The Frederick County delegates to the State Legislature really had a "hot potato" on their hands last week when their services were sought in introducing a bill to legalize slot machines for private clubs in this county. Things appeared rather favorable for the clubs, so it seems they were assured, until this week they were notified that the delegation apparently had a change of heart and would not back the measure. The clubs claim they represent 10,000 members; multiply this by two or three times for members of their families and friends and you have a whale of a block of votes. Considering the fact that the bill, if passed, would be presented to the people for adoption or rejection in the form of a referendum, and also the fact that election time is just around the corner, someone is going to suffer next year at the polls. . . . and how! And to tell you the truth, in my opinion, I believe the measure would be accepted by the populace. I'm sure glad I don't make my living playing politics.

I can't understand why the proponents of horse racing in the county didn't revive their bill to legalize pari-mutuel betting in this county again. The fact that the voting was so close in the last general election led me to believe that perhaps it would be passed by the Legislature in the form of a referendum at the next election.

Emmitsburg's municipal election promises to be a trifle involved this year. In recent years there has appeared a reluctance on the part of local citizens to seek office. According to the grapevine, I understand that already two are interested in the town offices this year. One will run for mayor and the other will toss his hat in the ring for a commissionership. To again stress a point, I'm still glad I'm not a politician. By the way folks, you know the annual town election is just a little over a month away? In fact it is held the first Monday in May. Filing for office must be done 10 days before the election, which actually cuts the deadline down to about a month.

Well now that St. Pat's Day has passed and the groundhog's forecast of six more weeks of winter also has expired, many of us can look forward to a little bit of that delightful spring weather. Already some of us have purchased garden and flower seeds in preparation for that pleasant, balmy weather which seems to do something to all of us. And just to make sure I am not dreaming, I am told that a baseball scrimmage will be held tomorrow. Now just watch it snow.

While on the spring theme, I still haven't forgotten the State Roads Commission and the Governor's promise that bids are to be let this spring for the new road between here and Thurmont. To date I haven't seen any advertising for bids. However, before I start yelping I'm going to wait for the official opening of the date, which is you know when. . . . March 21.

I'm told that Chief Koontz has purchased himself a motorcycle. Back to the Teddy Roosevelt "Rough Riders" eh Chief? Well, with the town streets being resurfaced, I guess it won't be too bouncy. Happy landing Chief!

Pheasants Released

One hundred and twenty-five adult pheasants have been released in this section of the county, Regional Game Warden Benjamin F. Phebus said this week. The birds were released on the basis of three hens to one male. Surveys show pheasants thrive only in the area of the county bordering the Mason-Dixon state line.

Phebus said 18 squirrels have been turned loose in the county this week and it is expected 150 more will be released within a few days. The squirrels are being trapped in the urban area of Montgomery County where residents have complained of their depredations. Two hundred were trapped last week and stocked in the upper section of Montgomery County.

Thousands Of Trout To Be Released

Twenty-five thousand trout will be released in Frederick County streams during the season, which opens on April 15, according to Regional Game Warden Benjamin F. Phebus. The total is approximately the same as last year, and will be in addition to 5,000 browns turned loose in Big Hunting and Fishing Creeks last autumn.

Stocking will start the first week in April in Montgomery County, Mr. Phebus said. Rock Creek in that county will receive a total of 5,000 for the year, with 3,500 of them released for the season's inaugural. The State Game and Inland Fish Commission is stocking Rock Creek with more trout this year as a means of taking some of the pressure off Frederick and Washington County streams.

Piney Run and Beaver Dam Creek in Carroll County will each receive 750 trout.

10,000 For Fishing Creek

Fishing Creek, which takes the trout fishing brunt for Frederick, will be stocked with 10,000 fish during the season. A total of 3,500 will be turned loose for first-day anglers. The fish will be released on the left fork above the municipal receiver and as far as Angleberger's Dam below the Frederick water impoundment.

Big Hunting Creek, which is restricted to the use of artificial flies, will be stocked with 9,000 trout, Phebus said. Three thousand will be in the stream prior to the start of the season.

Middle Creek has been assigned 3,500 fish, with 1,500 of them going in before the opening of the season. Friend's Creek will receive 2,000, with half of them in the stream for the inaugural.

Little Hunting Creek, east of Route 15, will get 500 trout, all of which will be stocked for the opening.

Large Brood Fish Going In

The policy inaugurated last year of releasing a certain number of large brood trout, past their prime as producers, will be carried out again this year, Mr. Phebus said. The number to be released has not been determined. Some six and seven-pounders were hooked last year in county waters.

The daily creel limit is five trout, seven or more inches in length.

Mount Baseball Schedule Cards 16

A 16-game baseball schedule has been announced for the Mount St. Mary's College squad for the 1953 season. Play will open Friday, April 10, when the Mounties engage Loyola at Baltimore.

For some time now, Coach Apichella has been having his battery-men work out in the college gym and as soon as weather conditions permit, outdoor drills will be held.

Among the veterans on the Blue and White team are Captain Art Mace, Paul Clarke, Leo Green and Ward Clarke. Green and W. Clarke are pitchers.

The schedule: April 10, Loyola, away; 16, Washington, home; 18, Western Maryland, away; 20, Baltimore, home; 22, Catholic U., away; 23, American U., home; 27, Loyola, home; 29, Baltimore, away; 30, Shippensburg State Teachers College, home.

May 4, Gettysburg, home; 6, Washington, away; 8, Towson, at home; 9, Catholic U., home; 11, American U., away; 12, Shippensburg, away, and 13, Western Maryland, at home.

The Mason-Dixon playoffs will open May 15.

Receives 'Cap'

Miss Carrie Marie Hahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Hahn, Emmitsburg Rt. 3, received her "cap" at the capping ceremonies held Mar. 10 at the Lutheran Hospital of Maryland School of Nursing, Baltimore.

This marks the successful completion of the first part of her course in the School of Nursing.

The Rev. J. Frank Fife, D.D., president of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of the State of Maryland, addressed the group. Miss E. Irene Perry, R.N., director of the School of Nursing, spoke on the significance of the cap. The nurses' Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Marguerite Mergemann, rendered three selections.

