The plan for a bi-centennial for Emmitsburg in 1957 is meeting with widespread enthusiasm from what I have ascertained to date. Everyone I have conversed with is delighted with the idea. However, enthusiasm will not alone put the celebration over. It's going to require a tremendous amount of work to insure the success of the venture. At the present time a kind and intelligent gentleman has already begun to write a historical pageant for the occasion. I understand this will require about a year of hard work and research. This is a great undertaking, but it still is only a fragment of what has to be done. Entertainment will have to be provided, the town decorated professionally, a local museum established, accommodations arranged for out-of-town guests, information booths, hospitality groups, a mammoth parade arranged, the possible printing of histories of the town which would be sold to help defray expenses of the promotion, and oodles of other interesting things pertaining to the town.

Yes, it's going to require the assistance of not only a few, but the entire community, so when you finally are called on, do your best. We have ample time to make preparations but let's not waste any of it!

If surveying is any criterion, the new bypass of Emmitsburg undoubtedly will be in the East End. Surveying crews have been hard at work for weeks in that area, measuring the present Route 32, cutting through fields and taking dimensions of several homes there. My guess is that they are planning a cloverleaf there for the intersection of Routes 32 and 15. Whether any property removal will be required is a matter of opinion. I imagine, at the present time, but there does seem ample space there for such an installation.

Rumor, unconfirmed of course has it that one of the oldest businesses in town is about to change hands. A firm which had its origination many years ago before the birth of your correspondent, and under the prudent guidance of its owner, edged forth to become one of the leading establishments of its kind in the community. We wish the owner many happy years of retirement and a world of success to his successor. An announcement is in the offing.

One thing that we are blessed with here in town is machine shops, and the heads of these establishments are a whiz at their trade. Just to let you in on a little secret, if it weren't for the ingenious skill of one of these gentlemen machinists you wouldn't be reading your favorite newspaper at this moment. Seems as though a motor drive-shaft decided to call it quits suddenly Wednesday night and out of commission went the most important piece of equipment in the shop, the linotype. The shaft broke in two parts and there was nothing to do but to replace it. And how was this to be done in a little town like Emmitsburg? Well! A local machinist went right to work and on Thursday morning the typesetter was back in operation—just in time to meet the deadline—after some sweating! You see your Chronicle actually is printed Thursday evening and distributed to you on Friday morning. A salute to the craftsmanship of our local machine shops and machinists is in order. Actually, I believe these fellows could make anything—and in a hurry too. We're proud to have men of such caliber in our community... and may long run the linotype.

Am interested in hearing the report of the Chamber of Commerce's committee which is conducting a survey of those merchants who are in favor of closing shop on Monday nights. I understand this report is to be filed Monday evening at the regular meeting of the Chamber. Elsewhere in this issue is a letter from a local soldier overseas who has some favorable comment on the venture, one which I think the merchants are entitled to. I feel certain the public realizes the undue hardship imposed on the local businesses and will cooperate. You know, even a horse has to rest!

Miss Orndorff Is Bride Of James Kelly

In a setting of pink and white aster, Miss Regina Mary Orndorff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Orndorff, Motters Station, became the bride of James Richard Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kelly, Emmitsburg, Saturday, Sept. 10, at 9 a. m. at St. Anthony's Shrine. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Vincent J. Tomalski, pastor of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin waltz-length gown princess lines, with lace yoke embroidered in iridescent sequins, a lace bolero with mandarin collar and buttoned to the waist. The shoulder length veil fell from a small lace cap with pearl trim. She carried a bouquet of white asters.

Miss Joan Marie Orndorff, sister of the bride was maid of honor. She wore a gown of pink crystalettes, torso effect with a full net skirt, lace mitts and a small pink scalloped half-hat edged in pearls and carried a matching bouquet of pink asters tied in pink satin ribbon.

Mr. G. Eugene Rosensteel, Emmitsburg, was best man. Charles Wivell, cousin of the bride, Hagerstown, and Frederick Sprinkle, Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., a classmate of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The traditional wedding marches were played by the church organist, Mrs. Ernest Seltzer. The following hymns were sung by the church choir: "On This Day," "Panis Angelicus" and as the bride presented her bouquet to the Blessed Mother, "Mother at Thy Feet Is Kneeling." The soloist, a cousin of the bride, Miss Marie Sanders, Waynesboro, sang "Ave Marie."

