Last week's catastrophic results of deaths on the highways apparently made little, if any, impression on the motoring public. The slaughter continued unabated into the new year. Apparently they (the car drivers), act like stampeding cattle heading for a deep precipice—and fatal destruction. You'd think the Christmas warning would have had some effect and would make motorists more cautious, just a week later, but no, another record in fatalities was set over New Year's.

It's no small wonder though that the killing continues. Just take a drive for a few miles. It doesn't have to be Saturday, Sunday or a holiday... just any day, and you'll see motorists speeding, racing, passing on hills and curves and doing acts contrary to prudent motoring. I sometimes close my eyes when I see a car pass on the crest of a hill, praying that nothing is coming up the other side. I feel as though I would be glad, in a way, if something did come over the top and smash into the stupid offender, but the possible drastic results quickly change my mind and I actually pray that nothing does come hurtling over the hill, because it might well be a family and it could be wiped out. I believe the fellow who passes on a hill or curve is more a menace than the drunken driver or speeder, and should be punished accordingly. One of these days someone will come up with a solution to our dilemma... and soon I hope.

We spend millions fighting diseases in an effort to survive, but how much do we spend educating drivers how to drive safely and to save lives, other than their own? Driver education has its advantages when you stop and think. Just take local aspirants to a driver's license. First they practice in the driveway or yard and then take to the country roads. After a few short weeks of practicing they apply for a learner's permit and in a week or two they have their license. Can you visualize just how much training or education they have? Sure they can operate the car mechanically, but do they have any regard for life or property? Have they been taught the dangers of motoring, other than mechanical? No siree, and when they get their question book for the examination, how much safety is stressed? Little, if any. Now suppose the learners were taught in school with competent instructors? All principles and fundamentals of safety would be taught, not only to the driver but to the occupants of the other car. I'm certain a lot of this needless slaughter could be avoided by proper training methods. Why it's equivalent to getting a 16-year-old boy a high-powered rifle for a present and taking him to the backyard for practice. Sure, in a few short minutes he knows how to operate the rifle, but what does he know about safety, the most important item of all? I am of the opinion that we should have driving instructors in both our local high schools, and colleges, if necessary.

As we start a new year there are a number of proceedings of major importance to us, as a nation, lying before us. We must elect a President. Undoubtedly this will prove to be highly interesting. There's a movement afoot in Congress to reduce income taxes, on the lower level and this will be more than welcome, if it isn't just political hogwash during an election year. There's one piece of legislation though that perplexes me. It used to be that the Government would pay farmers a sum of money to curtail production of crops. Well now the Government is considering paying the farmers to keep portions of their land completely idle and barren of crops. Imagine, with food as costly as it is this action will undoubtedly cause costs to rise even higher. We'll all be living on vitamin pills fortified with atomic energy in the future, I suppose.

Local Woman Survives Gas Blast In Home

Escaping gas from a gas stove last Friday morning nearly caused the death of Mrs. Charles Seiss, 78, who lives three miles south of here on the Frederick Rd. The gas was exploded by the fire in a wood-burning stove in her kitchen.

Emmitsburg Fire Chief John S. Hollinger found Mrs. Seiss lying unconscious in front of the gas stove suffering from a slight cut on the head, a slight burn on a leg and shock.

The explosion and fire that followed caused an estimated damage of $3000.

As firemen reconstructed the details, Mrs. Seiss awoke and went into the kitchen about 8:05 o'clock to make breakfast. In the meantime 17-year-old Miss Virginia Kaas, who resides with Mrs. Seiss was asleep in her bedroom upstairs. Mrs. Seiss either turned on the gas stove and then fainted or fainted and in falling, brushed against the stove, turning on the gas.

The explosion blew out nearly all windows on the first floor, blasted several doors open, damaged furniture, ripped out the plaster ceiling in the kitchen, buckled joists, tore off the walls in most rooms and caused cracks in most of the walls.

