DISTRICT MANAGER,
FREDERICK, MARYLAND

LEWIS OPENS CAMPAIGN

Hon. David J. Lewis, Congressman from the Sixth Congressional District, and candidate for reelection, confined his address to an exposition of the Parcels Post, explaining in detail the immense amount of good that will result from it and how it will benefit the farmer, the consumer and the country store keeper. He recounted the beneficent measures the last Democratic House had passed. He told how the present house at its very first session had broken the Czar rule of Speaker Cannon, making it no longer possible for the Speaker to control every committee of the lower branch, as was possible and exercised under the old regime.

Mr. Lewis alluded to the high character of Governor Wilson, of his opposition to boss rule, and of his magnificent equipment for the high office of President, and assured his listeners that when Wilson was elected, he would fulfill to the letter every pledge he had made.

The Congressman paid a high tribute to the fitness of Hon. Glenn H. Worthington for the office to which he aspires and declared that one of the greatest jurists in the State had said that Mr. Worthington was one of the most capable judges that ever sat on the bench.

Mr. Lewis asked that he be returned to Congress for one purpose only, namely to consummate work which he had already undertaken during the present term, pledging his time and his talents in behalf of the common people.

Prof. Ernest Lagarde followed Mr. Lewis and closed the interesting and edifying meeting. Prof. Lagarde urged the people to vote for Governor Wilson; assuring them that he was the candidate best fitted to occupy the executive chair, and also asked that they reelect the Hon. David J. Lewis, who had accomplished so much in so short a time for the people of this State and the country at large, and that they place Judge Worthington on the Bench, assuring them that exact justice would be meted out to all who came before him. Prof. Lagarde's address was well received.

There was loud applause during the speeches at the mention of each candidate's name, and the meeting was conceded to be one of the best political gatherings ever held in Emmitsburg.

The Great Frederick Fair.

The Great Frederick Fair, which has come to be recognized as the leading fair in Maryland, will this year be held on October 22, 23, 24 and 25. No fair in Maryland provides as many comforts for its patrons, nor affords such a variety of interesting and attractive features, as does this popular fair. Each year the management strives to present a program entirely different from former years, and succeeds admirably, and those who attend this Frederick Fair this year will not have a dull moment while on the fair grounds. In addition to a mid-way crowded with everything that will amuse, there will be motorcycle races, a baby show that will award prizes of gold coin, first-class vaudeville performances, balloon ascensions, mule races, a gang plowing demonstration, the like of which has never before been witnessed in this part of the country, and plenty of harness and running races. An additional building for poultry has been provided. It is equipped with new wire coops, a cement floor and plenty of light. The fair managers purpose making the poultry exhibit a fanciers' show, where birds of rarest plumage will be seen. All railroads entering Frederick will run special trains and sell tickets at reduced rates.

The Jackson-Mack Manufacturing Company, one of the largest manufacturers of silk petticoats in New York, went into bankruptcy with liabilities of $700,000.

The total amount of excavation from the Panama Canal, according to a dispatch to the Canal Commission, was 2,124,440 cubic yards in September, as against 2,443,353 cubic yards in August.

News From County Seat.

IN THE COURTS.

Interfering with the officers of the law will not be tolerated by the magistrates, at least so far as Justice George R. Dennis is concerned. Last night about eight o'clock, the members of the Snowden family, colored, who reside on Broadway, became very annoying so much so that Jacob Geisinger, was obliged to ask the aid of the law to abate the nuisance. A warrant was sworn out for the arrest of Emma and Edith Snowden. Officers Herring and King placed them under arrest. While officer King had Edith, Lena Snowden another sister, interfered and for quite a while the air was blue with vociferous remarks. The sisters were finally taken before Justice Dennis, who after hearing the case dismissed Emma, and fined Edith $5, which was paid. Lena was also fined $5, for interfering with the officer in the discharge of his duty.

Thomas Holiday Hicks Glessner, a barber, was found hanging by the neck in an outbuilding at his home and cut down by neighbors in time to save his life. He had been melancholy. Tying a rope to a rafter, Glessner adjusted one end about his neck by standing on a chair. He then kicked over the chair, the noise thus made attracting his rescuers.

In spite of the big majority the Republicans of Frederick county are able to roll up on ordinary occasions, it looks as though the county will go for Wilson this year by at least 300 and probably more. It also looks as though D. J. Lewis (Dem.) will carry the county against C. D. Wagerman (Rep.) for Congress and that Worthington (Dem.) will be elected judge over Willard (Rep.)

DIVORCE CASES.

