It's becoming increasingly apparent that the day of the big top circus is passe. An announcement this week revealed that several of the big ones had flopped financially and were calling it quits. We all knew the day would come when one of our favorite pastimes would have to cease operations, but we didn't know just when. The high cost of labor, transportation and other entertaining acts used in sustaining a big circus were named as the executioner. The largest of them all, and undoubtedly the oldest, the famous Ringling Bros. Circus also threw in the sponge.

Apparently there is too much other entertainment in the nation and too much to occupy our time and therefore the decrease in attendance at the big top shows. We're sorry to hear the news, but I imagine the high cost of admission also caused many a family man to shudder when the circus came to town. What it cost a family with several children to see the show was downright brutal to say the least, and it was only a matter of time when their downfall was predicted. I really am sorry to see the demise of these fun-provoking circuses come. As a child I appreciated every single moment of the show, be it large or small. Now the only way our children will be able to see many of the funny looking and interesting animals will be to have Dad take them to the zoo. . . and I might add that this becomes downright boring after several trips.

Along with the high cost theme, a large American coffee distributor advised the public this week that the only way to lick those responsible for the outrageous prices we are paying for the commodity, is to stop drinking the stuff. It seems as though our own American distributors and roasters have no check-mate on the coffee producers of foreign lands and the outlandish prices they are gouging from us. I advocated this means of combatting the problem several years ago, but to date the results are not very encouraging, because coffee consumption is higher than ever before. Personally I have cut my coffee bill in half, and not the way it says on television, either. Coffee is a must for breakfast in my home. Ofttimes a cup at lunch is partaken, but preferably ice tea in this kind of weather. At supper there is never any coffee on the table, it's either ice tea or ice water. It's comparatively simple once you have tried it two or three times. If several million Americans tried this simple way of cutting their coffee bill I am certain that in a few short weeks coffee would drop about half in price.

Bad tires? Better hadn't travel on the Pennsylvania Turnpike then. State troopers announced this week they are cracking down on motorists with bad tires. No, you won't be pinched, but if you pull up at a restaurant or service station and the troopers see your tires are bad, you will be ordered to take the nearest exit and get off the road. Seems as though a series of accidents has occurred and were blamed on old tires. So, if you are planning a trip, be certain your tires are okay. It's sage advice.

The Town Council was discussing sewerage some time ago. It seems that according to a recent survey, Flat Run has not been carrying or retaining as much water in recent years as it formerly did. In fact the stream has almost completely dried up and may some day be dubbed Dry Run. Anyway, there isn't enough water left any more to carry off the effluent of the disposal plant, let alone those houses dumping in raw sewage which lays in the stream bed for weeks on end. One councilman brought up an idea which strikes me as sensible. The idea is to erect a series of dams in the stream which would hold water in reserve and when the hot, dry summer approaches, release a quantity of the reserve water and flush out the creek, thereby eliminating any foul odors which might be emanating from the stream at this time of the year. A few small dams wouldn't cost too much and I feel certain that farmers with land the stream

C. of C. Drafts Petition To Road Officials

Curtis R. Bucher, president, presided at the regular monthly meeting of the Emmitsburg Chamber of Commerce held in the Fire Hall Monday evening.

One new member, Ralph D. Lindsey, was admitted to membership in the group. The Chamber went on record as endorsing the designation of one of the state routes as a U. S. Route sometime in the future. The endorsement came after similar action had been taken by the Town Council. The swimming pool committee reported some progress had been made and that the consent of a land-owner had been obtained for the construction of a dam on his property near town. The area is owned by two individuals and the consent of the second party has not yet been received, it was reported.

The president reported good progress on the circulation of a petition about the community, beseeching the State Roads Commission to reconsider its original plans for the bypass of Emmitsburg. The original plan would bring the new highway to just north of St. Joseph College and cut off at the south end of town. Just as soon as a justifiable number of signatures has been obtained the petition will be presented to the State Roads Commission and a hearing asked.

