COST AND EVIL OF BIG WARS.

A. CARNEGIE'S REVIEW

Responsibility of Rulers in Regard to High Seas

WAR DEBT OF WORLD ENORMOUS

Annual Exchange of Products Amount to Almost Incredible Sum of Thirty-Billion, Five Hundred Million Dollars.

Some idea of the cost of war as waged to-day may be gleaned from the facts and figures furnished by Andrew Carnegie who sums up this evil of our day as follows:

First, the combined debt of the world, mostly borrowed and used for war purposes, amounts to nearly $37,000,000,000. The interest charge of the world on its national bonded debt amounts to $1,500,000,000. The amount expended yearly on standing armies and battle-ships is $3,500,000,000. If the entire property of the United States were to be sold, and the returns capitalized and put at interest at four per cent, it would just about keep up the military and naval forces of the world in time of peace. Our own country, the United States, spends on Army and Navy $800,000 a day.

The so-called civilized world maintains, chiefly in idle parade, usually all their lives, no less than 6,244,600 men, armed and pledged to go forth and kill their fellow-men as ordered should war arise. Most of these, however, never fire a hostile shot, war being the exception, long years of idleness the rule. Even in war, with men firing at battle-ships twelve miles distant, with troops under cover firing at troops a mile distant—war is no longer conducive to the heroic.

Second, the second sad and distressful crime of our day is that in war we are still capturing private property upon the high seas, although it is exempt from confiscation in war upon the land. This is the greater sin, for the seas are the highways of peaceful and necessary exchange of products; no nation has been created to live by its own products alone; but by peaceful, neighborly exchange with other nations, thus creating a brotherhood of man, each benefiting the other. Little do the masses know the extent of this amazing friendly exchange. Last year Britain imported food-products to the value of $1,403,000,000, her total imports being $3,723,203,000. Germany imported food-products to the value of $375,090,000, the total value of her imports being $2,530,000,000. France imported food-products to the value of $340,000,000, her total imports being $1,960,000,000. Even our country, the United States, imported food-products to the extent of $355,000,000, total imports $1,650,000,000. The world's annual exchange of its products amounts to the almost incredible sum of thirty-three billions five hundred millions of dollars.

We pause to ask this question of the governors of these armed naval powers: Why should this beneficent exchange of products between nations, so vast as to require eleven figures to express, and drawing men towards a holy brotherhood, be interrupted by them against the seemingly obvious plans of an all-wise Creator? Appalling, indeed, the responsibility of rulers, who have the power to remove this embargo upon peaceful, holy exchange amongst men who should be as brothers, promoting each other's good.

There is another aspect worthy of attention: The three Teutonic nations—Germany, the Fatherland; Britain, the Motherland; and the United States, peopled largely with their sons and daughters—all, as we have seen, deeply involved in international exchange of products, naturally possess for its protection the greatest part of the naval power of the world; why therefore, should they not meet and agree to inform the world in friendly manner that they could not look with favor upon war on the high seas, the sacred pathway of peaceful exchange, promoting the brotherhood of man?

Has Seen Every President.

Thomas Morris, of Waterville, Neb., who is 120 years old has lived through the terms of every president of the United States and most of the big historic events of the last century and a quarter. He will soon celebrate his 121 birthday and is believed to be the oldest man in the world. He was three years old when Washington's term as president closed. This connects him with the administration of every president of the United States.

BOOSTER FESTIVAL A BIG SUCCESS

Three Days of Unalloyed Pleasure, Recreation and Uplift---The Town a Mass of Bunting---General Business Practically Suspended While All Enter Into Gala Spirit of the Occasion---The Best Parade in the History of Old Emmitsburg---Dignified Floats, Thirty-one in Number, Call Forth Commendation From Everyone---Splendid Lectures, Excellent Music and Rare Amusement Features. Innumerable Attractions on Grounds. Baby Show Draws Largest Crowd---Praise From Visitors---Clear Skies During Day, Electric Illumination at Night.

VIEW OF EMMITSBURG FROM A "BOOSTER" AEROPLANE

Another "big time in Emmitsburg" has gone down into history. Booster Week with all its pleasures, all its amusements, all its good influences, has past. Its memory, however, will linger for a long time in the minds of the good people here about and the lessons it taught, the inspiration it gave will bear fruit in the months yet to come.

Public sentiment favored it, the people stood behind it, men, women and children patronized it and made it a huge success. The weather was fine, the crowds were large, the arrangements excellent, the monster parade splendid, the lectures far above the average and each and every feature up to a high standard.

Town Gaily Decorated.

Notwithstanding the fact that Friday was anything but promising the town folk started to decorate. Saturday this was continued until by evening nearly every business place and private dwelling was aglow with color. Monday the finishing touches were added and by the time the parade started Emmitsburg was one mass of bunting. In addition to this in window after window rare blossoms, growing plants and stately ferns lent their charm to the effectiveness of the scene. Balconies were transformed into miniature gardens, yellow, red and green predominating; festoons, formed by growing ferns, hung between overspreading trees; Japanese lanterns and pennants lined the fronts of houses, and here and there hanging baskets filled with asters added richness to the scheme of awning decoration.

On Firemen's Field.

All the main attractions took place in a large water proof tent erected on the eastern portion of Firemen's Field. In this tent were a commodious stage, comfortable chairs, adequate electric service and everything to contribute to the pleasure of the large audiences present at every performance. There were many outside attractions, such as moving picture shows, merry-go-round, duck ponds, dart boards, etc., and booths presided over by charming ladies where novelties and souvenirs and all kinds of refreshments were sold. At night when the largest crowds gathered here, when all the lights were aglow and the band playing and when everything was in "full blast" the park resembled a miniature Coney Island with the populace on pleasure bent.

Union Service on Sunday.

Through the courtesy of the Radcliffe Attractions Co. and by special arrangements made with that corporation a Union Service was held in the big tent on Sunday evening. This was the interesting and highly enjoyable forerunner of the three days' Festival which began on Monday. The canvass auditorium was filled to its capacity when Dr. H. W. Sears, of Waverly, Ill., began his excellent address. The subject was "Don't Worry." Dr. Sears has a very happy way of bringing home to the minds of his audience the plain truths he has to tell and his delightful manner, his well-selected illustrations and the excellence of the solid matter in his lecture completely captivated all who heard him. Rev. Mr. Higbee had the invocation, Rev. Mr. Hensley made the introduction and the Metropolitan Glee Club, of Chicago, rendered the music for the occasion.

Big Parade on Monday.

One of the best features of the three days festivities was the imposing parade on Monday morning. Hundreds of people from the country and many visitors from out of town swelled the expectant crowd of Emmitsburg citizens which lined the streets at an early hour. It was a gay, care-free lot of people; every one happy, every one wearing a good natured smile.

Promptly on the stroke of ten, the hour mentioned on the Official Programme, the Chief Marshal, Jos. R. Hoke, raised his baton and the first division headed down Main street to the stirring strains of the "Star Spangled Banner," "Maryland, My Maryland" and other patriotic airs. Rounds of applause greeted the dignified pageant as it passed and from all sides came spontaneous and genuine expressions of commendation, the consensus of opinion being that this parade would have reflected credit on a town five times as big as Emmitsburg.

The Two Divisions.

Chief Marshal Hoke led the first division, having as his staff a platoon of horsemen. The Emmitt Cornet Band followed, being at the head of the Vigilant Hose Company, which acted as an honorary escort to the Burgess and Commissioners of Emmitsburg, the latter in automobiles. Behind the town officials came the Human Flag, the Boy Scouts with ambulance corps, Red Cross Nurses, Cavalcades of Horsemen, detachments of Rough Riders and all the symbolic floats.

A Marshal and mounted aides headed the Second Division which marched behind the Monocacy Band and which included the Trades Floats representative of the manufacturing and business activities of the district. In this division were horsemen innumerable, some in regimental attire, others in grotesque costume, and many exhibits that won golden opinions from appreciative on-lookers.

Features of The Parade.

In addition to the floats and trades displays, mentioned elsewhere in detail, there were several distinctive features in the parade well worthy of note. These were the Human Flag, the Boy Scouts and the Red Cross Nurses, named in the order of their position in line. The Human Flag was made up of nearly a hundred young and pretty girls all in white and each carrying a red, a blue or white parasol. The effect of the figure outlining the National colors was exceedingly pretty and the marching and drilling of the girls, both in the parade and on the grounds, showed that the attention bestowed upon them by Miss Mary Shuff and Miss Madeline Frailey was indeed worth while.

Much credit and praise are due the Boy Scouts, a valiant, manly and soldier-like body of Emmitsburg's rising generation. Under the management of Mrs. Luther Zimmerman and Miss Edythe Nunemaker and the instructions of Mr. Samuel F. Rowe, Scout Master, this detachment, in new uniforms and with its own fife and drum corps (brought up to military standard by Mr. Wm. Bushman) made fine appearance as it swung down the street. No wonder the hearts of parents beat with pride as these soldiers in embryo passed. The Scouts had Headquarters on the field—a tent bearing the Red Cross insignia, and equipped with cots and every convenience for the comfort of any who cared to rest or who needed medical attention. Red Cross Nurses were daily in attendance. Throughout the Festival the Scouts were on hand to serve and they did it willingly and most efficiently.

