HELP WANTED—As a favor for a dear friend I am endeavoring to gather some information pertinent to the history of one Henry Casper Diehlman, deceased music instructor at Mt. St. Mary's College during the period of 1840 to 1882. Archives do not seem to contain much data about the man, a renowned musical composer and teacher. It is hoped that perhaps some local persons might have stored away some old issues of the Chronicle, at least as far back as 1879 when the Chronicle first was established. It is just barely possible that a copy or two of the old Emmitsburg Banner, published about 1840 by a Mr. Riley, could be preserved somewhere. Or, another local paper, the Emmitsburg Star, which came into existence in 1845 might contain some information concerning the subject. This friend I was speaking about is interested in writing a thesis on the late Mr. Diehlman and it seems apparent the only information to be had is via old local newspapers, as other records are rather vague. If anyone has any of these old papers about, and are willing to let them be photostated, please drop them off at the Chronicle Office or notify this desk and we'll pick them up. They will be returned in their natural state of preservation.

The subject is not to be confused with his son, Larry Diehlman, who as legend has it, plays his flute every Christmas Eve over the grave of his father at Mt. St. Mary's Cemetery. Incidentally, I wonder how many of you read the feature article on Larry Diehlman in Sunday's rotogravure section of the Baltimore Sun? It was quite interesting but did not shed much light on the lustrious father.

If you took half the population of Emmitsburg and interred it one one large common cemetery folks could readily visualize what a terrible catastrophe has occurred over the past weekend. But as we can't grasp such a picture I guess you don't realize that is exactly what happened over the Christmas holidays, and more than likely will give a repeat performance over the New Year's holiday. Imagine, over 600 men, women and children slaughtered on our nation's highways! It's ghastly to think about and almost scares one so he is afraid to take a car onto the road anymore. Now then, we all knew in advance that what was going to happen, but what did we do about it? Little or nothing to be exact. It seems that we sort of believe that accidents are meant or made by the other fellow. Now then just about the same dose is coming before us this weekend and I just know we'll see about the same results. Imagine, if the whole population of Emmitsburg were slain it would be equivalent to what happened last week and will occur again this week. It's horrible when you think about it. Actually it appears that the automobile is our most essential vehicle—and our most lethal weapon. I doubt if anything will be done about the situation until perhaps Congress passes a law that will limit the number of horsepower in new cars. Each year these cars become more powerful, and therefore, faster, and the slaughter pace keeps right on with the increasing speed. Or, one other alternative—better roads. The latter would be the costlier of the two, by far. Actually when you think it over, there isn't a road in the country that is built to take speeds safely, up to 100 miles an hour, or better, so what's the use of manufacturing high-powered cars, thereby tempting drivers to chance break-neck speed on 40-mile-an-hour roads? This additional and superfluous horsepower also keeps the price of the new cars high. I don't know where this frightful slaughter is taking us, but it will continue until some one, more brilliant than I, can come up with a solution to our present dilemma.

Happy New Year to all!

T/Sgt. and Mrs. John P. Glass and children, of Dover, Del.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry McNair and Mrs. David Glass and twin daughters, visited Christmas Day with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Glass.

Miss Hollinger Is Wed To Guy A. Baker, Jr.

In a setting of Christmas poinsettias and pine, Miss Betty Ann Hollinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hollinger, S. Seton Ave., became the bride of Guy A. Baker, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy A. Baker, Sr., Emmitsburg, Monday morning at 10 a. m. at a Nuptial Mass in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Emmitsburg.

Rev. Fr. John D. Sullivan, pastor, performed the double-ring ceremony and traditional wedding music was played by the church organist Miss Louella Lansinger. Featured vocal solos were provided by members of the choir.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, John S. Hollinger and wore a floor-length gown of nylon lace and tulle, designed with an off-the-shoulder neckline, a stand-up collar of nylon lace, empire waist and long-pointed sleeves. Her finger-tip length veil of pure silk imported illusion, was edged with imported French lace and fell from a queen crown beaded with tiny seed pearls. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of carnations and baby mums. Her only jewelry was a single strand of cultured pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Ralph L. Keilholz, sister of the bridegroom, wore a gown of Nepenthe green iridescent taffeta with softly-draped bodice and skirt trimmed with rhinestones. She wore a matching green head-dress and carried white poinsettias and holly.

The bridesmaids were Miss Mary M. Fiery and Miss Ruth E. Neighbors, both of Emmitsburg. They wore Neptune green iridescent taffeta gowns similar to the matron of honor, and carried red poinsettias and holly.

Charles E. Baker, Emmitsburg, was his brother's best man, Ralph E. Keilholz, Rocky Ridge, and John M. Roddy, Jr., Emmitsburg, were ushers.

Mrs. Hollinger chose a brown and black silk print dress and black accessories for her daughter's wedding. She wore a corsage of white carnations and yellow roses. Mrs. Baker, mother of the bridegroom, wore a mauve-colored dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations and red roses.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the VFW post home, Emmitsburg, with about 200 guests in attendance.