The Chamber agreed to stand a portion of the expense of erecting four signs at the four main approaches to town, advertising the Bicentennial next year. It also authorized a committee to proceed and have the old welcome signs at the entrance to town refurbished in time for the Bicentennial.

Still Time For Polio Inoculations, Official Declares

There is still time to provide polio protection for those most susceptible to the disease, it was pointed out by George L. Radcliffe, former U. S. Senator and chairman of the March of Dimes in Maryland.

"On the average, nine of every 10 polio cases that occur during the year are reported after July 1," Mr. Radcliffe said. "In an average year, between 75 and 80 per cent of all polio cases are reported after Aug. 1."

"This means that every shot of Salk vaccine given during the early summer months can reduce the number of polio cases in September and October," he explained.

Currently in Maryland's 23 counties, chapters of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis are cooperating with health departments in an educational program stressing the availability in Maryland of Salk polio vaccine for pregnant women and for children three months through 19 years of age.

Outlining the program, Mr. Radcliffe said that information concerning vaccine inoculations is being disseminated by the press, radio, and TV. In addition, business and industry will display posters available to them at chapter headquarters.

Information concerning the 3-shot polio prevention program is available at health departments or from family doctors, the chairman said.

GRANGE SEEKS COUNTY BOUNTY ON FOXES

The regular meeting of the Emmitsburg Grange was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Martin Wednesday evening, Master Richard Florence presiding.

Farm Safety Week, which is the week of July 22-28, was stressed. All members were urged to practice safety and emphasize it to the community. It was reported that the Pomona meeting will be held at Braddock Heights on Saturday, Aug. 4. All members are urged to attend.

The Junior 4-H Club team played in the county softball contest and placed second, Harry Swomley and George Gartrell were appointed to serve on a committee to promote Farm-City Week in the Emmitsburg District starting the week of Nov. 16-22. Richard Waybright reported the membership drive is progressing.

The Grange went on record as approving a bounty for foxes in Frederick County. Edgar Emrich, George Martin and Carol Florence were asked to draw up a resolution to be brought before the Pomona Grange.

After the business meeting delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. George Martin. The next meeting will be held Aug. 1 at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Grier Keilholz.

Scouts End Big Encampment

The big Boy Scout contingent from Frederick County to the Philmont Reservation in New Mexico ended a 25-day, over 4300-mile trip last week and received a tumultuous welcome from several hundred parents and friends at the Frederick High School grounds.

The Scouts and cadets spent 25 days in travel, sightseeing, hiking and camping without any serious sickness or accident. The trip which included 12 days at the vast Philmont Ranch, included visits to Pike's Peak, the Taos Indian (Pueblo) Reservation, Juarez in Mexico, Carlsbad Caverns National Park and several air force bases.

The time at Philmont Ranch was spent in training, hiking, camping, fishing, horseback riding, burro packing and mountain climbing. Adding together the individual miles hiked and the weight of the packs carried on the trails, the Explorers covered a total of over 3200 miles and lugged a ton of equipment and food with them.

The group from Francis Scott Key District was the largest single group from any district in the United States to visit the ranch. For the past three years, the National Capitol Area Council of which Francis Scott Key District is a part, has sent more Explorer Scouts to Philmont than any other council in the country.

Three members of the Emmitsburg Scout Troop 284 made the trip to New Mexico. They were Ralph Irelan, Jr., "Pete" Tokar, and Jeff Fitzgerald.

Statistics Prove Truck Drivers Are Safer Driver Than Car Operators

"Commercial vehicle transportation of commodities and personnel has become a major factor in the traffic problem of today—and a major headache for our enforcement personnel," says Col. Elmer F. Munshower, superintendent of Maryland State Police.

"In 1955 there were 38,217 motor vehicle accidents in the State of Maryland. Involved were 68,661 vehicles of all types. It is interesting to note that of this total, only 8,926, or 13%, were commercial type vehicles."

"In spite of this fact, the trucks and buses, particularly those falling in the 'big fella' category, have a tremendous psychological effect upon the general motoring public. The result is constant criticism of the drivers and of enforcement officers."