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Orndorff chose a turquoise, street-length dress of moss crepe with honey-tan accessories and a yellow rosebud corsage. Mrs. Kelly, mother of the bridegroom, chose a moss green street-length satin dress with black accessories and a yellow rosebud corsage.

A reception was held for approximately 150 friends and relatives at the Casablanca Restaurant, Thurmont, Md. Girls from the office where the bride is employed assisted with refreshments. Helen and Lillian Orndorff assisted with gifts. Mrs. Mae Wolford, aunt of the bride, Waynesboro, cut and served the wedding cake.

The couple left for a northern trip. For her going-away ensemble the bride chose a blue and brown cotton dress, brown hat and alligator shoes and bag, with a white rosebud corsage. Upon their return they will reside in the Beagle Apts., Emmitsburg.

The bride attended St. Anthony's School and was graduated from St. Joseph's High School, Class of '52 and at present is employed as pay clerk at the Thurmont Shoe Co. The bridegroom attended St. Euphemia's School and was graduated from St. Joseph's High School, Class of 1950 and at present is serving with the Navy at Norfolk, Va. He will receive his discharge in February of '56. Before his induction into the Navy, Mr. Kelly was employed by the local American Store.

Out-of-town guests were from Altoona, Waynesboro, Gettysburg, and Blue Ridge Summit, Pa.; Baltimore, Havre De Grace, Aberdeen and Hagerstown, Md.

Runaway Youths Nabbed Here By Local Police

Two juvenile youths of near Pittsburg, Pa., were apprehended last Friday here by Police Chief Daniel J. Kaas. The young boys, one 12 and the other, 14, were runaways from the Milton Hershey School at Hershey, Pa. They were lodged in the county jail in Frederick where they were picked up by their parents the following day. They boys gave as their home towns, Jeannette and Gordon, Pa. After their apprehension the police located two stolen bicycles in the bushes near town, presumably placed there by the boys.

Plan Fall Rally

The Emmitsburg Elias Lutheran Church will observe its annual Fall Rally on Sunday, Sept. 25. Mr. Charles Culp of Gettysburg, will be the guest speaker. The Wayne-Emmitt Quartette will sing.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marshall are the proud parents of a daughter, born Monday at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, Pa.

Strong Man To Appear At Local Club

Galen Gough, the World's Miracle Strongman, rightfully earns his recognition. He will appear Saturday night at the VFW Annex.

For many years the title of World's Strongest Man has been held by the Mighty Atlas, protégé of Galen Gough, but Atlas has actually never defeated Gough in 22 of his mightiest feats of strength.

On Saturday night, Gough will demonstrate the greatest feats of his career, permitting men to participate in the actual performance, proving that these feats are not faked and are done with semi-steel supplied by Mr. Joseph Wivell of Emmitsburg blacksmith shop.

Eight or 10 men will bend a construction steel bar over Gough's mighty jaws. Slabs of semi-steel will be wrapped around Gough's arm... a man will whip Gough with a solid semi-steel bar until it bends... Gough will actually blow up a hot water bottle and if possible burst it with his powerful lungs... these and many other unbelievable feats will be performed.

Amazing enough, Galen Gough, known as the Miracle Strong Man, was once totally invalid from war wounds received in France. He is currently a disabled war veteran and possesses 67 per cent disability and can not smile due to a head wound received in World War I. He has been a director of physical culture and formerly a director of the Physical Culture magazine, health editor of the Psychology magazine, technical director in the movies, having reached the top in recognition with renowned authorities as undefeated, with television appearances in Hollywood and New York. Gough is, without question, the most amazing example of super-strength ever born. Today he is 56 years of age and strong as he was in his twenties.

His story is contained in Macmillan's book of biographies titled "Unsung Heroes." He has been featured in thousands of newspaper and magazine stories. It will be a treat to see him in action Saturday night at the local VFW Home. Fun is promised for all.

Reader Backs Storekeepers On Closing Mondays

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

I read today in the Chronicle which is about a month old when I receive it here, but always welcome, an interesting turn of events concerning town merchants. I understand they want to close their establishments early on Monday evenings. I think the people of Emmitsburg should go along with the merchants because they work longer hours than the average citizen.