The bride, a graduate of Emmitsburg High School and Towson State Teachers College, Towson, is a member of the faculty of Emmitsburg Public School.

The bridegroom is a graduate of St. Joseph's High School and Mt. St. Mary's College. After completing army finance school he served for two years with the Signal Section Headquarters in the Far East and after his discharge in October, was appointed registrar of Mt. St. Mary's College.

For the honeymoon trip to New York the bride wore a green suit with brown accessories and the carnation corsage lifted from her wedding bouquet. Upon their return the couple will reside in a newly-furnished apartment at Bella Vista, near town.

Out-of-town guests were present from Baltimore, Frederick, Taneytown, Gettysburg, Silver Spring, Gaithersburg, Arlington, Va., Clifton Forge, Va., Chester, Pa., and Hagerstown, Md.

Bus Damaged By Motor Fire

A motor fire caused several hundred dollars damage to a Greyhound bus near here early Monday evening. The bus, carrying about 15 passengers, caught fire on the Waynesboro Road near Miller's Service Station at about 6:45 Monday evening and came to a quick halt, discharging its passengers without incident.

Quick response by the Vigilant Hose Co. resulted in confining the blaze to the motor section in the rear. The firemen employed carbon dioxide extinguishers. The passengers were brought to Emmitsburg where arrangements were made for them to continue their journey by another vehicle.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

COL. THOMAS J. FRAILEY

The legal security of our community could rely upon no better counselorship than its own foundation, which includes that of Thomas Joseph Frailey, attorney-at-law, philosopher and educator. Colonel Frailey was born here on June 22, 1892 and was the son of the late Oscar D. and Clara Hoke Frailey. He completed grade school in 1907, graduated from Emmitsburg High School in 1910, was graduated from Mt. St. Mary's College in 1915 with a B.A. degree, received his M.A. degree in 1917 and entered Dickinson School of Law at Carlisle, Pa., in 1916 from which he was graduated with an LL.D. degree in 1919. An additional LL.D. degree was conferred on him by Southeastern University, Washington, D. C., in 1946. Colonel Frailey was admitted to the bar in Maryland in 1919; the District of Columbia bar in 1924 and was privileged to practice in the U. S. Supreme Court in 1925.

Attorney Frailey joined the faculty of Southeastern University, Washington, D. C., in 1919 and served as dean in the School of Law and Liberal Arts. Accepted as attorney with the U. S. Veterans' Administration, he served as chief of insurance claims and headed the legal work with a group of 105 lawyers as a member of the legal advisory group, and associate member of the board of appeals. The Colonel, as he is familiarly addressed, entered military ser-

Girl Scouts Enjoy Christmas Party

The Christmas Party of the Emmitsburg Girl Scouts was held last Thursday in the American Legion basement. Two games, seven up and heavy-heavy, were played by the group until 5:30, when luncheon was served. The lunch consisted of cookies, potato chips, pretzels, Christmas candy, cupcakes, pickles and lemonade. After eating the Scouts played Bingo and from 6 to 7 Christmas carols were sung.

Income Tax Forms Are Mailed

Approximately 650,000 Income Tax forms were mailed by the Maryland State Income Tax Division of the Comptroller's office by Wednesday, according to J. Millard Tawes, state comptroller.

The majority of taxpayers will have these forms by early January. Even though the filing deadline date is Apr. 15, the Comptroller's office suggests filing returns as soon as practical after their receipt. Thus the taxpayer will have behind him the job of filing tax returns and will not have to be looking forward to it for several weeks with concern.

Filing, in many cases, should be easier as numerous taxpayers have already paid six months' taxes on the pay-as-you-go plan, in force since July 1 of this year under the Withholding Law passed by the last session of the Maryland legislature.

Comptroller Tawes said tax offices throughout the state will have trained workers available to assist in filling out the tax forms.

Christmas Day dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wivell were Mr. and Mrs. James Wivell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wivell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wivell and son, Hagerstown, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wivell and son, York, Eugene and Thomas Wivell.

Mrs. David H. Guise and Mrs. Roy Wivell visited Tuesday with Mrs. Frank Snyder at Fairfield.

Youth Burned When Clothing Became Ignited

Tony Kelly, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard N. Kelly, N. Seton Ave., is resting comfortably at his home after being severely burned last Thursday morning when he presumably lighted a match while lying on a davenport and ignited his pajama suit which immediately enveloped him in flames.

He ran to the kitchen screaming and his sister, Pat, ran to him, tore off his pajama suit and wrapped him in a blanket before calling for help. Her quick presence of mind probably saved the boy's life and also the home from burning, as the davenport was on fire and she quickly got a bucket of water and put out the fire.

The child was burned from his waist up to his face.

Candlelight Service Is Scheduled

The annual Candlelight Watch-Night Service will be held at Elias Lutheran Church, Emmitsburg, Saturday night beginning at 11 o'clock and closing at 12:05.

