It's inconceivable that anything can halt the Mt. Saint Mary's College basketball team from winning its fourth consecutive championship in the Mason-Dixon Conference. Saturday night is the final encounter the Mountmen will have this season and the hurdle isn't insurmountable because they face a mediocre Baltimore U aggregation. Should the Blue and White be victorious tomorrow night they will have established an enviable record... four successive state championships! Let's all be on hand to root the locals to their final 1957 victory Saturday night at Memorial Gym. They really deserve our support.

We hope the present school controversy can be terminated amicably but when such controversies are confronted someone's toes invariably are stepped on. Both sides, for and against, are adamant in their positions and any reversal of opinions doesn't appear to be in the offing. Actually the battle has just commenced. Letters have been sent by both parties to the Board of Education and I imagine the Board has quite a hot potato in its hands. Letters pro and con have been published and several more are on tap but space does not permit publishing them simultaneously. So for the next few weeks there'll be some mighty important and interesting information given out publicly as to the progress of both sides in this present controversial issue. So far three important groups have condemned any consolidation proceedings as are understood to be already planned. The Chamber of Commerce, Loins Club and the Town Council are vigorously and openly opposing the consolidation. At present the only group on record as favoring the movement is the Grange, the balance of the support is coming from individuals. I don't see how it would be possible for any action to be taken immediately as far as moving the school to Thurmont is concerned, for I am under the impression that present facilities at Thurmont are not adequate to accommodate any students from our local school. In all probability a new building would have to be constructed in Thurmont to offset the effects of the consolidation. There's time yet for you to express your opinion publicly by writing in to the local paper, either as an individual or an organization, or talking the matter over in your own local organization. The time is ripe, in my estimation, to settle this issue one way or another so that we may resume our normal way of life and after the matter is settled I do hope there are no hard feelings, regardless of the decision made by the Board of Education.

The weather doesn't indicate it, but it's time to turn our thoughts to the coming baseball season... not playing, but to organizing. There'll be a meeting Sunday afternoon to once again organize the local club and decide who is to run it and what league it will operate in. The baseball club is a public institution and as such you are invited to attend the session and air your views. Usually there is a small band which attends these meetings and who must therefore share the responsibilities for running the club. I think we should take more interest in the baseball club because apparently the days of such organizations are fast waning. Interest has been lagging and also attendance the past decade. Mainly responsible I'd say, because of apathy on the part of the public. Television has cut deeply into the incentive of young players and fans to participate in the sport. It's too easy to watch the professionals on the magic screen—television, on Sunday afternoons. Anyway, if you want to do your part to keep baseball alive in Emmitsburg, be present at Sunday's meeting.

Blue? Down in the dumps? Want to spend an entertaining night out? Well then, tonight's big talent show in the local high school is made to order for you. There'll be talent from several counties and states on hand to entertain you, so be sure to attend the show and

CLAIMS SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION BENEFICIAL

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

It is with much interest that I have been following in the Chronicle the news and letters concerning the proposed consolidation of the Emmitsburg and Thurmont senior high schools.

As a teacher, I am pleased to note that there are parents who, like Mrs. Earl Rice, are facing facts and are considering the education of their children more important than all other factors which may be involved.

Naturally, all of us—whether we pay taxes or whether we don't, whether we have children in school or whether we don't—would like to have for Emmitsburg a first-class high school, fully equipped with the finest facilities and offering well-rounded, modern curricula for our boys and girls.

However, let us be fair with the Board of Education and with ourselves by facing facts. First of all, our school district is bounded by Pennsylvania on two sides and by Carroll County on another side. This fact alone definitely limits the possible enrollment of our local high school. Furthermore, living in a community that is predominantly Catholic, we have also a fine parochial school which draws a large percentage of the school population. Both of these factors point to the fact that the school population from which we draw our enrollment is much smaller than that of Thurmont which is more centrally located in the county and which has no parochial school.

Since these are the facts, it seems to me it is sensible to favor consolidation, even though it may present hardships for those living at a distance from Emmitsburg.

I happened to be in senior high school during the few years that Emmitsburg and Thurmont Senior High Schools were consolidated. There was no school bus running for our convenience in those days. We traveled on the public bus operated by Sperry Co., leaving Emmitsburg at seven o'clock in the morning. Since the bus wanted to meet a train in Thurmont in the evening, we did not start for Emmitsburg until six o'clock. It was a long day, but we felt it was worth it, for we had a much wider choice of subjects than Emmitsburg could have offered.

Graduating classes were smaller in those days. There were 20 some in our class during the junior year, but only seven of us were graduated the following year, three from Thurmont, one from Sabillasville, and three from Emmitsburg.

May I use the high school in which I am teaching at the present time as an example of consolidation at work? It is located on the outskirts of Hereford, a town smaller than Emmitsburg, but it is centrally located, having feeder schools in four directions, so that the enrollment is 1022. Classes are divided homogeneously, and a rich curricula is offered to the rural boys and girls.

