail distribution, as when a dozen city milk wagons travel over the same route, each delivering one bottle here and another bottle there, when one wagon might as well make all the deliveries along the route. This same waste appears even more markedly between the farm and the town. How many fully loaded wagons do you pass in driving to town? From a dozen farms a dozen packages of butter, poultry or vegetables may go to town the same morning, each in a different vehicle. Every day a dozen parcels of merchandise are hauled out of town along the same road in a dozen different conveyances, and the time and labor of eleven men and eleven horses go for nothing. The rural free delivery mail wagon now comes to your house with a load that you could put in one or two bushel baskets, and it goes back to town with an even smaller load. Under present conditions it looks as if the postoffice department was not giving the farmer his money's worth.-Country Gentleman.

Do you use the whip because you have it handy?

Are you humane in the treatment of the animals you drive?

A horse's pulse beats from thirty-six to forty times a minute when he is in health.

A mule is no more prone to kick than a horse unless he is taught to do so by bad treatment. Are you one of the unthinking who

Do you want a balky horse? You can easily have one by giving him too heavy loads to draw.

Keep this ration down by the use of some grain and less coarse feed. Watch the hired man with your

Don't make your horse wait till he is cooled off before you give him a drink. Take a couple of quarts in a pail and give that. Then wait a while and give as much more. By this you will save a lot of suffering on the part of your horse and he will come out all right

THE FISHERMAN.

E was a lad of high degree; She was a farmer's daughter. He came to fish the silver lee, Or did he come to court her? "Oh, angle where you will," quoth she. "The little trout may swim to thee, But never think that you'll catch me."

Yet where was that fair maiden born But felt her heart beat higher To see a lordling look forlorn

And beg to come anigh her?

"Stray nearer if you must," quoth she,

"Since 'tis an act of charity,

But never try to speak to me."

The woodland ways are sweet and green Under the summer weather, And through the dingle, through the dene, Go boy and girl together.
"You held my hand because," quoth

"The stepping stones were slippery, But now I'm over, let it be."

A heart that burns, a breast that sighs, Red lips with promise laden; A pleading voice and bright brown eyes-Alas, my pretty maiden!
"Can such a king of men," quoth she,
"Look down to wed a girl like me?

Then will I trust my soul to thee." She sits amid the yellow sheaves, That little farmer's laughter, Or counts the scarlet cherry leaves

A Burning Glass In the Eye. In the front part of each of our eyes is a convex lens of great power and of Sir John Beauchamp and purchased clearness. It acts exactly like a burning glass. If a person was made to look at the sun, say, for half a minute his eye would actually start to burn up. The lens would focus the rays of later would burn to a crisp. This can eye, the eye is not hurt, because the rays are not focused inside the eyeball. An Election Story From Hungary. An electioneering story from Hungary, as told by Mr. R. W. Seton-Watson in "Corruption and Reform In Hungary:" "Not many years ago a noble count stood as candidate for a west Hungarian constituency and was in due course elected. Soon afterward a deputation of the electors visited him in Budapest, reminded him of his promises at the time of the election and asked him to use his influence in a certain direction. 'Why do you come to me? asked the count. 'Why, because you are our representative,' the had your price-free lunches and free drinks into the bargain. I'm - if I do anything for you. We are quits.' Robespierre's Style of Dress. Robespierre's manner of dress, even at the period when the demagogues affected the slovenliness and disorder of indigence in order to flatter the people, was clean, decent and precise as that of a man who respects himself in the eyes of others. His white powdered hair, turned up in clusters over his temples; a bright blue coat buttoned over his hips, open over the breast to display a white vest: short yellow colored breeches, white stockings and shoes with silver buckles formed his invariable costume during the whole of his public life. It was said that he desired by thus never varying the style or color of his garments to make the same impression in the sight and imagination of the people as a medal of his face would have caused.-Lamartine's "History of the
