Ships Lost in Chesapeake and Pacific Coast

FOURTEEN LOST IN CHESAPEAKE

Thirty-One Go Down Off Mouth of Columbia River and Another and Smaller Vessel Sinks Near Vancouver.—Investigation On.

Last Friday morning the Julia Luckenbach was rammed and sunk by the British steamer Indrakuala in the lower Chesapeake. Fourteen members of the crew including Capt. H. A. Gilbert and his invalid wife perished. At the time of the accident a fog made navigation dangerous and it is supposed that this was the direct cause of the collision but an investigation is now being made that the blame can be placed where it belongs. After the first impact of the two ships the Luckenbach sunk like a stone and only eight of the crew were saved. The other vessel was beached and refloated on Tuesday.

The oil tank steamship Rosecrans, Capt. L. F. Johnson, from Monterey, Cal., for Portland, Ore., ran aground early on Tuesday on Peacock Spit, while crossing into the Columbia River, during a 55-mile gale and was lost with 31 members of her crew of 35.

One survivor of the wreck was reported to have reached shore at Tioga, Wash., six miles from the scene of the disaster, and the Point Adams life-saving crew, which, with the life crew from Fort Canby, rescued three other men. The latter had taken refuge in the rigging of one of the masts when the ship went down.

The Rosecrans was hurled upon the rocks of Peacock Point at the same place where the steamship General Washington went aground a year ago. The Washington was pulled off after a two-day struggle. Owing to the thick weather the plight of the Rosecrans was not learned for several hours. When her perilous position became known the tugs Goliath and Oneonta and the Port Canby and Port Adams life-saving crews hurried to her aid.

When the tugs reached the neighborhood of the tanker she was found to be hard aground, and the high seas and driving winds made a near approach impossible. The wrecked vessel soon shifted and began to break up, and before the tugs and life-savers could get near enough to put a line aboard she slipped off the rocks and sank until only her masts and the funnel appeared above the water, with three men of the crew clinging to the rigging.

The little steamer Cheslake, owned by the Union Steamship Company, of Vancouver, was wrecked Tuesday off Van Anda, north of Vancouver. Wireless messages say that three passengers and a member of the crew perished. The other passengers and seamen were rescued by the steamer Camosun, of the same line, which reported the disaster.

Struck by a 60-mile gale the schooner Hester A. Walters, went down in the Chesapeake on Wednesday, and the crew including the Captain's wife were rescued after suffering intensely from the freezing water and exposure.

PARCELS POST WAKES UP EXPRESS COMPANIES.

Wells Fargo Company Will Directly Compete With Government Both In Rates and Service.

Direct Competition, National in scope between the Wells Fargo Express Company and the Federal parcel post will go into effect as soon as plans, which the company has been maturing for the last four years can be set afoot. This was announced by C. R. Graham, traffic manager of the company.

Competition, Mr. Graham explained, would extend to both rates and services, with special regard to eggs, butter, poultry, and other perishable foodstuffs, to be delivered direct from shipper to consignee. He said eleven pounds would be the maximum weight acceptable, as with the parcel post.

Has Outlived Its Usefulness.

John G. Wooley, former candidate for president on the Prohibition ticket, announces he has left the party, and says it is probable that there will be no Prohibition ticket at the next national election. He says the party has "outlived its usefulness."

Aerial Parcels Post Carrier.

Henry M. Jones a young aviator of Boston has been granted a commission as parcel post carrier. This is the first route served by aeroplane. The new route is number 604,003.

GREAT NUMBER OF BUSINESS FAILURES DURING YEAR 1912

More Casualties Than In Any Year Since 1883. Excepting 1908—This In Spite of Country's Prosperity.

Except for 1908, the year when the strain of 1907's panic was felt in full force in the business world, the twelve months just ended produced more casualties in general business than had been recorded since 1893, the height of the hard-times period of the Cleveland administration. According to the statistics compiled by Dun's Review, the commercial failures in the United States during 1912 totaled 15,452 in number, about 2,000 more than the aggregate for 1911, and involved liabilities of $208,117,391, compared with last year's liabilities of $191,061,665, in failures numbering 13,441. In 1908 there were 15,690 failures. Dun's says:

"During 1912 there were about 2,000 more failures than in the preceding year, and this, unless it can be explained, is in direct antagonism to the plain evidences of agricultural and industrial prosperity and mercantile activity during the year. The increase in the number of defaults, however, must be compared with the number of concerns, individual or corporate, engaged in business, and the number of such concerns expands every year and is now greater than ever before recorded. This comparison shows that the percentage of failures in 1912, while considerably larger than in the preceding three years is by no means unprecedented, having frequently been approached and exceeded in the past. Still, it is about the average of what may be termed good years."

Will Permit Women to Parade.

Major Richard Sylvester, Superintendent of the Washington Police has explained that his refusal to grant permission for a woman's suffrage demonstration on Pennsylvania Avenue during inauguration week was based on information that the affair was to take place at night, when his force would be unable to give adequate protection to the paraders. When he learned that the suffragists contemplated an afternoon demonstration on March 3, the day before the Wilson and Marshall inaugural ceremonies, he indicated that he would grant the permit.

The suffragists are indignant over the suggestion that if their pageant, as they call it, were given at night those participating in it might be attacked. Mrs. Helen H. Gardener, the publicity agent of the non-militant suffragists, said:

"Even the worst hoodlum would gaze with awe on the pageant we purpose giving. I have too much regard for American manhood to think for a moment that the suffragists would receive ill-treatment on such a march."

Mr. Straus and Local Option.

Hon. Isaac Lobe Straus, candidate for the long term in the United States Senate, has injected the temperance issue into Democratic politics by his reply to the Anti-Saloon League's questions.

Mr. Straus does not come out for prohibition or against the saloon. In fact he expressly says that sentiment is not ripe for prohibition. But he declares unequivocally for the simple, fundamental right of the people to govern and protect themselves on the liquor question the same as anything else. He warns the liquor men, however, by saying that if the right to vote locally is denied the people they will force prohibition forward as an imminent issue.

To the five questions that were also asked of Hons. John Walter Smith, J. Fred C. Talbot and Blair Lee, the present recognized candidates, Mr. Straus is the only one who has replied to date.

Colonel Couldn't Aid Editors.

Col. Roosevelt's appeal to four Senators to look into the imprisonment of the three newspaper men in Boise, Idaho, for contempt of the Supreme Court of that State, will not bear fruit. The Colonel wrote to Senators Dixon of Montana, Poindexter of Washington, Bristow of Kansas, and Borah of Idaho, asking them to investigate a conviction which he considered an outrage.

The Senators who have received the Colonel's letter are convinced that nothing can be done, even if the Justices of the Supreme Court of Idaho had been guilty of great wrong. The court is a State tribunal and subject exclusively to State control.

Fruit Growers Lose Millions.

On account of the cold wave that swept over Southern California this week it is estimated the fruit growers in that section stand to lose $25,000,000.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has ordered the daily output of parcels post stamps doubled.

Friday.

James R. Keene, financier and turfman, died in New York, after an operation.

The first severe storm of the new year and the most destructive one of the season swept along the Atlantic Coast, causing great property loss.

"Jeff Davis," U. S. Senator from Arkansas, one of the most picturesque statesmen ever at the National Capitol, dropped dead of apoplexy at Little Rock.

Roswell Miller, chairman of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company, died suddenly in New York city.

Two dozen arrests were made in Manhattan and Brooklyn as the result of attacks upon clothing factories in connection with the garment-workers' strike.

Representative William W. Wedemeyer, of Michigan, committed suicide by jumping off the steamship Panama, on which he sailed in charge of two nurses. His mind has been deranged for several days.

President Taft, after conference with Republican Senators decided not to appoint George W. Goethals; chief engineer of the Panama Canal, to be Governor of the Canal Zone, because of the opposition of Democratic Senators.

Senator Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, tendered his resignation to the Secretary of the Senate.

Saturday.

Captain Hjalmar Johannsen, a famous Arctic explorer, who was a member of Amundsen's South Pole expedition, committed suicide in Christiania.

Rev. Dr. Peter Joseph Huh was nominated by the Pope to be bishop of Nueva Segovia, in the Philippines.

Returns from the storm-swept Atlantic coast showed that much damage had been done by the wind of the day and night before, which rose almost to the proportions of a hurricane. Wires were down from Florida to Long Island. When communication had been restored, the shipping interests heard of the sinking of the steamship Julia Luckenbach in Chesapeake bay by collision with a British tramp. Sixteen persons including the captain and his wife were drowned. Eight of the crew were taken from the rigging two hours later in the midst of the gale.

By direction of Postmaster General Hitchcock the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to-day increased its daily output of parcels post stamps from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000. From practically every section of the country requisitions by mail and by telegraph are being made for the stamps.

At the "rehabilitation" banquet of the Republican party at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, President Taft declared that his party was successful in its defeat because it had prevented the success of the Progressive party, with its creed of "class hatred, unbalanced fanaticism" and its "chimerical promise of an ideal impossible to realize." Earlier in the day, referring to the dispute between the United States and Great Britain to the Panama Canal toll regulations, Mr. Taft said he favored submitting the question to the seague tribunal for arbitration.

Sunday.

The climax to the disturbances which have marked the first week of the garment workers' strike in New York city was attained yesterday afternoon when 10,000 men and women, members and friends of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, broke doors and windows of the Hippodrome in a fight for seats at a meeting called to consider the proposal to strike.

Gov. Tener of Pennsylvania dismissed Captain John C. Delaney, Chief of the Factory Inspectors, presumably because he made public the fact that John H. Sanderson, the Pennsylvania Capitol contractor, who recently died in New York, has confessed to him men "higher up." Charges of incompetency and failure to enforce the factory laws, made by labor representatives and social workers, have been pending, and these and the recent confession story led the Governor to take summary action.

Dr. Francisco Vasquez Gomez, ex-Minister of Education, was arrested in Mexico City on a court order, and is now held incommunicado at police headquarters. He will be examined on a charge of rebellion. His home was searched and old documents belonging to his brother; Gen. Emilio Vasquez Gomez, were found, but it is said that none incriminated Dr. Gomez.