Last year I worked during three periods each day with the 7-A Class in the Core Program. After completing a unit on "My American Heritage," my pupils wrote, as a class project, "The American Pupil's Creed" which we were very happy to have published in the February 1957 issue of the Journal of the National Education Assn.

I am enclosing a copy, for it seems to me it is a good creed for all of us to consider whether we be pupils, parents, or teachers. The American Pupil's Creed "I believe in the schools of the United States of America and in the democratic principles for which they stand; schools which our forefathers devoted their lives to establish so that education might be free for every boy and girl in our land; schools in which, under the guidance of a counselor trained to advise wisely, each pupil may choose his course of study and prepare for a vocation of his preference; schools which have grown and must continue to grow thru the years to meet the needs of an ever-changing civilization.

"I therefore, believe it is my duty as an American student to attend school regularly unless I am ill; to cooperate with my teachers and fellow-students; to use my time and energy wisely; to participate in democratic discussions; to obey and help to enforce the rules and regulations of my school; to develop my interests, ideals, habits, skills, and powers in the right way so that I may become a worthy member of the United States of America, which offers me, as part of my American heritage, a better chance for an education than any other country in the world."

Important Assignment

Rev. Fr. Salvator M. Burgio, C.M., well-known in Emmitsburg as the vice postulator for the Cause of Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton, foundress of the Sisters of Charity in America, has been named national director for the Cause of Canonization of Pope Pius IX, the Pope who proclaimed the dogma of the Immaculate Conception in 1854.

The 19-century Pope's Cause was begun with the "informative process" by the vicariate of the State of Vatican City where he died. The apostolic process, the second step, began in July, 1956. It entailed the investigation of Pius IX's reputation for sanctity and of the required miracles. National headquarters for the Cause will be in Emmitsburg.

The selection of the Vincentian priest to further the Cause of the Pope in America is the outcome of many years of devotion to the study of liturgical and canonization procedures. Long before he became associated intimately with the actual Causes of Canonization Father Burgio had participated as an assistant to the papal master of ceremonies in more than 10 canonizations of various saints in Rome and many beatifications. In this manner he was able to study at first-hand the elaborate and detailed ceremonies.

The local priest studied canonization procedures under the late Jesuit authority, Rev. Fr. John Wynne, S.J., and received the counsel of Carlo Cardinal Salotti, prefect of the Sacred Congregation of Rites in Rome. Rev. Fr. Burgio has been consulted from time to time in connection with his experience with the formalities of canonizations in the Catholic Church and for his knowledge of liturgical procedures.

The Catholic Church in America is indebted to Pius IX for naming the first American cardinal, John McCloskey who was educated at Mt. St. Mary's Seminary. Pope Pius IX established the North American College in Rome and created no less than 50 dioceses in the United States.

The pontificate of Pius X was the longest in the history of the Church from 1846-1878. The Pope, who grew up in the political unrest of the Napoleonic era, was buried in the Chapel of San Lorenzo. His body was exhumed last fall. The vestments had disintegrated and his body was re-clothed with the vestments of Pope Pius XII.

Father Burgio has been vice postulator of Mother Seton's Cause since 1939 and has his headquarters in the Knights of Columbus building here. An honorary member of the Academy of Sacred Liturgy in Rome, he served as conclavist to His Eminence the late Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia, at the election of the present Pope in February, 1939. He celebrated his silver jubilee as a priest in May of 1952. Father Burgio was seriously ill during most of his seminary life and was ordained by special papal dispensation in 1927.

Barber Transfers To Frederick

The four-chair shop includes a horse-chair for children and is considered one of the most modern in the State.

Mount Leads Conference

Nothing seems able to deter the Mt. St. Mary's College basketball team in its quest for a record-shattering fourth straight championship in the Mason-Dixon Conference.

Coach Jim Phelan's Mountaineers during the past week mopped up another three opponents among which were powerful Catholic U of Washington and the formidable St. Francis of Loretto, Pa. cagers. If the Phelan men can hurdle a mediocre Baltimore U team tomorrow night in Emmitsburg they will have achieved their record-breaking goal because the encounter is the final of the regular playing season.

Erupting in the second half for 64 points after being held to a 44-40 half-time lead, the Mount cagers ran rough-shod over Western Maryland last Thursday evening at Westminster, 108-77 for its eighth straight triumph. Jack Sullivan, fourth in the nation's small college scorers, poured 39 points through the hoops. The Blue and White got off to a 12-3 lead then sagged as the Terrors knotted the score at 16-16 after wards to gain a 44-40 lead at intermission.

Phelan's outfit got rolling in the second half and after five minutes piled up a 72-53 lead after which there was no doubt as to the outcome.

Down Catholic U Saturday Sullivan rammed through 32 points in leading the Mountmen to an 85-68 victory over Catholic U here last Saturday afternoon to bring his collegiate career output to 2,128 points. The Maryland record is 2,154 which was established by Jim Lacy of Loyola. Sullivan has 581 points for this season alone. The Mountaineers, held to a 34-34 deadlock at half-time, broke the contest wide open in the second period when Sullivan garnered 24 of his total points.

The triumph was the ninth in a row for the Mason-Dixon Conference leaders.