"The truth is that owners of large trucks and large fleets of trucks are exacting in their demands that the State Police enforce the law against their drivers. The Maryland Motor Truck Assn. has asked for and are willing to pay for a copy of the trooper's motor vehicle arrest slip, so that the truck owners can take additional punitive action against their drivers, thru company discipline.

"The economical phase of the question makes this a good, common sense attitude to take."

"To prove there is no winking, or blinkin', but plenty of noddin' going on, enforcement statistics, provided by the Central Accident Records Bureau of Maryland State Police, covering motor vehicle arrests will be released to the press every four months to keep the public informed of the facts."

The first of these factual releases is herewith presented covering the four-month period: January through April.

CATOCTIN ESTATE TO CHANGE HANDS

Over 900 acres of mountain land and several lodges, which Kingman Brewster, Washington attorney, maintained for a number of years as a game preserve have changed hands in one of the largest real estate transactions to take place here recently, a deed filed for recording in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court showed recently.

The property, located in the mountains west of Catocin Furnace, has been sold by K-B Ranch, Inc., formed by Brewster, to Mrs. Florence R. Ewald and her son, Gerald R. Ewald, for a consideration indicated as approximately $151,000 by revenue stamps.

The big tract, which was developed into one of the mountain showplaces of the county 20 years ago and once housed the only mink farm in Maryland, embraces 891 acres of what is known as the "Catocin Furnace property" in Thurmont District and 12 adjoining acres in Hauvers District which had been reserved to Blue Ridge Farms, Inc., another firm organized by Brewster.

The main property in Thurmont District is only a part of "Catocin Furnace Property." Lawrence Richey, about the time that he was secretary to the then President Hoover, bought the whole tract of more than 1300 acres and subsequently sold part of it to Brewster. Richey in later years sold his remaining holdings, which embraced that part of the mountain preserve closest to U. S. 15, to Floyd Akers, Washington sportsman.

The deed filed for recording includes a right-of-way over lands formerly owned by the Potomac Hills Development Co. from the 891-acre tract to the State highway south of what was known as the old Catocin Manor House, especially over an "old road or trail" as the same passed through the lands of Richey.

Mrs. Ewald is from the vicinity of Louisville, Ky., and reported plans to reside at the mountain preserve.

The area has some of the best hunting land and fishing streams in this section of Western Maryland. President Hoover used to visit the Richey preserve to fish.

New School Enrollment Days Announced

Despite the holdup in construction due to the current steel strike, officials of the new Mother Seton Elementary School are making plans for the opening of the school in September.

An official announcement by Sister Frances, principal of the new school, advised parents of Emmitsburg, St. Anthony's and Thurmont, to register their children for the fall semester.

Construction on the new school building has been temporarily halted and progress has been limited to installation of the "Footer." It is the hope of St. Joseph Central House, the builders of the school, to have the building in readiness by September. It is understood that the building can be erected in a few short weeks once the necessary steel beams and supporting columns have been received.

According to the official announcement issued this week "A meeting for parents of all school children expecting to enroll in the new Mother Seton Elementary School, now under construction just south of Emmitsburg, will be held Tuesday evening, July 24 at 7:30 p. m. in St. Anthony's School. This will be an open meeting and all interested parties are welcome. Sister Frances, principal of the new school, also announces that all children expecting to attend the new school, including those enrolled in local parochial schools last year, must be registered by their parents. Registration dates are Saturday, July 28 at 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. at St. Anthony's School. Another registration will be held Sunday, July 29 from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. at St. Euphemia's School. Parents may register children on either day, regardless of parish affiliation."

sent plans are for the erection of a 12-classroom school.

The Difference Between BANK DEPOSIT INSURANCE and SAVINGS AND LOAN ACCOUNT INSURANCE

Many people seem to think that an account with a "building and loan" or a "savings and loan" association is the equivalent of a savings deposit with a bank. It is true that in recent years there have been no serious difficulties involving any considerable number of associations, which probably accounts for this tendency to consider that they are as dependable depositories for money as are banks. The fact is, however, that there is an important difference between an association and a bank which is reflected in the types of insurance provided under Federal law for the two kinds of organizations.

