NEUTRALS' TASK.

Problems For Scandinavia Multiplied as War Drags On.

HOPE IN NEW CONFERENCE.

Officials of Norway, Sweden and Denmark, However, Feel That They Have Yet to Deal With Real Crises of Conflict—Rumors of Sinister Intentions Are Active.

Copenhagen, Denmark.—Although no official statement has been made as to the detailed deliberations of the conference of Scandinavian premiers and foreign ministers recently held here, the meeting itself seems to have wrought a noticeable feeling of relief in the three neutral nations of the north, and there is without doubt just a little more confidence that these countries will be able to fight their way through the difficulties of the war without being drawn into the hostilities.

The position of the Scandinavian countries—Denmark, Norway and Sweden—has been more or less a delicate one ever since the war began. With each day that the fighting continues the problems of commerce and diplomacy multiply.

For almost two years each of the three countries has been dealing individually with the problems of war. There had been no thorough exchange of view since the gathering of the Scandinavian kings at Malmo in December, 1914, when the neutrality of the north formally was proclaimed. There was perhaps just a little feeling of uneasiness, attributable to a lack of counsel, when King Gustave of Sweden suggested the conference which was recently held here.

Officials of the three governments feel that, difficult and complex as has been the situation in the past, they have yet to deal with the real crises of the war. It is realized here that before peace possibly can bring an end to hostilities the situation on one side or the other must be far more desperate than it is today.

Ever so often there spreads over Scandinavia the report that Germany intends eventually to "seize" Denmark. Of course these reports seldom get beyond word of mouth—travelers returning from Germany assure their friends they heard the news from reliable sources—and consequently they do not call for official or other denials.

On the other hand, there comes just as often from Sweden or Norway the report that England, with a prolonged stress of war, would eventually shut off all supplies from the Scandinavian countries as the one sure method of stopping "leaks" to Germany and Austria. England has trade agreements with Norway and Denmark, however, which seem to be working in a satisfactory manner.

The wholly unauthenticated rumors as to the sinister intentions of the opposing belligerents are set aside, of course, as worthless. They would be completely dismissed if it were not for the ever increasing fear that there may be two or three years more of fighting. The complications that these years would bring about, the effect of the long drawn out struggle upon the belligerents and the constant encroachments upon neutral rights are looked forward to with anything but quietude.

In connection with the conference the general feeling here was that Swedish sentiment favored a more aggressive attitude by the northern states toward the belligerents. This tendency in Sweden already had been shown, it was said, by her strong protests to Great Britain against the action of that government in holding up and confiscating much of the parcel post passing between Sweden and the United States. This was followed by Sweden's act of retaliation in stopping all parcel post between England and Russia.

Norway and Denmark, on the other hand, feel that, bad as the situation is with respect to shipping, it might still be worse.

In considering the attitudes of the Scandinavian countries it must be borne in mind that in Norway and Denmark public sentiment greatly favors the allies, while in Sweden the majority sentiment appears to be pro-German. There are close ties of kinship between the reigning families of the two former countries and the royal family in England.

Making It Last.

Mistress (to chauffeur, who is crawling downhill)—Why are you driving so slowly? Chauffeur (ex-coachman)—Well, ma'am, you told me to be as economical as possible, so I was puttin' the brake on to make the down-hill last as long as possible.—London Punch.

Didn't Shave For Thirty-three Years.

St. Clairsville, O.—Robert Newlin has had the whiskers he has worn for thirty-three years shaved off. Friends figure that, including interest, he is more than $1,000 better off than if he had been getting shaved twice a week.

SAY GIRL PUPILS WORK HARDER THAN THE BOYS

Teachers Declare Girls Are Interested In Details, While Boys Give Attention to Essentials.

Minneapolis, Minn.—A characteristic difference between girls and boys was revealed in Miss Jessie Taylor's class at Whittier school when the pupils took down the following problem recently read to them by the teacher:

"What are the proceeds of a ninety days' note for $789.96 discounted at 6 per cent?"

Seven girls and two boys wrote out the problem exactly as given. Three boys jotted down the three essential conditions of the problem and nothing else. The remainder of the class abbreviated the conditions more or less, with the majority of the girls writing it out more completely than the boys.

The following interpretations were offered by various school authorities:

"Girls are interested in details, while boys are interested in essentials—this is a characteristic sex difference."

"Girls are more conscientious than boys. The latter are usually more awake to possibilities by which they may save themselves useless labor."

A history teacher, commenting upon the sex difference thus exemplified, said one of the late graduating classes, which contained more boys than girls had been keen for current events.

This class was greatly interested in woman suffrage, while another class, where the girls predominate, preferred history and takes no interest in current events.

These instances are properly coupled with two events which reveal the increased activity of schoolgirls in masculine affairs.

WEDDING RINGS THINNER.

English Government Keeps Tight Hand on Gold—Quality Not Inferior.

London.—Future war brides will have to be content with thinner wedding rings. The government is keeping a tight hand on all gold, and the practice of making jewelry from sovereigns is shortly to be stopped by legislation. London dealers say, however, there is no question of a shortage of rings. The thinner rings will not be of an inferior quality, and they will wear nearly as well as the heavier rings.

In the east end of London what, with the abundance of money, owing to war work, a tremendous trade is being done in all kinds of cheap jewelry, especially "diamond" rings.

GOT BLACK EYE FOR WAITING.

Took So Long to Answer Wife's Question She Hit Him With a Broom.

London.—The poor, weeping woman stood before the judge, and the sympathies of the spectators went out to her. She looked muscular, but so miserable.

"You are charged," said the magistrate sternly, but kindly, "with assaulting your husband."

Gulping down her sobs, the prisoner wiped away her tears with a brawny hand and replied sadly:

"Yes, your worship. I only asked the brute if he would ever cease to love me, and he was so long in answering that I hit him in the eye with a broom. I'm only a defenseless woman."

MISSING HEIR RETURNS.

Declared Legally Dead, He Came Back After Fourteen Years' Absence.

Arcola, Ill.—John Hood, long lost heir to a portion of the $200,000 estate of his father, the late James Hood of this city, has returned to Arcola after an absence of fourteen years, during which the Douglas county court declared him legally dead and consented to his share of his father's property being paid to his wife and children.

J. R. Beggs of Arcola was administrator of the estate, and he refused to accept John's supposed death as a fact, requiring that he be furnished with a bond, approved by the court, to protect himself in case the missing heir should return.

FELT SAFE IN JAIL.

Man With $1,000 Applied For Lodging at Ballston Spa.

Bollston Spa, N. Y.—Undersheriff James Betts had the surprise of his life when Peter Turton applied at the county jail for lodging and handed over $1,000 and securities for safe keeping. Turton insisted on staying in jail overnight and agreed to be arraigned as a prisoner in the police court in the morning.

Turton said he was afraid to stay at hotels for fear of being robbed. In court Magistrate Groat allowed him to go without exacting a fine from the "roll" of which Undersheriff Betts was guardian.

NOBLES AS AIR MEN

Kaiser Selects "Superior Type" Only to Pilot Zeppelins.

COURSE OF TRAINING SEVERE.

Commission in Air Service of Germany Is Considered More Honorable Than Even Crack Regiment—Seldom Fail to Pass Hard Test Because of Interest Taken.

Geneva, Switzerland.—When the English took a Zeppelin crew recently the two officers included among the prisoners were referred to in London dispatches as Germans "of quite a superior type."

They ought to have been if social and educational "superiority" was meant. The Kaiser has chosen his Zeppelin commanders as far as possible from the eldest sons of the noblest families in Germany.

That the pair on the airship which fell in the Thames estuary were of this class is not necessarily indicated by the names they gave—Captain-Lieutenant Breithaupt and Ober-Lieutenant Kuhne. It is surmised here, however, that they did not give their real names.

Selections are usually made of men between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one, and from the fact that Breithaupt is described as thirty-three years old it is guessed that he has been in the German aerial service for a long time, his earlier experience probably antedating the war and reaching back to the time when the Zeppelin was in only its experimental stage.

This is thought to accord with the story that he was decorated with the insignia of the Iron Cross and the pour le merite, implying that he has had a brilliant career and much experience as an airship commander.

Kuhne, his subordinate, is supposed to be a younger and less thoroughly tried man.

A commission in the air service is considered in Germany more honorable than even one in the crack regiments.

Training for the service begins on one of the huge rafts, each surmounted by a Zeppelin shed, on the German side of Lake Constance.

The course begins with a detailed mechanical course. Meteorological and navigation studies follow.

After three or four months of this a party of five candidates is allowed to make a flight under an experienced pilot, who explains the use of rudder, propellers, elevators and the best methods of rising and descending.

Several such trips take place, and then the most promising cadet is given command for a trial voyage under strict orders not to venture out of sight of his home shed.

Little by little these trips are extended to Berlin, Leipzig, Brussels and finally Helgoland.

By this time the student is supposed to have gained a full knowledge of handling a Zeppelin, working its engines and of the principles of aerostatics, wireless telegraphy, gunnery and the theory of flight.

In the meantime instruction in bomb dropping has not been forgotten.

The young pilot is trained always to have the wind astern, with his airship's bow pointing at his target.