Carrie G. Odell, of Johnsville district, through her attorney, D. Princeton Buckley, has applied for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii, from her husband, William C. Odell, on the grounds of abandonment and desertion and also with adultery. The parties were married in York, Pa.; on October 19, 1907, by Rev. D. L. Kepner, and are the parents of one child, Mary Catherine Odell, whose custody, the plaintiff asks. Blanche Stultz is named as correspondent in the bill of complaint. The whereabouts of the defendant is unknown.

Mortgagee's Sale.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage from Amanda S. Winegardner and Jacob F. Winegardner, her husband, to Peter F. Burket, bearing date the 12th of December, 1908, duly recorded in Liber S. T. H. No. 285, folio 296, etc., one of the land records of Frederick county, the undersigned mortgagee will sell at public sale at Hotel Spangler in the town of Emmitsburg, Frederick county, Maryland, on Saturday, October 19th, 1912, at 2 o'clock, P. M., all the following valuable real estate described in said mortgage, situated in said Frederick county, State of Maryland, viz: All that tract of land containing 10 acres more or less, being the first described in a deed from John Guise to said Amanda S. Winegardner bearing date the 3rd day of March, 1900, duly recorded in Liber D. H. H. No. 5, folio 518, one of the land records of Frederick county and in said mortgage, situated about one mile North West of the town of Emmitsburg, Md., in said county and State, on the Waynesboro pike leading from said town and adjoining the lands of Sebastian B. Florence, Mary Rowe and others.

The said tract of land is improved by a good two-story brick dwelling house in first class condition with a sun parlor and verandas attached and cellar floors cemented. A splendid spring of good water protected by a concrete basin and spring house, a good frame stable, carriage house, corn crib, a two-story wash house and other outbuildings are conveniently located to the said dwelling house. There is considerable fruit of choice varieties in full bearing such as apple, grapes, etc. on the premises.

This property is well located and equipped for a Summer home for any one wishing to leave the city during the hot months and also well adapted to truck farming or poultry raising, making it altogether a very desirable home for any one on account of its convenience to churches, schools and markets. Terms of sale—Cash. All conveying at the expense of the purchaser or purchasers.

PETER F. BURKET, VINCENT SEBOLD, Atty. Mortgagee.

A Quarantine On Christmas Trees.
The shipment of Christmas trees and Christmas greens out of the moth-infested parts of New England will in all probability be prohibited by the working of the new Plant Quarantine law. Secretary Wilson finds that egg masses of the gypsy moth may be transported from certain areas of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut on the evergreens, living trees, and shrubs, or on forest products, such as cordwood, lumber, telephone poles, railroad ties, and so on.

"MIKE" THOMPSON, ATHLETIC DIRECTOR, MOUNT SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE.

MOUNT ST. MARY'S LOSES. GETTYSBURG THE VICTOR

Crowds and Band at Game.—Contest Exciting and Hotly Fought Throughout.—Final Score 7 to 0.

The great football game of the season took place here yesterday on Echo field between those two great rivals, Mt. St. Mary's and Gettysburg. It was a gala day for the local admirers of the great college game and a large crowd was out to see the contest. To enliven affairs the under graduates engaged the Emmet Cornet Band, of Emmitsburg, and it proved an added feature. The music seemed to make the teams put more spirit into the plays and it was appreciated by the spectators especially during the intermission. It was a good game and although the Mountaineers had many opportunities in which they could trim their old time rivals they let those chances slip by when victory was within their grasp. The score was 7 to 0.

The Mount received the kick off and the way they started off it looked like a great day for the local town's people to celebrate, but the "battle field" boys were equal to the emergency and held the boys of the mountains when victory looked possible. The Gettysburg boys had a good team and although not as heavy as in former years, Coach Phillipi seemed to get out what he wanted in the line of attack. In Leathers, Biggle and Schaffer he has a great trio and they did wonderful things to the Mountaineer line. It seemed for a time that they could not be stopped and things looked rather badly for a time that a large score would be run up.

The local team did not put up the game that was expected of them by Coach Thompson. He thought that the offense would prove much better and he was disappointed at the showing in this department. The defense had been known to be the stumbling block, and trouble was expected from that quarter. The local team did not get off their plays with the same speed as displayed in the Georgetown game and this was expected to prove the big asset. The tackling of both teams was far below the standard. Many times a man could be pulled down for a set back when the tackler would jump for the shoulders, thus enabling the man carrying the ball to advance four or five yards more than he should. McManus, the plucky little quarter back of the Mount, seemed to have the only form on the field in the way a tackle should be made. Some of his open field tackles were spectacular and called for loud applause. Some changes will have to be made in the local team and there is no doubt that at the next practice this will be done. The back field did not seem to work together as the machine, some of the men having a little more speed than others. This defect will have to be remedied so as to get a better combination. From a spectator's standpoint it proved a very interesting game and the open style of play was constantly resorted to, thus giving the onlookers a chance to see where the ball was.