The exercises were attended by parents, guests, and the nurses' alumnae.

Local Man Is Accused Of Hit-Run Charge

A Knoxville man was injured and an Emmitsburg man was charged with failing to stop after an accident involving personal injury Sunday night at Brunswick, when a car struck the pedestrian and continued without stopping.

Witnesses to the accident overtook the car and detained the driver until police could be summoned.

Removed to Frederick Memorial Hospital in an ambulance for treatment, and later released, was John C. Grams, Route 1, Knoxville, who suffered a brush burn on the left elbow and a bruise on the right side of his pelvis.

Released for hearing was Chas. Benjamin Harner, Route 2, Emmitsburg, who told officers that he did not see Grams, and did not know that his car had struck the man.

State Troopers said Gram was hit by the car on the Petersville Road about 7:10 o'clock Sunday night.

Baseball Scrimmage Set For Tomorrow

Weather permitting, local players of the great sport of baseball will unlimber their stiff joints tomorrow.

Manager Frank Apichella has called the first scrimmage for Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock on Community Field and all those interested in playing on the squad are asked to be present.

President J. Norman Flax said this week that practically all the needed players have signed contracts. It is understood that Paul Clarke, Thurmont, star athlete at Mt. St. Mary's, has been signed to play first base for the locals. In addition, four Fairfield players have been signed to contracts.

The locals have purchased a lot of new equipment for the coming season. In fact, about $200 has been appropriated for new bats, bases, balls, gloves, etc. President Flax announced that the sale of the annual Booster tickets will go into effect this week-end.

Hays Again Heads Band

Samuel C. Hays was re-elected to the presidency of the Emmitsburg Municipal Band at the annual election of officers held Monday night in the Knights of Columbus Hall. Other officers elected were Gleason Sanders, vice president; Gleason Sanders, treasurer and C. A. Elder, secretary. Walter A. Simpson was retained as conductor.

Grange Sponsors Cancer Drive

Master Edgar G. Emrich presided at the regular meeting of the Emmitsburg Grange held on Wednesday evening in the Emmitsburg High School, 25 members attending.

Clifford Meskill, representing the local Grange at a Legislative session in Annapolis, gave a report on a bill the Grange is co-sponsoring which would require hunters to first gain permission, before hunting on private property.

Other items up for legislative action were: Progress on improvement of country roads under the 12-year plan; closing of liquor establishments on Sunday; mutilation of road markers; law banning throw-away beer containers.

The Grange has accepted the sponsorship of the Cancer Drive this year.

Eleven Grangers have volunteered to give blood to the Red Cross Bloodmobile when it comes here March 25. Several more of the members are expected to contribute to this worthy cause.

Ann Hodges received the first and second degree for membership in the order. Ray Haener, graduating from the Juvenile Grange, also received the first and second degrees.

Entertainment for the evening was furnished by Clarence E. Hahn, who spoke on a recent trip to Florida he and his wife and son made, and Ethel Baumgardner spoke on her trip to New York as a member of the Farm Bureau excursion. Both talks were most entertaining, educational and humorous. The Juvenile Grange joined the parent organization for refreshments following the meetings.

300,000 Trees Is Goal Of Frederick County Community Planters

A quarter million trees were on used on more than 25 per cent of the land in Frederick County as of mid-week to put the community-wide planting program in sight of its Spring goal of 300,000 trees.

At least three and possibly four tree planting machines are available for use in the county to help plant trees. The machines make possible planting at the rate of 1,000 trees per hour.

Two planters are available from the State Department of Forests and Parks, and both the Frederick and Catoctin Soil Conservation Districts have planters. Labor is furnished with the machines, and a minimum charge is made for their use. One of the tractors is being loaned by Clyde O. Koons of the Frederick Motor Company.

Arrangements for use of a planting machine can be made at the time trees are ordered or by contacting the local forester at Monument 3-5441. Machine planting can also be arranged through members of either of the Soil Conservation Districts.

Tree planters are hooked to a tractor, which also is provided. They dig a shallow furrow into which the operator puts trees at spaced intervals, and the rear wheels of the planter close the furrow.

Bloodmobile Coming Here Tuesday

Spurred by the prospect of new uses for human blood derivatives to check epidemics and save lives on the battlefield and in this county, the Emmitsburg Red Cross blood donor program committee, headed by Mrs. Harry S. Boyle and Mrs. Thomas Gingell, is making an intensive effort to get out all patriots who are willing to donate blood to the Bloodmobile on its visit at Mt. St. Mary's College on March 24.

Added impetus was given when Mrs. Paul Willard, general chairman of the Frederick County program, this week reported that gamma globulin has been allocated to this area in sufficient quantity to inoculate all immediate members of any family which is stricken by polio. Such inoculation will prevent the paralysis which often accompanies the dreaded disease.

The Student Government Board of Mt. St. Mary's will provide the staff aides and general assistants to the Bloodmobile staff and the college will entertain at luncheon all workers, both of the local Red Cross staff and the Baltimore nurses and doctors and in addition, will furnish coffee for blood donors throughout the day, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Recruitment of donors at the college is in charge of James Adams, III, and Richard W. Kelly, with the assistance of the entire student government board. A similar group is at work at St. Joseph College which promises a record turnout.

Notable among the donors will be two who will become members of the gallon club at next Tuesday's collection, by giving the eighth pint of their blood that men and women may live. They are Mrs. Sarah H. Green of Graceham and Patrick J. McNulty of Mt. St. Mary's. McNulty made six blood donations while serving in the armed forces and another last October when the Bloodmobile visited Emmitsburg. A special campaign among the Emmitsburg Homemakers Club has been made by Mrs. Boyle and Mrs. Gingell, has been in touch with American Legion and Grange officials.

The Emmitsburg Canteen Service Group will provide sandwiches and other refreshments for all donors and is composed of Mesdames Roy Bollinger, chairman, A. W. McClear, Mary Shuff, Thomas Gingell, Laurence Orendorf, Charles Fuss, A. M. Martin, B. P. Ogle, Harry McNair, Edgar Rhodes and E. R. Shriver.