Miss Kaas first discovered Mrs. Seiss when she was awakened by the blast. She saw Mrs. Seiss on the floor, a sofa in the kitchen on fire, as were a blind and a curtain at one window. Miss Kaas ran to a neighbor's home and called the firemen while neighbors assisted Mrs. Seiss.

Despite the great amount of damage from the explosion, firemen said the fire was confined to one corner of the kitchen, and estimated the loss at only about $60. A booster tank was used to extinguish the blaze.

Mrs. Seiss was removed to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Paul Eckenrode, Emmitsburg, after treatment by Dr. Charles Williams.

EHS Cagers Open Season With Victory

Emmitsburg High School ushered in the 1956 basketball season Tuesday evening on its local court by splitting a double-header with Walkersville.

The first half of the double billing featured a contest between the Junior Varsity of the two schools with Walkersville walking off with top honors by a lop-sided score of 42 to 3.

Coach Ted Elliott's Varsity came out victorious in the second contest, however, by a comfortable lead of 14 points, winning 56 to 42. Clarence Ancarrow was high scorer for the Blue and White and paced his mates with his 18 points. The locals led in every quarter with the exception of the first, which was tied at 9-all.

Emmitsburg will play host to Thurmont here next Tuesday evening.

Police Dept. Receiving Complaints

Numerous complaints have been received by the Emmitsburg Police Dept. regarding the shooting of windows and other property by boys with air - rifles. Windows, street lights, Christmas bulbs, etc., have been destroyed by these weapons, it has been learned, and the offenders, if caught, will be fined and their guns confiscated.

In addition complaints also have been registered pertinent to the dumping of ashes on the newly-improved alleys and the burning of leaves and trash on the new macadam roadways.

The Emmitsburg Police Dept. has announced that prosecution will result if these undesirable practices are not discontinued and cites the following town ordinances that prohibit these actions:

Ordinance No. 5-A, Section 1—Be it enacted and ordained by the Burgess and Commissioners of Emmitsburg that it shall be unlawful for any person to dig or remove dirt, rock or soil from the streets or alleys of the corporation. Also, it shall be unlawful for any person to deposit trash, dirt, rock, soil, and ashes on the streets and alleys. April 30, 1942.

Ordinance No. 6-A, Section 1—Be it enacted and ordained by the Burgess and Commissioners of Emmitsburg that it shall be unlawful for any person to make or cause to be made bonfires or to burn rubbish on the streets or alley, or to discharge firearms of any caliber, or to set off any squirts, fire crackers, cannon crackers or other explosives of any nature in or on the streets or alley of said town unless a permit to do so is first obtained from the Burgess and Commissioners.

Section 2—It shall be unlawful for any person to carry concealed or dangerous weapons on his or her person in or on the streets and alleys or to use same weapons on private property, or to discharge same, or to set off any explosives on such property that may be dangerous or obnoxious to adjacent property owners or renters of property.

Ordinance No. 6-A, Section 4—That it shall be unlawful for any person to throw stones, baseballs or any objects that may cause an injury to life and limb or damage property, or bat ball or stones or any objects, or otherwise set in motion any objects that may be considered a hazard to life and limb and to property. June 20, 1942.

DAY ABSOLVED OF MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Kenneth T. Day, Gaithersburg, was found not guilty of manslaughter by motor vehicle, but was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for reckless driving by Magistrate Wilbur F. Sheffield Jr. in trial magistrate's court on Tuesday.

The charges were the result of a collision on Nov. 6 between a car driven by the defendant and a car driven by Richard L. Eyer, Rocky Ridge, in which Eyer and his 16-month-old son who was riding in the car with him were both killed. Eyer's wife, also a passenger in his car, was severely injured. The defendant's wife was also injured.

The collision took place at the intersection of the Motter's Station Rd. and the Old Frederick Rd. when Day, approaching the intersection on the Old Frederick Rd., failed to stop at a stop sign where it intersects with the Motter's Station Rd.