There is no doubt that football as played yesterday at the Mount has taken on a decided improvement for better results in the future, and although a victory was looked forward to, taking past scores into consideration the Mountaineers are in a fair way to do better things. One thing quiet noticeable was the good feeling that existed between not only both of the teams but also with the sympathizers. The game was cleanly played and the officials had very little work in handing out penalties.

The line-up follows:
Time of game, 4 ten minute periods. Referee Saylor, Harvard; Umpire Sparrow, Eastern College; Head Linesman, Joe Engle, Mt. St. Mary's; Touchdown, Schaffer. Goal from touchdown, Leathers.

Athletic Director M. J. Thompson, of Mt. St. Mary's College, left here today for Providence, R. I., where he has been invited to referee the University of Pennsylvania and Brown University football game Saturday.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

WHAT'S THE GOOD OF STATE ROADS?

There is a certain chess-player of our acquaintance who is accustomed to welcome every move of his opponent with the remark: "That's all very fine; but what's the good of it?" We have often thought how appropriate this comment was to the move the State made in purchasing the Emmitsburg Pike. What really was the good of it? We were wont to think of a state road as the "non plus ultra" in the matter of highways; and, in fact, in our neighboring state, Pennsylvania, the term is synonymous with a magnificently kept thoroughfare. Such was what we hoped for when the transfer of the Emmitsburg Pike was contemplated. But, alas and alack! we were doomed to disappointment; and we feel ourselves in the position of the frogs that asked Jove for a king. We would willingly go back to the old regime of the Turnpike Company, which, if it did charge us toll, gave us something for our money by keeping the road in fairly good condition.

Not only have the state authorities not improved the pike but they have left it deteriorate. With the exception of some slight repairs made on the Frederick end of the road, almost nothing has been done. Mud puddles, ruts, "thank ye mams," etc., are the lot of the travellers who wish to use the pike, and they are not a few, as it is the most direct route from Washington and the South to the Battlefield of Gettysburg, Eastern Pennsylvania and New York. In some places the road-bed is completely gone and nothing of the turnpike construction remains. And this, despite the fact that tons of crushed stone lie along the roadside from the days before the transfer.

Not long ago an automobile party went pitching headlong into a ditch that skirts the road at a dangerous curve near the second milestone from Emmitsburg, and a fine car was wrecked while the lives of five passengers were endangered. Nor was the chauffeur to blame, as he was compelled to turn aside to avoid a car coming in the opposite direction. The fault lay in the defects of the road.

There is a covered bridge over Tom's Creek, one mile from town, and it is so constructed that, when a freshet occurs, the arch beneath is not spacious enough to receive the flow of water, which, as a result, spreads out over the road sometimes to the depth of four feet. Now if Emmitsburg were Venice we would not object to an occurrence of this kind; but here we have no gondolas and there is little pleasure in driving when the water is flowing over the floor of your buggy. Pedestrians, not belonging to any web-footed species, are compelled to make use of the railroad bridge nearby. A gentleman from the West who came here recently at night took the fording of the stream as a matter of course, but what appealed to him as strange was that he should strike a bridge after he had driven through several hundred yards of water. This bridge, of course, is a relic of turnpike days and the censure for its construction cannot be put upon the State; but none the less the State should take steps to change it.

As for the rest of the road it would seem that the State might at least have kept it in repair even though no improvements were made. Now this work will cost twice as much as it would have cost had it been done in time. In the meantime we wonder what has become of the money that was allotted for the repairs and up-keep of this particular road. But when we have talked and written of the matter until we are tired, we ask as does the chess-player, "What's the good of it?"

WILSON'S LABOR RECORD.

There is a tendency on the part of certain labor leaders to malign Gov. Wilson when the question is asked how he stands on the vital issue. Some of these urge that the Democratic candidate has not in any single instance declared himself definitely or clearly on the question that directly concerns labor. Let us see if his acts do not speak more effectively than the omission of so-called definite declaration.