I have something of a suggestion to add to the plan. A six o'clock—as the closing time? This factory worker hustle to a great extent to get to the stores before they close, so why not ask the merchants to set—say seven o'clock—as the closing time. This would give them a few more hours in which to be at home and still the factory workers need not be in a rush to arrive at the stores immediately after working hours and still not wait until the last minute.

So why not try and help the merchants who work long hours get a little well-earned rest, for they work from about 7:30 a. m. to 10:00 p. m., and that is a long day's work for any person?

Cheers For Mr. Brett

One of the things that seldom happens in government has happened. The head of a Federal government agency, without being subjected to any pressure, has asked Congress to give his department less money than it has been getting. And even more unusual, the savings has been made possible by the application of common - sense thrift and hard-headed business practices in government.

The full story is enough to make taxpayers all over America toss their hats in the air and give three cheers for the man responsible. He is William

H. Brett, director of the Bureau of the Mint. Congress accepted his self-imposed budget reduction of about 17 per cent, but since the Mint's operation is so relatively small as compared to other government operations, Mr. Brett's outstanding example of public service has gone almost unnoticed. The Tax Foundation dug out the facts. They should be widely known.

Started Right

Mr. Brett became Director of the Mint just a year ago. He is an Alliance, Ohio, manufacturer. He accepted the appointment at considerable sacrifice. After he looked over the Mint operation carefully, he reported to Treasury Secretary George Humphrey that certain operational changes ought to be made for efficiency and economy. Mr. Humphrey told him to make them. He did.

The Mint makes all our coins. The practice in the past had been to produce and stock a certain number of pennies, nickels, dimes, dollars and other coins for supplying the Federal Reserve Bank system which distributes money to member banks throughout the nation. The production was based on an old formula of replacing diminishing inventories in the banks. The plan was not geared to cope with bumper demands for coins, and in slack demand periods its over-production was extravagant.

Common-Sense Administration

For the first time in the Mint's 163-year history of coin manufacturing, the Mint Director called upon his customers, the Federal Reserve Banks. Together they began to study the problems of minting and distribution. They worked out a program changing the inventory set-up throughout the banking system, and establishing a common-sense production program for the Mint. It saves operational expense and cuts manpower needs.

Since the Mint's budget is a comparatively small $3.6 million, the money saving to taxpayers will amount to only about $300,000. The important thing about Director Brett's accomplishment is the pattern of efficiency and economy established, as operational musts in every government bureau and agency. Upon taking the job he made a realistic study of the operation. With the aid of experienced members of the staff, he worked out an efficient program of operation. He went directly to the people he served—the banks—and asked for cooperation in improving efficiency and cutting expense. He abolished more than 100 jobs. And he helped find jobs in private industry for the people whose jobs were eliminated.

This excellent formula for governmental operation surely could be applied throughout all the administrative functions of the Federal government. Mr. Humphrey, the Budget Director and President Eisenhower all are striving to balance the budget beginning next July. This year's budget is $63 billion. A $2 billion reduction in

Robberies Increase

The FBI, in order to cope with the biggest wave of bank robberies in the past 20 years, held a special conference for the State of Maryland Wednesday at the Emerson Hotel.

At the conference bank officials representing banks through the state and law enforcement officials discussed mutual problems arising out of bank robberies. The day-long conference consisted of various panels composed of bank, surety company and law enforcement officials. Each panel presented problems pertinent to both banks and law enforcement.

"Balancing of the Federal budget will put a brake on tendencies toward inflation and should permit tax cuts. This means a more stable economy and more take-home pay for every wage earner in the country. It is, in effect, an increase in salary." — Perth Amboy (N. J.) News expenses would balance it, $5 billion reduction would permit some tax relief. If enough taxpayers wrote to Mr. Humphrey, suggesting it, perhaps Mr. Brett's accomplishment could be publicly commended in a high-level White House ceremony. It might do some good.

Kenny Foundation Answers Common Inquiries On Polio

Released by the Kenny Foundation's Medical Staff

Development of polio vaccine has been heralded as a great step forward in the fight against poliomyelitis and has given the world renewed hope that final victory over this disease may ultimately be achieved. Sound estimates, however, are that victory over polio still is in the future.

Q. What are and are not symptoms of Polio?
A. Symptoms: Severe generalized headache, moderate fever, stiff limbs and muscle weakness.
A. Not Symptoms: Cough, cold, rash on body, redness of the eyes, or swelling of limbs.

