New School House.

Go back to the beginning of the educational era in Emmitsburg, and make the comparison, there was little to teach, little was expected from the teacher, not so to-day, there is much to teach, and much is expected from the the teacher, the accommodations were poor then, books few, not so to-day. Education is paramount, every boy and girl must have knowledge, if they would get through the world creditably.

This must have foundation, such as text books, in all the branches, a curriculum such as the Public Schools of Maryland have, rapid progress in these schools is assured. Who would be satisfied with the building, furniture and books of the past, yes, the teachers. Nothing to do but submit to the crude surroundings, good work could not be done. We must have the appliances in all business, the school more than all. The requirements, what are they? Colleges change their buildings to meet requirements. Why not the schools throughout the land. This must be said caused the improvements in the Emmitsburg school house, which with its present spacious rooms and paraphernalia speak, as never before. Tell me, is not this an incentive for children to attend and parents to encourage. Let us survey the edifice, no longer the objectionable, but the admired building. A twostory house presenting an appearance that befits the purpose for which it was built, a front of 55 feet, a depth of 90 feet, towering 40 feet high, an ornament to the town and a monument to the School Commissioners, we praise them. As we enter the wide hall from which on either side a door opens to spacious rooms on each floor, well lighted, then we climb the wide stairway to the second floor, three large rooms as light as the rays of the sun can make them. The interior is so arranged, convenience only suggests the comfort found there. The entire building is heated by a furnace carrying hot water into radiators in every room. Large lamps hanging, to supply light if needed. The entire front on second floor makes a large hall to be used at commencements. Badly needed, the sanitary conditions are the best.

I must not forget the sweet toned bell that calls the school together, heard over the town. The Principal, Prof. P. Franklin Strauss, an efficient man, a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College, his assistant Miss Maude Dorsey, this is the High School. In the primary department Mr. Harry Whitmore and Miss Madeline Frailey will teach the young ideas how to shoot. Equipped as this building is, all around, it behooves the patrons to send their children, and get the benefits from the provisions thus made by the State and county. The doors are open to all for a free education. It is expected a Will any refuse to accept such a broad invitation? Youth being the time, the susceptible era of life, I say improve it. Why not improve under the advantages offered? The efficient teachers will enhance the curriculum to the general good. FORMER CITIZEN WRITES

OF HIS TRAVELS Series of Interesting Accounts of a

Swing Through the United States. San Francisco, Cal.

August 26, 1911.

I have done the West half of the great Sacramento Valley. I use the word great in many ways. Great in extent, some forty by three hundred miles, including its southern half the San Joaquin Valley. Great in soil, one immense sea of wheat fields, each beyond conception without being seen. I autoed over a 50,000 acre ranch all in wheat. Corn and other crops too much trouble to handle; wheat raising brought down to the least resistance. Land plowed immediately after harvest, before the sun can harden it, for fall planting; crop cut, threshed and sacked, straw, chaff and screening blown broadcast as the thirty-two horses move along; sacks of two bushels and a peck pitched off like our binders cast off sheaves. There they lay, with no thought of rain, until hauled to a steamboat landing or railroad for shipment. They have never used any manure or fertilizer on this land since the Spanish fifty years of wheating, from thirtyfive to fifty bushels. Then droves of turkeys, thousands in number, are turned loose in the the fields to glean. Now I saw all of this. If I put all the turthey would not number as many as I saw on Dr. Glenn's wheat ranch. I believe I saw one million bushels of wheat in sacks in the open awaiting transportation. Some fields were devoted to cattle and horse breeding, but everything on a scale beyond my imagination. Great in climate, a glorious, clear, dry air blew, high in degree but pleasant; no perspiring, or very little, too dry. I rode two days in an auto without covering, most of the time hatless, and enjoyed it.

The soil is a dark, almost black heavy loam, that grows mighty oaks which, when allowed a chance, become a magnificent break in the ocean of level stubble or plowed ground. Now comes the transition. Irrigation is at hand. Up to last year the harvests reaped from this valley were from winter planting and what is called here, dry farming. Now, with irrigation, they can farm all the year round. I looked over a catalogue and I was amused to see so many vegetables given which may be planted all the year. Trees planted find nourishment in this soil to make double growth. I was shown peach orchards set out from three to five feet high in April 1910 which on August 23, 1911, when I saw them, were trees ten and twelve feet high and bushy enough to shade a spot ten feet in diameter. I did not want to believe it and the man said he could prove by the nurseryman. Next year he expects a crop. The most tender palms and citrus fruits never suffer from frost in this strange valley, where thunder and lightning has never been known. No storms of wind or ready response to the call will be made. FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scoth-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.-Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

Notoriety may be achieved in shame but it is coming to pass that such fame can not be used for material gain in a public way. ANNOUNCEMENT.