A feature that would have made green with envy the eyes of the founder of that large organization of women now doing such splendid service on the blood stained battlefields of war-ridden Europe, was the Red Cross automobiles. In them rode Mrs. L. M. Zimmerman, Mrs. Dr. J. McC. Foreman, Mrs. F. H. Gross, Mrs. D. E. Stone, Mrs. A. M. Patterson, Mrs. T. E. Zimmerman, Miss Helen Zacharias, Miss Anna Gillean, Miss Edythe Nunemaker, Miss Clara M. Rowe, each in the nurse's white habit, each wearing the white cap of the order and the chevron on the sleeve. Even the chauffeur of the forward machine, Mr. John Wagerman, "looked the part," in the uniform of a field surgeon. The motors were appropriately draped in white (not even the tires showing) except for the friendly cross emblazoned on the front, the back and on the sides of the festooned cars. These dignified floats were highly praised by all and deserved the many compliments they received.

The Baby Show.

The Baby Show, under the management of Mrs. E. L. Annan, drew a tremendous crowd to the park on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Blonde babies and brunettes, boys and girls, blue eyed and brown, all pretty and all beautifully dressed, were there in charge of proud parents and amidst admiring friends. There were fifty of them, pink cheeked and smiling and each worthy of a separate prize. No wonder it required time for the judges to deliberate. These arbiters, by the way, were from out of town—members of the La Dell Concert Co., of Toronto, Canada. They looked at each child carefully and critically, as the long line passed, and then retired to the big tent to arrive at the verdict. It was a hard task and an unenviable one. Here is the result: First Prize in Class I—a Stieff silver fork. Winner, John S. Annan. Second Prize, same class, Stieff silver spoon. This was awarded to Mayberr Barr. The First Prize in Class II—a gold chain and heart went to Ethel Regina Mondorf, the Second to Charlotte Shriver. This award was a gold pin. It was a pretty sight—all those good looking children as they appeared in the huge hollow square formed by rows of appreciative spectators and one that elicited many expressions of praise.

Lectures and Entertainments.

Every lecture, beginning with Sunday's semi-sermon by Dr. Sears and ending with the excellent admonition and prophecy of Dr. Frizzell, was well worth hearing. The speakers were sincere and the subject matter of their respective talks contain food for thought and inspiration for better living, and for a better understanding of the gospel of the "Brotherhood of Man." Progress, development, expansion, high ideas, honesty of purpose, the precept and practice of the "golden rule," optimism, sympathy, these were the principles underlying each discussion.

The lecturers from the Agricultural Department and the State Agricultural School gave many valuable pointers to the farmers. They touched on various phases of farm activity; they answered relevant questions and instructed the

ROAD CONGRESS AT ATLANTA

IMPORTANT TO FARMS

Discussion of Cost of Marketing Farm Products

PROMINENT MEN TO BE PRESENT

To Facilitate Social Intercourse, School, and Church Attendance, Mail Delivery, and To Raise The Value of Farm Lands.

During the week of November 9th the Fourth American Road Congress will convene at Atlanta, Georgia and attending this Congress will be prominent men from all parts of the country. At this meeting there will be discussed the all-important subject of "Public roads as an indispensable part of the transportation system of the country, supplementing its railroads and waterways." One of the delegates will be the president of the Southern railway, Mr. Harrison, who is vice-president of the American Highway Association.

Speaking of the relation of the country highway to the railroad, Mr. Harrison says: "Whatever may be the final destination of the farm products, their first movement must be over the country road and if the farmer is to receive the largest measure of benefit from good roads the policy should be adopted of improving those highways which radiate from market towns and shipping stations and over which the farmers must haul their products. The profit which will be earned by the farmer may depend largely upon the condition of the road from his farm to a shipping station. Statistics compiled by the U. S. Department of Agriculture show that the cost of hauling farm products to shipping points over bad roads is a disproportionately large part of the total expense of their transportation to market. This is not always fully realized by the farmer, but if he will take into account the time of himself and his team, and the wear and tear on his vehicle and harness made necessary by a larger number of trips with smaller loads, he will find that the cost mounts up very fast and correspondingly reduces his net profits. Another item of the cost of bad roads to the farmer, which is often overlooked, is that he must haul his products to market when the roads are not in their best condition with little regard as to whether prices are favorable or whether hauling at that time interferes with work on the farm. With good roads he can not only haul heavier loads in shorter time but, except as to perishable commodities, he can market his products when the prices are most favorable and can do his hauling when it is most convenient and even when the ground is too wet for work in the fields.

"The manifold advantages of an improved highway in reducing the cost of drayage, facilitating social intercourse, promoting school and church attendance, expediting rural mail delivery, increasing the value of farm lands, and promoting agricultural development back from the railroads are so great that they need but to be enumerated to present a convincing argument in favor of road improvement.

"Since several years ago when the Southern Railway Company, in conjunction with the U. S. Agricultural Department and State and local authorities, operated over its lines a good roads train, carrying machinery and lecturers, and building at central points object-lesson roads, there has been substantial progress in the good roads movement throughout the South. This was accelerated in 1911 by the operation of another good roads train in co-operation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the American Highway Association. The interests of the Southern people in good roads has been thoroughly aroused and in many localities the country highways have been highly improved and are being adequately maintained.

"I think it is fortunate for the South that the American Road Congress of 1914 is to be held in Atlanta. This will unquestionably be one of the most important gatherings ever held in the Southern States. It will bring together the official heads of the State Highway Departments, the foremost experts in road construction and maintenance, and other leaders in the good roads movement in each State for an exchange of ideas as to the best methods of financing road construction and building and maintaining the best types of country highways. Its exhibits of road machinery and of model roads will be highly educational and it can not but serve to increase interest in the good roads movement throughout the South."

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK GOOD

Thirty-Five Candidates at Mount St. Mary's Report to Coach Day on Monday.—Schedule Difficult.

Mount St. Mary's is all astir with preparations for the football season. On Monday 35 candidates made formal report to Coach Day who was pleased with the excellent material he has to start with. Included in the list are: Capt. Dowdle, McManus, J. D. Kelley, Sutton, Rice, Haltigan, Dwyer, Mahoney, Sheridan, Mulhearn, Long, Cogan and Carroll of last year's first string men. Among the other candidates who will strive for a berth on the team are: Talbot, Cobb, Kane, Crouch, D. Kelley, J. C. Kelley, Zitzman, Grady, McKee, Mullaney, Allen, Stohman, Leary, Gorham, Royer, Doyle, Gallagher, Timus, Grimes, Drury, McNally, Whettle and Cahill.

Little can be predicted so early in the year as to the strength of the Varsity for the season. At present with such a large number of men reporting regularly for practice and with a loss of only two Varsity men by graduation last June, the outlook is bright.

Light practice at the rudiments of football has been in order for the past few days together with some signal practice. The squad appears to be in splendid physical condition and Capt. "Bear" Dowdle the all Maryland tackle is anxious for his men to begin scrimmage work. The Mountaineers schedule is a difficult one including games with Washington College, Western Maryland, St. Johns, Albright, Gettysburg, Catholic U. and Fordham.

SMITH RENOMINATED BY 31,272 MAJORITY

Defeats Isaac Lobe Straus in the Primary on Tuesday for the United States Senatorship.

The Democratic primary election on Tuesday, the tamest in many years, resulted in the renomination for United States Senator of John Walter Smith. In Baltimore city Mr. Smith received 14,865 votes; Mr. Straus 3,346 votes. Senator Smith carried every precinct in Frederick county with the exception of Urbana. His majority was 1,028. It was estimated that about one-fifth of the registered vote of the county turned out. This lack of interest was not particularly confined to Frederick county for the reason that all over the State there was a big shortage in the registered vote.

Price carried every county on the Eastern Shore over James F. Bright for the short-term nomination for Congress. His majority is about 4,000. For the long term, he defeated Albert W. Sisk, of Caroline, by about 3,900 majority.

Costello Also In League.

Daniel Costello who was captain of last year's nine at Mt. St. Mary's College, is now playing right field for the Pittsburgh Nationals. During the summer Costello played in the Atlantic Circuit, occupying a fielder's position on the Poughkeepsie Club. His record thus far has been good and in his initial game in league company he has the record of making three hits out of four times at bat.

Speaking in the House of Lords today, Field Marshal Earl Kitchener revealed the strength of the British expeditionary force in France and described what he believed must be done to assure a successful issue of the conflict. A steady flow of reinforcements was required, he said.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels today ordered Lieut. Felix X. Gigax to make a full investigation of all the circumstances of the disabling of the Government-supervised wireless station at Tuckerton, N. J.

Information that Sir Lionel Carden, former British Ambassador to Mexico City, had been handed his passports by Carranza, has been in the possession of the American Government for fully two weeks, according to reliable sources today.

Nine persons are known to have been killed and more than 15 injured, when an Illinois Central Freight train crashed into a street car containing about 35 passengers near Binghampton, a suburb of Memphis.

ALFALFA The Profitable Hay Crop

Yields Four to Six Cuttings a Year of Easily Cared and Most Nutritious Hay Wonderful Increases in Yield Each Successive Year.