Formulas have been worked out minutely, allowing both for the Zeppelin's speed and the strength of the wind.

Altitude also figures importantly in the calculations.

Practice is obtained by bomb dropping upon miniature dummy warships on Lake Constance.

At length the student is allowed to make a trial flight or two across the fighting lines and, if he acquires himself creditably, is considered ready to take part in a real raid as second in command.

A little later, if he acquires himself creditably, he is given a Zeppelin of his own.

Examinations during the period of instruction are monthly and of great severity.

In the final examination a percentage of 70 must be reached. If he fails he is dropped from the service.

So carefully are selections originally made, however; so stringent is the subsequent weeding out process and so anxious is the average young German to succeed as an airship skipper that there are said to be few failures.

MARRIED AT BIER.

Wedding Hastened to Obey Mother's Dying Wish.

Marion, O.—Conforming to the dying wishes of the bride's mother, Miss Katherine E. Titus, aged twenty-eight, and William Baumert, forty years old, were married at the bier of Mrs. Samuel Titus, mother of the bride. Mrs. Titus had been ill a week.

She expressed the wish that her daughter's marriage be hastened before her death. A telegram was sent to Baumert, and he left Montana immediately. He arrived a few hours after Mrs. Titus died, and the ceremony took place at her bier.

WAR OF "COLONELS" THREATENS GEORGIA

Real Ones Are Up In Arms Against Use of Complimentary Title In That State.

Atlanta, Ga.—A new order of things has come in Georgia and with it no less startling a radicalism than an attempt to restrict the title of "Colonel," which for generations has been an institution. Those called "Colonel" rightfully have risen in protest against the designation being applied to any one who is not justly entitled to it, and men who have been addressed as "Colonel" unchallenged for many years are up in arms against this attempt to deprive them of their "birthright."

The fight waxed warm, and the end is not in sight, for there is no way to prevent a man being called "Colonel," if his friends and the admiring public choose so to address him. Meanwhile newspapers are being besieged with communications from real "colonels" asking that the news staffs use discretion in the use of the title. All the while "pieces for the paper" concerning pseudo "colonels" reach the editors.

It is likely that Georgia has more "colonels" than any other state. In addition to the real colonels who have survived the civil war and the Spanish-American war and the colonels active and retired of the national guard and regular army, it has been the custom of governors for time immemorial to appoint upon entering office a staff of prominent men in all parts of the state with the title of "colonel."

SAVED HUSBAND'S LIFE.

Woman Was Going to Have Him Arrested, but Changed Her Mind.

Dagsboro, Del.—Instead of bringing an officer to arrest her husband for beating her, Mrs. John Burton of near Omar hurried back with a physician when she learned that during her absence he had attempted to commit suicide.

Burton and his wife had trouble, and in the fight the wife declares that Burton kicked and choked her badly. She hitched up the horse and drove to Dagsboro to have her husband arrested when she was greeted with a call to the telephone shortly after she had arrived. It was a neighbor to tell her that Burton had just swallowed a quantity of concentrated lye and was at the point of death.

Securing a physician, the woman raced the horse back and arrived in time to save the husband's life.

RUSH BRINGS NEW DISEASE

Says "Angina of Effort" Is Prevalent Among Professional Men.

Philadelphia.—The rush of modern life has produced a new disease, greatly increasing in extent and especially prevalent among doctors, teachers, clergymen, editors and other men of affairs.

Dr. Oliver S. Haines, who announced the new ailment at the Hahnemann Medical college, calls it "angina of effort." In plainer English that means a sudden shooting pain under the breast-bone because you are working too hard.

No connection with spring fever was hinted at. It comes from living too hard and sometimes from an "antagonistic attitude toward the problems of life." No happy-go-lucky person ever gets it.

BIRD CARRIES AWAY DOLLAR.

Makes Good Catch and Flies Off With Loot to a Tree Far Away.

San Bernardino, Cal.—"I'll bet you this dollar bill I can hit that blackbird over there," said Herbert Hill, a freshman at Redlands university, to a crowd of fellows as the bird fearlessly fluttered near the group as if challenging the young men to capture it.

"Take you," said another, and Hill crumpled up the bill into a ball and hurled it at the blackbird.

Hill missed. The bird flew a few feet and then circled back, seized the dollar in its bill and disappeared through the park into a tree far away. Hill could not pay the bet. Somewhere inside a blackbird's nest or under a tree a bill eventually may be found.

The Lion's Share.

"Taking the lion's share" is borrowed from Aesop. At the end of a joint hunt the animals wished to divide the booty. The lion claimed one-quarter of the spoils by right of prerogative, one for superior courage, one for his fame and cubs, and, "as for the fourth, let him who will dare dispute with me."

Crow Stops Trolley Traffic.

Reading, Pa.—A crow, alighting on an iron crossarm carrying high tension wires, created a short circuit that delayed trolley traffic on the suburban lines fifteen minutes. A few feathers were all that was left of the bird.

SILVERWARE IN MAN'S STOMACH A MYSTERY

Removal of Forks and Spoon Baffles Surgeons of Stockton—Believed He Swallowed Them When Delirious.

Stockton, Cal.—Surgeons have removed two regulation sized silver forks and a teaspoon from the stomach of Richard Williams, who formerly conducted a clothing store in this city. Removal of the silverware solved the mystery of an ailment from which Williams had suffered for about two years.

It is thought that Williams swallowed the cutlery when delirious. A year ago a surgeon operated upon him and opened an abscess which had formed in the posterior part of the stomach, evidently caused by one of the tines sticking into the tissue. Recently the surgeon made an X ray of the man's stomach and discovered the silverware. The operation was the result.

In addition to removing the forks and spoon the abscess made it necessary to make a new opening from the stomach into the duodenum. If no infection sets in Williams is expected to recover. The walls of the stomach were thick and leathery from being much inflamed.

GRANULATED SUGAR HAS HEALING POWER

Doesn't Adhere to Flesh and Obviates Necessity of Frequent Washing. German Surgeons Using It.

Berlin.—German army doctors are using sugar with great success in the treatment of wounds. The wound is dressed with granulated sugar and then bound.

The sugar does not act as a disinfectant and must not be applied until bleeding has been arrested. But when applied to a clean wound surface healing proceeds with astonishing rapidity.

No washing of the wound is necessary when redressing, which is merely a matter of renewing the application of sugar every second or third day. The sugar dressing has also the advantage that there is no adhesion to the flesh.

PENSIONS FOR GEESE.

Pair Will Have a Pond and a Grass Plot in a Zoo.

Cleveland, O.—Age, a cook executioner, a platter on the dinner table and a hungry family have no terrors for a goose and a gander penned up in Mrs. Ray Boyce's back yard at 3420 West Forty-ninth street.

Having reached the ripe old age of thirty-six years, Dick and Mary—for these geese have names—are going to be pensioned. They will spend their declining years in luxury on a pond and a plot of grass in Brookside zoo.

These geese were raised by Mrs. John Bennis, Mrs. Boyce's mother. It was her wish that they be allowed to die a natural death.

Mrs. Boyce, unable properly to care for her elderly charges, appealed to Councilman Dickerson to provide a home where they might enjoy comforts which the confines of a back yard denied them. Councilman Dickerson secured their admittance to pension privileges at the zoo.

HARVARD'S LOVE OF DRAMA

Over $20,000 Spent by Students For Tickets Last Year.

Cambridge, Mass.—During the theatrical season now closing Harvard students have paid between $20,000 and $25,000 to support the drama in all its forms, according to N. R. O'Hara, a graduate student with a fondness for statistics, who has visited the box offices of the principal theaters. Musical comedy, he finds, has the greatest following in the student body.

The down front seats, retailing at $2, have a steady sale at Harvard. Next to musical comedy, farce and the straight drama fight it out for second place. The average Harvard student, O'Hara says, sees at least five theatrical performances a year, at an average of $1 a ticket. The movies are not counted in.

COSTLY TO STEAL POLICEMAN

Fined $5 and Costs and Sentenced to Six Months For Taking Cop.

Lafayette, Ind.—A policeman in good working order here is worth $250, that and nothing more. In fact, they come so close to being a gratuity that to steal one and be caught means only the facing of a petit larceny charge.

Party De Vault was arraigned before Judge Prass the other day for the abduction of a traffic policeman. The affidavit against him read in part as follows: "Party De Vault did then and there feloniously take and steal a policeman, the property of Al Meyers, then and there being of the value of $250."

De Vault was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to six months at the state penal farm. The "policeman" he stole was an automobile decoration.

GIVES AID TO BLIND

New Head of Ohio School For Years Has Helped Sightless.

HAS AN EXCEPTIONAL CAREER.

C. F. F. Campbell Sacrifices $2,000 Yearly to Accept an Opportunity to Continue Work—Much Is Expected From Him Because of His Many Achievements.

Columbus, O.—Charles F. F. Campbell, internationally known, has assumed his duties as superintendent of the State School For the Blind, to which office he was recently unanimously elected by the state board of administration to succeed H. C. Maurer, resigned. This came after he successfully completed nearly six years of executive secretaryship of the Ohio commission for the blind.

Mr. Campbell himself is also secretary of the commission, an unsalaried position, succeeding Edward G. Pease of Dayton, resigned. By virtue of being superintendent of the state school Mr. Campbell also is an ex officio member of the commission.