The testimony of labor men in all parts of New Jersey shows that after the adjournment of the Legislature of that State there had never been a State official from whom they had received greater consideration than had been given them by Governor Wilson. Here are some of his acts that speak in no doubtful terms. Besides the workingmen's compensation law, which provides definite sums for definite injuries and for death, the Governor approved several other acts affecting labor directly. One of these acts makes it a misdemeanor for any one to attempt to bribe a representative of a labor organization. Another provides for and compels proper fire protection in factories. Its provisions are strict but reasonable, and as an evidence that the intention was to deal with the laboring class directly, its conditions must be approved by the State Commissioner of Labor to make them binding.

During his administration the number of factory inspectors was increased and they were placed under civil service regulation.

On the question of child labor the trend of the legislation approved by the Governor shows that he was solicitous of the welfare of the young crop of the land, for the acts which received his approbation limited the hours during which children may work in various establishments. The employment of minors as messengers at night, in first class cities, was forbidden, and in places other than first class cities no child under the age of 18 years may be employed. Men employed in foundries were protected from unhealthy conditions; and in the same connection it may be stated that Governor Wilson signed an act requiring proper plumbing, ventilation and sanitation in work shops of all kinds, and carrying out these views effectively the law orders that all places of labor, all plants of the varied industries shall be properly screened to keep off dangerous and annoying insects.

The vaporings of the walking delegate and of the "Philistine" Hubbard vainly endeavor to show that Gov. Wilson is an enemy to labor. American laborers that stand at the forefront in the ranks of the world's heroes of skilled productiveness have no more hearty champion of their cause than the Democratic candidate for the Presidency; as proof of this we will state that Samuel Gompers the mouthpiece of organized labor and trades union is a warm supporter of Gov. Wilson.

THE FREDERICK CITY HOSPITAL.

Every Frederick Countian is proud of the Frederick City Hospital as every Frederick Countian should be, for this institution, managed as it is by such a capable and painstaking Board, has done and is doing a splendid work in the interest of suffering humanity. Here is an institution open to all. Nor creed nor color nor age are barriers to admittance; nor is there any degree of difference in the medical attention or service rendered to its patients. To alleviate suffering, to heal the sick, to eradicate disease and restore health—these are the aims and purposes of this model Hospital at the county seat.

But being proud of an institution and being ready and willing to aid that institution are two different things, and certainly those who unselfishly give their skill and those who manage and direct without any thought but of them to whom they minister, should have the co-operation of the public. They have a right to expect that the public will cheerfully respond to any reasonable request that may be made.

Happily there has been adopted an easy plan, a most reasonable plan, whereby rich and poor, old and young, may aid in this noble work; we refer to the several "Donation Days" set apart by the Board. On these days it is asked that every family, every individual contribute something to fill the larder of the Hospital—eggs, groceries, pickles, fruits, preserves, jellies and the like. A very modest request, this; one most easy to comply with.

Let all respond to this call, and let this Thanksgiving Day be one worthy of the name at the Frederick City Hospital.

THE END OF A SUCCESSFUL PASTORATE.

The resignation of the Rev. A. M. Gluck as pastor of the Reformed Church of the Incarnation, Emmitsburg, and his acceptance of the call to Martinsburg, W. Va., removes from this community a man who as a clergyman and citizen endeared himself to everyone.

To say that the congregation to which he ministered so unselfishly, so earnestly—loved Mr. Gluck, respected him and were proud of him as their pastor—is but to express the feeling that is in the heart of each individual member of his church.

The work that Mr. Gluck did among his own people, whose interests were ever nearest his heart, and all that he accomplished during the nine years of his ministry here—and it was much—he accomplished by unobtrusive perseverance, by gentle suasion and by earnest precept. His genial manner, genial, sincere and sympathetic, was but an index of his heart, a heart attuned to others' sorrow which he would assuage, and to their mirth which he was ever ready to share.

To this good man of God, this good citizen and friend we, in behalf of this community, bid him Godspeed, and wish for him length of years, much happiness and a success in his new field equal to that which attended his good work here in Emmitsburg.

A REGRETTABLE INCIDENT.

Nothing more regrettable could have happened during this presidential campaign than the murderous attempt upon Colonel Roosevelt's life. There is no American, worthy of the name, who does not sympathize with the affiliated candidate, nor is there, we believe, a member of any political party—no matter how widely he may differ with Colonel Roosevelt's policies and his mode of promulgating them—who does not heartily condemn the attack and wish that punishment commensurate with the dastardly deed may forthwith be administered to the frenzied fiend who fired the shot.

A verdict for $80,000 and costs was awarded the plaintiffs, D. E. Loewe & Co., of Danbury, Ct., against members of the United Hatters' Union of North America, in the United States District Court at Hartford.

The government concluded its case against the officials of the Potomac Refining Company in the United States District Court, and the testimony for the defense was begun.

