BY ABIGAIL

Well, it's that time again . . . That time when we are bursting with enthusiasm to better ourselves and we're willing to go to any lengths to mend our ways. Mental promises and resolutions are a dime a dozen, easy to make, easy to break. And yet, I'm not as cynical as I sound because, do you know that SOME good really does come out of these so-called promises to behave myself . . . We make 25 different resolutions (and we're sincere in them, too, actually at the time of the making) but usually we wind up by sticking to perhaps only one or two out of the lot. BUT—those two little changes make us much better persons than we were before we made the promises . . . RIGHT? . . . A little bit is better than nothing in my estimation. To heck with this "all or nothing at all business" . . . One doesn't necessarily have to be a perfectionist—OR—a failure. There's usually a medium that you can reach that makes you a pretty nice guy—a regular fellow, so to speak.

Whatsay we take a gander at a few favorite resolutions most generally adopted on New Year's Day, when we're filled with such exuberance and joie de vie that we practically knock ourselves out making promises.

1. I, John or Jane Doe, do hereby resolve from this 1st day of January forward that—

1—When things go wrong for me I won't send out a barrage of electrifying ornery cuss words. I'll content myself with using "damn" and "heck."

2—That when my neighbor gets a new car or coat, I won't be catty and drop the chance remark, "Hmph! I could have one too, only I can't see starving my children to do it like they're doing."

3—That I will emphatically say, "No thank you" when I'm offered a glass of you know what or a bottle of you know what else—That is, when I know I've had my quota.

4—That I shant argue so much with my mate (in this case I should say YOU, not I). My mate's a pretty good sort. Don't know why I keep persecuting the poor soul.

5—That I'll leave five minutes earlier for church or work and surprise everyone by being on time for a change.

6—That I'll repair that hole in the roof this year—the one that's been drippin' water on my noggin' for three years.

7—That I won't give my friends a poisonous look and forget all the rules of etiquette when they drop in just as my favorite TV show is on. I've been grossly offensive on that score, I'm told.

8—That I won't have my radio blasting away all hours of the night . . . And during the day I'll keep it toned down so my neighbor can hear HIS radio, too.

9—That I simply WON'T give in to the urge of "listen-in" on my party line . . . Gosh, I'm not gonna have ANY fun, am I?

10—That I'll stop my speedy and reckless driving, save my money, watch my diet, stop berating my mother-in-law, and SAY, I'm getting out of here before I promise to give up my cowboy movies, then I may as well be dead, I mean dead.

And now, seriously, I Abigail, make one resolution that I fully and earnestly intend to keep . . . I promise in this New Year to spend a great deal more of my time in prayer—prayer to the Almighty God above to help restore peace throughout the world . . . Prayer is our mightiest and most powerful weapon against the enemy so won't you join me in this resolution.

PRAY,

YOUNG VET KILLED WHILE PAINTING

James A. Pryor, 36-year-old painter, fell seven stories to his death at University Hospital, Baltimore, Monday when a scaffold tipped and he lost his balance.

It was reported Pryor had been painting outside window frames on the eighth floor and had lowered his scaffold to the seventh floor. As he attempted to make it fast to the building, the one side slipped. He was alone on the scaffold at the time.

Pryor fell to the roof of a one-story basement structure in the hospital yard.

He was pronounced dead on the scene by a staff doctor.

A painter by trade, Pryor has been working in Baltimore for about four months, being in the employ of Blair Bros., a contracting firm there.

A veteran of World War II, he was inducted into service on April 3, 1943 and was honorably discharged from active duty on January 26, 1946.

He was a son of Mrs. Luella Pryor and the late J. Allen Pryor, Emmitsburg.

Besides his mother, who resides with a daughter at Milton, Pa., Pryor is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Ott Pryor, and three children, Diana Louise, James Allen 3rd, and Edward Eugene Pryor, all at home. Two sisters also survive; Mrs. E. E. Knipper of Clearspring, and Mrs. Frank B. Myers, Milton, Pa.

On Tuesday evening the honor guard composed of Eugene Rodgers, Louis Rosensteel, Wayne McCleaf, Everett Chrismer, William Rodgers and Jack Rosensteel, guarded the body.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the S. L. Allison Funeral Home, Emmitsburg. Rev. Fr. Francis Stauble officiated and interment was made in Mountain View Cemetery. Full military honors were paid to Pryor by members of Emmitsburg's service organizations. Pallbearers were Edgar Ashbaugh, Andrew Shorb, Curtis Topper, Harold Hoke, William Topper and Louis Rosensteel. The color bearers were Eugene Rodgers, Guy Kessler, Edgar Wastler and Vincent Topper. The firing squad was composed of Allen Bouey, Wayne McCleaf, Philip Sharpe, Thomas Harbaugh, Sam Damuth, and Paul Humerick. The bugler was "Dutch" Sanders.

Murphy A. Beall, former resident of Emmitsburg, died suddenly at his residence, 308 W. Patrick St., Frederick, Saturday morning. He became ill at home Friday night. He was 57 years old.

Mr. Beall was born in Frederick, a son of the late Albert T. W. and Blanche M. Derr Beall, both natives of Frederick. For a number of years he was an employe of the Emmitsburg Post-office. He was a veteran of World War I.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Rose Hopp Beall, and the following children: Francis A. Beall, Frederick; Thomas H. Beall, Chief Petty Officer, USN, Cuba, and Mrs. Patricia Johnson, Baltimore; a sister, Mrs. Elsie M. Fogle, Frederick, and three grandchildren.

Local Concern 'Makes' Chicago Newspaper

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman, W. Main St., are in receipt of a Chicago newspaper clipping featuring a picture of Troxell's Warehouse on W. Main St. The attraction of the store seems to be in its resemblance to the old-time country store. Several years ago a picture of the same concern appeared on the front page of a popular agriculture magazine.

Mrs. Ethel McClung and her daughter, Ruth Ellen, of Mansfield, O., spent several days visiting Miss Emma Ohler.