ALFALFA "GOLD" BRAND

"Its long, branching roots penetrate far down, push and crowd the earth this way and that, and thus constitute a gigantic subsolator. These become an immense magazine of fertility. As soon as cut, they begin to decay and liberate the vast reservoir of fertilizing matter below the plow, to be drawn upon by other crops for years to come."

Alfalfa seed sown during August or September will yield four to six cuttings next season. Frequent cuttings thicken out the stalk and makes it stool out and grow off better.

Alfalfa ranks higher than Timothy in feeding value. In fact, it might be termed both corn and hay, as it is almost a complete food. Experiment stations place the feeding value of Alfalfa hay at $20 per ton, as against Timothy hay at $12 per ton. This, with the fact that Alfalfa will easily yield, on good land, 4 to 15 tons of splendid hay per year, shows what a valuable crop it is. Lands in the Western States that are well set in Alfalfa will easily yield from $100 to $200 per acre. The acreage of Alfalfa is increasing very largely all over the Middle and Southern States; our farmers are fast beginning to realize that a valuable crop it is. Alfalfa will succeed and do well on any good loamy, well-drained soil, but the land must be well and thoroughly prepared for best results.

It should never be used for pasture; it is too valuable as a hay producer to risk injury from stock. A heavy application of lime is of decided benefit—2,000 to 3,000 pounds per acre. Alfalfa is usually sown broadcast at the rate of 20 to 30 pounds to the acre. Our Alfalfa seed is the highest grade, strong germinating seed of the best and cleanest quality possible to procure.

We offer American Dry Land Non-Irrigated Alfalfa Seed, Bolgiano's "Gold" Brand Fancy, 99.73 per cent. pure.

If you want the best field seeds of any kind, always insist on getting Bolgiano's "Gold" Brand Standard Clovers and Grasses, Cow Peas, Winter Vetch, Timothy Seed, Red Clover, Crimson Clover, Alsike, Red Top or Herds Grass, Orchard Grass, Winter Oats, Tall Mead Oats Grass, Millet, Permanent Pasture Mixture, Dwarf Essex Rape, all varieties of Turnip Seed, including Cow Horn, Southern Seven Top, Yellow Globe, etc.; Cabbage, Kale, Spinach, Winter Radish. If your local merchant does not sell Bolgiano's Big Crop Seeds, drop us a postal card and we will tell you where you can get them.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY

State Scholarships in Engineering Courses.

Application for scholarships in the Department of Engineering established in the Johns Hopkins University under the provisions of the laws of Maryland Chapter 90, 1912, should now be made. Entrance examinations for all students will be held in McCoy Hall, The Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, September 22-25, 1914, beginning at 9 A. M.

If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship a competitive examination will be held at the University on the day following the September entrance examinations.

Each county of the State and each Legislative district of Baltimore city will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1914-15, in addition to those which have already been filled. There will also be vacancies in the scholarships awarded to the graduates of Loyola College, Maryland Agricultural College, Mount St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College, St. John's College, Washington College and Western Maryland College, and in the scholarships "At Large," which may be filled in October 1914.

TAKE HIS ADVICE.

The highest salaried editor in the world, Arthur Brisbane, says:

"As a friend talking to another about a certain kind of goods can influence a friend more than a stranger, so a country newspaper, standing on a footing of friendship with its readers can talk to them about goods for sale or any other topic, and impress upon them more strongly than the big metropolitan newspaper, which is really a stranger."

The judgment of an authority like Brisbane amounts to something. Take his advice, then, and advertise in THE CHRONICLE, the paper that is your friend.

SMITH FILES EXPENSES.

John Walter Has Spent $4,730.35 in Fight With Marbury.

Senator John Walter Smith has expended $4,730.35 so far to secure his re-nomination to the United States Senate. All of this sum, however, was put out in the contest between Senator Smith and William L. Marbury. No money, for which the Senator must account, has been expended in an effort to defeat Isaac Lobe Straus.

Senator Smith filed his expense account with the Secretary of the Senate in accordance with the Federal law requiring publicity of campaign contributions and expenditures. This act requires that such a statement be submitted at least 10 days before the election or primary and another at least 15 days after.

Senator Smith shows in his statement of expenditures that the bulk of the $4,730, spent in 1913, went for advertising in the Baltimore city and the county papers. More than $3,000 of the total was used to purchase advertising space. When asked what promises he had made in the event of his re-election Senator Smith said:

"I have not, nor has anyone for me, with my knowledge and consent, made any promise or pledge relative to appointment or to recommendations for appointment of any person to any position, for the purpose of securing the support of any person in my candidacy."

General Registration of Voters.

A general registration, decreed by an act of the last General Assembly, becomes effective in Maryland this year and every voter in the state must first be duly recorded by the registration officials before he can cast his ballot at the election next November. Four days of registration have been allotted, viz: September 22nd and 23rd and October 7th and 8th, with an additional day devoted solely to revision and correction of the registration records. Every voter must register in order to enjoy his franchise in November, and also that he may vote at the county and state primaries next summer. The importance of this general registration should compel the interest and direct the prompt action of every voter in Frederick county.

farmers, with practical exhibits, how to market their products to advantage.

All the musical features, the readings and the illusions of the magician were of a high order, fully reaching in every instance the standard claimed for them by the Radcliffe Attractions Co. These entertainments were well patronized and they gave everybody pleasure.

MANY BEAUTIFUL FLOATS

Originality as displayed in the numerous carefully planned floats was truly remarkable, showing that each person who entered his or her exhibit expended thought and time as well as money in gaining the desired result. It speaks well for the public spirit and the progressiveness of the community that so many merchants, manufacturers and farmers embraced this opportunity for dignified advertising.

Jos. E. Hoke.—Apparently a fully stocked grocery and general merchandise establishment constituted the large and imposing float entered by Mr. Jos. E. Hoke. Amid very attractive decorations most tastefully arranged, staple and fancy wares were in evidence everywhere, and from behind ample counters imbedded in bunting polite and wide-awake clerks distributed, free and liberally, generous samples of confectionery, cereals, etc.

C. F. Rotering.—A happy thought inspired Mr. C. F. Rotering in designing his exhibit. Mr. Rotering is the sole agent in Emmitsburg for a large clothing manufacturing company which uses very extensively the tiger as a trade mark. Nothing, then, could be more appropriate than an open cage of these fierce animals. There they were, a number of them of mammoth size in recumbent positions in various parts of the float, the color scheme of which was orange and black—doubly significant. Huge tiger heads peered out from under the driver's seat and at the back and in the midst of this group of denizens of the forest sat, with charming abandon, Miss Mary S. Welty, whip in hand, clad in most becoming costume.

Messrs. Frailey Bros.—The float of the old-established and consequently widely known firm of Frailey Brothers was conspicuous for its dignity and simplicity. A huge steel cog wheel formed the chief feature of their original and well conceived float. Leaning against a substantial upright it spoke volumes. It told of activities past and the progress of the present. It spoke of the foundry, the factory and the forge, and in its gay setting of flags and tri-colors it was a reminder of the fact that the wheels of this copartnership are always turning.

J. D. Caldwell.—The expression "good things come in small packages" or equivalent of that saying suggested itself to everyone as the unique float of Mr. J. D. Caldwell passed. Though a grocer dealing in many different products Mr. Caldwell confined himself to exploiting one important feature of his business, and his miniature team, most attractive and unusual on that account, never showed to better advantage than on this gala day of Booster Week.

H. M. Ashbaugh.—A complete hardware store on wheels is not often, if ever seen, even in this progressive age; yet through the ingenuity of Mr. H. M. Ashbaugh this is what the people had the pleasure of viewing on the streets of Emmitsburg in the big parade on Monday. A pyramid, white in color, mounted on a splendid float, formed the background against which were fastened in artistic array every conceivable kind of tool—seemingly every important and useful article that is made in steel.

H. M. Gillelan & Son.—One could have supplied one's hamper from the Meat Market of H. M. Gillelan as it trundled along the line of march, the march of progress depicted by Monday's pageant. No, the market proper was not in the parade—that stands in its accustomed place—but all that was choice was taken from it and suspended from gaily trimmed meat hooks on the large float entered by this firm. There were sides of prime beef, whole lambs and calves and choice cuts—very enticing. And the meat block was there and Mr. Robert Gillelan, himself, was there, cleaver and knives and steel and all, and the scene was very realistic. It couldn't help being; for it was the "real thing."

Michael Hoke.—"Everybody Eats At Hoke's Cafe" was the taking announcement—its truth—appearing on each side of the display made by Mr. Michael Hoke. In a bower of green vines was an oyster counter at which sat two pretty little girls, Jane Annan and Elizabeth Hoke. That they enjoyed the luscious bivalves which they lifted on their oyster forks from time to time was very evident, for they were continually smiling, with as much satisfaction as those who gazed upon their effective bunting enshrouded float.

C. & P. Telephone Co.—Loyalty to the town of Emmitsburg, where there are the most courteous and efficient operators in the State and where this company gives such excellent service, suggested the appropriateness of a float in Monday's procession. So the C. & P. Company had its construction outfit and a corps of men in line in a well gotten up businesslike looking conveyance upon which wire and rope and cross arms and insulators and tools of all kinds were displayed. The occupants of the float were not looking for "trouble along the line," but had they found it they would have "been there with the goods."