Mayor Preston, of Baltimore, announced that the city will have to proceed with the arrests of negligent householders who do not connect their houses with the sewerage system.

Two thousand hams were destroyed by a fire in the smokehouse of Jacob C. Shafer & Co., Baltimore.

CURRENT COMMENT FROM LEADING JOURNALS.

A Question of Partnership.

The aim of the law turning the light on contributions for political uses was to weaken and gradually to break up the partnership between large moneyed interests and the politicians. It is tending that way. In no way is it doing more than in exposing the exact relations of the Roosevelt party toward this pernicious partnership.

There are two lines on which the partnership has been built up in the last generation. One is the protective tariff; the other is the organization of the corporatins coming under the action of the Federal Government by virtue of its right to regulate interstate commerce. The former is the older and the worse. It dates from long before the Republican Party, but it has been developed under that party in a marvelous manner. The evil is inherent in the nature of the tariff. With business dependent on legislative favors, it becomes a matter of business to control the party that controls the Legislature, and the expenses for that purpose become an integral and unavoidable part of the "overhead charges" in any business affected by tariff legislation. The only way to cure the evil is to reduce the tariff; the only way to lessen the evil so long as the tariff remains, is to pour the light of publicity on the contributions made by those who profit by the tariff.

Mr. Roosevelt was President of the United States for nearly eight years. He did absolutely nothing in either of these directions. He did not lift his finger to secure any real reduction of the tariff. He professed himself a friend of publicity, but he took no steps to forward effectually its application. Mr. Perry Belmont, leader of the publicity movement, in a recent statement says:

At the inception of the movements and following close upon the agitation which could not be ignored when he became President, his first message to Congress dealt with this subject in such a manner that I felt justified in quoting from that message. Those words, however commendable, were at no time followed by acts, and had he ever during the whole period of his Administration done anything to promote campaign publicity legislation, the Legislative Committee of the National Publicity Law Association, residing in Washington, would have known of it. The controlling influences of his party in the Senate and in the House opposed campaign publicity legislation, directly and indirectly, during all the years of his Administration, and the Republican National Convention of 1908, in which Mr. Roosevelt was considered as having sufficient influence, voted down by an overwhelming majority the resolution proposed for campaign publicity.

And now comes the investigating committee of the Senate, before which it is shown that in the campaign of 1904, the only one in which Mr. Roosevelt was personally interested, the partnership was in full operation; business was done on a great scale; collections were rapid, easy, and large; profits for all parties were entirely satisfactory, and the idea of any public retribution being in store for them never dawned on the minds of the active and prosperous partners. Mr. Roosevelt appeared as a "witness" and chatted with entire cheerfulness as to his part in the operation, and manifested not the slightest uneasiness as to the way in which his admissions would strike the public mind. The fact that he is now a "Progressive," and the apostle of "industrial justice," did not seem to disturb him. The kind of "justice" that can be promoted by political contributions on the one hand and favors to the contributors on the other quite satisfies his ideal.

We have deep respect for the sincere sentiment that animates many of the followers of Mr. Roosevelt. We venture to ask them even at this late date quietly and soberly to review his action in this matter and to determine what ground there is to think that he will honestly and effectively forward the dissolution of the partnership between the politicians and the interests by which he has so eagerly profited in the past and from which he has not yet withdrawn.—New York Times.

Why Beef is Cheaper in England.

From 1900 to 1910 the population of the United States increased about 15,000,000. In the same period the total number of standard meat animals decreased 19,716,000. There were 5,916,000 fewer beef cattle, 9,100,000 fewer sheep and 1,700,000 fewer hogs.

That is the explanation packers and stock raisers give for the increase in the price of meats, and it is valid.

At the same time American-raised meats sell in England for less than in the United States. In August, according to the Springfield Republican, American sirloin of beef sold in London for 19 1-2 cents when New York had to pay 28 cents.

The reason for the discrepancy is that in the London markets our meats compete with those from South America and have to be sold at South American prices.

The New York Journal of Commerce states that consular records show that Argentina, with a population of only 7,172,000, has 29,124,000 beef cattle, 67,384,000 sheep, 1,204,281 hogs—more than thirteen and a half meat animals per capita. Uruguay, with a population of 1,400,000 has 2,200,000 beef cattle 25,000,000 sheep, 500 hogs—twenty-four per capita. The United States is said to have less than two per capita. Yet as the Baltimore Sun puts the case, "we will not open the door to countries which have plenty of cattle and can supply cheaper beef, pork and mutton."