Tractor-Trailer Damaged In Crash

About 6:50 a. m. Tuesday morning, a truck load of cattle drawn by a tractor-trailer owned by George S. Eyster, Emmitsburg, turned over on Rt. 140 at the intersection with Rt. 91 near Finksburg.

Driver of the tractor-trailer, Wilmer S. Baker, Rt. 2, Emmitsburg, sustained a cut lip. State Trooper 1-c Charles E. Hollie, who investigated, said none of the cattle in the trailer appeared to be injured. The equipment was damaged an estimated $1200.

Riding in the cab with Baker, was Mr. Robert McNair, who received a badly bruised leg as a result of the impact. He is reported recovering satisfactorily.

Charged with failing to stop for a through highway was Wilbert L. Scarfe Sr., 63, Finksburg, traveling north on Rt. 91. Smith's tractor-trailer turned over trying to avoid Scarfe's car coming out of the side road, but the vehicles did collide.

The cattle trailer hit the parked car of Bernard L. Jackson, Westminster, and damaged the latter vehicle. Scarfe was summoned to a hearing before Magistrate Vincent A. Tubman at Westminster.

Legion To Assist In Planning Community Hall

A committee composed of Allen Bouey, Harold Hoke and Maurice Moser was appointed Tuesday night by Cmdr. William Topper to represent the Francis X. Elder Post to meet with other representatives of the town's organizations to lay plans for a town hall for Emmitsburg.

The members discussed at length at their regular meeting in the Post Home the need and how beneficial it would be to Emmitsburg if a community hall were built. It was pointed out that the Legion Post would cooperate fully in getting this new project started for the town.

One new member was added to the Post. He was Clarence Eyer.

Francis Sanders was reappointed to represent the Post at the Community Fund.

Members attending Tuesday night's meeting stood in silent reverence for 30 seconds to honor their departed comrade, James Pryor, who died from a fall from a scaffold Monday.

Following the meeting, the auxiliary served refreshments.

Mr. Price was sworn into office in a simple ceremony by Associate Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer. He was elected in November, defeating Mr. Nikirk, who was seeking his third term. Because he entered the armed services, Mr. Nikirk served only a part of his first term which began in 1942.

Former State Senator John B. Funk of Brunswick, also qualified in the Clerk's office as a member of the State Planning Commission, designated as chairman, for a term of four years from June 1, 1950, under appointment of Gov. Lane. Mr. Funk has been the State engineer and one of the leading figures in the Lane administration.

LOCAL TRAFFIC COURT HAS BUSY SESSION

Culminating an 11-mile nightmarish chase, a 22-year-old youth of Thurmont, was arrested by State Trooper 1/c Kenneth Bond, Dec. 27. Trooper Bond reported he began pacing the Chevrolet machine at Martin's Service Center, Thurmont and after signalling the youth to stop, he instead, speeded up his car and a mad chase over curvy and icy roads began, ending near Tuscarora Creek, about 11 miles distant from the beginning of the chase.

Trooper Bond reported the speeder turned off to the left at the Walkersville turnoff on Route 15 and took a farm lane to the right about a mile from the cutoff, proceeding to the farm outbuildings and into a field, where he doused the car lights hoping to evade arrest.

Tried before Magistrate Jacob E. Baker, Emmitsburg, Friday night, the youth pleaded to two charges—exceeding 70 miles per hour and attempting to avoid arrest by cutting off his lights. Magistrate Baker strongly reprimanded the youth and stated that had he not already enlisted in the navy and surrendered his driver's license to the state motor vehicle commissioner, he would have issued a jail term for the offense. Son of a prominent Thurmont family, the youth had three previous arrests for speeding. The magistrate fined the violator $200 and costs.

In other cases tried before the local magistrate Friday night, William F. Rogers, Machias, N. Y., forfeited $6.45 on a charge of having no registration card in his possession; James T. Parrish, Raleigh, N. C., forfeited $6.45 on a charge of failing to keep to the center of the highway; Paul H. Liskie, Kearneysville, W. Lockwood, Bridgeport, Conn., forfeited $6.45 on a charge of failing to keep to the right of the highway; George R. Henline, Inwood, W. Va., forfeited $6.45 for failing to obey a traffic signal north of Thurmont. All charges were preferred by Trooper Bond.

In a rumpus at Wagaman's Tavern, Emmitsburg, on Dec. 24, Jack William Frost, Carlisle, and Abraham Lincoln Kuhn, R. 2, Gardners, Pa., were arrested for drunkenness and disorderly conduct by Trooper Bond. Frost paid a fine of $50.80 and Kuhn was assessed $25.80 for their part in the affair.

Brickley S. Orndorff, Gettysburg R. D. 3, forfeited collateral of $6.45 on a charge of exceeding 25 miles per hour, preferred by Trooper Bond, in a restricted zone.

Correction, please—It was incorrectly stated in last week's issue of the Chronicle that Miss Margy Clair had returned to classes after a siege of polio. Miss Clair was not a victim of this disease, but she is resuming her studies in Missouri. Miss Rosemary Welty, a polio victim, since early October, has resumed her studies.

Dec. 20 proved a victorious day for the girls' basketball team. It was its first victory against two defeats. St. John's, Westminster registered 17 points, while St. Joe's tallied 32. A return game at Westminster will be played at the Armory on Jan. 10. On Feb. 2, St. John's will return to St. Joe's, and Keymar has scheduled a game here on Jan. 8.

With the spirit of Christmas still hovering over all of us, the annual Christmas dance was held on Dec. 27. Gene Frock's orchestra furnished the music, and the door prize, a box of candy, was won by Margaret Rocks. The interior of the gym was decorated with miniature angels and candles tied with a huge red crepe bow. Red, white, and green crepe paper completed the decorations with a sprig of mistletoe hanging from the ceiling.