Q. What precautionary measures should be taken during polio outbreaks or epidemics?
A. Normal precautions against exposure to communicable disease. Avoid contacts with new groups of people and swimming in polluted waters. Guard the cleanliness of everything taken into the mouth. Avoid over fatigue, late hours, worry or irregular living schedules. Removal of tonsils, adenoids, or teeth during the polio season may be a factor in exposures and in elective operations a delay to a more favorable season is considered to be advisable.

Q. Where is the Kenny Treatment available and who gives it?
A. The Kenny Treatment is available at treatment centers operated across the country by the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation, and is administered under medical supervision by Kenny Therapists.

Q. Why is the Kenny Treatment regarded as the most effective?
A. Because under the Kenny Treatment there is less crippling, less deformity, less pain, less need for braces, better muscle function and there is less surgery required. Complete recoveries under full Kenny treatment have been attained to a degree which was never before believed possible.

Q. Why is the Kenny Treatment regarded as the most effective?

The State of Maryland

Executive Department

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION
"SAVINGS BOND WEEK"
September 19th - 26th, 1955

The soundness of the dollar is essential to the maintenance of a strong economy in the Nation.

The dollar now is more stable than it has been in many years.

This stability is reflected in the confidence that exists among the business people of America as demonstrated by the extensive production of consumer goods, the construction and expansion of plants - and the high rate of employment.

It is reflected, too, in the high level of service which the State renders to its citizens.

An important factor in our dollar's stability and in our economic strength is the spreading of the National debt among our people who purchase U. S. Savings Bonds.

In addition to the patriotic accomplishment for the general good, such purchases - particularly through the payroll savings plan - provide a convenient system of personal saving, aiding in the purchasing of homes, the sending of sons and daughters to college, and the meeting of many future contingencies.

With the cooperation of the State Government, the U. S. Treasury is soon to conduct a campaign to increase the purchase of Bonds by Maryland State Employees through the Payroll Savings Plan.

To commend this system of savings to my fellow workers in the State Government and in wholehearted endorsement of the campaign, I, Theodore R. McKeldin, Governor, hereby proclaim the week of September 19th through September 26th, 1955, to be "SAVINGS BOND WEEK" in Maryland.

GIVEN Under My Hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, at the City of Annapolis, this 5th Day of August, in the Year of Our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty-Five.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 15—I have just again spent Labor Day Week at my birthplace. As I was writing this, I was looking down at a marvelous new school built by my cousin, the distinguished late Major Elmer Babson.

Fifty years ago schoolhouses were built as architectural additions to a city—with columns, facades, and fancy stone trimmings. My cousin had the courage to make a radical change and built only to provide the most efficient teaching conditions possible. The result was a building which the local taxpayers dubbed the "New Factory."

These critics were more truthful than intelligent. The time is coming when every schoolhouse will be built as an efficient factory, with teachers working and being paid as efficient managers, experts, and foremen deserve. The sooner local school committees and taxpayers adopt this "factory" idea, the better off those cities and towns will be. The hope of every community is its children, provided they are properly taught the right things. I have little use for some of the silly subjects being taught today.

Automation and Electronics

During the next few years students will hear much talk about Automation. This is a fancy word for "automatic factories." These are the factories where the raw materials are fed into one end and the finished products come out the other end. Such factories are very expensive to build; but they will turn out the same amount of shoes, clothing, candy, and cloth with 50 people that is now produced by 500 people.

Automation has become possible only with the development of Electronics (which I hope every high school is teaching). As a result the American electronics industry has grown from a business of only a few dollars to one of over a billion dollars. Electronics accomplishes two things—(1) it enables a very faint electric current to be turned into a strong current, as illustrated by the loudspeakers of radios; (2) it enables an electric current to be turned on or off by a change of light or sound, or by temperature instead of by hand. This is illustrated by the "electric eye," which opens and closes doors for you.

Tubes To Become Obsolete

One reason for the coming great increase in Automation is that tubes such as are used in your radio and TV sets will soon become obsolete. These tubes are being replaced by tiny "transistors." These transistors are so small that hearing aids are now being made with them, being built into the frames of eyeglasses so that no one will have a hint that the person is deaf and uses a hearing aid.

Now, let me come to the real important point of this column. I refer to the great opportunity facing teachers, preachers, and parents of impressing upon young people that they already possess the most wonderful "automatic factory," far more marvelous than any other in existence. With a good working knowledge of "reading, writing, and arithmetic" and a full recognition that they own and control such an efficient factory, every student should become healthy, prosperous, and happy.

