VANITY'S VISIONS.

Charming Colors For the Elderly Matron—The Monastic Girdle.
Gray and mauve are the most becoming colors for gray haired women, and a gray evening gown trimmed with silver lace, the hair being filleted with silver lace to correspond, gives to most women a charming and distinguished appearance.
The "monastic" girdle is much in vogue. This is merely a heavy silken or metal cord, girded about the waist in the classic fashion and tied into a knot, with two long ends at the front or side.
The flat tam-o'-shanter worn is here again, being shown in various odd shapes under the names of students or artists' caps.
The semiprincess gown made with peasant waist and gored skirt is a pronounced favorite. This one is equally desirable for street and house wear. In the illustration it is made of fancy silk, with trimming of plain satin and with chemisette and undersleeves of lace.

tive, the little toque of former seasons having been succeeded by a wide range of fashionable shapes.
The pierrot hat, with high conical crown and narrow brim rolled back sharply to the crown, is a popular shape. Wings are mostly used to trim these hats, but when flowers or ribbons are selected they are poised on top of the crown. The bows of ribbon are of windmill shape.
The newest fichu has long sash cords heavily fringed. They are draped gracefully over the shoulders and drawn through a buckle at one side.
Pale gold laces are much in evidence on both afternoon and evening gowns.
This suit is a fine one for the small boy attending school if made of serge or wool chevrot. A great many boys wear suits of galatea and other heavy washable materials all the year round. The knickerbockers are attached to the waistband and buttoned to the underwaist.

SMALL ENGINE, BIG HELP.

Performs Manifold Duties on Farm From Spraying to Churning.
Aside from using the gasoline engine for pumping water the farmer must consider that it can be harnessed to a hose, with which he may sprinkle the lawn, flower beds, truck patch and garden, especially in case the weather turns extremely dry and hot. One sprinkling at a critical period might save a whole season's work from being thrown away.

Its use as a sprayer for destroying pests in the poultry house can readily be seen, and as it is portable it can be used in applying fly repellent to live stock, spraying the potato patch and orchard trees. It can also be used to lay the disagreeable dust in the lots near the house and barns.
With the hose attachment the pump engine can be used in cleaning out filthy hog troughs and foul water tanks, and the muddy wagon and automobile can be more thoroughly and quickly cleaned off by it than by any other method, while the overworked housewife will find it a great labor saver, especially in scalding out the milk and cream cans after using it for churning butter.

A BIRD OF A ROOSTER.

Owner Refused $2,000 For Him at Madison Square Garden Show.
Some idea of the value of a well bred bird is derived from the fact that after exhibiting the champion Barred Plymouth Rock male at the Madison Square Garden show Mr. Bright, the owner, refused an offer of $2,000 for him. Questioned as to the truth of this report by the Country Gentleman, Mr. Bright said: "I was offered that sum sure enough and was rather startled myself—so much so that I was tempted to ask the one who made it with what kind of money he intended to pay me. I knew that it had taken me thirty years to produce this bird and that if I wished to continue to improve my stock I could not afford to part with him, so I refused the offer."
"I may have been foolish and I may not. At any rate, in eighteen months we sold $3,000 worth of birds and eggs produced by the yard of which this male was the head." Nine males, of which this one was the sire, sold for $100 each, and the eggs sold for $25 for thirteen.

TWO WHEEL FODDER RACK.

Easily Made at Home and Can Be Handled by One Man and Horse.
Here is a rack that is used for hauling corn fodder, straw and many other things. Only two wheels are used. These may be mower wheels. They should be about one foot back of the center of the rack, so that the front end will stay down on runners. Bore a hole through the 2 by 8 side pieces for axle. To keep fodder from resting on wheels make two simple wheel houses, as illustrated.

This rack's low down and one man can load it easier than two can a high wheeled wagon. It is easy to pull, since the horses are hitched low and take weight off runners. For ordinary use no tongue is necessary, though it would be required if the rack were used on icy or steep hills.

CHEAP FERTILIZER.

Save the droppings from the poultry house. Fertilizer of equal value if bought on the market will cost you $30 or more a ton. For the easier gathering and handling of this fertilizer a platform of boards should be placed under the roosts. This platform should be scraped clean at least twice a week.

