Congressional Viewpoint

by SEN. JOHN M. BUTLER

The Eisenhower administration's anti-inflation policy has increased the purchasing power of the dollar for every man and woman in Maryland, Sen. John M. Butler (R.-Md.), declared Tuesday night. Senator Butler was the principal speaker before the 13th District Men's Republican Club at Relay.

"When President Eisenhower and a Republican Congress took control of the government in 1952, inflation threatened the fiscal stability of the entire nation," Sen. Butler said. "The value of the dollar, which had dropped from 100 to 52 cents in 14 years under Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, was still shrinking when we as-

College Rooms and Portrait Photographs Belong Together

Boys are more home-conscious than ever. Time was when the man left all thoughts of decorating up to the women, but the age of do-it-yourself has changed all this. Every boy carries with him to school the favorite portraits of family and friends. The wise young man will use them in a proud display—thereby causing many bull sessions recalling high-school escapades. For the young man with a mechanical mind and conservative purse a bulletin board is the answer. Use fiber board edged with masking tape and push pins to hang the photographs and souvenirs. This can be a great help in keeping the room free of the usual clutter, at the same time putting that catcher's glove and camera within easy reach. With the best girl's photograph just above the desk any student would find study a pleasure. "Minute-Mount" frames from the local store are made of plastic sheets, which are held together with snap on plastic strips along the edges. Such frames can be hung on the wall with push pins. Pack the photograph of family and friends in the top of the trunk. Let them change that bleak empty room into a gathering place for all the new friends.

Seven States Are Represented In Quantico Marine Tourney

Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va.—Teams representing seven eastern states have accepted invitations to the Third Annual Marine Corps Schools Christmas Collegiate Basketball Tournament here December 18-20.

Coming from as far north as Vermont, as far south as Florida, and as far west as Indiana, the teams will offer a variety of basketball ranging from the wide-open fast break to the slower ball control style.

The three day Invitational Tournament will commence Dec. 18 at Quantico's Larson Gym with each team seeing action every day. Trophies will be awarded to the winner and runnerup teams as well as one for the outstanding collegiate player.

There are only two returning teams from last year's tournament field: runner-up Mount St. Mary's College from Emmitsburg, Md., winner of the Mason-Dixon Conference and Wabash College of Crawfordsville, Ind. The newcomers are: Belmont-Abbey College, Belmont, N. C.; University of Tampa, Tampa, Fla. Moravian College, Bethlehem, Pa.; Hampton-Sydney College, Hampton-Sydney, Va.; and Saint Michael's College, Winooski, Vt.

The host Quantico five will also play in the tournament. Officials predict another successful meet in the series, praised in the past by collegiate officials as one of the finest Invitational Collegiate tournaments on the Atlantic Seaboard.

War of Nerves

As the election campaign goes into high gear in this presidential year, a campaign slogan of yesterday comes to mind. Remember "Keep Cool With Coolidge?" But cool heads and even tempers are hard to keep in these exciting times. Nerves are frayed and digestions suffer as the tempo increases.

A few words of advice on getting through the next weeks without blowing your stack may be helpful.

There's no point in telling you not to get excited. Republican or Democrat, you know the election's important and you should be concerned. But for your health's sake, try to channel your enthusiasm away from meal times and bedtime.

Have you noticed lately that your stomach is upset after meals? It may not be the food. It may be your meal time companions. A hot political argument over the business man's lunch may be interesting, but it's hard on the digestion. For the time being, it might be wise to choose mealtime companions of your own political persuasion, when you can. Peaceful agreement is good sauce for steak.

If you're in the habit of reading a morning newspaper with your breakfast, you might give it up until after November 6. Read the paper later in the morning when the statements issued by the opposing party won't interfere with the digestion of your bacon and eggs.

One of the most difficult problems is loss of sleep after an evening with friends. There is always at least one member of the party who is politically misguided, and you feel you should try to set him straight. The trouble is that you keep the argument going in your head after the party has broken up. Some of your best arguments come after you've crawled into your bed and turned out the light. This can go on for hours, and you feel terrible the next morning.

Try to make a clean break between the evening's political discussion an entirely different subject whether it is horse breeding or a detective story. If your temper got really hot and you had to control it out of politeness, hard physical exercise may help. In the process of chopping a little wood you can have the pleasure of vicariously chopping off your opponents head.

BABSON Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON Babson Discusses Your Child's "Brains" Gloucester, Mass., Sept. 20—If I have any real hobby, it is the study of the human brain.