Your Automatic Factory!

For raw materials, you feed in water, air, and certain foods. These pass through pipes and cookers in a process not unlike that used by the most modern electronic factory. These raw materials are automatically changed into muscle, brains, and cultural "gifts." But this is not all. In addition, students can turn an "electric knob" and determine whether his or her automatic factory will produce physical force, used by common labor, or brain power, used by executives, or a cultural product, such as music, painting, poetry, etc.

But—wake up! Automation—as illustrated by television—is fast catching up with you. I noticed an advertisement of a prominent TV manufacturer whereby with a flash of light a person sitting in any chair in a room (with no wires, no cords) can turn a TV set on, off, or change the channel while remaining in his easy chair. It even enables one to shut off annoying "commercials" without changing the picture. This power of remote control students have had since babyhood; but how many are using it? To teach students to use it should be an important work of the public schools.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL

Having established a condition of record-high employment, our government finds itself today in the position of a man who has bought a new car or a mother who has given birth to a baby.

The shiny automobile might easily be the talk of envious neighbors. But beneath its hood there are probably mechanical "bugs" which must be adjusted to insure smooth performance.

In like manner, the new arrival in the maternity ward is a bundle of infant charm—but a new problem, too.

As far as our country is concerned, the present employment record of about 70 million persons is, in a manner of speaking, its own new car or baby. We wouldn't think for a moment of changing the situation, but we do have to consider our additional difficulties and responsibilities.

Experience has shown that one area of possible friction which needs our most sympathetic care is the field of labor-management relationships.

Troubles in this sphere frequently appear to be localized, but there is a basic connection between the problems of railroadmen in Western Maryland, truckers on the Eastern Shore, and members of industry in other parts of our State.

Fundamentally, the issues are also world-wide.

We have already done much in this country to promote a healthy labor situation, and the results are so apparent that even detractors have been forced to concede that they, too, are enjoying good-times.

Figures from the Dept. of Labor show that the country is enjoying the most prosperous year in its history.

Employment has hit an all-time high. Average wages of workers are the best ever.

Since last December, consumer prices have been relatively stable. Still, however, we have the potential problems which come with new cars, babies or prosperity.

In an effort to get a more expanded insight into such matters, I will sail this week from New York for a conference of the International Labor Organization in Geneva, Switzerland.

My attendance as an observer will permit me to learn first-hand how other nations are attempting to improve working conditions through plans which might also be applicable here.

During the month I will be away, many projects which have been close to the administration will be developing.

Schools will resume their normal routines and, according to present indications, a record number of children will receive aid from school-milk and school-lunch programs.

Plans for a balanced budget—the first step toward a possible tax reduction—will continue under the direction of George M. Humphrey, Sec. of the Treasury, and Rowland R. Hughes, Budget Director.

My staff will keep in touch with developments while I am aboard, and I will resume our "Washington Cloakroom" discussions personally at the end of next month. Au revoir.

Congressman De Witt S. Hyde • 6th District, Maryland

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—Boys and girls all over America are trooping back to school. Unfortunately, some of them will go to crowded and obsolete buildings. Office of Education tells me that a record-shattering 60,000 classrooms were built last year. Of these new classrooms some 50,000 will be needed by this year's more than 1.6 million new students; only 10,000 of the new units are available for replacing obsolete schoolrooms. The overall shortage is estimated to be 250,000 classrooms.

It is a shocking situation. One which, except for the materials shortages during the war years, should never have been allowed to develop. As you know, I am convinced that state and local communities could have kept pace with normal demands of a growing population. In some instances, though, abnormal growth has needed some Federal assistance. But the habit of looking to the Federal government has become so fixed that local authorities seem paralyzed and unable to move without Federal help.

Factors of real need on a country-wide scale have developed and this, plus the failure of local authorities to fully carry out their obligations, has made Federal-aid-to-school construction imperative. Such a program was presented to Congress last session. It failed of passage. Differences within the Majority Party in Committee prevented the measure from reaching the Floor of the House for a vote.

I plan to vote for a sound program that will add necessary classrooms where needed. But I must warn my readers that the prospects for favorable action by the Congress next session are not bright. The issue is over the distribution of funds.