Dr. Lewis Swift, America's great astronomer, is dead at his home in Marathon, N. Y.

George Ade, while walking on a slippery sidewalk in Lafayette, Ind., fell and was rendered unconscious. He was severely bruised and lamed by his fall, and it is feared may have sustained internal injuries.

The police of Mt. Holly, N. J., were forced to draw their revolvers to keep back a threatening crowd last night while Charles Felter, a negro, was led to the jail, charged with having stabbed Fred Middleton, owner of a farm near this place. Middleton was found in an alley bleeding from a deep gash in the neck and other wounds. It was learned that Middleton had struck a negro who jostled him when he left the place.

Monday.

Gov. George W. Donaghey appointed J. N. Heiskell, of Little Rock to succeed Senator Jeff Davis, of Arkansas, who died last week.

Enos H. Nebeker, treasurer of the United States under President Harrison is dead at his home in Covington, Ind., from a complication of diseases. He was 76 years old and for years a Republican leader in Indiana.

The battle in the courts against the Washington Utilities Company, commonly called the $30,000,000 merger, began today.

Savannah was awarded the next running of the Vanderbilt and Grand Prix automobile races, which will be held between November 1, 1913 and February 23, 1914.

Hollywood Court, one of the largest and oldest hotels at Lakewood, N. J., was destroyed by fire early this morning. Guests were forced to flee in their nightclothes, but no one was hurt. Many of them lost their clothing and personal property. The loss was estimated at $30,000. Hollywood Court was a frame building and for several years had been known as the Arcadia.

The Supreme Court of the United States laid down the far-reaching principle that "corners" of interstate commodities, such as articles of clothing and food, are in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and held that, as far as the Sherman law was concerned, the indictment in the New York Federal Court of James Patten, Eugene G. Scales, Frank H. Hayne and William P. Brown for "conspiring to run an alleged corner" was valid. The case against them was sent back for trial or other proceedings.

The same court rejected the plan proposed by Union Pacific Railroad attorneys for "dissolving" the Union Pacific Southern Pacific Railroad merger by allowing the Union Pacific stockholders to have the exclusive privilege of buying the Southern Pacific stock now owned by the Union Pacific Railroad corporation.

Tuesday.

Paul Nash, United States consul general at Budapest, died suddenly at a hotel in London.

Rioting arising out of a local physician's treatment of his patients resulted in five townspeople being killed and 40 others wounded by the troops at the town of Roccaforte, Italy.

The oil tank steamship Rosecrans, Capt. L. F. Johnson, from Monterey, Cal., for Portland, Ore., ran aground on Peacock Spit, while crossing into the Columbia River, during a 55-mile gale and was lost with 31 members of her crew of 35.

Thirty degrees below zero at Miles City, Montana, formed the climax of the cold throughout the West, extending southeastward to the Gulf States.

Pope Pius X sent a message to the ambassadorial convention of the Great Powers in London requesting them to exert their influence in the Turkish-Balkan peace negotiations in behalf of Palestine.

Wednesday.

DEATH REMOVES TWO GREAT DEVOTEES OF THE TURF

James R. Keene, Sportsman and Financier and Major Daingerfield, Were Associated in Business.

Quickly following the report of the death of James R. Keene came the news of the demise of Major Foxhall Alexander Daingerfield at Lexington, Kentucky. The two men had collaborated in breeding and raising some of the most famous thoroughbreds the world has ever known.

Their deaths removed from the turf two of the best known horsemen of the country.

Keene, one of the most daring speculators and most noted turfmen of his time, was born in London in 1838. He was an infant when his parents migrated to this country. In 1852 his family moved to California, where young Keene made his start in life. He became one of the most daring speculators the country has ever known, and no less than a dozen times was he penniless one day and a millionaire the next.

Major Daingerfield was born in 1839 at Westwood Farm, Rockingham County, Virginia. He left school to enlist in the Confederate army at the breaking out of the Civil War and served under General Robert E. Lee. He was wounded through the right thigh four days before the surrender of Gen. Lee. He married and settled in Virginia, practicing law and breeding horses. Shortly thereafter James R. Keene took a lease on Castleton Farm, and in October 1893 Major Daingerfield moved to that historic place near Lexington, Ky., and there began the work and study that made him a master mater of thoroughbred horses in America and produced that galaxy of great racers that brought money and fame to Mr. Keene.

Taft is Praised in England.

President Taft's declaration in favor of submitting the Panama Canal tolls issue to arbitration was warmly received in Great Britain.

The Daily Chronicle says: "The President has taken a right and honorable course, and any other policy is almost unthinkable on the part of a statesman who two years ago devoted all his efforts to further the cause of international peace throughout the world."

The Daily News, referring to Mr. Taft's remark that "this is just the time when I favor arbitration," and that "it is the time when we are afraid it may not win that tests our faith in it," says:

"That is a fine saying, worthy of the man who initiated the attempt to arrange a permanent arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the United States. It places the arbitration idea in its true aspect before the world."

A National Health Bureau.

The incoming Federal Administration is considering the creation of a National Board of Health. Leading men in the medical profession have been at work on this subject for at least ten years. The present forces at the disposal of the Federal Government to do the work which should be done by a National Board of Health are the United States Public Health Bureau, under a Surgeon General, and the Bureau of Chemistry, which is one of the branches of the Department of Agriculture. The Public Health Bureau is doing a great deal of good in maintaining an active quarantine in those States which have given up supervision of the quarantine service, and weekly bulletins are being issued concerning various diseases.

Honoring Joan of Arc's Birthday.

Monday was the 501st anniversary of the birth of Joan of Arc. New York has collected 1000 articles—statues, paintings, medals, photographs, coins, etchings, posters, manuscripts, play bills, postage stamps, books, programs and other material dealing with Joan and her times. On Monday this exhibition was officially opened and will be viewed by the public at stated hours until February 7. The object of the committee in charge is to elicit public interest in a statue-building project. Already $18,000 has been raised for this purpose.

Centenary of Trousers.

It is a hundred years since trousers were adopted to drape the nether limbs of man in ordinary walks of life. President Monroe was the last of our chief executives to expose his calves to the vulgar gaze. Sailors and other wildish men took to trousers much earlier but it was not until 1813 that they became the adornment of ordinary people.

Nearly $19,000,000 was spent in the anti-tuberculosis campaign in the United States during the year 1912.

LEWIS COMES OUT FOR LEE

TO SUCCEED RAYNER

Type of Man Wanted in the United States Senate

WOULD FIT THE NEW CONDITIONS

And Measures Up to Standard Set by President-Elect Wilson Who Wants The Support of His Party in Administration.

Congressman David J. Lewis in no uncertain way advertised the fact that he is for Blair Lee to take the seat in the United States Senate made vacant by the death of Isidor Rayner. Taking the utterance of President-elect Wilson as an indication of the kind of a man needed in the Senate, Mr. Lewis declares State Senator Lee fits in with these requirements in every particular.

Addressing the people of New Jersey in support of Hughes for the Senate Mr. Wilson said:

"Do not elect me captain unless you are going to give me a team."

"I am not a candidate for a pedestal. I am not a candidate to be set up in lonely dignity to suffer the intolerable disappointment of being left alone unable to do the great things which the American people will expect of me if they honor me with their suffrages. If you cannot back me up do not put me up all by myself and then desert me. If you believe in me make it possible for me to do something."

"If, then," says Congressman Lewis "the progressive Democracy of Maryland wishes to keep in touch with the movement in the nation led by Mr. Wilson, and at the same time advance and sustain the movement at home, it is up to it to keep open an unobstructed avenue of approach to the national administration, through which the President may extend his 'aid and counsel.' The people of Maryland need no explanation of the force and meaning of 'Senatorial courtesy.' In these circumstances some one should be selected to lead the fight in Maryland who in his public services typifies the cause itself."

"At the coming Democratic Senatorial primary a successor to the late Senator Rayner is to be selected by the Democrats of Maryland.

"In common with other Democrats I am, of course, very much interested, and think the choice should be apt and fitting to the national situation of the party. This situation is largely a new one and can be best described only in the words of our official leader, the President-elect. He said:

"We have come upon a new constructive age, an age of reconstruction, which calls for high gifts and men of indomitable purpose.

"We have begun to get a complete vision of our problems and of the policies that must solve them.

"Many of the old formulas of our business and of our policies have been outgrown.

"Responsible business and genuine representation of the people in government is our program.

"There are Tories in both parties, but there are also liberals in still greater numbers, and the two kinds are now

FOR FORESTRY SURVEY AND MARYLAND RESERVE

Montgomery, Frederick, Prince George's Howard and Anne Arundel Tracts Embraced in Project.

The Appalachian Forest Reserve Commission has decided to ask Congress for authority to spend $25,000 a year for a survey of an area in this State. This survey is to serve as a basis for action by Congress looking to the creation in Maryland of a great forest reserve, experimental station and National Park.

As now conceived the Maryland forest reserve would embrace a large part of Montgomery, Frederick, Prince George's Howard and Anne Arundel counties.

England Has Good Book Year.

No less than 12,886 publications were issued in England during the year 1912. Ten thousand four hundred and seventy-seven of these were new books, the subsequent balance being second editions or reprints. Novels take the first place, their total being 2,290. Theology, strange to say, comes second, with 934, while children's books numbered 821, and biography and literary history 606. Altogether 1912 was a full book year. Publishers generally have been very well satisfied, particularly with the winter season.

Because of the advance of materials manufacturers of vehicles probably will raise the price 10 per cent. in the near future.

BRONZE TABLET TO HONOR KEY Will Be Unveiled In Baltimore Tomorrow... Incident Recalls Razing Of The Old Key Home A Short Time Ago.

Tomorrow impressive ceremonies will be held at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore, at 10 o'clock, and a public invitation without tickets is given to all citizens, to all patriotic orders of men and women, all students in high schools and colleges.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY.

The ceremonies will take place at 4 o'clock, and a public invitation without tickets is given to all citizens, to all patriotic orders of men and women, all students in high schools and colleges.

Following is the arrangement of the tablet:

FESTOON OF FLAGS.

'Tis the Star-Spangled Banner, Oh! Long may it wave O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.—Key.