In fact, if I were to live my life again, I should devote myself to the development and harnessing of the human brain. Any superintendent who insisted that first-grade children should be taught psychology would probably be called "crazy." On the other hand, I believe if he did not use this long word, but merely began in the early grades to teach the child about his own brain, he would be praised. After twelve years spent in the Gloucester public schools, and four years in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, I had never heard of psychology. Yet it seems only common sense to begin education by teaching a child about his own brain, with which he will learn everything in the years to follow. As so many children are starting their first formal education this month, I urge that their interest be aroused in the wonderful machine which every one of them has in his head. It makes me cross to see the attention which is given by the press to the new electronic computers, while so little space is devoted to the human brain. In fact, Mr. Thomas J. Watson, late President of International Business Machines until his death a few weeks ago, once said to me, "If one of my machines is worth a half million dollars, the brain which every child has is worth ten million dollars!"

Brains Compared With Telephone Systems Every child who has entered school this month has in his head the equivalent of three pounds of mental switchboards. These are connected by the equivalent of telephone wires to every part of the body. Whenever we touch anything, see anything, hear anything, smell any odor, a telephone message is immediately sent to our brain. There it is automatically directed to one of these switchboards, which in turn makes a permanent impression upon some part of the brain similar to the small circular impressions on a long-playing phonograph record.

There are many such "switchboards" with millions of plugs. The chief switchboards are the following twelve: DESIRE - INSTINCT - MEMORY - INDUSTRY - COMMON SENSE - EXPEDIENCY - INSPIRATION - IMAGINATION - RELIGIOUS FAITH - HOPE - LOVE. These last three are the most important for the good of mankind. But from a business point of view, perhaps Industry, Common Sense, Inspiration, and Imagination will give school graduates the best salaries and job opportunities. In my business I am especially interested in getting people with keen imagination, who can correctly see into the future. I believe the great opportunities lie with those who have cultivated this power.

How Our Brains Work Each child possesses hundreds of thousands of living cells. Some are pressure-sensing cells; others are seeing, tasting, and smelling cells. All of these have "private telephone" lines to the brain, which automatically transmit messages by the "dial system" to the right switchboard, which in turn makes the permanent record.

I believe that children could become tremendously interested in their brains, and that this interest could add a hundred per cent to their educational results. Children are always interested in animals. When it is shown them that moths have smelling powers to find their mates several miles away; that the instinct switchboard in the heads of dogs enables them to find their way home and hunt out criminals; and that the robin on the lawn has far better eyesight than we have, children will make up their own precious possibilities. Children should be taught that in their heads they carry a telephone system with more private lines than the telephone systems of our largest cities. Getting children to use more of these thousands of private lines and dormant switchboards will make for healthy, happy, and prosperous lives.

The real task facing our schools is not to develop more knowledge but rather more reason, self-control, and imagination. The ability to solve problems which have never yet been solved and to see more correctly into the future should be our real goals. I especially appeal for work with children because children can learn more in the first twelve years than they will be able to in the next 40. My closing thought would be to impress upon these children the great importance of the switchboard entitled religion, with its sub-switchboards of Faith, Hope and Love.

This Is My Country

When the Communists in North Korea held several thousand American soldiers in prison camps and sought to swing their sympathies toward Communist objectives, the first step in their "brain washing" of the Americans was an effort to "unsell" them on America and its institutions. They worked cleverly in this undermining first step. This fact of Communist strategy has been spotlighted in the Army's careful study of the "brain washing" of 4,000 GI prisoners by the North Korean Reds.

Major William E. Mayer, the Army's foremost expert on "brain washing", reported that about one third of the 4,000 GIs yielded to the Communists and became sympathizers or collaborators to some degree. His interviews with the men and his studies of case histories showed that those who succumbed were GIs who because of ignorance—lack of American citizenship education, in school or elsewhere—were not "sold" on America and its institutions, and were weak in patriotism, in love of country.

Good New Textbook

For many years within our own country the Communists have been carrying on precisely the same kind of first-step "brain washing"—undermining our American system by warping facts and thus creating doubts; and subtly fostering the attitude that love of country is an old fashion idea which ought to be discarded. Thousands of clever Communist writers, we now know, succeeded in infiltrating all the thought - shaping communications in America—newspapers, radio and television networks, Hollywood movies, the publishing industry, the theater, and even some school textbooks.