There is a matter concerning our educational system, though, that I think is being wrongfully overshadowed by the "cry for more schoolrooms." It is the de-

Bowmen Ready For Championship Tournament

Maryland's field archers—the men and women who hunt deer and small game with bow and arrow—will converge on Parkton the weekend of Sept. 17-18 for their fourth annual state championship tournament.

Sponsored by the Assn. of Maryland Bow Hunters, parent body of the state's 14 field archery clubs, the event will climax Maryland Field Archery Week, proclaimed earlier this month by Gov. McKeldin.

The tournament will be held on the course of the Gunpowder Bowmen, of which Dr. Richard W. Tracey, prominent Baltimore plorable state of teacher pay scales. We need more teachers—better qualified and better paid. During the last session I brought this to the Congress' attention. A step in the right direction was taken with the passage of the District of Columbia teachers' pay increase measure. I would like to urge higher requirements and higher pay for all teachers.

County veterinarian, is president. Dr. Tracey's daughter, Barbara, has been named queen of the tournament by popular vote of the 700 archers who make up the association's clubs.

In the tournament, archers will shoot three rounds over one of two 28-target courses. They will shoot at targets laid out in the woods at varying distance and elevations simulating actual hunting conditions. In one of the rounds, they will fire their lethal broadhead arrows at life-like drawings of big and small game animals.

Some 500 archers are expected to attend the shoot, including members of the Indian Lookout Bowmen Club of Emmitsburg.

Scratch Marks Can Be Eliminated

Something Can Be Done For Scratched Furniture

There is something that can be done about those fine little chips and scratches which you find here and there on pieces of furniture when doing your daily and weekly dusting, according to Vivian L. Curnutt, home furnishings specialist, University of Maryland.

These can be made less obvious, says Miss Curnutt, by rubbing into the scratch a little bit of burnt umber or sienna. Sometimes iodine will do the job—most everyone has iodine around, she adds.

Burnt umber and sienna are concentrated oil pigments which can be purchased in tubes. UMBER is good where brown tones are needed, such as for walnut finishes. Sienna has red tones which are good on cherry and mahogany finishes, Miss Curnutt says the two might be mixed to give just the right color.

Put a little of the color on the tip of the finger and rub coloring into the scratch using a circular motion. Let stand for about five minutes, and then wipe off thoroughly with a clean cloth.

The Specialist reminds the homemaker there are a number of prepared oils on the market which are made for this purpose.

Wild Mushrooms May Be Poisonous

Wild mushrooms are coming up now, and people should avoid eating them, warns A. A. Duncan, University of Maryland Extension vegetable specialist. "Stick to the cultivated kinds," Mr. Duncan said.

Many wild mushrooms are edible, but many are also poisonous. It is very difficult and often impossible for the average person to tell the difference between the edible and non-edible kinds, he said.

The so-called "tests" for poisonous mushrooms are completely unreliable, Mr. Duncan said. Many people believe mushrooms are types.

Writer's Visit to Paris Most Interesting

Paris (for the last time)

It was to me an interesting coincidence that on the first day of city sightseeing with its many reminders of Napoleon I's career and influence on French history I should have the chance to see a new French color-film, "Napoleon," covering the whole incredible story from youth to the last days at St. Helena. Produced and acted in by the famous Sacha Guitry and including (I quote here from Paris Weekly Information) "most of the French Theatrical and Cinema stars . . . in the huge cast" this was a thrilling affair whether or not one understood much of the beautiful French. And along with this unexpected experience went several small illustrations of how customs vary with the country;

"BALTIMORE'S FAVORITE PLAYER"

Hal Smith, voted the favorite Baltimore Oriole Baseball player, in the "Hello, Mr. Boh" baseball contest, was presented a 1956 Mercury Custom Station Wagon by Clarence Miles, president of the Baltimore Orioles on behalf of the National Brewing Co. sponsors of the contest. The ceremony, M. C'd by Bailey Goss, took place at Memorial Stadium before the last Oriole-Cleveland Indian Game.

(1) an announcement of the time of the next program as (translated) "seventeen o'clock" (no mistake); the French count the 24 hours of a day straight around the clock, so this was our "five p. m."; (2) the usher's expectation of a tip (having read this in a guide-book I understand the meaning of the outstretched hand); (3) an intermission halfway thru the long film (it lasted with local advertising and "shorts" until past twenty-one o'clock, i.e., nine p. m.)