MEDALLION OF KEY

IN MEMORIAM FRANCIS SCOTT KEY Author The Star-Spangled Banner. He departed this life on the site of this building, January 11th, 1843.

At the gateway of our city, in an eventful hour, Key set to music the valorous deeds of our fathers performed in the defense of Home, Country and Freedom.

And this be our motto, "In God Is Our Trust."—Key.

The unveiling of the tablet at this time calls to mind that only last month the old Key mansion at Washington was torn down, notwithstanding the efforts of a local society to raise funds to save it.

Concerning this the Montgomery Press, Kensington, had this to say:

"The old home in Georgetown of Francis Scott Key, the Maryland patriot who wrote 'The Star Spangled Banner,' is being torn down. The house was built 125 years ago and was the home of the Keys for 20 years. An association was formed several years ago with the object of raising $15,000 with which to buy the old mansion and maintain it as a memorial to the author of the famous national hymn, but the movement did not meet with success.

"Francis Scott Key was born near Emmitsburg, Frederick county, in 1779, and died in 1843. He was United States district attorney for the District of Columbia, and an intimate friend of President Jackson. Key was the father of eleven children. One of his sons, Philip Barton Key, was killed on Lafayette Square, Washington, by Gen. Daniel Sickles, and another, Daniel S. Key, was slain in a duel near Bladensburg.

"Francis Scott Key, while studying law at Annapolis, became the intimate friend of Roger Brooke Taney, afterward chief justice of the United States, and who married Key's only sister. He was a member of the Episcopal church and for many years taught a Sunday School class at Rock Creek church. He is said to have been a man of fine appearance, and an eloquent speaker. His kindness of heart was shown by the fact that he manumitted all his slaves. The story of his composition of 'The Star Spangled Banner,' while detained on a British vessel during the attack on Baltimore, is familiar to us all.

"Some years ago a handsome monument was erected to the memory of Francis Scott Key in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Frederick, where he is buried, and a monument has also been erected to him in San Francisco. The old Key mansion in Georgetown, familiar to most of our readers, was a constant reminder of the illustrious Marylander. The historic landmarks in this country are not so numerous that any of them can be spared, and we especially regret that the Key house has been added to the list of those demolished to make way for a 'modern structure.' Neither ancient dwelling nor stately shaft are needed, however, to perpetuate the name of Francis Scott Key. His 'Star Spangled Banner' is written upon the hearts of his countrymen and will live in story so long as

'Freemen shall stand Between their loved land and war's desolation.'

With the object of celebrating in a fitting manner the birth of the Star-Spangled Banner a movement is to be launched in Baltimore, the birthplace of the national air, in the near future by a number of prominent local men, among whom is Col. W. A. Boykin. According to Colonel Boykin, the celebration is to take place some time during 1914, and it is planned to make it a great event not only in Maryland, but nationally as well. A committee is to be formed shortly, and this committee will endeavor to interest the entire country in the movement.

According to tentative plans, the festivities will probably continue for a week, and it is possible that a banquet to which some of the most significant men in the country would be invited, will bring the meeting to a close.

"This should be the most brilliant celebration which has ever been held in Baltimore city. It should equal, if not eclipse the great Sesqui-Centennial Celebration in 1880. It should be made a national, yes, an international event," declared Colonel Boykin, in telling of the early plans for the big affair.

TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH EMPLOYEES' PENSION

Two Hundred Thousand Men and Women to Benefit by New Plan to Go in Effect With New Year.

To the employees of the Western Union Telegraph Company, Western Electric Company and the Bell Telephone System:

The new plan of benefits for disability due to accidents or sickness, of insurance and of pensions, goes into effect with the new year.

Nearly 200,000 men and women who are now giving their best years to the telephone and telegraph service of the country, will henceforth be assured of assistance in the exigencies of life, for which all are not able to provide, and will also be assured of a provision for their declining years.

It is but natural that every employee should desire to assume the normal responsibilities of life and to surround himself and those dependent upon him with the things that make life complete and enjoyable. Unforeseen happenings may make these responsibilities heavy burdens, and whatever may be put aside for the day of misfortune, must in the beginning be small and accumulated slowly. A realization that obligations must be met in times of misfortune, as well as in times of prosperity has made the need of something besides merely an old age pension appear absolutely vital.

Employers buy and employees sell service. Perfect service is only to be found when fidelity and loyalty are reciprocal in employer and employee. It is this relationship that brings satisfaction and success to both.

The intent and purpose of the employer in establishing a plan of benefits is to give tangible expression to the reciprocity which means faithful and loyal service on the part of the employee, with protection from all the ordinary misfortunes to which he is liable; reciprocity which means mutual regard for one another's interest and welfare.

This is justice, and without justice and sympathetic interest we cannot hope to do a thoroughly good piece of work.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which centralizes the Associated Companies into one system, with one policy for universal service, has considered the interest of all workers and has made a comprehensive plan possible. It is the administrative clearing house and the underwriter of the necessary reserve fund, upon which a general plan must depend.

One illustrative instance of the exercises of these functions has been the unifying of the various interests so that any employee may aspire to work anywhere in the country with uninterrupted benefits, and any company can obtain any man it needs without prejudice to his welfare.

In behalf of the management of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Western Union Telegraph and the Western Electric Companies, let me say that we have a personal interest in our public service, a personal interest in our employees, and a personal interest in our common country. It is our hope that what we have already accomplished has helped the man and women of the Bell system to become happier and better American citizens, and it is our New Year's wish that what has been planned for the future will contribute to their constantly increasing happiness and betterment.

THEO. N. VAIL.

MARYLAND NOW HAS AN AUDITOR—J. ENOS RAY

Elected to Position by the Board of Public Works.—Vote Two to One, Goldsborough Favored Black.

J. Enos Ray, of Prince George's county, a former Speaker of the House of Delegates, was elected State Auditor Wednesday by the Board of Public Works through the votes of Comptroller Harrington and Treasurer Vandiver. Governor Goldsborough, the third member of the board, voted for Wilmer Black, an expert accountant.

Because of a deadlock between General Vandiver and Mr. Harrington, a Deputy Auditor was not chosen, but it was agreed by the two Democratic members of the board to fill this office at a meeting of the board at Annapolis Monday.

While agreeing to Mr. Ray for Auditor, Mr. Harrington made it plain that he will insist upon the election of an expert accountant for the second place. He has informed General Vandiver that he has no personal candidate for the office and is inclined to Mr. Reik because he knows his qualifications and ability.

Unless General Vandiver nominates an accountant for the deputyship Monday, the indications are that Mr. Harrington will nominate Mr. Reik or some other expert and then allow the board to fight it out. Governor Goldsborough is also in favor of an expert.

SPECIAL TRESPASS NOICES.

To meet a demand on the part of property owners for a form of trespass notice that does not refer particularly to gunners, THE CHRONICLE has prepared neat muslin signs reading as follows:

DO NOT TRESPASS UNAUTHORIZED PERSONS KEEP OFF THESE PREMISES.

Paint—Drouth

The longer the drouth the more rain is required to water the earth.

The longer a building goes without painting the dryer it gets and more paint is required to keep water out.

STATE MISCELLANY

Bits of News About People and Events Throughout The State.

Former Judge Henry Page, of the Court of Appeals, died at his home in Princess Anne. Judge Page maintained the standard of his family famous in the social, legal and political history of this State. He was born at Crisfield but by act of the Legislature his name was changed to that of his mother, who was Miss Ethelinde Page.

While strolling along a fishing shore near Locust Grove, accompanied by several friends, John B. Watson, of Baltimore was startled to see a big gasoline launch afire near the steel bridge at Bear Creek.

The plans for the building of the Episcopal Cathedral in Baltimore which will form one of the greatest group of buildings of its kind in the world has been started.

The Right Rev. William Boyd Carpenter, formerly Bishop of Ripon, canon of Westminster Abbey, and one of England's foremost orators and church workers, although he is over 70 years of age, went through a strenuous six hours Sunday, for, after arriving at 6-30 o'clock and being whisked out to the episcopal residence, where he is being entertained by Bishop Murray, he not only delighted a large audience in the Lyric, but met many prominent members of the Episcopal Church in Maryland afterward.

Marooned on Kent Island, where wind and wave swept her during the hurricane Friday, the little steamer Lauretta Curran, which piles between Baltimore and Centreville, is high and dry 100 yards from the shoreline—much too far to float free at high tide.

The Poolesville Telephone Company, at Boyds at its annual meeting re-elected old directors, with the exception of one. Walter Pyles displaces R. J. Darby, who fought for continuous night and day service, which was also defeated.

Louis, 5-year-old son of Aaron Cline, was drowned Tuesday afternoon in an unfinished well at his father's home, Pleasant Valley, east of Smithsburg.

The Detective Union, composed of the associations of Cecil, Lancaster and Charles counties, met Monday and elected the following officers: President, Forest Preston; vice-president, William Pitt; and secretary-treasurer, Eugene M. Haines. The next annual meeting will be held in Quarryville.

Stockholders of the Annapolis Savings Institution at their annual meeting elected Henry B. Myers director to succeed the late Samuel Brooke. Other directors chosen were: Messrs. Frank H. Stockett, George W. Wilcox, William H. Rullman, James M. Munroe, Bernard Wiegand, Louis H. Rehn, William N. Woodward, W. Meade Holladay Eugene Worthington, Frank A. Munroe and Joseph O. Fowler. It is expected that Frank H. Stockett will be re-elected president of the institution.

The Commissioners of Howard county appointed the following dog tax collectors: First district, Frank J. Otten; Second, Julius Wosch, Jr.; Third, Marcellus Wright; Fourth, Belden D. Patrick; Fifth, George W. Howard; Sixth, James L. Hobbs. During the year 1912 over $2,500 was collected from dog owners in Howard county and about $500 was paid out in claims for damages caused by dogs in killing hogs, sheep, chickens, turkeys, etc.

Vernon Zink has filed a suit in the United States Court in Cumberland for $10,000 damages against John T. Winbrim, of Philadelphia, architect of the building being erected here by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, for injuries sustained in being knocked from the second story of the building. In the Circuit Court here a suit for the same amount was filed by Zink against the telephone company and the contractors. He was drilling a staging 18 feet from the ground when he was knocked off.