Jack Sullivan rammed through 44 points against St. Francis of Loretto here Monday night to establish a new Maryland state collegiate scoring record while he led the Mountaineers to a 96-81 victory.

Sullivan now has a total of 2,172 points for his four-year career, not counting Wednesday evening's figures. The former mark of 2,154 points was set by Lacy of Loyola eight years ago. The Mountie ace has compiled his record in 89 games as compared to Lacy's 119. Sullivan now has 615 points for the season and needs but 79 to tie his own record of 694 for one campaign set two years ago. He is averaging 32.3 points per game which puts him in a position to break another state record set by Nick Scallion of Washington College in 1951, when he averaged 26.9.

In winning their tenth consecutive game the Mounties have a season log of 15-5. The Mountaineers jumped out front early and at intermission were on top 19-13. A trio of goals by Sullivan gave the locals their biggest advantage at 71-46 early in the last half. St. Francis, a previous conqueror of the Mounties, rallied mildly in the late stanza but Sullivan and Jack Marshall came through with goals to stave off the attempt.

The Blue and White mastered Washington College Wednesday night on the latter's court, 87-59. The final league affair will be played here in Emmitsburg Saturday evening when the Mount engages Baltimore University.

The pair was arrested Sunday when according to Pennsylvania police, they attempted to steal a mobile compressor from the Gingle quarry near Fairfield. C. of C. Opposes School Consolidation

The Emmitsburg Chamber of Commerce vigorously opposes any plans to consolidate the local public school with that of Thurmont it was decided at the regular monthly meeting of that group held Monday night in the Fire Hall. President Curtis R. Bucher presided over the meeting.

The Chamber will send letters to the Frederick County Board of Education and the County Commissioners advising them of its stand on the issue and also requesting that additional courses be added to the local high school giving it a more balanced curriculum and an accreditation sufficient to permit its graduates to enter any college.

Arthur Elder gave a report on a recent meeting with the State Roads Commission concerning the proposed by-pass plans for Emmitsburg. He and Cloyd W. Seiss and President Bucher visited the Commission as a representative committee of the Chamber recently in the Commission's Baltimore offices. Plans were discussed for keeping the present U. S. Route 15 status quo and naming the proposed by-pass route as alternate Route 15. A more thorough study of this plan is being made and later action on the matter is planned.

A letter requesting information about the town was received from a children's wear factory and the letter was ordered answered. The candidacy of Robert Kelly of West Virginia for president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce was announced by a letter. The matter was referred to Col. Thomas J. Frailey, the group's delegate to the national convention and election which is held in Washington, D. C. in April. A letter from the Rawhill Publishing Co. was received and requested names of employees in various local industry. Information regarding the school tax structure of the nation was referred to a committee.

The action of the Chamber pertaining to the school consolidation, coincided with that of the Lions Club and Town Council which are protesting any school consolidation plans for this area. The $5 draw prize was won by Arthur Elder.

NEAR HOME ALARM RECEIVERS

HOME ALARM which could be plugged into an ordinary electric socket to sound a buzzer or bell and light signal of approaching air attack, tornado or other natural disaster is shown in three small units (top level) and larger versions (second level). Also shown are clock and radio which could be activated by the National Emergency Alarm Repeater (NEAR). These alarms are presently being developed under contract to the Federal Civil Defense Administration. NEAR would be triggered by a signal over the nation's power lines to provide an alarm inside homes, where residents might be asleep or otherwise not hear present siren alarms. Civil defense Conelrad radio would then provide survival details.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Read Romans 5:1-11
I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us. (Romans 8:18.)

One evening three of us patients were sitting and idly chatting. One was a communist, another a libertine, and I a Christian. As usual the talk came around to sickness. We had all been in this leprosarium for many years. Besides, we were in the tuberculosis ward.

Up to a few days before, another of the patients seemed to be recovering, but he suddenly had a setback and died. On investigation it was discovered that he had somehow contracted meningitis. For some time we sat in silence, with bowed heads. Each of us recognized the seriousness of life and death.

In Christ alone we can find peace of heart and the hope of eternal life. But what about my two friends? They did not know the joy of salvation or have the assurance of eternal life. I prayed that my friends might believe in Christ and know the grace of God in all its fullness.

Prayer
Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for the hope of salvation. What a magnificent salvation! Through the living Word may we be delivered from sin and the fear of death. Grant to us joy in the faith; through Jesus Christ, Thy Son. Amen.
Thought For The Day
Even though our sufferings be doubles, we cannot be moved from our joy in Christ.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By U. S. Congressman DeWitt S. Hyde

Washington, D. C.—My recent trip to Europe, for the purpose of obtaining current information on the Hungarian refugee program to be used in consideration of legislation on this subject, proved enlightening. Specifically, I investigated our security measures and sought information on the exact nature of the persons who have been and are fleeing from Hungary. I was able to get some ideas for the use of the House Immigration Committee on the proportion of these people who are actually refugees fleeing in fear of danger to their lives or their personal freedom.