Ford Trucks Hold Interest

Emmitsburg's premiere showing of the new Ford trucks displayed a great deal of interest locally, as was evidenced by the many interested people who viewed the new models at Sperry's Garage, S. Seton Ave., last Friday.

The new trucks embody a number of major improvements in the safety, service, and comfort line. Especially popular are the one-piece windshield, which gives an added 50 per cent more visibility, and the four-foot rear window which readily gives the driver quick accessibility to rear vision for his and other people's safety. Emphasis on the driver's comfort also has been stressed and new seating arrangements have been installed.

Ford this year features 190 different models for the public's selection of the right truck for the right job. Fordomatic and overdrive are optional at extra cost.

State Income Tax Date Nearing

The State Income Tax is due on April 15, 1953. All taxpayers subject to the law are required to file before this date and if a tax is due, a remittance must accompany the return.

The tax laws are substantially the same as last year. A 15 per cent reduction of the total amount of the tax has again been provided by the Legislature. The procedure for deducting this is the same also as last year. The taxpayer will calculate his tax and then subtract 15 per cent. It is requested that all taxpayers file early.

Blinker Gone; Work On Streets Progressing

Emmitsburgians are rightfully enthused over the remodeling going on about the town and the effects of such projects soon will be seen.

For some time now, it was seriously considered taking out the blinker on the Square and replacing it with a traffic light. Late last week workmen of the Emmitsburg Water Company began dismantling the blinker and by the early part of the week the traffic pylon had been completely dismantled and the rough opening in the road bed cemented over.

Monday workmen of the State Roads Commission began scraping and filling of high and low spots along the sides of the main highways through town, in preparation for the repaving project which is to get under way immediately after the State working crews have completed the preliminary work. It is planned to resurface both main routes, State Route 32 and U. S. Route 15 all through town to the corporation extremities. A smooth black-top coating three-inches in depth has been contracted for. In addition, the State has promised to resurface the entire Square with an extra fine black-top coating.

New curbing around the Square is planned by the Town Council and the concrete blocks which at the present time protect the parking meters from being damaged, will be removed just as soon as the curbing has been laid.

The stop through traffic signs which formerly were anchored on the blinker have been removed to locations in front of the American Store and the Mother Seton Guild on East and West Main Streets.

At the present time bids are being considered on the prices and types of stoplights available and the purchase of a light will be made very shortly. Contracts for the installation of the light are being studied.

Monocacy Drive-In Readies For Opening

Mr. Kenneth Clem, manager of the Monocacy Drive-In Theatre, located at Bridgeport, near Taneytown, announced that the Drive-In Theatre will open on Saturday, April 4, at 6:00 p. m.

The opening attraction will be "Dreamboat," a comedy starring Clifton Webb, and Ginger Rogers.

The Monocacy opened late last year but had a very successful season. When the theatre opens this year, there will be several new improvements. One will be the installation of a children's playground; another will be an improvement in the concession building. The theatre will increase in size and 100 additional car speakers has been purchased.

The Monocacy Drive-In Theatre is proud to be the first drive-in to feature the new unique double-cone speaker. It consists of two cones, one superimposed over the other, with a 3-16" air-gap between for tonal resonance. The sound quality cannot be surpassed by any other speaker.

Another service this year will feature the changing of flat tires while on the field, Mr. Clem said. The entire area will be sprayed for insects, so that you and your children can be sure of an enjoyable evening when you visit down Taneytown way. The admission charge will be the same as last year. Watch this paper for coming attractions at the Monocacy Drive-In Theatre.

One local and two district men were inducted into the armed forces Tuesday. Those leaving from the Baltimore induction center were James Everett Knox, S. Seton Ave.; James Norbert Wivell, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Wivell, Thurmont, Route 2, Thurmont; and Clayton Norman Macafee, Route 2, Thurmont.

YOU and YOUR CONGRESS

WASHINGTON — Harmony is as essential to smooth government as to sweet music.

That aphorism is recalled by a number of Washington observers as the new leaders in Congress and the Executive Branch round out their second month of joint tenure.

During this early period, some discordant notes have sounded within both the administrative and legislative branches, as well as between the two.

None of these, however, has been suggestive of serious dissonance—except, perhaps, in the minds of the most ill-wishing—and, meanwhile, each has been laid more to disagreement on theme than to any lack of diligence on the part of the choir-masters.

Lack of complete harmony has been apparent in situations involving taxes, submerged lands of coastal states and perversion by Russia of agreements made with her allies during World War II.

Even before this 83rd Congress had convened and Mr. Eisenhower had been inaugurated, Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-N. Y.), of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee announced he would demand a tax cut immediately. True to his word, Reed introduced the first House bill of the session, H.R. 1, calling for a five and one-half per cent reduction in individual income taxes.

Republican leaders in Congress and the President agreed, meanwhile, that tax reduction, while highly desirable, should be held off until it can be seen whether the budget for the next fiscal year, indicating a $10 billion deficit, can be brought reasonably close to balance.

Reed continues to insist that tax cuts should precede budget balancing and voices his theme with increasing fervor as the powerful House Rules Committee adamantly holds to the order of House Republican leaders and refuses to clear H.R. 1 for floor debate.

Because tax bills are considered privileged matter, Reed could bring his bill up for debate without Rules Committee permission but only under conditions permitting any House member to offer amendments to it. This could amount to a free-for-all on tax legislation, because dozens of House bills to change the tax laws have been introduced this year. If and when the Rules Committee gives H.R. 1 the go-ahead, it will do so under a "closed rule," permitting amendments to be offered only by Ways and Means Committee members.

Similar lack of total harmony within the Executive Branch is discernible in recent approaches to the problem of title to the submerged lands of coastal states.

President Eisenhower in his election campaign said he favored state rather than national ownership of those so-called tidelands and, since taking office, has not evinced any change of mind.