Orchard and Garden.

Unleached wood ashes sown broadcast in the orchard will prove beneficial.
Those who have large apple orchards are fortunate if they have evaporators for drying windfall apples. This is a good way to utilize unsalable fruit and thus add to the profits of the orchard.

The garden teaches us valuable lessons on intensive farming. In it high fertility and good cultivation make a small area produce large crops. Why not adopt this system in field crops? Enlarge the pasture, reduce the field and add to your profits.

Sow some lettuce now and you may get some plants fit to use before winter or at least some plants that you can plant out in frames or the greenhouse a month later and have lettuce for Thanksgiving and Christmas. Sow a little patch of rape and perhaps rye near your chicken yard for pasture in open days during December and in early spring.

With currants and gooseberries fall is better than spring pruning. Commence as soon as the leaves have partially fallen, trimming out all drooping branches to encourage an upright growth. After the bush is trimmed and all grass, roots and weeds removed mound up a little, covering all exposed rootlets. This operation serves as a fall hoeing and is much easier done then than in the spring when the grass and weeds have more strongly fastened their roots in the ground.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoclin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

NORMAL SCHOOL NEEDS.

The Alumni Association of the Maryland State Normal School has prepared and distributed a pamphlet designed to arouse interest in the technical training of teachers, and to call attention to the lack of facilities for such instruction in this State.

Quoting from a document from the State Department of Education the pamphlet states:

"Conservative estimates put the need, annually, of Maryland for new teachers at three hundred and fifty. The normal schools at present graduate less than one hundred. This means that the other two hundred and fifty teachers must come from other states, or must go into the work without the much-needed professional training."

Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, all smaller in population have each done better by their normal schools than has Maryland. Connecticut has four such schools with 517 students; Maine also has four normal schools with 850 pupils; New Hampshire has two schools for which it appropriates annually $37,000. Pennsylvania leads the list with 13 schools costing over four million dollars, and $312,500 for maintenance annually, which serve in all 8,796 students.

SENATOR LEE ENDORSES MR. GALT

I have known Mr. Sterling Galt, Democratic candidate for the State Senatorship, for years, and I have no hesitancy in saying that if the voters of Frederick county send Mr. Galt to Annapolis he will fairly, faithfully and intelligently represent all the people.

BLAIR LEE.

Candidate's Ad.

CONCERNING MR. GALT'S CANDIDACY.

An Opportunity For Frederick County to Select a Senator of High Character and Rare Personal Gifts.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE SUN—Sir: Although never in touch with practical politics, and still less with politicians, I have always taken a lively interest in the success and progress of Democracy. We have reached a period in the history of the political development of the country when all true and earnest citizens must show, regardless of party affiliations, a due concern in the selection of those who are called upon to rule or to legislate for the people. In the words of former Governor Warfield, "a new era has dawned in public affairs" and as one owing loyalty to the State of Maryland, which has been my home for the best part of my life, I feel that I am not an intruder when I call the attention of those who have the true welfare of the State at heart to use their influence in behalf of a gentleman who has done so much that is good to uplift the neighborhood in which he lives.

Sterling Galt, the editor of the WEEKLY CHRONICLE, is a candidate for the Senatorship of Frederick county. Under many titles, he is worthy of the honor. By descent he belongs to Frederick county. By the right which all Americans are proud to claim as placing them first in rank as representative men, his title is unquestioned, for on both sides of his family were officers in the army of the War of Independence. Marylanders generally owe a special recognition to the grandfather of Sterling Galt, a member from Carroll, of the same name, who belonged to the convention which, in 1867, formulated the Constitution under which the rights of all Marylanders are secured, and which liberated the State from the incubus of a military satrapy.

Not only by birth, but by his own rare personal gifts, Mr. Galt is eminently fitted for the honorable position of State Senator. During his editorial career in this end of the county he has displayed skill, merit, judgment and prudence. His pen has ever been at the service of the best principles—social, political and ethical. He has aimed high and held out the unflinching inducements of a sincere advocate who pleads the cause of clean, decent living, and who is himself actuated by the highest ideals. Sterling Galt is a true believer in man's second religion, patriotism, and being true to the principles he has upheld, he will be an important factor in promoting the higher ideals, both social and political, of which he is the recognized champion.

