Was quite amused over an incident that happened here recently. Just to show you that it is a small world, I'm relating this little item as a parable to you, who have been dumping your trash along the wayside or on someone else's property. Well, anyway, it seems, a local female property-owner, near town has been highly indignant, and rightfully so, about people dumping unauthorized trash on her property. So pulling a Dick Tracy she rolled up her sleeves and cocked an eye, as she plunged into a one-lady investigation. Soon her efforts were rewarded when she obtained her first clue. Highly elated over her find, a set of license plates of 1952 vintage; she went to work tracing the owner. After a few days' vigorous searching she had the culprit's name and just who do you think he was? Of all people, a state trooper. How the plates got on her property calls for further delving into details. However, it is the suspicion of the lady that the offender is a Taneytown filling station which has been dumping discarded oil cans on her land, and perhaps had changed the trooper's plates for him and also placed them on the dump. Just goes to show you what a lady can accomplish when her dander is up.

Just a friendly word of advice before it costs you a little money. Most of us know that the speed limit on Route 15, between here and Thurmont, has been lowered to 40 miles per hour over that treacherous stretch of road, which has some 20-odd curves in its seven-mile stretch. Several locals have felt the "pinch" already, much to their chagrin. The State Roads Commission works in mysterious ways sometimes and on this occasion suddenly decided to change the placards leaving many of us unaware of the situation. Even at that there are only three of these signs in the seven-mile stretch, that is, three on either side of the road, so I am led to believe that the limit of 40 miles per hour prevails over the road's entirety. So watch your step from now on, as it may be a plan to finance a new road which has been promised for next year.

After becoming accustomed to the roar of the sea, as many had termed the "new" road that went through town last year after it had been resurfaced with coarse stone, residents are now complaining about the new resurfacing job done this week to the highway. It seems we must go from the ridiculous to the sublime. Now complaints chiefly concern the quietness of the new road. Many complain that cars "sneak" upon them before they are aware of it because the road is so smooth. Many cars appear silent, as though standing still. Well, that can easily be remedied. Now that the town has purchased a line painting machine, it wouldn't be a bad idea to line all crosswalks and see that pedestrians obeyed them before someone gets killed. One improvement just seems to bring on another problem. Now that the repaving has almost been completed many motorists, local too, have a tendency to let their machines get going just a trifle fast over the town's thoroughfares, so take heed fellas, easy on that throttle or you'll be sorry.

"Hun" Baker was the envy of all fishermen who saw him Monday when he came to town with a string of bass that would make Isaac Walton turn over in his grave had he been able to see them. Six beauties was the score and they weighed 15 pounds. No, he wasn't saving them up, as they say, it was all a few hours' catch. I'm going to be like some of my friends and not reveal where he struck gold, but if you really want to know, why not call him up? Tear your heart out, boys.

The grey squirrel is such a pest in England that there is a law against keeping one alive.

Mount Graduates 95; Honorary Degrees Given

The Very Rev. Francis X. Desmond, C.M., rector of Our Lady of Angels Seminary, Niagara, N. Y., began the 145th Commencement Exercises at Mt. St. Mary's College when he delivered the baccalaureate address to the 95 members of the graduating class and 1,000 friends and parents on Tuesday at 4:30 p. m. in the college chapel.

In his address, Fr. Desmond, who had been rector of the Mt. St. Mary's Seminary during the war years, used as the basis of his sermon, the four symbols of the Gospels—the Gospel of St. Matthew, symbolized by a Man; St. Mark by a lion; St. Luke by the Ox and St. John by the Eagle.

Citing the evils rampant in modern society, Fr. Desmond noted that "while human ingenuity seeks to enhance man's health, comfort and enjoyment, a secret, sinister power is at work to make man a mere tool of his lower passions; to enchain his reason and to crush his God-given liberty."

"What would these forces make of man? Is he to be reduced to stark-naked humanity, as a false humanism proposed; a bundle of atoms or nerves as materialism or freudism demand; a channel for the pure blood stream, as Nazism claims; a mere tool of the state, or simply a clod of earth in the vile and vicious philosophy of a godless proletariat?"

"The social structure of the human race consists of three departments: the home, the state and the world. The physical welfare of the first is endangered by selfish dealing; of the second by selfish partisan politics; of the third by nationalistic greed for power and wealth. This triple welfare is not safeguarded by stone walls, iron works or steel girders, but by the integrity, honesty and veracity of our manhood. Sound business demands fair play; wholesome politics, high minded principles; wise statesmanship, unselfish vision."

"You are men of Mt. St. Mary's, Mountaineers carrying on your breast these four symbols of the Gospels."

"The first symbol is a Man. Be Mountain men with clear minds, stout hearts and proud of human dignity."

"The second symbol is a Lion. Mountaineers need strength, endurance and prowess. Show forth these noble qualities in your battle of life, undismayed by Satan and his colleagues, turning neither right nor left—but always in the middle of the road."

"The third symbol is the Ox or Victim, and the lesson is sacrifice. The Mountaineer must sacrifice, labor and toil, if he would reach the Mountain top. Even so on your life's journey, learn to abstain, to be temperate, to deny yourselves—and you will gain a glorious victory."

"The fourth symbol is the Eagle that soars aloft. Always cherish a noble idealism; hold on to what you have, your holy faith and a heavenly crown will be yours. Go forth then with dignity, with courage, with sacrifice and with the staff of your holy faith."

"Here is your challenger. Go forth and toil and labor and seek what our founding fathers have bequeathed you: life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Weld together those inspired words with the noble words of the Declaration of Independence and as Catholic Americans, guard and champion your manhood in the freedom wherewith Christ has made us free."

St. Joseph College Exercises Held Tuesday

His Excellency the Most Rev. Lawrence J. Shehan, D.D., auxiliary bishop of Baltimore conferred degrees on the graduates of Saint Joseph College at that institution's 143rd Commencement Exercises held Tuesday morning in DePaul Auditorium. John A. Reilly, LL.B., president of the Second National Bank of Washington and an outstanding Catholic layman of the archdiocese, gave the address to the graduates.

Procession of faculty members and honored guests formed at Burlando and proceeded across the campus to the auditorium in the Vincent Bldg. The graduates then entered the hall to the traditional strains of the March of Priests played by Ruffino J. Iula and his musicians.

Mary Lou Prehn, Forestville, Md., extended the welcome on behalf of the graduating class. The conferring of degrees followed.

In his address to the graduates, Mr. Reilly told them of their obligations to their family, their community and their church. He said that the total of these obligations is a part of their duty to their country and today that obligation takes them beyond the boundaries of their land into every part of the world. The speaker stressed the importance of loyalty, courage, calmness, resoluteness, confidence and belief in God and self. The graduates' luncheon was served in DuBois Hall after graduation for the graduates and guests.