Having accepted the nomination by the Democratic party of the State Senatorship of Frederick county, I feel that the due observance of a practice, entirely ethical in its character, constrains me to withdraw from the active management and editorship of THE WEEKLY CHRONICLE during the active campaign. Throughout that period Mr. E. L. Higbee, who has long been associated with me, assumes both management and editorial control.

Should there be any occasion for me to make a personal statement, however, it will appear over my own signature.

CONCERNING MR. GALT'S CANDIDACY.

An Opportunity For Frederick County to Select a Senator of High Character and Rare Personal Gifts.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE Sun-Sir: Although never in touch with practical politics, and still less with politicians, I have always taken a lively interest in the success and progress of Democracy. We have reached a period in the history of the political development of the country when all true and earnest citizens must show, regardless of party affiliations, a due concern in the selection of those who are called upon to rule or to legislate for the people. In the words of former Governor Warfield, "a new era has dawned in public affairs" and as one owing loyalty to the State of Maryland, which has been my home for the best part of my life, I feel that I am not an intruder when I call the attention of those who have the true welfare of the State at heart to use their influence in behalf of a gentleman who has done so much that is good to uplift the neighborhood in which he lives.

Sterling Galt, the editor of the WEEKLY CHRONICLE, is a candidate for the Senatorship of Frederick county. Under many titles, he is worthy of the honor. By descent he belongs to Frederick county. By the right which all Americans are proud to claim as placing them first in rank as representative men, his title is unquestioned, for on both sides of his family were officers in the army of the War of Independence. Marylanders generally owe a special recognition to the grandfather of Sterling Galt, a member from Carroll, of the same name, who belonged to the convention which, in 1867, formulated the Constitution under which the rights of all Marylanders are secured, and which liberated the State from the incubus of a military satrapy.

WE have heard of them breaking the ice to baptize converts, clair "soul mate" mix-up-is a and that it is never too cold to do great believer in the advancegood, but going to the other ex- ment of women, we suggest that treme is another matter. Out in he and all like Mrs. Sinclair keep Indiana they were conducting on advancing until they reach the such a ceremony in Flat Creek edge of civilization, and then fall where certain people go to see when a swarm of yellow jackets off into oblivion. got busy. It was too warm for the service.

Yea, verily, but twice blessed firmed drunkards shall do farm excessive considering the amount the mint.

Not only by birth, but by his own rare personal gifts, Mr. Galt is eminently fitted for the honorable position of State Senator. During his editorial career in this end of the county he has displayed skill, merit, judgment and prudence. His pen has ever been at the service of the best principles—social, political and ethical. He has aimed high and held out the unfailing inducements of a sincere advocate who pleads the cause of clean, decent living, and who is himself actuated by the highest ideals. Sterling Galt is a true believer in man's second religion, patriotism, and being true to the principles he has upheld. he will be an important factor in promoting the higher ideals, both social and political, of which he is the recognized champion.

I cannot but trust that the voters of Frederick county, regardless of political affiliations, will see to it that so deserving and well-equipped a candidate as Sterling Galt will be sent to Annapolis to represent the priceless interests of the people.

THE COUNTY PRESS RECOG-NIZED. With Editor Sterling Galt, of the Emmitsburg CHRON-ICLE, nominated for State Senator on the Democratic county ticket, and Editor Charles H. Baughman, of the Frederick Citizen, on the present grand jury, it looks as if the press of the county is at last to be recognized in the political and official fields of the county. In other States it has long ago been recognized that no one makes better or more faithful officials than newspaper men and should Editor Galt succeed in being elected to the Maryland Legislature, the State will have one good representative at least. - Middletown Valley Register.