I cannot but trust that the voters of Frederick county, regardless of political affiliations, will see to it that so deserving and well-equipped a candidate as Sterling Galt will be sent to Annapolis to represent the priceless interests of the people.

—Baltimore Sun.

Considers It Fortunate Opportunity to Vote For Such a Candidate.

Frederick Citizen:

Messrs. Editors:

Ask anybody in Emmitsburg or in Emmitsburg district for his opinion of Mr. Sterling Galt. That is the way to get a line on a public man—go to his home district. You will hear but one voice. You will be told that Emmitsburg has not had a better citizen in this generation than Mr. Galt. He has been progressive, leading in all public improvements, always alive to the interests of the people. Such a man should be called to a wider field of political activity and we feel confident that the voters of Frederick county will not be blind to the opportunity of securing his services as a faithful public servant at Annapolis. The nomination came to him without solicitation and he accepted it at a considerable personal sacrifice from a sense of duty to the people.

While he is a type of the new men that are rapidly coming to the front in American political life, Mr. Galt possesses the qualifications that especially fit him for the State Senatorship.

It has been written of him by one of his preceptors:

"Self-control, genial manners, thorough knowledge of human nature, and genuine kindness of heart guided by sound judgment and perfect integrity are qualities which united in one man endow him with the charm of personal magnetism. This Mr. Galt possesses. Wise, tactful, resourceful in adjusting conflicting interests and in settling difficulties, his abilities are of that order that will render his services invaluable in any position of trust and responsibility."

We consider Frederick county fortunate in having the opportunity to vote for a man who combines so many admirable qualities as does Mr. Galt.

"A DEMOCRAT."

THE COUNTY PRESS RECOGNIZED.

With Editor Sterling Galt, of the Emmitsburg CHRONICLE, nominated for State Senator on the Democratic county ticket, and Editor Charles H. Baughman, of the Frederick Citizen, on the present grand jury, it looks as if the press of the county is at last to be recognized in the political and official fields of the county. In other States it has long ago been recognized that no one makes better or more faithful officials than newspaper men and should Editor Galt succeed in being elected to the Maryland Legislature, the State will have one good representative at least.—Middletown Valley Register.

HE is a citizen of high character and his devotion to the cause of the people has won him a host of friends among the farmers of Frederick. His paper, the EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE, ranks as one of the best weekly papers of the State.—Baltimore Star.

STERLING GALT FOR STATE SENATOR.

In 1867 Sterling Galt of Carroll, was a member of the convention that formulated the present Constitution of Maryland. This year Sterling Galt, of Emmitsburg, a grandson of the former, is a candidate for the State Senate, opposing Senator Mathias, of Thurmont, who is aspiring for the office for the second time.

Through his paper, THE WEEKLY CHRONICLE, Mr. Galt, is known to many people in different parts of Frederick county, and by means of his editorials and the tone of his publication he has shown his readers everywhere that he is a manly, straightforward and fearless advocate of the rights and privileges of the people.

Mr. Galt is in his forty-sixth year; just at that age when a man's faculties are most vigorous and responsive. While his legal and journalistic training insure proper conservatism, his progressive temperament, and the push and energy he has always displayed in the cause of good government highly recommend him for the position of responsibility to which he aspires.

Mr. Galt is a tactful and resourceful man; one who possesses perfect integrity, sound judgment, and executive ability which, joined with splendid mental attainment and a frank, courteous and genial manner, are invaluable qualities in a public servant.

In his statement announcing his candidacy Mr. Galt says:

As a candidate for the State Senatorship I very respectfully and earnestly solicit your influence and support during the campaign and at the polls; pledging you in return therefor that, if elected, I shall employ every honorable means and exert every effort to further at all times and under all conditions the interests of the taxpayers and citizens of this big and important county.

That a "Public Office is a Public Trust," is a part of my political faith, and I maintain that an office-holder under the State is a PUBLIC servant.

Firmly believing this I feel that I am qualified to consider all legislative measures without bias, without fear or favor, and therefore to the best interests of ALL the people.

That statement rings true. It is characteristic of the man, and we have no hesitancy in predicting that if Mr. Galt is elected, Frederick county will not only be honored by the choice, but also greatly benefitted thereby.—Frederick Citizen.