Hays Generator Co.—The float of the Hays Generator Co., exhibited, amid flags and bunting festoons gracefully arranged, a completely equipped acetylene gas engine—the type that has made this local corporation's name familiar all over the country. Had a demonstration been called for there were men there to tell all about it; but everybody knew its fine points and they preferred to admire its rich finish so well set off by its appropriate background.

Emmitsburg Broom Company. The quality of brooms made by the Emmitsburg Broom Company was demonstrated by the excellent exhibit shown in the parade on the first day of Booster Week. Large brooms, small brooms, brooms for all purposes, but of one standard—the best—were gracefully grouped and set off by patriotic colors on the float made up and entered by this enterprising local manufacturer which ships its output to many distant points.

Miss Helen K. Hoke.—If any woman was in doubt as to the proper thing in millinery she had that uncertainty dispelled by the smart and beautiful styles shown in the attractive automobile float of Miss Helen K. Hoke. Pretty girls and pretty hats go well together. This was particularly true on Monday when the occupants of Miss Hoke's float—Misses Blanche Dukehart, Nellie Rowe, Margaret Favorite and Mazie Dukehart—showed off to splendid advantage the latest creations in fall and winter hats—the "last word" on swell millinery.

E. L. Frizell.—Even in practical advertising Mr. E. L. Frizell believes in giving the youngsters a good time. It was not unexpected, then, to find his gaily decorated float filled with happy children. Mr. Frizell's exhibit included samples of his warehouse stock, even down to the handy coal bucket, filled with this necessary commodity so soon to be in demand.

M. F. Shuff.—The people of Emmitsburg know full well that in the warehouses of M. F. Shuff fine furniture is always to be had. They were doubly impressed with the fact, however, when they saw the splendid selections, from his show room, that appeared upon his large and dignified float. A miniature drawing room made up Mr. Shuff's display and in it there were representative pieces not always found in much larger establishments.

Charles M. Rider.—"He Was a Great Man." This epitaph attracted the attention of those who watched the parade to the marble monument on the unusual float of Mr. Charles M. Rider, maker of memorial shafts, tombstones and cemetery requisites. Mr. Rider's entry was in the form of a huge catafalque, with sombre drapery, at the head of which stood in contrast the graceful white stone. Incidentally if anybody thinks Mr. Rider is a "dead one" he's very much mistaken.

Matthews Bros.—The "Candy Shop" was well represented on Monday. In the float of Matthews Bros., proprietors of this busy place, there were seated at table in a moving ice cream parlor, draped in Maryland colors,—Mrs. Lewis Bell, Miss Harriet Beam and Messrs. J. C. Annan and Charles D. Gillelan, Mr. Daniel Topper was serving ice cream, made by this local firm, which the gay party was enjoying quite as much as does the large clientele that liberally patronizes the "Candy Shop"

Local Garages. Every garage in Emmitsburg was represented in the big pageant, and the public spirit and liberality of the respective proprietors was signally demonstrated on this occasion, each unselfishly and free of charge putting his or their splendid cars at the disposal of local patrons. The Emmitsburg Motor Car Co., entered all their cars, as did the New Slagle Hotel Garage and Mr. Robert Long. In addition to these many private cars were in the procession the beautiful decorations of each and all making a most effective display and adding greatly to the success of the parade.

Walter Hess.—To show in a very practical manner the large contract lumber business in which he is engaged, Mr. Walter Hess entered two four-horse floats on which appeared, bound by bunting covered chains, huge loads of shapely railroad ties. The horses wore gay plumes in their bridles and the drivers of the floats had bright rosettes upon the whips they cracked with glee.

Annan, Horner & Co.—The banking firm of Annan, Horner & Co., entered an auto float the graceful lines of which were emphasized by strands of the National Colors. The clean cut signs displayed on the front, back and sides of the car showed simply the name of this old established Bank which was founded in 1882—32 years ago. The occupants of the car were representatives of the firm, Messrs. John S. Annan, E. L. Annan and Annan Horner.

R. M. Zacharias.—The clean cut float of Mr. R. M. Zacharias, with green and white for its colors scheme, showed to splendid advantage in the long line of Trades displays on the opening day. The delicious ice cream manufactured and extensively sold by this house needs no comment and the neat sign "Zacharias' Ice Cream and Soda," displayed on each panel of the float, was all that was necessary to bring to the mind the pleasure derived from both.

M. J. Spalding.—The float of Mr. M. J. Spalding, so well known as a grower of fine peaches, was outlined in white and gold material accentuated by the liberal use of rich golden rod and filmy vines most attractively arranged. In this unique two-wheeled float rode Miss Margaret Spalding, costumed as a fairy, bearing on her arm a basket of prize winning peaches, large in size and of beautiful color. This dainty little equipage was proudly drawn by Masters Henry Troxell and Clarence Spalding.

Miss Columbia Winter.—"Monkey, monkey, bottle of beer, how many monkeys are there here?" This strain from the old nursery rhyme was heard repeatedly as the procession passed. It was sung out by Masters Edgar and Richard Spalding, as they drew along behind them a midget float on which were a number of small monkeys each holding an empty bottle that once contained that liquid refreshment that "made Milwaukee famous." The tongue, the wheels and the body of this striking little float were a mass of beautiful flowers and ferns. Miss Columbia Winter, whose taste and originality is so well known, was the designer.

John S. Hollinger.—On a "calico" pony, a fine looking little animal, rode a handsome, manly youngster, his costume literally studded with large varicolored apples, a crown of apple leaves upon his head. This was the happily conceived entry of Mr. John S. Hollinger, grower of the finest apples in this part of the country.

Edward F. Brown.—Another who deals in the output from the dairy farm, Mr. E. F. Brown, retailer of rich and refreshing milk and cream, drove his own float in the first days' procession. (Continued on page 7.)

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Lingular Hills and the Catoccin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

EMMITSBURG.

In all Western Maryland—the beauty spot and the garden spot of the State—there is no town more attractive than Emmitsburg. No people are more wide-awake, more knowledgeable, more courteous to strangers than Emmitsburgians. The location of Emmitsburg is ideal; the surrounding scenery is unmatchable; the climate is notably healthful; its water—pure mountain spring water—cannot be surpassed. It is within easy access of Baltimore, Hagerstown, Frederick; eight miles from the National Battlefield at Gettysburg, near to the Mountain Resorts, and is surrounded by fertile farms and productive orchards. Mount Saint Mary's College and Ecclesiastical Seminary—with an enviable reputation extending over 106 years—is located here; St. Joseph's College and Academy for young ladies—equally as noted during its 105 years of splendid achievement—is also here. There are excellent Schools—Public and Parochial—in Emmitsburg; two sound Banks, five Churches, a live Newspaper, modern Hotel accommodations, adequate Fire Department, progressive merchants, splendid physicians, good livery, auto garages, many fraternal organizations, good railroad accommodations. There are four or five mails a day, telegraph, express and telephone service connecting all points; electric light and power, oil streets. There is business to be had in Emmitsburg; there are Factory Sites available. If you contemplate changing your place of residence—come to Emmitsburg, Frederick County, Md.

THE GOOD OF IT.

"Success" and Emmitsburg have so justly and so often been hypothesized that to say that Emmitsburg's Booster Week was a success is to add but another laurel to her crown of local achievements.

The Booster Festival was a success—a huge success, and the good old town and the good people in it are the better in every way for having had it. There is not a man or a woman in the district to-day who attended the lectures, who listened to the music, who was present at the many, the varied and the excellent performances given under the management of the Radcliffe Attraction Company, who was not benefited, who was not repaid in full for his or her patronage.

To have a part in it and to view with pride a pageant made up of local products and representative of local enterprises; to meet frequently and informally on successive days; to rub elbows with one another; to cast care aside and, while in each others company, to be taken out of self, to be taken away from the cares of everyday life and be stimulated by new ideas; to laugh in unison at clean wit; to enjoy in common the uplift of new ideas; to have one's horizon lengthened; one's viewpoint broadened; to hear plain truths interestingly and forcefully presented; to receive just criticism meted out in kindly manner; to be inspired by entrancing music; to join with others in a common cause;—all this is helpful, energizing and worth while. It rouses one from the lethargy of routine, it smooths the rough places in the path one daily treads and combines the integral parts of a community into a whole number made up of friendliness and common interest. This was the object of the Booster Festival, this was what it accomplished, this is the good of it.

THOSE WHO HELPED.

It has often been said, and there is nothing truer, that "if you want to make a success of anything, interest the ladies." To the ladies of Emmitsburg who so generously and with such good will took hold of the Booster project is directly attributable the success of the celebration just closed. Their initiative, their practical ideas, their push and energy, their executive ability and their unselfish, painstaking, and most efficient services meant everything in this undertaking. Praise unstinted, credit justly due and thanks the most appreciative and sincere are theirs. Nor is there withheld a modicum of grateful appreciation of the yeoman work done by the men who assisted them, by that valiant little band of Boy Scouts and by each and every one who took part in this long-to-be-remembered event in the history of Emmitsburg.