Commencement week opened with the Mariale Soiree Monday evening. At this ceremony the graduates paid their final tribute to the Blessed Mother as Guardian of the Valley. Led by the class officers the seniors, carrying lighted torches, marched in procession from Burlando Bldg., to the statue of Virgo Potens which stands at the head of the avenue. Council Has Engineer Survey Sewer System

Emmitsburg's lack of adequate sewerage was the main issue discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Town Council held Monday evening in the Fire Hall, president of the board Thomas J. Frailey presiding over the full council. Town Clerk Louise Sebold presented the treasurer's, tax collector's and secretary's reports which were approved as reported. Parking meter revenue for May was announced as $301.

Mayor Thornton W. Rodgers announced that 17 loads of trash had been hauled away during the recent clean-up days. Installation of the new traffic light was discussed and it was announced the light had arrived and was now stored in the Fire Hall awaiting installation. The officials stated that they were having difficulty in obtaining the proper assistance for the installation of the light, however, it was believed that it would be accomplished by this weekend.

Lack of adequate sewerage, long a target at which local property-owners could spend their wrath, was discussed at length by the Town Fathers and they announced they were in communication with the State Health Dept. about the matter. State Engineers Peter C. Dodge of the Health Department was in Emmitsburg yesterday afternoon and along with the Solons, made a lengthy survey of the needs for additional sewerage and determine just what can be done to alleviate the problem. It is assumed that a tremendous amount of money would have to be raised to sponsor any project of this caliber and it goes without saying that a bond issue would have to be made in the next two years to raise such monies. Total cost of the new traffic light was placed in the neighborhood of $1,000.

Another large-scale project the Council has been harboring for some months, is a proposed bypass of Emmitsburg which would permit one-way traffic only on North and South Seton Ave. and still keep business flowing thru the town. Under the proposed plan the northbound traffic would be funneled into a new traffic artery beginning at the Texaco service station on South Seton Ave., continuing on a line to Broad Alley and over Federal Ave. to again join Route 15 just north of town. No definite action is planned at this particular time as the project is only in the discussion stage.

Estimates are being asked on the proposed installation of town water to the disposal plant on Creamery Road.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL

When the people of the United States voted for a change of administration one of the things they expected was a reduction in Federal expenditures, to be followed by a reduction in taxes.

The President and the Congress are conscientiously trying to keep that campaign promise, but to do it we must have the cooperation of every citizen of the U. S.

For years my mail has contained letters complaining of high taxes, and instances of wasteful spending by the government. I agreed with those correspondents and told them that as soon as my party became the majority party we were pledged to do something about it.

Since Jan. 20 the administration and Congress has been diligently working to effect every economy possible in so short a time. Millions and millions have been cut from the budget and the administration has pledged itself to continue throughout the year to look for further economies which can be made.

As I interpret last November's election returns that is one of the things the people expected us to do.

Now my mail is filled with letters from people wanting cuts and certain budgets restored—many from the same people who for years have said they wanted less spending and less taxes.

This doesn't surprise me, nor disappoint me. But I do think that all of us should do a little serious thinking.

First, are we really sincere in thinking that it is economically unsound to continue during periods of business prosperity the practice of high spending and high taxes?

Second, are we prepared to restrain from asking the Federal government to do things which will increase spending and taxes?

If we answer yes, then each of us before asking the government to favor one of our special projects should practice the same kind of self sacrifice that we do when we see something in a store window which we desire, but which we know that this month we cannot afford.

Nothing is accomplished by having the administration cut certain items from the budget and then have the Congress restore the funds. Yet that is what everyone in Congress is being asked to do.

To successfully put this nation back on a sound financial basis taxpayers and public officials alike must stop asking the government to do things which either can be delayed or done without.

Since this is the month of graduations many young people will start looking for jobs and thinking about their future careers. Certainly all high school graduates should seriously think about going to college and there are plenty of opportunities in such fields as engineering. But for the high school graduate who decides not to continue his education the government has a publication which might prove interesting.

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

Return to the principle of flexible price support contained in the Agricultural Act of 1949, was recommended by a special dairy producer-industry task group to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson as a part of a broad plan for attacking current dairy problems. The 20-man group advised the Secretary that a return to flexible price supports for all agricultural commodities at the end of the current marketing year is highly desirable.

According to George J. Martin, chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee, the group urged the industry to support the merchandising and sales programs of the American Dairy Assn. and the National Dairy Council. They asked for a full sales promotion program during June, the dairy month. The group also asked that government agencies, such as the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, Extension Service, the PMA and state educational agencies combine their efforts with industry in this effort.

In looking for additional outlets for present stocks of dairy products, the group recommended using these stocks to increase consumption of dairy products in the many undernourished areas of the world and requested study of various plans for moving surplus stocks into American consumer channels. The group also asked for a review of the Federal milk marketing order and agreement program. Attacking the problem of imitations, the group requested the Secretary of Agriculture to urge appropriate state and Federal agencies to effectively enforce the regulation of imitation dairy products.

Athletes At Mount Rank High Scholastically

The graduating athletes of Mt. St. Mary's College seem justified in their opinion that the college athlete has had a "bum rap" as a result of the basketball scandals and the much publicized comments about athletes in "fresh air" courses. And the records of the 19 athletes who graduated Wednesday proves their point.

Cumulative average for the entire group of senior athletes over the four-year period is 82.63 with only one dipping below 78 per cent. Six of the athletes received their degrees cum laude, and one, Harry McPartland, of Brooklyn, N. Y., acted as the salutatorian at graduation. One student, Frank Thomas, varsity tennis, represented the group in Delta Epsilon Sigma, the National Catholic Honor fraternity; Frank Grubic, Frank Thomas, and Bob Evers from tennis; Harry McPartland and Pat McAuliffe from football, and Art Mace, the baseball captain. In addition, four senior athletes were listed in the current edition of "Who's Who Among American College Students or Student Leaders in America."

Athletes also held the top prestige jobs on the campus. Bob Evers was editor-in-chief of the finest yearbook in Mountaineer history; Harry McPartland was photography editor. McPartland was also vice president of student council and president of the Monogram Club.

Frank Thomas was president of the Science Club, and Charles Evans of track and cross-country, the regional president of the National Federation of Catholic College students. Five of the senior athletes served as members of the school paper, the Mountain Echo; seven were Fraternity staff members; two were members of the college band, and two of the Glee Club. Athletes were officers of the senior class, the athletic association, the Adelphi and Connecticut Clubs, Student Council, the Science Club and the Glee Club. Five of them were members of the junior prom committee.