Dr. Johnson and Fruit. The return of the strawberry season was always heartily welcomed by Dr. Johnson, for, as he once declared, of strawberries and cream he never could have too much. Fortunately he sometimes had opportunity to indulge his taste to the full, for his friend, Dr. Taylor of Lichfield, whom he contrived when possible to visit at strawberry time, was rather a noted fruit grower, and when at his house it was, as Johnson said, with gusto, "Strawberries and cream, toujours strawberries and cream!" A voracious eater at any time, Johnson's appetite for fruit was almost limitless. Mrs. Thrale tells us that he used often to eat half a dozen peaches before breakfast, and then frequently she had heard him complain that never in all his life had he quite as much wall fruit as he de sired, save once. The exceptional oceasion was during a visit to Lord Sandys' seat at Ombersley. The exact quantity he then devoured has not been recorded, but he was accused of clearing a whole wall side.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Light of Crystals.
All diamonds do not shine in the dark after exposure to sunlight or electric light, but some do to a remarkable degree. A diamond rubbed with a woolen cloth or against a hard sur face will sometimes shine brilliantly. The emission of light is a property belonging to many if not all kinds of crystals.

A variety of white marble found at Hastings-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., gives out a flame colored glow when pounded and bright flashes when scratched with steel. In northern New York is found a kind of stone known locally as "hell fire rock," which exhibits bright sulphur colored streaks when scratched in the dark. Pieces of rose quartz rubbed together exhibit brilliant flashes, sometimes bright enough to illuminate the hands of the person holding them. Smoked quartz and other varieties sometimes show a similar phenomenon. - Chicago Record-

The Bloody Hand.
The noted English family of the Holtes has for its badge a bloody hand, and this sinister badge commemorates a wager that ended in a crime. Sir Thomas Holte one day in 1612 was hunting. He invited his comrades home with him to dinner, and as he rode along he made a heavy bet on his cook's punctuality. But the cook failed him for once. When he got home dinner was not ready. The jeers of his companions at this failure, together with his huge loss in the matter of the wager, enraged him so that he ran into the kitchen, seized a cleaver and split the cook's head open with it. Afterward his family, to keep this crime alive, adopted for its crest the bloody hand of the cook killer.

An Eskimo's Dwelling.

We do not look for any great amount of inventive genius among the Eskimos, but for years they have employed a rather complete respirator, used in the preparation and taking of a vapor bath, as a means of protection from the dense smoke. This Eskimo respirator is a little basket woven of twisted strands of fine grass. It is placed with its shallow side against the mouth, and a wooden peg, which arises from the center of the basket, is held between the teeth. For this purpose water is evaporated over a big fire in a very low hut, which is tightly closed to keep in the heat. In this stifling atmosphere the employment of a respirator is absolutely necessary.-London Globe.

The Petticoat of Crepe de Chine a Summer Favorite.

Something new in petticoats is of crepe de chine, edged with a deep net ruffle. This latter has a hem three inches wide of crepe de chine.

The calotte or turban coiffure is formed of successions of puffs in ringlet style, not of the stiff puffs of yore. The hair in front is parted and brought low over the ears. The curly turban is then encircled by a heavy braid, a coiled switch or a "bandage." Chantilly lace is used in wide bands on afternoon dresses of foulard.

There is a new rose ribbon. Black taffeta or black satin ribbon is appliqued with trails of cretonne roses in soft shades of pink and crimson. These are cut out and sewed to the black background with tiny chain stitch in fine gold thread.

Many new skirts open in front over a narrow panel of lace. Fresh variations of the peasant blouse are constantly appearing. Here is one of the latest. It will be found equally adapted to the separate blouse or the entire costume.

Grandma Harbin's Tooth

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

As a child, as a girl, as a miss, as woman, Grandma Harbin was possessed of the usual number of teeth given to a human being. They were white and even and strong. At the age of forty-five they were still all there, and she was capable of masticating the toughest meat. Then two things happened. She lost her husband and her teeth began to decay. At fifty she had only one tooth left.

You may think that had grandma been ever so poor, which she wasn't, she would have tried hard to save her teeth. She was financially able to do this or to have artificial ones supplied, but she was eccentric.

Grandma could have lived along on the property left her by Harbin, but luck came her way. A sister died and left her $80,000 in cash. She had brothers and sisters and nephews and nieces, and all lived in and around a

"I'm going to break up housekeeping and board around among you," she said. "I shall pay my board. None of you will get any of my money till my death, and then it will be divided up according to the way I think best."

Now, then, why should those relatives, and with them a large number of the villagers, have concerned themselves about grandma's sole surviving tooth? It was there and doing business. One lone tooth in a mouth is not much of an ornament, but grandma was not proud. Almost the first question asked her when she came among GOLD & SILVER her relatives and strange people was why she didn't have that tooth yanked out and a false set put in. For five long years that question was asked almost daily, and no one was exactly satisfied with the answer.

"Well, that has been a good tooth to me, and I don't want to go back on it at the end. I can chew everything with it except a rind of pork, and rinds ain't healthy anyhow."