According to the memory of the oldest members of Elias Ev. Lutheran congregation this service has a history of almost a century of unbroken observance. Each year the pastor, working together with the director of music, organist and other officials, strive to make this service one of greater significance and attraction.

Miss Ruth Shuff, organist, will present a 15-minute organ prelude to the service. The musical portion of the service will include a medley of Christmas carols by the congregation choir. The choir will sing the anthem, "Lo, How A Rose E'er Blooming," by Pratorius, and Mrs. Reginald Zepp will sing "The Road to Bethlehem" by Marryott.

The pastor will give a short message and the sexton will toll the old year out and ring the new year in at midnight. The public is most cordially invited to attend and participate in this annual service.

LOCAL MAN ESCAPES SERIOUS INJURY IN WRECK

A 29-year-old Emmitsburg District resident escaped serious injury but his automobile was virtually wrecked about 12:08 o'clock last Saturday morning when it crashed into a power pole at East and E. 8th St., Frederick, city police reported.

Daniel Francis Shorb, Emmitsburg Rt. 2, was treated at Frederick Memorial Hospital for a small laceration of the elbow and was then discharged.

The police investigation showed that Shorb was proceeding north on East St. when the accident occurred. He apparently went to sleep at the wheel, officers said, and his car hit the pole. Some wires on the pole were broken off, it was said.

Damage to the automobile was estimated at $500. Shorb was charged with reckless driving and perching without a license. He was summoned to a hearing on Jan. 6.

Windows Being Broken By Rifles

The Emmitsburg Police Dept. has been receiving numerous complaints of damage being done by boys shooting with air rifles. Several windows in private dwellings and churches have been shot out, in addition to other damage. The Police Dept. warns parents that those caught doing malicious damage will be prosecuted, the rifles confiscated and any damaged property paid for.

Decorating Contest Winners Are Announced

The lights glowed warmly and competition for the Christmas Decorating Contest was extremely keen at homes and business places Wednesday night as the annual judging and awarding of prizes took place. The winners tried hard to make it a brilliant display and did a top-notch job. The judges spent several hours, 8 to 10:30 p. m. Wednesday night touring the town and making decisions. The contest was the fifth annual one sponsored by the Emmitsburg Chamber of Commerce.

Judges were D. S. Weybright, manager of the Thurmont Cooperative; Clyde Williams of Gettysburg and R. M. Shauffer of McSherrystown, building supplies dealer.

The winners were selected after careful deliberation and in the commercial division first place was awarded Dr. D. L. Beegle's apartment house; second place was given to the American Legion and third honors were conferred on the Fire Hall.

In the residential category first honors went to Edward Smith, Sr.; second to Donald Stoner and third to Robert Orner. All exhibits were beautifully decorated and the judges' decision was not easy. All contestants had extraordinary trimmings and brilliantly-arranged decorations. Donald Stoner did a good job of porch lighting and the windows of Ed Smith, Sr. had beautifully glowing bulbs with added colored lights for effect. Robert Orner had an extraordinary arrangement of multi-colored lights.

First place last year was won by the American Legion which almost won again this year, but Dr. Beegle jumped from his third honor spot last year to place first. The Fire Hall which took second place last year, stepped down to third.

The judges found literally hundreds of pleasant lighting jobs but they were too numerous for listing.

Special mention went to Louis Stoner, William Krom, Lutheran Church, Mother Seton Guild, Charles F. Stouter, Charles Kreitz, Mamie Kelly, Edward Ohler, Roger Zurgable, William Frailey, Houck's Store, Prof. W. S. Sterbinsky, Vincent Hartdagen, Dr. George Green, Jr., St. Joseph Central House, B. H. Boyle, Lumen Norris.

Honorable mentions were accorded: Clyde Eyer, William McCleef, Leonard Sanders, Joseph Condon, Quinn Topper, Col. T. J. Frailey, Dr. W. R. Cadle, Irellan's Restaurant, Charles Fuss, J. Ralph McDonnell, Russell B. Ohler, Arthur Elder, Herbert W. Roger, Charles L. Sharrer, Harry McNair, Clarence Wachter, Paul A. Keepers, Fern R. Ohler, Sperry's Garage, George F. Rosensteel, Robert Little, Henry Zurgable, Ralph Opekan, Bernard Shields, Wally Hatter, Frank S. Topper, Zurgable Bros. Home Furnishings Store, Recreation Center and the VFW.

This newspaper earnestly congratulates the winners and the community for the fine proud spirit which was demonstrated in the decorations.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

1. If no unforeseen event happens, President Eisenhower will be re-nominated and re-elected in 1956.

2. The Republican Party has an excellent chance of winning in 1956 with President Eisenhower making a few key speeches and promising to be an active part of the Administration. He is trained to take responsibility and enjoys it; but the President should be relieved of speech making, entertaining, and much of the detail work which goes with being President.

3. Competition will be very severe in 1956, and with few exceptions will cause business profits to be less in 1956 than in 1955. Too many manufacturers, not satisfied with their present good business, are starting to make other products and undercut standard prices.