And lest the charge of "fresh air" courses be leveled at them their record attests that Pat McAuliffe, Washington, D. C., graduated cum laude in the A.B. course where prerequisites are still Latin and Greek; Frank Thomas, Meyersdale, Pa., tangled with math, physics, biology and chemistry for his B. S. in science cum laude; Frank Grubic, Harrisburg, Pa., and Paul Sharpe, of Jeddo, Pa., received the B.S. in accounting, the former cum laude; Bob Evers, Troy N. Y., and Art Mace, received their degrees cum laude in education with majors in English and history respectively. Jim McKeone, basketball co-captain, Elizabeth, N. J., and Jim Adams, Philadelphia, a sweet-running back, picked up a B. S. in education with majors in English; Don Joy, Emmitsburg, B.S. in education with a major in history.

The other athletes received B.S. degrees with a major in social science, with McPartland representing the group on the cum laude list.

Course registration of athletes followed the general pattern of the student body, and each curriculum had one or more athletes on the cum laude list.

So at Mt. St. Mary's at least, Mountaineer athletes feel that they have done the college job they set out to do.

Church Contributes $830 To Drive

Frederick County Catholics contributed 6,675.584 in the 14-day May Fund, it was announced this week by Rev. Thomas A. Whelan, executive secretary. St. John's parish in Frederick donated $3,364.90, exceeding by nearly $500 the amount given last year in the diocesan appeal.

This year's appeal by Archbishop Francis P. Keough to finance the combined operation of Catholic charities in the Baltimore archdiocese as well as swell the building fund, raised a total of $860,063, which is $56,638 above the 1952 figure. The Stella Maris Hospice in Dulany Valley, near Baltimore, is about completed and the archbishop's plan is to begin construction as soon as possible on a children's village to combine work of a number of now scattered institutions for child welfare.

Sunday afternoon in the Baltimore Cathedral Archbishop Francis Keough was the celebrant at a pontifical mass offered in thanksgiving for the success of the appeal, and for the generous response of the contributors and the 10,000 workers through the area.

St. Anthony's, Emmitsburg, contributed $69.29 to the drive and St. Joseph's, Emmitsburg, $830.00.

REMEMBER, SENIORS

By Mary Jane Barthlow

Remember graduation

Because you're going away.

You'll feel a little sorry

Draws nearer every day,

Remember all the good times

You always had at school,

Of how you skipped your classes

And broke the Golden Rule.

Remember all the studies

Or homework, you would say,

You'd go away the night before

And know nothing the next day

Remember how the teachers tried

To make you understand,

All about your studies

When you needed a helping hand.

Remember all you seniors

As you go on your way,

You will always think of school

They were the good old days.

Chimney Fires

The Vigilant Hose Co. was called Thursday of last week to the home of John Willard, about five miles south of Emmitsburg in Eyer's Valley where a chimney fire was in progress. The blaze, which caused slight damage, was caused by the oil jet of a stove being left open during the night and when the stove was lighted in the morning the rapid combustion caused by excess fuel, caused the dirt and debris in the chimney to ignite.

The Vigilant Hose Co. was called to the apartment Monday of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd C. Miller, Center Square, where a chimney blaze was in progress. The blaze resulted after the family had started a fire in an open fireplace which ignited soot in the flue. The blaze started about 3:15 p. m. and no damage was reported.

No Magic Cure Yet Discovered For Tuberculosis; No Shortcuts

No "Magic" Against TB
Even in this age of "wonder drugs" no responsible person has laid claim to a cure-all for tuberculosis, still the No. 1 killer among infectious diseases. Even with the best of known drugs and the most up-to-date surgery, treatment of TB is a long, slow process. It can be cured and can be prevented, but there are no "magical" shortcuts.

Even since 1882 when Robert Koch identified the tubercle bacillus as the germ which causes tuberculosis, the search has gone forward for drugs to combat it. But it is only in the last 10 years that drug treatment has proved practical. The discovery of streptomycin in 1943 introduced a new era in the fight against TB. It was the first drug to prove its value in treating this age-old disease.

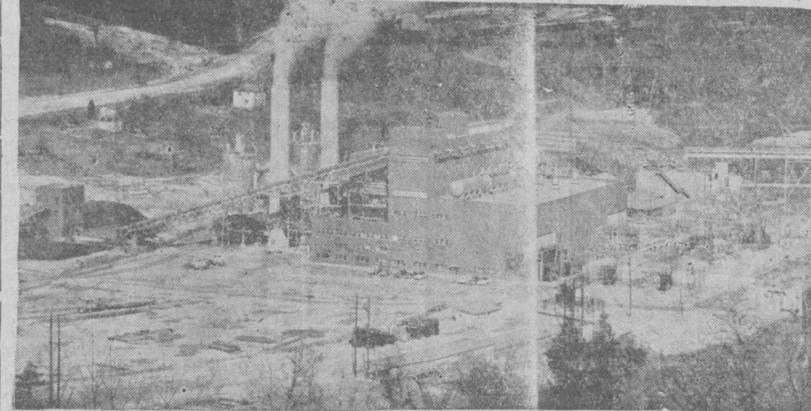

Streptomycin was not, of course, the complete answer to tuberculosis. New families of TB germs developed which could resist the drug. It was found that it could be more effectively used in combination with another drug, PAS, or para-aminosalicylic acid, which seems to delay the development of germ resistance.

A newer drug, isoniazid or isonicotinic acid hydrazide, a synthetic chemical compound, is becoming increasingly important in TB treatment. It is used alone or in combination with streptomycin and PAS, depending on varying conditions.

The search continues for better drugs and other methods of treatment for tuberculosis. Some people think the greatest hope for the conquest of the disease lies in research constantly going on for a better vaccine than BCG, the one most widely used today. Obviously, prevention of TB is better than the best of treatment.

P-E Dedicates New Power Plant For This Section

The $36 million Albright power station, jointly owned and operated by the Potomac Edison and Monongahela Power Companies, was dedicated recently with West Virginia's Governor Theodore R. McKeldin among the featured speakers.

The new generating station, located in Preston County, in the northeast corner of W. Virginia will, when completed, have a generating capacity of 285,000 kilowatts. At the present time, two 75,000 kilowatt generating units are on the lines supplying power to Potomac Edison System and Monongahela Power Co., one unit is owned and operated by PE, one by Monongahela. The third unit is scheduled to go the lines in '54. It will have a capacity of 135,000 kilowatts.

Immediately preceding and following the dedication ceremonies, guests were taken through the big plant by station personnel in a series of guided tours.

Electricity from Albright for PE customers in Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and Pennsylvania will come over a recently completed 132,000 volt transmission line. This connects Albright with a new substation at Ridgeley, W. Va., just across the river from the Potomac Edison generating station in Cumberland. This new line crosses some of the roughest terrain in PE territory. It is nearly 50 miles in length and, with related substation equipment, costs well over a million dollars.

The Albright Station is the third major addition to the P-E System's generating facilities since the close of World War II. PE now has sources of electricity at Albright, W. Va., Williamsport, Cumberland, and Riverton, Va. The Albright Station, located in the center of a large coal producing region, will help supply the growing demand for power.

