Every once and a while my attention is drawn to some local organization which more or less is becoming decadent. I mean this in the sense that interest seems to be lacking and membership has fallen off and the organization I have in mind is our local Chamber of Commerce which was organized about eight years ago. At that time enthusiasm was high and the group enjoyed a membership of around 80. Today this figure has dwindled to a mere 18. I can't understand the apathy on the part of local citizens towards having an active Chamber of Commerce in their town. This group should be the guiding light of the community and spearhead any and all movements for the improvement or expansion of the town. I don't condemn the officers of the organization, they are fighting a losing battle to keep existing but can obtain no cooperation from the public. When the group was originated nearly a decade ago it was thought that by now the town would be booming with new industries. We all are aware that this did not transpire but through no fault of the Chamber. It did produce several beneficial affairs, Old Home Week and the Bi-Centennial, and held a carnival which netted $2000 which was turned over to the Memorial Hall Assn. However the Bi-Centennial made a dead duck of the Memorial Hall Assn. by bankrupting it so we are no farther ahead than we were 10 years ago. No new industries, no memorial hall, no swimming pool, just about no nothing in plain words.

All this is no legitimate reason for disbanding the Chamber of Commerce. It will be needed more sorely than ever before when the new highway by-passes us. It is common knowledge that our service stations, liquor stores, restaurants and many other businesses will feel the effects of the by-pass. Signs will have to be erected drawing the tourist's attention to what we have here and just who is to do all this? The town must be advertised more heavily than ever before and new industries and businesses must be persuaded to locate here to offset any losses we might sustain by the by-pass. All one has to do is to talk to neighboring town merchants and they'll tell you about the present set-up. Many were of the attitude that they had no reason to belong to the Chamber because they were not businessmen. This is foolish. The membership is open to anyone. If you are interested in the welfare and improvement of your community you can join the organization, and you should. The annual dues are only $10 and out of this amount you receive a nice banquet once or twice a year, so you are actually spending a very small sum to help better your community, possibly $5 a year. Won't you think it over folks, and mail your check to the treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce.

A well-known local fisherman came home last week, a victim of that well-known tale they repeat about fisherman. Wet pants and no fish. That's exactly what happened to Honpot, I hear by the grapevine. Seems Honpot was one of a group fishing on the bay. There were two boatloads side by side and when nothing was cooking in one boat Honpot decided to change his luck by changing boats. The two pulled alongside each other and just as he (Honpot) had one foot in each boat, some pals decided to do the spread, with the cooperation of a few heavy waves. I don't think it necessary to tell you the results but you can refer to the first part of this paragraph and you'll know what I mean.

It seems to be a generally conceded opinion that no opposition will develop to Emmittsburg's passing of a law to authorize the borrowing of more money by our Town Council. The ordinance has been advertised a number of weeks and to date no opposition has developed, and for this we can all be thankful, because if an adverse attitude developed it would cost the town better than $100,000 more as we would lose our Federal and State grants of $130,000 and the Health Dept. would make us install additional sewerage facilities anyway.

Cashtown Lambasts Locals 14-4

Cashtown invaded Emmittsburg Sunday and left town with a 14-4 victory over our local nine. Things looked good for the "Crumbs" through five innings as they were leading by a 3-2 score. In the sixth, Cashtown scored five times after two were out when the visitors went ahead 5-3 on a hit batsman, a sacrifice and an error. J. Joy, local pitcher, with two out and two men on, forced Rohrbach to pop up to the second baseman, who dropped the ball for an error which scored the sixth run. Cashtown then scored once more to run the score to 7-3, Joy was then relieved by Warthen who put out the fire. This was all Cashtown needed but the roof caved in again in the next inning, when they scored four more runs and for the total of 14, added three more in the ninth. The locals could only manage to score once more in the seventh. Don Little and Ted Topper led the hitting for the locals, Little poling three for five and Topper, two for three. The locals left nine men stranded, time after time that big hit could not be produced. Cashtown collected eight hits to the local's seven.

Littlestown handed Fairfield its first defeat of the season Tuesday night, by a score of 3-2 at Littlestown.

Taneytown and Blue Ridge Summit remained in their tie for second place in the Pen-Mar League by gaining victories on Sunday. Weaver, Taneytown hurler, limited Union Bridge to five hits while his teammates pounded out 10 in gaining a 5-1 decision at Union Bridge.

Blue Ridge Summit came from behind with three runs in the ninth and two in the 10th to nip Hanover 10-8 at Hanover.

Notes From the Records Of Old Monocacy

By DR. GRACE L. TRACEY

Chapter 2
Of all the celebrated traders to exchange their wares with Monocacy and Catoctin Valley Indians, John Van Metre was the first to acquire a title to the land on which he lived.

On one of his several trips between New York and Virginia, Van Metre had 300 acres surveyed for himself "on Metre branch" which enters the Monocacy at the present-day county road-crossing from Frederick to Reel's Mill. He called this tract "Metre"; the survey⁶²¹, made April 21, 1724, was the sixth¹³⁷ made in the area that is now Frederick County.