One of her brothers got it into his head that grandma was too stingy to buy false teeth, and he generously offered to foot the bill. A sister offered to take her to the city free of cost, and another brother brought a dentist to the house and said the plates must

"No; we'll let it go just as it is," was the reply. "I can't expect to be purty at my age, and I haven't got the least mite of vanity about me."

One woman went so far as to doubt if a person with only one tooth could go to heaven. Grandma replied that as an angel she expected to be supplied with the usual number, but the matter began to worry her. To heaven she surely wanted to go when her time came, and she didn't want that tooth to keep her out, and one day she sought the minister and asked his advice. He had been posted in advance, but he couldn't deceive her. He or and braid. Crocheted buttons and thought she ought to get false teeth, the touch of black satin are the fawas that he had never heard of any connection between the soul and the teeth. There might be, but he had not come across it." "Well, I'll take a chance on it," replied grandma, considerably relieved. Any doctor will say right off hand that bad teeth or lack of teeth is bad for the stomach. About seven different doctors were paid to drop in and tell Grandma Harbin so. They made it extra strong in her case. They talked of flatulency, indigestion, biliousness and all that, but the old lady only laughed at them and replied:

"Lands save you, but I have never had one of them ailments in my life, and I'm too old to begin now." It was hoped by the villagers that grandma would leave money for a church bell, a library and a fund to drain a large marsh. It was hoped by her relatives that they would get every cent of it, though there were no hard feelings about it. When the good old woman finally died she had a large funeral, and there was an amicable gathering to hear her will read. After the usual preface it started off with.

"To each of the seven doctors who have advised me to have my tooth out I leave $1 to help them study up on dentistry.

"I leave no bell to any church. If a Christian can't tell when it's time to go to meeting let him stay home. "I leave no money to drain the marsh. It's been there fifty years, and the people ought to have got used "I leave no money for a public library. The men haven't time to read, and the women have housework to do. "To Parson Williams I leave the sum of $100, that he may look further into the subject of the soul and the tooth.

"To each of my brothers and sisters the sum of $500, this being the number of times, as near as I can estimate to date, that they have asked me to have my tooth drawn.

"To Mrs. Martha Stebbins, who said I looked like an old cow, the sum of $50, to be used to straighten her cross

"To Miss Helen Davis, my niece, who has never once mentioned my tooth nor attempted to advise or cajole, all the rest of my estate, real and personal, and may she go through life minding her own business in the same sensible way.

That was the will, and it held good, and should a stranger with only one tooth or no teeth at all hit that town today not a person would seem to take

GETTYSBURG COLLEGE BEGINS 79th YEAR WITH LARGE CLASSES

New Members of Faculty in Engineering and Modern Languages.-Improvement to Grounds.

The 79th academic year of Gettysburg College opened Wednesday with formal exercises in Brua Chapel conducted by the President, Dr. W. A. Granville. The Registrar reports an increased enrollment and from every indication the coming school year will be the greatest in the history of the institution. The faculty has been strengthened by the addition of Prof. R. S. Kirby, from Yale University, who takes charge of the Engineering Departments and by Prof. B. F. Schappelle, from the University of Pennsylvania, in the Department of French and Spanish.

The new concrete walk in front of the Old Dormitory given by the Class of 1906 is now finished. All the College buildings have been thoroughly renovated and the campus greatly beautiged. Dr. Huber, late Professor of English Bible in the College, bequeathed to the College a very valuable collection of over 2000 volumes, and Professor Harold Lewars has donated a Mr. Howard Wetzel on Saturday shot number of important reference books glish Literature. OF MONEY IN HOLD-UP

Prof. Melamet and Son Waylaid on Mountain Path Between Pen Mar and The Blue Mountain House.

Prof. David S. Melamet and his son, of Baltimore, were held up and robbed on the path leading from Pen Mar to the Blue Mountain House late Friday night. They had been to Pen Mar Park and on the return to their hotel they were confronted by two men on the path in front of the chapel.

The men pointed guns in their faces and demanded money. The robbers secured five $10 bills and a gold watch, and made their escape.

FREDERICK COLLEGE OPENED On Tuesday Frederick College, Frederick was opened for the 149th session. The educational development of this county is intimately associated with the Wednesday, Prayer Meeting 7:30 p. m. history of this institution. In 1763 the Saturday, Catechetical instruction 2 Assembly granted a charter to the Frederick County School and College, the outcome of the intelligent forethought of our German, English and Scotch ancestors. In those early years little advance could be made by any educational institution and it was not until after the Revolutionary War that: progress began. From then on until to-day this college has served the needs of its patrons. Its graduates have filled a large place in the history of Frederick county.