This arrangement made Mr. Campbell head of the juvenile work for the blind and also made it possible for him still to continue participation in the work for the adult blind. It is for this reason that he was willing to resign a $3,500 position for one paying $1,500. He said:

"It was not a question of seeking any particular position, but rather that of accepting the greatest opportunity in the United States to do the largest amount of good for the blind in any state."

Mr. Campbell has had an exceptional career as a worker in the interests of the blind. He is the son of the late Sir Francis Campbell, founder and for forty years director of the Royal Normal College and Academy of Music For the Blind at London.

The son received his kindergarten and grammar school education side by side with blind pupils. After graduation from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1901 he took a course in pedagogy and music in the University of Leipzig. He then became an instructor in his father's school and has given his life to the blind, serving with the New York and Pennsylvania commissions.

In 1903 Mr. Campbell was asked to organize the first state association for promoting the interests of the blind in America. The following year he opened what he called an "experiment station for the trade training of the blind." In this interesting place he discovered some new industries for the blind, which today are being followed by the sightless in most of the states. During this time—in fact, before graduating from Boston "tech"—he had begun giving illustrated lectures to show how the blind can become more useful citizens in the economic world. One of the chief objects of these lectures, which took him all over Massachusetts and sometimes into Maine and New York, was to arouse the public to the necessity for creating some practical agency for aiding that considerable group of the blind who lose their sight in adult life.

Unquestionably Mr. Campbell's efforts were largely responsible for the establishment in 1906 of the first permanent state commission for the blind, and not unnaturally he was given an important position with the Massachusetts commission.

In 1910 the Pennsylvania Association For the Blind, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, was established, and Mr. Campbell was asked to start the work. Inside of eighteen months the Ohio state commission for the blind urged him to come to Ohio to reorganize its work. When he arrived in October, 1911, the annual budget was less than $3,000. At the end of 1915 he increased it to $90,000, including the sales of the work of the blind. As the result of this kind of work many predict that he will quickly bring his institution up to the same standard of efficiency that he has achieved with other organizations with which he has been connected.

Asks $1 on Ring, Offered $200.

Kansas City.—A ring which she had found and with which her children had played occasionally for two or three years was taken to the municipal loan office by a poor woman, who thought she might borrow a dollar on it. "Yes, we'll let you have a dollar or more," the manager said. "I'll let you have $200 on it, if you wish." The diamond in the ring was said to be worth $300. The woman said she supposed the diamond was an imitation.

One Cent For Smashed Nose.

Memphis, Tenn.—A jury has decided that 1 cent was damages enough for having a fellow's nose smashed in a fight and awarded a verdict in favor of George Holland against T. P. Nugent. He asked for $2,500 as damages.

CLEAN UP AND PAINT UP A CONTINUOUS CAMPAIGN

Suggestions for Making Our Town a Better Home Town—Chairman of National Bureau Says Start Now and Keep It Up the Year 'Round.

SINCE Hercules diverted the river to renovate the Augean stables "Clean Up" has had its place in the world's vernacular. With Spring the desire to refurbish comes subconsciously into the hearts of men and women, and communities. But without direction and sustained effort the expression of that desire, in the form of the ordinary "Clean Up Day" or "Week," is apt to result in a superficial sally against filth.

Years ago Allen W. Clark, a St. Louis editor, made up his mind that this natural "Clean Up" instinct could be turned to account, that it could be developed into a real campaign working toward definite ideals and accomplishing permanent results. And so, in May 1912, Mr. Clark founded the National "Clean Up and Paint Up" Campaign Bureau, with headquarters in St. Louis. He hoped that a thorough-going movement, national in its scope and practical in its principles, might take the place of the "annual bath" idea as expressed in the old-time "clean up day" or "week."

A National Civic Movement.
For four years the scope of the National Bureau's service has rapidly extended until this year it is co-operating with more than 6,000 local communities in the organization and direction of real "Clean Up and Paint Up" campaigns, not "days," or "weeks." Continuous campaigns for homes and hometowns beautiful, sanitary and safe, conducted by permanent committees, and involving the co-operation of city and town officials, club women, commercial organizations, the children, fire prevention interests, all business men and property owners, is the goal aimed at by all of the National Bureau's propaganda.

A Suggestion for Our Town.
The methods for accomplishing all of this suggested by the National Bureau are well illustrated by a brief description of the local campaign organization in St. Louis. With various adaptations this St. Louis plan has been found practicable in any city, no matter how large or small.

The entire campaign is under the direction of the Continuous St. Louis "Clean Up and Paint Up" Campaign Committee, of which Charles M. Talbert, director of streets and sewers, is chairman. On this committee are various civic and business leaders, including the leading club women of the city.

Each member of the general committee is chairman of a subcommittee responsible for some definite department of the campaign's activity. The Director of Streets and Sewers is chairman of the committee on "Refuse Clean-up," the chief of the Fire Department is chairman of the committee on fire prevention and the head of the Health Department is chairman of the committee on housing reform.

A partial list of these campaign committees, with notation of some of the objects of each follows:

- Committees for the Work.
Street Department—Household waste, permanent plan, improvement of districts which will be center of interest in coming National Democratic Convention, smooth paving, signs on public buildings, rubbish boxes.
Landscape Gardening—Ordinances, campaign among property owners, yard planting campaign among children.
Fire Prevention—Clean up rubbish, roofs, condemn shacks that are fire risks.
Housing—Insanitary yards, privies, tenements, lodging houses, garbage receptacles.
Vacant Lots—Reported by Boy Scouts, flower and vegetable gardens by school children and Real Estate Exchange, weed cutting, bird boxes.
Flower Boxes—In congested districts, downtown and opposite Union Station.
Unsightly Advertising—Posters on buildings, "For Rent" signs, ordinances.
Appearances of Buildings—Vacant buildings, painting, lighting of prominent corners.
Street Drinking Fountains—General and on downtown corners.
Smoke Abatement.
Publicity—Billboards, posters, street cars, circulars for children, buttons, newspapers, moving pictures.
Speakers—On general subject, also on special phases of campaign.
District Organization—Report nuisances, see property owners and urge to clean up and paint up and plant trees.
School Children—Distribution of printed matter, school gardens.
Police—Report nuisances, distribute directions for rubbish collections, request co-operation of residents.
The chairmen of these various committees should be the city or town officials or civic leaders who are most interested in the work to be done by the committee.

Oil For The Streets Ordered.
At a special meeting of the Burgess and Commissioners, held Wednesday evening, the dust-laying oil for which subscriptions are being received, was ordered. As stone for repairs has already been contracted for it is expected that within a very short time there will be a marked improvement in the appearance of the streets of Emmitsburg. At the same meeting several hold-over bills were passed and ordered paid, among them being counsel fees to Urner and Sebald (the Ehrhart paving case—$40, and $53 costs) and $100 to the Emmitsburg R. R. for iron for street crossings.

MRS. MARY I. FINK.
Mrs. Mary Imogen Fink, wife of P. J. Fink, died at her home in Palmyra, Pa., Thursday morning, May 25, after a short illness from heart trouble. She was aged forty-eight years.

Mrs. Fink was an exemplary Christian woman, and a devoted wife and mother. Her many friends in Emmitsburg and Taneytown, her former home, extend their sympathy to the bereaved family.

She is survived by her husband and eight children, all at home. Two brothers, Messrs. Bernard J. and Edw. M. Hobbs, of Emmitsburg, also survive.

The funeral services were held Saturday morning in St. Mary's Catholic church, Lebanon, Pa. Interment in St. Mary's Cemetery, Lebanon, Pa.

Chinese Win Game.
In one of the most sensational games ever played on Echo Field, Emmitsburg, the Chinese University of Hawaii defeated Mount St. Mary's in a 10-inning round last Friday, 2 to 1. The contest was replete with brilliant fielding by both teams and a splendid pitchers' battle between Gleason and Inman. Each pitcher allowed 7 hits. The winning run was made on an error by Camino.

The score:
R. H. E.
Chinese University.....2 7 1
Mountaineers.....1 7 2
Batteries—Gleason and Corgan; Inman and Mark.

To Convene in Frederick.
Members of the Rural Letter Carrier's Association of Maryland held their thirteenth annual meeting in the rooms of the Central Y. M. C. A., Cathedral and Franklin streets, Baltimore, Tuesday, May 30. The selection of Frederick for next year's convention, the date to be affixed later and the retention of office-holders constituted the principal business transacted.

The Frederick County Rural Letter Carrier's Association held a meeting at the City Hotel, last Saturday evening, when officers were elected. They are: J. G. Bishop, Emmitsburg, president; R. J. Day, Tescorora, vice-president; P. A. Richardson, LeGore, secretary; W. G. Miller, Frederick, treasurer.

Hurled Bricks Into Vanderbilt's Home
In the belief that he was carrying out a plot to kill John D. Rockefeller, to whom he attributed all his misfortunes, Saerbes R. Fowdleso, an anarchist, Wednesday hurled three bricks into the home of W. K. Vanderbilt, Sr., at 650 Fifth avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt and their daughter were asleep on the second floor of the mansion. When the first brick crashed through the window and broke an $800 mirror, the family were awakened and Mr. Vanderbilt ran downstairs to investigate. He appeared at the window just as Fowdleso was arrested.