When suave and good-humored Bob Young was in New York for a brief visit last week, I had a chance for a short chat with him at a studio reception, and got him on the subject of his radio "family." As the title hero of NBC's gay and very human comedy drama, "Father Knows Best," Bob plays the dad of two irrepressible teen-agers — and of a third child just teetering on the brink of her teens.

smallest Anderson, "Kathy" in "Father Knows Best," and "Ted Donaldson" is her brother "Bud," while Rhoda Williams is "Kathy." June Whitley is "Father's" better half.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Jan. 5—Various organizations have been formed to protect the small stockholders. The two most active are the B. C. Forbes Group and Independent Investors, Inc. of New York City. The basic difficulty with them all is that the members are so widely scattered geographically that it is very difficult to get them together for action.

All Combined Against You

Your best help should come from your local bank. It has your money and exists upon the deposits of the merchants, nearby farmers and small stockholders. Most banks will do what they can for you and make no charge. Naturally, you don't dare go to a lawyer for fear he will charge for saying, "Howdy"; while your poor minister never saw a stock or bond. As a result of this condition, there are many companies, whose stock was bought by readers like you, which have gone completely bust.

You can cuss Franklin Roosevelt for many things, but he certainly tried to protect small stockholders. His difficulty was that he left the solution to theoretical bureaucrats who made the "prospectuses" so long and complicated that very few investors can make "head or tail" out of them. Yet, if you have been "stuck" by a stock salesman, you should write the Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D. C. It will cost you nothing; you will get a reply; and they may help you get your money back.

Importance of Records

Another suggestion is that you write the New York Stock Exchange, Broad St., New York City. This is an honest organization which is now very anxious to have friends. If you can prove that one of its member firms or any employe thereof has definitely wronged you, a committee of the Exchange will call the member firm before it and force the firm to make up your loss. You will not need to employ any lawyer or go to New York if you have followed these three rules:—

- 1—Insist that all your dealings in stocks be in writing. Before giving a salesman an order, make him write you all he has said. Never listen to a stock salesman on the telephone.
 - 2—When buying any stock, have the salesman give you a receipt stating of whom he bought the stock, and what he paid for it, and what his commission is for making the sale.
 - 3—Save all these papers and put them in the envelope with the stock certificate, which envelope you—of course—will keep in your safe deposit box. The very fact that you take such precautions, after telling the salesman that you are to do so, will surely cause him to be honest with you and perhaps withdraw the offering.
- The above is no criticism of stock salesmen as a class. Most of them represent good firms

Trim Maternity

You can still look your best while waiting for that blessed event in this trim rayon-crepe two-piece print. Available in green, brown, or navy, with tie, it's featured in the January issue of Good Housekeeping magazine. A Jess Sharaf maternity classic, the dress retails for about $11.

Cheese Cookery

If you want your family to say, "May I have some more cheese, please?" you might try following these rules for successful cheese cookery. First, go easy on heat—overheating makes cheese tough and stringy. The second rule states that cheese should be added to other ingredients in small bits, not large pieces. Finally, the third rule says that, whenever possible, cheese should be blended into a smooth sauce before being added to other ingredients.

and are honest. But with your small funds you cannot afford to lose anything. Everyone Should Be A Stockholder

The fact that I urge the above three rules, should not keep you from buying stocks. Your bank checking accounts now pay no interest; while savings accounts pay very little. Yet, you can buy safe stocks paying over 6%. Your local banker should be able to supply you a list of stocks which have paid some dividend for over 50 years. Rich people buy such stocks; they don't leave money in savings banks. Yet, the small investor needs 6% much more than do rich people. Diversify widely by distributing your money over a very large number of stocks—or else employ honest and long-established investment advisors.

Another thing, all investors—large and small—should sit down tonight and write their Congressman how excessive corporate taxes are hurting everybody. Certainly, the present double taxation on dividends is absolutely unfair. The idea of "paying as we go" for war does not seem logical, because if World War III comes it will be fought for our grandchildren and their children, as well as for us. As for inflation, we, of course, should avoid it in times of peace; but the nation has always had it as the result of war and we still survive. A great need of the U. S. today is the encouragement of thrift and small investors.

Fairchild To Assist Kaiser Corp.

"At the request of the Air Force," Fairchild Aircraft said this week it is cooperating with Henry J. Kaiser to help the automobile builder get started building troop-carrying transport planes.

The Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp., Hagerstown, designed and has been the only builder of the improved version of the C-82 Packet and the C-119.

Although no order has been announced, the Kaiser-Frazer Co. has been talking with the Air Force about building the large carriers at its Willow Run plant. However, the Air Force, appears to be sympathetic to giving Kaiser contracts to build them.

President Richard S. Bonetle of the Fairchild firm, issued this statement:

"At the request of the U. S. Air Force we are cooperating with Henry J. Kaiser to the fullest extent possible. Now under consideration is an assistance agreement by which Fairchild personnel and know how will be used to assist the Kaiser-Frazer Co. in getting its production underway. Fairchild recognizes that it may be necessary in the interests of national defense to use other industries for aircraft production."

Health Resolution Proves Boon To Sound Body

Once more, New Year's resolutions time has passed. With the best of intentions, people all over the country are making another new start toward good habits.

Among those who actually make a list of their good intentions, many will be surprised to note how some of their resolutions directly concern their own health, whether they consider themselves "health conscious" or not.

Many of us will resolve to get to bed earlier, cut down on drinking or smoking, or get weight back to normal by exercise and proper diet.

Perhaps this is evidence of our instinct of self-preservation. The average person realizes that he may not have much time to enjoy the good things of this life if he literally shortens his own life by unhealthful living.

Besides, full enjoyment of the good things of life is impossible without good health. In turn, one cannot achieve or hold on to good health if he defies the rules of healthful living day in and day out, year after year.

And the basic rules of good health are fairly simple. They include personal cleanliness, a nutritious and well-balanced diet, sufficient physical exercise in the fresh air, adequate rest and sleep, avoidance of chill and exposure, and last, but not least, regular medical checkups.

We all greet the New Year with the hope of pleasant things to come. The pleasant things will be more enjoyable and the rougher spots easier to face and overcome when we keep our resolutions to make this a healthier year.

Mr. Quinn, 46, and a native of Jermyn, Pa., is a Democrat.

It is believed generally that he is the first man ever to be appointed assistant to governors of different political parties in other states.

Quinn will draw $10,000 annually as assistant to McKeldin.