And Jesus answered him, saying, It is written, That man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.—(St. Luke IV, 4)

We need not go beyond ourselves and our daily needs and desires to know the everlasting truth in the saying of Christ Jesus. Neither a million pounds of bread nor yet a million dollars can give us, in our anguish and distress, a single moment of peace of mind or soul. Only God, through His Son, our Saviour, can give us that blessing.

Luncheon Scoops

Red Buttons, hailed as the comedy television find of last year, figures he'll still elect to be a comedian even if it hadn't led to fame and fortune.

The slender, bouncy redhead, who was born on New York's lower East Side and started his show business career at the age of thirteen, thinks of success always in terms of the audience of the moment . . . if he leaves that audience laughing, he's a happy man, until the next audience, when he figures he has to earn his happiness all over again.

Most dramatic incident of Red's career is the time in 1945 when he was an entertainer at the historic Potsdam Conference.

Married to a pretty brunette who isn't in the entertainment field herself, Red relies a lot on his wife's criticisms of his work—and likes to do raw comedy routines for her first.

YOU and YOUR CONGRESS

(Sponsored by the Emmitsburg Chamber of Commerce)

WASHINGTON—There will be a lot of talk in Congress during the next several weeks about wings.

It will be in connection with the size of the Air Force and the amount of money to increase it which Congress should appropriate for the new fiscal year that begins July 1.

This debate, as in the past, will tend to confuse many members of Congress and taxpayers alike. There already is argument as to whether the goal of 143 wings set by the Truman administration for January, 1955, should be reduced to one of 120 wings for June 30, 1955, as proposed by the Eisenhower administration.

It might be added that the Air Force's size has increased from 87 wings in mid-1951 to 103 at present

All of which logically raises the question in the non-military mind of what precisely is a wing.

To begin with, a wing is the major Air Force combat unit. It is an elastic, self-contained unit, designed to operate independently and to be self-supporting.

A wing, the Air Force says, is composed of four groups—a combat group plus one group each for medical care, maintenance of aircraft, and air base installations and operations.

Combat groups contain varying numbers of aircraft, with the number depending on the type of operation or mission.

A fighter group contains 75 aircraft. A heavy bomber group contains 30 aircraft. Other types of combat groups contain numbers of aircraft varying between those two figures.

Under the basic structure, to which some exceptions are made, a combat group contains three squadrons in peacetime. Each squadron contains one-third of the aircraft in the group. In time of war, an extra squadron may be added to certain types of combat groups.

While that is as closely as the definition of a wing can be pinned down for the layman, it still is, of necessity, vague. That is pointed out to illustrate the difficulty encountered by most members of Congress in trying to decide how many wings there should be.

Thus the debate over 143 versus 120 wings is apt to generate a good deal more heat than light, not to mention a considerable amount of political oratory.

Those in Congress who oppose the proposed reduction in the number of wings contend that it would reduce our air strength.

They ask how it can be that, as the administration claims, less appropriations for the Air Force can mean a stronger Air Force.

At least one member of Congress has demanded that Defense Secretary Wilson resign for making such a claim. Another member has suggested that the cut was dictated by the Budget Bureau without due consideration for what it would mean in loss of air strength.

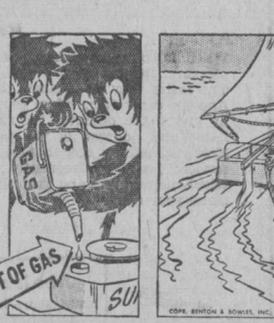

The thing to be remembered during this debate is that military aircraft are not delivered the year they are ordered. It takes two or three years, or more, to design, build and test them.

The administration claims that 143 wings is only an unrealistic "paper" goal that could not be met by January, 1955. It says all of the present wings are not fitted out in full or adequate combat strength. By expediting deliveries of aircraft, Wilson says, the Air Force can be built to 120 full-strength wings by mid-1955.

Because it feels the 143-wing goal could not be met anyhow, the administration proposes that Congress permit the Air Force to draw $5 billion less from the Treasury during fiscal 1954 than Mr. Truman recommended. The Air Force already has $40 billion in Congressionally endorsed checks which it can draw on the Treasury whenever it needs the money.

When it cashes those checks, that is spending which affects the Federal budget which the administration hopes to balance. The administration proposes that Air Force check-cashing during fiscal 1954 be held to $2.3 billion less than Mr. Truman proposed.

Wilson says that could be done

Wise Home-Hunter Carries Flashlight When He Searches

If you're going house hunting, take a flashlight with you. Many places in a house where inspection can be most revealing are poorly lighted and the prospective purchaser is under a severe handicap if a flashlight isn't part of his equipment.

A flashlight is particularly handy in inspecting the roof. This is true because a good way to get an idea of a roof's condition is to look at the underside of the roof deck. Search for wet spots, discoloration, and other evidence of water penetration.

Because many shortcomings can be remedied relatively simply, a house can be a good buy even if it has some defects. A leaky roof, for instance, can be improved with fire-resistant asphalt shingles, which usually can be laid on top of the old material. This procedure is economical and retains the insulation value of the old roofing.

WHEN OPPORTUNITY CALLS TODAY FROM A DISTANT TOWN OR CITY, A MAN KNOWS THAT— EAST, WEST, NORTH, SOUTH, WHEREVER HE TRAVELS IN AMERICA— THERE ARE GOOD HOMES, NEIGHBORLY PEOPLE, FRIENDLY COMMUNITIES. SO, TRANSPLANTING HIS FAMILY DOESN'T FAZE HIM.

FOR ANOTHER THING, PULLING UP STAKES IS MADE EASIER TODAY TOO, BECAUSE MOST FAMILIES HAVE A NEST EGG IN SAVINGS AND LIFE INSURANCE THAT THEY CAN TAKE WITH THEM. MEN WERE NEVER FREER TO RESPOND TO OPPORTUNITY THAN IN AMERICA TODAY.