An outstanding item on my program of events during the stay in Paris was an all-day trip to the town of Chartres, some 60 miles to the south. There was the delightful drive, by a different route each way, through quaint old towns and attractive country, including the lovely Valley of the Chevreuse. It was a thrill to find ourselves on a piece of the Liberation Highway followed by the Allies in '44, and then to see in Chartres, down at the foot of the hill where the cathedral stands, a way memorial dedicated to the mayor, Jean Moulin, who finally gave his life in an unsuccessful resistance struggle: a huge granite first thrust upward from a stone base and clasping a broken sword. Fierce fighting had taken place in Chartres, as a result of which, so the guide reported, practically every house had been destroyed or damaged; but the cathedral, which dominates the town and surrounding countryside, had been unharmed. It had its own harrowing history of a succession of fires and now stands with two curiously dissimilar spires dating from different restorations, the main one as far back as the 12th century. But the awe-inspiring wonder of Chartres cathedral is the glowing richness of color of its stained glass windows.

In connection with a visit to the Quaker International Center in the far western section of Paris I made acquaintance with the "Metro," the city's subway system, to be very pleasantly impressed by it in contrast with my recollection of the same in several cities at home (but that dates back very far; perhaps those particular systems have since been improved). Here were spaciousness, airiness, bright lighting, a general appearance of fine upkeep, even the large advertising posters that formed a background for the station platforms looking freshly colorful. I was, I must admit, a bit disconcerted on this first trip by what seemed like almost too-efficient provisions for self-service in the transportation itself: no assistants anywhere visible to call stations, open and close doors, or tell you which coaches to board (there are 1st and 2nd class ones); you are strictly on your own after you tell the woman in the little booth near the entrance where you want to go and secure your ticket—not as easy as it sounds if you happen to be a stranger who has difficulties with French pronunciation and don't remember to use the "Metro" map which the hotel concierge has given you! But the return trip was easy enough, and later in the week, when I took another, I felt like a long-time subway rider.

Of Paris museums I have said nothing except to mention the outside of the Louvre but I learned of the great number and variety of these thruout the city, covering so many aspects of the culture of France and of foreign countries; and I spent one half-day within the Louvre viewing part of its "panorama of all the arts of all periods" and another in a very different kind of museum, the Musee de l'Homme, concerned with the development (1) of the human race, and (2) of separate racial groups. In the collections here were (1) skeletal remains, primitive implements, and artistic efforts in the form of paintings and carvings on cave walls, and among other under (2) many examples of the handicraft and art of the peoples of the various French possessions and of the Incas and Aztecs of South America. In the Louvre, with a guide whose French accent did not help her English, we were shown first the best-known treasures, the statues of the Winged Victory of Samothrace and the Venus of Milo and Da Vinci's Mona Lisa, then many other paintings in the different galleries, and the collections of historic and beautiful art objects made by French monarchs thru the centuries beginning with Francis I in the 16th century. (It was he who built the first part of the Louvre as a royal palace, and it was enlarged and lived in by French kings down to Louis XIV. In 1793 it was made into a museum by decree of the Revolutionary National Convention.)

Of shopping in Paris I have also said nothing beyond the reference to shop windows on the Rue de Rivoli, and indeed, as I there suggested, my main activity in this direction was just a part of the general sightseeing, feasting the eyes on attractive objects in very effective window arrangements. Once in a while I would step inside one of the obviously "exclusive" shops (no prices in the window) to price, for example, a lovely red-and-black scarf, so nice for my niece, always to repeat the same sort

MARYLAND FARM FRONT

The U. S. District Court for the District of Maryland has upheld the right of county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee representatives to enter a farm and make wheat acreage measurements for the purpose of determining compliance with the farm's wheat acreage allotment when marketing quotas are in effect, according to George B. Reeves, committee chairman.

The court held that measurement is necessary to determine whether the wheat acreage on the farm is within the farm marketing quota, and whether 15 acres or less of wheat have been planted on the farm, for which there are special provisions and exemptions. In disposing of the case the court ruled that constitutional rights were not infringed upon by the required measurement of wheat acreages.

The decision was rendered June 17, 1955, in a civil case brought by the U. S. of America against three Carroll County farmers. An appeal has been taken and is on the Fall calendar of the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

Mr. Reeves said, "The defendants raised 20 separate defenses and objected to much of the government's evidence and most of the exhibits. However, the court sustained the government's position in all respects.