Baltimore, Sept. 26, 1911.
To the Editor of The Chronicle

Dear Sir:

Noting that Mr. Sterling Galt has been nominated by the Democrats of Frederick County for the position of Senator, I take the liberty of writing to you, to express through your columns my high appreciation of Mr. Galt's eminent fitness for the position for which he has been nominated.

I do not believe that the Democrats of Frederick County could have selected a better candidate, and I feel sure that their selection will be confirmed by the whole people, because, as Senator, he will represent all the people of his County.

Mr. Galt is, in my opinion, especially qualified for the dignified position of Senator. He is a man of liberal education, and his journalistic career has demonstrated broad and sensible views upon all public questions. He comes of old Maryland stock, being a grandson of Sterling Galt, who represented Carroll County in the Constitutional Convention of 1867, which formulated and gave us the present Constitution of Maryland.

He is a progressive and believes in the rule of the people, and has been at all times a champion of the people and especially of the rights of the tax payers. If he is elected to the Senate, he will stand up for economy in legislative and all other expenditures of the people's money.

I do hope that the good citizens of Frederick County will support Mr. Galt because of his fitness, because he realizes that a public office is a public trust, and because he will, if elected, faithfully represent them at Annapolis.

Very truly, yours,
EDWIN WARFIELD.

SENATOR LEE'S PUBLIC ENDORSEMENT.

At a recent meeting of the County Central Committee at Frederick, Senator Blair Lee, in his remarks to that body, said:

"I know that I will be pardoned for speaking of one of your candidates by name; I refer to Mr. Sterling Galt. I have known him since he was a boy—I know all about him, and I want to say that if Mr. Galt is elected Frederick county will have at Annapolis a capable man who will take care of Frederick county's interests in a dignified and thoroughly business-like manner."

FROM THE FRATERNITY.

It is a fact worthy of note that Editor Sterling Galt, of the EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE, Democratic candidate for State Senator, is not in any way using the columns of his paper to "boost" his chances of election. It is a most remarkable exhibition of modesty—a fineness of discrimination between ways and means available of accomplishing an end, rarely seen in politics. Indeed, we think Mr. Galt would be fully justified in using the influence of his excellent paper in his own behalf.—Carroll Record.

MR. GALT is well-known throughout the State as a man of force and character, and will add dignity and brains to the Senate if elected.—Havre de Grace Republican.

TO THE VOTERS OF FREDERICK COUNTY

I hold, as I have stated on my candidate's card, that "a public office is a public trust" and that an office-holder under the State or County should be a PUBLIC Servant.

It is for the People of Frederick County to tell me, if I am elected, what legislation they do or do not want.

If I am sent to Annapolis I shall go there untrammelled, uncoerced---not the tool of a boss or an organization or the vassal or representative of any league, clique, society, union, association, corporation or combination of interests, and I shall endeavor at all times and under all conditions to serve the PEOPLE as justice, honor and duty point the way.

STERLING GALT, CANDIDATE FOR THE STATE SENATORSHIP.

FINELY FITTED FOR SENATORSHIP.

To the Editor of the Post:

I am sure I do not exaggerate when I say that there are few men in Frederick county better fitted to fill the responsible mission of senator of the county than Sterling Galt. He has a host of supporters throughout the county. He is everywhere recognized as representative of the best and most conservative interests of the State; and he has shown during his career as an editor in this corner of the county, that he was impelled by a desire to assist in public work and his aims were high; the ideals he aimed at were of the best and loftiest, and I am sure that he will receive the support of many who belong to opposing parties. What makes Sterling Galt a particular favorite apart from his own personal attraction and magnetism, is the well-known fact that he wears no man's collar, and that he is free from any connection with special interests or corporations enjoying special privileges. Should he be sent to the Senate, he will be in touch with the party of the majority, which from all present indications will be returned to power, and he will thus be enabled not only adequately to represent the interests of the majority, but to see that the just claims of the minority shall not be overlooked.

He understands every phase of conditions in the county, having attained a familiarity therewith by his experience as a journalist; and this explains the success he has met with in his campaigning and the assurance he receives on all sides of the undivided support of his fellow-citizens who believe in clean politics, progressive policies and principles.