Health Officer Warns on Proper Sanitation Facilities

Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of Health, has written letters to the County Commissioners of every county in Maryland calling their attention to the numerous insanitary conditions existing in housing developments and on individual properties as a result of improper sewage disposal. These unfavorable conditions are found mainly in areas where no public sewers are available and where a sewage disposal system is provided for each property.

Under Section 381, Article 43 of the 1939 Annotated Code, plats of all subdivisions and a statement as to methods proposed for supplying the properties with water and sewerage service must be filed with the State Board of Health before being placed on the market and before any building operations are undertaken. If public sewers are not readily available engineers of the State Dept. of Health make soil tests to determine whether septic tank effluent can be absorbed underground, results being reported to the county health department and the developer.

Dr. Riley has requested county commissioners to refer all applications for new building construction to their local health departments before issuing building permits or their equivalent. Such a procedure would further the program of the State Dept. of Health by enabling its engineers to inspect the property and advise the builder or owner as to the proper means of sewage disposal, thus preventing the creation of many insanitary conditions similar to those already existing in various sections of the State.

It has also been suggested that boards of county commissioners adopt local ordinances specifying minimum sizes of lots for all new subdivisions so that adequate space is provided for development of a safe water supply and proper sewage disposal. Such action would reinforce the authority of the regulations adopted by the State Board of Health.

Finally, the director of health has recommended the appointment of a county zoning and planning authority in each county of Maryland, as authorized in Article 66-B of the 1939 Annotated Code. This would facilitate general and long-range planning of developments and their sanitary systems.

Alcohol Provides Driver With Feeling Of False Security

It has been frequently stated, and it can be demonstrated in the laboratory, that alcohol and gasoline do not mix. Despite this fact, many persons continue to drink alcoholic beverages even though they are fully aware that they are going to operate a motor vehicle with a short time after the drink has been taken. Some of these people operate under the belief that "a small one" won't hurt them, and some even believe that the consumption of alcohol improves their driving ability.

The experience of the Chief Medical Examiner's Office in Baltimore offers serious refutation to these beliefs. In all deaths caused by motor vehicles in 1949, routine analyses for alcohol were conducted in those cases in which death occurred within 24 hours of the time of injury. The results of these analyses indicate that even moderate drinking of alcoholic beverages affects adversely the judgment and skill of many individuals.

False Security
For example, analyses showed in 15 fatalities of drivers of passenger cars indicated that only eight of these persons had no alcohol while seven had consumed some alcoholic beverage. Almost half of those tested, therefore, had been drinking prior to the accident. Three of the seven positive cases had concentrations of alcohol commonly judged to be within the "safe" range, but it is difficult to deny the fact that some persons would have poorer reflexes than normal with even such low alcohol concentrations, and hence would be more likely to be involved in an accident.

Four of the drivers tested had alcohol concentrations in the range just below definite drunkenness. This stage of intoxication is probably the most dangerous one in that it gives one a feeling of false security. The subject is not so drunk as to be reeling but he is definitely incapable of performing any of his normal activities as well as he does when sober. However, because of his intoxication, he believes that he can perform such activities not only as well, but slightly better than normally. Hence, when such an individual places himself behind the wheel of a car, he becomes a menace, not only to himself, but to all others on the highways.

Let us now look at another group of individuals who were killed in motor vehicle accidents. These were passengers in motor cars. Of 17 such persons tested, eight had been drinking prior to their deaths. Again, this represents almost half of the total tested. Although we cannot state that drivers of these vehicles were equally intoxicated, it is quite possible that the condition of the passengers may have offered sufficient distraction to the drivers to be the precipitating cause of the accident.

Pedestrian Efficiency Reduced
A third group of persons tested comprised pedestrians struck by motor vehicles. The results of this study remove some of the focus from the automobile driver, since they show that frequently the pedestrian is in no condition to negotiate a safe crossing of a city street or highway. Of the 39 cases examined, 13 had been drinking prior to their deaths. Eight of these had alcohol concentrations in the range which would impair their judgment, while two were definitely "drunk" in the commonly accepted interpretation of that term. The remaining three persons had alcohol concentrations in the "safe" range. Therefore of the pedestrians tested, one-third had been drinking. Although this is slightly less than the approximately fifty per cent of drivers who had been drinking, it is nevertheless, significant that so many persons in this group had been imbibing.

The complete statistical breakdown relating alcoholism to highway casualties appears in the Annual Report of the Chief Examiner for 1949. The above is a summary of the findings.

If any moral is to be drawn from these results, it appears to be that drinking should be confined to the home and not allowed to incidence itself on our highways.

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Small businessmen seeking defense contracts in Washington are saying that they are confused.

"But," they report, "as confused as we get, it is nothing compared to the confusion we find in bureaus."

Here is an example of how this feeling of confusion is created. The Defense Production Act of 1950 is quite clear. The Act provides explicitly what agencies should have the power to set up priorities and allocations.

Yet, an agency not given that authority, the Rubber Reserve Section of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, has through some unknown means, taken over the allocation of "Camelback," used by small business engaged in repairing and recapping tires.

Justification for this move of questionable legality by which a bureau seized new powers is based on alleged "know-how" on handling allocation of this material without inconveniencing the public or industry.

But the rule for allocation of this material set up by the Rubber Reserve Section of the R.F.C. is held to be quite elastic, indeed.

For example, for anyone to get an R.F.C. loan, it is necessary for the applicant to establish credit responsibility.

But the reverse is true to secure an allocation of tire servicing materials from the R.F.C. The applicant to qualify for an allocation must first prove irresponsibility and show that his financial position is precarious, or even destitute, to get supplies.

This has led observers to comment that the R.F.C. is writing new social doctrine.

©National Federation of Independent Business

The doctrine is "financial irresponsibility in many lines of business besides haberdashery is now officially recognized as a virtue."

Other examples of bureaucratic fantasy are creating extensive comment; may result in a full scale investigation after elections.

A contract for 100,000 steel lockers has been awarded to a large tire manufacturer with no qualifications for the work. Throughout the nation there are thousands of small steel fabricating firms who could have handled the order as a routine matter.