Rev. Dr. Frank J. Gunsaulus, president of the Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago, has accepted an invitation to give the commencement address at the Tome School for Boys on June 13, 1913, at Port Deposit.

The Street Commissioners of Hagerstown have passed an order that after February 1 the consumption of current bought of the municipal light plant shall be regulated by meters, abolishing flat rates.

The storehouse of Frank Sterling, located at Tawsonia, a suburb of Crisfield field, was destroyed by fire Wednesday morning. The loss is about $2,000, partly covered by insurance.

Postmaster H. K. Startzman has reported to Postmaster-General Hitchcock on the first week's operations of the parcels post system in Hagerstown in five days 1,046 parcels were sent by mail from this office, the postage amounting to $77.36. Thirty-five of the packages, insured. Seven hundred packages, of which 14 were insured, were received at this office and delivered.

Among the roads of Montgomery county to be improved within the near future is that from Woodmont to Glen Echo, through the subdivision of Edgewood, a distance of about three miles, and the River road from Cohasset to the District of Columbia line, also about three miles in length. The three roads intersect at Cohasset. It is estimated that to improve the six miles will cost about $50,000.

to Congress recommending the repeal of the Fur Seal Act.

The Parry Block, one of the largest business blocks in Ogden, Utah, was destroyed by fire at a loss of $100,000. Four firemen were injured. Two firemen were removed to a hospital with their feet frozen.

The main warehouse of the Oakford & Fahnestock Wholesale Grocery Company at Peoria, Illinois, together with its contents, was destroyed by fire with a loss of $200,000, fully covered by insurance.

J. W. Litzey, a farmer, Mrs. Litzey and their three children, one of them an infant, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home near Chanute, Kan.

Richard Watson Seager, musical composer, is dead at Los Angeles, Cal. He was 82 years old. Among his compositions, the cantata Queen Esther probably was the most popular.

Henry F. Hollis, of Concord, was nominated for United States Senator at a caucus of Democratic members of the New Hampshire legislature.

The South Dakota legislature in joint session unanimously adopted a resolution endorsing retiring Gov. John Burke for a position in President Wilson's Cabinet.

Thursday.

The gold output of the United States in 1912 was the smallest since 1907. According to the Geological Survey, but $91,890,168 was mined, a drop of more than $5,000,000 over 1911. There were no notable discoveries of gold during the year.

An emergency appropriation of $50,000 to combat an epidemic of scarlet fever and diphtheria that threatens Chicago has been asked from the City Council.

The skins of the stomachs of eight puppies have been grafted on the legs of Ralph Keris, a 7-year-old boy of St. Louis, Mo., who was burned December 6, when his clothing caught fire. The greater part of the burned area is now covered, but five more dogs will be sacrificed to provide skin for the child.

A street car pickpocket took $120 from a police inspector in uniform, in Paris, stealing the officer's wallet containing his men's weekly wages from the inspector's coat-tail pocket.

Caught in the slide of a coal chute, Jacob Grover, of Franklin Furnace, N. J., fought five hours and wore his fingers to the bone. He had his head out of the pile when reached.

Junior Hall to Be a Theatre.

A handsome front for the Junior Fire Company Hall, Frederick, which was purchased by W. O. Kolb, and the making of the whole building into one large hall, for a moving picture hall, is planned by the new owner. Architect B. Edward Kepner has been engaged to prepare plans for the remodeled building.

WOULD PUNISH COATESVILLE BY REVOKING CHARTER

Gov. Tener Suggests Drastic Action as Penalty For Burning Negro and Shielding Guilty Ones.

In his annual message Governor Tener, of Pennsylvania, urges the Legislature of that State to revoke the charter of the borough of Coatesville, because its citizens burned Zach Walter, a Negro, at the stake, and prevented the punishment of the lynchers. The Governor closed this part of his message as follows:

"People of this borough, by fomenting murder and consorting with murderers, have not only violated the laws and obstructed the administration of justice, but in my judgment have forfeited the high privilege of further acting as a governmental agency of the state. I therefore recommend the enactment of appropriate legislation providing for the dissolution of boroughs, to the end that state agencies like the borough of Coatesville, which set the laws at defiance and outrage the peace and dignity of the commonwealth, may be obliterated from among her orderly municipalities."

City Boys Take to Farming.

More city than country boys are now studying farming, according to statistics compiled by Prof. E. G. Montgomery of the farm Crops Department of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University.

Prof. Montgomery says that while ten years ago, 90 per cent. of his students came from farms, of the 150 in his classes this year 50 per cent. are city boys with out farm experience, 10 per cent. are also from cities but have had some farm experience, and 40 per cent. are from the country.

Prof. Montgomery added that some of the city boys made better agricultural students than those from the country who had been brought up on poorly managed farms.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Fredrick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoclin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

HOW TO GET A TOWN HALL.

For years the question of a town hall has been agitated—that is the question has come up sporadically—but up to this time no definite plan has been hit upon whereby this much-needed improvement could be built.

By the will of a public-minded citizen of Middletown, who died in Arizona, that town is the richer by $1,000. This man was not possessed of a large fortune in money but he was a millionaire in sentiment, and we believe that where he is now such wealth is counted as an asset. It has not been Emmitsburg's bad fortune to lose such a citizen, at least in recent years, but we believe she has sons and daughters with the same sentiment to whom this will be a suggestion. Much could be done for the betterment of our town with a thousand dollars, with fifty dollars, or even with five for that matter. The spirit of such giving is catching and as yet the State has no quarantine law against such contagion.

Emmitsburgians to the number of fifty die yearly. This is about the average. If each one of these possible victims of time and the vicissitudes of life were to think of their home town to the extent of ten dollars, in five years we could have a town hall as a lasting and impressive memorial to their sentiment and unselfish interest in the town and its welfare.

A SENSIBLE POLICY.

Governor Sulzer's appointment of a commission to "ascertain where expenditures can be checked and the money of the taxpayers saved, and also to recommend to the legislature the desirability of abolishing useless offices, etc.," will meet with favor in New York, except among the grafting petty politicians, of course. The object of this action is, as the Governor says, "the consolidating wherever possible of bureaus and commissions, with the sole object of more rigid economy and a greater degree of efficiency."

Many other States—not excepting Maryland—would no doubt profit through a similar programme. A cheese-paring policy—a so-called economy that shrinks into positive parsimony—will accomplish nothing; in fact it will hamper and retard proper progress in the administration of any state, corporation or private business; but a sane economical policy that is based on the result of careful investigation by competent men is the only policy for a commonwealth dealing with the distribution of public funds.

THE PULL BEHIND THE PILE.

Some men can juggle billiard balls and some can juggle fire, and some can juggle T-r-u-t-h and make the letters in it L-i-a-r. And some can juggle hist'ry turning vict'ry upside down, and some can juggle others' deeds and swell their own renown. But Morgan and his pals can juggle finance from its sockets, and juggle banks in such a way that they can fill their pockets. And all the "probes" in Christendom can't stop their little game, for they've got a corner on "long green" and get there just the same. "Securities" to them are just like checkers on the board—they jump all opposition and keep adding to their hoard. Mr. Pujol'll get his laurels, Untermyer'll get the hand, and Congress will investigate and rave to beat the band. And Morgan and Bill Rockefeller'll come and stand the gaff, and when the show's all over up their sleeves they'll have a laugh. For they've got a system with them, banks and syndicates and all, it's survival of the strongest—big fish eating up the small.

Quite a difference between the "swan song" of Mr. Bailey in the Senate and the forecast speech of President Taft in New York. The one was a too-long-deferred farewell of a disappointing Solon now drumming up patrons for a law practice; the other an unimpassioned and impassioned reiteration of the belief and the forecast of one who during his administration did his best, and acted from conviction. The first has probably been already forgotten by his one-time followers; the other will most likely be remembered by his party for many a day to come.

Also the Hon. David J. Lewis has come out for Lee for Senator for the short term. Mr. Lewis gives his reasons, which are thoroughly convincing—reasons which ought to and no doubt will appeal to the majority of the thinking people in every county in the State.

It is to be hoped that Senator Lee will hold aloof from any alliance that will militate against his cause. Some combinations that have been suggested would certainly weaken his claims. Lee alone would be stronger, far stronger.

UNDERTAKERS have increased their charges for funerals, thus depriving the poor man of his one chance of defeating the high cost of living.—Baltimore Star.

This does not apply to the Baltimore zone, however. According to the advertisements of undertakers in the Monumental city a man can get a regular emperor of China layout, with fireworks, smilax and creme de menthe trimmings for about seventy-five bucks. It pays to die in Baltimore.

HAVE you ever stopped to reason that the ethics of these days may be rendered quite elastic—made to stretch in many ways? Sheer success is what is counted and no matter what folks say, if your scheme be straight or crooked and with it you get away, you're applauded by the hurrah folks,—but don't forget this quite: It is all right while you're flying, but it's awful when you light.

MRS. SENATOR ROBINSON, of Colorado, is the first woman to wear the Senatorial toga. But it was just an ordinary "dull primrose gown" such as women transport in the piece of luggage known as a "Saratoga."

THE HANDY MAN.

Where the tables tip to starboard
And the book-racks lean to port,
Where crude, home-made things are harbored,
Does the handy man disport;
With his hammer, saw and brace
Making things his home to grace.
He will make a tabouret
Or a kitchen cabinet
With the lumber in an empty packing-case.

Padded seats for hall or bedroom
He'll construct with all dispatch.
He will paint a green or red room
And will paper it to match.
Oh, the wobbly chairs he makes,
And the tables with the shakes,
And the mission desks of pine
Stained and varnished till they shine,
And with putty trying hard to hide mistakes!

Though his hands are bruised and battered
And his thumbs are wrapped in rags,
Still he works 'mid sawdust scattered,
And his ardor never flags;
And his plea for each offense
Is the saving of expense.
So he pounds and saws away—
He will labor half a day
Making something he could buy for fifteen cents.

Editorials From Maryland Exchanges.

We Are Off.