On our trip we visited Vienna and Berlin. I talked with our diplomatic representatives and security people, the representatives of the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration, the Immigration authorities, the Red Cross, and Austrian citizens with no official positions.

In Berlin, I was impressed with the thoroughness of the examination given by the Germans. Of course, their problem, in many respects, is easier than ours since they are Germans dealing with Germans.

In spite of the difficulties faced by our examiners in screening the Hungarian refugees, they are doing an excellent job. It does not appear that many real Communists are getting through. It is also important to note that many of the early arrivals who were obviously Communists or Communist sympathizers return to Hungary. Many of those who remain in the refugee camps are spotted by other refugees. Our security officials in Hungary believe that this is after all the best way of detecting the Communist.

From all the information we could gather from every source, it must be concluded that a large number of persons who have fled Hungary into Austria are not legitimate refugees. A large proportion of them are opportunists taking advantage of this situation to fulfill a long-held ambition to get to the United States. I believe a recent disturbance in England among the Hungarian refugees illustrates this attitude. Some 3,000 complained that they were misled in coming to Britain from Austria. They contended that it would be a transit point for them to the United States. It seems to me that if these persons were legitimate refugees fleeing in fear of their lives they would welcome any decent pace of refuge.

We also found that a large number of people coming over are illiterate and in extremely poor health. By poor health I do not mean merely the result of the ravages of the revolution and the hardship of their flight. Many of these people are obviously persons who have been in bad health for many years, and some must have been inmates of mental institutions. Quite a few of the people coming across the border recently possess Hungarian passports. Nearly all of these who have such passports are very old people, or people unfit for work because of poor health.

Many of the refugees are reporting that they expect another outbreak sometime in the Spring. There is good reason to suspect hostile outbreaks in other areas. It would appear well to consider how we could handle another situation should it arise in the future.

I believe that the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration is the proper agency to handle this problem on a permanent basis. This is the international organization in which 28 nations are cooperating in the movement of people from overpopulated and underdeveloped areas into countries which need and can absorb people. New life should be breathed into I.C.E.M. Every effort should be made to increase more use of it and to make larger financial contributions to it.

I have introduced two bills to provide for improved legal services in the Armed Services. One bill amends the U. S. Code to provide that the Judge Advocate General and the Surgeon General are entitled to rank, pay, and allowances of a lieutenant general while in service with the Armed Services. The other bill makes provisions for a legal corps similar to the medical corps in the various services with similar rank and pay.

CCC Repayment Loan Date Set

CCC Wheat Loan Repayment Date Announced
Maryland farmers who have 1956 crop wheat under loan and stored in commercial warehouses are being notified of the date by which the loan must be repaid if they wish to retain possession of the grain. The repayment and loan maturity date for wheat is February 28, 1957, according to Leonard C. Burns, Chairman of the Maryland State Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Growers who wish to repay their loans must have the necessary funds in the mail on or before maturity date of February 28, 1957. In instances where the current local market price is above the loan plus carrying charges, growers are urged to redeem their wheat since it will be to their financial advantage to do so. In cases where growers do not redeem their wheat the warehouse receipts will be turned over to Commodity Credit Corporation. If the market value of the wheat has gone above the value of the loan plus interest and charges the differences will be paid to the producer by CCC.

The committee makes it clear that the above applies only to wheat under CCC loan and stored in public warehouses. It does not apply to wheat stored on the farm or to grain under purchase agreement. He explains that growers of wheat stored on the farm usually have time after maturity of the loan in which to redeem their grain. This is the period when arrangements are being made for the necessary storage space for the grain taken over and for getting delivery instructions to the grower.

De-beaking in 3,000 one-day old chicks resulted in an improvement in feathering but not in a significant increase in body weight or feed efficiency. Tipping beaks reduces feather picking almost as much as more drastic de-beaking.

What Makes Progress? Visitors from other countries often stand in awe when they see the widespread evidence of America's great production.

HOME FURNISHINGS Through the Ages PRIMEVAL MAN FIRST LOUNGED IN THE "LIVING ROOM" ON DRIED GRASS AND ANIMAL SKINS... TODAY, USING MODERN PATTERNS OF COLORFUL, DURABLE VINYL FABRICS, FAMED INTERNATIONAL DESIGNER JENS OLOM (I.O.A.) HAS CREATED THE NEWEST IN SOFA BEDS... IN THE 17TH CENTURY IT WAS A FASHION TO RECEIVE GUESTS WHILE LYING IN BED... THIS STREAM-LINED, FUNCTIONAL PIECE CONVERTS ANY LIVING ROOM, DEN OR PLAYROOM INTO A GUEST ROOM AT THE FLICK OF A FINGER.

When told that this unparalleled production results from our unique economic system, they still do not understand how this is possible.

There are five accelerators built into our production system which are not found in combination and in like measure anywhere else in the world. It is important that every citizen know what these five factors are, so they can be properly appreciated and protected. They are: 1. Freedom to work; 2. Freedom to dream; 3. Freedom to compete; 4. Freedom to advance; and 5. Freedom to invest.