A depositor in a bank is a creditor and is legally entitled to satisfaction of his claims prior to and with preference over, any shareholder. If the bank is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, he is insured up to $10,000 for each account. This guarantees that the depositor will get the full insured amount of his savings, either at once or within a short period after notice of intention to withdraw.

A person with a savings account in a "building and loan" or a "savings and loan" association is not a creditor. He is a "member"—an investor in the association who assumes the risks incident to share ownership.

If the association is a member of the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corporation, such a person's investment is insured up to $10,000 by that corporation—but, in effect, this insurance merely guarantees that some day the investor will get his principal back. When that day will come depends, in the case of state building and loan associations on the state law governing such organizations, and for federal savings and loan associations on the regulations of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in effect at the time.

Savings and Loan Insurance Not Immediately Payable
Unlike the bank insurance mentioned above, Federal Savings and Loan insurance is not payable until the association is taken over for purposes of liquidation. Unless it is grossly mismanaged or is actually insolvent, an association will not ordinarily be liquidated so long as it uses what money it has available to pay something on account to the holders of its shares or investment certificates. The fact that the association's assets are "frozen" and it finds itself unable to repay investors, does not cause the insurance to become immediately payable.

For example, under the laws of at least one state, an association need not pay any amount to a holder of either shares or investment certificates until six months after he gives notice of intention to withdraw and then need only pay if it has funds available and, if the amount is over $250, may pay in installments.

In other words, so long as the association pays out what money is available in installments after six months' notice, the insurance never comes into effect unless for some other reason the State Banking Commissioner takes over the association. If the association does not pay a withdrawal claim for three and one-half years the Commissioner may take over the association but he is not required to do so even then. If he does take over, of course, the insurance becomes payable. Even then the insurance can be paid by giving the investor an account in another insured institution.

In the case of federal savings and loan associations, the rules governing withdrawals are somewhat different. Here is a typical paragraph from the charter of such an association:

"Withdrawals. The association shall have the right to pay the withdrawal value of its savings accounts at any time upon application therefor and to pay the holders the withdrawal value thereof. Upon receipt of a written request from any holder of a savings account of the association for the withdrawal from such account of all or any part of the withdrawal value thereof, the association shall within 30 days pay the amount requested; Provided, that if the association is unable to pay all withdrawals requested at the end of 30 days from the date of such requests, it shall then pay all withdrawals requested in accordance with such methods and procedures as to amounts and allotments of funds for such purposes as shall be provided in regulations made by the Home Loan Bank Board in effect at the date of the request for withdrawal. Holders of savings accounts for which application for withdrawal has been made remain holders of savings accounts until paid and shall not become creditors."

As may be noted from this paragraph, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance does not come into effect automatically. Even 30 days after notice, investors in a federal savings and loan association do not have the rights of creditors, although they are still unpaid. The association can then handle such payment requests "in accordance with such methods and procedures as to amounts and allotments . . . as shall be provided in regulations made by the Home Loan Bank Board."

The insurance becomes available only if, as and when the Home Loan Bank sees fit to have a receiver appointed for purposes of liquidation. Even if an association is in difficulties, the Board may choose to appoint a conservator in which case payment of the insurance is still further postponed. An association may find its assets "frozen," so that it can pay its shareholders little or nothing for an extended period of time and still not be in default for the purposes of the insurance.

As summed up by an official of the Federal Home Loan Bank: "The insurance provides full protection up to $10,000, but does not guarantee immediate availability. The higher rate of return (as compared with bank deposits) is what you get for lack of immediate availability."

Not Necessarily Payable In Money

When Federal Savings and Loan Insurance finally does become effective, there still is no guarantee that it will be paid directly in cash. An investor in an insolvent insured association may have his account transferred, instead, to a solvent one. Presumably, the new association would endeavor to pay off such accounts on request, but if it should not be able to do so, an investor might have to follow the procedure above all over again.