I cannot but risk the prediction that from all reports he will be one of the strongest candidates in the county in the November election.

ERNEST LAGARDE.

CONGRATULATIONS.

To Sterling Galt, editor and proprietor of the Emmitsburg Chronicle, the congratulations of the Compiler are extended for having secured the Democratic nomination of Frederick county for State Senator. Mr. Galt is well known to many Gettysburg people who will be delighted to learn of his triumphant election. Mr. Galt is a man of ability. He has made of the Chronicle a paper of which Emmitsburg can be proud. He is doing his community an invaluable service in standing for what is best and progressive for his community. Every one has a good word to say for him and the work he has been doing for his town. Mr. Galt is the grandson of Sterling Galt, who represented Carroll county in the Constitutional Convention of 1867, which furnished the present constitution of Maryland. Mr. Galt will bring to the discharge of the duties of the position an ability, a hustling capacity for work and a faithfulness that will make him a most useful public servant to the people of his district.—Gettysburg Compiler.

FOR MARYLAND SENATE.

The newspaper fraternity is naturally always interested in newspaper men who become candidates for public office, and especially interested in good, clean, high-minded, capable newspaper men who are willing to give their time and ability to personally serve their State.

Across the line, in Frederick county, Sterling Galt, the owner and editor of one of the cleanest and most wide-awake papers in Maryland is a candidate for the State Senatorship.

Mr. Galt is a man of high character and unassailable integrity, and all who have followed his career will be quick to assert that his every editorial utterance has been for that which has made for the uplift of the community and the county in which he lives and for the best interests of the masses.

If Mr. Galt is elected, Democrats and Republicans alike may confidently look for a "square deal" and the County of Frederick for every bit of legislation that can benefit it.—Adams County Independent.

AN EDITOR FOR STATE SENATOR.

To the Editor of The Brunswick Herald:

It speaks well for the times that so many men of splendid calibre are taking an active part in politics, and it is a fortunate thing that through the primary system, a way has been opened for high-minded citizens to exercise their civic duty, untrammelled and uncoerced. This new law gives the Body Politic a chance to stand behind good men, clean, broad minded men, who do not seek office for emolument and who never would have entered the lists under other circumstances. This year Emmitsburg District has sent out a candidate for the State Senatorship—Mr. Sterling Galt—whose ability, integrity, liberality of view and progressiveness should strongly commend him to the voters of this county, and I am glad to be among the large number who approve of Mr. Galt's candidacy, and who will support so worthy an exponent of good citizenship.

—Brunswick Herald.

A PLEA FOR MR. GALT.

To the Editor of the Brunswick Herald.

Dear Sir:
I feel that as one interested in the public schools of our county I should add my endorsement to the many already made of the candidacy of Mr. Sterling Galt for State Senator. I first met Mr. Galt on the occasion of a visit to Emmitsburg in connection with our school.

Then I found him not only interested in the work but really doing a great deal personally and financially to encourage the school of that town.

Since that time I have been a constant reader of his paper, which is contributed regularly to our High School reading room, and many times have I noted encouraging editorials and strong appeals in behalf of the teacher and those under his charge.

For this reason, as a teacher, I feel that I must commend him to the support of those teachers who shall this fall cast a vote or influence the casting of a vote for the county's representation in our next Legislature.

O. M. FOGLE.

Emmitsburg, Oct. 18, 1911
To the Editor of the Chronicle:

I wish to express through the columns of your paper my hearty endorsement of the candidacy of Mr. Sterling Galt for the office of State Senator.

I have known Mr. Galt for a number of years as a regular attendant at my church, as a personal friend and as a private citizen. From this acquaintance I know his position on practically all political questions will be assumed according to the larger interests of his constituents and can say without reservation that if he is elected he will consider all such questions from the standpoint of their effect on the welfare of the people regardless of the influence they might bring to bear on his private affairs. In other words, he would be an unselfish public servant.

I have no personal desire that any certain political party should win the election; it is my desire that we have good government, and because of this I give Mr. Galt my hearty endorsement.

(REV.) A. M. GLUCK.

FROM WESTMINSTER.

We note with great pleasure that our friend and neighbor, Sterling Galt, is the candidate on the Democratic ticket in Frederick county, Maryland, for the State Senatorship.