For Top Efficiency Our freedom to choose our occupation makes it possible for the American to enjoy his work, to work at top efficiency and thus produce more per man hour of work. Productivity means production per worker.

When the American finds the occupation he likes, he is free to dream and to try to make his dreams come true. Thomas Edison tinkered with everything and he constantly dreamed of new things to create. Some of Edison's inventions have been priceless contributions to the advancing welfare of American citizens.

When a person is free to dream dreams, and free to make his dreams come true, he encounters in America a third great stimulating factor: competition. He may dream up a new kind of farm tractor which performs amazing feats. But anybody else can make tractors too.

Many of the present-day industrial leaders came up through the ranks of employees. They were ambitious, industrious, enterprising — and free to work for advancement. American competition, along with our freedom to advance, has developed the finest industrial and business management in the world.

The final factor in America's record-breaking economic progress is the freedom to invest under private ownership. In industry, investment is the secret of productivity. For a hundred years there has been constant advancement in industrial machines until today we have "automation."

We should be reminded that the key word in each of the five accelerators of our great production is "freedom." Take freedom from any phase of our economic system and our progress would stall.

Telephone Official Heads Cancer Drive

Howard M. Smith, Out State Division Commercial Manager, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company has accepted the Vice Chairmanship of the counties for the 1957 fund raising campaign for the Maryland Division, American Cancer Society.

Mr. Smith was born in Baltimore, Maryland. He was educated in the Baltimore Public Schools and graduated from the Forest Park High School. He received his Bachelor of Science Degree from Johns Hopkins University in 1934 and later studied law at the University of Baltimore.

Mr. Smith's previous association with the Society will prove to be most valuable during the coming campaign.

Mr. Smith said that the wonderful cooperation received from the counties last year was the determining factor in his acceptance of the position for the 1957 crusade. Mr. Smith explained that the outstanding progress made in the fight against cancer in the past year will undoubtedly spur the county volunteers to greater enthusiasm in seeking the all-out support of the public in the continuing fight to conquer this disease.

Adults Are Being Urged To Receive Polio Vaccine Inoculations

Poliomyelitis—the question Of Ages At Greatest Risk

Dr. J. Edmund Bradley, Chairman of the Polio Vaccination Committee of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty, said today that the current interest in stepping up the tempo of inoculations for poliomyelitis has raised the question as to the relative importance of protection among individuals over 20 years as compared to those under twenty.

In considering this question we must weigh two factors: first the numerical risk of contracting the paralytic form of the disease, and second the severity of the disease in relation to age of patient. Formerly poliomyelitis almost exclusively attacked young children—hence the name "infantile paralysis." In recent years in the United States and also in other countries where modern sanitary measures have been well developed there has been a notable upward shift in age selection. A difference in age selection has also been noted between urban and rural areas, there being a definite trend toward a higher average age of those attacked in rural districts. This means then that we would expect more cases among young adults in the counties of Maryland than in Baltimore City. Since the Health Department keeps accurate figures on this disease, the facts in Maryland can speak for themselves.

During the past 5 year period (1952-1956 inclusive) there has been a total of 919 paralytic cases of poliomyelitis in Maryland. Two hundred and twenty-nine (229) or exactly 25% of these have been in individuals over 20 years of age.

Among this group of 919 persons there was a total of 66 fatalities. Twenty-eight of these were over 20 years of age giving a case fatality rate of 12.2 (number of deaths per 100 cases). Thirty-eight of the deaths were under 20 years, a case fatality rate of 5.5 or less than half that for the young adult group. If one further examines the 38 deaths who were under 20 years, it may be seen that the majority of them were in their late teens. Thus it is clear that the severity of the disease tends to be far greater in the older age groups. This is further supported by the fact that the majority of cases who are very severely affected in all four extremities and who must be treated in respirators are also over 20 years of age or are in their late teens. It would seem then that this particular disease although less of a menace to older individuals in terms of numbers affected, is very much a real threat when measured in terms of severity.

The problem among young adults was dramatically illustrated in the sharp outbreak which occurred last summer in the small community of St. Michaels. Of the five cases which were reported in rapid succession—all were very severe; four were over 20 and the fifth who died was a 17 year old girl. Three of the four who lived were in respirators for long periods and have considerable residual paralysis. It is believed that the absence of paralytic cases in young children in this outbreak was at least in part due to the substantial protection which they had received from the vaccine.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

In the field of light-tackle fishing, no other activity compares to the thrill of the gentle pickup and the spectacular aerial display of a tarpon as it leaps clear of the water, throwing the glistening spray high. Robert D. Hall, Salt Water Fishing Editor of Sports Afield magazine, and an outstanding authority in the field, claims that it is these leaps which make an above-average angler out of the guy who boats one fish out of three.

The peak of the tarpon fishing season along the west coast of Florida, one of the best areas for this fighting silver fish, is usually between May 15 and June 15. This is particularly true in the section around Boca Grande. However, a few appear as early as January, if the temperature of the water is to their liking.

Tarpon are rarely found in any large numbers on our eastern coast. However, says Bob, there are good indications that as the sea becomes warmer these tropical game fish may venture farther north.