The fact that, in recent years, none of the building and loan or savings and loan associations have been forced to use these methods should not blind investors in these organizations to the fact that the time might come when they would have to wait a long while for their cash; or that "insured up to $10,000" means one thing for depositors in banks and quite another for holders of shares (or investment certificates) in associations.

Homemakers' Corner

HANDLE BREAD WITH CARE

Housewives, the bread you serve your family deserves good treatment. Food handlers agree that it is a perishable food, and its freshness depends a great deal on wrapping and storing conditions.

As Mrs. Judith A. Pheil, University of Maryland Extension nutritionist, says—every homemaker knows the signs of staling are loss of flavor and aroma of fresh bread; an increase in firmness and crumbliness; and harsh texture. But, what is the solution?

Most modern bakeries wrap bread in moisture-resistant material. The specialist encourages the homemaker to leave bread in original wrappers, removing only that amount which is to be used. Exceptions are crisp-crusted breads and rolls which are best when served fresh.

The next step is to be wise about storage areas. Mrs. Pheil offers these suggestions:

Refrigerator Storage: Bread may be stored in the refrigerator to retard mold growth—especially during hot weather, but the longer the refrigeration period, the firmer bread becomes.

Freezer Storage: Bread should be stored in frozen food cabinets, at 0 degrees F., or lower. These temperatures keep the flavor, freshness, original moisture and aroma of bread intact if it is wrapped securely in moisture-vapor proof material beforehand. Bread thawed or fresh, stales at the same rate under like storage conditions. Freezing stale or partially stale bread will not restore its freshness.

Bread Box Storage: Properly wrapped bread may be stored satisfactorily at room temperature in a clean, dry, ventilated storage unit, container or drawer. Increased ventilation of the unit should be allowed for, during hot weather. Such units should be placed away from all heat-producing equipment, such as ranges, refrigeration units, radiators, water heaters, or clothes driers. Temperatures above 80 degrees F. foster mold growth.

low through. It helps your washing machine, and it helps you, says Miss Reitz.

ADVANCE JOBS HELP IN HOME LAUNDRY

Hot, humid summer days mean more work for the homemaker when she is trying to keep her family in clean, freshly laundered and starched cottons. But the home laundry job can be made more efficient, and the washing machine can do a better job, with a few suggestions from Joanne W. Reitz, extension home management specialist, University of Maryland.

For one thing—the specialist says it pays to examine clothes for special stains. Stains are best removed when they are fresh, and always before the clothes are washed. Hot water and detergent may set stains, so they never can be removed.

Another recommendation is advance soaking for clothes that are heavily soiled. How to soak, and how long to soak depends on the condition of the clothes. In U. S. Dept. of Agriculture tests, one of the methods found most effective for loosening "hard-to-remove" soil is a 10 to 15-minute "agitated soak" in the washing machine. Use lukewarm water and about one-half as much detergent as needed for regular washing. Moving clothes, even slowly, in the soaking solution in the machine gets them ready for thorough cleaning by regular washing, according to USDA tests.

While soiled overalls may be soaked in a tub of cool water, shirt collars and cuffs often "come clean" if soaked in lukewarm water and detergent.

Whatever your choice of advance laundry job, be sure to follow through. It helps your washing machine, and it helps you, says Miss Reitz.

Custodians Of The Future

Most civic clubs have a good constructive program for the betterment of their community, their state and nation. Nearly all of them have some activity devoted to stimulating the practice of citizenship; and most of them sponsor various activities for the benefit of the boys and girls of their areas. It has just been my good fortune to encounter one of the best all-around civic club programs in America, conducted by the Civitan clubs of Alabama and West Florida and combining all these worthwhile objectives into one project — an oratorical contest with the subject: American Citizenship.

A big gleaming air-conditioned Greyhound bus eased to a stop on the Harding College parking area. Stepping down out of it came 22 high school boys and girls from Alabama and Florida, their eyes dancing with excitement. With them was Samuel B. Abston, of the Bessemer, Ala., Civitan Club. The boys and girls were oratorical contest winners. They had come for "A Week At Harding College," as an added prize—to have fun, but also to improve their understanding of our American way of life and the responsibilities of citizens fortunate enough to be Americans and enjoy its great advantages.