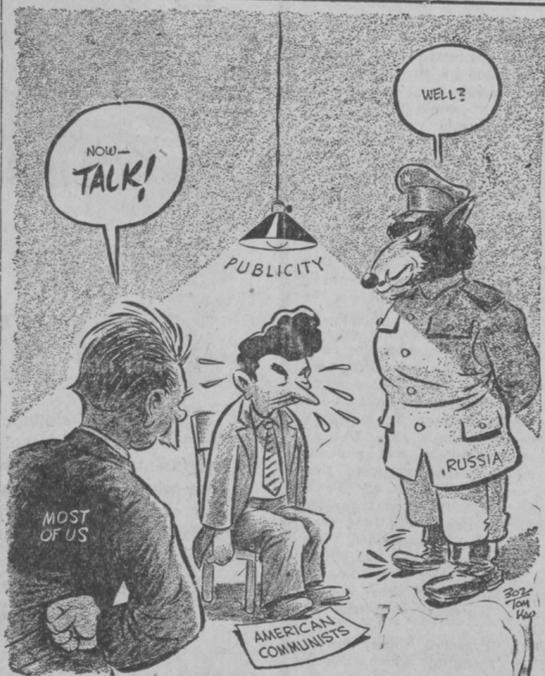

June Is Dairy Month

Chicago TV actress Adrienne Falcon celebrates the advent of June Dairy Month and raises a toast to the U. S. Dairy industry with a refreshing glass of milk during a "break" in recent rehearsals. Dairy Month, June 1-30, a star in its own right on the American scene, is being staged for the 17th consecutive year by over 10 million Americans who gain livelihood from the production, processing and distribution of dairy foods such as ice cream, milk, butter, cheese, evaporated milk and dry milk. The dairy industry contributes annually at least 10 billion dollars to national commerce.

Adrienne keeps trim by following the newly developed scientific diet for weight reducing, or ideal weight maintenance, which includes liberal portions of dairy and other basic foods in the menus.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

NEW YORK CITY, June 4—During the past winter, while in the South, I received many interesting letters which I have saved.

Most of these letters can be classified under four headings: (1) unemployment insurance, (2) excess inventories, (3) personal debts, and (4) labor unions. As these letters come from over 30 different states, they give a cross section of what the average businessman is thinking about.

Unemployment Insurance
For a very subtle reason most businessmen, especially retailers, are not opposed to unemployment insurance. They feel that if a depression comes, these unemployment checks—as well as pensions, old-age assistance and other sources of government, state and municipal aid—will be of real help in preventing a business collapse. Doubtless these checks from the public treasury will cushion a decline in their business when unemployment comes. But why have the unemployment?

These letters almost unanimously, however, complain about the present abuse of this unemployment insurance. For instance, in Massachusetts a person who earns approximately $500 in each quarter of a year, or approximately $2000 a year, is entitled to collect $25 for 23 weeks for unemployment, or $575. But the laws of the various states vary somewhat as to the amount paid and the duration of payment. If these were bona-fide cases, it would not be so bad; but my correspondents claim that a large portion of these "unemployed" have purposely arranged to get "fired" in order to get this insurance. In other words, it is becoming a fast-growing racket which is upsetting the employment situation, undermining the character of employes and causing an unnecessary drain on public funds. If unemployment offices are not operated by politicians and their friends, officials do seem to be shutting their eyes to this abuse. It should be stopped.

Danger of Excess Inventories
John C. Lang of Baltimore writes a letter which is typical of many similar letters. He calls attention to the excess inventories which businessmen for various reasons feel obliged to carry. Of course, the future of your community depends, in the long run, on keeping purchasing power and inventories on a reasonable balance.

Such a balanced condition would help to give your community a steady but gradually increasing prosperity. Various suggestions have been made for preventing excessive inventories. One is that the excess profits tax be switched to an excess inventories tax. Surely, some check on excess inventories is needed to avoid a business depression. I hope each merchant will be careful.

Installment Debts
The American people are today indebted for $19.3 billion due on installment purchases. Savings are larger than ever and these should, to a certain extent, serve as an offset. Unfortunately, however, Congress has not given the Federal Reserve System the power to curb consumer credit, and this unnecessarily permits further credit expansion.

A dangerous feature of the situation is that local banks, which refused to loan customers when they were out of employment and needed the money, are now, with higher prices being paid for automobiles, refrigerators, fur coats, etc., encouraging unnecessary borrowing. I hope they will be careful and avoid a policy which would not be good for their community.

Labor Leaders
From almost every state I receive complaints about the arbitrary actions of union labor. My correspondents do not object to the carpenter, painter, plumber, bricklayer, etc., getting more pay. They, however, complain desperately that these workers are not producing what they should and are loafing on the job. The workmen in turn blame the problem on the labor leaders. All of this sets up a vicious circle which sometime must collapse.

I am a great believer in every family having a home, and hence have always encouraged the building and buying of homes. I fear, however, that the present attitude of labor leaders may cause the building

Around the Studios

Pinchhitting for Daddy turned out to be a lot of fun for Dusty Rogers and his younger brother Sandy, the son of NBC radio and television star Roy Rogers.

Dusty Rogers

The two little boys, who are six and five respectively, were asked to attend the opening of a new restaurant—and officiate at the unveiling of a mural of their Dad and his famous stallion, Trigger. Roy was away from home at the time, and the little boys took their stand-in jobs very seriously. Said six-year-old Dusty when Roy returned, "I think we did just fine. I acted just like you—only I'm shorter."

One of the catchiest novelty discs of the year, Red Buttons' "Ho Ho" song, has the same influence on the jukebox audience as Red's rendition of it in person has on his studio audience—the crowd just naturally joins in the chorus. "Strange Things Are Happening" indeed. . . . Not so strange, but very nice for the likeable little comedian was the professional accolade from New York Times critic Jack Gould. Mr. Gould called Red "Easily the major discovery of the current year and the brightest new talent for a much longer period."

One of the busiest men in Hollywood is the able announcer of NBC's "The Railroad Hour," versatile Marvin Miller. Currently, he has just completed in addition to his regular weekly chores on "The Railroad Hour," a recorded narration for the ambitious Audio-Book record album of the New Testament. . . . Consisting of forty-eight sides, the album takes twenty-three hours to play. It was five months in preparation. Another of Marvin's recent engagements was at a benefit performance at Camp Pendleton and—on the same day—another benefit appearance on the California Living program for the Los Angeles Police Show. . . .

Robert Young, star of "Father Knows Best," delivered the principal layman address at the recent Episcopal convention in Los Angeles. Young is very active in religious work and is a trustee of the Bishop's School, La Jolla, California, in addition to his well-known activities in connection with the National Highway Safety Council's efforts to improve driving safety. . . . Good horse sense

One of the most interesting examples of horse sense in practice is the way two horses stand side by side flicking flies from each other. Another example is the friendly sharing of party lines. Consideration for others in keeping calls reasonably brief is a good way to make sure that the same consideration is shown to you. That's just plain good sense, too.

When it comes to fishing, waiting is part of the pleasure. But not so with your Long Distance calls! The faster they go through, the better you like it. And you can help speed up your Long Distance calls by giving the operator the number, not just the name and address, of the person you're calling. Here's something else that will help you to faster service: jot down frequently used Long Distance telephone numbers and keep them handy when you make your calls.

Papa David Says:

(on NBC's "Life Can Be Beautiful")

"... what is right or wrong is usually a matter of personal opinion, but I do know one thing—it is never wrong to give a person the benefit of a doubt. Our Bill of Rights is based on that premise."