Van Metre borrowed 500 pounds¹⁰²⁵ from Joseph and Thomas Palmer of Westchester County, New York. Later he induced them to live on "Metre" and then Van Metre and his wife, Margaret, assigned the land to them. John influenced his "well beloved friend, Baltis Fout"¹⁰²⁶ to settle on Monocacy land. His sister, Rebecca, wife of Cornelius Elting, settled at the mouth of Monocacy in present-day Montgomery County, where they built the Elting Mill, a land mark of early Monocacy.

Van Metre's daughter, Rebecca, married Solomon Hedges. Through this connection, Solomon's father, Joseph, had 258 acres surveyed for himself July 1, 1730 which he called "Hedge Hog"⁶²². It was located immediately south of present-day Hansonville. Solomon himself had 192 acres surveyed March 16, 1733 called "Hedges Delight"⁶²³; it was located on Tuscarora Creek a little northeast of present-day Yellow Springs.

John Van Metre, his wife, Margaret, their sons Henry, Jacob, Abraham, daughters Rachael, Magdalena, Sarah, Mary and Elizabeth, made their home on "Meadow" which was surveyed for John November 17, 1725⁶²⁴. There he built his "Dutch Frame House"⁶²⁵, 18x14, Clay and White - Washed Outside, With Stone Chimney, A Log House 20x16, A Frame House Covered With Shingles, A House Raised Four Feet From The Ground 18 x 14 Covered With Boards⁶²⁶. "Meadow" and its resurvey occupied the land along Carroll Creek that is now the southeastern part of Fredericktown (the present-day intersection of South Market and South Streets) through a part of the Fair Grounds.

Mary Van Metre, daughter of John Sr., married Robert Jones who had lived at Perkiomen Creek in the early 1720's. In 1729, Jones, with Van Metre, was appointed constable of Monocacy Hundred. Jones was one of those persons who did not burn his tobacco according to Maryland law in 1734.

(Tobacco was used as currency—the amount raised by each person was restricted—the law required any excess amounts to be burned.)

In 1774, Jones signed a petition to the court requesting that a bridge be built "at the mouth of Katocin Creek and a main road be laid out from Tuscarora Creek on the Potomack to Antietam Creek." Later Robert and Mary Jones removed to Virginia.

The Courts of 1729, 1731, 1732 and 1734 appointed Van Metre the Constable of Monocacy Hundred which, at those dates, extended from the mouth of Monocacy River northward to the Province line, eastward to include a part of present-day Carroll County and westward to include all the lands of western Maryland. As Constable of "Monocoughsin" Hundred, in 1729, Van Metre reported to the court that he had received many "abuses in the execution of his office inasmuch that he is afraid to comply with the order of the court . . . humbly prays for protection . . ." The Court ordered Joseph Mounts and John Grathram to join in authority with Van Metre. In 1735, John Van Metre Sr. sold¹⁰²⁹ his farm animals and removed himself and his family into Virginia³⁶ where he died about 1745²⁷.

The most active of all traders in Western Maryland was Thomas Cresap. His influence was felt from 1737 until after the Revolutionary War. He came from Skipton in Yorkshire, England, between 1710 and 1718, to settle near the mouth of the Susquehanna where he married Hannah Johnson. He spent a few months in Virginia on a farm rented from the Washingtons³⁷.

Early in the spring of 1730, Cresap settled in the region of the Conestago Indians in Conejohela Valley immediately south of the 40th parallel³⁸ where he built a stone house/fortress. It has been suggested that Cresap was a secret agent for Maryland authorities during the early years of the Maryland-Pennsylvania boundary dispute when both provinces claimed the land as their own³⁹. Pennsylvanians and Marylanders both "stood their ground"—tempers flared, fists flew, shots rang out and each claimed the right to arrest the other.

In a statement made June 14, 1732⁴¹, Charles Carroll said that he, with John Ross of Annapolis and John Tredane, went to Susquehanna (a short distance from Cresap's home) where they were detained by a warrant from Justice of Pennsylvania for the arrest of "John Tredane of the Province of Maryland, resident of Monochasie." John Tredane of Monocacy lived on the land where Union Bridge is now built⁶²⁷. Carroll also complained in his statement that the Pennsylvanians continually referred to them as "hominny gents."

In 1734, eight of Cresap's helpers, including Michael Resiner and Anthony Bancuff, were arrested by a Pennsylvania Sheriff but were immediately released. On one occasion, Cresap, as a full fledged Captain of the Maryland Militia, stood guard while Joseph Ogle made surveys for Lord Baltimore.

On February 8, 1739 Reisner received the patent for "Greenspring" which had been surveyed for George Berr August 9, 1738⁸⁰⁹. The beginning point of "Greenspring" was: "in a part of the backland of the border of the Province on the west side of the Monocacy in the forks of Hunting Creek." The land is presently owned by Mr. Ross Still—It lay along what is now known as the Hessong Bridge Road.