Day's attorney, Edwin F. Nickirk, sought to prove that according to a recent Maryland Court of Appeals decision the defendant was guilty only of simple negligence, because he was unfamiliar with the road and that he didn't see the stop sign in time to stop before getting into the intersection.

Disregarding State's Attorney Samuel W. Barrick's contention that Day was guilty of gross negligence in the operation of his car, the magistrate, found him not guilty of manslaughter, but gave him the stiff penalty of six months in the House of Correction for reckless driving. Defense counsel noted an appeal. State Trooper 1/c Donald Tucker placed the charges.

Sgt. and Mrs. William Timmerman are spending a 30-day leave at the home of Sgt. Timmerman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Timmerman. He recently returned from Western Germany where he was stationed. At the completion of his furlough he will be stationed at Fort Lee, Va.

Town May Erect Office Bldg. For Own Use

The town of Emmitsburg will have a new office building, possibly this year, if plans work according to expectations, it was revealed at the regular monthly meeting of the Town Council held Monday night in the Fire Hall. Commissioner Wales Rightmower presiding over a full board present.

The new office has been under consideration for some time and present indications are that the Town Fathers will go ahead with plans for construction just as soon as an estimate can be given. Present plans call for the construction of the building on the town-owned lot adjacent the Elizabeth Neck property on South Seton Ave.

The reports of the secretary, treasurer and tax collector were given by Town Clerk Louise Sebold and all were accepted as presented. Parking meter revenue for December totaled $268.83, it was reported. In addition, there was $36 in overtime parking fines and an over-fine of $6.45, making an overall total for the month of $311.28.

Mayor Thornton W. Rodgers reported that all streets in town had been measured preparatory to drawing the annual map of the town's streets for presentation to the State Comptroller. Monies for street repairs must be specified and dimensions given in order to share in state money for the upkeep of the town's streets and improved roadways.

The Police Dept. reported it had received several complaints concerning a traffic hazard created in the West End by cars parking on both sides of Frailey Road near a large apartment building. Investigation preparatory to taking remedial measures is under study by the Council as to how the hazard can be eliminated.

The Town Fathers unanimously agreed that the town's ordinances were badly in need of revision, many of them being antiquated and outmoded, and they will meet in a body Monday night at a special meeting to begin the long and arduous work of revising several hundred ordinances. Upon completion of this work it is planned to have copies printed so they will be available to the public, upon request.

Motorists Fined

Seven motorists paid fines totaling $80.15 for violations of the state motor vehicle code, the Emmitsburg Police Dept. reported for the month of December.

All arrests were made by Police Chief Daniel J. Kaas and hearings were held before Magistrate Charles D. Gillelan, Emmitsburg.

Convicted and fined were the following: Zolan Carr, Catonsville, Md., exceeding 30 mph., $11.45; Kent Stratford, Hyattsville, Md., exceeding 25 mph., $11.45; Robert E. Hixon, Gettysburg, exceeding 25 mph., $11.45; Ed Milroy, Holly, N. Y., operating without a driver's license, $11.45; William Rosensteel, Gettysburg, reckless driving, $11.45; George Fox, Keymar, inadequate muffler, $11.45; and Robert L. Clark, Auburn, N. Y., improper passing, $11.45.

Roy Rippeon, Taneytown, was fined $6.45 for failing to obey one of the town's stop signs. Three other cases were held over for hearing this month. The Police Dept. reported 25 courtesy warnings had been issued during the month.

Along The Potomac

Congressman De Witt S. Hyde - 6th District, Maryland

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 — The President's report to the people on the "State of the Union" message presented in broad, vivid strokes the picture of the Nation and the World today. The President reported accurately, I think, the progress we have made on the domestic front. He did not fail to draw our attention to the areas in our economy which need legislative attention.