We are off on another annual lap in the race track of time, and we scurry away in the fashion customary to our various conditions and temperaments; but we all move on perforce, the weary; the thoughtless, the reckless, the cynical, the indifferent, the optimistic alike. All adult runners carry certain burdens and handicaps inherited from last year, and the year before, and the year before that, and we regularly determine, as we begin a new lap, to throw them off, as Pilgrim did his burden at the beginning of a new stage in his life. We never do this entirely, at least, but the scoffers and the anti-sentimentalists to the contrary notwithstanding, it is a good thing to entertain a noble resolution once a year, if no more, and it lightens the load more than the cynic will admit.

So, as we start off with the new year, we wish that each of our readers may be able to throw off at least one of the burdens of the old year, and that every one of them may be able to renew his strength and courage from the pure fountain of optimism. Such a suggestion is to the materialist a stumbling block and to the philosopher foolishness, but it is to the ordinary man the power of daily salvation in the force which such a spirit and such an attitude give him.

We are off, and may the inspiration of a finer faith in all things go with us in the race.—Democrat and News.

We are generally losers in the end if we stop to refute all the backbitings and gossipings we may hear by the way. They are annoying, it is true, but not dangerous so long as we do not stop to expostulate and scold. Our characters are formed and sustained by ourselves and by our own actions and purposes, and not by others. Let us always bear in mind that calumniators may usually be trusted to time and the slow but steady justice of public opinion.

A boy's success is largely measured by his manliness. That the term of manliness may be understood by our youthful readers, let it be understood that it does not mean a boy who can chew tobacco, smoke cigars and cigarettes, and who curses and swears and uses obscene language, and keeps company with boys of questionable character. A manly boy has sense enough to know that these things detract from the character of any boy. Most employers feel that it is their duty to discharge a boy with these habits almost as quick as for absolute dishonesty. The boy who aspires to be anything or anybody in the world cannot afford to ape the very worst habits in man, but should follow only the best examples of the best men.—Middletown Valley Register.

Carrying Deadly Weapons.

Much of the taking of human life, which brings sorrow to homes and disgrace upon communities, is directly traceable to the reprehensible practice of carrying deadly weapons. "The handy pistol" in many cases is the cause of murder, and has put the hemp around many a man's neck, and ought to have put it around the neck of many more, who escape through the technicalities of the law. In hot blood, a man, often unexpectedly to himself, draws his pistol and takes a human life. Except for the convenience of the pistol, it would not have occurred, and an everlasting sorrow to his own family and to that of his victim would have been avoided.

So that, every officer of the law who fails to perform his duty in arresting persons for carrying concealed weapons, and murder ensues, is guilty of complicity in the crime. No man can give a good reason for carrying a loaded pistol, and the theory of the law is that the man who does so is a coward and has murder in his heart.—Catonsville Argus.

Isn't it folly to talk about tariff being able to block the wheels of progress or prosperity? If it makes goods cheaper, it means increased consumption. Uncle Sam says the people must have cheaper cost of living and so the attempt is going to be made to make sugar cheaper; clothing less expensive; coal lower; lumber reduced. That will eventuate in making trade hum. Is there any reason to get scared over what Congress may do? Just keep busy and let the politicians wrangle, for they cannot do much harm and then only in spots.—Havre de Grace Republican.

Women Plan Co-Operative Stores.

Flushed with the success which attended their crusade which reduced the price of eggs to consumers the women of Philadelphia met in Mayor Blackenburgh's reception room and laid preliminary plans for establishing co-operative stores in Philadelphia, which will place the buying and selling of all sorts of produce entirely in the hands of the consumer and eliminate the excessive profits of the storage speculators and middlemen.

CURRENT COMMENT FROM LEADING JOURNALS.

The Need of Admirals and Vice-Admirals in the Navy.

Keen public interest in the creation of the grades of admiral and vice admiral in the Navy is again being aroused by the recent announcement of Secretary Meyer that effort will be made at this session of Congress to secure the enactment of a law permanently establishing these ranks. Legislation to this effect was sought at the last Congress, but was not obtained. The failure was distinctly a surprise to naval circles, as the absolute necessity for flag officers of these grades had been frequently demonstrated clearly, and it had confidently been expected that remedial action would be taken. What made the failure all the more of a surprise was the fact that the department proposal met with the warm and understanding approval of the entire nation. The people, jealous of national precedence as well as thoroughly alive to the practical advantages thus to be gained, had been quick to appreciate things that add to the safety and dignity of the country. In all the land there was scarcely a dissenting voice raised. The announcement therefore by Secretary Meyer that he will renew and urge his recommendation for the creation of the grades of admiral and vice admiral has called forth an instantly sympathetic and approving popular response.

The recommendation for the grades of admiral and vice admiral is based upon sound and far-reaching public policy. It is a matter of comprehensive state-manship. It transcends all questions of personal motive and advantage. Every year since 1904 the measure has been urged upon the Congress with reasons and examples of the most cogizant nature. It is a fact worthy of marked emphasis and one that should bear weight that without a single exception every chief of the bureau of navigation and every secretary of the navy has annually since the year named advocated the enactment of such legislation. Each recommendation has been strongly worded and has come from technically informed men who would derive no personal advancement in fortune and who are devoted to the interests of the government in general and of the Navy in particular. Their earnest endeavors along this line have been animated solely by a desire to promote the good of the naval establishment and consequently of the nation.

The United States is the only naval power on earth that confines the command of a powerful battle fleet to a rear admiral, who is prevented, whatever his individual capacity, by the very limitations of his low rank from rendering the most efficient services. Personal ability is handicapped by official status. The recognition of this fact should truly give us pause. Even the Chinese, Portuguese, and Danish navies, which are negligible in comparison with ours, have vice admirals, who take precedence over the commanders in chief of our great Atlantic fleet, in the handling and fate of which is wrapped up so much of the hope, of the pride, and the destiny of the people. Such a condition of affairs lowers the prestige of the American nation.—T. J. Cowie U. S. N. in Army and Navy Register.

President Taft's Logic.

Whatever else may be said of President Taft, it cannot be affirmed that he is inconsistent. He began his term of office with but a dim apprehension of what the people expected of him, and he is leaving it without any real enlightenment. With many admirable intentions, he has consistently put himself in awkward positions, and, striving for the utmost sincerity, he has been beguiled and betrayed by those it was in his heart to use for good ends. Every time he has addressed his own party or nation he has in some left-handed way made a bad matter worse. He has gone against the grain of the times, so that in a mysterious way the most excellent of his plans have carried in them the seed of disaster.

His last utterance at the "Rehabilitation Banquet" of the Republican party is proof enough of why his party needs rehabilitation. He attributes the failure of many of his cherished projects to personal feelings against himself. Yet the fact remains that probably no President entered office with a heartier good will behind him. The opposition to him has never been on personal grounds. To-day the people of the United States entertain the kindest sentiments of esteem toward the aimable, well-meaning, high-minded gentleman who failed for quite different reasons from those he imagines. They wish him well, but they have learned that he does not understand what they want. He assails the newspapers for "their injustice" on the ground that they resented his policies regarding paper duties and mail privileges. Yet, again if he can remember back four years, the papers supported his administration until it plainly showed its inability to meet the issues of the day.

If Mr. Taft can find no better apology for his administration than that of his "Swan Song", he should keep silent. The famous judicial temperament becomes a trifle ridiculous when it prides itself on saving the country from the Roosevelt creed. The victory that came to the Republicans because they helped beat the Progressives is a queer consolation. What of the victory the Progressives may claim because they defeated the old Republicans? What, moreover created the third party and the demand for a third term? If the Republicans had met their obligations and fulfilled the demands of the country, where would Mr. Roosevelt have found a vantage ground?

The mind of Mr. Taft is a solid thing. It is true to its inheritance and environment. It believes in obligarchy and privilege. It sees nothing but conservatism. Insurgency is merely stubbornness. Difference in viewpoint spells ruin and a toppling government. That the people demanded a better distribution of wealth and a greater equality of opportunity and so upset the Tory ideal has not yet entered Mr. Taft's understanding. It never will. That is why his logic is consistent, but untrue.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Split Log Drag.

The split-log drag is peculiarly adapted to the improvement of dirt roads. Most counties have dirt roads and experience a great deal of trouble in keeping them in shape. As general rule such roads range from indifferent to execrable in condition. They require much repair and about as often as otherwise they are little, if any, better after repair than before. Those who have given the split-log drag a thorough test maintain that there is no better method of keeping a dirt road in good condition. Certainly there is no cheaper method, for it costs only a few dollars to build the drag and requires only one man and two horses to operate it.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Cuban vs. Civil War Pensions.

One of the first things the Democratic House of Representatives did after convening this winter was to pass a pension bill for the benefit of participants in the Spanish war, putting an additional $5,000,000 a year upon the taxpayers. It is only fourteen years since the brief passage at arms with Spain, yet the House voted to apply to participants in that war a rule of compensation which was not applied to the pensioners of the great civil war and other earlier wars until from twenty-five to fifty years after they had ended. It is proposed to pay $12 a month to widows and minor children of "veterans" of the Spanish war of ninety days' service, thus establishing a system which probably will run for sixty years or more and will be subject to enlargement.

It seems to be the aim of the promoters of pension legislation to keep the government's annual pension outlay from falling below $150,000,000. The Spanish war was marked by comparatively few casualties. Hardly 15 per cent of the troops that served ever were within range of the enemy and the great mass of those who enlisted returned to civil life with no claim for any disability contracted in the field, yet evidently it is the plan of the pension agitators to put the participants in the war with Spain on the same footing with those heroes who sacrificed their health and limbs in the deadly civil strife.

Were it not better policy to wait until the present pension expenditure, which is the largest in our history, is brought down to reasonable limits before opening new and vast fields for the distribution of more governmental bounty?—Washington Herald.

Doing His Own Picking.

In selecting his official family Mr. Wilson refuses to be hurried. Evidently he is looking over the entire field, with the idea of getting the best man possible for each portfolio, regardless of whether he has "political backing" or is urged by the politicians of any State or section.

There will be no Ballingers or Algiers in Wilson's Cabinet, for no man has bought his way into favor; nor is Wilson under the slightest obligation to any powerful "interests." The Governor refuses to allow the newspaper correspondents or the political gossips to choose for him. We may accept as literally true his statement that he has not divulged his plans to anyone.