Anthony Bancuff did not own land in what is now Frederick County but his name is recorded in the records of Pastor John Casper Steover who visited Monocacy area in 1736. Bancuff also testified in Court (then Prince George's County) in 1736 with men from the area of the Monocacy.

Joseph Ogle settled near present-day Loys where he had 250 acres, "Peace," surveyed April 5, 1737.

Dutchman living on disputed land found refuge with Cresap. When the Sheriff of Lancaster County attempted to arrest a Dutchman by the name of Jacob Loughman, five of his Dutch friends defended him by attacking the Sheriff. Bernard Weymore was one of these five.

The first survey (February 8, 1738) made for a German in the area of present-day Frederick County was "Addition"⁹⁹⁰ which lay one and a half miles south of present-day Catoctin Furnace. The survey was made for Bernard Weymore.

Charles Stouter Heads Local Lions Club

President P. W. Claypool reported on the rodeo held by the Lions Club at the regular meeting of that group held Monday night in the Lutheran parish hall, 25 members in attendance. The president reported that about $100 was netted from the affair. It was decided to keep the lighting fixtures erected at the field for the rodeo as a permanent installation and it is highly probable that a number of social affairs will be held during the summer evenings at the Civic Grounds.

Cloyd W. Seiss, general chairman of the coming Horse Show, reported that committees will be appointed in the near future. He said the show will take place this year on Sunday, September 14. Dr. D. L. Beegle is co-chairman of the event.

During the business meeting the installation of officers for the ensuing year took place with Lion Ellsworth Magaha, secretary-treasurer of the Middletown Lions Club, in charge of the investiture. Legion Baseball League Schedule Is Revised Insufficient interest by local youths caused a cancellation and rearrangement of the schedule of the American Legion Jr. League baseball teams this week. The schedule was originally devised to accommodate four teams, however a needed revision has cut the league to three clubs.

The league is open to boys from 13 through 17 and there still is a number of boys needed to keep the teams going. The season is in progress and the Legion is equipping the squads with T-shirts and caps. A playoff series has been arranged for the winners of the first and second half. The A's are currently leading the league with a record of two wins against no losses. Following is the revised schedule which is now in effect.

Pimlico Futurity To Draw Nation's Best Racers

BALTIMORE, MD.—The 36th running of the Pimlico Futurity, one of the world's richest races and traditionally the year's final championship two-year-old test, has been scheduled for Saturday, November 22, Louis Pondfield, executive director, announced today.

The 1 1/16-mile juvenile classic around two turns is co-featured with the invitational Pimlico Special of Pimlico's 30-day autumn meeting opening on November 13 and running through Dec. 17.

The Pimlico Futurity for the second consecutive year is expected to have a gross value in excess of $165,000 with a net to the winner of approximately $115,000 which would again make it the second richest horse race in the world.

The late date also puts it in the position of being final arbiter in choosing the 1958 two-year-old racing champion as it did last fall when Maine Chance Farm's Jewel's Reward won first money of $115,347, clinched the crown in three of four national polls and set an all-time earning figure for juveniles of $369,462.

Five other two-year-olds had previously sewed up the divisional championship by winning the Pimlico Futurity. They were Bimelech in 1939, Count Fleet in 1942, Platter in 1943, Citation in 1947 and Nail in 1955.

Nominations and eligibility payments to this year's Futurity have swelled the pot to $131,920 with a final eligibility payment of $200 due on August 15. Entry fee is $500 and starting fee $1,000. There are 404 current eligibles, including royally-bred representatives of all the top stables in America.

America.

The November date of the Pimlico race, along with the autumn scheduling of three other juvenile races which will gross well in excess of $100,000 each, has focused interest again on saving the more promising young horses for late campaigns, a move heartily endorsed by breeders.

The other generously endowed events are the Belmont Futurity on Sept. 20, the Champagne on October 11 and the Garden State on October 25, the latter the only race exceeding the Pimlico Futurity in winning value in 1957.

MEDITERRANEAN CRUISE

The following day in Damascus stands out as one of those especially fascinating ones of the trip (how many of those there were!).

First, under the pleasant and capable guidance of a young Arab, temporarily substituting for Jimmy, the formal lecturer at Ball-bek ("call me Joe," this one said), we had our first visit to a mosque in these Moslem countries, the famous Omyad Mosque, third oldest in the world (and incidentally, one of 250 in Damascus). This, like so many religious buildings in countries with histories that involved changes in the established religion, stands where a place of worship for other religions preceded it, in this case a Roman temple and then a Christian church. The mosque was entered through a large courtyard with three beautiful minarets, each with a special name and one, he it noted, called "Christ's Minaret," the Moslem religion teaching respect for Christ as a brother of other great prophets, Mohammed being the chief. Here too in the courtyard was a fountain for the ablutions required of all Moslems before entering the mosque proper. (They also must remove their shoes; and visitors, as a substitute for this requirement, have sandals tied on over their shoes, here, by a row of old men who expect a small fee for the service.) We then passed into the huge Prayer Hall, which contains 850 beautiful hand-woven rugs, all having been taken to Mecca for blessing. Here as many as 10,000 Moslems may come at once (but no women) to pray Allah; on Fridays a sermon is delivered on the precepts of the Koran.