To help assess developments in the current session I would like to point out two important factors. First, on the domestic front economic conditions on the whole are good and 1956 is likely to be at least as good as 1955. Second, on the international front we are witnessing a resurgence of the cold war, but not the cold war of pre-Geneva. The new phase is relentless economic warfare. Soviet weapons are propaganda and gold.

It is important to keep these two factors in mind as we consider what is likely to be the most important political issue faced by the 84th Congress' second session. Any tax reduction program submitted to the Congress must be evaluated in the light of our domestic problems and the international situation.

Party leaders will be under tremendous pressure to guide through Congress legislation that will result in a reduction in the nation's tax burden. The tendency will be to ignore budget deficits.

Rigid economic law as it operates in our individual homes tell us to reduce our debt at those periods when our incomes are at their highest. The same law should apply to our government. But even a booming economy is unlikely to produce enough revenue to permit programs providing for new highway construction and at the same time reduce taxes, let alone provide the sums needed for national defense and fighting an economic cold war.

It seems to me that responsible leadership in the Congress must of necessity give the plain unvarnished facts to the people. Reduction of waste in government and savings in funds appropriated for general governmental activities help but come nowhere near meeting the requirements of the new programs. Our strongest ally in the fight for a free world is a sound economy, and I believe the people will see the wisdom for avoiding a further increase in the National Debt.

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. GLENN BEALL

WASHINGTON — Details of a new program designed to keep homes from slipping into the construction world's "Skid Row" will be released here within the next few weeks.

Until now, the plan has been kept under somewhat loose wraps while being discussed by representatives of industry, labor and government. But soon the nation will get a public, top-level invitation to pitch in on "Operation Home Improvement."

The slogan for the campaign will be: "56—The Year to Fix."

Rotten Apples

Behind the undertaking is the old idea that one rotten apple can spoil the barrel.

Likewise, according to the promoters of "Operation Home Improvement," a single slum residence can eventually spoil a street, a neighborhood, or an entire community.

As soon as the project is launched officially I will be able to report on how it will affect specific areas of Maryland, but in the meantime I can give you some idea of its national importance.

The Federal Housing Administration, which is the No. 1 backer of the undertaking, estimates that 1 million homes deteriorate into the slum category each year.

There are also figures showing that approximately 30 million of the homes in the U. S. have not been painted during the last 10 years.

Homes, in this respect, are a lot like many women; they not only look and feel better after a little sprucing up, but they also help freshen the spirits of those around them.

Remains Called For

Consequently, the FHA will encourage homeowners to "fight blight" in every city, town and community by fixing up places which are succumbing to time and wear.

Air Force Seeking

Enlistments

For the first time in six months, the U. S. Air Force has opened wide the door to voluntary enlistment in the Air Force, it was announced this week by M/Sgt. Clyde H. Jones, Air Force recruiting supervisor for this area. He said that 45 new recruits can be enlisted locally during the month of January, which total is an increase of 29 more than were enlisted in December when the quota was held to 16.

Sgt. Jones stated that the new opportunities for training and service in the Air Force arise through the need to meet the 137-wing goal authorized last year by Joint Chiefs of Staff and Congress.

During the past six months, Air Force recruiting offices had to cease taking enlistments upon reaching their monthly quota. As a result, many local men who wished to join the Air Force were denied the opportunity.

Sgt. Jones stated that local area men enlisting in January will be sent to Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., for their first phase of basic military training prior to the technical training afforded enlistees.

Full information concerning the opportunity for enlistment in the Air Force during January can be obtained by contacting M/Sgt. Kerchner, 2 E. Church St., Frederick.

Arm Fractured

Miss Blanche Dukehart, 64, who broke her left arm in a fall on ice Dec. 29, received treatment at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg.

have a good start, according to the FHA, since records show that the rate of home repairs is already rivaling the booming construction rate.