England imports almost all of her meats; ours we raise. Prices, however, are lower in England than in America. England places no tariff on meats. We do, and the packing and distribution are to a great degree controlled by a trust powerful enough to fix prices.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Mr. Sulzer's Independence.

The fact is that Mr. Sulzer has kept his seat in Congress solely by virtue of the confidence felt in him in his own district, without the aid of Tammany Hall, and without the sympathy of that organization. He has used his office in an honest, practical, sensible, and creditable fashion to serve the best interests of the people as he sees them. He has made an excellent reputation, has won a position of great responsibility, has filled it with great dignity and fidelity, and has commanded the hearty respect of his opponents in the House as well as of the Administration which is opposed to him in politics. By the test of experience, achievement, practical capacity for public affairs, we think he must be ranked higher than either of the other candidates, while he is in no way below them in character. He is as little likely as either of them to be willingly subject to undue influence from his party organization, and, with all respect for Mr. Hedges and Mr. Straus he is less likely to be misled.—New York Times.

Disfiguring the Landscape.

An agricultural paper makes a strong protest against the too common practice in the rural districts of "disfiguring fences, barns and other buildings, trees, etc., with glaring signs, proclaiming the virtues of some patent medicine, or some tobacco, or heralding the bargains at some store in the near-by town."

There might have been included in the list the great sprawling billboards which are to be seen along railways and highways at frequent intervals. A large amount of picturesque scenery is marred in this way. Nothing is sacred to the enterprising advertiser who is interested in keeping his wares before the public eye.

It requires the consent of the property owners to disfigure buildings and beautiful landscapes in this way, but as some farmers and land owners find it to be a source of some small revenue they are more than willing to permit the advertiser to work his will in such matters. But the farmer gets very little money out of the transaction, and only succeeds in detracting from the appearance of his property. The farmer, of course, does not care so much for the scenery as does the urban resident. He sees it every day while the city visitor only views it at rare intervals. Nevertheless the farmer should know that posters and bulletin boards do not improve his premises and that it does not pay to make his surroundings unattractive because of the mere pittance which he may be able to extract from the enterprising advertiser.

There are many farmers who do not realize that there is a money value to them in keeping their farms and buildings in good order. A good beginning in that direction is by keeping the premises clear of things which are likely to be distasteful to passers-by.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"I am not sure that Woodrow Wilson would have the nerve to meet a similar situation as I met that great national crisis," says Col. Roosevelt, referring to his allowing the Steel Trust to gobble the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company. Well, anyway, he would not have the nerve to pose as an apostle of purity after having so met it.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

If there is ever to be "social and industrial justice" in this country, the place to begin is with the jobbery and and robbery of the Payne-Aldrich schedules. In this campaign Gov. Wilson is the only candidate who represents the issue of tariff reform to reduce the cost of living. Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt are the twin candidates of standpattism.—New York World.

Men nominated for office in all sections of the State for Congress and the Legislature must be possessed of morals, honesty, and courage. We repeat, morals, honesty, and courage.—New York Herald.

Progressivism did not come into being when Roosevelt lost his fight at Chicago. It was before him and it is very likely to be after him. He is more the Paris who has abducted La Follette's Helen than the Agamemnon leading Greeks to bring her back again.—Charlestown News and Courier.

Some Congressman are worrying because forty two members won't have desks at the next session. What's more, however, is that many of the present statesmen won't even have seats.—Philadelphia North American.

The Western Maryland.
If ever a people were given a raw deal by a public service corporation, those along the Harrisburg division of the Western Maryland, are getting it.
It is seldom that an east-bound train is on time, and freight trains—local freights—are only run semi-occasionally. The first train west-bound leaves Baltimore about seven o'clock in the morning and then there is no other until nearly three in the afternoon.
Scarcely a day passes that a train is not off the track somewhere along the line, and in short, the service is abominable.
The depot at Rosslyn which is being built at an expense of $5,000 for the benefit of the silk-stocking brigade that the company says is of finer clay than the people of Hampstead, is being rushed to completion, though the passenger traffic at that point only amounted to a little over $500 last year, while nothing is being done toward building the $1,900 depot at Hampstead, where the passenger traffic last year was over $4,000.
It begins to look as if the Public Service Commission would again have to be appealed to, to make the company build the station, now that the kind of station has been decided upon. At Hampstead there is no place for passengers to wait—and they certainly have to wait hours for many of the trains. There is no baggage room, no place to store express, and winter is nearly here. If the W. M. does not get busy soon, it may lose more money than the building of a depot.
The people of Hampstead and vicinity have stood about all the cussedness they can bear, and the railroad company will not profit by its dilatory methods, that bear the ear-marks of spite-work.—Hampstead Enterprise.