Mr. Galt comes from an old Maryland family several members of which, in years past, served in the Legislature, Mr. Galt's grandfather, for whom the present candidate is named, having been a member of the convention (of 1867) that framed the present Constitution of Maryland.

Mr. Galt is from every standpoint fully qualified to discharge the duties of a State Senator. He has ability, he is broad-minded and progressive and if elected he may be depended upon to serve all the people with credit to himself and with a single eye to their welfare.—Westminster Democratic Advocate.

A FAIR EXCHANGE
MANY people have things that they no longer have use for, but keep them in the house taking up room and doing no one any good.
 Better sell or trade off things you don't want. Advertise them and you will find that there are people ready to take them and pay cash, or trade for them. You will find it easy through the Columns of

Gems In Verse
A TRIBUTE.
 THE world is better nowadays
 Than fifty years ago.
 I know, and there are many ways
 That give me cause to know.
 Aye, though you pick a score of flaws,
 Since a twoscore years and ten
 I say 'tis better now—because
 You were not in it then.

A SONG OF SPRING.
SING me a song of spring,
 Tell me of birds on wing,
 Of nests in a hollow,
 Of robin and swallow
 And the oriole's yellow blaze.
 Sing me a song of spring;
 Remind me that each brown thing
 Will fling on the soft air
 A thousand of flowers fair,
 While fern fronds their brown curls raise.
 Sing me a song of spring;
 Repeat that the bare earth will bring
 From dead leaf drifts hiding
 All, all my heart's bidding—
 After winter the summer days.
 —Elizabeth West Parker.

FALLEN IN THE PHILIPPINES.
STREETS of the roaring town
 Hush for him, hush, be still!
 He comes, who was stricken down
 Doing the word of our will.
 Hush! Let him have his state:
 Give him his soldier's crown:
 The grists of trade can wait
 Their grinding at the mill,
 But he cannot wait for his honor now
 The trumpet has been blown
 Breathe pride now for his granite brow,
 Lay love on his breast of stone.

Tell! Let the great bell toll
 Till the clashing air is dim,
 Did we wrong his parted soul?
 We will make it up to him.
 Toll! Let him never guess
 What work we set him to.
 Laurel, laurel, yes;
 He did what we bade him do
 Praise and never a whispered hint
 But the fight he fought was good;
 Never a word that the blood on his sword
 Was his country's own heart's blood disguise.
 A flag for the soldier's bier
 Who dies that his land may live.
 Oh, banners, banners here
 That he doubt not nor misgive;
 That he heed not from the tomb
 The evil days draw near
 When the nation, robed in gloom,
 With its faithless past shall strive.
 Let him never dream that his bullet-scream went wide of its island mark-
 Home to the heart of his darling land where she stumbled and sinned in the dark
 —William Vaughn Moody

HYMN TO THE SUN.
THOU who dost kiss away the dew
 that lies
 Like hidden tears on each small grassy blade,
 Who with ethereal colors canst
 disguise
 Into a host of golden butterflies
 The almond blossoms fluttering as they fade;
 O gracious sun, to whom each darling flower
 Doth owe the ripened honey of its cup,
 Who findest the way to every peasant's
 bower,
 Dividing in a trillion parts the dower
 That still in one great sphere is treasured up.
 Glory to thee, O sun, upon the lawn,
 On portal and on meadow and on vine,
 In eye of lizard and on wing of swan,
 O thou who hast with magic pencil drawn
 Each fine detail and every sweeping line!
 To deck the air with roses, make us see
 Flames in the springs, in every bush a
 Lar,
 To apotheosize a gnarled tree—
 Is thine, O sun, without whose alchemy Things would indeed be only what they are!

The Silent Moon.
 Dead silence reigns on the moon. A thousand cannons might be fired and a thousand drums beaten upon that airless world, but no sound could come from them. Lips might quiver and tongues essay to speak, but no action of theirs could break the utter silence of the lunar scene.