On the north side of Boca Grande Pass, off Gasparella Island, the water will vary in depth from 3 to 65 feet. Most of the fishing done in the Pass is by drifting with either a semi-surface bait or one fished just above the coral bottom. If you allow the six-ounce sinker to drag, you will quickly become fouled on the rough bottom, or a grouper will seize the bait and head for some hole or crevice.

When using mitten minnows for bait, Bob points out, the usual procedure is to put the 5/0 Sobey hook through the back of the minnow just below the dorsal fin. The hook is small enough so that it does not kill the bait, and, because of its weight, the bait will swim a considerable length of the time before it becomes necessary to replace it. A 15-foot No. 8 stainless steel wire leader is attached to the needle-eyed hook, and for top fishing one or two clincher-type sinkers are fastened on the upper end of the leader, where the line is attached to the swivel.

If it becomes necessary to fish deep, then a six or eight ounce sinker is tied on the swivel and leader with cotton thread. When a tarpon feels the strike a shake of its head will generally break the sinker free below the surface of the water. Then the sinker will usually fly through the air like a bullet. Fortunately this rarely happens with the experienced guides, for they know just how dangerous this can be.

The battle that a tarpon will give when hooked with light tackle is so spectacular that most sportsmen will rarely kill the fish. To release a fish the wire leader is cut near the hook and the needle-eyed hook is backed out.

INCOME TAX FACTS No. 4

Claim All Exemptions for Yourself and Dependents

(This is one of a series of articles on federal income tax filing. These articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Accountants, and the Maryland Society of Certified Public Accountants in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service.)

Many people overpay their taxes because they cheat themselves on their personal exemptions.

Here is how to count your exemptions (each one takes $600 off your taxable income):

One exemption for yourself, two if you are 65 or over, two if you are blind, three if you are both 65 and blind. The same applies to your husband or wife.

If your husband or wife died during 1956 you can still file a joint return claiming the exemptions, including those for age or blindness, to which the deceased would have been entitled at the time of death.

Who Qualifies

One exemption of $600 can be taken for each person who fits the definition of a dependent. This $600 is not doubled for age or blindness, however, as in the case of your personal exemption.

To count for an exemption, the dependent must:

- (1) Have less than $600 gross income for 1956 (except that this does not apply to your child if he is under 19 or is a full-time student).
- (2) Have received more than half of his support from you, unless you file a Multiple Support Agreement (see below).
- (3) Not file a joint return.
- (4) Be either a citizen of the U. S. or a resident of the U. S., Canada, Mexico, Canal Zone, Panama and in some cases, a service-man's child living in the Philippines.
- (5) Live with you (absence while attending school does not interfere) or be a close relative as defined in the instruction book or be a cousin receiving institutional care for a mental or physical disability who had lived with you before going to the institution.

Multiple Support Agreements

If you shared with others in the support of a dependent, but none of you provided more than half the support, you may still be able to arrange among you for one of the group to have the $600 exemption. You might agree, for example, to take turns in having the exemption from year to year.

The one who claims the exemption must have contributed more than 10 percent of the support, and he must be a member of a group who altogether provided more than half support, and that person must have been entitled to claim that dependent except for the requirement of providing more than half support.

In order for one of the group to have the exemption all other members of the group who contributed more than 10 per cent must sign declarations that they will not claim the dependent. The Internal Revenue Service provides Form 2120 (Multiple Support Agreement) for this purpose.

Children and Disabled Dependents

There is a deduction of as much as $600 for care of children under 12 while the breadwinner works. This child-care deduction is available to mothers, widowers, divorced and legally separated persons, who are allowed to deduct expenses paid to someone other than a dependent for the care of a son, daughter, stepson or stepdaughter under the age limit. This regulation also applies to any dependent of any age who is mentally or physically incapacitated.

A working wife is entitled to this deduction if her husband is physically or mentally incapable of providing support. Where the husband is not disabled, the working wife may also take the child-care deduction only if a joint return is filed, and the $600 limit must be reduced by the amount of the couple's gross income exceeds $4500. It should be kept in mind that you can't take this deduction if you take the standard 10 percent deduction.

The instruction book which comes with your tax form gives further information. Help is also available by telephone or at offices of the Internal Revenue Service. The Revenue Service urges you to consult a properly qualified advisor if you decide to seek outside help.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Insurance Stocks

Babson Park, Mass., Feb. 21 —I have recently been quoted as follows: "I believe if Jesus were here today, instead of being a carpenter, he would be an insurance agent." My explanation of this is that I believe the insurance business is a clear illustration of applied Christianity. If someone's home burns, the company does not usually use its capital to pay the unfortunate person. The insurance is paid from premiums contributed by the rest of us whose houses have not burned. If one of us dies and the wife receives insurance for $20,000, the rest of us, through our premiums, pay the wife these much-needed funds. Let me now give you some ideas as to my thoughts on insurance in general.