"The red-and-black scarf? Yes, Madame. I know what you mean, an original design by . . . 6000 francs, Madame. Yes, $18.00 in American money, a very lovely scarf."

"Yes, very lovely, I've been admiring it for several days. But I'm afraid that's more than I can pay for one gift. Thank you."

I did keep looking for the only thing I had planned to buy for myself in Paris, a plain-but-stylish chapeau, a real "creation"; but I came away with much more needed objects, a rain-proof shopping bag to hold the postcards and traveling literature already beginning to collect, and the miscellaneous small gifts I looked forward to picking up in other places where time would not be at quite such a premium as in Paris.

To be completely realistic on this subject of shopping in Paris I must report a fact that I confess was a surprise to myself, not really being so susceptible in this respect, i.e., that what I wanted most to buy both for my friends and myself was little fancy cakes (gateaux to the French), for it was in Paris that I first encountered such a fascinating display of the baker's art. And actually a selection of these was my last purchase, on the morning I left, in a little shop around the corner from the Ste. Anne — not to bring back home but to consume on the train to Switzerland. (I shared them with an unusual group of compartment companions; but that's another story that I must resist telling.)

SCIENCE VIEWS the NEWS

New Drug Makes Wild Animals Tame

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Rhesus Monkeys are a particularly vicious and fearful breed, and this little fellow (top) is no exception. He is unhappy, nervous and aggressive in the laboratory. But when treated with "Miltown," the new tranquilizing drug, the monkey becomes soothed and quiet, yet completely alert. He eagerly eats grapes in the scientist's hand, although he had refused the same food from the same hand before the administration of "Miltown" tablets. The new drug, a prescription compound, is used to tranquilize humans suffering from anxiety and tension states. The drug has been found useful in dealing with nervous headaches, nervous stomach conditions, inability to sleep and a host of related problems. "Miltown" was compounded, developed and patented by the Wallace Laboratories, a Division of Carter Products, Inc., of New York City.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

While in the session of Congress just ended the multi-billion dollar new highway program failed of passage, and as a result, many metropolitan papers are making a great hue and cry over this fact, the debate on the matter presented some interesting sidelights.

First of all, there was the question of raising money. Major Oil was all for it, Big Cement was all for passage of such a measure, and so were other big operations, except they didn't feel they should be required to pay for any of the cost. Some Washington observers commented that these people performed a gymnastic miracle, i.e. they could loudly clap their hands applauding the idea while still keeping their hands in their pockets.

For example, one of the sources of revenue proposed was to impose new taxes on the small firms who recap tires and on garages and service stations that sell recapped tires, about only segment of vast rubber industry left open to small operator.

One of the proposals was to place a tax on camelback, which is the trade name for rubber used in recapping tires, of 15 cents per pound.

Of course, customers of tire recappers would pay for tax in higher prices.

But the bill would have provided that the recapper would have to pay this tax on the raw material as he bought it. Thus, 15% of his working capital would immediately be tied up in a fund to pay taxes as well as 15% of the inventory capital of all retailers handling recapped tires.

Even the largest corporations would be hard hit to have their working capital reduced overnight by being forced to tie up 15% of it in a tax fund.

This 15% would be in addition to other funds the small business man must maintain to pay income taxes, social security, sales and excise taxes.

In other words, assume that a small tire recapper had to carry at all times an inventory of $10,000 worth of raw material. To maintain that inventory at that level under the tax proposed to finance new highways, he would have had to beg or borrow immediately another $1500. And even though he would probably be forced to pay interest on the amount he borrowed, he would receive no interest from the government to offset this expense.

Thus, the debate again bore out the truth of the matter. That truth is this. No matter what grandiose schemes are arrived at, it is eventually the small businessman who must bear the burden of them.

And while it is perhaps fine for government to have meetings with so-called "captains of industry" to hatch and applaud great deeds of daring, it would be much sounder to first discuss it with men who must pay bills.

It is to be taken as a certainty that the nation needs better roads. In fact ever since the war it has needed them much more than the U. S. needed a multi-billion dollars foreign give away program. And in the months to come, there will be a lot of propaganda for rushing into a huge highway building program. But it can also be taken as a certainty that those who do the most drum beating are those who will bear the least part of the financial burden.