4. Higher wages may also be expected in 1956, and these could reduce profits. These higher wages, however, will largely be spent and should increase retail sales.

5. Increased advertising appropriations will be seen in 1956. In fact, advertising appropriations for newspapers, magazines, television, radio, and billboards have helped our prosperity, or it would not have lasted through 1955.

6. The recent policy of the money managers in the direction of "squeeze" will be shifted to "ease" sometime in 1956. This reversal could put a floor under any business decline that may start next year.

7. Liberal credits to the purchasers of houses, automobiles, washing machines, televisions, and various other things have bolstered prosperity and will continue to be a strong support to many industries, through 1956 at least.

8. If the Republicans are re-elected in 1956, great sums will continue to be spent on research and new plant expansion. The effect could well be another "turn up" in the Babsonchart Index of Business.

9. Despite the decline in family formations, the baby boom will roll merrily on through 1956. The reason: More parents are willing to have four, five, and even more youngsters. The result: A tremendous, sustained demand for all kinds of necessities—housing, food clothing, new schools, etc.

10. All told, I look for 1956 to be the second best business year in history—just a shade off from 1955. Predicted declines in the key auto and residential building industries will largely be offset by rising expenditures for roads, sewers, and schools—and by increased demand for electricity, natural gas, and foods.

REAL ESTATE

11. The main handicap to real business in 1956 will be intensification of the parking nuisance, but this is getting so terrible that a revolutionary solution may be in sight. Shopping centers are a partial remedy and will help suburban property. But only 15 per cent of the people will live in the suburbs in 1956.

12. Cities will condemn old buildings and provide thousands of parking lots in 1956. As this is done, city property will again come back. Until then we see no price improvement during 1956 in city business property.

13. Building costs will average higher through at least the first half of 1956. This means that fewer new homes may be built next year.

14. With demand falling and money more expensive, speculative builders of new homes will have to watch their step more closely in 1956 than in any year since the ending of World War II.

15. Duplex dwellings will probably continue in demand through the whole of 1956 if they are well located. The limiting of rents will probably be totally abolished during 1956.

16. With the trend of vacancies showing a tendency to rise, owners of the newer and more costly apartment buildings will find their profit margins squeezed harder in 1956 than at any time in recent years.

17. Commercial farms need not suffer during 1956. Increased efficiency and new machinery should offset price declines.

18. Owners of small scattered farms will suffer during 1956. They have not the volume or capital to cut their costs to offset the reduced prices for their crops.

19. Farmers within 10 or 15 miles of a city can "beat the game" by selling out at the increased prices which their land will bring for subdivisions. Many more well-located close-in farms will become subdivisions during 1956.

20. Taken all in all, the real estate situation should average only moderately below the good level of 1955. However, activity promises to be less and those who have been holding real estate for speculative profits might do well to consider selling.

INTERNATIONAL OUTLOOK AND POLITICS

21. Russia will keep out of war with us during 1956.

22. There will be one or more small wars during 1956. Both sides of the conflicts will try to secure help in the form of munitions from both Russia and the U. S., but none of these will develop into serious conflicts.

23. The "cold war," now existing between Russia and the U. S., will continue through 1956.

24. The hydrogen bomb and the guided missile will be the greatest international factors for diplomatic trading during 1956. This trading will hold down the price of big-city property.

25. The Republicans will turn slightly "New Dealish," during 1956 and this will bring on a lively and heated Presidential campaign.

26. Democrats are uncertain as to what their policy will be in 1956. Stevenson is a liberal; but more conservative than many Democrats. Kefauver appeals to the masses, while Harriman leans to the left. However, some "dark horse" may run off with the Democratic nomination.

27. Some taxes will be reduced during 1956. These cuts will try to favor all voters slightly; but the largest benefits will go to low-income groups.

28. The farm problem—concerning higher price parities—will be the center of most political fights.

29. The cost of living will increase only slightly during 1956. We, however, must not forget what weather can do to production, prices, and even to the stock market.

30. All the above means that there is now in sight no reason for further inflation during 1956.

Certainly, I look for no runaway price climb!

OUTLOOK FOR COMMODITIES

31. I am not a crop expert, but my associates' forecast for 1956 is as follows: further acreage reductions that will be largely offset by soaring yields resulting from intensified cultivation; and expanded farm subsidies that will mildly bolster crop prices and farm income compared with the 1955 averages.

32. Although wheat and corn prices depend upon both shifting weather and foreign conditions, for 1956 I forecast moderately higher prices for the major grains based on increased subsidies to be voted by Congress.

33. Industrial prices will enter the new year on a high plateau and should be well maintained to possibly firm during the forepart of 1956. Later, as business falters, look for selective easing in this group.

34. Steel in 1956 will average higher in price than for all of this year. Do not look for any price cut in this key metal, even if business slackens.

35. Nonferrous metals in 1956 should move with the Babsonchart Index. High prices in early weeks may be followed by selective weakness. Zinc and lead may be the first to give a tip-off on the coming downtrend, but copper eventually is riding for the greatest fall.