Well Planned Project

The bus had been chartered by the Alabama-Florida Civitans. Sam Abston, an accountant with the Bessemer plant of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., had been chosen by his fellow Civitans to accompany the youngsters. Their trip to and from Harding was a sight-seeing excursion through a dozen interesting cities and a wide area of Southern USA. Of course, all arrangements for the week at Harding had been made.

While on the campus the boys and girls were entertained; they were honored at several affairs by Harding College students in summer school; but, believe it or not, they seemed to enjoy most of their sessions in American citizenship education given especially for them by members of the Harding staff. I spent most of a morning with them, informally chatting about the basic principles of our American system and the five factors in the "Secret of American Prosperity." They were unusually well-informed; their questions and comments were intelligent.

Something Exciting

A complete week's program of American citizenship education was presented to the youngsters, including the new series of educational films, "The American Adventure" developed by the National Education Program. Sam Abston was amazed at the enthusiasm the boys and girls showed for the citizenship education program. "It just doesn't seem possible," he said, "that a group of teen-agers would apply themselves to an education routine as these kids have in this week at Harding. They've worked hard learning. And they've actually been excited about it."

The important thing is that these 22 were merely the district and state-wide winners; and back in Alabama and Florida are thousands of other teen-agers who participated in the contest, and have thus begun to learn the exciting facts about our great nation—why it is great, and how each citizen can help keep its fundamental prin-

Along The Potomac

Congressman De Witt S. Hyde • 6th District, Maryland

WASHINGTON, July 18—Federal aid to school construction was killed for one compelling reason. It came nowhere near achieving what it set out to do: provide funds for local school districts urgently in need of assistance in bringing their educational plants up-to-date. I could not vote for the measure in its final form since it was contrary to all sound principles of a Federal aid program. The bill did not make "need" a basis for aid and with the "Powell amendment (anti-segregation) it denied Federal aid to 90 per cent of the states which needed it the most.

It is amazing to me that those who favored a Federal school construction aid program refused to insure such legislation this year and when they voted down the McConnell amendments, which would have brought the measure in line with the recommendations of the President. I voted for the McConnell amendments and would have voted for the bill on final passage had they prevailed.

Senator Beall and I had the pleasure of starting through the legislative mill companion bills which would set up the Chesapeake and Ohio National Historical Park from Great Falls to Cumberland. The Park will add much to the value of the Potomac River Valley and aid greatly in sound development of the area.

I have written to the Atomic Energy Commission in connection with their proposal to build an Atomic Energy plant to study the processing of foods with atomic energy. I urged the Commission to consider sites in the vicinity of Brunswick as an ideal location, both from an economic standpoint and its nearness to the AEC's new Germantown installation.

I am concerned by the fact that legislation relieving small business of some of its excessive tax burden has not been reported out of Committee. I believe a formula can be found which will ease the tax burden and leave the small businessman with adequate funds to insure his continuation in business. There is no question but that small business is the backbone of the nation's economy and we must do all we can to stimulate its contribution to the national welfare.

Another important fact was noted by Mr. Abston: "With these 22 boys and girls getting this intensive week of citizenship education at Harding, after their year-long participation in the contest, they will be going back to their high schools and colleges uniquely prepared not only to spread knowledge about our American system but to spread it enthusiastically—to excite other youngsters as they themselves have been excited as they dug into the wonderful story of America."

The Civitan clubs of Alabama and West Florida are to be congratulated. The present generation of American youth is the most decisive element in the world today. Because of world circumstances, there is being gathered to this oncoming generation the power to direct the course of human history for centuries ahead. How well they are sold on the great American principles for human progress—Faith in God, Constitutional Government, and the private ownership economic system—will surely determine the future of the world.

WHEAT REFERENDUM TODAY

President W. A. Cooksey of the Maryland Farm Bureau this week urged all eligible producers to vote in the wheat marketing quota referendum on July 20.

The Maryland Farm Bureau does not try to tell farmers how to vote, Mr. Cooksey said—each producer should decide this for himself. We do urge every eligible wheat farmer to do his duty one way or another on this question.