We visited next the mausoleum of the famous Saracen soldier and ruler, Saladin, whose name is closely connected with that of Richard the Lion-Hearted of England, one of the leaders of the Third Crusade in the 12th century, and both friend and enemy of Saladin (as sympathetically portrayed in Sir Walter Scott's romantic tale, "The Talisman"). This was a small building beautifully decorated with tiles and, strangely, containing not only the original tomb but a second empty one presented by Kaiser Wilhelm II following his visit to the Near East previously mentioned.

The so-called Palace of Azem was an interesting place, now a museum presenting in a series of small rooms different aspects of Syrian life: customs, dress, etc. of the Bedouins, the Druses, and other special groups, and scenes of family life in Damascus—a sitting room of the women of the harem, a hall of pilgrimage (where pilgrims on the way to Mecca were entertained), a room where preparations for a wedding were going on, and others. Here too was one of the lovely restful courtyards to be remembered.

And the remarkable and famous bazaars! They line the narrow crowded streets of certain very old sections of the city, small open-front shops mainly, grouped according to the goods for sale—saddles, cotton and silk materials, cotton clothing, hats, brass and silver articles, gold jewelry, books, tobacco, foods, and shoes and shoes (as I write I can see long strings of them dangling from the ceiling and sides of the booths). Among the miscellaneous crowd on the narrow pavements were men in native or Western garb, often with turban or tasselled fez, and women in black, heavily veiled.

Towards the end of our tour we drove down the street made famous by the Biblical reference to "the street which is called Straight" in the story of what happened to Saul after he reached Damascus—drove thru a mass of tangled traffic with the car driver blowing his sharp horn continuously and amazingly avoiding hitting pedestrians, street vendors, boys on bicycles, donkey carts, small trucks and other cars—and there at the end, where it was wide and open, stood a low yellow house said to be the house of Ananias, not the prevaricator, of (readful fate), who visited Saul by Divine command. There down below street level in a small Franciscan chapel cut out of the foundation rock, Jimmy, our regular guide for the Syria-Lebanon trip, who had now rejoined the party, waded young Joe aside and related the story of Saul in another prepared lecture.

But my very last recollection of Damascus belongs back in front of the Omyad Hotel, where, as we waited for the cars that were to take us back to Beirut and the Eexter, the street vendor who had begun there early in the morning trying to sell me something and had unaccountably appeared in various places during the day, finally succeeded in selling me four pen-knives of "real Damascus steel." I was unable to resist his line: "Lady, I'm your boy, I'm your broke boy, I haven't sold anything all day. Please lady."

Beirut Again

The next morning several of us went into Beirut again on a short extra trip to the beautiful museum of antiquities, seeing there amazing things; among others, huge stones from ruined buildings with inscriptions from as early as 3500 B.C. in the language of the Phoenicians, the Aramites, the Hittites, and one never deciphered; lovely gold ornaments—hairpins, bracelets, necklaces, etc.—made by the Phoenicians many centuries before Christ; a charming group of tiny figures with ludicrous expressions and postures, "for joking, to laugh," the guide explained. By noon we were back on the ship and setting out for our last port in the Near East, Alexandria, from where we would proceed overland to Cairo.

Alexandria and Cairo

Our landing early next morning at Alexandria made two things clear at once: that we were now in a warmer climate (very warm on March 29), and that the street vendors who immediately began urging us to buy would be as difficult to refuse as those in Damascus. (When one of the obviously well-to-do men in the group tried to do this by insisting "No Money," one of the peddlers replied in perfect English, "We know better than that, you are American tourists!")

As for the originally scheduled morning of sightseeing here, that, along with the "Free" afternoon in Cairo, had been eliminated at the last minute without explanation, giving us a day less in Egypt but leaving us thankful that we got there at all, since our friends at home kept reporting rumors that all stops at Near East ports were being canceled. (I am sure I am not the only one of our party for whom the news of recent weeks from this part of the world has given a special significance to our glimpses of Syria, Lebanon, and Egypt.)

The round-trip drive of 260 miles by private car over the desert between Alexandria and Cairo was more memorable, I am also sure, is very considerably warmer, than the train trip in air-conditioned coach originally scheduled. First, just beyond the city, we drove in sight of marshes with tall grass, occasional fishermen with nets, tiny thatched huts; then came scattered Bedouin tent-villages, a few camels and sheep grazing on sparse vegetation, a few high date palms and small forlorn-looking fig trees; farther on appeared a large group of buildings that had once been British barracks, now used by Egyptian soldiers. Then, abruptly, nothing but yellow sand in every direction to the horizon—nothing except the even line of telegraph poles stretching alongside and big unsightly rusted cans that had once held oil. And so, after a stop for lunch at the half-way "Wadi Natrum Rest House" (General Motors), on to the outskirts of Cairo and a sudden rich greenness along the road and a sudden glimpse of a huge pyramid on a hill to our right; but no stopping until we reached the fine-looking Hotel Semiramis, with inly an avenue and a row of trees between it and the banks of the Nile.