As a member of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, to which the FHA reports, I have been extremely interested in such programs, and I intend to do everything possible to aid in the success of the coming operation.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5—The most important comment in my last week's forecast for 1956 was this statement of mine: "If no unforeseen event happens, President Eisenhower will be re-nominated and re-elected in 1956."

I am no politician, but I do try to be an honest statistician. Hence, first let me dispose of the question of age. The President will be 66 in 1956. This would make him 70 by the close of his second term. His rivals, in both the Republican and Democratic parties, say he is "too old to run again." Yet, Warren of California is 64.

Let us discuss first the possible Republican candidates. My first choice would be Vice President Nixon, who is an ideal man, at an ideal age of 42. Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, my second personal choice, is 65, but because of his success as a constructive businessman, I doubt if he could be elected. Next in order I would select Thomas E. Dewey, former governor of New York. He probably is the ideal age, namely 53; but the party would be loath to nominate one who had been defeated twice, even though he is an excellent administrator. My fourth choice would be Secretary of State Dulles; but he is two years older than Mr. Eisenhower! The other active Republican aspirants are Senator William Knowland of California, 47; Presidential Assistant Harold Stassen of Pennsylvania, who is 48, and Governor Christian Herter of Massachusetts, who is 60.

What About Democratic Statistics?

Now let us apply statistics to the possible Democratic rivals. If the nominating convention were to be held this month, I am sure that ex-governor Stevenson of Illinois (55 years old), candidate four years ago, would get the Democratic nomination. If Eisenhower should not run again, Stevenson would have a good chance of election; but not against Eisenhower as a candidate. This is in my humble opinion. As for Governor Harriman of New York, he surely could be featured as a "malefactor of great wealth" more than could Mr. Humphrey. Harriman probably never "earned a dollar in his life." He inherited his millions from his father, who was America's greatest railroad giant; while Humphrey started with nothing and earned his present wealth through developing coal, iron, and other mines. Let me say, however, that Harriman has probably had the best training and experience for the Presidency of any possible Democratic candidate. I have great respect for his knowledge and for his contacts in national and world politics. He is a "New Dealer"—which would help him with labor and probably with the great American public. Statistically the country is Democratic. Republicans should not forget this in their enthusiasm for Ike.

Among others commonly suggested, irrespective of party, are Kefauver (52), and Clement (35), both of Tennessee, Dirksen (60) of Illinois, Meyer (47) of New Jersey, Stratton (41) of Illinois, Symington (54) of Missouri, and Williams (44) of Michigan. I will also add that ex-President Truman, at 71, may be a candidate. So much for statistics.

Consider Photography

This is an age of photographs. The successful magazines—such as LIFE and LOOK—are almost 85 per cent photographs. Television is 96 per cent, the movies are 98 per cent photographs. Ike takes wonderful photos and his smile alone is worth millions of votes. But, photography is even used by us statisticians to forecast conditions. We can often predict what a man will do by studying the "setting" in which he allows his photo to be taken. Consider the following as evidence that Ike and Mrs. Dowd want to be in the White House four more years, irrespective of what Mamie may want.

If Ike did not want to run again, he would have been wheeled onto the plane which took him from Denver to Washington, in a wheel chair. This would have helped him in his desire for four years of quiet life at Gettysburg. But no, he

RECOGNITION: Few prominent men have gained the recognition that the recently elected Governor of Kentucky has, namely the Honorable Albert B. Chandler, former U. S. Senator, Baseball Commissioner and holder of a number of other high and important official positions. Gov. Chandler is a very popular executive and also a good friend of the people. Moreover, he is a good friend to have. I know.

Back in 1936 I contacted him when I had returned to Kentucky after many years' absence. I needed his moral support in a matter which involved a political controversial issue. He saw my sincerity and did his best. He proved to be a very good friend in his continued cooperation through the years. Gov. Chandler could have left my whims, efforts and proposed plan drop into the wastebasket, but not once did he fail to give his attention to my requests. He had nothing to gain by it, nothing financially or politically, other than my mediocre support. As a public speaker and entertainer at the time, I was also aiding the churches, but as he knew that politics did not belong in the churches, his moral support was a personal virtue. He was a man of the people and for the people. Never has a man been more deserving than Governor Albert B. Chandler since the days of Lincoln.