If quotas are approved by a two-third vote in favor the national average price support for wheat will be $2 per bushel, or about 82½ per cent of parity. If quotas are not approved the support price would be $1.21 per bushel, or 50 per cent of parity. Under quotas the usual penalty will be in force. This vote is on quotas and does not affect the acreage allotment requirement.

All wheat growers who expect to harvest 15 acres or more are eligible to vote. In the past less than half of those eligible have voted, he pointed out.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., July 19—The whole world has been upset economically and politically by World War II and its aftermath. In the midst of our own long postwar boom—only recently showing signs of decline—it is hard to believe there are many areas where serious losses and widespread suffering have resulted. Prices here have been so stable that we have forgotten the importance of commodity market trends.

Prices Should Be Watched Closely

For more than 50 years, I have been keeping tabs on commodity price swings. The Babson Organization has been publishing a Business Inventory-commodity Price Forecast over this long period, primarily because I believe that a knowledge of month-to-month developments in the major cash commodity markets will benefit all businessmen. Commodity prices should be watched closely, especially in these uncertain times.

The so-called "built-in stabilizers" of our post-depression American economy have helped us forget the basic principle that the price of each commodity is finally determined by the supply relative to the effective demand. A surplus of a commodity brings lower prices and vice versa. The many attempts of governments and individuals to control prices have all ended disastrously.

Swings In Prices
Years of study have shown that commodity prices move in definite cycles. I have proved to my own satisfaction that individual commodity prices, as well as groups, follow distinct—though not regular—periodic fluctuations. Of course one must distinguish clearly between the major cyclical or long swing movement and the minor or shorter-swing movement. When both trends are in the same direction, the price movement is accentuated. Otherwise—as in recent years—prices tend to hold fairly steady or to move in the direction of the stronger trend. In order to gauge properly the movement of prices, you must consider both the major and the minor trends.

Commodity experts who now follow the various commodity markets more closely than I do believe the major trend in commodity prices continues upward. They forecast a higher average of commodity prices before this present major cycle has been completed, but they emphasize that interruptions to this upward trend are possible. Also, they tell me that there will be individual commodities which will move contrary to the underlying trend. Hence it is absolutely necessary—especially in these uncertain times—to analyze each commodity separately. I forecast that failure to do so may prove costly, for the next minor movement in commodity prices will be downward. I forecast it may get under way sooner than today seems possible.

Commodities and Investments

From my readers' mail, I notice that there are comparatively few questions on commodities. Most people are interested only in individual securities or groups of securities. They simply do not realize that supply-demand trends and prices in the commodity markets determine, to a considerable extent, the return they get on their stocks.

I never buy stocks without giving consideration to price trends in the products made or heavily used by the company in which I plan to invest. I recommend this policy to others and I caution against speculating in the commodity futures markets. You can make money fast in commodity futures, but you can lose it twice as fast! The fluctuations of the stock market are great enough; but commodity prices fluctuate even more.

Advice To Manufacturers And Merchants

Most manufacturers must buy their raw materials nearly a year in advance; but they can usually protect these purchases by buying or selling "futures." In such cases, however, they should never be traded in to "make money" or for speculation.

Merchants should not bother with "futures," they are dangerous. Better stick to the advice of wholesalers with whom you have traded for many years. Do not let any salesman "high pressure" you into buying more than you will need for more than six months ahead. This is a time to keep inventories in good control.

Eversole Selected Best Poultry Student

Lawrence Eversole was recently selected as the best Poultry FFA student in the Fairfield Joint High School area. He will now compete with other Adams County FFA winners on the basis of his achievement for county honors in the NEPPCO contest.

Lawrence has raised 900 broilers in 1955 and 550 broilers in 1956. He has served as reporter, vice president, and now is president of the Mason-Dixon FFA.

Leonard Swisher has been named winner of this year's Sears Foundation $25 government bond. This award is made annually to the top FFA boy in each chapter participating in the Sears Swine Breeding program.