"A Kentucky Belle" at Thurmont.
The Blue Ridge Summit Players will present "A Kentucky Belle," a merry medley of comedy, tragedy and melody, in the Town Hall, Thurmont, to-night at 8.15. This charming drama was twice presented in the Parish House, Blue Ridge Summit, to crowds which filled the seating and standing room to its utmost capacity. The benefit is for the Parish House.

3,000 at Pen Mar Par.
Pen Mar Park opened Tuesday with a record breaking crowd. The Western Md. ran excursions from points along the lines. Trains arrived from Baltimore, Hagerstown, Cumberland, Winchester, Martinsburg, Gettysburg and York and the Chambersburg, Green-castle and Waynesboro Trolley Co. put on a special schedule for the day.
The crowd at the park, from all sources, is estimated at 3,100.

Roofing Contract Let.
The contract for the roofing of the new Emmitsburg Savings Bank was awarded this week to the Warren Ebert Company, of Baltimore, represented by L. W. Miller. The structure will be covered with Barrett Specification Roof—the material recently adopted by the U. S. Government.

Few Pupils in County Tubercular
Of the 5,350 school children of Frederick county examined by Dr. Taliadro C. Clark, of the United States Public Health Service, and his staff of assistants, but a very small percentage were tubercular, according to one of the examining physicians. Defective teeth, vision, hearing and adenoids lead the list of physical deficiencies unearthed by the surgeons in their canvass of the county.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE--ACADEMY

Valley Echoes

Wednesday, May 27, Professor Fritz Gaul, of Baltimore, Md. resumed his directorship of the Commencement music.

The Misses Gertrude McManus, Pauline Staley, Evelyn Castleman and Nan Gable enjoyed a motor-trip to Hagerstown on last Sunday. Mrs. Bennett, an old St. Joseph's girl, formerly of Emmitsburg, entertained the party at dinner. Blue Ridge Summit, Buena Vista and other places of scenic interest served to make the day most delightful.

Commencement intelligence must not be withheld from any member of the Alumnae. Alma Mater wishes all her children to be present at the one hundredth and sixth closing of her scholastic term. Those who have lately changed their residence are requested to notify the Secretary of the Alumnae as to their present address; also that of any other member who may not be in touch with St. Joseph's. By so doing each one will receive her invitation in due time to reach "The Valley" for the opening exercises.

An indispensable part of a woman's education is that she be versed in domestic science. Each Thursday morning, the pupils of the culinary department look forward to the pleasant, albeit far from uneducational task of preparing their own dinner, "ab ovo usque ad mala." A spacious room excellently equipped with electricity, running water and every desirable convenience proves that St. Joseph's highly esteems this art. Now is the time to form plans for 1916-1917 that the class may have a greater number of members in this rare accomplishment.

The May Concert, held last Thursday night, was one of the most delightful entertainments of the term. The Academic Classes gave ample proof of the excellent work accomplished in the study of ensemble singing, considerable skill as well as harmonic intonation being displayed.

Elocution also comprised two important numbers of the program, which contributed in a generous degree to the enjoyment of the student body, while vocal and instrumental selections failed, not to be prominent factors.

Miss Lillian Long rendered, with remarkable dexterity, a difficult solo, and the effect of the same was most pleasing.

The programme:
Tribute to Our Blessed Mother, Caroline O'Gorman; Piano Solo, Me'lo'die Joyeuse, Beaumont, Margaret Gable; Semichorus, Hark! to the Mandolin, Parker, Vocal Class; Ob'ligato, Mandolin Class; Left Hand Solo, Lucia Sextette, Leschetizky, M. Linthicum; Reading, Easter Lilies, E. Kalback; Piano Duo, Knife Thrown at Colonel Roosevelt.

A knife with a four-inch blade was hurled at Colonel Roosevelt as he rode along Grand Avenue, Kansas City, in his automobile Tuesday. The attack was made during a parade which was part of a Memorial Day celebration at which Colonel Roosevelt was the orator.

The knife missed the Colonel by inches. It struck the tonneau door behind which Roosevelt sat and fell to the running board of the car. Ernest Schell, one of the American Legion Guards, who accompanied the Roosevelt car, seized the knife and turned it over to the police.

The man who threw the knife forced his way back through the crowd and escaped before any among the hundreds who saw the act could stop him.

For Larger Waynesboro.
Judge W. Rush Gillan, of the Franklin county court, has filed a decision in court in Chambersburg in which he decided that the plan to annex additional territory to Waynesboro is regular and legal and may be carried out.
The annexation of additional territory to Waynesboro means that the borough's present size will be more than doubled; that the borough property valuation will be increased by approximately $670,000, making a total valuation of $4,187,000, and the borough population will be increased by approximately 1,700.

Capt. Abner Martin, who as a pilot before the Civil War taught Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain) to navigate the Mississippi river, is dead at his home in East Liverpool, Ohio. He was 96 years old.

James J. Hill, railroad builder and financier died at his home in St. Paul, Minn., Monday morning, following an operation for infection of his thigh.

Rondo a Capriccio, L. van Beethoven From op. 129, A. Cogan, R. Conley; Chorus, Maryland, My Maryland, Academic Singing Class; Piano Solo, Grand March from Aida, Verdi, Maria de la Concepcion Ruez; Vocal Solo, Salve O Fior, Piusini, M. Cain; Reading, Tommy's Prize, K. Gloninger; Piano Solo, Valse Caprice, G. W. Cox, op. 9 No. 1, M. Sours; Vocal Solo, Ave Maria, Millard, L. Long; Piano Solo, Polonaise, Mac Dowell, op. 46 No. 12, G. McManus; Reading, Hail, Full of Grace! Gertrude McManus, president of the Children of Mary; Chorus, Good Night, Academic Singing Class.

On Thursday evening, May eighteenth, a vocal recital was given by Miss Pauline R. Staley, '16. Her programme was judiciously chosen and the rendition of the same deserves notice. Ethelbert Nevin proved to be the favorite composer; his one song entitled "The Dream-maker Man" won great applause and as a consequence it bore repetition; the words had such a delicate, tender ring and were wonderfully adapted to the music. In this number, Miss Staley showed her elocutionary ability, the posture and facial expression bespoke the hidden sweetness of the piece "Voirei Morir" by Tosti clearly demonstrated her sympathetic power, which is indeed the secret of singing "The Erl King" by Schubert, the favorite of all concert singers of note, requiring rhythmical accuracy, requiring powers of no mean degree and clarity of enunciation for the full appreciation of the theme, was delightfully interpreted by the young songstress. Although the possessor of a low mezzo soprano voice, Miss Staley met with equal success the numerous madanzas in the florid composition "La Venditrice de Fiori" of Bordise. Miss Gertrude C. McManus '16, was the accompanist.

Saint Joseph's Orchestra assisted in carrying out the programme. Though few in numbers, the members of this circle rendered their selections with facility and expression, and well merited the congratulations of the faculty, students and guests assembled for the triumph. Recital, Miss Pauline R. Staley, Mezzo Soprano; St. Joseph's Orchestra Assisting. Program: Schubert, Was ist Die Little Doll, Stars of the Summer Night, When All The World is Young Lad, Miss Staley; Mendelsohn, Priest's March from "Athalia," St. Joseph's Orchestra; Tosti, Pregariera, La Serenata, Voirei Morir, Miss Staley; Tchaikowsky, op. 37 no. 6, Barcarolle, S. J. O.; Bordise, La Venditrice de Fiori, An Original Poem. Two Roses, Miss Staley. Miss Gertrude C. Manus '16 at the piano.

J. R. Jackson Dies of Injuries.
Jacob R. Jackson, Virginia avenue, Hagerstown, who was struck by a westbound Baltimore and Ohio freight train, at Catoctin on Tuesday, of last week died at the Washington County Hospital last Thursday morning. Jackson, who was about 49 years old, and until several years ago was a member of the firm of Jackson & Keller, granite workers, was en route from his home at Hagerstown to a sanatorium at Laurel, Md., when the accident occurred.

Although careful watch was kept, Jackson eluded the eyes of his physician and left the Baltimore and Ohio passenger train at Catoctin. He wandered in front of a freight train. He was badly cut and bruised about the head and had a fractured skull.

The injured man was picked up by trainmen and taken to the Emergency Hospital, Brunswick but was afterwards removed to the Washington County Hospital, Hagerstown, where he died.

C. B. Shields Dead.

Mr. Shields has been in failing health for a number of years but only in a serious condition the last few weeks. He was aged 72 years, 9 months and 7 days.
During the Civil War Mr. Shields served two years and nine months in Company C, of Cole's Cavalry. He also belonged to Corporal Skelly Post.

Rich beds of iron ore have recently been discovered at Laiwu-Hsien in Shantung province and government experts are now investigating the deposits. Laiwu is about 30 miles east of the railway connecting Tientsin and Nanking and about 20 miles from the important town of Tsinanfu.

TELLING THE TRUTH.