Lewis and Parcels Post.
The statement being circulated throughout this congressional district, by an anonymous writer, too cowardly to sign his, her or their names to such rot, claiming that Hon. David J. Lewis should not be given any credit in connection with the passage of the new Parcels Post law, should look up the record and learn why the name of Senator Bourne was attached to the present law and why he was given the credit of naming the bill instead of Congressman Lewis. The bill has been suggested before by every Republican congress and senate for the past twenty years but so soon as the matter got to the ears of the express monopoly and they filed their protest, the hope of such legislation in the interest of the people was dropped but when Davy Lewis got hold of the matter, he could not be scared off nor bought over and his bill with much lower rates than are proposed in the present law was in danger of becoming the law, when the Republican senate in the hope of getting credit for this legislation brought forward what was known as the Bourne bill and Mr. Lewis and his friends in the hope of accomplishing something on that line agreed to accept the Bourne bill as a step toward a real Parcels Post.
The Lewis bill would have put the rates much lower than those of the so-called Bourne bill and thereby broken up the express monopoly but with the rates in the Bourne bill, the express companies are not much hurt and with the zone system as proposed, there is little relief from the present extortionate rates of the express companies. The Bourne bill was not known in this piece of legislation until the fear came over the U. S. Senate that the Lewis bill might slip through. If Mr. Lewis was given no credit for the passage of this legislation, why was he appointed on the postal commission to arrange the rates and the operation of the new law in connection with the Postmaster General? The introduction of the zone system was simply done to save the robber express companies from being put out of business.—Garrett Journal.

Starting the New Year.
Today The News celebrates its birthday and enters upon another year of its life. The past year has been one of progress and achievement for Frederick, and this is reflected in the columns of The News. Improvements are likewise to be noted in The News itself, for the steady advancement and development of the paper, which began at the time the first issues appeared, have continued. While the paper has unquestionably contributed in the past to the progress of the community, the paper has in turn gained its support from the people who, by generous patronage, have made possible the growth of a paper which would do credit to a city many times the size of Frederick. The history of the News is inseparably connected with Frederick's life, the paper always having been devoted to the advancement of the interests of the city and county. On the anniversary of The News we can take pride in referring to the excellent record of the past, and this we will allow to stand as a pledge of what it will do in the future.—Tuesday's Frederick News.

paign leaders of all three parties.

PASTOR TWENTY YEARS
This day marks a ministry to this people of even twenty years. The span of service reaches from Oct. 13, 1892, to this Sunday morning.
St. Paul amid the excessive and surpassing labors of his marvelous life paused reverently and thoughtfully to make mention of particular times and periods and people. He thanks God for the faith of the people whom he had been enabled to gather into the Church in Ephesus, in Philippi, in Rome, in Corinth and wherever he had led them from darkness into light. He also thanked the people for their faith and faithfulness and service. He discerned and distinguished the best things and so must every appreciative pastor as he reflects upon the service and faith and good works of his people and flock.
The Apostle was not always faced by kindness; but he was grateful amid adversity and persecution and tribulation and poverty. He had learned in whatever state he was therewith to be content.
With added seasons and narrowing years our souls and sacred resolves need more and more the support and strength that comes from above. St. Paul ceased not to give thanks for his Ephesian friends, for their faith which works by love and is expressed in fruit.
His gratitude was a going out and a giving out of his soul in sincere appreciation and attachment, even unto a prayer that knew no ceasing.
He held them in memory and heart.
So must we. So are we impelled. So we do in obedience to the example and law illustrated by the Apostle, who was alert, appreciative, responsive, in the presence of unfolding and ripening Christian character and service.
To-day, like the flowers, let us look toward the light and toward the genial blue sky above and be grateful for all His goodness.
To recount divine mercies will reinforce the hidden springs that keep our human energy in right channels.
In the past 20 years, for which we are grateful to God and to you the members of my flock we have gone in and out amid the lights and shadows, the gladness and gloom, the joys and sorrows, the Crosses and losses, the gains and triumphs, which are among the elements and factors that are fashioning souls for an inheritance reserved in heaven.
The pastorate of the present is joined to that of my predecessors in this pulpit.
We think of them and their labors on this day. We are grateful for their faithful sowing and reaping.
One hundred and fifty-five years of ministerial service covers the history of our congregational life in this place and vicinity. Among the cloud of witnesses looking down to-day are included those consecrated servants whose voice in the bygone years persuasively presented the Message of the Master.
"Being dead they speak to us." Reverends Ruthrauff, Grobb, Hoffman, Keller, Finckle, Sentman, Welfley, Bishop, Gotwald, Johnston, DeYoe and Klinger, the three latter tarrying in their respective fields of service, and for whom we thank God, and pray that strength bodily and spiritually may be vouchsafed. The flock of the Good Shepherd is never long exempt from the inevitable summons "Thou mayest be no longer steward." That common and unbribed leveller has not spared the ranks. He dares to make demand in every season and in every year. Removals, too, have aided in depleting our number, but adding strength and proving pillars elsewhere is our hope and prayer.
We think of the years and of the service and joy that are linked with the days which formed them and sealed them in the volume of the past.
Now they are withdrawn and live only in affectionate memory; but yet seeking to enrich us with a history we should ponder and cherish and transmit the story of their faith and service as a sacred trust to the generation following.
Let no man deprive you of the memories associated with struggle and success, with faith and fellowship in Christ. Treasure them. These years with their predecessors have touched chords that will vibrate in eternity.
Unseen is that chord which will vibrate most musically. There are instruments too delicately constructed to bear the shock of human hand. So it seems is any attempt to measure or set forth the service and influence of a score of years that cluster about the sanctuary.
We stand too near as they rise in memory before us. Time must give the needed perspective. Christ spake of his own followers as the salt of the earth and the light of the world. Remember from these the high functions of discipleship.
Passing this milestone set up at the