The aspirants will sit on the anxious bench until they are called. The new administration will not begin until March 4. There is no real necessity for the President-elect to announce his selections until inauguration day. Mr. Wilson can take his time about it; and the indications are that he will.—Evening Sun.

FELINE WHISKERS.
Delicate Sensitive Hairs That Record the Slightest Touch.
We are apt to think that the cat's ability to see in the dark is due entirely to its eyes, but competent authority assures us that the feline's power in this respect is due almost as much to its "whiskers."
These delicate hairs that project from the muzzle of the cat family are wonderful mechanisms. Each one grows from a follicle, or gland, nerve to the utmost sensibility. Its slightest contact with any obstacle is instantly felt by the animal, though the hair itself may be tough and insensible. The exaggerated whiskers on the muzzle often project to such a distance that from point to point they indicate the exact width of the body of the beast.
Consider the lion stealing through the jungle at night in search of prey, when the least stir of a twig gives alarm. The lion's whiskers indicate, through the nicest nerves, any object that may be in his path. A touch stops him short before his pushing through some close thicket where the rustling leaves and boughs would betray his presence. Wherever his head may be thrust without a warning from the vibrissae there his body may pass noiselessly. It is the aid given him by his whiskers, in conjunction with the soft cushions of his feet, that enables him to proceed as silently as a snake.—Harper's Weekly.

The Frozen Ship
By RALPH HUNTER

When I was commanding the Mary Blake, a brigantine, on one of my voyages I started from Tokyo, Japan, for Boston. The crew I had shipped in America at setting out were very good men, but had been thinned out by the hardships of the voyage. Several had been swept overboard by seas coming over her during storms on the Pacific ocean, others had died of fever contracted on the coast of Africa, and several men who went ashore on the Marshall islands never came back. I suppose they were murdered by the natives.
Unfortunately the men I lost were my best sailors, and the few of the original crew remaining were the worst. To get home I was obliged to pick up a crew in Japan, get more at Hongkong and finish the complement at Naples, Italy. The consequence was that I sailed through the Mediterranean and out on to the Atlantic with the worst lot of seamen ever got together except on a pirate ship.
It was all I could do to handle them, especially as my first and second mate were afraid of them. The crew soon found this out and were proportionately ugly. The weather turned bad soon after we left Gibraltar, and it was necessary to send men aloft to take in sail.
A mist had frozen on the rigging, and the men wouldn't go. When I told them that if they didn't we were liable to go to the bottom they said they might as well perish that way as to slip overboard from icy rigging. I and my two mates were obliged to go aloft and get in the sail.
This, of course, was mutiny, and the men—at least all except the copperskins among them—knew it. When the whites told the latter we were only some ten days' sail from the American coast and when I got there I could have them hanged they were all in favor of taking the ship, murdering me and the two mates and turning her into a pirate. In fact, some of them I had shipped in the east had been pirates in the Malay archipelago.
I kept a stiff upper lip, being heavily armed all the while, and by my manner endeavored if I could not cow them to at least convince them that some of them would get killed before they killed me. Besides, there is always government, which, though it cannot protect officers far out on the ocean by force, has even there a great moral effect. In this way I, the only one on the ship who did not show fear of the rascals, endeavored to stave off disaster till we neared the American coast and fell in with other vessels.
There is a point in the Atlantic about where the Titanic was sunk by an iceberg where the arctic stream, having brought the ice down from the north, swings it off to the southeastward. We ran into this neighborhood at a season when a number of these sea mountains were coming along amid fields of ice. On the day we struck the ice the men, incited by one of the worst of them, who took the lead, determined that they would go no nearer the coast, where they were liable to meet with the punishment they deserved.
I was standing on the poop deck looking at several bergs that were in sight and inwardly cursing the fields of ice that were impeding our progress toward the land when I saw the crew or most of them coming aft. Neither of the other officers was on deck, and it occurred to me that they had either been secured or made away with and the men were coming to finish me. Glancing about over the waters in the hope of seeing a vessel, I did see one poke her nose from behind one of the bergs.
Some of the mutineers, seeing me looking over the starboard bow, paused to see what I was looking at. The vessel was moving very slowly with only her jib sails set, while the remnants of other sails that had been blown away were fluttering in the wind. My enemies had calculated on removing me without any one seeing them. As soon as they discovered this vessel most of them hesitated. Their leader endeavored to induce them to go on, but we and the other ship were bound to meet a few miles farther on, and this was too much for the white sailors, especially those who realized what their punishment would be in case they were caught murdering their captain. Encouraged, I drew a revolver with each hand and ordered the men back to the fore-castle. Every man obeyed me.
I took up a glass and leveled it on the ship. What I saw convinced me that there was not a living person on her. A man was lashed to the wheel but he was dead. Another was leaning up against the side of the poop deck, but I was sure he was frozen stiff. Several other bodies were lying on the deck motionless, and all were covered with a coating of ice.
My protectors were dead men. But they were as good as live men as long as my crew believed them to be living. I resolved to act before we got near enough to the other vessel for my men to see. Calling them aft, I pointed to the ship and, reminding them that I could signal for help, offered to refrain from reporting their action when we reached port if they would return to duty. My offer was accepted, and leaving the frozen ship to go her way I steered for Boston harbor.
The ship that had saved me must have got wedged between the bergs and sunk, for I never heard of her.

A MAGIC MIRROR.
Experiments With the Moon and Stars and a Hand Glass.
A pretty experiment can be made with a hand mirror any night when there is a full moon. Hold the mirror so that the moon's image will be seen in it and you will be surprised to see four moons instead of one. One moon will be very bright, but the other three will be in a straight line and quite dull, one dull image on the side of the bright moon and the other two on the other side. Turn the mirror round slowly, still holding its face to the moon, and the reflections will seem to revolve round a common center.
You can make the same experiment with one of the very bright stars, such as Sirius, Venus or Jupiter, but with these there will be three images instead of four, as the number seen depends on the breadth of the object. The explanation is quite simple. There are two surfaces in the mirror, one in front and the other where the quicksilver is. The brightest reflection comes from the object itself, the others are what are known as secondary images reflected from the front to the back of the mirror and thence to the eye. The magic mirror never fails to excite a good deal of wonder, and is an interesting experiment as well.—London Chronicle.

Lovely Landscape.
George IV. on one occasion casually entered a private apartment at Windsor castle and encountered, somewhat to his surprise, his valet, who was seated at a table loaded with viands and eating with great avidity.
"Ah!" exclaimed the king. "I was always fond of scenery, and here is a lovely piece of landscape spread out before me."
The valet smiled feebly, but politely intimated that he did not understand the king's allusion to landscape and scenery.
"Why," replied the first gentleman of Europe, "do I not see before me a smiling valet with a magnificent gorge?"
The valet thereupon rose and retired, excusing himself to the king on the ground that he had turned suddenly "hill."—London Tit-Bits.

Dublin Book Pirates.
Dublin is rich in literary associations and during the eighteenth century was a busy publishing center. Some of its enterprises, however, were not of a very reputable kind. Ireland was then outside the copyright laws and English books were "pirated" in Dublin as freely as afterward in America. Some Dublin publishers are said to have kept spies in the London printing houses and by this means were able to issue "pirated" editions of important books coincidentally with and sometimes even before the appearance of the authentic issue.—London Chronicle.

Defining a Fathom.
"A fathom," explained a schoolteacher to her class in mathematics, "is a nautical word used in defining distance. It means six feet. Now, I want some little girl to give me a sentence using the word 'fathom.'" Instantly a hand shot up. "Well, Mary, you may give your sentence." Mary stood up proudly. "The reason flies can walk on the ceiling," said the observant child, "is because they have a fathom!"

M. S. M. GRADUATE NOMINATED BY GOVERNOR SULZER

Dr. John Jerome Rooney Suggested by New York Executive for The State Board of Claims.

Governor Sulzer has nominated John J. Rooney, of New York city to fill the vacancy in the New York State board of claims. Dr. Rooney is a graduate of Mount St. Mary's College, which institution in recognition of his peculiar merits has conferred on him the degrees of A. B., A. M., and LL. D.

He is a member of the bar of the Supreme Court of the State, of the United States District Court, of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the southern district of New York, and of the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States. His practice being chiefly commercial and customs revenue law. He is a member of the Association of the Bar, the County Lawyer's association, of which he was incorporator, of the New York State Bar association, and of the American Bar association.

Mr. Rooney has made a special study of questions of taxation, has written and spoken much on the tariff. He has been long considered a leading authority in favor of a radical revision downward of the tariff and in favor of a tariff for revenue only. President-elect Wilson consulted him on the tariff throughout the campaign. Mr. Rooney never before held office. He is a member of the National Democratic club and of the Reform club of New York city.

Savings Bank Elects Officers.

Stone, Guy K. Motter, Peter F. Burket, Sterling Galt, J. Lewis Rhodes, J. Rowe Ohler, Ernest R. Shriver, J. C. Rosensteel, William A. Devilbiss.

Beginners Do Well.

Mr. H. F. Finneyfrock, manager of the Emmitsburg branch of the Union Manufacturing Company's plant, is very much pleased with the progress made here. Mr. Finneyfrock has started many knitting plants, and he declares that the beginners in the local branch were the quickest to learn that he ever taught. He had nothing but words of praise for all his employees. Mr. Finneyfrock also stated that by Spring he expected to operate more machines and that that meant more help.

Mrs. Eyster Entertains.

Mrs. George T. Eyster entertained a number of ladies at "Flunch" on Saturday afternoon. Delicious refreshments were served consisting of salad, hot biscuits, ice cream, cakes, coffee and nuts. Those present were: Mrs. James Helman, Mrs. L. B. Hensley, Mrs. Robert Beam, Mrs. J. Stewart Annan, Mrs. E. L. Annan, Misses Sue Guthrie, Laura Smith, Virginia Smith, Elizabeth and Madeline Frailey, Maude Derr.

A Correction.

Through some inadvertence it was stated in last week's Chronicle, in the account of the driving accident in which Messrs. Charles and Allan Gelwicks were injured, that the horses had run off. The real cause of the mishap was the breaking of the king bolt which released the front gear of the team and threw the occupants out when the buggy fell to the ground.