It is not pleasant and profitable always to tell the truth in the columns of a newspaper. Men who have tried this heretofore have always come to grief. Only a few days ago the editor of a paper in Indiana grew tired of being called a liar, and announced that he would tell the truth in the future; and the next issue of the paper contained the following items:

"John Bonin, the laziest merchant in town, made a trip to Belleville yesterday.

"John Coyle, our grocer man, is doing a poor business. His store is dirty and dusty. How can he do much?

"Rev. Styx preached last Sunday night on 'Charity.' The sermon was punky.

"Dave Sonkey died at his home in this place. The doctor gave it out as heart failure. Whisky killed him.

"Married—Miss Sylvan Rhodes and James Conlin, last Saturday, at the Baptist parsonage. The bride is a very ordinary town girl, who doesn't know any more about cooking than a jack rabbit, and never helped her mother three days in her life. She is not a beauty by any means, and has a gait like a duck. The groom is an up-to-date loafer. He has been living off the old folks at home all his life, and is not worth shucks. It will be a hard life.

"The governor of our great state, a very ordinary man, and who was elected by accident, was here yesterday. He has very few friends here now. He promised some of the voters of this precinct a piece of the pie in event of his election, but had forgotten all about it when the time to hand over the little office rolled around."

Which reminds us of an Illinois editor who became tired of wielding the whitewash in the matter of obituaries, decided to reform and tell the truth just once. He commented as follows upon the death of a citizen:

"Died.—Aged fifty-six years, six months and thirteen days. Deceased was a mild-mannered pirate with a mouth for whisky. He came here in the night with another man's wife and joined the church at first chance. He owes us several dollars for the paper, a large meat bill, and you could hear him pray six blocks. He died singing 'Jesus Paid It All,' and we think he is right; he never paid anything himself. He was buried in an asbestos casket, and his many friends threw palm leaf fans in his grave, as he may need them. His tombstone will be a favorite resting place for hoot owls."—Publishers' Auxiliary.

Discourtesy does not spring merely from bad quality, but from severely from foolish vanity, from ignorance of what is due to others, from indolence, from stupidity, from distraction of thought, from contempt of others, from jealousy.—La Bruyere.

THE STORE THAT SERVES YOU BEST

The Hochschule, Kohn & Co. Store was founded in 1897. It began with a plain announcement of its policy and its intentions.

A clear contract was made — is still made, and will always be made — with every customer. This is the contract — it is printed on the back of every sales-check:

Our System
 Reliable goods only, at uniformly right prices. For all articles returned, if uninjured, and within reasonable time, we shall willingly refund money.

Baltimore's Best Store is the store of progress. It is not ideal, but it is striving to be.

Its aim is to please — to satisfy; and it never loses sight of the mark. It is the accepted and avowed shopping place of a great many people, in Baltimore, throughout Maryland, and in almost every other state in the Union.

ADVERTISING SIGNS ON HIGHWAYS

Campaign For Enforcement of Law Against Them Started Yesterday.
 Since the roadside Tree Law went into effect a little more than two years ago the State Board of Forestry, Baltimore, Md., which is charged with its enforcement, has by means of Forest Wardens throughout the State been engaged in the elimination of advertising signs, supervising the trimming of trees and assisting in the planting of other trees along the highways. This in itself is a big task when there are more than 16,400 miles of roads to cover and more than 2,000,000 trees to be given protection and care.
 This law, among other things, makes it a misdemeanor punishable by fine to place any advertising signs within the right-of-way of a public highway, or on private property without the written consent of the owner. While most of the roads are comparatively free of unlawful signs, there are many violations of the law even after two years of publicity and the constant tearing down of signs by the Wardens and others.
 It is the plan of the State Forester, beginning June 1st, 1916 to make a complete canvass of the State to see that all illegal advertisements are destroyed and to prosecute all violators of the law. The law has been generally posted and sufficient public notice has been given of its provisions. Advertisers should lose no time in removing their signs before the State Forester's men find them and use them as evidence against the advertisers.

A WEEKLY BUDGET OF COUNTY NEWS

Military training is to be incorporated in three Frederick county high schools, at Frederick, at Middletown and at Brunswick. Under the supervision of Lieut. Edgar Z. Steever, of the United States Army, several hundred youths will be initiated into the mysteries of the type of military training which for five years has been in vogue in Wyoming.

Superintendent G. Lloyd Palmer announced last Friday that two schools, Brunswick and Frederick, had made requisition. Middletown high school will later make requisition.

At camp the boys will learn to pitch tents, to do their own cooking and taught the important fundamentals of sanitation and personal hygiene. Extended-order drills and skirmishes, first aid to the injured, signal corps work, trench digging, map reading and map making, the secrets of wood craft and plain craft will be revealed to them.

A sale of Holstein-Friesian cattle including all the stock of that breed that will be exhibited at the Fair next October will be held the last day of the exhibition. The sale will be one of the features of the fair and it will be the means of attracting exhibitors from at least half a dozen States outside of Maryland. It is estimated that from 100 to 150 head of 'the finest cattle of the Holstein-Friesian breed that can be assembled will be offered to the highest bidder and as all of the cattle six months old and over will be tuberculin tested the sale will give home breeders an unusual opportunity to stock their farms with high grade cattle.

Judges Urner and Worthington Monday morning filed an order, subsequent to a petition filed in the case, requiring the Mayor and Aldermen to show cause on or before June 3, why they should not be proceeded against as being in contempt of Court for violation of the injunction heretofore issued, provided a copy of the petition and order be served on the defendant on or before May 30, 1916.

Stricken by paralysis Thursday night while milking a cow, Frederick W. Hankey, 69 years old, died Sunday morning at his home near Creagerstown, without regaining consciousness.

Mr. Hankey was born and raised near Creagerstown. Besides his widow, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Edward E. Krise and a brother, Mr. J. A. Hankey, both of near Creagerstown. The funeral took place Wednesday morning.

Approximately 28 veterans of the Civil War, survivors of the Union Army, observed memorial services at the Francis Scott Key monument, Mt. Olivet cemetery, on Tuesday. Although every effort was made to have the dwindling corps of survivors turn out for Tuesday afternoon's services, there were several who were unable to attend because of illness.

Manager R. W. Stake, of the Martinsburg, branch of the C. & P. Telephone Co., formerly of Frederick and Solicitor Hugh Martinsdale on last Wednesday feel they saved the life of Joseph Armbruster, whom they overtook upon the road with a severed artery and who was riding a mule eight miles to a physician. The telephone men quickly took him from the mule, tied an improvised tourniquet around his leg, stopping the alarming flow of blood, placed him in their car and dashed with all possible speed to Hedgesville.

Frederick county school officials are preparing to provide additional accommodations for school children in primary grades of Frederick. It is anticipated that all enrollment records for Frederick will be broken next September at the re-opening of schools. In order to avoid congestion Superintendent G. Lloyd Palmer requested that parents enroll Monday and Tuesday their children, coming six years of age in September, at North Market street, Girls' High School, and Washington street, schools, Frederick. This request merely applied to the primary grades. During the summer months arrangements will be made to accommodate the children.

The will of Mrs. Sarah Rosenour, mother of the Messrs. Rosenour, Frederick, probated in the Orphans' Court, Baltimore, last Friday, gives $500 to her granddaughter, Rosa Stern, and $1,000 to her daughter, Miss Celia Rosenour. The latter is also to get all her mother's furniture.

The residue of the estate is to be divided among the four daughters of the testatrix, Jennie Stern, Amelia Myers, Belle Solomon and Celia Rosenour, absolutely.

Abraham and Benjamin Rosenour, sons of the testatrix, were appointed executors without bond. The will is dated June 1, 1909. Mrs. Rosenour died April 24.
 Two rival factions, numbering in all about 100 people, appeared before the County Commissioners and argued for a considerable time over two different routes for a proposed State Aid Road to be built in the vicinity of Burkittsville. The Commissioners took no action. It is believed that eventually the two factions will get together, according to talk heard after the meeting.

With lights crippled and those of the leading machine the only guide, a Ford touring car, containing five men, members of the Washington party that visited Frederick Masons last Thursday night, left the road at Pearl, and crashed down an embankment. The men were pinned beneath the machine all being slightly injured.

Three persons were injured, one seriously, and the lives of nine others endangered Sunday morning when two large automobiles collided while going at a high rate of speed on the Frederick turnpike near West Friendship.

A young woman, said to be the daughter of H. W. Bennet, 15 Broad street, New York City, is seriously injured at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, George Hoffman, Manchester, Carroll county, has a broken leg and internal injuries. Mrs. Laura Hunt, also of Carroll county is badly injured. Mr. Bennett, his wife, children and friends, occupied the largest of the two machines, a Locomobile, in which they were en route to the Blue Ridge mountains. The other machine, a Buick touring car, was occupied by George Hoffman, John Hunt and his wife, Laura Hunt, a son, Carroll, and two daughters, Mabel and Ellen, of Manchester, Md., turned out of the Sykesville road into the turnpike and the cars crashed together.

Notables to Take Cottage at Monterey.

For the first time in its history Monterey, the delightful summer resort in the mountains, is to be the home of a legation. The Norwegian minister to the United States, H. H. Bryn, has leased a house on Monterey circle for his own occupancy during the summer and has secured the new house built by Walter Benchoff, opposite the Monterey Inn, for the use of the legation.