36. Processed and frozen foods should advance only slightly in price as increased labor costs are offset by new machinery and competition intensifies. Early firmness in textiles should be followed by some late-year weakness.

37. There will probably be more leisure time during 1956. This should help the entertainment group, including sports, travel—and possibly the petroleum industry.

38. During 1956 I hope that school teachers will be paid more money. But, in order not to have increased municipal taxes, school committees must develop some method of either improving the efficiency of the schools, or reducing the time necessary for completing studies.

39. More people will continue during 1956 to return to the help of religion. However, statistics on church membership unfortunately cannot be entirely depended upon.

STOCKS AND BONDS

40. Interest rates will start the year at high levels, but later I look for some easing to help the building industry. The present Administration will not allow high money costs to bring about unemployment.

41. Seasoned dividend-paying stocks will do better in 1956 than the more speculative issues. Stocks will follow individual prospects more closely, rather than the curve of business entirely.

42. There will be one or two bad breaks during 1956. Railroad stocks will move lower. Biggest declines are likely in auto and residential building - materials stocks. Utilities will hold up best.

43. I am not making any extensive recommendations, but prefer to select smaller, well-seasoned, undervalued situations for security and good long-range prospects. Those in which I have great confidence are the top-ten group of variety chain - store stocks.

44. If the rallies continue to be less impressive than the declines in the stock market, I feel that the money managers will reduce stock margins before long.

45. Bank, insurance company, and certain investment trust stocks should continue to be a refuge for the uncertain investor and for those who seek security and income without reference to prices or marketability.

46. Aircraft stocks in 1956 may suffer from increased government renegotiation. This will be a serious threat if the Democrats win next autumn.

47. Soundly financed natural gas stocks should continue to enjoy good growth during the year ahead.

48. We will hear much more about new industry and new inventions during 1956. Many very important developments are on drawing boards and in test tubes.

49. Canadian stocks have reached their peaks for this cycle. This includes the uranium craze. On (Continued on Page Five)

Four-State Farmers Meeting Set For January 20

Herman Stocklager, president of the Four-State Farmers' Assn., announced this week that the annual Four-State Farmers' meeting will be held Jan. 20 in the Franklin Court Auditorium in Hagerstown. Farmers from Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland are expected to form the usual capacity crowd for the meeting. As in previous years, the meeting was planned and arranged by a committee of farmers, agricultural extension services, county agents, agricultural experimental stations, and the rural development department of the Potomac Edison System. These meetings have been growing in their popularity since their inception eight years ago and many farm organizations as well as university and state personnel have been giving support and aid for each of the farmer meetings.

In announcing the program for this year's meeting, President Stocklager stated that agricultural experts from Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Pennsylvania State University, Cornell University, and the University of Maryland and various county agents and leading area farmers will serve as discussion leaders for the various topics.

Among the important subjects to be discussed at the meeting are: A suggested program to increase farmers net income based on the outlook of farm production and government controls; spraying for insect control on forage crops and a discussion of the various chemicals as to their advantages and dangers; what can be done to increase the net income on the small or family-size farm; a discussion of the direct expansion and ice bank milk tanks as to their merits for milk cooling including the details in the proper management of these bulk milk tanks; and a panel discussion of "What the farmer wants from the county agent and how the agent can get it for them."

These discussion topics are all of vital interest to four-state area farmers and were chosen by them especially for this reason.

Farmers from this area who had a part in completing the final arrangements for the meeting are Henry Shoemaker, Harry A. Zentz, and Earl Remsburg.

This year's meeting will officially open at 9:25 a. m. with sessions continuing throughout the day and the final discussion group convening at 2 p. m.

Congressional Viewpoint

By U. S. Sen. John M. Butler
The only important new legislation which will be passed by the Second Session of the 84th Congress convening in January will be a reduction in taxes, Senator John Marshall Butler (R.-Md.), predicted yesterday.

In a year-end forecast on legislative possibilities, Sen. Butler said that most of the Second Session will be devoted to "warmed over" proposals originally considered in the First Session. These include farm, highway and aid to education programs which created considerable controversy when first presented.

"Tax relief will come in April or May," Sen. Butler predicted. "It will be aimed at easing the burden of the low and middle income brackets. Much sentiment exists for increasing exemptions from $600 to $700. I feel, however, that the majority, at least in the Senate, prefers a percentage decrease—perhaps as much as 10 per cent. In my opinion the total cut will approximate $3.5 billion."

"Although in the last session of the Congress the House passed a bill restoring the 90 per cent of parity formula for farmers, I believe that the Senate will adhere to flexible price supports and that the measure finally enacted into law will retain the flexible program and create a soil bank which will enable the farmer to take some of his crops out of production and receive Federal payments for the idle land. This approach seems to be favored by the major farm organization and to me it seems sound."