Different Kinds Of Insurance

The simplest insurance is life insurance. On these life company stock I was very bullish a few years ago when they were cheap; but since then they have increased threefold in price and, hence, are not so attractive. The health, accident, and automobile company stocks have never appealed to me; but some are OK. The surety and bonding companies I know nothing about. The fire insurance companies I have studied for years and have invested considerable money therein.

Many Disagree With Me

The investment trusts have been doing considerable selling of insurance stocks, especially those of the fire insurance companies. They feel that the present "agency system" is becoming obsolete. There may be radical changes in the selling organizations of the fire insurance stock companies; but their executives do not now admit it.

Many investors also fear the mutual stock fire companies. Of course, there are no stockholders in the mutual life companies; but certain stock fire insurance companies use a mutual system for premiums. They offer to save the buyer of insurance a good part of the commission now going to the agent. My own feeling is there will always be a field for both classes, each one keeping the other on its toes.

Diversification And Management

The sensible investor will classify fire insurance companies with the best investment trusts. By buying such fire insurance stocks an investor gets the advantage of the dividends and coupons paid on the securities held by the insurance company and, in addition, profits, if any, from the fire insurance business. This gives investors diversification of securities plus a cut in the fire insurance business. Can any mutual investment trust match this combination?

In addition to diversification, investors in fire insurance stocks have the advantage of excellent management. Fire insurance companies employ experts for the selection of their securities, which are also most carefully watched by an investment committee. The record of the investment holdings of these companies is very commendable.

The Premium Cycle

Over a period of years the income from fire insurance stocks has been excellent. There are cases, such as that of the Home Insurance Company where this record extends over one hundred years. There is, however, a cycle in the industry which I should mention. There will be a period of heavy losses and low profits, after which the companies get permission from the State Commissions to raise their premium rates. Then follows a period of good profits. After a few years, losses climb again, but the companies will again be allowed to increase premiums. In the long run, the State Commissions are fair with insurance companies and allow them a reasonable average profit. Those who buy these stocks and consistently hold them should have safety, diversification, and good management, resulting over a long period in both capital gains and a fair income.

In addition, corporations such as the Gamewell Company are constantly at work installing fire alarms, sprinkler systems, and other means of fire protection. Legislatures are constantly passing laws forcing fireproof construction. Dangerous slums which are breeders of fires are being constantly torn down. All of this works to the advantage of the insurance companies, their policyholders, and their stockholders. Just now the industry is in a period of heavy losses and most fire insurance stocks can be bought for much less than their book value. Hence, this seems to be the right time to buy good fire insurance stocks.

Milk Checks Total Almost Two Million Dollars

Milk checks totalling $1,800,000 and representing a price of $5.02 per hundredweight, 3.5% butterfat basis, for January's milk were mailed this week by the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. to its 2,200 dairy farmer members in Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia. The $5.02 represents a 28 cent increase over January 1956 and 39 cents over January 1955.

Coincidental with the checks, W. P. Sadler, Manager of the Cooperative, sent notices of the annual meeting of the organization, to be held at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore on Saturday, February 23rd.

The meeting will open with a closed business session at 10:00 A. M. at which reports of the past year's operations and its highlights will be given by Mr. Sadler and by MCMPP President Edgar G. Emrich, of Emmitsburg.

The business will be followed by a luncheon, to which a number of guests are invited. This will be featured by a talk by James E. Gheen, of New York City. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Glee Club, well known in musical circles, will sing.

Commenting on the year, Mr. Sadler said: "It has been an important one for us from every point of view and I believe that activities which have been initiated this year will bring increased revenue to all dairy farmers in the Baltimore milk shed for years to come. We already see the betterment in price brought on through our activities. The last two months of 1956 brought much better prices than those of 1955 and January checks show continued improvement over a year ago, and two years ago.

"Activities and negotiations now under way should work towards still further improvement in returns; the warehouse at Eldersburg which is nearing completion, the Hauling Division set up last January—as these gain headway in their operations the non-profit Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. should gain even greater income for its members."

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS

From The Bible

For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your Heavenly Father will also forgive you. —(St. Matthew 6, 14.)

If we hold grudges, harbor resentment which builds up into bitter hatred, if we are constantly and destructively critical of those around us, we indeed build an insurmountable wall between ourselves and God and our prayers will be in vain. By our unforgetting, we create our own hell on earth.

According to one estimate, 400 new uses for petroleum chemicals are being found every year.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

With Chairman Wright Patman of House Small Business Committee determined to give issue wide publicity, cooperative advertising allowances will figure extensively in news.

Federal Trade Commission is taking action against large food chain on grounds it solicited and received substantial cooperative advertising allowances not available to competitors.

Government C. W. Harder also seeks to include further charge firm did not spend all cooperative advertising money received for advertising, but diverted it for other purposes. It is alleged firm received $216,770 from 278 suppliers; only used fraction for advertising.

This situation is not particularly new. Ten years ago when Justice Dept. won both civil and criminal anti-trust actions against nation's largest chain, evidence showed in just one year a profit of a million dollars was made on cooperative advertising funds collected, but not used.

Entire question of cooperative advertising is complicated.