"Sometimes we are too quick to judge others from appearances. Chichi darling, without ever thinking that our own appearances are also subject to criticism..."

"... It is much wiser to anticipate that a revelation will be good—rather than waste time worrying about it being bad."

"There are two ways of learning that all of us make mistakes—and one of them is to make a few yourself... The other is to have an understanding heart. I'm thinking, leden, that most of us learn through a combination of the two."

ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS

Q. At what age should chicks be wormed the 1st time?

A. It varies but usually birds need worming at 6 to 8 weeks. Large roundworms often infect chicks early--use Dr. Salsbury's Wormal in the mash for a quick 'n' easy treatment. Wormal also removes cecal worms and tapeworms.* It is safe for birds of any age. This year, make more money from your chicks--follow a Wormal worming plan! (*Genus Raillietina)

The time to tune up the portable electric fan for warm weather has come.

If your electric fan has been out of use during the winter months, it will probably need dusting or cleaning, and also oiling, to get it in condition for long hours of running.

Read the manufacturer's direction that comes with the fan for correct oiling. Ordinarily, fans need lubricating only once a year, but if they run a great deal, they may need oil more frequently. However, take care not to over-oil and soak the insulation in the motor, thus causing motor damage.

If a fan is noisy or vibrates too much, the trouble may be bent fan blades, the lack of oil or a loose screw. Or it may be dirt on the blades that causes unbalance. If the blades are coated, especially with greasy lint, clean them with a damp soapy cloth or a cloth dipped in kerosene oil. Wipe off guards and the motor cover with a damp soapy cloth.

Like the fan itself, the cord requires little care but the right care to keep it in good condition. Whenever the fan is connected, any kinks should be straightened out, or when the cord is wound, sharp bends should be avoided. Frayed or damaged cords should be replaced or repaired.

If a fan fails to start, it may mean a break in the cord or a loose connection. If the trouble is not apparent, it's a good idea to check it with a repair man.

Farm Machinery Takes Up Slack After Wet Weather Work Loss

The increased number of modern agricultural machines in Maryland will pay off this spring as a result of the wet weather which has delayed some planting to date, according to the Committee for Conservation Now.

Despite delays, tractor power on the farm will make planting possible in a much shorter period of time than would be the case if animal power were used. The number of tractors on farms in the state has about tripled in the past 10 years.

The Committee pointed out that mechanization is one of the key factors along with such other practices as conservation, better seeds, use of fertilizer and lime, insecticides and crop rotations which increase productivity per acre and net farm income.

In addition to making planting possible in shorter time when wet conditions cause delay, machinery saves feed which otherwise would be consumed by work animals. The value of the grain and forage fed to four or five work animals amounts to between $500 and $600 per year, the Committee said.

Knowledge is Power

1. CAN YOU ANALYZE YOURSELF?
2. WHERE IS THE WORLD'S LARGEST MOSAIC?
3. HOW MUCH LAND DOES THE GOVERNMENT OWN?

(1) To a degree, you can. Your actions, your facial expressions, and your mannerisms reveal much of your personality. Paul Boynton suggests several questions you can ask of yourself: (a) Do you accept or resent criticism? (b) Are you friendly? (c) Are you a leader, follower, or solitary? (d) Can you avoid being domineering? (e) Do you welcome or fear change? (f) Do you take part in things or hold aloof? (g) Does failure crush you? Answer these honestly, and you'll know yourself pretty well.

(2) Mexico's University City library building boasts a 10-story high stone mosaic picture which resembles a tapestry. Some 3 million tiny stones, each less than two inches in diameter, cover 4,440 square yards, sheathing all four sides of the building. The area covered is about the size of a football field, reports James Norman in Americas magazine.

The scenes were assembled in sections on the ground, then hoisted to the wall, heaved to a metal frame work, and cemented in place. Themes for the massive panoramas include pre-Hispanic and colonial culture, and the history of the Aztec people.

(3) Originally, three fourths of the land in the U.S. was owned by the federal government, explains Marion Clawson, director of the Bureau of Land Management. "Today there are still more than 800 million acres of public land in the U.S. and Alaska. Small tracts of land are still for lease or sale in 23 states. The government leases the land to citizens on condition that improvements are made. In many cases the lessee may purchase up to five acres of land at its unimproved value."

From France—With Love

I cannot remember a time during my childhood in France when this late Spring warmth and the anticipated heat of Summer did not set in motion family plans for a holiday at a beach. There was never a doubt that we would go to the seashore, it was only a question as to which beach it would be "this year" ... Deauville, or Le Touquet on the Channel ... Dinard or Beg-Meil in Brittany ... or perhaps the Ile de Noirmoutier off the Vendee coast.

Still precious to me for sentimental reasons, these particular resorts are only a small fraction of the 350 seaside vacation spots on the coasts of France. Since my childhood holidays I have visited many other resorts—the Riviera at all seasons of the year, and in the warmer months, the Basque coast as well as the cooler, coldwater beaches of the North Atlantic and the English Channel. From the luxury of the fashionable towns created especially for holiday-makers to the simplicity of the fishing villages for which holiday visitors are something of a diversion, the seaside playgrounds of France offer the widest variety.

One boon any place on the coast of France grants is wonderful seafood—wonderfully prepared. For good eating information I like the way the red Guide Michelin details the specialties du pays and catalogs the restaurants with that severe and demanding judgment the French always apply to their cuisine. Then too, I am always quite easy about eating on a holiday at the beach because the swimming and racing around on the sand seem to burn up more calories than the seafood supplies.

No matter how dedicated to pursuing health outdoors, most vacations, I believe, need a touch of glamour to be perfect. The French well understand this. Most of their beaches have fetes, and some, like Deauville, have a casino. After spending a day in casual clothes or a bathing suit, I find it's fun to dress up. Pleasantly enough, these amusements are not very expensive even at the most fashionable playgrounds. One bit of budget wisdom a number of my friends practice is to find accommodations at a village near a luxurious holiday town, and then on occasion go into the resort, visit the casino, eat at an elegant restaurant, and take in whatever gala event is offered.

However, or wherever in France, you choose to spend your seaside vacation, it always seems to truly be an enriching experience.

From France—with love,

Fascinating Fashions By Judy Seaton

One of the gayest and prettiest fashions this season is the lavish and wonderfully imaginative use of gay little collars and other neckpieces.

Chic, well dressed Pat Carroll, of CBS-TV's "Red Buttons Show" is one career girl who especially enjoys these lively accessories to a Spring wardrobe.

Pat is serious about giving wardrobe accessories particular care and consideration. With collars, artificial flowers, ribbons, etc. the difference between preserving them through a season fresh and crisp—and having them look wilted after a couple of wearings lies in tucking them carefully away in boxes which will preserve their spruce appearance. Brush artificial flowers free of dust they may have collected during the day before you put them away in their boxes.