Without the encouragement of public sentiment and the patronage of a generous, public-spirited community nothing worth while can be accomplished. The people of Emmitsburg and of Emmitsburg district responded liberally in this instance, proving, as they have done many and many a time, that they take a deep interest in all local affairs.

WHEN Death and the Devil confer look for horror and devastation, misery and hopelessness. Those who seek the cause of the awful tragedy being enacted abroad may find it in Boardman Robinson's striking cartoon in Harpers Weekly. Death and the Devil stand shoulder to shoulder in ruminative pose. They gaze with interest upon the wrecked armies of Europe; upon belching forts and men, infuriated, going to their doom. Death turns a sympathetic ear as the Emperor of Hell, a sardonic smile upon his repellent countenance, remarks: "Magnificent! my ideas never carried out one of my ideas more thoroughly."

"SOME parade," "The best ever seen in Emmitsburg;" "It be a Old Home Week;" "It would have done credit to a town three times this size;" "We've seen many booster parades, but this beats any we've come across;" "It was the real thing"—these were some of the many complimentary expressions heard on Monday. Sounds good, doesn't it? And it's all true.

BECOME inoculated with the "Don't Worry" serum. Don't nurse a grouch. You'll look much better, you'll feel much better, and you'll be in more congenial company.

A GREAT strategic move on the part of the Kaiser—that erstwhile "retreat forward." It seems to have been with the idea of getting a running start for a backward slide.

You can't stop the wave of public spirit and community enthusiasm. The only thing to do is to get on the crest or bow your head and let it break over you.

FIRST thing you know the war will be over before our people learn to pronounce the names of the bloomin' provinces and cities where the mix up is going on.

"WAR will boost American printing," says a foreign dispatch. "On with the dance, let joy be unconfined." Go to it fellers.

SENATOR LEE might well think favorably of that suggestion about running for governor.

WHY not "rum dum" bullets? Much more effective than the "dum dum" type.

SAME old truth—"When Emmitsburg does anything it does it right."

LET'S see, what was his name? Oh yes, Straus—Isaac Lobe.

EMMITSBURG! Be a rooster and boost her.

Homer As a War Correspondent.

The first war correspondent, according to a theory propounded by Sutherland Edwards, appears to have been Homer, who was sent by the editor of an Argos paper called the "Chronos" to describe the siege of Troy. Hostilities lasted only about seven weeks, and when they came to an end the Greek chiefs were in no hurry to return to their wives. Homer was a good sort, and, as he drew a large salary and a handsome allowance for expenses from the "Chronos," he readily accepted the scheme propounded by the wise Ulysses—to keep the war going in the columns of his paper so long as he could manage to write about it. His letters were too good not to publish, and meantime the Greek chiefs had an enjoyable time at Troy and elsewhere. Reissued in book form as "The Illiad," these early examples of war correspondence have enjoyed a wider circulation than was possible even in the columns of the "Chronos."—From the London Chronicle.

Foreigners in the United States.

In view of the war and the many nationalities and races involved therein, it is interesting to note what proportion of our population is composed of foreigners. There were 13,515,886 persons of foreign birth—14.7 per cent. of the total population—in the United States in April, 1910, the Census Bureau announced today. All were whites, except 170,341, chiefly Japanese and Chinese. The number of foreign-born white males more than 21 years old in 1910 was 6,646, 817. Of these 3,034,117 have been naturalized; 570,772 had "first papers," and 2,266,535 were aliens.

Feats of a Strong Man.

Well known in the old buffalo days of Saskatchewan was Joe Beupre, famed a thousand miles as the biggest eater in the north. Joe was not six feet tall, but he was a broad, deep, thick sort of man, with a hand like a ham and a stomach like nothing else in the world. He would eat an entire boxful of apples at one sitting and think nothing of it. Once, having encountered a gentleman who thought he was some eater, Joe consumed fifty-three pounds of buffalo meat in one day and topped off with a raw turnip, a six pound piece of pork, some lard and two loaves of bread. The best his competitor could do was thirty-seven pounds of meat. Beupre was so strong he never would fight any man for fear he should kill him. One day, while sledding on a narrow trail with an obstinate horse, he became angered, struck the horse on the head with his fist and killed it. He loosened the harness and threw the dead animal on one side of the trail. He never really knew how strong he was. Beupre died of rheumatism while still a young man.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Seventh Inning Stretch.

It is a simple ceremonial, but impressive, like all manifestations of the soul of a multitude. I need only close my eyes to call up the picture vividly. It is a day of brilliant sunshine, and a great crowd of men is seated in the open air, a crowd made up of all conditions, ages, races, temperaments and states of mind. The crowd has sat there an hour or more, while the afternoon sun has slanted deeper into the west and the shadows have crept across greensward and hard baked clay to the eastern horizon. Then, almost with a single motion—the time may be somewhere between 4 o'clock and 5 o'clock—this multitude of diverse minds and tempers rises to its feet and stands silent, while one might count twenty perhaps. Nothing is said. No high priest intones prayer for this vast congregation. Nevertheless, the impulse of 10,000 hearts is obviously focused into a single desire. When you have counted twenty the crowd sinks back to the benches. A half minute at most and the rite is over.—Simeon Strunsky in Atlantic.

Virtue of Peanuts.

The oil of the peanut has a quieting effect on the pneumogastric nerve, the largest nerve supplying the stomach. Many nervous persons who like peanuts and do not know why, like them for this reason. They quiet the nerves of the stomach. These persons should eat a few fresh roasted peanuts after each hearty meal, as many nervous conditions are due to an irritation of the pneumogastric nerve, and the peanut oil acts as a sedative to this nerve. Of course the nuts must be crisp and well chewed and not too many taken. To get the best sedative effect a handful of the hot peanuts should be eaten just before retiring. This presupposes that the powers of elimination are in good repair. The peanut, a member of the pulse family, is nutritious and would clog the system if not eaten correctly, as it is almost equal to meat.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Putting It on the Map.

Captain Cook shows in his "Voyages" how some of the mouth filling place names on maps are evolved. "Of New Zealand there is an island called by the natives 'Maturao.' One of my officers, having asked a native the name of that isle, the latter replied, 'Kematurao,' putting 'the' before the name, as is the custom. The officer, hearing the sound imperfectly, repeated his question, whereupon the native repeated his reply, emphasizing it with the word 'oefar' which means 'indeed.' So in the logbook Maturao was transformed into 'Kumettiwarro-wela.'—London Globe.

He Rivalled Cicero.

Quintus Hortensius, the Roman orator, would have come down in history with great fame had any of his speeches been preserved. He died in the year 50 B. C. He was a soldier and statesman, and his mentality can be judged from the fact that he was a rival of Cicero.

His Future Assured.

"I don't know what to do with that kid of mine." "Is he disobedient?" "Not exactly. But whenever I tell him to do a thing he wants to debate the matter a long time." "He will grow up to be a senator."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

To Remedy a Leaking Pen.

If one is troubled with a leaky fountain pen the application of a little soap to the threads of the screw will work magic. If the pen is emptied, thoroughly cleaned, filled and the soap applied there will be no more trouble until the pen needs filling again.—Exchange.

Looking Ahead.

Practical Father—Has that young man who wants to marry you any money? Romantic Young Lady—Money! He gave me a cluster diamond ring. Practical Father—Yes, I know. But has he any money left?—Exchange.

Verified.

He—And, judge, she's lost a lot of my money playing bridge. She—Don't believe him, judge. I don't know a thing about the game. He—That's right, Judge.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Envious.

"Your wife is very fond of dumb animals." "Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "Sometimes I most wish I had never learned to talk."—Washington Star.

Essay on Shoes.

Shoes come in pairs. They go the same way except in the case of solo legged persons. Horseshoes are signs of good luck except when planted in the middle of one's person by the accompanying horse.

In former times we wore shoes as seldom as possible.

Our feet were about four stubs sturdier than the stubborn glebe that Mr. Eley Gray writes about.

In the gentle springtime when we first divorced the leaky winter boots that had grown irksome the southern exposure of our farm feet was of about the consistency of patent leather.

In June it resembled horn. In September harveyized steel had nothing on our hoofs.

Between barefoot days when we attended Sunday school, circus or some other devotional exercise we wore congress gaiters.

The congress gaiters (one of ours is now on exhibition in the Smithsonian institution) had an elastic gore on each cheek.—Indianapolis Star.

Taught by Example.

Mrs. Mordcaal Hammerfest turned pale as her husband entered the dining room for breakfast.

"Mordy," she gasped, "do you—don't you feel well?"

"Perfectly," he replied in seeming surprise.

"But—but you are in your!"

"Tell me something I don't know. Pass the butter, please."

She passed the butter, remarking nervously, "But, Mordy, dear, as you came in I saw you didn't have any shoes on."

"Well, what of it? Your hair is in curl papers, isn't it?"

"Why—y—yes."

"And you have on a wrapper?"

"Yes."

"Very well, then."

And he went on eating his breakfast in silence except when he asked her to pass the butter. Then he went upstairs and finished dressing, and the next morning and on succeeding mornings she reported for breakfast in regular clothes.—Boston Journal.

Changing Matter.

"Can the diamond be destroyed by intense heat?" asks a reader.