From my travels and activities in various states, I found him still cooperative. He nursed a bill that I was the author of and presented it to the Committee of Military Affairs in Washington when he was on the Committee as a U. S. Senator. The bill was rewritten and passed by the approval of the Committee.

Later on my proposal for a Veterans' adjustment of certain provisions was recommended and presented to the Veterans Administration by Senator Chandler. He also aided my efforts when I exposed and brought to light, the impractical defense use by Japanese Judo tactics as once contained in the old Army manual, "Unarmed and Armed Defense for the American Soldier." During 1944-45 when I was the head of training in the schools of Los Angeles where I taught the teachers, or physical education instructors, and also the civilian defense personnel, wardens and other wartime emergency units, as the president of the Americanized Judo Assn., I campaigned to get the Army manual revised. In my possession is a letter from the War Dept. informing me of their decision and in which my services were invited. Thanks to Sen. Chandler for his support and continued faith in my efforts. To him I owe much for his unexcelled support and it is because of great men like him that we strive to succeed and prove our gratitude for their faith in us. Few men can inspire the people as does Gov. Chandler. All Kentucky is proud of him and the State will prosper and progress under his administration.

As baseball commissioner he was loved by all and respected by his opposition even to the day of his resignation. The players regarded him with the highest of esteem and they all relied upon his judgment in their behalf. He was always for the underdog. His many activities included that of settling disputes and poorly arranged contracts. He left everyone feeling great and satisfied. No one was ever unhappy over his decisions so far as the players were concerned. His nickname of "Happy" has been rightfully earned. Win or lose, he could always still does, smile.

To Governor Albert B. "Happy" Chandler, I can find a depth of gratitude in my heart for I am a better man for having known him. His cordial reception to my wife, Martha, and my son, Wally, and I in Los Angeles during 1940 or '41 at the Chapman Hotel will always be remembered. His amiable fellowship proved him to be a man never to be forgotten and loved for his greatness and humility in spite of it. To Gov. Chandler this correspondent from Maryland extends hearty congratulations. It is with great pride that I have called the Governor a true friend. As the President, he also would be a friend unexcelled to all the people.

That Last Danish Dinner

I do not flatter myself that readers in general recall the little incident reported in my first article about having only a life-saver on the train to Paris instead of the lunch I had looked forward to as one of the interesting "firsts" of the trip, and my reference to the last meal I had on the continent five weeks later, which was in such striking contrast. But as I mentioned the latter and have now arrived at the time and place of it, I think I should explain.

I am referring to the dinner I had at the Dagmar in Ribe with the Danish-American Legionnaire, my self-appointed guide there, as guest. I had asked him for a "real Danish meal" for us and he did so with gusto, especially when it came to the dessert. We began with large plates of cream of asparagus soup (my guest had two helpings, as he did what followed), passed next to a huge platter of sausage and a variety of browned vegetables, served with rolls and coffee, and concluded with a dessert consisting of (1) a hot sweet pancake wrapped, very deftly at the table by the head waiter, around (2) a block of vanilla ice cream, and garnished with (3) whipped cream and (4) jelly. (Yes, the guest had also a large mug of beer). A delicious meal to eat — and for me to remember for more reasons than one.

So goodbye, Denmark, and hello, England; for now the night boat-trip on the beautiful Kronprinsessen Ingrid from Esbjerg to Harwich is over, and here is the boat train to London.