Other evidence shows that the time-honored American practice on all public purchasing, from local school boards to national bureaus, has been thrown out the window. That practice is the well established one of advertising contracts for the lowest bids.

But Hubert E. Howard, Chairman of the Munitions Board, has already gone on record with a statement that 90% of this year's mobilization buying will be done by negotiated contracts. He said there is no need to pamper small business.

This statement, observers say, is very significant. The involved mental processes of bureau policy makers have arrived at the conclusion that securing the lowest possible prices is really, after all, merely "pampering" small business.

But at the same time, wide publicity is being given to the fact that, due to increased costs, the recent defense appropriations will not buy as much as they were intended to buy. In World War II the GI's had a word for it: SNAFU.

Churches and Business

Our college church had as a guest speaker recently a successful business man from California. He preached a grand sermon, practical down-to-earth Christianity. The 1,200 people in his audience were aroused, stimulated; they responded warmly. Almost everyone congratulated him. A fellow townsman of mine did so, then came to where I stood. "What we need in this country," he said emphatically, "is more businessmen preaching!"

Our visitor from California obviously "reached" an unusually large percentage of his audience. A primary reason was that everyone in the church auditorium knew the Christian pattern of his life. It gave his message potent authority. Although he is an extremely busy business man, he is nevertheless also a regular (non-salaried) minister for his church in California—has been for 10 years. That is his avocation. The sincerity of his words from the pulpit commands the highest respect.

Works Two Ways

Business men who are so moved usually make good preachers. It isn't suggested that business men replace the professional preachers. But it is suggested that the individuals themselves would gain and so would the churches if more business men occasionally filled more church pulpits. The shoe is on the other foot too: professional preachers would be better preachers and their congregations would be better served if more of them got better acquainted with the practical problems of business and industry—at first hand.

Perhaps there has already begun to be an awakening to the need for closer harmony and understanding between the churchworkers and people who are responsible for the progress of American capitalism, the material welfare of the nation. Robert Wilson, chairman of the board of Standard Oil Company of Indiana, said recently: "I believe it is the duty of business men—and a duty they owe both to the church and to business—to take a more active part in church affairs."

Christianity's Sake

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church in New York City, responded by admonishing the clergy to speak up in support of capitalism. "As a Christian minister," he says in a Readers Digest article, "I want to do all I can to make capitalism more Christian. But before I join the advocates of some other system, I want to know how large a place the church and its teachings would have and how well our Christian idea of man and our hope for his progress would fare."

Dr. Peale points to socialistic writings and utterances of some clergymen leaders and says: "I believe Christianity has a considerable stake in the survival of capitalism. I believe Christianity grows when the church does. That is why I want the kind of society which encourages the growth of all churches. Fascism, Communism, Socialism, each in its own way, put the state where Christianity puts the person. The state is everything, does everything. As the state enlarges, the church inevitably diminishes."

The Lure Attracts

Sometimes clergymen who haven't had a first hand acquaintance with the operation of America's profit-motive capitalism become the unwritten dupes of the Socialists or Communists or other political planners. The utopian schemes always offer glittering promises for the "masses" and clergymen naturally idealistic, are drawn in on behalf of the "Have-Nots." The churchman who is uninformed in his economics and history may be attracted to any system that promises "a better break" for the "common man." Accustomed to dealing with honest men, they are sometimes easily misled by advocates of Socialism who deal in half-truths and falsehoods.

Red-Hots On A Cold Day

Do you remember those cinnamon red-hots that were so pleasing to you as a child? They are still obtainable and will delight your child as much as they did you. Combine them with applesauce, whipped cream and milk, and behold—a dessert the children will rave about.

Incidentally, this particular dainty is a man's dessert and a woman's dessert too—especially delightful to those who clamored for cinnamon red-hots in the old days.

Yes, for a spicy, colorful dessert for some cold day, keep these cinnamon applesauce rennet desserts in mind. You'll find repeat requests all during the winter—from both young and old. So keep this economical and healthful recipe on file, and you may rest assured your file card will be replaced many times due to constant use.

Cinnamon Applesauce Rennet Desserts

- 2 tablespoons cinnamon red-hots
- 2 cups milk (not canned)
- 1 package vanilla rennet powder
- 1/2 cup whipped cream

Set out 4 or 5 dessert glasses. Heat applesauce with cinnamon red-hots until dissolved (5 minutes). Cool thoroughly. Divide applesauce mixture among dessert glasses; set aside part of mixture for topping. Warm milk slowly until lukewarm, stirring constantly. Test a drop on the inside of your wrist frequently. When it feels comfortable warm (110 F.)—not hot, remove at once from heat. Stir in entire contents of package of vanilla rennet powder at one time. Mix until powder is dissolved—not over one minute. Pour at once, while still liquid, over applesauce in dessert glasses. Do not disturb for about 10 minutes, while milk sets. Then chill in refrigerator until serving time. Just before serving, top with remaining applesauce and a dash of whipped cream.

Winterizing

Home Saves On Fuel

Winterized homes have lower fuel bills and greater comfort; they remain cleaner during windy weather and they conserve natural resources, according to specialists at the University of Maryland.

The specialists report that even in well-built houses, heat escapes through the roof, through the windows, and through cracks around windows and doors. To reduce heat loss, they recommend three inches of fire and rodent-proof insulation in the ceiling and 3 5-8 inches in the walls. This can reduce the fuel bill as much as one-third. They also stress that doors and windows should fit properly. A moderate-sized crack around the doors and windows in a home of average size may let in as much cold air as a hole the size of 22 bricks, they explain. Well fitted storm windows and doors help in three ways, specialists add. They reduce the amount of heat loss, permit higher humidity in the house without having water condense on the inside windows, and they reduce drafts around the windows. Weatherstripping and storm windows also reduce the amount of soot and dust brought in by outside air. As a final measure, they advise weatherstripping bedroom doors to prevent the whole house from being chilled during the night when bedroom windows are open.