Yes. Any substance known can be vaporized in the fierce heat of the electric furnace. The word "destroyed" should not have been used. Diamond is chemically pure carbon—that is, lamp-black—and the same quantity still exists after the diamond has vanished. Man is now able to destroy the form of all matter known to chemists—that is, matter disappears as matter, only to resolve back into its primordial electrons. These are pure electricity, and nothing else exists. These man cannot create nor destroy. All that any human can create is a thought that had not been created before. But this is a theory, for all thoughts may be eternal. But here one must stop, for our minds cannot think of the meaning of the word eternal.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Burns' Cottage.

The Burns cottage at Ayr is under the charge of trustees, who purchased it in 1881 from the Ayr Shoemakers' incorporation for the sum of £4,000. The birthplace of the poet had up till that time been in use as a public house. The trustees abandoned the license and after a time removed a hall and other extraneous buildings which had been added to the premises and restored the cottage buildings as nearly as possible to the state they may have been in in Burns' time. A new museum was built at the north-east corner of the grounds. Most of the relics were removed to the museum, which now contains a priceless collection—a first or Kilmarnock edition of the poet's work, for which £1,000 was paid, and Burns' family Bible, acquired at a cost of £1,700.—London Answers.

Beef in Boston in 1740.

A writer in the Yale Review, who notes that in 1740 beef could be bought in Boston at 12 cents a pound, seems to imply that that price was all it was worth. "Invariably a steak for dinner was heralded by the vigorous pounding with the potato masher wielded by the stalwart arm of the cook." The meat, in fact, often came, he tells us, from the carcass of "a cow that no longer gave milk or a bull that had lost its bloom."

Glove Silver.

Glove silver was the strange name given to a custom which prevailed in England during the middle ages—namely, the granting of a certain sum of money to servants to buy gloves with on Lammas day, or, as it is called now, bank holiday.—London Saturday Review.

A Mistake Avoided.

"I say, old chap, I'm in shocking luck. I want money badly and haven't the least idea where I can get it." "Well, I'm awfully glad to hear that. I thought perhaps you had an idea that you could borrow from me."—Sydney Bulletin.

Unhappy Marriages.

The reason why so few marriages are happy is because young ladies spend their time in making nets and not in making cages.—Jonathan Swift.

Boy's Mother (pecking her head out of window)—Say, you kids stop picking on my Johnny. He ain't no mandolin.—Boston Transcript.

Minds that are not improving are degenerating. Like a tree, when a mind ceases to grow it begins to die.

Lost Secret of Greeks.

No greater gift could be made to our modern world than the rediscovery of the Greek physical supremacy. The secret of the method by which for one brief period they realized perfection was long since lost, no one knows how.

At present so little do we understand the principles of training which guided the Greek in his games, in his battles and his dances and made the proportions of his figures different from ours of today that Greek sculpture is in reality a puzzle to us. Certain postures fixed by the Greek sculptor seem to us contortions, bordering on physical impossibilities. There is always a terrific controversy over the restoration of Greek sculpture, and even then the arms and heads and legs we supply never look right. All this because we do not understand the principles by which the Greek ordered the movements of his body. It was a great secret of bodily co-ordination, and the secret has been lost and with it the ability thoroughly to understand Greek art.—New York Times.

School in the Sixteenth Century. School life at Shrewsbury in the sixteenth century was a strenuous affair. Mr. Percy Adleshaw in his "Life of Sir Philip Sidney" has an interesting account of the school at that time. "The school year," he writes, "was divided into halves. From Lady day to All Saints' day the hours of attendance were from 6 o'clock in the morning till 11, the dinner hour. In the afternoon the boys studied from 12:45 till 5 o'clock. Prayers were recited at the beginning and close of the day. If a holy day occurred in the week it was a play day, but usually the weekly day for games was Thursday. One custom then begun is still observed. * * * At the earnest request and great entreaty of some man of honor, of great worship, credit or authority an extra holiday was granted to the boys. The judges of assize, when visiting Shrewsbury, are still accustomed to ask for and obtain this boon."—Westminster Gazette.

Emerson as a Vocalist. As a student at Harvard Ralph Waldo Emerson did not give much promise of his future greatness. His dissertation was spoken of as "a very good one, but too long to give much pleasure to the hearers." He was class poet, but only after seven others had been successively elected and had successively declined the honor. A story told by Arthur Stanwood Pier in "The Story of Harvard" goes to show that Emerson's musical efforts were even less appreciated. Singing in the yard was a popular diversion, and early in his freshman year Emerson, wishing to have a share in the fun, went to the singing master, who said to him, "Chord." "So I made some kind of a noise," said Emerson, "and the singing master said: 'That will do, sir. You need not come again.'"

Hidden Ability.

Old Washington White and young Calhoun Clay entered a dancing competition. But age was against Wash, and his boots, a pair of cowhides six or seven sizes too large, were against him too. The prize was awarded to the younger man. "Look-a-yere, Misto Empire," Uncle Wash growled, "whaffor yo' give de prize trow him?" "Kase he done mo' beats 'n yo' done."

"Go long, man!" said Uncle Wash. "I done a lot o' steps in dese yere big boots what yo' never see!"—New York Tribune.

Kind Editors.

Needless to say, the night was cold. Brrr! "We have used up the last stick of wood in the house," said the young artist to the brooding poet as they sat beside the embers of a fire. "What shall we do? Must I sacrifice my latest canvas?" "Hold!" said the poet. "I shall bring my rejected slips."

Muscles of the Head.

The head has seventy-seven muscles—eight for the eyes and eyelids, one for the nose, eight for the lips, eight for the jaw, eleven for the tongue, eleven for the larynx, eleven for the ears, seventeen for motions of the head and neck, one to move the hairy scalp and one for the eyebrows.

Won Her.

"Do you know," he said, "that every time I look at you I have thoughts of revenge?" "Why?" she gasped. "Because," he answered, "revenge is sweet." Then she told him she thought tomorrow would be a good time to see papa.

All Greek to Father.

"Pa, does money talk?" "Yes, my boy." "What language does it speak?" "Some foreign tongue that I'm not familiar with."—Baltimore Sun.

Divided.

"Do you have any differences of opinion in your family?" "Terrible! Why, it couldn't be any worse if we were all members of the supreme court."—Life.

Clifford Wright, a railroad employe of Brunswick, was selected as Socialist nominee for Congress in the Sixth district by the campaign committee in place of R. W. Fire destroyed the stable of Calvin Lum, on the Funkstown Pike, Saturday evening. Boys who were smoking are said accidentally to have set the stable on fire. A quantity of oats, farming implements and harness were burned.

The Value of One Shade Tree.
According to a bulletin of the Massachusetts Forestry Association, to determine the value of shade trees on streets the advice of practical real estate men was sought. A large number of these men were asked this question: "How much, in your judgment, do full grown shade trees along the street improve the value of the adjoining land for house lots?" The majority of answers ranged from 10 to 50 per cent., while some went so far as to state that a house lot would be worth 100 per cent. more if full grown shade trees were standing in front of it. A fair average of these answers falls between 25 and 40 per cent. Expert tree appraisers say that a shade tree in good condition and well placed is worth $1 per square inch of cross-section measured at breast height. At that rate a tree one foot in diameter is worth $113, while a tree two feet in diameter is worth $452. For the sake of illustration, suppose that we take a good sized house lot, 50 by 100 feet, or 5,000 square feet, worth 25 cents a foot. The land value is $1,250. If the trees are spaced 50 feet apart on the street there would be one tree in front of the property. The tree is two feet in diameter and worth $452, which would increase the value of the lot 36 per cent.

A $10,000 Discovery.
In the August Woman's Home Companion appears a department called the Exchange, in which readers contribute various household suggestions. One contributor sends in the following simple recipe for cleaning delicate fabrics without injury to color or goods, and says that the Paris Art Institute offered a $10,000 prize for the best preparation of this kind and the following recipe won the money:
"Grate raw potatoes to a pulp and add a pint of water to a pint of pulp; pass this liquid through a sieve and allow it to settle. Pour off the clear liquid, which is to be used for cleaning. Dip a sponge in the liquid and apply to the fabric till spots are removed. Rinse in tepid water and press with a warm iron on the wrong side."

Grasty No Longer Manager.

THE WEEK AT THE COUNTY SEAT
Chronicle of Happenings at Frederick City and in the Courts.

Hon. August T. Brust, of Frederick and Miss Olive Sharetts Barber, of Lime Kiln, Frederick County, were married at the home of the bride on Monday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. H. Ralph Browning, county health officer, appeared before the Board of County Commissioners yesterday to get their sanction to a more strict enforcement of the law requiring every school child to be vaccinated. ## NEW POLICY OF THE LIBRARY

A Number of Very Desirable Volumes of Fiction Ordered.—More to Follow.

At the last meeting of the management of the Public Library it was decided to order at least twenty-five new books, hoping that by following the policy of adding at one time new volumes in greater number than heretofore the clientele of the Library would be materially increased.

The latest order included the following: Diane of the Green Van, The Twenty Fourth of June, Penrod, Within the Law, Kennedy Square, Strawberry Acres, Joyce of the North Woods, Mothering on Perilous, Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary, Just Patty, The Ranch on the Oxhide, Baby Elton Quarterback, When Patty Went to College, The Blazed Trail.