"The huge highway program will likely be approved on a pay-as-you-go basis and some form of aid to education will be granted. Possibility exists that Congress will consider and okay a new health program which will enable more people to get Federally-backed health insurance. The re-insurance feature of the Administration's original proposal may be abandoned."

"Last session much was made of the so-called harmony in the Democratic Party. That harmony will probably be knocked sky high by the highly controversial

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

There are people who profess to see nothing in rabbit hunting. Fortunately, these are an inconsequential minority. From the earliest colonial times, it was not the abundant deer or wild turkey that hunters sought—it was the rabbit. In fact, rabbits formed the broad base upon which gunning in America was established. Without them, hunting as a favorite American sport would almost surely wither.

Why are they our most popular game? There are several reasons. First is availability. There is hardly a square foot of this continent not inhabited by rabbits. Second is their sizzling, brilliant speed, their evasive tactics, their art of concealment.

But they are not difficult enough to shut anyone out. Dub, youngster, oldster, poor shot, good shot, old gun, new gun, of whatever kind, gauge or caliber, with dog or without, afoot or with limousine and chauffeur—proposal to exempt the natural gas industry from Federal Power Commission price-fixing. Democratic Majority Leader Johnson has placed this measure on the "must" list. New and Fair Deal Senators will bitterly contest this bill and it could leave scars between the "left" and the "right" of the Democratic Party—scars that will carry over into the Democratic National Convention.

"A hard core of New and Fair Dealers will continue to attack the Eisenhower foreign program, and that program will no doubt become a campaign issue of major consequence. But by and large, the President will have the support of such influential Democratic leaders as Senator Johnson, Senator George and Senator Byrd in his handling of foreign relations. 'Peace and prosperity' will be the big issues overshadowing everything else and 'peace and prosperity' will be a hard combination to beat regardless of the candidates selected by the Republican and Democratic conventions."

"I predict the election of a Republican President—probably Eisenhower—and a Republican Congress next November."

everybody wins.

There are specific hunting techniques for rabbits depending upon the different habits of each species. However, certain habits of all rabbits are alike. These the hunter should know if he wants to increase his skill. For example, all rabbits are vegetarian, and predominantly nocturnal. Dawn and evening may find any of them out foraging. In daytime they must be routed from hiding places.

Weather plays a big part, according to an article by Byron Dalrymple in Sports Afield magazine. Very cold weather and storms will send cottontails below ground, into woodchuck burrows and hollow logs. A thaw, with warm, bright sun, will send them into open grass fields to sit in little "forms" all day, soaking up sun. Jacks and snowshoes react about the same, except that they do not hole up, and that snowshoes seldom willfully go out into completely open territory.

Rain is not relished by rabbits and it affects hunting. Cold wind makes rabbits uncomfortable, sends them to the lee side of hills and woods to bask in what sun is available. High winds make all rabbits flush wild, run wild, and cottontails often hole quickly. It is during average good weather, the sort when the hunter feels best and most active, that rabbits feel likewise.

Girl Scouts Meet

The regular meeting of the Emmitsburg Girl Scouts was held Dec. 16 in the American Legion meeting room, Linda Bowers presiding. The meeting was opened with the Flag salute followed by recitation of the Girl Scout laws and roll call.

A discussion concerning the ways of earning badges was held and these suggestions were presented: (1) The business meeting should be held last with the work on the badges being done first. (2) The troops should be divided into the different Scout fields, each troop working for the badges in that particular field.

It also was decided to have a merit chart instituted. At the end of each month the merits would be totaled and the highest number attained by an individual would be rewarded. The meeting was formally closed at 4:45. The group's Christmas party was held on Dec. 22.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rosensteel were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Myers and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ecker, Taneytown.

We welcome 1956 with the hope that it be a year of peace and contentment for our many friends and neighbors.

Congressman De Witt S. Hyde - 6th District, Maryland

Along The Potomac

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27—Second Session of the 84th Congress begins its work next Tuesday, Jan. 3, with Vice President Nixon and Speaker Rayburn calling the Senate and House to order at 12 noon. The session is likely to be a rough and tumble affair as the major political parties vie for advantageous positions for the coming elections. Quite frankly, I suspect there will be no new and startling legislation and the Congress will stick pretty much to a minimum of measures.

The President will present his program in the State of the Union message. The Democrats, as the controlling party in the Congress, will attempt to give the President's proposals a Democratic coloration by rewriting in Committees and Floor amendments. In the case of most legislative proposals there will be a mad scramble to see which Party gets the credit.

I shall continue my practice of keeping you informed on the progress of major legislation during the session. Some items, such as national defense, foreign economic aid, balanced budget and a tax reduction program, require careful consideration. With regard to a tax program I shall be presenting some ideas of mine both as regards individual tax reduction and a proposal of mine that may assist the small businessman in meeting his share of the tax burden.

Legislation of special interest to the 6th Maryland District will include some of my measures, pending or to be introduced, that will aid in working out long-range solutions to water conservation, utilization and flood control. I shall continue to seek enactment of my bill granting citizenship privileges to those employed at Camp Detrick, near Frederick. I am expecting an early Committee report on my bill permitting the choice of one of two base periods in computing annuities and retirement in the Railroad Retirement Act.