Mr. Bryn's staff at Washington consists of William Maltbe Johannessen, first secretary of legation; D. Steen, second secretary, and a force of clerks. All will probably be brought to Monterey for the summer, beginning early in June.

Dr. Carlos Maria de Pena, minister from Uruguay, has again leased the Stormstreet cottage at the head of the golf course, Monterey, and will move there with his family in a few weeks.

Farmers' Day at College Park.

Over two thousand farmers and their families thronged the grounds of the Maryland State College of Agriculture Tuesday in celebration of Farmers' Day, which, in point of interest and attendance from every section of the State, exceeded that of any previous occasion. The main features of the day were the Horse Show on the Experiment Station grounds in the morning and the farmers' meeting in the afternoon, at which the principal speakers were Hon. C. R. Gray, President of The Western Maryland Railroad and Robert Crain, of the Board of Trustees.

The visitors arrived by train and automobile, there being 509 automobiles on the College grounds during the day, in evidence of the prosperity of the Maryland farmer and his appreciation of good roads. The Horse and Colt Show on the Experiment Station grounds was a new feature of Farmers' Day. A number of prizes were offered.

At noon the visitors were the guests of the College at a picnic luncheon. This was a most happy feature of the day, emphasizing what a splendid opportunity Farmers' Day offers to farmers to mingle and meet with other farmers and their wives for an exchange of opinion and experience.

Col. John S. Mosby Dead.

Mosby, the noted Confederate guerrilla and commander of Mosby's Rangers in the Civil War, who after that conflict became a warm personal and political friend of President Grant and served under Grant as American Consul at Hong Kong, China, died Tuesday morning at Garfield Hospital Washington after a month's illness of a complication of diseases. He was 81 years old.

Colonel Mosby is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Stuart Mosby Coleman, of Washington, Misses Ada and Pauline Mosby, of Baltimore, one son, Beverly S. Mosby, of Spokane, Wash., and two sisters, Miss Blakely Mosby and Mrs. Charles Russell, of Washington.

The many friends of Colonel Mosby will remember his frequent visits to Emmitsburg. His daughters were graduated from St. Joseph's College, this place.

Celebration at Keysville.

On Saturday, June 10, the State Camp Patriotic Sons of America proposes to finish the work it commenced last year, in marking historic spots at Keysville. The monument at the Baumgardner farm, marking the birthplace of Francis Scott Key, will be supplemented with a marble tablet to be placed on the ground at Keysville donated by Key in 1828 for church and school purposes, and a steel flag pole in front of the Keysville school-house.

The tablet will be gray marble, sand finish, 30x18x42, with this inscription, "Francis Scott Key, author of the Star Spangled Banner, donated this ground for church and school use, in 1828. Erected by the P. O. S. of A., of Md., June 10, 1916." The flag pole will be of steel construction, the best quality to be had, 36 ft. in height, and will be kept indefinitely supplied with a flag to be used on clear days during the school months.

FREDERICK COUNTY.

Frederick is next to the largest of the counties of Maryland. In population and wealth it ranks next to Baltimore county. In the fertility and productiveness of its lands it ranks among the first in the Union, and especially in the production of wheat. The area of this great county is 633 square miles. The great body of the people are of German, English and Scotch-Irish descent, the progeny mostly of the early settlers. The land is mostly of fine limestone quality, and the greater part of the county is a valley of rolling lands lying between the Linganore Hills and the Catoctin Mountain. This splendid valley is drained by the Monocacy river, and is one of the best farmed and most highly improved and productive areas of the Union. The great crops are wheat and corn.—Maryland Manual issued by Board of Public Works.

EMMITSBURG.

In all Western Maryland—the beauty spot and the garden spot of the State—there is no town more attractive than Emmitsburg.

No people are more wide-awake, more knowledgeable, more courteous to strangers than Emmitsburgians.

The location of Emmitsburg is ideal; the surrounding scenery is unmatched; the climate is notably healthful; its water—pure mountain spring water—cannot be surpassed. It is within easy access of Baltimore, Hagerstown, Frederick; eight miles from the National Battlefield at Gettysburg, near to the Mountain Resorts, and is surrounded by fertile farms and productive orchards.

Mount Saint Mary's College and Ecclesiastical Seminary—with an enviable reputation extending over 106 years—is located here; St. Joseph's College and Academy for young ladies—equally as noted during its 105 years of splendid achievement—is also here.

There are excellent Schools—Public and Parochial—in Emmitsburg; two sound Banks, five Churches, a live Newspaper, modern Hotel accommodations, adequate Fire Department, progressive merchants, splendid physicians, good liverys, auto garages, many fraternal organizations, good railroad accommodations. MORAL MOTORS.

James Russell Lowell it was who said "The great motors of the race are moral, not intellectual." In saying this he spoke a truth. The moral influences now at work, in this country at least, give little satisfaction to those cynics who, in the shadow of their beclouded vision, think and claim that the world is getting worse all the time. The motors of the race are undoubtedly moral. These motors start and energize every movement for social betterment. And not only do they start these movements, but they attract to their cause intellectual and financial forces that only wait to act upon the initiative of others.

In what previous age has there been so much humanitarian endeavor as we see today? At what previous time has there been as great an exposition of that unwritten law of service that binds persons with power of any kind to use it for succor of the ignorant, the immoral, the misguided, the perverse, the defenseless and the needy.

That there are innumerable men of broad intellect, men of affairs applying this law of service speaks well for the age in which we live. It shows that though over busy in their various professions, crowded for time in their daily money-making callings, they recognize that there is a claim upon them quite as insistent and infinitely more important than simply amassing wealth. Hearing, above the din of turning wheels and the tick of the stock indicator, the call to active personal participation in the far-reaching cause of human welfare, they are responding, willingly, eagerly and effectively. That is why in the chronicles of accomplishment in this big work we daily find the names, as actual working agents, of noted surgeons, doctors, financiers, heads of corporations, presidents of railroads, scientists, judges, lawyers and men in all branches of mercantile life—energized by moral motors.

That is why we note such strides in mass education, moral, mental and physical hygiene, prison reform, juvenile court procedure, the housing of the poor, community sanitation, the recognition of one's moral as well as legal obligation to the body politic. That is why free libraries, free lectures, free concerts, free hospitals, public play grounds, public baths, public gymnasiums, free educational exhibits, free institutions of all kinds, now abound.

The so-called visionary "moralists," "reformers," "up-lifters," sneered at and denounced, were ever the pioneers, and it is due to them, the moral motors of the race, that the times in which we live are better than ever before. It will not be denied that their initial methods are often faulty, (the methods of every enterprise must of necessity be more or less faulty and perhaps too drastic in the beginning), but it cannot be denied that the foundation of every humanitarian movement is begun with and held together by moral cement, and that upon this foundation the moral motors work.

DISFIGUREMENT OF HIGHWAYS.

The disfigurement of highways by painted business signs has at last awakened public sentiment and public taste to a realization that this phase of commercialism is an obnoxious obsession. Along the routes of steam railways, in swampy fields, void of foliage, this obtrusion has perhaps seemed not entirely objectionable to a large class of tourists. Until the advent and almost universal use of automobiles and the construction of such a big mileage of State roads, the same indifference to these signs might have prevailed—rural travel having been confined to horse-drawn vehicles. Now, however, all this is changed. Auto-tourists by the thousands—nature lovers, appreciative of natural scenery and, as a rule possessing good taste and discriminative judgment,—note this incongruity and protest against the foisting of these crude, bizarre conglomerates upon the landscape.

The law forbidding signs on public highways, which has been operative just two years, has made a great change in the aspect of the property adjoining our State roads, but as the provisions of this law have not been fully complied with, especially by selfish private interests, greater supervision will hereafter obtain. The motorist will not be challenged by a highly colored view-barricading sign, informing him that his torpid liver may be set right by the use of certain pills. He will not be admonished to wash himself with this or that soap. No spectrum-like bill-board will by comparison criticize his apparel; nor will he be rudely apprised of his bad habits by a tin white elephant upon whose trappings there is related the virtues of a special kidney cure. Particular brands of whiskey, for which he may not care, will not be visually forced down his throat, and he will not be publicly put on the suspect list because his suspenders, his window screens, his razors, his shirts or his floor polish are not the brand indicated on segments of fences as big and as gaudy as an Aztec village.

Public sentiment, we are glad to see, is against the disfigurement of rural highways and vacant lot fences in cities and towns. So cumulative is this sentiment that we predict that the time will soon come when sign-board placarded commodities and the makers of them will be boycotted.

GERMAN FORESIGHT AND EFFICIENCY.

(Contributed)

Some years ago German scientists discovered that the chemical industry, and particularly the dyestuff industry, lent itself most readily to the manufacture of high explosives. The German Government, therefore, began to encourage and foster this industry in every possible way, and soon it became one of the most profitable enterprises in the land. But the Government was not satisfied merely that this industry should yield enormous profits; it deliberately aimed to extend it to such proportions that it might be, in time of need, converted into an explosive industry to satisfy any exigencies that a great war might create. The demand for dyes at home was not sufficient for this purpose; it was necessary, therefore, to build up an immense foreign trade. For this purpose every possible concession was granted; as, for instance, in freight rates taxes were remitted to advance the industry to the highest possible stage of development. Cooperation between the great German universities and the dyestuff industry resulted in a combination of the best education and the most talented operatives available. Moreover, pensions were granted for years of research work in chemistry.