London After 29 Years

I was not making the capital city my main headquarters in England, as I had in the countries on the continent, for I remembered pretty clearly what I had seen and done in London on my first visit there just 29 years before, and I wanted now to get acquainted with a part of England I did not know at all. There would be two days there before I left for home, but now there was only a drive across the city from the east to the west side (with a new travel agency's representative) as a prolog to the visit in Gloucestershire in the west Midlands. A drive, however, that was an exciting experience, bringing directly before my eyes again so many things seen only with the eye of memory for so many years: the winding Thames, the bridges, the Tower, the Houses of Parliament and Westminster Abbey (to mention some at random, without regard to location). Trafalgar Square (where I had stayed) and the Nelson Monument at its center, with the National Gallery across the way and the beginning of the fascinating Strand — these and many more which I cannot mention here; and along with them the memories of the personal experiences that were involved in all the sight-seeing. But I must not get more deeply into that other story, for my concern here is just to report an exciting drive between railway stations on my first day in England, summer of 1955.

Chipping Campden and Elsewhere

Several hours later, after some transportation difficulties that I had better skip, I was safely but, I must admit, not warmly settled in my room at The King's Arms in the oddly named little village some 90 miles northwest of London which a friend had recommended to me as a charming place in itself and a well-located one for my purpose, noted above. And now before I attempt any reporting on the six interesting days to follow, two explanatory notes may be in order: (1) on the meaning of Chipping Campden's odd-seeming name, and (2) on the general nature of the part of England where it is located.

(1) The "Campden" part of the town's name was originally all it had, and that goes back for its origin very far indeed, to some time before the Norman conquest and following a great battle around the year 670 between the Ancient Britons (the Celts) and the Saxon invaders who came after the Romans left the island. The Saxon word 'Camp' means a battle and refers to this last great battle, in which the Saxons, as usual, were victors. 'Den' comes from another Saxon word, 'Dene,' meaning a woodland valley. The other part of the name was added much later, in the 12th century, to show that Campden had become a market town by a charter from the king, the Saxon word 'Chipping' meaning bargaining or bartering. (It occurs in the names of other English towns with the same meaning, like 'Chipping Norton.' So not really odd, but just reflecting some early history.

(2) Here I quote from a little booklet published by The King's Arms: "... the town is beautifully situated in a hollow of the North Cotswolds (ridge of hills in Gloucestershire) and around it is one of the loveliest and most unspoilt stretches of country in England. Tucked amongst the hills and beside the rivers and orchards of the broad vale of Evesham are many old villages that it is a delight to explore." A.E.H.

Power Consumption
Sets Record

The Potomac Edison Company set two all-time records for power supplied to its consumers on Dec. 21 and 22. The first mark reached was a new one-hour peak of 237,000 kilowatts, which was set between the hours of 5 and 6 p. m. on Dec. 21.

The second record peak was set Dec. 22 when a mark of 4,396,000 kilowatts was reached.

In the past 10 years both the one-hour and 24-hour peaks set by the power utility have more than doubled. According to the national increases in power usage, this area is slightly better than average in the growth of the use of electricity.

Principal plants of the PE System are at Williamsport, Cambridge, Riverton and Albright.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Rabbit doesn't taste like the finest chicken—exactly. But it's close enough to excite a comparison which generally comes out with the rabbit leading by a "hare" (this dreadful pun, as well as the recipes that follow, are through the courtesy of outdoor writer Erwin Bauer). Be that as it may, there are probably more recipes for cooking rabbit than any other kind of game. Here are two of my favorites:

Fried Rabbit—Parboil a pair of quartered rabbits in water containing two tablespoons of salt, a quarter cup of white vinegar, several whole black peppers and a large chopped onion. Right there is the secret: parboiling is the difference between this and ordinary fried rabbit.

Now remove and dry the pieces; dip them in flour, sprinkle with pepper and fry in hot fat until tender. It's as quick and easy as that. Serve with cornbread and green beans.