I wish to take this opportunity of wishing everyone a most Happy New Year. I believe that, while the year will have its serious problems, we, as a Nation, will benefit from the policies being pursued by the Administration. The coming year should be a good one for all of our citizens.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL

The end of each year is traditionally the time for hopes, guesses and predictions about the next 12 months. So here are a few of mine:

Among my hopes, the one which will be tested first involves the Maryland - Oklahoma football game in the Orange Bowl on Jan. 2.

My sentiments in the matter are 100 per cent obvious, of course, so I'll supplement them with a guess about the final score.

My guess, which I'll admit is influenced by my faith in the Free State's historic ability to overcome unfavorable odds, is—Maryland 14, Oklahoma 0.

GOP Candidate

Although forecasting in the field of sports is quite a bit out of my field, as I learned occasionally during the State's horse-racing season, I do feel that I can make several predictions concerning national affairs which are more firmly grounded.

I honestly believe, for instance, that President Eisenhower will vote according to their private convictions.

seek re-election.

And I'm sure he will win again.

Agricultural and Labor

I also think the Administration will work out a generally satisfactory agricultural program based on flexible price supports such as many farmers have endorsed.

Finally, I predict that labor organizations will take advantage of their undeniable right to back candidates in the 1956 elections, but that for the most part, individual union members will exercise their own sacred right to

Quotes To Remember

When a nation faces a crisis, extraordinary measures should be taken by its institutions and its population. In America today we face a crisis. It is the monstrous threat of international Communism whose historic objective is the destruction of our nation. Among the institutions which must be mobilized to resist the forces arrayed against us is that of education. Recent columns have discussed the job of education in this crisis and how citizens can assist in achieving success.

The following quotations are the documented statements of the highest spokesmen of the Communists and Socialists. They are quoted here because, although it is vitally important for all Americans, young and old, to read and understand them, I failed to find any of them in scores of textbooks recently examined.

Socialism First

"It is impossible to establish communism as the immediate successor to capitalism . . . Hence communists work for the establishments of socialism as a necessary transition stage on the road to communism."

—John Stratchey
The Theory and Practice of Socialism

New York

"Lenin is our teacher and we Soviet people are Lenin's disciples. We never did and never shall go back on Lenin's directives."

—Joseph Stalin
New York Times
May 4, 1947

"As long as capitalism and socialism exist, we cannot live in peace; in the end, one or the other will triumph—a funeral dirge will be sung over the Soviet Republic or over world capitalism."

—Lenin
Selected Works
International Publishers
New York, 1943

One Must Win

"Who will conquer whom? —that is the whole question . . . the world is divided into two camps — the capitalist headed by Anglo-American capital, and the socialist camp, headed by the Soviet Union."

—Joseph Stalin
Sochineniya
Gospolitizdat
Moscow, 1947

"When people talk to us about morality we say: For the Communist, morality consists entirely of compact, united discipline and conscious mass struggle against the exploiters. We do not believe in eternal morality, and we expose all the fables about morality."

the other hand, the time is coming when the greatest stock market profits will be in connection with Canadian stocks.

50. Economic education will continue more and more a factor throughout 1956. The advertising which the New York Stock Exchange is now subsidizing will continue. This will be followed by labor-union and educational programs. The growth of colleges and institutes of business administration will continue. I now see no depression ahead for 1956, but, of course, stock prices will not "grow to the skies" and there must be a sad readjustment some day. Investors are already beginning to switch from common to preferred stocks, and especially to non-taxable bonds.

The Little Town on the North Sea and a Native Son Who Became a Great American

The next day, after a regretful goodbye to Copenhagen but with a special eagerness for what was next ahead, I traveled across Denmark by train and boat to the west coast (the peninsula of Jutland) bordering the North Sea; more exactly, closely to the coast, for between it and the little town I was going to visit are wide stretches of meadow and marshland. My objective was Ribe (pronounced in 2 syllables), birthplace and boyhood home of Jacob Riis, the Danish immigrant who never lost his love for his native land but became a truly great American citizen, one of our outstanding early leaders in the field of social reform, working tirelessly by means of newspaper articles and pictures, illustrated lectures and books, and innumerable other ways, to call attention to and improve the wretched living conditions of New York City's "Other Half." (It was Theodore Roosevelt, who knew him well, who said after his death in 1914: "He did not come to this country until he was almost a young man; but if I were asked to name a fellow-man who came nearest to being the ideal American citizen, I should name Jacob Riis.")