Almost immediately, in our tour agency's effort to give us in shorter time the original program for our stay in Cairo, our new guide presented himself, Abdul, a Moslem in the native garb of long close-fitting gown and red fez (he too spoke excellent English, with a pleasant little mannerism of introducing all his informative comments with "Excuse me, ladies and gentlemen") and proceeded with us to the Mohammed Ali Mosque, most outstanding one in Cairo, named after its builder, founder of a new line of rulers in Egypt. Its main features are the same as those of the Omyad Mosque in Damascus, but it's

Marines Offer

Limitless Recruiting

Staff Sergeant Howard W. Higgins, NCO in Charge of Marine Corps Recruiting, announced this week that he has received official notification that enlistments may be accepted in the U. S. Marine Corps during July and August in unlimited numbers. This marks the first time since last year that enlistments for the Marine Corps have been unlimited.

Of particular interest to high school graduates who plan to spend the summer at home, the Marine Corps is offering a Delayed Enlistment Program. Young men and women who are interested and want to be guaranteed a place in the Marine Corps may enlist now and go on active duty up to 120 days after enlistment. Young men and women who desire to become the first in their class to succeed, owe it to themselves to investigate the opportunities offered by accepting an enlistment in the United States Marine Corps. There are over 600 different skills required to operate the U. S. Marine Corps, of which 400 are technical ratings and require technical school training. The Marines operate on land, sea, and in the air. This versatile service offers a man or woman the opportunity to serve in his choice, while at the same time be a member of the elite United States Marine Corps.

In addition to learning a vital skill, the Marine Corps offers travel, adventure, and training that will prepare any man for anything he may later encounter, both while in the Marines and upon his return to civilian life. The recruit training for the Marine Corps lasts 12 weeks. It is scientifically designed and guaranteed to build men.

Sergeant Higgins further announced that for the air minded young man, there is a program available that guarantees assignment to aviation duty. Jobs in aviation range from Flight Equipment to Aviation Electronics Operator.

Prayer Hall made especially magnificent by walls and columns of luminous alabaster, a thousand glass lamps suspended from the ceiling and two high altars reached by stairways lavishly carved and gilded.

A sail on the Nile in the moonlight that evening gave us a new picture of Cairo and a delightful chance for a bit of real relaxation. Next morning came the visit to the Museum of Egyptian Antiquities and its many exhibits, the emphasis for us being put on the amazingly large and varied and remarkable collection of objects from the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amon, so extensive that most of the party just "couldn't take it" all, and the couple of us who stayed with Abdul finally had to suggest that perhaps we had seen enough for one half-day; I shall not soon forget the look of disappointment on Abdul's face!

(Next: Homeward Bound — Greece, and Italy Again)

Any man or woman who desires further information on what the Marine Corps can offer, is urged to contact Sergeant Higgins, 10 West Franklin Street, Hagerstown, Md. (Phone REgent 3-7080), or check at the local Post Office for the time and day he will visit your town.

Marines are called "Leather-necks" because of the black leather stocks which were part of their uniforms in the early 19th century.

My Neighbors

"Hello, dear. How are you coming along with the driving lessons?"

In God is my salvation and my glory; the rock of my strength, and my refuge, is in God.—(Psalm 62, 7.)

Let us then daily affirm—not once but continually—that the only true and lasting happiness on earth is to be found in God and in serving Him: that in Him alone can we find the strength to bear life's inevitable sorrow and adversity; that in Him alone is the joyous peace we all seek and may have.

Atomic Radiation Aids Gasoline Research

Scientists' first use of atomic radiation to develop a new formula for manufacturing more efficient premium gasoline proceeds above in the laboratories of the Esso Research Center in Linden, N. J. Radioactive tracers were used as scientific sleuths in new techniques which made it possible to classify the many components of gasoline for clean-burning qualities and prove, for the first time, which ones are the "criminals" that rob cars of power and mileage by causing engine deposits. Results of the 3 1/2-year, $750,000 research project have been adapted by Esso Standard Oil Company's refineries to remove the harmful components and begin full-scale production of "new formula" premium gasoline. Here, a member of the research team, Dr. Leon Shore, places a cylinder containing engine deposits, converted into gaseous form, in a radioactivity measurement chamber. Scientists conducted a long series of tests, adding three parts per million of radioactive materials to a typical gasoline—made up of hundreds of components called hydrocarbons. For each test, radioactivity was added to only one of these components. Whether they were innocent or guilty of causing deposits was determined by measuring radioactivity of deposits that were formed, when the gasoline was used in a test engine. Radiation is not used in manufacturing the "new formula" gasoline.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Read Psalm 23.
God is at work in you, both to will and to work for his good pleasure. (Philippians 2:13.RSV.)
Listening to a radio one day, I heard these words, "Movement always wins; consider the water which drop by drop wears away the stone." One might want to qualify that statement a bit; but consider also the seed.
The seed falls on a bit of soil in a crevice of a rock. It is a tiny seed. What chance has it for growth in that unlikely place? But life and purpose are within the seed, and in time it bursts its bonds. A stem grows toward the sun, and a root makes its way into the bit of soil. Time passes, and a tree grows, and the rock is split asunder. Yes, movement wins—purposeful, God-given movement.