The Boston Red Sox, pennant-winners of the American League, are the world's champions of 1912. Defeating the New York Nationals Wednesday by a score of 3 to 2 in 10 innings of a bitterly fought struggle, they captured their fourth victory of the world's series and carried off the premier honors in baseball.

The Giants won three games of the series that was played before more than a quarter of a million people and one contest was a tie. The total receipts for the eight games were $490,833, and each Red Sox player received $4,024, while the Giant players each came in for $2,566.

Eight games were required to settle the title, Boston winning four, New York three and one ending in a tie.

The American Leaguers have won the world's title five times against four for the National Leaguers.

Dame Fortune has frowned upon the New York club on two different occasions. The Giants missed winning the National League pennant in 1909, and the right to play for the world's championship, when Merkle failed to touch second base in a game against the Chicago Cubs. Snodgrass' muff of a fly ball yesterday in the tenth inning, with the Giants a run ahead, enabled Boston to win.

Above are shown pictures of Marquard, Herzog and Wood, the heroes of the series. Marquard won both games he pitched for New York, Herzog was the chief factor with the stick for the National Leaguers, while "Smokey Joe" Wood, won three games for Boston, the final game being credited to him, by the rules of baseball, although Hugh Benditt the youngster really pitched his team to victory.

The results of the whole series follows:

- October 8—Boston, 4; New York, 3.
- October 9—New York, 6; Boston, 6 (11 innings.)
- October 10—New York, 2; Boston, 1.
- October 11—Boston, 3; New York, 1.
- October 12—Boston, 2; New York, 1.
- October 14—New York, 5; Boston, 2.
- October 15—New York, 11; Boston, 4.
- October 16—Boston, 3; New York, 2 (10 innings.)

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY WILL HOLD "MARYLAND WEEK"

Promises to be the Largest and Best Exhibit Ever Shown in Baltimore. —Aim is Educational.

The annual meeting and show of the State Horticultural Society and affiliated agricultural associations, which will be held in the Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, Md., November 19 23, bid fair to be the largest and best ever held in the State. A special effort is being made to show commercial packs of fruit and vegetables. Many barrels and boxes of apples are already in cold storage, and a large quantity will be shipped direct to the Armory prior to opening of the show.

A large and attractive exhibit of grains from all parts of the State is promised.

A special feature of the show this year will be club exhibits. Several Farmers' Clubs and Grange Organizations in different parts of the State are planning to make club exhibits of agricultural products. Special prizes for such exhibits are announced: Best Club Exhibit, $50; second, $25; third, $15; fourth $10.

This is a great opportunity for publicity and advertisement of any county or local community in the State.

In booths that the club may erect, the attractive features of land transportation facilities, good roads, social environment and above all organization of the community can be illustrated, which will appeal to persons desiring to locate in the country.

The aim of the show and meetings is educational, but there is also opportunity for growers to advertise their products and sections of the State in which they live.

Let every farmer plan to have something in the exhibit and arrange to visit Baltimore during the week, to attend the meetings of the various organizations.

Announcement was made in New York that the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway Company has purchased the entire capital stock of the Beaumont and Great Northern Railway Company.