Horse Market Demands Soundness

By D. O. THOMPSON,

Animal Husbandry Department, Purdue University Experiment Station Ensemble

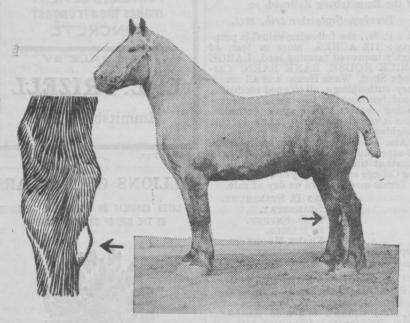

NSOUNDNESS in a horse reduces its selling price materially upon the market. Assuming that a sound 1,800 pound draft horse sells for $300 on the Chicago horse market, having sight in one eye only he will sell for $250; when sight is gone from both eyes for $100. This and many other statements which might be made along the same line are borne out by the following table, compiled from data given by a man in position to be an authority on this subject, Mr. T. W. Bell, Union Stockyards Horse exchange, Chicago, Ill.

Unsoundness Decreases Selling Price.

A common draft horse, weighing 1,800 pounds, perfectly sound and worth $300 on the market, is taken as the basis of comparison. The table shows the unsoundness he might have and the amount to which the selling price would be reduced by each particular unsoundness.

| | Sound | $300 |
|-----|--|-------|
| | One small bone spavin | 250 |
| | Two small bone spavins | 200 |
| | Two bad bone spavins | 150 |
| | Curbs, same reductions as for bone spavins. | rere. |
| | One bog spavin | 290 |
| | Two bog spavins | 275 |
| | One blind eye | 250 |
| | Two blind eyes | 100 |
| Th. | a same authority further states that anlines and | 1 |

authority further states that splints away from the tendon, not causing lameness and blemishes such as slight wire marks, etc., do not actually lower the selling price, although the buyers try to bear it down

This bone spavin on hock marked with arrow would reduce the selling price of this 1,800 pound draft gelding $50 to $75 on the Chicago horse market. A spavin on both hocks would reduce the price $100 to $150.

where these are present. The table does not give anywhere near a complete list of unsoundness. It contains a few of the serious ones often found on horses coming to the market. The figures indicate the value of entire soundness in the horse going to the market.

Weak Conformations Conceded to Be Hereditary.

Certain weak conformations are conceded by the best horsemen to be hereditary. Under strain weak hock joints develop curbs or spavins, upright pasterns worked continuously on hard pavements develop sidebones and ringbones and navicular disease due to long continued concussion. A stallion with weak hocks gets weak hocked foals. A mare with straight pasterns produces foals with like defects. The unsoundness itself need not be present on the stallion or the mare. The weak conformation may be present and the stallion or mare never have been put to a severe strain or long continued work, and therefore the unsoundness will not have developed. The weak conformation of limb or body conducive to unsoundness will nevertheless be present in the foal. Instances where this is not true are so rare that the above statement has come to be a generally accepted fact.

Malconformations and unsoun in their nature are called breeding infirmities. They are weakly formed hocks predisposing to bone and bog spavins and curbs, short, upright pasterns predisposing to sidebone, ringbone and navicular disease; moon blindness and cataract, leading to ultimate blindness, heaves and broken wind.

Sound Breeding Stock Essential.

The above figures show the severely discounted price which must be accepted for unsound horses. In order that fewer unsound horses go from our farms to the horse markets it is essential that care be exercised in selecting stallions and brood mares. Sound sires and dams are indispensable in the production of foals that will remain sound until of marketable age. In many instances it may be the only recourse of the farmer to breed a mare having some slight hereditary unsoundness or malconformation. It seldom is his only alternative to breed to a stallion thus afficted. Sound stallions, those at least free from breeding infirmities, are generally available if the farmer insists upon such.

Fistula of the withers, due to accident. Does not constitute a breeding

With the unsoundness largely eliminated, the market prices of horses would rise very materially. Buyers of horses are willing to meet the producer and pay extra money for soundness and proper conformation. In some other lines of agricultural production the buyer either does not co-operate with the producer or openly discourages any effort at improvement that would mean increased dost to him. Not so with horse buyers. Sound horses top the market every time they are offered. Unsound horses are severely discriminated against and sales are slow. It is possible to control this serious question of unsoundness in a large measure by wise selection of breeding stock.