The inevitable consequence of this governmental activity was that almost from the beginning the German dye industry has dominated the world market. Was human foresight ever more brilliantly justified than when war broke out? Note what happened: A general order was issued that the production of dyes should cease and that the factories should at once turn all their energies to the manufacture of high explosives. In every one of these factories was an abundance of crude material, such as every large business concern must keep on hand, and almost every ounce of it was capable of being made into some kind of explosive.

At this point another instance of Germany's wonderful efficiency and foresight was made manifest. Within her own borders there was every material necessary for the production of high explosives save one; namely, nitrogen. Now nitrogen compounds are the basis of all modern high explosives, and in time of war there must be a supply in unlimited quantities. Up to a few years ago, saltpeter, obtainable only from Chile, was used as the basis of all nitrogen compounds. If the enemy should gain control of the sea, Germany realized that she would be cut off from her Chilean supply; so science evolved for her the method of obtaining it from the air by the aid of a cheap electrical energy. This was obtained from the waterfalls of Norway, and large industries were established there to make the products. But all future difficulties are not provided for—Germany still faced the possibility of losing the use of the Norwegian waterpower, and this happened when England bottled up the German Navy.

In the meantime another method of obtaining the cheap electrical energy necessary for producing nitrogen from the air, was evolved. Six large plants were established on the Rhine in districts where coal was coked.

In the process of coking coal a certain gas which ordinarily went to waste is developed; this is used in internal explosion engines which are attached to enormous generators for the production of the necessary electrical energy. Thus in one operation Germany obtained not only her benzol and toluol but her nitric acid as well, which in combination make the modern high explosives.

The German Government, for the purposes of this war, is making 270,000 tons per annum of nitric acid, two-thirds of which would require 100,000 horsepower to create by the cyanimide process. The Teutons now are using over one-half a million horsepower in producing their nitric acid and doing it efficiently and successfully. The United States at this time has not a single recognized nitric acid plant in operation. Is there no lesson to be gained from the evident and sagacious efficiency of the Teutons?

The Great Civilizer.

In many recent editorial contributions and magazine articles it is conclusively proved—were new proof necessary—that the railroad is the most potent of all factors in the civilization of mankind. Not only in a commercial sense, but in an ethical and religious sense, the railway is a pioneer, for it makes possible the intercourse of nations, the broadening of ideas, the seeking of newer and better things and the escape from the undesirable. In the wake of the railway come better conditions of every sort, for better transportation advantages beget better commercial conditions, and they in turn beget more intellectual development and higher ethical standards. That the railway is built primarily as a business investment does not alter the case. No claim was ever made that the railway was an ethical enterprise, but the fact remains, whatever the motive, that the railway is the handmaid of national progress, commercial, intellectual and religious.—New York Mail.

Power of an Advertisement.

In the American Magazine is the story of a very wealthy man who made his fortune through an advertising scheme. In front of a small store in New York city a crowd was looking at a novel article exhibited in the window. The advertising man introduced himself to the proprietor of the store and said:

"You have something here that is worth a fortune if advertised. I want to advertise it."

"I don't believe much in advertising," said the man.

"I'll make you a proposition. If I triple the sales of the article in three months will you give me a half interest in the business?"

After an hour's talk the other consented. Inside of five days he called his new partner up on the phone and begged him to stop as he was sold out ten times over the capacity of his plant. The advertising man took a half interest in the business, rented a five story building, advertised for workers and inside of a month had increased the output of the article forty-fold and extended his field to other cities.

Barbers in Japan.

In Japan not only men, but women, go to the barber if there be any sign of hair on their faces. They do not permit even the soft down to grow, which the Japanese are often astonished to see left unmolested on the faces of some western women. Often, too, the eyebrows are shaved. In recent years the female barber has become a feature of the profession in Tokyo, most of these being the wives of barbers who wish to make themselves useful to their husbands, though some are independent. The 17th of every month is regarded as a barbers' holiday, when they close up shop and go to theaters and places of amusement, for which they are often furnished with free tickets, because they allow the playbills and other advertisements of the places of amusement to be posted in their shops free.

Too Much Refrain.

"Marriage!" said the sentimental man, with a sigh. "Heaven's greatest boon to man—a good wife. My friends, it is this that makes life possible, filling it with happiness and taking away all loneliness and misery. Marriage is one grand, sweet song!" he finished, with a rapturous air.

His listeners were impressed—all except a practical, looking chap in one corner, who promptly rose to his feet. "Well, marriage may not be exactly one grand, sweet song," he said slowly, "but it's certainly one grand, sweet refrain—refrain from tobacco, refrain from the theater, refrain from games, refrain from spending week ends—in fact, refrain from pretty well everything."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Flies.

Flies do not breathe through their mouths, but through holes in their bodies. Their eyes are made up of 4,000 facets. Flies are able to carry from sixty to seventy times their own weight.

Why They Walk in Circles.

"If you were lost in a desert or in a forest and tried to find your way out," says a well known scientist, "you would be almost sure to walk in a circle." This well known fact is due to a slight inequality in the length of the legs. Careful measurements of a series of skeletons have shown that only 10 per cent had the lower limbs equal in length, 35 per cent had the right limb longer than the left, while in 55 per cent the left limb was the longer.

The result of one limb being longer than the other will naturally be that a person will unconsciously take a longer step with the longer limb, and consequently will tend to the right or left, according as the left or right leg is the longer. The left leg being more frequently the longer, the inclination should take place more frequently to the right than to the left, and this conclusion is quite borne out by observations made on a number of persons when walking blindfolded. The inequality in the length of limb is not confined to any sex or race, but seems to be universal in all respects.

Courtesy in Business Pays.

In the American Magazine is a story by Fred C. Kelly to prove that courtesy in business pays. It has to do with George C. Boldt, manager of the Waldorf-Astoria in New York city and former manager of a Philadelphia hotel.

"One night when all the hotels in Philadelphia were crowded and it was almost impossible to obtain a room, man and his wife drove up to Boldt's hotel and asked in a tone of despair if he could not give them a place to sleep.

"Yes," Boldt told them, "you can take my room. That's all I have."

The next morning the guest told Boldt that a manager with his sense of courtesy would be an assured success in a much larger hotel.

"And," added the guest, "I'm willing to provide you with the hotel."

"Since then that same guest has invested many millions of dollars in hotels under Boldt's direction. The guest was William Waldorf Astor."

The Silver Fox.

The silver fox is really a black fox, instead, as some persons suppose, of being almost white or a silver gray. The name is given on account of the presence of glistening white and grayish hairs which appear among the black. In the better grades the long, silky brush has a tip of pure white. About a quarter of a century ago the little animal, which weighs when full grown only about twelve pounds, became almost extinct. Because of the beauty of its fur the species was trapped until almost the last of them had disappeared. For a long time the standard price offered by the Hudson Bay company for silver fox pelts was around $1,000, and the efforts of the French Canadians, half breeds and Indian trappers to obtain this sum, to them a fortune, can be better imagined than described.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Curious Recruiting Custom.

The Russian army in the early part of the nineteenth century had a curious way of raising troops. A levy of two to four men out of every 500 were selected and then medically examined at the army's headquarters, either at Moscow or St. Petersburg (now Petrograd). If the recruit successfully passed he was then turned over to an officer, who saw to it that he was correctly measured and, if the proper height, was sent into another apartment, where the front part of his head was shaved. If rejected as being medically unfit or short of the necessary height the back part of his head was then shorn of its locks to prevent him from appearing again among new levies.

Grocer—Yes, ma'am.

Mrs. Newed (examining it)—Why, this cheese is full of holes.

Grocer—Yes, ma'am; that's the way it comes.

Mrs. Newed—Well, I don't want any of it. I'm not going to pay for a pound of cheese that contains a half pound of holes!

Quite Deliberate.

"I am glad to say," remarked Mr. Seekton, "that I never spoke a hasty word to you."

"No, Leonidas," answered his wife rather gently; "I'm willing to give you credit for not hurrying about anything."

HARVEST YOUR OWN CRIMSON CLOVER

Farmers Advised How To Save Their Own Seed In View Of The High Prices This Season.

NICHOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

The supply of crimson clover seed for this fall will be limited as well as high priced. Every farmer will do well, therefore, to seriously consider saving at least enough crimson clover seed for his own seeding if not for commercial purposes.

There are a good many drawbacks to saving crimson clover seed for commercial purposes, the principal one of which is the tendency of the plants to shatter their seed as soon as ripe. This makes it necessary to cut the clover in just the right stage, which is usually when the last maturing seeds in the tip of the head have reached the soft, dough stage. This stage is usually reached in a week or 10 days after the first blossoms have begun to fade. There are several methods of harvesting the crop; the most successful is with the self rake reaper, which deposits the newly cut stems with heads all turned one way in small bunches at the side of the reaper out of the way of the horses on the succeeding round. These small bunches are sometimes placed 2 or 3 together in small piles to cure but usually they are left as dropped until the huller comes, when they are loaded one at a time with large tined barley fork on a tight bottom hay rack and hauled to the huller.