Recently his Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay, told Congress that the states should be given title to these controversial lands once and for all. But then, a few days later, Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., told Congress the states should be given control over administration and development of tidelands natural resources but should not be given outright title to those submerged areas. Brownell said his recommendation would preclude complications in foreign affairs, navigation, and national defense.

Republican leaders on Capitol Hill thereupon decided to sit back and await a meeting of minds "downtown" on the tidelands question.

In the meantime, the White House and State Dept., as part of their new psychological warfare strategy against communism, decided to ask Congress to approve unanimously a resolution denouncing enslavement of free peoples through Russian perversion of wartime agreements.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee approved the resolution. Senate Democratic leaders, realizing that the agreements—especially those of Yalta and Potsdam—had been made under a Democratic administration and had drawn heavy Republican fire in the past, were quick to announce their full support of the resolution.

St. Joseph's High School News

Charles Baker and Margaret Rocks will be featured as Prince Frederick and Cinderella in the "Slip of the Slipper," a modern version of Cinderella. The operetta is under the direction of Rev. David W. Shaum of Mount St. Mary's College.

Miss Cecelia T. Gorman, a freshman at St. Joseph College, and a graduate of Holy Cross Academy and the Floyd Ward School, both in Lynchburg, Va., is instructing members of the Glee Club in various dance numbers which will be seen in the operetta. Sister Genevieve, moderator, has announced that the tentative dates are April 12 and 13.

March 25 will be observed as a holiday by St. Joseph's students. The United Nations contest on Tuesday, March 24, will be taken by Joan Reaver, Joan Walter, Honoré Fitz, Margaret Kane, Robert Kreitz, Edward Ashcroft—all seniors.

Students are grateful to the Potomac Edison Co. and Miss Ann Young, for the helpful services rendered this year. Miss Young, home economics demonstrator, gave a demonstration yesterday on the use of pressure cookers in the preparation of meat and vegetables to the second year home ec students.

An Irish program was given Tuesday by the first and second year students. Irish vocal solos were sung by Eugene Rosensteel, Thomas O'Brien, Dolores Topper, Frank Ashcroft and Jean Watkins. Mary Louise Dukehart portrayed the "sweet personality, full of rascality" Peggy O'Neill. Virginia Joy, Theodora and Theresa Rybikowski and Virginia Topper, who have been under the instruction of Miss Joan Boyle,

Not so the Senate Republicans. A number insisted on and succeeded in amending the resolution to neither condone nor condemn these wartime agreements—a position Senate Democrats refused to support.

Joseph Stalin obliquely overshadowed this discord by dying.

Group Meets To Help Mentally Retarded Children

At an organizational meeting held last week in the Frederick YMCA, temporary officers were named and future plans discussed by the Frederick County Association for Help for Retarded Children.

Serving as president, pro tem, is Ellsworth Magaha, Middletown; vice presidents, Mrs. Werner Braun, Mount Airy and Mrs. L. B. Myers, Mount Airy; secretary, Mrs. Lawrence DeLong, Frederick; publicity chairman, Mrs. G. Ross Twenty, Yellow Springs. Since a financial system has not been worked out a treasurer was not named.

At the formulative meeting were parents in the county who are personally concerned with the problem of retarded children and others who are interested, a spokesman for the group said.

Since there is no plan in the Frederick County school system for this group of children who are "slow," members of the association hope to work out a plan whereby these children can be given the attentions they need to develop them into useful and independent citizens.

The group will meet April 7 at the YMCA for a panel discussion and has announced that guest participants will be Herbert L. Winne, president of the State Association for Help for Mentally Retarded Children; Dr. Buhrman, past president of the Washington group, and Mrs. Alice Middleton, member of the faculty of the Laurel elementary school.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

Continuation of dairy price supports at 90 per cent of parity is to "give the industry time to demonstrate to what degree it can solve its own problems," Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has said. The decision followed the recommendation of the Dairy Advisory Group, Congressional and farm leaders and others, according to George J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing State Committee. "Although dairy products from Northeastern U. S. have been brought under the price support program, Maryland has never had the support program operating within the state," Mr. Martin said.

Such price support operations as are needed to make the program effective will be carried out through government offers to buy butter, cheese, and non-fat dry milk solids. Purchases of butter will be made on a "basing point" method, instead of the formerly used uniform price throughout the country. A drop in the parity formula will reduce the butter price support about two cents per pound.

A "work conference" including farmers and leaders of their organizations, processors, distributors, retailers, and consumers is being called together and each segment of the dairy industry will be asked to assume definite responsibility for a portion of the solution of the dairy problems. Agricultural agencies will assist.

Suggestions are that dairy farmers can shift more rapidly to fluid milk sales and away from butterfat; milk companies can move more milk from butter-producing areas into regions needing fluid milk; and retail dairies, stores and consumers can more actively promote the sale of milk and milk products.

"Dairy farmers and dairy industry leadership has a major challenge," Secretary Benson has said. "We believe they will put the dairy business on a more solid basis—with a minimum dependence on price supports. They have asked for time—we have agreed. Now we will all pitch in to get the job done."

BABSON

Writes . . .

BABSON PARK, Fla., Mar. 20—I personally did not know Mr. Stalin but I knew the Tolstoy family who were very well acquainted with him. They have many times told me that he had very little to say and that he felt that there was no one in Russia who could fill his shoes. All of this means that there will be considerable of an inner conflict amongst the leaders, even though they outwardly acknowledge Malenkov as the new Dictator. At the present writing it is impossible to say how long Malenkov will be able to hang on to his job. I, however, am assured that there is no danger of the people starting a revolution. If one comes, it will be a "palace revolution," started by the Government or Army heads.

Effect On The Satellites

Of course, there have been many signs of internal strife behind the Iron Curtain. Violence, a characteristic of Russian politics in evidence long before the rise of Communism, has marked the struggle for personal power. The purges in the satellite countries, the elimination of the Moscow doctors, have given strong evidence that Stalin's illness was well known by the ruling groups in the Soviet Union. Now, despite Moscow's desperate efforts to tighten the manacles upon the satellite countries and the entire Soviet bloc, factions favoring Titoism may be encouraged. Freedom-lovers in Czechoslovakia and Poland must already be filled with new courage and hope.