The mining game was much too tame

For a lad like your Uncle Mack,

I pulled my freight at a rapid gait And burned up the homeward track.

But I digress, which I confess

I'll start again for to explain
Of how modern the range has grown

And his buddy, Old Ute Malone.

We thought it right to pick a fight And your enemy punctuate With slugs of lead till he fell dead, But that custom is out of date, For now they go a leetle slow— It's the fashion to arbitrate.

In them old days we couldn't raise On a section of sagebrush land No crop but cows, which same would browse

On the cactus which thrived on sand.
The grub we had, I'll simply add,
Was the kind that's mostly canned.

Now see the crops, from spuds to hops, That are raised in this arid state. There ain't no rain, but pipe the grain, Since we learned to irrigate. The record made with ditch and spade

In frontier days we sang the praise Of the skate with the ten mile gait, But he's passay. The motor shay Sent the broncho to hauling freight, And now I hear about next year

All the ranchers will aviate. We hesitate to punctuate
With a six gun the foe we hate.

We arbitrate and irrigate.
Soon we punchers will aviate.
Sure one big change has hit this range Since I served my novitiate.

Some one has said that women are far more successful than men in break ing heifers to milk. If this be so it may be due to the fact that they haven't words at command to give their feelings so vehement expression, and as a result the bovine does not divine their real state of mind.

We know of two farmers who want to tile, but the neighbor below them is an agricultural standpatter and won't co-operate. They have decided to tile to his line and let the water go where it will. He will be converted by the time their drainage systems are in operation when the next wet season rolls around.

Individuals in many droves of hogs continue as runts and sometimes die from an infestation of their interior anatomy with the long white worm. There are a number of worm killers which if given in time will put the worms out of business. Suspicious cases should be looked into and the remedy applied as soon as possible.

While nature seems to have endow ed birds with an instinct which guards them against nesting too late in the season, the writer remembers several years ago finding a nest of little waxwings in pinfeathers in the orchard late in October after the apples were harvested. If these little chaps did not get chilled in the weeks following for lack of proper clothing we miss our guess.

The much debated question of how to keep the boy on the farm may be boiled down to this: The boy can be kept on the farm when life there is so arranged that it will arouse his interest and give impetus to his ener gies and when the reward which h may reasonably expect for his labor commensurate with that which h would get in other lines of work. Dis cussion of the problem which does no take into account these general truth is beside the question and largely futil.

Laws which have been passed in : number of states enable farm owner to have their farm name copyrighted by the payment of a dollar fee. Too many go on the principle that it is better not to name the farm until cer tain improvements and cleaning u have been done. tens?" began daddy, wishing to end the dispute.

"No, tell us," cried the children.

"Well," said daddy, "this hen belonged to a farmer in Pennsylvania. This farmer had a pet Maltese cat. A short time ago pussy became the mother of four nice, fat little kittens. She was very proud of them, you may be sure, and cuddled them and washed them as a mother cat loves to do. Out in the barn, where pussy had her kittens in a snug box, the chickens often came picking up the feed dropped by the cattle. The kittens were only a little over a day old when a big speckled gray and white Plymouth Rock hen came into the barn and poked into the corner where Mrs. Puss had her kittens.

"It happened that Mamma Puss was out, and Mrs. Biddy cocked her head to one side as she heard a queer little muffled cry from the box. Then there was another. Mrs. Biddy hopped up on the box and saw those four little kittens, cuddling down among the straw.

"'A nice kind of mother they have,' Mrs. Biddy very likely cackled, for she hopped right down into the box. The kittens feeling something warm in the box came crowding about her. The hen drew her wings over them and, my, but those kitties were snug and cosy. When the mother cat came home and jumped up on the box she nearly fainted to see who had taken her place. The hen refused to get out of the box and stuck there until she got ready to go away in the evening. Then Mrs. Puss jumped into the box and looked over her kits. They were all right, and after they had had their supper they went

"The next day the hen came back and drove the mother cat right out of the nest, and until those kits were able to toddle about Mrs. Biddy insisted on taking care of them. She seemed to doubt Mrs. Puss's method of bringing up a family. When the hen got the kittens the mother had to sit around and watch until she was ready to leave them and take her turn with the babies.

"No doubt Mrs. Puss was often mad enough to have gone for the old hen tooth and nail, but Mrs. Biddy could use her beak and, you see, it wasn't safe."