Daddy's Bedtime
Story— The Boy Who Took an Interest
 In His Work
In Spare Moments He Worked at His Invention

JACK and Evelyn were groaning and showing red and blistered hands. "Had to hoe the corn and weed the garden today," they explained. "Wish Cy would hurry and get well. We don't like to hoe and weed." "I'm afraid you will have to work more or less in this world as you get older, and it might be just as well to get used to doing cheerfully whatever task is given you. I'm sure the Spokane water boy would never have had blistered hands after an hour's hoeing. He would not have forgotten his gloves, as you seem to have done. Boys and girls who wear thick gloves in the garden don't get sore hands." "Who was the Spokane water boy?" chimed the children. "Well," replied daddy, "he was Frankie Rowe of Spokane, and he was a little fellow who earned money by carrying water for the men who were putting up a big building. Carrying water to thirsty men is no easy work on hot days. "Frankie Rowe didn't growl. He was interested in everything he saw. When he had time he asked the men questions about their work. Frankie was bound to learn, so if there was a chance for him to get a better job he would be fitted for it. Well, Frankie saw that the wires used in making the concrete used on the building had to be cut one at a time with a pair of shears. Frankie wondered about this, as it took a great deal of time to cut the wires one by one. He asked if there was no machine to do this work—there seemed to be machines for so many other things. He was told that there was no machine for cutting wires. Then he began to think. When he was going down into the cellar where the men were laying stone or upstairs where the men were building the walls he kept thinking about the wire cutting machine which no one had as yet been able to invent. By and by he had an idea. "He went to the boss and asked if he might have the use of the tools in the blacksmith shop sometimes when no one else was using them. The boss was a nice man, and he said, 'Very well, Frankie.' "The men teased him about his work with the tools, but they could see how well he could use them. And what do you think? He hammered and bent and riveted until he had a rude machine that really would cut those wires quickly. When he showed it to the boss that gentleman was much amazed. "And now Frankie is going to make a great deal of money out of that machine. Some of the money he is going to use in educating himself."

How a Wild Horse Bucks.
 Rufus Steele, in "Mustangs, Busters and Outlaws of the Nevada Wild Horse Country," in the American Magazine, tells of the glorious sport of capturing and training wild horses. "Busting" is no sport for a novice. Real busters are trained to the game from childhood. He writes: "A touch of the spur or a flick of the quirt signals the start. His knowledge of what to do must be a heritage from his ancestors, for all horses do it, and all American wild horses are sprung from horses that once carried men. He pops down his head and levitates straight heavenward. While he and you are high in the air he arches his back and stiffens his body to iron rigidity. Thus he comes back to earth. The sensation to the rider is as if his spinal column had been struck by a pile driver. The impression is not analyzed at the time, for the horse goes into the air again immediately. He swings to right or left, or he 'changes ends' completely while in the air, and you come down facing southward, whereas you were facing northward when you ascended."

Curious Way of Catching Fish.
 Indians of Bolivia have a peculiar method of going fishing. A writer in the Geographical Journal says: "They use the milk of the 'manuna' or 'soliman' tree, the scientific name of which is, I think, Hura crepitans, of the euphorbia genus, for catching fish. I went with some of the Indians to a lagoon in the forest. Here, floating on the surface of the water, perfectly alive and yet absolutely unable to get away, were fish of all kinds, big and small, from which they selected the most palatable for food. The milk is merely poured into the water, and as it spreads every fish which comes in contact with it becomes paralyzed and yet is not affected as food. Moreover, the effect appears to last for several days without killing the fish. The milk is also used as a cure for toothache, as a caustic and for the purpose of suicide, for which a teaspoonful is employed. As a poison they say the results are painful."

Rulers of England.
 The first to rule over all England was Egbert, king of Wessex, who united all the various petty kingdoms and became king of England in 827. The greater kingdom was disrupted from 878 to 958, when the Danes ruled north of the Thames. In the latter year King Edgar reunited the kingdom, and since that time it has never been partitioned. Between Edmund Ironside (1016) and Edward the Confessor (1042) three Danish kings ruled all England—Canute, Harold I. and Hardicanute. The first king of Great Britain was James I. (1603). The first king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was George III. From the conquest of Ireland in 1172 by Henry II, the kings of England were styled Lord of Ireland until the assumption of the title king of Ireland by Henry VIII, and thereafter this title was used until the act of union in 1801. The imperial sovereignty of India was assumed by Queen Victoria.