I had first made the acquaintance of Jacob Riis many years ago thru his fascinating life-story "The Making of an American" and in that I had also made the acquaintance of Ribe, described in language of such affectionate feeling that it sounded like poetry and lingered in memory over the years. For example: "How shall I tell you of the old town by the North Sea that was the home of the Danish kings in the days when the kings led their armies afield? . . . Shall I paint to you the queer, crooked streets with their cobblestone pavements and tile-roofed houses where the swallow builds in the hall and the story on the ridge-pole; witness both that peace dwells within? . . . Will you wander with me thru the fields where the blue-fringed gentian blooms with the pink bell-heather, and the bridal torch nods from the brookside, bending its stately head to the west wind that sweeps ever in from the sea with touches soft as of a woman's hand? . . ."

So it was out of my interest in Jacob Riis and his birthplace, of which he wrote so feelingly, that I made the visit to Ribe, and it was here that I had experiences different in degree from any others of my tour (I do not say in kind, thinking of the Paris subway and outdoor cafe, the hotel in Berne, the Royal Library in Copenhagen, Rose Cottage in Broadway, Gloucester, and so many other places where friendly acts went far beyond the requested mile.) But first I must mention the always-different yet similar experience of seeing the outstanding "sights" of a place, adding at once that I did not do this completely in Ribe, as I never did in larger places, for my time in proportion was just as short; but what I did see had the special interest given it by Riis' vivid personal reminiscences of the old town as it was in his boyhood "before the march of improvement struck it." (And I must say parenthetically that my introduction to Ribe, in the evening, reminded me of an earlier time the later than Riis' boyhood, when bicycles were unknown; for I was met, not by an agency's representative with limousine or taxi but by a non-English-speaking Dane from old Hotel Dagmar—with a bicycle. How my three bags and I were supposed to be taken to the hotel and how we did get there—that's one of those stories that I can't go into here, not being to the present point.)

Of the ancient things in Ribe that Riis cherished in memory and that are still there to charm the visitor of nearly a century later, I can mention only a part of what I saw: (1) most outstanding, the great Domkirke, named from the fine dome rising over the intersection of the main and cross aisles, one of the oldest church buildings in Scandinavia ("with eight centuries upon its hoary head") begun in the 12th century with stone known as tuffa brought from the Rhineland, distinguished by an immense square tower built a hundred years later as a refuge for the people of the community in those troubled times; (2) the Latin Grammar School, directly opposite in the center of the town and of the same great age, where Riis' father was head master in his day (and there on the front is a modern addition that Jacob never saw or could have imagined—a brass memorial tablet inscribed with part of President Roosevelt's printed tribute to him from which I quoted above); (3) the Town Hall, old too but not as old as these landmarks—and on its tower a huge nest with storks in it, (I learned that these birds return from wintering in Africa to the same nesting-spots, and this one has long been occu-ped; (4) quaint-looking houses dating back from the 15th century, like the stone Hotel Dagmar on the market-place behind the Cathedral, and the brick-and-timbered Weiss House across the way, now the property of the Danish National Foundation, made into an unusual inn, especially famous for its "common room" filled with antique treasures, among them a 400-year-old clock and a 700-year-old baptismal font; also simple dwelling-houses with red-tiled roofs like the ones down near the water on Fiskergade.

And there were other new things of interest besides the tablet on the front of the Grammar School that Jacob did not see even on his last return visit to Ribe, now nearly 50 years ago; but of these I can mention only one, the most interesting to me: a Children's Center, a pre-kindergarten for very small children, built by the people of Ribe in memory of their famous son and his love and work for children in another land.

But now my space is almost gone and I have not mentioned the friendly contacts that I mainly meant to report from my brief stay in Ribe; and I can only summarize a few of these too, where summary seems unsuitable (at least I will omit the numbers): with the young man on the street whom I casually asked a question, who spoke with some difficulty but was so eager to answer me exactly that he asked me to wait while he ran upstairs (conveniently right there) to get his Danish-English dictionary and find the exact words, and then running across the street for a friend who had lived in the United States to make doubly sure; with this young girl, who offered to walk along and point out some places of interest, which she did, including the wharf, where she introduced me to the owner and his assistant on a little motor launch and suggested a ride on the river down to the lock and dykes along the coast as a pleasant diversion; with the Danish family I met on this ride, which I took that afternoon, the mother and four young people, all speaking English, who presently asked, rather hesitatingly, whether I would like to go home with them and spend the evening, and so took me with them to their comfortable flat in Grabrodrage for a most interesting visit and a smogasbord supper followed by cake and coffee when other members of the family living nearby came in later; with the boat owner's assistant mentioned above, who was a naturalized American (I should say citizen of the U. S., for there is another American) and veteran of the first World War, wearing his American Legion button with pride, and who offered to show me the points of interest which I had not yet seen, and did so all of the next day until train time, even conducting me to the station and seeing me on the train to Esbjerg, the port from which boats crossed to England. (There was a typical Danish dinner which Mr. Bour, as my guest, ordered at the Dagmar before we departed for the train; perhaps a word about that some other time).

Could I have said less about Ribe I would have had space for a word about one of Jacob Riis' books that I did not know of until recently, a collection of "Christmas Stories" mainly about Christmas in New York's terrifying slums before the better days that Riis himself did so much to usher in.