I am very small until I remember that it is always God and I. With Him, my weakness becomes strength, my faltering steps become purposeful, my feeble efforts become victory.
It is a glorious experience to work with God. He works in us and through us. We cannot fail!
Prayer
Thou great and almighty God, we humbly thank Thee for the opportunity to work with Thee. Keep us aware of Thy nearness. Guide us when ways are sunny and when paths are dark. Thou art our strength. We seek no credit for ourselves as we work in Thy kingdom. Thine is the power and the glory forever. Amen.

Looking Ahead
...by Dr. George S. Benson
DIRECTOR—NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM

A Magazine Worth Reading
On the reading racks of most of the college libraries in America are such militant "liberal" periodicals as The Nation The Reporter and, The New Republic. The Nation is edited by Carey McWilliams who, according to Congressional investigating committees, has one of the longest lists of associations with Communist fronts of anyone in the nation. The Reporter and New Republic are edited by people zealously dedicated to the modern "liberal" political and economic viewpoint, and both magazines frankly espouse the "liberal" cause. They frown on people who aggressively resist Communist infiltration and propaganda in America.

Two and a half years ago a group of conservative journalists founded a periodical, National Review, designed to promote the conservative viewpoint in politics and economics. Its editor is William F. Buckley, Jr., widely known for his book, God and man at Yale; and the list of associate editors includes men and women of high attainment in academic and literary circles. National Review looks with favor on people who intelligently and with proper restraint resist the internal forces set in motion by the Communist apparatus in America.

Balance In Few Colleges
For two and a half years, on the shelves of some college libraries National Review, with its conservative and patriotic viewpoint has balanced out the viewpoint of at least one of the three "liberal" magazines found in those libraries. But there has been no such "equalizer" in many of the libraries. From the beginning, National Review has had a struggle. It has built its circulation up to 20,000 (The Nation has 33,000) and has created wholesome discussion wherever ideologies and economics are subjects for study or comment. But it has failed to find many college librarians receptive, and financially the magazine has been a flop.

Although it has reserved a number of pages for advertising to help foot the editorial bill, National Review has had very little advertising support—only a fraction of what it anticipated in its projected plan for a successful publishing venture.

Reds Spend $50 Million
In the more than two years that I have been reading National Review I have found it to be informative and stimulating. Among the contributing writers have been John Chamberlain, Suzanne La Follet, Whittaker Chambers, John Caldwell, William Henry Chamberlain, Max Eastman, Medford Evans, E. Merrill Root, Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, Forrest Davis and a long list of others who are nationally known for their knowledge in the fields in which they write.

It is estimated on good authority that the Communist apparatus spends $50 million a year in the United States on propaganda. Most of this propaganda is not blatant, coarse and bombastic; it is subtle and well-written, appealing particularly to the student mind. A great deal of it is written by non-Communists who have been duped or brain-washed into certain attitudes and opinions beneficial to the Communist world strategy. In comparison, what little is being done to expose this propaganda, this frightful situation, is done on a mere pittance.

Target: Students
Herbert Philbrick, onetime FBI counterspy, is an advertising man and journalist. When he duped the Communists into accepting him as one of their trusted comrades he was placed in the vitally important "agit-prop" section of the underground—to prepare and plant Red propaganda for public consumption. Mr. Philbrick recently told me that the Communist apparatus relies largely on non-Communist publications and agencies to carry the bulk of the propaganda designed to undermine our strength and further, step-by-step, the Communist objectives.

Dr. Fred Schwarz, a top authority on the Communist technique, says that the first step in the Communist blueprint for taking over a country is: "Conquest of the student mind." They are not trying to sell the masses of American students on Communism; it is desired, rather, that students merely accept the breaking down of the American structure. The opinions of these two men underscore the need for our college students to understand the facts in the cold war being waged by the Reds. National Review is an educational tool exposing the Communists and supporting the basic American principles. It would be a blow to world Communism and to the world-wide Socialist movement if every educational institution in the land subscribed to National Review and urged students to read it. And it would strengthen the publication if 1000 readers of this column became subscribers: 211 East 37th Street New York 16,

Time...and a Woman

Life for the Senorita in Spain during the 18th and 19th Centuries was quiet and dull... a young girl's time was spent in extensive and intricate toilettes, primping and fussing with her clothes, face and hair. Her infrequent appearances at social activities were her only pleasure, and then she was accompanied by a duenna.

The 20th Century changed a woman's life. When women were granted suffrage rights in the U. S., they not only voted, but entered the business and professional world, engaged actively in politics and even formed a section of the Army. Their lives suddenly became full, greatly increasing demands on their time.