Another girl who is especially fond of perky, attention-getting collars and flowers is Rosemary Rice, who plays teen-aged Katrin on CBS-TV's "Mama." Rosemary likes the new collars which are encrusted with rhinestones, sewn solid with fresh-looking daisies on a collar-shaped buckram foundation, and in other imaginative ways given a very special and individual look which gives new life to a costume.

LOOKING AHEAD

By GEORGE S. BENSON
President—Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

Spare Our Project!

WASHINGTON — If you want to draw a picture of the person in America most effectively blocking the approach to a balanced Federal budget in the near future, you should take your pen and ink and sketch a man's head with two faces, one face looking east and the other looking west. Out of one mouth, your sketch should show the man shouting: "Save!" Out of the other mouth, he would be shouting with equal vigor, "Spend!"

During the last three months I have spent considerable time in Washington interviewing cabinet members and key people in Congress. It is my conviction that there is a strong determination among the present leadership of our national government, in both the executive and legislative branches, to drastically cut down on its size, its power, and its cost in tax dollars. But there is no certainty at all that it will be done.

"No Cut!"

Groups of people who constitute only a small portion of our citizenry but who are politically vocal and active are sending delegations to the White House and to the Senate and House office buildings insistently urging that there be "No cut!" in the appropriations for their pet project. Invariably these persons, like the man speaking out of two mouths, are vocal for reduction of Federal spending and taxes—so long as the reduction is made in somebody else's project.

The representatives and senators in the capital shook their heads when I inquired about their genuine feeling regarding a balanced budget and tax cuts. They showed me piles of letters from the "folks back home" gently or firmly pressuring for such things as restoration of the cut in Agriculture Dept. funds for soil conservation payments; restoration of the proposed $50-million air base near such-and-such-a-place which had been trimmed out of the defense budget; restoration of the appropriation for "So-and-So" River; restoration of numerous government jobs recently eliminated as an economy move by Eisenhower-appointed Cabinet members—and so forth.

"My Dear Senator"

By train, airliner and automobile, special pleading groups are streaming into Washington. They do not constitute a powerful mass of deliverable votes, but they are vocal, and active, and they are insistently, constantly in contact with their Congressmen and Congressional committees, putting on the pressure. They have a way of presenting their appeal as if they were representing a whole state, or region, or even the majority of the people in the nation. And pressure is effective in politics.

The vast majority of the people are strongly in favor of cutting the expenses of government all down the line, and are ready, I believe, to sacrifice normal personal interest in particular projects for the sake of reduced taxes, sounder government and greater long-range benefits. But they are inactive. They are not going to Washington. They are not even writing their Congressmen, or the President, or the Cabinet members. They do not recognize that a mandate for budget reductions and tax cuts is ineffective unless it continues to speak and speak and speak—to Washington!

The Outlook

"Well, what are you going to do?" said a Congressman friend as we sat in his office. He put his hand on a stack of mail. "These are from influential people in my states. They have got a good argument for the air base, the dam and the other Federal spending projects they're writing about. But so has everyone else who writes or comes here. And yet, we in Washington who have studied these projects and weighed them in the light of the overwhelming demands on the nation's financial resources in these days of crisis, are convinced that we must start making drastic reductions somewhere."

"Will you be able to do it?" I asked. "I'm afraid not," he replied thoughtfully. "At least not to the necessary extent—unless public opinion can make itself heard in Washington above the demands of the groups who are coming here asking special consideration for all the things we're trying to economize on. There simply cannot be any genuine economies without a lot of groups and a lot of individuals having to make a small sacrifice in

Canners Big Steel Consumers

Enough steel was used in producing cans for Maryland-packed tomatoes last year to make a fleet of 12,800 low-cost automobiles.

L. M. Goodwin, Maryland representative of American Can Co., pointed out that 16,373 tons of steel were used in making the nearly 140 million containers needed to can the Free State's $18.6 million tomato pack in 1952. With the average low-cost automobile containing about 2556 pounds of steel, that was enough steel to make over 12,800 autos, he observed.

Mr. Goodwin, whose firm has developed container-making machinery that has placed the can industry in the front rank of U. S. mass production leaders, said that not only were Maryland farmers given a $2.1 million market for tomatoes, but other establishments were provided business through needs of canners and can-makers.

"For example," he said, "nearly 105,000 pounds of solder, more than 42,000 pounds of enamel and nearly 525,000 pounds of compound for sealing the cans were bought by can-makers, in addition to steel, in making containers. Canners, in turn, bought thousands of pounds of paper and glue to make labels and cartons." Mr. Goodwin said that Maryland farmers last year produced 120,300 tons of tomatoes, devoting 24,400 acres of land to raise the crop.

Dolores Burdner, Mrs. Russell Williar and infant daughter and Mrs. Reaba Damuth, all of Emmitsburg, were discharged as patients this week from the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg.

It Began In Egypt

COSMETICS

By JAMES C. FRENCH, M.A., F.R.C. Curator, Rosicrucian Egyptian Museum From the earliest times, men and women have used cosmetics in the care of the skin and to act as beauty agents.

In Egypt, many records are found dating back 3500 to 5000 B.C., showing the use of eye paints, face paints, perfumes and an assortment of various kinds of oils and unguents for rubbing into the skin. The ancient Egyptians were the inventors of the artificial bath. They had a passion for cleanliness, dirt of any kind being regarded as an abomination. Baths were taken daily, and priests bathed twice a day and twice during the night. After bathing, perfumed oils and unguents were liberally applied.

Sweet oil on their heads and on new headresses was required during great festivals by all who could afford it, and cakes of ointment were placed on the heads of guests at feasts. These melted and ran down over the body. It was considered a great special honor to be anointed with the oil of Qemil.

A startling effect to make the eyes appear large was produced by using green paint beneath the eye, while the lid or eyebrow was darkened by a moist black powder called Kohl. Often the fingers, too, were stained red with henna.

Healing qualities were ascribed to the use of Kohl. Toilet boxes have been found with four separate compartments, each containing different preparations, whose uses have been described as: "for opening the sight," "for expelling tears," "for expelling the flower," and as "daily eye-paint."

The Rosicrucian Egyptian Museum is exhibiting many ancient beauty articles, such as bronze mirrors, copper tweezers, razors, combs, hair fillets, and cosmetic jars and containers of every description. A most rare "Wooden Tube for Mestchem of Eye-Paint," is to be seen in the Museum, inscribed with the prenomen of Amenophis III, King of Egypt, 1500 B.C.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

Most any day it may be proposed in Congress to:

- 1. Repeal child labor law. 2. Repeal Food and Drug Act. 3. Repeal Minimum Wage Law. 4. Repeal Social Security Act.

However, whoever makes the proposal will not expect favorable Congressional action. The proposal will be made to focus attention on the battle over the attempt to repeal U. S. tariff laws.