The Mason-Dixon FFA held its monthly meeting at Entenmann's on July 13 at 8 p. m. with Lawrence Eversole presiding. Plans were made for attending the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce Rural Youth Tour on July 18 and the area Summer Jamboree at Caledonia on July 25. The next chapter meeting will be held on Aug. 17.

The members of the local chapter, Francis Cool and Leon Harbaugh, accompanied by their advisor, Robert Leister, visited Elvin Pryor Jr., who is a patient in the York Hospital on Monday evening.

Foot trouble afflicts 65 men in every 100.—Sports Afield

And when he came near, he beheld the city, and wept over it. (Luke 19:41.)

From my hotel room I could see the shattered homes and empty streets of the "no man's land" that marked the dividing line between Jordan and Israel. I felt that Christ must still be weeping over Jerusalem.

We have reason to believe that He is weeping over the strife and bitter enmity between Arab and Jew, and over the thousands of refugees huddled in tents and mud huts along the Jericho Road. Surely He weeps over all the sins of men, whether in Jerusalem or anywhere. They draw Him to the Way of Sorrows again.

Any "no man's land" is dangerous to mankind, but much more dangerous is the "no God's land" where pride, prejudice, selfishness, and lust for power hold sway. These cause weeping and prevent many from finding the joy of the new life in Christ.

The hope of a redeemed humanity everywhere is to allow Christ to make all things in personal life and national life.

PRAYER

Lord, forgive Thy children for their love of self. We pray for the redemption of persons. We pray that the nations will seek Thy will and dedicate themselves to be used of Thee to pursue those things which make for peace. Redeem Thy world, O God, beginning with me. For the Redeemer's sake. Amen.

CONELRAD CAR RADIO dial marked at 640 and 1240 kilocycles for any emergency will come in handy when all radio stations go off the air at 3:10 p.m. on July 20, and then some return to broadcast special civil defense material on these frequencies as part of Operation Alert, 1956. The 15-minute nationwide Conelrad test.

first of its kind, will test radio stations' ability to switch to the Conelrad system of broadcasting in an actual attack so that emergency instructions could be radioed to the public without guiding enemy bombers to their targets. Civil defense authorities are hoping the public will mark their radios for future emergencies. (FCDA Photo)

FACTS AND FIGURES on "casualties" and "damage" to target areas have been fed into an electronic computer such as this for Operation Alert 1956 to get a lightning picture of the bomb-damage assessments in the 76 target areas throughout the nation. Evaluated data from target areas goes by wire to the operations room at FCDA Headquarters. (U. S. Air Force Photo)

Must Register For Military Service

Colonel Henry C. Stanwood, state director of Selective Service, has again issued a reminder that failure to register is a violation of the law and renders the delinquent liable to penalty. He said he believed the registration requirements of the Universal Military Training and Service Act, as amended, were not thoroughly understood by all the persons concerned.

"The obligation to register is continuing and must be fulfilled," said Col. Stanwood. The Universal Military Training and Service Act places the obligation to register on every male citizen born after Aug. 30, 1922 with the general exception of members of the Armed Forces on active duty and certain aliens.

A young man when he reaches age 18 is required to register at a local board office within five days. If he happens to be away from home he may register at the nearest local board convenient to him and the record will be sent to the local board in the state having jurisdiction over his place of residence. If he is in a foreign country when he becomes 18, he may register with any U. S. diplomatic or consular office. Once he registers, it is mandatory that he keep his local board advised concerning any change in his address or change in status. This applies after he becomes 26 as well as before. Generally speaking, registrants who have been deferred after June 19, 1951, are liable until they reach age 35.

The Colonel indicated he could not overemphasize the importance of the registrant giving his permanent home address as his place of residence when he registers at a board away from home, since the place of residence which he gives when registering determines the local board which will always have jurisdiction over him. A person who changes from a status which did not require his registration to a status which does require it, must register promptly to be within the law.

In general, aliens entering the U. S. for the first time are required to register at a local board within six months following such date of entry.

Violation of any provision of the Selective Service law could result in the maximum penalty of five years in prison or a fine of $10,000 or both.