Briefly, cooperative advertising works like this. A packer or manufacturer will allow the retailer to spend a certain percentage of his purchases, for example 5% or else a flat per case allowance such as 25 cents per case, to be spent in advertising the brand in the retailer's own local level advertising. Theoretically, the retailer presents to the manufacturer proof of advertising and other evidence to substantiate the allowance.

It has long been recognized even this system discriminates against small non-advertising grocer, but as long as every cent of advertising allowance collected is actually spent, it has been felt perhaps little harm is done.

But situation has gotten out of control. For example, a packer selling to 50,000 or more retailers across nation cannot afford the vast accounting procedures necessary to keep accurate control.

In addition, even the bravest manufacturer hesitates to infer to huge chain customers that their claims for cooperative advertising allowance refunds appear fraudulent.

So practice has developed of some favored customers receiving cooperative advertising money for which no value is received. Thus in many instances, cooperative advertising allowances become extra special discounts used to boost profits, or undersell competitors.

To most independent dealers, cooperative allowances do not mean much. For example, if the allowance is 25c per case, and normal movement is 10 cases per month, it is hardly worth the bookkeeping expense to make claim for the $2.50.

But on the same basis, in a 1000 store operation, this can total $2,500 per month. Multiply this by a large share of the 4000 items stocked in a medium sized store, and it is easy to see that fraudulent use of cooperative advertising allowances can become a major profit item.

This is the background.

What was intended as legitimate merchandising has been turned into a multi-million-dollar racket to disadvantage of independent business. It is on this basis a great deal will come out of Congress on subject of cooperative advertising in weeks and months ahead.

License Applications Are Mailed

The Dept. of Motor Vehicles announced that applications for 1957-58 license plates for passenger cars and motorcycles were mailed to owners Thursday. The new plates will be placed on sale at the department beginning Monday, Feb. 25, and may be displayed on and after Mar. 1, according to law.

Owners are urged to apply through the mail for their new plates as soon as they receive their applications, thus avoiding the inconvenience of waiting in line. A self-addressed envelope will accompany the application for convenience in returning the application to the department. The new 1957-58 license plates cannot be displayed until Mar. 1.

If the address on the application is, for any reason, incorrect, the complete correct address should be inserted in the space provided for that purpose. All passenger car and motorcycle plates will expire at midnight, Mar. 31, and owners are requested to mail their applications for new plates without delay. Applications for trucks and other classes of motor vehicles will be mailed about Mar. 29.

Grange's Open House Affair Is Well-Attended

Open house was held by the Emmitsburg Grange Wednesday evening in the Lutheran parish hall, Master Harry Swomley presiding with 125 members and guests in attendance.

Master Swomley acknowledged the visiting county and state officers present. They were Tobias Zimmerman, past Pomona master; Mr. Russell Ford, assistant to state master; William Burrall, Pomona master; Robert Meunier, state youth chairman; Howard Quinn, county deputy; Mrs. Howard Quinn, state juvenile matron; Mr. Warren, Pomona lecturer; Maurice Meunier, past Pomona master of Carroll County.

Mrs. Clara Harner, secretary, gave a brief history of the Emmitsburg Grange since its origin. Richard Florence, past master, spoke on what the Grange stands for, not only on a local level, but also on a county, state and national level.

A panel discussion was held with a panel consisting of Howard Quinn, New Market; Tobias Zimmerman, Ballenger; William Burrall, New Market; Robert Meunier, Harney, and Russell Ford of Forest Hill. Edgar Emrich acted as moderator. Each member of the panel gave a brief resume of what the Grange has meant to him.

A comedy skit, "Henry's Mail Order Wife," was presented with Mr. and Mrs. George Martin, John Baumgardner, Clara Harner, Bernard Welty and Richard Florence in the cast.

Series Of Plays Planned For Catholic Schools

Donald J. Waters, M.F.A., moderator of the Dramatic Club at St. Joseph College, Emmitsburg, recently announced plans for a One-act Play Festival for Catholic high schools in the state of Maryland, the District of Columbia, and southeastern Pennsylvania, to be held on the college campus on Saturday, Apr. 27.

For this activity, the first of its kind in the history of the Dramatic Club, a special program is being formulated by which six to eight plays will be produced throughout the course of the day. Each production will be followed by a critique given by a competent judge. As a member of the National Catholic Theater Conference, the club will use the NCTC rating chart which will be submitted to the individual directors of the plays and according to which plays will be judged for interpretation, direction, and production.

The purpose of this activity is to encourage good theater in the Catholic high schools of the area and to provide dramatic club members with an opportunity for participation in the work of the NCTC. Mr. Waters is the Maryland area representative to the NCTC.

Student members of the campus Dramatic Club will assist and supervise the production activities of the visiting schools under the general chairmanship of Miss Joan Stovick of Claymont, Del., club president.

Allen Bouey, local bar keep and veteran tells this one: A very military major at an overseas post was discussing the program with a troupe of show girls sent out to entertain the men. "And," said the major, "at 1700 hours if you like, you girls can mess with the enlisted men." "Sure," answered a vivacious blonde, "but we'll have to get something to eat first!"