In this fight to abolish tariff protection under the British-coinced slogan "Trade, Not Aid", stary-eyed idealists are again being made dupes.

Idealists claim world trade should be free. Yet they fail to recognize, largely because they never have had to meet a payroll, that the ideal of free trade cannot exist where partners in commerce operate on different internal levels.

In order for independent American business and agriculture to compete, it would be necessary to operate on the same basis as competition.

This would require abolition of all laws prohibiting exploitation of men, women and children and of all sanitary laws.

But idealists, heads high in the clouds, do not see these details.

And with cloud wrapped heads they also fail to see real power behind the drive to repeal U. S. tariff laws.

But there are practical men studying the situation. For example, Congressman James B. Ut (Calif.) recognizing the wolf in Granny's bed, has released significant figures.

He finds that just four U. S. firms have a total of 365 subsidiaries in foreign countries, some in nations where the yearly wages are less than $100.

Heads of some of these four firms have been loudly active on behalf of "free trade".

But free trade to them would only mean freedom to flood U. S. market with products of their foreign plants, underselling domestic producers and still making bigger profits than on their American production.

Congressman Ut also states under guise of "Reciprocal Trade Treaties" tariff protection is so badly breached, entire U. S. economy is on the brink of disaster with full return of buyers' market.

He claims American imports have increased 50% in volume, 50% in dollar value, while tariff duties have slipped from an average of 50% to 12%.

During sellers' market, U. S. has not been badly hurt, but with the return of full buyers' market, he predicts disaster.

Significantly, even though American imports are several times prewar level, a free trade condition has not prevailed.

In free trade, a nation's imports and exports should balance.

But while true American post-war exports have been at a high level, a major share of them, over $30 billions worth, has been free gifts. Or, as one Washington observer states it, "We have actually been experimenting with free trade, but with the result nothing has been free but U. S. taxpayers' dollars."

More than 40,000,000 people visited national parks last year and the figure is expected to go higher in 1953 as America prepares to spend a whopping nine billion dollars on motoring vacations. Polio Insurance In Demand

Columbus, Ohio, May 29— "Waiting to buy polio insurance until there's an outbreak of the disease in your community is like waiting until your neighbor's house is burning to buy fire insurance," says C. W. Leftwich, vice president—actuarial of the Farm Bureau Insurance Companies, one of the nation's largest writers of polio insurance. To buy or not to buy is a matter for individual decision, he points out, but the time to decide is before polio "season" arrives. He gives several reasons: "A high proportion of all polio policies taken out since the coverage was introduced nationally in 1949 have been bought during the summer months, the polio season. That's really a modified form of 'scare buying' and it has been the main cause of the general boost in polio insurance rates since 1949. Such scare buying results in a concentration of policies in epidemic areas, thus defeating a basic principle of insurance—spreading the risk."

This same principle, spreading the risk, introduces another reason for early buying. "If you wait too long, Mr. Leftwich says, you might not be able to get polio insurance when you want it. That's because some insurance companies may find it necessary to discontinue writing in an epidemic area.

Mrs. Ernest Rosensteel and infant daughter were discharged as patients from the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg.

By INEZ GERHARD—ANS Features. "YOUR HIT PARADE," seen over NBC-TV, recently received TV's most coveted prize, a Peabody Award, for "Outstanding Entertainment." Pretty Dorothy Collins, one of the stars of "Your Hit Parade," accepted. The Peabody Award is the crowning achievement in the long line of citations received by "Your Hit Parade," which is in its 19th year of showcasing the Top Tunes throughout the country, according to Your Hit Parade Survey. On April 20, 1953, two surefire ingredients—a contest and popular music—were combined into a radio program. Now the remarkable production ingenuity and imaginative techniques displayed in the musical TV dramatizations of the Top Seven Survey Songs and Extras have made "Your Hit Parade" a viewing "must" for millions of American homes.

MARTIN KANE, Private Eye, viewers were pleasantly surprised recently when the tobacco shop, center of activity on the show, which has become practically a national landmark, blossomed out in an entirely new dress. "Happy" McMann, genial proprietor of the shop, was in his glory in a brand new, modernly designed emporium, which has received praise from designers and merchandising men as one of the smartest tobacco shops ever built. The show is seen Thursday nights 10:00 to 10:30 EST, over NBC-TV network, starring Lee Tracy as Martin Kane.

Of course, she's the favorite of the nation's school teachers; they accept her as one of themselves, writing to her about their problems, asking her to address PTA meetings—probably wishing they looked like her.

"I don't ever aim to give up fishing," Pappy Hayes said one day—"but the older I get the less I like hiking over to Pike's Creek. Guess I'll have to bring the fish nearer to me."

So Pappy got his nephew to bulldoze down about three acres of bottom land. Then he dammed up the little stream there.

He wrote the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, in Washington, and got some "blue gills" and bass to stock it—free. Pappy's idea wound up giving him (and us) just about the best fishing pond in the county... right in his own back yard.

From where I sit, Pappy may be older than some of us but his mind is active—and open. He's ready to listen to anybody with an idea. That's why he and I can talk on any subject—sometimes about his preference for buttermilk and mine for beer. And though we disagree, we respect each other's opinion. That's neighborliness without a "catch" to it.

VFW Plans Reactivation Of Spotting Tower

Plans were made Wednesday evening by the local VFW post at its regular meeting, to reactivate the ground observation post, located atop the VFW home. Lt. Bonney of the GOC Filter Center was a guest at the meeting and disclosed the necessity of an efficient ground observer program. Films illustrating the needs of this program also were projected.

Communications were received from the Trinity Methodist Church thanking the post for the Memorial Day ceremonies held there and from St. Joseph's High School thanking the post for the prize awarded the winner of the Americanism Essay Contest.

Cub Pack Master Kenneth D. Bond thanked the members for sponsoring the local Cub Pack's going to Fairfield to see the circus last Saturday.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

Congressman DeWitt S. Hyde
A bill is under consideration in our Judiciary Committee to incorporate the National Safety Council under a Federal charter. It deserves the support of every member of the House.

In recent years Congress has been reluctant to grant more than just a few such charters to non-profit organizations. Customarily, they most establish beyond any doubt their intention to perform a vital public service beneficial to the entire nation.

I believe that an organization as important as the National Safety Council should be given this recognition by Congress. Accidents in industry, in the home and on the highway are increasing at an alarming rate. The Memorial holiday weekend just over, and the highway slaughter was just about what the National Safety Council somewhat despairingly predicted it would be.

RECEIVES DEGREE
Francis A. Beall, son of Mrs. Rose M. Beall, 273 W. Fifth St., Frederick and a former local resident, received a Master of Science in biochemistry from the Graduate School of Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., at commencement exercises held this week on the Georgetown campus.