Meanwhile, uncertainty will rule until some man of proven power emerges in Moscow. Until the new dictator shows that he can hold on to his job, there is no sense in speculating on what the new policies and their effects upon the rest of the world will be. I do say this, however: While Stalin is being eulogized publicly, one of the coldest and cruelest struggles for power in the history of the world will be going on behind the scenes. The new dictator will find himself in a vacuum into which will rush all the elements of violence that Stalin has managed to hold in abeyance. The temptation to unify his people and take their minds off their woes by provoking war will be tremendous. World capitals will be filled with uneasiness. Malenkov is a less moderate man than was Stalin. However, he will not "show his hand" until he is sure of his power, or until he is forced to take action in order to unite the masses behind him.

Defense Preparations Will Continue

President Eisenhower is admirably equipped to make propitious decisions during the stormy days ahead. He knows how easily war could stem from the situation which we will be witnessing over the period immediately ahead. England has, of course, been more conciliatory toward Russia than we are but this attitude may help ease the friction between Russia and the U. S. during the difficult times which lie ahead. Restraint and extreme caution must be used if we are to avoid extension of the war. The Soviet Union, under its precarious new leadership, might decide suddenly to resort to full-scale war to unite its people. Hence, it may be wise to lie low along the international fronts until the situation becomes definitely clearer.

As I analyze the probabilities of the near term, I would say that there is a 60-40 chance of our being able to develop a workable diplomatic program which will enable us to get by without spreading the war. Above all, it would be extremely unwise for our people to be misled by early rumors. Don't rush to take radical action. Watch the situation calmly, and look for the underlying trends rather than the day-to-day switches in the international weather vane. Those owning businesses should keep a firm rein over their inventories and costs, but should not be stampeded into foolish or rash moves which they may later regret.

Outlook For the Stock Market

All of the above indicates that there will be a cooling off period and, on the whole, the near-term prospects for peace look better. If the American people agree with me, the price of the war stocks may fall off, which would mean a decline in the Industrial Average. Later, the situation will have to be reviewed in the light of Malenkov's actions.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

Congressman DeWitt S. Hyde

Marylanders have been writing me about the tidelands problem, and I would like to give my opinion by quoting from one of my replies to such a letter:

"It should be made clear that the controversy over tidelands oil has nothing to do with education. Many who favor Federal control of the tidelands say schools will be benefited because the government can give them the money it takes in on oil.

"I have seen other legislation—for example, the Maryland sales tax—promoted on the ground that it was going to help education some other worthy cause. That argument is used simply to hide the real issue involved. That issue is the extent to which we are going to have the Federal government take control of our affairs.

"The Federal government can get its share of the proceeds from this oil in the usual manner—taxation. I am not in favor of putting the Federal government in the oil business or any other business. My disposition is to support President Eisenhower's views on the subject, but that way I vote will be determined by the exact form in which the tidelands bill comes out of committee."

Incidentally, I am keeping tabs on the tidelands bill by visiting hearings of the House Judiciary subcommittee which is considering it. I will appreciate hearing the views of all Marylanders on this important question.

An agriculture subcommittee has made four recommendations to fight declining livestock prices: Strengthening credit sources; increasing military purchasing of beef and other products; controlling imports, and buying more products for the school lunch program.

Right now we are deeply involved in the United Nations. Many decisions made by the UN later become treaties—or have the effect of treaties. This expansion of international relations was not foreseen by the framers of our Constitution. In order to preserve the freedom established in this country by our Constitution, it seems imperative that the amendment proposed by Senator Bricker must be passed.

WASHINGTON AND
"SMALL BUSINESS"
By C. WILSON HARDER

Many feel future of every American is not being mapped in Washington, London, nor Moscow.

Not only Washington independent business leaders, but farm, labor leaders scrutinize Detroit.

For in Detroit Big Motors spearheads drive to scrap all U. S. tariff laws, to permit a ruinous flood of cheap foreign made goods and products.

Big Motors C. W. Harder wants immediate elimination of 10% duty on foreign cars.

Thereby hangs a tale. Independent U. S. automakers have upset Big Three of motor-dom. Old torpedoes which used to blast independent competition have been missing fire.

Before the war, independent car makers, regardless of quality of products or price, never overcame handicap of arbitrarily established low trade-in values of their products on other brands.

But, at war's end Big Three, feeling a hungry public would accept anything, offered models similar to prewar models.

But independent makers such as Studebaker, Hudson, Packard and Nash stealing a march, brought out entirely new models in design and conception.

Public acceptance of independent cars, both on new sales floors and on used car lots has been a major postwar surprise.

Steel controls brought by Korea established allocations to auto industry on historic usage; Big Three getting 85%.

© National Federation of Independent Business

With public demand for their new models on the upswing, this hurt independents, but they kept on developing new designs.

Now with controls off, Big Three knows wraps are also off independent competition.

But elements of Big Three have foreign plants with cheap labor. Some models have been offered U. S. buyers for some time. Many are sold because of lower prices; others attracted by cheapness, are "sold up" to more expensive U. S. made models.

Elimination of 10% tariff would permit Big Three with foreign plants to import even cheaper cars.

This will hurt sales of all U. S. made cars including independents. But Big Three will make profit on foreign cars, leaving independent U. S. makers the only real losers.

This probable development would also be headed off. As independent makes increase in sales, greater volume production will permit lower costs, consequently still lower prices. This Big Three does not want.

There is also a paradox.

Most auto dealers for all brands are independent businessmen with high sense of community and national responsibility. Yet, such is nature of their franchise, dealers handling Big Three products face alternative of selling cheap foreign products or losing franchise.