American people began to awaken to this infiltration situation several years ago and now we see intelligent efforts being made to emphasize in a positive way the wonderful facts about our great nation. An excellent Junior High textbook, frankly written and designed to create love of country and appreciation of its institutions, has just been sent to me by a school patron in Claremont, California. Its title is "America Is My Country" (Houghton Mifflin Company).

Trend To Patriotism

Ten years ago this new book, with its stirring patriotism and emphasis on the incomparable value of individual freedom, would not have been enthusiastically received in some important areas of our national life. Its appearance strengthens a trend that has been developing for several years. Some time ago I reported on the return of the great moral lessons to the original McGuffey Readers, and of encouraging changes that had been wrought in some other textbooks which previously had seen fit to find nearly everything to be bad with the American system and hardly anything good.

For nearly 20 years, since my return from Asia and Europe where I saw Communism and Socialism growing into a worldwide menace, I've been saying throughout America that the best step we could take against these twin ideologies of slavery would be to "inoculate" each oncoming generation of our children with the facts about our system, creating an understanding and appreciation of its institutions, a love for our country and the great heritage which permits so many people to enjoy so many of the material and spiritual blessings of life.

The textbook "America Is My Country" was written by Harriett M. Brown and Joseph F. Guadagnolo, both teachers in Washington Irving Junior High School, Los Angeles, with the editorial assistance of Dr. Howard R. Anderson, University of Rochester. It is a beautiful book and it tells the story of America out of a clear mind and a loving heart. It would be a damaging blow to Communism if every Junior High School, every Seventh and Eighth grade class in the nation, could study this book or a similar one containing the same substance and spirit.

The Seventh and Eighth Grades should be the starting point for formal American citizenship education, although much can be done in the classroom and the home and church to lay the foundation in children at an earlier age. Studies built around such books as "America Is My Country" should be followed by more advanced studies of our unique American economic system and what makes it tick. The providing of sound and inspiring citizenship education is one of our greatest responsibilities to the children of America today.

TODAY'S meditation

Weep not; she is not dead, but sleepeth. (Luke 8:52.)
Charmain was eleven years old. She was in a hospital. The doctors had performed an operation, but there was nothing that they could do to save her life. Everything humanly possible had been done. Now we could only commit her into the loving hands of Jesus, the Friend of children.

Every day I visited Charmain. Early one morning I was at her bedside when she awoke. She began at once to say the Lord's Prayer. She sang her favorite Sunday school hymn, "Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam." To be in her presence was an inspiration to deeper faith and love.
As we remember Charmain, we think of the gracious words of our Saviour: "The maid is not dead, but sleepeth." Jesus Christ called her to Himself. He has a place and a purpose for her in His heavenly kingdom.
We have the sure and certain hope of the Christian as expressed by the Apostle Paul: "Now hath Christ been raised from the dead, the first fruits of them that are asleep."
Prayer
O Saviour Christ, Thou art the resurrection and the life. Whosoever believeth in Thee shall live, though he die. Grant us grace so to live in this world that in the world to come we may have life everlasting. In Thy holy name we pray. Amen.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

"American waterfowling this fall should enjoy the biggest southward migration of ducks and geese in recent years." So reports Jimmy Robinson after his annual duck survey trip for Sports Afield magazine. Apparently there were some nesting losses from the prolonged cold weather last spring. But when he wrote his report over-all rearing conditions for ducks had not been better in many years. Water conditions were almost ideal.
The big production boost is traceable to the fact that many more ducks returned this year to the Canadian breeding grounds than returned in the spring of 1955. This is significant in view of the fact that the southward migration last fall was about the heaviest in years. Hunting was excellent last year and should be even better this.

Taking the Canadian duck factory as a whole, the migrations should involve something like double the number of ducks that winged south during the low migration year of 1953. Since that year, the duck population, aided by reasonably favorable rearing conditions, has been making a steady and sometimes surprising recovery.
Robinson visited Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba. He was especially impressed by what he saw at Saskatchewan's Lake Ponnas. This is a huge slough-lake some 175 miles north of Regina, one of the very best duck-producing waters in western Canada. "I have never seen a finer duck-breeding slough. Mallards predominated, but another prominent duck, strange to say, was the baldpate. They were in evidence everywhere . . . It is tragic that the fate of this wonderful duck slough hangs in the balance today. Farmers are pressing the provincial government to drain it and turn it into hay land. These farmers are on the way to making the same dreadful mistake that was made in Minnesota years ago—and, it must be confessed, is still being made."