Rabbit Pie—Place two jointed rabbits in a stewpan with a half a cup of water. Add salt, pepper, a generous amount of minced parsley, a large chopped onion, three cloves, four chopped stuffed olives and a half pound of diced salt pork. Boil the mixture until the rabbit is tender. Thicken with browned flour and, if necessary, add a little water. Let it boil again and add a half cup of butter.

Remove from the fire and bone the pieces of rabbit. Mix in three or four diced, boiled potatoes and two or three diced boiled carrots. Put the whole works in a baking dish lined with pie crust and cover with another crust. Cut several slits in the top crust to allow steam to escape. Bake until the crust is crisp.

Hurt While Skating

Miss Doris Baker, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Baker, Route 2, broke her left ankle while ice skating this week. She received treatment at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg.

LOOKING AHEAD

By Dr. George Benson
The Antidote To Socialism

It is disturbing to have a government official in Washington, a person of sober mind and moderate viewpoint, tell you that the United States is drifting into Socialism and that the drift will not be halted. This happened to me in recent days. The person with the gloomy outlook cannot simply be laughed off. He has had intimate experience with all levels of government and, to some extent at least, direct contact with many segments of the public.

"Our people," he said to me, "have been infected with the 'gimmies.' It is a fatal disease once it takes root in a nation. When the government starts giving something to people they get accustomed to it quickly. They don't want to give it up. They forget about sound principles and the value of individual opportunity; and ultimately they lose their self-reliance. Then they become partial or total dependents. No government can carry a big load of dependents without gathering to itself great power over the economic and finally the social processes. And that's what Socialism is—a government dominating the people."

Many Want Gifts

These are disturbing observations. But when I had left Washington behind and began to analyze my friend's opinions and the circumstances that helped form them my spirits were lifted somewhat. At the center of government in Washington he sees a constant stream of people from all corners of the nation—coming with their hands out, asking for something. And under this heavy pressure he sees political office-holders weakening, sound governmental and economic principles being diluted.

He sees so much of this that he feels it expresses the character and the attitude of the whole population. With all due respect to my friend, I think there is still hope for America's future. Only a small percentage of our people are running to Washington with their hands outstretched; and they do not, I feel, represent the great body of our population. Yet certainly the old "something for nothing" siren's song—with which tin-horn politicians and demagogues have risen to power and crushed people throughout the ages—is a continuing and urgent danger.

Understanding Needed

There is one certain antidote to Socialism. No people who clearly understand what Socialism is and are familiar with its unbroken record of failures throughout history would adopt it with their eyes open—even when served up insidiously bit by bit. Thus the job for America is to give authenticity, prestige and widest distribution to the facts about Socialism, Communism—and our American way of life.

The need for the distribution of the educational facts ought to be proclaimed repeatedly by leaders of our government in Washington and at the state capitols, by people active in the leadership of our two political parties, by business and employe organizations, patriotic and other service clubs; and, above all, by the school people of the nation. President Eisenhower has stated that our resistance to Communism cannot be strong unless our people understand our freedom structure in America. But there hasn't been enough echoing of this important statement among other responsible leaders in our political, economic and educational institutions.

Education Is A Vaccine

Smallpox once was the scourge in America. A vaccine was finally developed which built up the antibodies in the bloodstream so that the smallpox germ could not get a toehold. The danger from smallpox disappeared. Today medical science is fighting dreaded poliomyelitis with inoculation designed to make the antibodies resistant to the insidious virus germs. The new vaccine holds out great promise.

Socialism is a disease which attacks the vitals of people and nations. The vaccine against it is truth—facts—education. In this period of Socialist expansion throughout the world, every man, woman and child in America should be educated—or inoculated—with facts about: (1) Our own system, how it works, the unmatched advantages it produces, and the basic principles which make its success possible; (2) Socialism and Communism, their common origin and objective, and their cunning methods of achieving their goals, and the unfortunate social, economic and spiritual conditions that follow.

Next week begins a series of columns on a new and exciting program in American citizenship education.