Today—it's a woman's world as much as a man's. With social, business and charity activities the busy woman who is pressed for time can still remain feminine and lovely. With a minimum of effort, new Speed-Bath Lilt home permanent gives a long-lasting hairdo in the least possible time. Milady's crowning glory with its home permanent foundation can adapt easily to the latest in hair fashions.

TO BRIGHTEN UP EVERY BITE, SERVE COKE...WORLD'S FAVORITE SPARKLING DRINK!

With pre-meal snacks, with the meal itself, there's just nothing like the cheerful lift, the special good taste of Coke to brighten up a hot summer holiday. Better have plenty of Coke on hand!

BARBECUED CHICKEN
Brush halved broiler-chickens with barbecue sauce, broil 12 inches from heat about 1 1/2 hours, turning and basting frequently. Serve with Coke.

FOIL POTATOES
Bake potatoes beforehand, bring them along wrapped in aluminum foil. Then just reheat them over the coals. Great with Coca-Cola... favorite of the world.

SUPER SALAD
Serve a green salad, tossed with dressing, sliced stuffed olives. Guests will enjoy sipping Coke with this. Coca-Cola... so good to taste, in such good taste.

CRANBERRY CUPS
Heat canned cranberry jelly until melted, pour into squeezed-out half shells of oranges. Chill until set. For extra sparkle, uncup the Coke and serve ice-cold.

Child Safety Arouses Women
By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

WHEN CHILD SAFETY becomes an issue, women go to work. Take the case of Janelle Brinball of Provo, Utah. Hoping to make neighborhood youngsters more safety-conscious, she taught bicycle ordinances to a small group of children, coached them in proper signaling and handling of their bikes.

Miss Smith

Soon more requests than she could handle poured in from other sections of town and Janelle's program was taken over by the Police Dept., PTA, Board of Education and the City Recreation Committee.

A special program on bicycle safety was launched, which included classroom instruction, oral and performance tests, a film on bicycle safety, and an S.O.S. (Safety on Streets) club with membership cards, letters stenciled on bike fenders and summer outings.

At last count, there were 800 S.O.S. members.

In Bellaire, Ohio, the Pilot Club, a group of business and professional women, appalled by the rising number of accidents involving child pedestrians, decided the community needed added safety instruction.

They distributed several thousand copies of safety books to the high schools, and sent coloring books on pedestrian safety to the grade schools.

Literature was distributed to adults, safety posters put up, radio spots arranged for, and weekly good driving awards were given.

To climax the program, the mayor proclaimed an "All Bellaire Safety Day", and most citizens attended neighborhood safety meetings.

ALONG THE POTOMAC

By U. S. Congressman DeWitt S. Hyde

WASHINGTON — Hearings on the

my C & O Canal National Historical Park Bill are now set for June 30 and July 1 at 10 a. m., Room 124, House Interior and Insular Affairs Subcommittee on Public Lands.

Public hearings were held by the Elections Subcommittee on Thursday, June 19, at 10:30 a. m. at the County Service Building Hyattsville, on the Hatch Political Activities Act.

Some form of tax relief for small business is almost certain to be legislated by this Congress. The measures now being considered recognize the fact that most small businesses are unincorporated. This means that the proposed legislation will benefit the majority of small businessmen. The proposed measures will apply to individual proprietorships, partnerships and corporations.

The key provision of a small business tax relief bill is likely to be a plan to permit firms to deduct their taxable income part of their investment in the business. At this writing, it has not been decided whether the deduction will apply to all types of small business investment, including inventory buying, or whether to make it apply only to machinery, equipment and fixtures. Whatever the final decision is, the deduction will apply to both new and used items.

Certain to be included also is a provision that would permit a businessman to set aside earnings in no-interest bearing estate tax anticipation certificates and to stretch out payment of the estate tax over a ten-year period after his death.

Both of these proposals are contained in a bill introduced by me last session. The revenue loss to the Government from the small business tax relief proposals is not too great. But whatever it is, I am sure that the benefits will outweigh the monetary loss.

The Senate has passed a bill to aid the railroads. Although the bill does not include the repeal of the excise tax on transportation, I still hope that the Congress will approve such a measure. I have had a bill in Congress since 1953 to reduce this tax.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Makes Important Suggestions To Labor Union Leaders

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 26—I have not before commented on the terrible factory fire in New York City of some months ago because I wished to get the facts. I have now secured these facts through the Home Insurance Company of New York, which I consider the best fire insurance company in the United States, and of which I am a proud stockholder.

Most Fire Losses Can Be Avoided

The financial losses incurred through fire are usually covered by insurance. But insurance can never fully compensate for loss of life, loss of a job, or loss of a successful business. Often this also means that the city will lose taxable property, because today after a fire the owners often use the insurance money to relocate in some other more suitable location.