The call for "new books" is quite constant and it may be that many refrain from obtaining membership because many new books are not found on their shelves.

In this connection the Library Committee begs to state that it is only too willing to order books in very large quantities whenever the funds at its disposal warrant such a course. The way, therefore to increase the supply of books is to increase the membership. The committee feels that this can very easily be done if the present membership would make a real effort to add new subscribers.

Another Passes Century Mark.

He fought for the Confederacy and prided himself on being grandfather of more persons than anyone in the world.

Best Paint

What is it?
How Devoe?
It's 160 years old; but that isn't how. It has long been the best; but that isn't how.

It has been developed by use and study; by study and use; that is how; and approved by experience, many year's; that's how.

It commends itself by long lasting and small paint-cost; not cheap by the gallon, but cheap by the job and cheap by the year and ten years, cheap by the lifetime.

The Frederick Fair Association is having erected on the northwest section of the grounds a hog pen, where eventually nearly all of the hogs to be shown at the fair will be cared for. This year, however, half of the house will be used for hogs, and the other half for cattle. There will be 28 hog pens this year, and later 56 pens will be used. The fair association now finds itself short of cattle stalls, and for this reason will use a portion of the building for cattle. The building occupies a ground space of 20 by 140 feet and while no aim at architectural beauty has been made in the new building, yet it will fulfill a much needed want on the Fairgrounds.

At the meeting of the Barbara Fritchie Memorial Association held Tuesday night in Frederick, $26.50 was turned over to the treasurer.

BOOSTER FESTIVAL

A BIG SUCCESS

"keeping up with the procession," so to speak, in every way. Mr. Brown is a progressive, as his decorated float indicated, and he believes in "purity and promptness, cleanliness and cash"—four essentials for a well conducted business like his.

David H. Guise.—Dairying is one of the specialties of Mr. David H. Guise, famous hereabout for his dairy products, and the float entered by him was in every way strikingly characteristic of this part of his business. In the float entered by Mr. Guise sat red checked dairy maids in cap and dairy costume each holding a shining milk pail in her shapely arm. Behind the float, which was decorated with specimen products from his extensive place, a farm boy led a well fed, satisfied looking Holstein cow—the Juno-eyed queen of the large herd owned by this progressive farmer.

A Fine Span.—An entry in the parade that attracted much attention was the span of black colts owned respectively by Mr. John Stewart Annan and Dr. B. I. Jamison and handled by Isaac Downey. For shapeliness, spirit and fine points the equal of this team would be hard to find. Both animals, heads aloft and shaking their black and orange rosettes, showed breeding and training and made a fine appearance.

J. Rowe Ohler—Mahlon Stonesifer.—Messrs. J. Rowe Ohler, and Mahlon Stonesifer substantial citizens, and very successful farmers entered the parade with a pretty float emblematic of their calling. Mr. Ohler drove this float which was a mass of harvest offerings, set off to advantage by clusters of ferns and flowers, here and there interspersed with touches of tri-color and flags.

J. Henry Rowe.—Yellow and white, golden rod and yarrow, decorated or rather made a complete bower of the very pretty and unusual float entered by Mr. J. Henry Rowe. On this float in regal apparel, rich and oriental, rode "Queen Columbia" and "Queen Rose," receiving the plaudits and the homage of the multitude. Two white pennants with gold lettering displayed the name, J. Henry Rowe. Without this touch of progressiveness one might well have pictured this float as a chariot from some far East caravan.

Miss Esther Murray.—Up head in a place of honor in the procession drove Miss Esther Murray, the pretty and attractive little daughter of the Bishop of Maryland. Her pony rig was one mass of bright bunting, even to the wheels. She looked the part of the little queen that she is and entered into the spirit of the occasion with a zest that captivated everyone.

Fairfield Bakery.—Mr. Harry A. Hopp has his business place in Fairfield, but his home is in Emmitsburg, the town to which he is very loyal. Therefore it was natural that he would enter a float. He did enter one, a gaily decorated float drawn by two splendid horses—a float that did credit to the Fairfield Home Bakery and to the parade.

M. S. Hardman.—Everybody knows "Murray" Hardman. They all call him by his first name because they like him. They like his work too, and they admire his community spirit. His float was entered—a brightly decked float, clean and attractive, bearing his name and announcing his business—paper hanging. He was too modest to tell what a good workman he is.

Q. G. Shoemaker.—Mr. Shoemaker evidently believes in "giving 'em both barrels;" that's why he had two floats in the procession. Both entries were well and profusely decorated and festooned, and each bore his name and announced the fact that choice meat may always be obtained at his place.

New Hotel Slagle.—As an evidence of good will and in keeping with its forward policy the management of the New Hotel Slagle entered in the pageant the commodious coach belonging to this up to date hostelry, the body of it tastefully decorated with bunting, the horses proudly nodding their heads and shaking their bright plums. It looked like the tally-ho of good old coaching days as it went along in the procession, and afterwards as it brought new arrivals to this well-known house.

THE GRAND ARMY.

"They are dropping from the ranks one by one," says the G. A. R. song—and it's true. Yet all of the one-time local Post that remain came into the parade on Monday, showing their public spirit and giving evidence of their soldierly training and bearing. Fifty years ago they marched in closed ranks, facing the enemy. Monday they rode in a modern touring car decked with the Stars and Stripes—the one flag—this time facing none but friends. In the motor rode, Messrs. Michael Hoke, John Mentzer, Thomas Frailey, Samuel Wagerman, John Glass, James Hospelhorn and Jacob Turner.

THE VIGILANT HOSE CO.

The Vigilant Hose Company, occupying the position of honor at the head of the "Booster Parade"—the head of the line being the one appropriate place for this organization of which every Emmitsburgian is rightly proud—made an unusually fine appearance as it marched in true military style and formation on Monday. The manly bearing of the men and their neat dress-parade uniforms impressed everyone. The effect of the "Star Spangled Banner" figure—a high American flag supported by a special detachment of the company was a most striking feature of the pageant to the effectiveness of which the Vigilant Hose Company added so much.

THE EXCELLENT MUSIC.

Emmitsburg is fortunate in having and proud in claiming the Emmitt Cornet Band as its own. Both in the "Booster" parade and throughout the three days' festivities this splendid band rendered music that called forth commendation, not only from local people, but visitors from afar.

The Monocacy Band, always welcome here and always engaged for special occasions, made its usual good impression and its music was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

BIG TIMES THROUGHOUT COUNTY

Home Coming and "Booster" Weeks at County Seat and in Many Towns.

The big Star Spangled Banner celebration in Baltimore inspired the whole of Maryland with the holiday spirit and the desire to put the state's products and activities in the forefront of the progressive movement that is sweeping over the entire country.

This is particularly true with regard to Frederick county. Frederick city followed in the wake of Baltimore and had a Home Coming Week and a Key Celebration that will never be forgotten by her citizens. The whole county joined in making it a tremendous success.

Emmitsburg then followed with its Booster Week, Middletown took up the idea and Brunswick will soon inaugurate a similar week.

Enthusiasm has been manifested everywhere as a result of these uplifting celebrations. New life has animated all who have taken part, the spirit of enterprise and development has been instilled into the farming community and a feeling of optimism and good cheer has left its impression everywhere. Praise and credit are due and have been meted out to those whose initiative, forethought and energy made their celebrations possible. Success has been written large on their achievements and Baltimore, Frederick and Frederick county are the better for it.

The New Fable of the Through Train, the Two Passengers and Nothing Doing in the Way of Transfers.

Two High School Heliotropes named Lib and Angie were very Thick. They had themselves photographed with their Heads together and used to Dab themselves with the same Piece of Chamois.

Whenever Lib got a new Patch for her Silk Crazy Quilt she would divide with Angie on a 50-50 Basis. And whenever Angie got ready to sleep on a Piece of Wedding Cake she would pinch out a good sizable Hunk for Lib.

Each Girl kept a Nightie at the Other Girl's House and, long after they had retired, the Inmates would hear smothered Giggles, interspersed with Fragments of what He said to Her and what She said to Him.

The Period of their Adolescence was about 30 years ago, when Romance was still alive and Knighthood was in Flower around every Dancing Academy West of Pittsburgh.

The two Chums had made a Pact. They were to be Friends forever and ever and ever and neither was to hold out anything from the other.

Each carried in a Locket a Four-Leaf Clover presented by One to whom she had bared her Soul.

After supplementing the Graded Schools with a full course of Mrs. Southworth and learning to play "The Maiden's Prayer" on the Melodeon, naught remained for them in the way of passionate Diversion except to go ahead and get Married.

They waited three years for the Fairy Prince of their Dreams to come clattering down Main Street in his Coach all White and Gold, and then began to mistrust the Schedule. So they effected the usual Compromise, falling gracefully into the awkward Embraces of two corned Lizards named Otis and Wilbur.

In the Shake-off it befell that Angie got Wilbur and Lib drew Otis. The two Brides were somewhat envious, as Wilbur was a Good-Looker with raven Pompadour and large snappy Eyes, while Otis was supposed to possess the Faculty of copping the Mazume.