Death of Cornelius Ryan.

Prof. Edward Ryan of the faculty of Mt. St. Mary's College, was suddenly called home on December 28th, to attend the funeral of his father, Mr. Cornelius Ryan, of Hartford, Conn.

Passes Eighty-First Milestone.

Mr. Bennett J. Tyson, familiarly known to every Emmitsburgian as "Uncle Bennett," was 81 years old last Saturday. When seen by a representative of THE CHRONICLE Mr. Tyson looked well and hearty and was able to lay aside his cane, the use of which had been made necessary by a recent attack of rheumatism. "Uncle Bennett" spends a good deal of his time reading, but never lets a day go without doing some manual labor. He has the congratulations of the whole community on his eighty-first anniversary.

Public Debate at Fairfield. There will be a public debate in the Fairfield High School on Friday evening, Jan. 17, 1913. The question for debate is: Resolved, "That Socialism Would be a Menace to Our Country." This question will be debated affirmatively by Messrs. John B. and J. H. Pecher, the bachelor brothers of Fairfield, and negatively by Messrs. John O. Beam, of York, a graduate of Dickinson College, and G. L. Grove, of Harrisburg, for three years a student at Pennsylvania State College. The Emmitsburg Orchestra will furnish music for the occasion.

ATHLETICS AT M. S. M. TAKE NEW SPURT AFTER HOLIDAYS

Basketball Team Hard at Work Preparing For The Big Schedule Ahead.—Class Contests Arranging.

Mt. St. Mary's College opened Wednesday morning after the Christmas holidays with most of the old boys and a few new ones in attendance. It did not take Athletic Director Thompson long to get the basketball squad out for work. Wednesday afternoon all the candidates were called to the gymnasium to resume work where they left off before the recess. Light work was indulged in and this will be gradually increased with the hope that the entire squad will be in full swing by next week. The showing made in the first game with Baltimore City College was more than pleasing and everything points favorably to a fast "quint" the coming season. The schedule as arranged by Manager Thomas Mulhearn is a very hard one some fast teams appearing on the list. Mr. Mulhearn will have the list ready for publication in a few days, a conflict in two of the dates holding him up. The way the schedule is arranged calls for two games every week up to the first week in March. The greater number of the games will be played on the home court. A plan is on foot now to arrange a series of class games and the presidents of the different classes will be called together shortly to outline plans for such contests. Coach Thompson is very much in favor of these class affairs as he claims it is the best means of getting material for future varsity teams. It is probable that some suitable trophy will be put up for the winner of this series.

JAMES McBRIDE.

James McBride died suddenly on January 9 at 5 a. m. at Mt. St. Mary's College, aged 58 years. The funeral services will be in St. Anthony's Church on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

Death at all times is a gruesome visitor. Even for the Christian who believes that when the angel with the amarantine wreath knocks to bring his summons, and that having looked on earthly life but as a way-station to the life eternal, those who are about him and behold his departure feel the shock of the fearful separation. Such are the feelings the writer experiences as he pens these words. For forty years he had known the deceased whose name heads this notice; in that long period he had known him as a good, faithful worker, spurred on ever by the sense of duty which was the guide of his life—"come storm or wrack" he was ever at his post, never shirking duty—a man of scrupulous conscience, he never wavered. He had inherited these characteristics of the faithful Christian from a father who for upwards of forty years was the College gardener, and he as the chore worker of the same college, was never known to be absent from his post. But one day before his death the writer brought him messages of affection and regards from old students of Mt. St. Mary's College, whom he had known in the past, and cheerfully he spoke of the friends of the long ago, telling of pranks that perhaps none but himself knew, but as a true friend he kept the memory of them to himself. Now he has gone, but to the disconsolate sister, the only survivor of his family, comes the consolation that he lived a Christian and the reward of a Christian awaits him. This is the prayer of one who knew and loved him.

That Lincoln Highway.
 Lincoln memorial highway advocates, led by Congressman Borland, of Missouri, and Linthicum and Lewis, of Maryland, are fighting to prevent the House from approving the plans for the Greek temple memorial to the martyred President, which have been approved by the Lincoln Memorial Commission and adopted by the Senate. The Marylanders are urging the construction of a highway from Washington to Gettysburg as a substitute. The two projects are up in the House. One of the routes proposed would bring the road through Frederick and on west by the Emmitsburg pike.

TANEYTOWN
 The Misses Annan entertained in honor of Miss Ruth Annan of Beloit, Kansas. The table had for its centre piece a miniature Christmas tree surrounded by small santa claus' coming from the proverbial chimney, all the table arrangements were red and green. Cards and character guessing furnished the evenings entertainment.
 "Sia Kleptomaiacs" the play given by members of the "Tuesday Club" supplemented by Mrs. Lewis Elliot and Miss Olive Pannel was very enthusiastically received last Thursday evening. Taneytown audiences are loyalty itself to home talent therefore the players were inspired to do their best. While the characters were all well taken, Miss Clara Brining as "Juggling Marta," subject to fits which were only cured by food, simply brought down the house, and Miss Mary Reindollar as a French widow was fascinatingly naive and graceful. Between the acts the audience enjoyed the rare pleasure of two songs, sung by Prof. Geo. Ed. Smith, of Frederick, "Because I love you dear," and a Scotch Lullaby. The simplicity of Mr. Smith's manner adds charm to his wonderful voice, which can be likened to the outburst of a songbird, sweet and round and rich in tone, delighting his hearers.
 Mrs. Walter Bower entertained the Tuesday Club also Miss Mary Brining and Mrs. R. L. Annan on Friday afternoon at 500 and a turkey supper. The table decorations, place cards and tallies were in the Christmas flower. The prize was a cluster of red carnations.

VARIEGATED SPELLING.

Mark Twain Liked It Because It Was So Refreshing.

Writing in the Hartford Courant on "Mark Twain," Dr. Edwin P. Parker of Hartford said:

"In 1876, according to my memorandum, a notable spelling match took place at the Asylum Hill Congregational church, in which some thirty persons, under their respective captains, took part. Among these contestants were Dr. Burton, Judge Carpenter, Charles E. Perkins, Mr. Clemens, Mr. Twichell, Charles H. Clark, General Hawley, Miss Trumbull, Miss Blythe, Miss Burbank and Miss Stone. At last there were left standing only Dr. Burton and Miss Stone, and the gallant doctor took the first opportunity to make an error and so to leave Miss Stone the winner.

"But this notable contest was preceded by a preliminary speech in which Mr. Clemens wittily criticised the supposed necessity of having any uniform and arbitrary way of spelling words. Among several amusing illustrations of his argument was one as follows: 'I have a correspondent whose letters are always a refreshment to me, there is such a breezy, unfettered originality about his orthography. He always spells Kow with a large K. Now, that is just as good as to spell it in the conventional way with a small one! It is better, for it suggests to the mind a new, grand and impressive creature.'

"Nevertheless, in the contest that ensued Mr. Clemens produced no 'superb effects of variegated spelling,' but stood up among the last five, if my record is right, only Mr. Clark, Miss Keep, Dr. Burton and Miss Stone outlasting him."

MOTION OF THE EARTH.

It May Easily Be Demonstrated by a Simple Method.

It is quite possible to prove that the earth revolves on its axis by a simple experiment and without having recourse to mathematics. Take a good sized bowl, fill it nearly full of water and place it upon the floor of a room which is not exposed to shaking or jarring from the street.

Sprinkle over the surface of the water a coating of lycopodium powder, a white substance which can be bought at almost any drug store. Then upon the surface of this coating of powder make with powdered charcoal a straight black line, say, an inch or two inches in length and lying north and south.

Having made this little black mark with the charcoal powder on the surface of the contents of the bowl, lay down upon the floor a stick or some other straight object, so that it shall be exactly parallel with the mark.

Leave the bowl undisturbed for a few hours and then notice the position of the black mark with reference to the object that it was parallel with. It will be found to have shifted its direction and to have moved from east to west—that is to say, in a direction opposite to that of the movement of the earth on its axis.

The earth in simply revolving has carried the water and everything else in the bowl around with it, but the powder on the surface has been left behind a little. The line will always be found to have moved from east to west, which is good proof that everything else has moved the other way.

No More Smiling.

The new vicar was paying a visit among the patients in the local hospital. When he entered ward No. 2 he came across a pale looking young man lying in a cot, heavily swathed in bandages. There he stopped, and, after administering a few words of comfort to the unfortunate sufferer, he remarked in cheering tones:

"Never mind, my man, you'll soon be all right. Keep on smiling; that's the way of the world."

"I'll never smile again," replied the youth sadly.

"Rubbish!" ejaculated the vicar. "There ain't no rubbish about it!" exclaimed the other heatedly. "It's through smiling at another fellow's girl that I'm here now."—Pearson's Weekly.

His Eloquence.

The curate of a country parish lately preached a charity sermon, and the collection which followed amounted to £20 7s. 4½d. In the vestry after the service the churchwardens counted it out and mentioned the result. "Well," said the reverend preacher, "I must have preached pretty well to get all that." "No doubt you did, sir," replied one of the churchwardens who had been collecting, "but the squire put in a £20 note, and he's deaf."—London Mail.

Unreluctantly.

"Ralph Darnley called again last night, Bessie, didn't he? You know, he's rather well off, so I hope you didn't treat him distantly," said mamma.

"Indeed I didn't, mamma. I was very much drawn to him—very much," she answered, with a blush.

A Hardship.

"They talk of hardships," said an Irish soldier as he lay down to sleep on the deck of a transport, "but, bedad, this is the hardest ship I was ever in in my life!"

Health and an Umbrella.

A man's health is something like an umbrella. When once lost it is hard to get back, but when worn a little it may be recovered.

Speak with the speech of the world, think with the thoughts of the few.—John Jay.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

Becoming Effects For the Stout Woman In Cutaway Coats.

One of the most becoming fashions to a large woman is the cutaway coat with the straightest possible lines and a very long back. With this, of course, the skirt also should have straight lines.

Plain gored skirts are much liked for practical and inexpensive suits.