SURVIVAL UNDER ATOMIC ATTACK

(Sixth of a Series)

Bursts on or near the ground usually will leave a limited area of rather heavy and often dangerous pollution near the explosion point. In such cases, the possibility of harm from radioactivity falling out of the clouds is greater than in high-level explosions. But even so, a person could escape contamination by simply taking refuge inside a house or even by getting inside a car and rolling up the windows. And even if some of the wastes fell on him, he would lessen his chances of injury if he promptly shed his clothes and took a bath or shower.

In underwater explosions, large portions of the bomb's radioactive wastes will be "trapped" by the water and then spread over the immediate area. Under these conditions, serious ground pollution is to be expected.

After a water or underground burst a cloud of very radioactive mist or dust might form and spread, particularly downwind, injuring people who weren't well sheltered.

If the explosion has been underground, at ground level, or in the water, stay in your shelter. If caught in the open, get indoors right away. Then stay in doors for at least an hour or until you get instructions. It may be necessary to stay inside for three or four hours. The reason for this is that most lingering radioactivity loses its power very fast. So staying undercover for a while will greatly reduce the danger.

Any rain or mist that comes right after an atomic explosion should be considered dangerous, even though it may not always be radioactive. Keep from getting wet if you possibly can.

And remember that an air burst will leave no lingering radioactivity of importance, so after a few minutes it will be safe to get out and help fight fires or to help people who may need it.

While we cannot see, hear, feel, smell, or taste radioactivity, its presence readily can be detected with Geiger counters and other instruments. However, you won't have to know how to use one of these. Instead, you can rely on your local radiological defense teams—a small, specially trained corps of "meter readers"—to warn you of the presence of lingering radioactivity. You also can count on them to see to it that firefighters, rescue workers, and other people who may have to enter contaminated places do not remain there long enough to be injured.

But always remember our sunlight comparison. There is usually a whale of a difference between detectable and dangerous amounts of radioactivity. The rays and particles from an ordinary, luminous-dial wrist watch will cause a roar in the earphones of a Geiger counter, as just one example. We must not lose our heads just because radioactivity is reported as present.

While attempting to avoid exposure to the bomb's blast, heat, and explosive radioactivity, also do what you can to keep from being showered by radioactive waste materials. Inside a shelter or building there is little or nothing to fear from this source. But if caught out-of-doors, try to grab hold of something to cover yourself with when you fall to the ground. A board or some sheets of newspaper might help, but a raincoat would be better. The object is, of course, to keep radioactive dust and raindrops off your body and clothing. When it's safe to get up, throw away your covering.

Always do what you can to help other people. There is no chance of your being harmed by radioactivity from the bodies of others, even if they have radiation injuries. Don't leave injured people where they may be burned. Direct rescue workers to persons trapped in the wreckage. If necessary to bandage open cuts and wounds and no standard first aid equipment is available, use parts of your own or the victim's clothing. But tear them from the under, not the outer garments. Underclothes are far less likely to be contaminated by radioactivity.

If you have walked through rubble from a ground burst or water from an underwater burst, be sure to change at least your outer garments and shoes. Outer clothes will automatically serve as a "trap" for most of the radioactivity you may accidentally pick up. By taking them off you will remove most of the contamination. If the clothing is heavily contaminated, it is best to bury it.

You also should manage to take a bath or shower, if you have been in an area of lingering radioactivity. It is important that all radioactive materials be removed as soon as possible from your body, and bathing is the only practical means of getting rid of them. You won't need special cleaning compounds. Warm water and soap are ideal.

In washing, pay particular attention to your hair, for that is one place where the wastes are sure to pile up. Also give your hands a good scrubbing and get all dirt out from under your fingernails. If there is a radiological defense man handy, have him check you with his meter after you've finished your clean-up. Should he find your body still radioactive, again scrub yourself from head to foot. Then do it a third time if necessary. You can remove practically all of the radioactivity if you keep at it.

Remember all this is necessary only for persons who have come in contact with radioactive mate-

Frederick Soprano Guest Soloist With Balto. Symphony

Carolyn Blakeslee, Frederick's soprano of concert stage, oratorio and radio, will be guest artist with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra Sunday evening. Reginald Stewart will conduct the "Opera Night" concert at 8:30 o'clock at the Lyric Theater in Baltimore.

Mrs. Blakeslee, wife of Dr. Earle Blakeslee, head of the music department at Hood College, will sing with Carl Knetter, Baltimore baritone, in the featured work, "The Telephone," by Gian-Carlo Menotti.

A graduate of the Eastman School of Music with her Master's degree from the Cleveland Institute of Music, Mrs. Blakeslee studied voice in Rome in 1938 and '39. She has not only appeared as soloist here and abroad but has made three coast-to-coast concert tours with her husband, a tenor.

Care Advised In Erecting Video Antenna

If the television antenna seems to remain firmly anchored to the chimney in spite of the heavy winds, better have a closer look. The antenna, by whipping around, may have loosened bricks, or broken the mortar joint in the chimney line.

There are two possible hazards around such a damaged chimney. If the liner has been damaged, sparks may get through the joint, or the metal flashing between chimney and roof may have been loosened so that the roof will leak.

"SHOTS"

"I don't believe in shots" is a frequently heard statement regarding the use of immunizations, particularly in children. Many people feel that shots, or immunizations, are something mysterious and "new-fangled" and to be avoided wherever possible. The older doctors of grandfather's day never used them, so why use them now?

A good comparison might be to say that you will farm with horses rather than tractors, because your grandfather did it that way.

The average American life expectancy has increased so tremendously in the past 30 years, not only because new drugs have been found to treat disease with, not only because of better sanitation measures, but also because we have learned how to prevent many diseases and the ideal state even for a doctor, would be to prevent people from getting sick rather than treating them after they are sick.

Up until World War I, in all the previous wars, more men died of disease than were battle casualties. To some extent in World War I, but particularly in World War II, medical science had learned through the use of immunizations, how to prevent many diseases and the ratio of disease to battle casualties was strikingly reversed. Smallpox, which formerly was a great scourge, is now to a great extent eradicated because of compulsory vaccination. But still, many babies continue to die because of whooping cough, diphtheria and other diseases which are preventable.