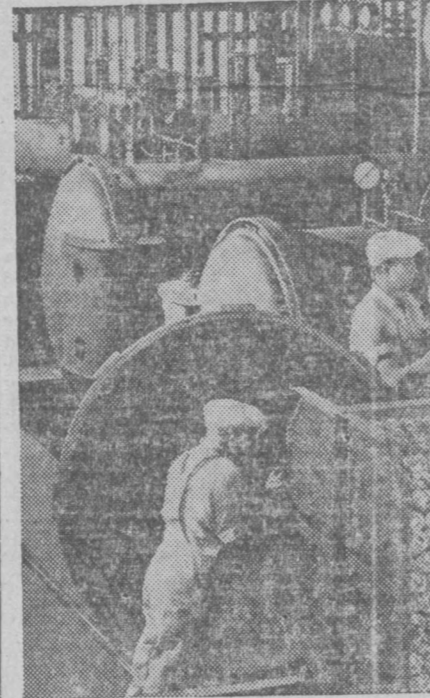

The vast majority of Americans have all their eggs in one basket . . . the United States of America.

That defines coming battle on tariff eliminations. On one side the majority of Americans; on the other, a small minority with eggs in baskets all over the world.

STATE'S CANNING INDUSTRY SALUTED

Oysters were among first foods canned in 1836 when canning, now a $75,000,000 Free State industry, started in Baltimore. This Maryland sketch, made in 1872, shows oysters being hand-packed in old-style, hole-and-cap cans.

Ann Simons, Canco employee, shows difference between hole-and-cap can (bottom) in which only small bits of food could be canned, and modern can, in which whole fruits and vegetables are packed.

With the observance of Maryland Commercial Canning Week, March 15-21, the Free State marks the 117-year growth of its third most important manufacturing industry. Canning today is largely automatic with 460,000,000 cans of Maryland food packed annually in modern, open-end cans of the type perfected by American Can Company, manufacturer of containers. Here, in a modern cannery, workmen move filled cans into retort for cooking.

Your

Health

If you have tuberculosis, the best thing to do is to go to a tuberculosis hospital. Sometimes this is not possible. There may not be enough beds.

But every effort should be made at the earliest possible moment to get hospital treatment and care. The hospital is equipped to care for the sick. In the hospital, you can get the best medical, nursing, and surgical attention. By going to the hospital, you can help protect your family and friends from getting TB and can learn how to keep well yourself.

But if there isn't room in the hospital, or if there is a delay in gaining admission, treatment at home should be started at once. No attempt, of course, should be made by you or your family to diagnose or treat tuberculosis. That is the doctor's responsibility. If you have TB, it is your job to follow the doctor's orders.

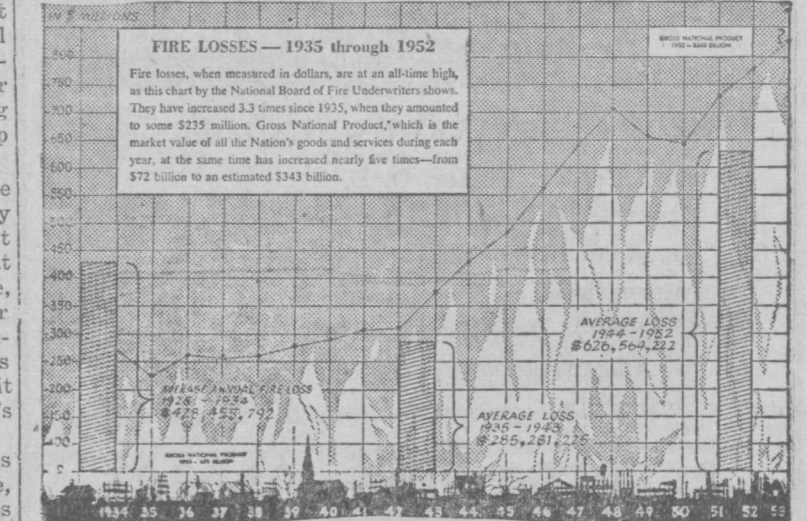

Your doctor, or the tuberculosis association nearest your home, will help arrange for the services of a public health nurse, who will instruct you and your family in methods of home care. As a TB patient at home, you must know, first of all, that rest in bed is one of the best aids to recovery from tuberculosis.

Three R's Ride The Rails In Canada

UP IN the northern Ontario bush country, students do go to school, but the Canadian National Railways also brings the school to the pupils. Converted CNR railway cars are the classrooms. Hauled from town to town by CNR freight trains, the school cars bring elementary education to hundreds in sparsely settled northern Ontario.

One of the cars contains living quarters for Teacher Fred Sloman, his wife and five children and a schoolroom with books, desks, maps and lending library. CNR's highballing classroom is uncoupled for a week at a time near tiny settlements. Here, Sloman keeps school daily for pupils from six to 18, gives them home work to last six weeks—when the car rolls around again. With classes of three to 16 pupils, Sloman gives individual attention to scores of students each year. Sloman graduates have become doctors, nurses, mine and mill foremen. The school itself—started in 1926—has proved so successful that Canadian National now has a school car system for isolated children in a number of outlying places.

The activities of the pupils in the rail schools are not confined to book study alone. Teacher Sloman, who pioneered the rural rail classes, arranges enthusiastic songfests and takes part in the recess periods

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL
U. S. Senator from Maryland

Recently in looking through a magazine I ran across an advertisement headed "Why I got mad and wrote my Congressman." For a Senator and a former Congressman that was a most compelling statement. What impressed me immediately was the difference between this headline and the mail which arrives in my office daily. I can't remember the last time I received a letter from anyone in Maryland which was intemperate in language or which indicated that the writer was greatly displeased.

All of which leads to a discussion of what does the daily mail of a Senator contain. Generally, people write because they want information on some particular subject or they have a problem with a governmental agency.

We do our best to see that the request is filled and we occasionally receive a generous letter of thanks as we did last week from the Ellersie Volunteer Fire Dept. in Allegany County.

The volunteer firemen have been troubled with a shortage of water during dry seasons and my office is endeavoring to obtain storage tanks for them.

I look upon my office as being a service organization. All of us realize that as long as the Federal government has such a direct influence on our daily lives then individuals will have problems with bureaucratic agencies. We accept it as our duty to assist the people of Maryland in adjusting their grievances. This is an obligation equal to that of acting on legislation—as Federal controls are eliminated then perhaps Senators can spend more time actually legislating.