A Successful Method.

Another method is to cut with the mowing machine with a bunching attachment fastened to the cutter bar. If an attachment of this kind is not available then the clover may be harvested quite successfully if a little more care is used in cutting at the proper stage. Since the horses and mower will pass over the cut clover it is necessary to cut it before it will shatter readily. If it becomes too ripe it must be cut early in the morning while it is still damp from the dew, or in the evening after dew begins to fall. Some farmers cut after night until stopped by heavy dews. When cutting after dark it is necessary to attach a lantern on the end of the tongue and one on the back of the machine. When cut this way the clover should be raked and bunched while damp to prevent shattering and then handled the same as if cut with a self rake reaper.

Harvesting Small Quantities.

Where a small quantity is harvested a small canvas may be attached to the cutter bar, the two rear corners of which are held by a man walking behind. The cutter bar is set high enough to cut the stems just below the heads. The heads are dropped in piles and placed under clover or hauled direct to the huller.

The seed is generally hulled with a special huller, which is equipped with two cylinders, one for shattering the hulls off the head and the other for rubbing the hulls off the seed. Where it is desired to save only enough seed for home consumption and a huller is not available the seed may be sown with the hulls on, care being taken that a sufficient quantity is scattered over the land to secure a good stand. The only way this can be determined is to weigh a quantity of the hulls, then hull out the seed and weigh again. In this way it can be determined just how many pounds of hulls are required to furnish 12 or 15 pounds of seed per acre, which is usually the rate of seeding.

PROTECT YOUR CHICKS AGAINST VERMIN.

ROY H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Do you know how many head of live stock you have in your chicken house? If you haven't recently looked at the bottom of the roosts or in the cracks around the nests, it is about a two to one shot that you don't. Mites breed very rapidly during the warm weather and always get the start of the neglectful poultry raiser. Mites are worse than lice and anyone knows that they are bad enough. Lice do their damage mainly by annoying the fowls running about on their bodies. Mites not only do this, but they get their nourishment by biting a hole in the chicken's skin and sucking the blood. Lice live mainly by eating parts of the feathers and scales from the skin. Mites do not stay on the bird's body during the day, but stay in little clumps under the roosts and in the cracks about the house. At night they are rested up and pour over the hen's body, sometimes in large enough numbers to kill the hens outright. They injure the hens by disturbing their rest and taking nourishment from their bodies. It is much easier to keep mites out of a house than it is to get rid of them after they get in. A painting of the roosts with kerosene oil once a month will keep them down. It is a much more difficult matter to get rid of them once they get a start.

The kerosene treatment will have to be applied at least once a week for a time in order to subdue them. Some recommend the use of coal tar or gas tar for destroying mites. One application is said to be sufficient for a period of six months, if a thorough job is made of putting it on. The coal tar should be thinned with kerosene.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS ON DECORATION DAY Motorcyclist Collides With Auto, Is Badly Cut and Bruised.—Other Accidents.—Reported None Were Fatally Injured.

On Tuesday, Decoration Day, there were several automobile accidents near Emmitsburg.

Bernard Hanshaw, a motorcyclist, of Germantown, Montgomery county about 25 years old, was hurled over the radiator, breaking the wind shield of a Ford automobile belonging to Morris Gillelan, of Emmitsburg, in a head-on collision and badly cut and bruised about the face and head. Mr. Gillelan, who was driving the car, escaped injury and his daughter, Miss Loretta Gillelan, who was with him, received a laceration on one of her knees.

The accident happened on the State road almost in front of St. Joseph's College. Hanshaw was going toward Emmitsburg on his way to Gettysburg and Mr. Gillelan was driving in the opposite direction toward Thurmont.

It is said that Mr. Gillelan was driving along the right side of the road and as he approached the motorcyclist turned to the left and then back to the right side. Hanshaw who was approaching on the right side said he started to cross the road when the automobile driver also changed his course and the machines met in the middle of the road. The impact threw the motorcyclist through the windshield into the automobile, severely cutting his face in several places and badly bruising his head. His machine was almost wrecked. One of the fenders and the front of the automobile was slightly damaged. The injured man was assisted in the car of former District Attorney Baker of Washington who came along shortly after the accident and taken to Emmitsburg where his injuries were dressed by Dr. Jamison. One laceration on his face required some stitches to close. After receiving treatment he continued home with Mr. Baker. His damaged machine was sent to Washington for repairs.

Tuesday night a horse attached to a buggy driven by John Eyer, of near Emmitsburg became frightened by the light of an approaching automobile, ran into a team driven by M. R. Harbaugh accompanied by his daughter, Miss Edith Harbaugh, on the Waynesboro pike about two miles from Emmitsburg. The Harbaugh team was in front and as the Eyer team dashed past the wheels locked. While none of the occupants were hurt, the Harbaugh's made a narrow escape.

Automobiles driven by Grant Herring, near Emmitsburg, and William Kump, of Kump's Mill, collided near Emmitsburg Tuesday without damage to either machine. Both cars contained five passengers none of whom were injured.

At Feagaville the storm was also severe, and trees were uprooted and fences blown over.

COUNTY BOYS ENLIST IN MARINE CORPS SERVICE

Examinations Simple But Regid.—Sergeant Callan the Recruiting Officer is in Frederick Every Tuesday of Each Week.

The red flag of the United States Marine Corps recruiting station in Frederick and at Hagerstown, has attracted many Frederick county boys, and a large number of them have filed their applications for enlistment with Sergeant E. A. Callan, the recruiting officer. Sergeant Callan, who also has charge of the Hagerstown station is in Frederick each Tuesday of each week.

The Marine Corps is the oldest branch of the service in the United States, having been organized in 1775. July 11, 1798, it was made a permanent branch of the service. The Corps is made up of the country's most perfect men. They must be physically fit, and even their teeth are examined for fitness. The examination of applicants, while unquestionably severe, is very simple. It is merely intended to prove the candidate intelligent, of moderate education, physically sound and free from disease and bodily ailment and deformity.

Among those from Frederick county making application by mail and in person are:

TO OUR FRIENDS?

If we knew that heart was aching
From our slander's flippant fling;
We'd oftentimes weigh and borrow
Words which never cause a sting.
If we'd cast a glance about us,
Read what many faces tell;
Bet your life we'd be more prudent
For diction's cheerful spell.

If we'd realize our nature
Is of such a brand and mould;
Made for love and viture
As though wrought from purest gold.
Then all would be quite different
In this world of care and strife;
We would revel in contentment,
Be assur'd a better life.

If then these things we'd reckon
Our friends we'd kindly greet,
And so ever at their beckon
Haste, attend with charity replete.

MOCKING BIRD
 (Mimus polyglottos)

Length, ten inches. Most easily distinguished from the similarly colored loggerhead shrike by the absence of a conspicuous black stripe through the eye.

Range: Resident from southern Mexico north to California, Wyoming, Iowa, Ohio and Maryland; casual farther north.

Habits and economic status: Because of its incomparable melodies and imitative powers, the mocking bird is the most renowned singer of the western hemisphere. Even in confinement it is a masterly performer, and formerly thousands were trapped and sold for cage birds, but this reprehensible practice has been largely stopped by protective laws. It is not surprising, therefore, that the mocking bird should receive protection principally because of its ability as a songster and its preference for the vicinity of dwellings. Its place in the affections of the South is similar to that occupied by the robin in the North. It is well that this is true, for the bird appears not to earn protection from a strictly economic standpoint. About half of its diet consists of fruit, and many cultivated varieties are attacked, such as oranges, grapes, figs, strawberries, blackberries, and raspberries. Somewhat less than a fourth of the food is animal matter, and grasshoppers are the largest single element. The bird is fond of cotton worms, and is known to feed also on the chinch bug, rice weevil, and boll-worm. It is unfortunate that it does not feed on injurious insects to an extent sufficient to offset its depredations on fruit.

KILLDEER
 (Oxyechus vociferus)

Length, ten inches. Distinguished by its piercing and oft-repeated cry—kildee.

Range: Breeds throughout the United States and most of Canada; winters from central United States to South America.

Habits and economic status: The killdeer is one of the best known of the shorebird family. It often visits the farmyard and commonly nests in pastures or cornfields. It is rather suspicious, however, and on being approached takes flight with loud cries.
 It is noisy and restless, but fortunately most of its activities result in benefit to man. The food is of the same general nature as that of the upland plover, but is more varied. The killdeer feeds upon beetles, grasshoppers, caterpillars, ants, bugs, caddis flies, dragonflies, centipedes, spiders, ticks, oyster worms, earthworms,
 snails, crabs and other crustacea.
 Among the beetles consumed are such pests as the alfalfa weevil, cotton-boll weevil, clover-root weevil, clover-leaf weevil, pine weevil, billbugs, white grubs, wireworms, and leaf beetles.
 The bird also devours cotton worms, cotton cutworms, horseflies, mosquitoes, cattle ticks, and crawfish. One stomach contained hundreds of larvae of the saltmarsh mosquito, one of the most troublesome species. The killdeer preys extensively upon insects that are annoying to man and injurious to his stock and crops, and this should be enough to remove it from the list of game birds and insure its protection.