It is true there are many diseases which we as yet, cannot prevent, but why should we not prevent those diseases from occurring which are preventable? If every baby as it reached the appropriate age, were given the immunizations available, just as children are vaccinated, it would not be too long a period until whooping cough, diphtheria and other diseases would be the rare case rather than the common one. It is true that the immunizations will not give 100% protection against the disease, but it will at least modify it to a great extent, so as to make it mild.

At the present time, no baby in the Emmitsburg district need go without these immunizations. They are available to all, either through your own doctor or at the local State Clinic. If we are to make our community a better place to live in, let's do it by beginning to prevent those diseases which can be prevented, even if it does take a "shot" to do it!

Thurmont Couple Injured In Wreck

Two women were injured last week when two cars in which they were riding collided at Duval Highway and East Shore Road, near Green Haven, Anne Arundel County.

Nana N. Firor, 58, suffered a hand laceration which required 13 stitches to close, and a cut head. Anna E. Bardroff, 68, suffered a fractured rib and lacerations. Both were taken to the South Baltimore General Hospital in the Riviera Beach Volunteer Fire Dept. ambulance.

Patrolman Kane, of the county police, placed reckless driving charges against both drivers, W. Bardroff, 60, of Green Haven, and Ross C. Firor, 60, Thurmont.

97% Of Farms Electrified

By 1930 between 6000 and 7000 Maryland farms were electrified. Progress was rapid and some 12,000 farms were added during the next decade. Construction lagged somewhat during the depression years, but was resumed with a sharp upward trend in 1936. Today, about 98 per cent of Maryland farms are electrified and Maryland ranks 12th among the states in percentage of farms having service.

MARYLAND HOME FRONT

The non-farm population of our Nation now contains about 20 million more persons than 10 years ago, but our farm population has declined by nearly three million—from approximately 30½ million in 1939 to 27 3-4 million at the beginning of 1949. These figures were supplied by Joseph H. Blandford, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee, who added that in the face of this decline in farm workers, agricultural production has been running about 40 per cent above the 1935-39 average, with about the same number of acres.

"Before the war, our farms supplied the basic raw materials for industries that produced 1-3 of all our manufactured products. In 1947, nearly half the money the American people spent for commodities and services were spent for products that originate on farms. About two out of five working persons in the U. S. today are engaged either in agriculture itself, or in transporting and handling agricultural products, or in providing and selling goods and services to farm people.

"The well-being of every proprietor on Main Street, of every factory or white-collar worker, of every professional person, yes, the well-being of everybody is intimately tied up with farmers' welfare. All in all, it is estimated that farm cash receipts of more than $27½ billion last year, when translated into farm spending, provided jobs for some nine million workers in industry. That adds up to a lot of production and sales for the Nation's business.

"True farm efficiency involves more than efficiency in production, more than efficiency in marketing. Necessarily, it embraces many other farm activities, from the preparation of the soil to the formulation and use of great national programs for protecting resources and keeping supply as nearly as possible in balance with demand."

Coal constitutes about 95% of America's estimated reserves of fuel.

Does Your Water Freeze?

Birds are much more sensitive than one expects them to be. Otherwise, it would not matter much whether the water freezes up or not. A few day hours of frozen water in your pen may cause laying birds to molt, and therefore to quit their job temporarily.

It may not be too serious when the lack of water causes the birds to "winter pause," but when frozen water follows a neck molt, or a total molt, the situation is more severe.

It will take many weeks for your flock to regain a payable percentage of production, and your feed bill will be just as high. If your house is not well enough insulated to prevent inside freezing temperatures, and you want your birds to remain in production you must get up real early to place no frozen water before them.

The best thing to do is keep your water warmed up. There are many types of water heaters available. To choose the right kind depends on your source of fuel—either electric, coal oil, or gas. Electricity ought to be most convenient. However, check the strength of current. Some equipment is not strong enough. Water devices should be of such construction that they may be easily cleaned, and that freezing will not injure their usefulness.

The water equipment should be placed high enough so that litter will not be scratched into it by birds. It also ought to be situated so that chicks can not easily rest or roost on the edge and that the water can not be contaminated by droppings.

Grain Feeding
Many birds have been raised on all mash feeding system with good results. It is easy, and does not need much more thinking than keeping the hoppers full. However, particularly in winter time it is a kind of risk. For example, when birds get off feed they need a stimulation of something "different" and when it is very cold they need an extra fill, which hardly can be provided by mash alone. Fellets can be used, but since their content is the same as your mash, it would not be as good as grain.

If you get scrambled eggs for breakfast every day you will get tired of them, but if you eat fried eggs for breakfast one day, and boiled ones the next, and scrambled the third day, you never get tired of them—and so it is with feeding chickens. Grain feeding in winter time is very important, because grain creates heat which your birds need to keep warm. The importance of "the how" grain feeding is the regularity. If you feed your grain today at noon, you should not feed it tomorrow at one. Because your birds know their time without a time-piece, feed daily at the same time. It is a good method for every flock of laying birds to give them daily a good fill of grain. They should have as much as they can clean up in 10 minutes and in winter it should be late in the afternoon. In order to save work, one can construct extra feeders which can be opened and closed at will, so that one does not have to carry grain around too much. When it is very cold your birds should have an extra fill of grain prior to roosting time. During cold spells many old time farmers touch up each bird's crop at roost, and when they "feel" one empty they make that bird eat some grain.

A good guide is to feed every 100 leghorns 12 lbs. of grain per day and heavy breeds with 15 lbs. When temperatures hang around zero one should feed them an additional six lbs. per 100 birds, and preferably at 8 a. m. For morning grains, use western oats and for afternoon, use a mixture of about 40% corn, 40% wheat and 20% oats, while evening grain needs be nothing but corn.

Authority Further Explains Social Security

By ED. R. YOUNG
Hagerstown Social Security Office
One of the important features of the amended social security law is the extension of Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance to regular household workers. Approximately 2400 people in the Hagerstown field office area will be affected by this phase of social security beginning the first of January.