However, the purpose of this Fable is to indicate that each Gal found out too late that she had Dutched her Book and backed into the wrong Pad-dock.

Fate separated the Young Couples and many a Full Moon deflated itself before Lib and Angie had another chance to get away by themselves and fill up on Oolong and cautiously exhibit their Wounds.

Wilbur was a Hustler who lacked Terminal Facilities. He was full of St. Vitus Activity and was always transferring a lot of Papers from one Pocket to another and getting ready to interest Capital in some Megatherian Enterprise paying 20 per cent per Annum, but somehow he never Arrived.

While negotiating for a Rubber Plantation in Yucatan he would hear about Two Million Acres waiting to be Irrigated in Colorado, but before he could turn on the Water he would be lured away by the Prospect of developing some Monte Carlo Proposition upon the Mesabe Range.

In the meantime he wore Celluloid Collars and owed for every Round Steak that he had carried home during the preceding Five Years.

Otis, on the Other Hand, played nothing but Cinches. He was out for the Pastry. It was not his Fault if the Widows and Orphans who invested on his Tips all wound up as Department Store Employees.

He double-crossed his Partners and whipsawed his Customers and bluffed the Courts and bulled his way into the Strongholds of Finance.

While the U. S. Grand Jury would be in Session, trying to get him with the Goods, he would be motoring in Normandy and tossing Showers of Silver to the Peasantry.

Do not mistrust the Tale, for every Buccaneer from Broad Street, N. Y., to the St. Francis Bar at the Golden Gate, was once a Poor Boy with Store Clothes on his Back and Grand Larceny in his Heart.

When Angie went to visit Lib, after the Lapse of Many Years, you can Gamble that they had Some Talk to unload.

Angie carried a Wicker Suit-Case costing $1.98 and her General Get-Up was that of the Honest Creature who may be found in any Hotel Corridor at 2 A. M. massaging the Mosaic Floor with a Hot Cloth.

"Get me!" said Wilbur's wife, dropping wearily to a Divan in the Style of Louie Quatorze. "Pipe the Lid! It is a 1906 Model and the Aigrette is made of Broom Straw. Take a Peek at the shine Tailor-Made and the Paper Shoes. Ever since they wished that False Alarm on to me I have been giving a correct Imitation of Lizzie the Honest Working Girl. Each Evening he comes home to give me a Sweet Kiss and promises me a Trip to Europe and a Set of Gray Squirrels, and next Morning, when I get up to remove the Oatmeal from the Fireless Cooker, I find on the Back Porch a large Roughneck in a Sweater who has come to shut off the Gas or take away the Parlor Furniture. Then I think of you, with your Closets hanging full of fluff Frocks and your Fingers crowded with Jewels and your Man rushing in every few Minutes to slap you in the Face with a Hundred Dollar Bill. You can take it from me, Dearie, I would jump the whole Game, were it not for the Children. I have put in my whole Life trying to realize something on a Promissory Note that was a Bloomer to begin with. He has kidded me along ever since the World's Fair at Chicago, feeding me on Canned Stuff and showing me pictures of Electric Runabouts and Country Places on Long Island. In the Meantime I am playing in Great Luck if I can get a Trolley Car to stop for me."

At this point the Wife of Otis arose and, pulling the rose-colored Silk Wrapper more closely about her made-to-order Form, interrupted with an Imperious Gesture.

"Back up, Angie!" she exclaimed. "You should be a Happy Woman. You have your Husband's Love and you have your Children, both of which are denied a Woman of my Assured Position in the Two Minute Class of the Terrible Spenders. Talk about Hardships! Do you know what it is to lead the Grand March, surrounded by 800 Assagai-Throwers, Harpooners and Cannibal Queens, who are pointing you out as the Wife of the Malefactor who is about to be Tried in the Federal Courts? Did you ever Stagger around all Evening with $100,000 worth of Tiffany Merchandis fastened on to you—expecting every Minute to be hit in the Coiffure by some Raffles? Did you ever, during a Formal Dinner, hear the Door Bell tinkle and find in the Hallway a Reporter from a Morning Paper who wishes to see your Husband if he denies his Guilt or can give any Reason why Sentence of Death should not be passed upon him? Are you Wise to the Fact that the Wife of a Successful Business Man now occupies a Niche in the Hall of Fame right next to the Sister of Jess-James? You are in Great Luck. No one takes a Shot at a Failure."

Having arrived at this cordial Understanding, each leaned against the other and had a Good Cry, after which they chirked up and paid a lot of attention to a well-preserved Bachelor who dropped in to get warm and take a slight Fall out of the Side-Board.

MORAL: When Wealth walks in at the Door, the Press Agent comes in through the Window.

One Hundred Years Ago. One hundred years ago Andrew Jackson, the future president, was appointed a major general in the United States army, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of William Henry Harrison. The appointment was in recognition of General Jackson's distinguished services in the war with the Creek Indians. The Legislature of Mississippi territory voted him a sword, and numerous other honors were bestowed upon him. General Jackson, immediately upon his appointment as major general, was assigned to the command of the Army of the South and in July he assumed command at Fort Jackson, on the Mississippi river, about 65 miles below New Orleans. Here he met the chiefs of the Creek Indians, and after much diplomacy negotiated terms of peace known as the treaty of Fort Jackson.

But Something to Dream Over. Suspicious Mama—Ethel, what detained you at the door just now when Mr. Spooner went away?
Ethel (smoothing her rumpled hair)—Nothing to speak of, mama.

Doubtful. "Is Jiggins enjoying his new automobile?"
"I don't think so. He has not been arrested once since he had it for exceeding the speed limit."

Potash Scarcity Need Not Alarm Farmer

Liberal Use of Lime Will Free Enough Soil Potash To Supply Average Farm Crops, Such As Corn And Wheat

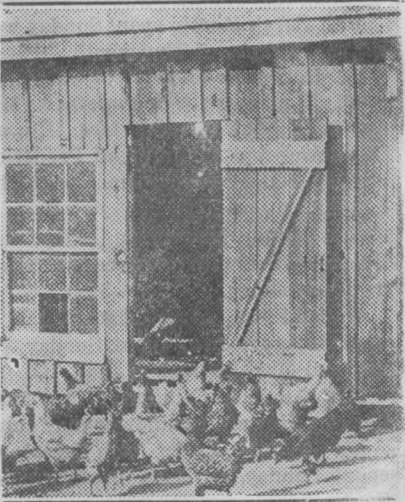

H. J. PATTERSON,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

The supply of potash for our fertilizer mixtures is now cut off by the war and since we depend largely on Germany for this material, it will probably be sometime before it will be again available. While much of the potash for the fall trade has been shipped or is in this country, the fact that there is no more in sight will cause this supply to be used sparingly and at an advanced price.

This scarcity, however, need not seriously concern the average Maryland farmer, particularly, the grower of corn and wheat. Most of our soils contain a plentiful supply of potash, which can be made available for the coming wheat crop if a liberal application of lime is used; since lime beside sweetening sour soils and liberating nitrogen from organic matter also makes the unavailable potash compounds in the soil available for the use of the crop.

Experiments carried on at the State Experiment Station through a series of years have proven that the use of lime answers the same purpose as the application of fertilizers containing potash, but only so long as there is plenty of potash in the soil. Since we find most Maryland soils rich in potash, we need not be concerned that liming will exhaust the supply for some time to come.

Bearing this fact in mind, growers are advised to dispense with fertilizer mixtures containing potash if the advance in price is due to the rise in the cost of potash. For his wheat and corn, the grower cannot afford to pay much more for his potash supply than he has in the past. In some sections, where tobacco stems and stalks can be secured, they may be used to supply potash as they contain a considerable amount. The chances are, however, that the supply will soon be exhausted under present conditions, and for the average farmer looking for a cheap source of potash for his wheat crop, no better method can be followed than liming his field before seeding.

MORE AIR NEEDED HERE.

ROY H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Many poultry raisers are too much afraid their chickens will not be warm enough. When the air gets a bit chilly they close all the doors and pull down the windows to keep the heat in. It's all well enough to keep the house as warm as possible, but when you attempt to get it warm by closing it up, you introduce a factor which is many times more detrimental to the birds. Fowls can't stand dampness any more than you can, and when you "bottle up" a lot of them in a close room the moisture they breathe out soon fills the air and causes a damp, disagreeable house; one that induces colds, roup, rheumatism and other ailments.

If your house is like the one in the above picture, get out your saw or axe or maul and make a good generous opening; one at least taking up half the front. Then cover it with wire netting and hinge up a muslin curtain to let down on the coldest nights, if you wish. The ventilation will then be good and the moisture will have a chance to get out.

Peach "yellows" is showing up abundantly in many Maryland orchards this season. Indications are that this disease has spread much farther south than in former years. It now occurs in all parts of Maryland except Calvert, St. Mary's, Wicomico, Worcester, and Somerset, having recently been found in Northern Charles and Dorchester Counties.

The commonest symptoms of the disease are prematurely ripened fruit with peculiar red spots, and the narrow yellow leaves that show up on some branches. All trees showing signs of the disease should be cut down and burned to prevent its further spread. The most opportune time for doing this is directly after the peach harvest. Complete destruction of the diseased trees is the surest way to keep the balance of your orchard in a healthy condition.