If you need our help, write to us—and if you are mad write to us, too.

A delegation from the John R. Webb Post, No. 3285, VFW of Frederick, presented President Eisenhower this week with a gold plated membership in the post golf club.

LOOKING AHEAD
By GEORGE S. BENSON
President—Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

Good Man For Agriculture

WASHINGTON — A short time after Ezra Taft Benson had taken the oath of office as Secretary of Agriculture, he called together the key people whom he'd personally appointed—15 policy-making executives and a few of their top aides. As they sat down in a semi-circle fronting the great walnut desk in the Secretary's spacious private office, a mid-morning January sun illuminated the towering white shaft of the Washington Monument seen through the windows to his left.

"It is my wish," said Secretary Benson, "that as we meet here—in this first staff conference, and in those to come—we open our meeting with a word of prayer. If there is any objection . . ." He didn't finish; for his staff, as if moved by a single impulse, rose quietly, heads bowed. The Secretary rose and said a short prayer giving thanks and beseeching God for guidance. This staff meeting prayer has become a custom. It is characteristic of the new Agriculture Dept.

Wholesome Atmosphere

Several of Secretary Benson's immediate associates smoke, and at the first few meetings, a few cigars, a few cigarettes and a pipe or two were in evidence. The Secretary didn't mind. But as the character of the staff conferences began to be felt by all, the smoking stopped. "Smoking just seemed out of harmony with the atmosphere of our meetings," a high official in the department told me. "Everybody sensed it, and we smokers especially."

As this column is written I've just come from spending a day in the sprawling gray-stone building, just off the Mall, where decisions are being made directly affecting the long-range welfare of America's six million farm families and indirectly affecting the whole nation's future. I talked to a number of Mr. Benson's closest assistants and spent some time with the Secretary himself. I got a glimpse of the heart and mind of the new Agriculture Dept. and an understanding of the basic philosophy that will shape its future farm programs. What I saw and heard was good.

His Know-How Recognized

At 53, Secretary Benson is a strapping six-footer, handsome, vigorous. He speaks easily, forthrightly. He's a family man, with four daughters and two sons. His background and his capabilities seem to equip him perfectly for the Agriculture post. He grew up on an Idaho farm and chose agriculture as a career. He spent seven college years preparing—at Utah State Agriculture College, Brigham Young University, Iowa State College, and the University of California.

He has operated his own farm but his farming know-how and his grasp of the great universal problems of American agriculture have constantly taken him away from his own acres. He's served as county agent, extension economist and marketing specialist; and as professor-chairman of the Dept. of Agricultural Economics and Marketing at the University of Idaho. He helped build the farmer cooperative movement in America, and served for years in Washington as executive secretary of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives. During the war President Roosevelt appointed him to the National Agricultural Advisory Committee. He has spent sufficient time abroad to acquaint himself with the international problems of agriculture.

A Dedicated Servant

After digging into his background and visiting him here in Washington, I'm convinced that Ezra Benson is dedicated to (1) increasing reliance upon God in America, (2) strengthening our Constitutional government, (3) bettering life in America for everybody, and (4) improving the living standards and economic security on the farms of America. He feels, I'm sure that his best contribution to the nation's economic stability would be to help strengthen self-reliance, thus halting the disease of government handouts; to work toward vastly improved farm marketing information and facilities throughout the nation; and to place the emphasis, in Washington and throughout the Agriculture Dept. setup, on expanding and improving agricultural research and education for the benefit of the people on the millions of all-sized farms in America.

He has called in the farm leaders from every section of the country to help him formulate programs based on this thinking.

"Dr. Benson," he said as I was leaving, "I have great faith in the good horse-sense of the American people. They want sensible agricultural programs. That's what we will try to develop and offer to the nation." The American people, it seems to me, can have faith in a man who thinks and talks like that.

Odds And Ends

In this month named in honor of Mars, the Roman god of war, I go on with the effort to show the presence of a spirit longing and working for peace and a better life for all men on the earth, in the great Organization of the United Nations. The evidence to be surveyed is the same as that announced for last month's column, since I made no forward progress there, having allowed myself to be held up by a summary of what had been said before and a fuller introduction to what was to be said next. So we start off again to view what I have previously called "the practical climax of the Charter's part in the peace efforts," that being of course the Charter's detailed provisions for what United Nations, when it "gets going," is to do in order to carry out the purposes for which it was created. Which means, I should say, that we have here an especially impressive illustration of the "sustained and strenuous efforts" involved in trying to make the UN an effective instrument for bringing about a new and better world order. And I know from experience that with this thought in mind we may also find these detailed and, yes, often wearisomely minute provisions an even thrilling thing!

As we come to the Charter's main accomplishment in planning, this envisaging of a world union of nations at work on a vast and varied program for the carrying out of its "common ends," we must have those ends or purposes constantly in mind, for they are what give authority and meaning to the Charter's action-programs. Let me repeat them here, for it has been a long time since they were first reported on: (1) to maintain international peace and security by settling threats to or actual breaches of the peace, by peaceful means or by enforced action if made necessary; and to go beyond these particular situations or happenings to general conditions throughout the world that make a world-wide and lasting peace impossible, and so (2) to develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for national rights, and (3) to create a better life for men everywhere by solving international economic and social problems and promoting respect for basic human rights. These are not easy things to do, even for a United Nations! I am reminded of two famous comments that seem to apply, the one about the importance of hitching our wagon to a star, and Browning's "A man's reach must exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?" And now for our look at some practical details.

1. Action aimed directly at maintaining international peace and security. The Charter entrusts the carrying out of this aim primarily to the Security Council, the politically powerful 11-Member organ with the "Big Five" (the term sounds somewhat ironic now) as permanent Members, and it lays down a long train, we should say, perhaps, two trains, of specific acts to be done in the order indicated. I list these, condensed, to show how minutely the business of averting a general war by political action is gone into here (and I am of course disregarding such facts as whether the Members of UN keep their membership pledge to cooperate with Council action, or what may be the effect of the veto power given the "Big Five," as they are not to the present point). They fall into the two groups noted in purpose (1) above—peaceful settlement and settlement by enforced action.