This new law will be important to the household workers—the maid or the cook—an also to her employer. The household worker regularly employed in one household will become eligible to build toward Federal insurance benefit payments; the household employer of such a worker will have certain responsibilities for the social security tax and report of wages paid to the worker.

To make this as easy as possible for the people involved, the Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance Bureau and the Dept. of Internal Revenue have jointly devised a simple report slip for this purpose. It provides space for the household worker's name and social security number, and a space for recording the total amount of the employer's cash wages during a three-month period.

A three-month period is a calendar period. That is, three months beginning with January, April, July, and October. The household employer who hires a maid, cook, or any other household worker on a regular basis will keep such a report and send it, together with the social security tax to the collector of internal revenue at the end of each three-month period.

The tax is three percent of the regular household worker's cash wages for the three-month period. Half of this tax (1½%) may be deducted from the worker's cash wages; the employer will contribute the other 1½%.

Now about that word "regular." A household worker is a "regular" worker, if he or she works on at least 24 different days for the one household employer in a three-month period and is paid cash wages of not less than $50. She is still "covered" during the next three Holiday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rosensteel were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brown, Lantz; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hewitt, Frederick; Mr. and Mrs. William C. Rosensteel and sons, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sprankle and family, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. George Constantine and family, Washington, D. C.; Miss Teresa Recher, Fairfield, Pa.; Mrs. Mary Claudia Rosensteel, Mary Teresa and Margaret Houck, Eugene Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. William Topper, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rosensteel, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McDonnell, and Joseph Elder.

Mrs. Melvin Chapman has been discharged from the Gettysburg Hospital and returned to her home, Route 2, Fairfield.

The term "cash wages" is used because meals and board can not be counted as wages in determining the $50 minimum for social security coverage. The household employer, moreover, is not concerned with any wages the worker may earn elsewhere.

On the household worker's part, it is important that she or he have a social security card. Anytime after Jan. 1, when the new social security law goes into effect, those regular household workers who have never had a social security number, or have lost their card, or have changed their name should visit or write the social security office and get one.

I have mentioned cooks and maids, but butlers, practical nurses, and chauffeurs, and any other regular worker for one employer in a private household will also be considered a household worker and eligible for Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance protection under the new social security law.

If you are interested in more specific information on whether the new provisions about household workers affect you, write or call the social security office for a special leaflet on the subject. In the next article of this series I shall discuss the effect of the new law on servicemen of World War II.

Polio Funds Are Practically Depleted

Maryland, which this year faces its greatest need for March of Dimes funds, is one of the nation's leading polio research centers, it was pointed out this week by former U. S. Senator George L. Radcliffe, the state chairman for the March of Dimes.

Mr. Radcliffe, announcing a $4787 grant to the Johns Hopkins University for further polio research, said that $999,083.87—just shy of a million dollars—has been spent in Maryland alone by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in its fight against the dreadedcripler of children and adults alike. Most of this sum has been expended at the Johns Hopkins and a small amount has been spent at the Children's Hospital School, Baltimore, which during the past year was almost overwhelmed by the number of polio victims who needed hospitalization.

Mr. Radcliffe revealed that research grants use up about 10 per cent of the National Foundation's funds and that almost 80 per cent goes directly to the care of patients. Because of the three consecutive years of heavy polio incidence, with 1950 the second worst for the nation and actually the worst in Maryland's history, the Foundation is not only broke, but is $5 million in the red, he said.

The former Senator urged all county March of Dimes leaders, committee heads and workers to begin their campaigns now and not wait until the Jan. 15-31 period. "We must double our giving of other years," he declared, "and we must all make sure that the distressing havoc of polio is made known to everyone in Maryland. It would be tragic to fail, leaving so many polio victims lacking in the proper medical care and facilities through which they get the opportunity to fight their way back to health."

Mr. Radcliffe urged the people of Maryland to give to the chapter in the county in which they live. "All you need do is to address your letter to—March of Dimes, c-o your postmaster, and the funds will be delivered, Mr. Radcliffe said.

IN THE MAIL—

Dear Abigail
Did you hear the music of the lone serenader Christmas Eve? He wandered the streets of the town playing Christmas songs and carols on an accordion. The tunes were very nicely done and brought many curious ones to doorways and windows. Who was our thoughtful friend?

A SUBSCRIBER
Beats me . . . must have been an outsider as there's no one around here that I know of that even plays an accordion.

IT'S TRUE! By Wiley Padan
WATCH THE BIRDIE
ENACTS NOT ONE BUT THREE DIFFERENT CHARACTERIZATIONS IN HIS LATEST HILARIOUS HIT. FIRST HE IS SEEN AS THE HERO, RUSTY, THEN AS POP, AND FINALLY AS GRANDPO! AT ONE TIME DURING FILMING OF THE COMEDY HE COMPLAINED THAT HIS "RELATIVES" WERE STEALING THE SCENES FROM HIMSELF!

Arlene DAHL
HAD HER MOST STRENUOUS FILM EXPERIENCE DURING THE PICTURE'S CLIMACTIC CHASE SEQUENCE IN WHICH SHE AND SKELTON ELUDE THE VILLAINS IN A HECTIC RIDE ABOARD A TWO-STORY STRADDLE TRUCK!

Ann MILLER
DESERTS HER DANCING SHOES FOR AN OUT-AND-OUT COMEDY ROLE AS MISS LUCKY VISTA, A BEAUTY-PRIZE WINNER WITH MORE LOOKS THAN BRAINS. INCIDENTALLY, THE NEW COMEDY REUNITES HER WITH SKELTON IN THEIR FIRST PICTURE TOGETHER SINCE "HAVING A WONDERFUL TIME."

"Watch the Birdie" will play at the Majestic Theatre, Gettysburg, Pa., Sunday and Monday, Jan. 7 and 8.

You don't let your home become run down

... but how often do you visit your physician?
It's just good sense to visit your physician regularly. Frequent check-ups are "good for the soul." More important, they enable your doctor to discover and prescribe for possible symptoms which, if neglected, could lead to serious illness.