Separate long coats are to be exceedingly smart this autumn, and this

VOGUE POINTS.

Smart Features of the New Blouse. Button Trimmings.

Some of the new blouse sleeves seem to be cut in one from the shoulder and finish in a wristband of colored satin.

On the big velvet hats already shown for fall one sees paradise plumes with cut ends to carry out the fashionable effect of flatness.

Many suits of fancy velours and wool sponge cloth will be seen the coming season. Long velours coats will be trimmed with fur, satin, moire or heavy lace.

The newest coats give evidence of the director's influence and show these high, rolled over collars and deep cuffs. This one is exceedingly smart and can be made with either cutaway or straight fronts, with either plain or belted back, but the plain back and cutaway fronts mean the greater distinction.

HISTORY OF 1912 IN FOREIGN LANDS

Balkan War, Olympic Games and Other Happenings.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

THE chief events of 1912 abroad were the Balkan war, the permanent establishment of the Chinese republic, the announcement of the discovery of the south pole, the death of the mikado of Japan, the snuffing out of uprisings in Mexico, Cuba and Nicaragua, the assassination of Premier Canalejas of Spain, the Olympic games at Stockholm and the home rule fight in the British parliament.

It certainly was a disastrous year for Turkey. In closing the war with Italy she was forced to give up Tripoli, the last of her African provinces. She had an earthquake that destroyed 3,000 lives, a cholera epidemic, a near revolution and a war with the Balkan allies that has cost her nearly all of her provinces in Europe. She has had nearly everything the matter with her except mumps and housemaid's knee. Her harems have fled to Asia Minor, and her soldiers have fled wherever the fleeing was good. She declared war on Oct. 17 and only regained consciousness in time to talk peace with her conquerors.

Shortest War on Record.

In Europe it is known as the "thirty days" war, the shortest on record. Every one of the allies won important victories, and won them in such rapid succession that the world looked on amazed. The reputation of the Turkish army crumbled overnight. The first clash occurred on Oct. 4, and four days later little Montenegro declared war, capturing Detchitch mountain and investing Scutari. The Bulgarians smashed the Turks in a disastrous defeat at Kirk Killise, besieged Adrianople and invested the last line of Turkish defense before Constantinople. The Serbian army drove all before it and participated in the capture of Monastir and other strongholds. The Greeks won a succession of victories and took the historic city of Saloniki. It was at about this time that Turkey recovered consciousness and asked for an armistice. The meeting for peace negotiations was held in London.

The insistence of Serbia on an Adriatic port as a result of her victories aroused opposition in Austria, and for a time there was widespread fear of a general European war, which had not entirely disappeared at the end of the year.

The work of the Chinese revolution which started last year was largely completed, and the republic is today a fixed fact. Dr. Sun Yat Sen was inaugurated as provisional president on Jan. 1, but unselfishly resigned in favor of Yuan Shih Kai two months later. The Manchu dynasty abdicated on Feb. 12, and three days later the election of Yuan occurred, his inauguration taking place on March 10. A mutiny of the soldiers about Peking was later put down, and the financial problem was temporarily solved by independent foreign loans. Woman suffrage and other advanced measures were adopted in some of the provinces.

The discovery of the south pole was really made on Dec. 17, 1911, but the announcement was deferred until March 7, 1912, when the discoverer, Captain Roald Amundsen, returned to civilization.

The death of Emperor Mutsuhito of Japan, under whom that wonderful nation has been transformed from semi-barbarism to a place in the front rank of nations, occurred on July 30, and his son, Yoshihito, ascended the throne. The funeral of the dead mikado was accompanied by oriental pomp and was attended by representatives from the whole world. A sensational aftermath was the suicide of General Count Nogri and his wife. Nogri was the commander who took Port Arthur.

Latin American Insurrections.

The Mexican revolution against President Madero made considerable headway early in the year, the rebels capturing the city of Juarez on Feb. 27. Later the federals gained important victories, driving the insurgents into the mountains. A new difficulty occurred when Vera Cruz arose in insurrection, led by Felix Diaz, nephew of the former president. This uprising was speedily suppressed, however, and Diaz, with his other officers, was captured, two of his lieutenants being put to death.

There was also an insurrection in Nicaragua. American marines were landed to protect property and lives of our citizens. On Sept. 26 General Mena, a leader of the insurrection, surrendered to the federal and American forces.

A rebellion of the negroes in one of the Cuban provinces also caused the landing of American forces, and there was some talk of intervention, but the disturbance was soon quelled. Cuba held her presidential election in the fall without the presence of American troops. The new president, General Mario Menocal, is friendly to the United States.

End of Turko-Italian War.

The war between Italy and Turkey dragged on through the early part of the year, with no very heavy fighting on either side. The Italian navy took the islands of the Aegean. The use of the aeroplane in war had further demonstration, Italian aviators dropping bombs in a Turkish camp, killing ten. On Oct. 15 the peace protocol was signed between the two countries. By its terms Italy gained practical control of Tripoli, but gave up the Aegean islands that Greece is now battling to free.

In Great Britain the most notable events of the year, aside from England's part in the general European situation, were the coal strike in February and March, the continued disturbances by the suffragettes and the home rule fight. The coal strike threw out of employment upward of 1,000,000 workers and threatened for a time to become worldwide, there being also a strike in Germany and trouble threatened in France and the United States. The British government interposed, and the contest was finally settled by the passage of a minimum wage law satisfactory to the miners.

France Subdues Morocco.

There was some friction between France and Spain over the division of Morocco, but it was finally adjusted, France retaining control of all of it, except some towns and a small amount of territory nearest to Spain. Mulai Hafid abdicated as sultan.

Among the sporting events abroad were the quadrennial Olympic races at Stockholm, in which the United States took most of the track and field events, and the annual boat race between Oxford and Cambridge, Oxford winning.

Other events of the year were the honoring of William Marconi, inventor of wireless, by a life seat in the Italian senate; the completion of the Alpine tunnel through the Arel mountain, six and three-quarter miles long; the sinking of the steamer Texas under the Turkish flag, sixty-six passengers being drowned, and the review of seventy-two war aeroplanes and dirigibles at Paris.

Among the noted dead abroad were Alfred Tennyson Dickens, in New York to celebrate the centenary of his father's birth; Henry Labouchere, the brilliant British editor and statesman; Abbe Charles Layson (Pere Hyacinthe); W. T. Stead, the famous London editor, who went down in the wreck of the Titanic; Count von Aehrenthal, Austrian premier; Edward Terry, the English actor; Bram Stoker, London author and manager; Justin McCarthy, the famous author and statesman; Robert W. B. Browning, only son of the poets Robert and Elizabeth Barrett Browning; Henri Poincare, celebrated French mathematician; Andrew Lang, poet and novelist; Massenet, the composer; Johann M. Schleyer, inventor of Volapuk, the language having died before its author; Rev. William Booth, founder and head of the Salvation Army; Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, German diplomat; Rev. Augustus Orlebar, original of "Tom Brown"; Robert Barr, the Scotch novelist; Laurence Alma-Tadema, the famous artist, and Premier Canalejas of Spain, who was assassinated by an anarchist.

The Right Kind of Hustler.

There is a good story concerning a certain trip of inspection when Louis Hill and a party of officials were taking a peek at the station agents somewhere along the line in Minnesota. At a station we may call Oscarville an agent, perhaps forewarned, was observed frantically moving trucks and cleaning up.

"There's a hustler for you," said one of the party.

"Humph," said Hill.

At another station the agent met them smilingly, smoking a good cigar and clad in his best clothes. He was frankly idling, yet nothing was asked.

"Well, what do you think of that?" commented one of Hill's friends. "There's an agent who has time to loaf."

"Humph," said Hill.

A month later the "loafer" was promoted.

"If a man can get the work done without doing it himself he's the man for me," was the explanation of the railroad president.—Metropolitan Magazine.

April in Western Europe.

April is one of the driest months in the whole year in England. In the southeast of England, including London and its surrounding counties, the average April rainfall is only 1.64 inch. That of March, reputed the driest month, is 1.46, while May's rainfall is nearly a quarter of an inch in excess of April's. Not only is April a dry but also a very cold month. April 10th to 15th is a notoriously cold period.

All over the western part of Europe April is a month which is justly dreaded for its severity. Even in Spain this is the case. In central Spain there is an old story that a shepherd promised March a lamb if he would tamper the winds to suit his flocks. March did so, but the faithless shepherd failed to keep his promise. In revenge March borrowed three days from April, which were worse weather than any experienced in March.—London Answers.

Jam Started as Medicine.

Jam in its early days seems to have been regarded as possessing medicinal properties. Galt in "Annals of the Parish" notes "a new luxury that got in among the commonality about 1790. By our young men that were sailors going to Jamaica and the West Indies heaps of sugar and coffee beans were brought home, while many, among the cabbages in their yards, had planted berry bushes, which two things happening together the fashions of making jam and jelly came to be introduced into the village. It was found that jelly was an excellent medicine for a sore throat and jam a remedy as good as London candy for a cough or a cold or a shortness of breath." Did it ever occur to you that "jam" was abbreviated from Jamaica?—London Spectator.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

PUT IN AN "AD" BY RUSSEL E. SMITH.

IF YOUR business doesn't "go," and the sales are mighty low, And things begin to look a trifle bad; While the things that looked "immense" now resemble "thirty cents" Just try the "stunt" of putting in an "ad." You will find that it will pay, you can see it every day— And you'll admit it was the proper caper. So get a pad and chalk, work out a line of talk. And put an advertisement in the paper.

PUT it to 'em good and hard, whether selling gems or lard, And try and hit 'em plumb between the eyes; Make your "copy" good and strong, and you'll see 'fore very long That it really pays for you to advertise. Play your main points up in style—then hustle for a while, And you'll find this talk is more than idle vapor. The orders will flow in and you'll always wear a grin. If you put your advertisement in the paper.

SUCCESSFUL men to-day will endorse all that I say, "That much is truth and all the rest is lies"— You will not sell goods and you'd best take to the woods Unless you hurry up and advertise. It simply can't be done and the race will soon be run— Whether you be banker, cook or draper— Till you find out what it means to dig down in your jeans And put an advertisement in the paper.