In the first group belong these five steps: (a) the decision to place on the Council's agenda

(list of matters to be taken up) a matter that seems to have threatening possibilities; (b) discussion of the matter, in which any Member of the UN may take part, without vote, if its interests are involved, and in which any Member or non-Member of UN must be invited to take part if it is a party to the dispute; (c) From this point on the permanent "Big Five" Members may use their veto power to block action, one such negative vote being enough to do that, as the Charter requires agreement of all five on any decisive action; (d) calling on the disputants to get together independently to find a way of settlement, and reminding them of the possible means at their disposal, such as enquiry, negotiation, arbitration, resort to existing agencies in the region of the trouble, or other peaceful means of their own choice; (e) if still no settlement, the recommending of "appropriate procedures" to be followed; (f) finally, recommending the definite terms of settlement. But it must be noted that the Council recommendations have no compulsion—the parties concerned are not obliged to accept its terms. The point is, the Council will have made the effort—and the effort may be successful!

The other set of Council activities, under "settlement by enforcing action," begins with a more serious matter and is set in motion by (a) the Council's decision that a definite threat to peace or breach of peace, including an act of aggression, does exist. Then follow in order, if necessary, these steps: (b) calling on the parties concerned, "in order to prevent an aggravation of the situation" and before enforcement measures are resorted to, to comply with certain provisional measures (like withdrawing armies from a frontier or halting mobilization); (c) deciding on what pressures short of armed force are to be used to maintain or restore peace, and calling on UN Members to apply these measures, such as breaking off economic relations and rail, sea, air and other means of communication, and severing diplomatic relations; (d) as a last resort, if such measures fail, the ordering of military action—"such action by land, sea or air forces as may be necessary...." And this final action implies the taking of two others, at indefinitely indicated times, involving, respectively, the whole United Nations membership and a special sub-organ of the Council; namely, (e) making of special agreements with UN Members or groups of Members as to the numbers and types of forces and the other kinds of assistance to be furnished the Council, including "immediately available national air-force contingents," and (f) consulting with the Military Staff Committee on all matters connected with the taking of military measures. (This Committee, noted in the outline previously given, is made up of the Chiefs of Staff of the "Big Five.") But even these two postscripts to the Council's assigned activities do not complete the picture, for it must be added that the Council has the task of deciding whether all UN Members or only some, and if so which ones, are to give assistance in carrying out enforcement action, and what kind of assistance it is to be. Thus the Council's main activities were laid down in the Charter, no doubt with hopes that the veto power would not be misused and the Council's action, thus "frozen," and also that the "special agreements" for the Council's assistance would be promptly and satisfactorily made.

Two other main UN organs are entrusted with activities that belong in the group with those of the Security Council—the International Court of Justice and the General Assembly. The Court, made up of 15 individuals chosen from special national groups, is given one specific assignment in the direct efforts for peace and security; that is, to meet in permanent session to decide legal disputes between nations. But it does not have what is known as compulsory jurisdiction unless Members enter into an agreement with it to arrange for that; in other words, the submitting of cases to the Court is mainly voluntary on the part of UN Members or other states.

Since the General Assembly, as partly but not fully shown in the outline on the United Nations System given in last month's column, has direct connections with all the other UN organs and so, with all the UN purposes and related activities, its tasks in the field of direct efforts for peace are necessarily only a small part of its total action-program, unlike the case of the Court and especially of the Security Council, with so many responsibilities all directed to the same general purpose. But these fewer activities are especially important because of the nature of the Assembly, the only UN body in which every Member is represented, with complete equality as to voting and number of delegates. The Assembly's number-one activity in this field is a special part of a general Assembly function that is probably better known to the American public, thru newspaper, radio and television, than any other UN function, and that is, as a matter of fact, doubtless the single most important function of the whole Organization (for reasons which the reader may like to consider); I mean the free-for-all (up to five representatives from each Member-nation) discussion of any subject "within the scope of the Charter" or relating to the organs created by the Charter. As a special part of this function the Assembly Members have the privilege of discussing those questions which "relate to the maintenance of international peace and security" that may be brought to it by any Member, or a non-Member under certain conditions, or even by the Security Council itself. And the Assembly may do more than just discuss such questions, which is apparently a fact not so well known: it may make recommendations regarding them to the state or states concerned in the complaint or disagreement, and also to the Security Council, unless the Council at that time is itself considering the matter.

Finally, the Assembly may bring to the attention of the Council any situation that it decides may endanger peace and security; which provision, it has been suggested, is to make the Council "take notice" of a matter that one of its permanent Members might prefer to have overlooked. No, not quite finally, for I have omitted a very important kind of Assembly action which the Charter provides for and which the Assembly has since used in its efforts for peace—the appointing of such commit-

Kite Flying Can Be Dangerous Experts Say

Local school children were warned this week to keep all kites and model airplanes away from electric power lines. The warning was made by the Potomac Edison Company through posters which were distributed to all schools in this area.

Potomac Edison Safety Supervisor Raymond Beard stated that there are still many tragic accidents resulting each year from careless kite and model airplane flying. Fatalities are numerous and severe burns often are suffered when the necessary precautions are not heeded.

According to safety expert Beard and the school posters, trees, commissions, etc. as may be needed for special purposes.

Glee Club

To Present Operetta

"Tonight and tomorrow night, an operetta, 'In Gay Havana,' will be presented in the Thurmont High School Auditorium at eight o'clock.

Under the direction of Miss Mildred Trevett, music director, the 90 members of the Thurmont High School Glee Club, in elaborate and colorful costumes, will offer an unusual variety of song and dance choruses to the rhythmic accompaniment of a Latin-American orchestra.

Shirley Zentz and Charlotte Brown are the accompanists for this brilliant musical.

CORRECTION

In last week's writeup of the Fire Company's monthly meeting it was stated that the membership agreed to purchase uniforms. Some misunderstanding had occurred over the statement. It meant just what it said, the members agreed to buy the uniforms, not the Vigilant Hose Co.