Last year the dollar volume of fire losses in the United States climbed to a new high of $1,023,190,000, up 3.4% from 1956. During the past ten years, the annual dollar value of fire losses has jumped 43.9%. Of course, inflation of building costs has been an important factor in this increase. Nevertheless, the sad fact is that losses of life and of property from fire are excessively and unnecessarily high. And these losses will trend higher unless something is done soon.

Importance Of Sprinklers

Except for those caused by explosions, nearly all fires could be smothered at their start if people would not get panicky and if they had proper fire-extinguishing equipment available. Fire losses could also be cut if we would learn how to use more fully the various fire-proof building materials and home and office furnishings now on the market.

During the past winter, I have been shocked at the losses of life and property which have occurred in a series of New York bazas, above mentioned, snuffed out 24 lives. All fires in factory buildings. The of these lives could have been saved if the factory had had a "sprinkler system." Of course, regular fire drills are helpful; but factory workers get panicky and forget what the drills taught them. The only answer is stricter fire laws which compel sprinklers which would put out fires before they could gain headway and become unmanageable.

Sprinklers afford the only real protection in factories employing more than 50 people. They are not costly to maintain once they are installed. The installation investment in sprinklers is also profitable financially because, to a certain extent, their cost is offset by lower insurance rates. When you or one of your family accepts a job, see if he or she is protected by sprinklers. Small factories are the very buildings which constitute the greatest fire hazards, with corresponding loss of life and jobs. If their owners will not act voluntarily to remove these unnecessary fire risks, then we must have stricter fire laws to make available to every reader the protection that only sprinklers can give.

Great Opportunities For Labor Unions

Most of our newer buildings, whether large or small or residential or commercial, are equipped with various fire-resistant features. Fire-proof doors are now fairly common. These safeguards will confine a fire, but they will not eliminate its destructive powers to life through panic and smoke. Now that labor unions are being so severely criticized, they should become more interested in constructive measures which will truly benefit their members. Surely one of these is that every factory in which union labor is employed should be protected by sprinklers.

These unions could also urge that more asbestos be used in the construction of factories, stores, and homes, as well as more extensive fire-alarm systems and sprinklers. I have in mind asbestos gloves to be worn by those who are suddenly called upon to put out small fires; asbestos bed strips designed to help prevent fires due to careless smoking; asbestos desk portfolios in which to keep important letters and papers. You can also buy flame-resistant draperies, rugs, and textiles. I forecast that the day will come when we will sleep on asbestos pillows and wear non-flammable pajamas!

SPORTS AFIELD

Ted Kesting

Vic Reinders, Waukesha, Wisconsin, is the captain of the 1958 Sports Afield All-American shooting Team, reveals Editor Robinson, Trap and Skeet Editor for the magazine. Reinders, a 51-year-old shotgun star, staged one of the greatest comebacks in shotgun history when he climaxed the season by winning the Grand American High Over-All Championship.

Two new faces on this year's team are Bob Diefenderfer and E. A. Ross, both of Pennsylvania. These men are not high-average gunners, but can beat your ears off in competition.

Walt Ostrom, Orangeburg, New York, proved himself one of the top guns in the East, when he won the New York Travers Island Championship, breaking 200 birds straight.

Frank Loucks, Charlotte, Michigan, won the Canadian Championship with 200 straight and the Grand American Champion of Champions race with 100 straight.

Another newcomer to the team is Bard Higgins, Duluth, Minnesota, who won the Captain Billy Fawcett Championship with 198 out of 200 over a field of the top shots of the Midwest.

Names reappearing on the All-American list include Maynard Henry, Los Angeles, who won the National high - average doubles; Dan Orlich, Reno, Nevada, eighth on all targets at the Grand American; and Joe Devers, Reno, who won the ATA Nevada State Championship with 199 out of 200.

Rounding out the first team are Fred Waldoek Jr., Sandusky, Ohio, who won the Grand American introductory, and Buford Bailey, Big Springs, Nebraska, who won the Frank Middaugh Memorial with 200 straight.

In June 1854 the first formal graduation ceremonies were held at the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Although classes had been graduating for eight years, this marked the first formal ceremony to be held.

"All-American" Look "Sack" Look "Schnook" Look

WILL TODAY'S "SACK" LOOK BE TOMORROW'S "SCHNOOK" LOOK? According to health authority Raymond A. Wilson, the girl on the right may be tomorrow's "Miss America" unless present fashion trends are altered. Wilson, founder of the world's largest health organization, American Health Studios and Silhouette Figure Form, International, charged that this country's designers are ruining the health and beauty of American women and that the healthy, All-American girl is a "Vanishing American." Wilson, who presently has more than 2,500,000 studio members in his national health program, said, "While our organization helps make women more curvaceous these so-called fashion stylists try to cover them up with bags and sacks — it's unnatural, unhealthy, and Un-American!"

VETS' CORNER

Chairman Olin Teague of the House Veterans Affairs Committee has informed the American Legion that the most important immediate concern of the committee is the Budget Bureau policy of reducing the number of beds available in VA hospitals for care and treatment of war veterans.

Previously, Chairman Teague had stated that he had hoped the next major veteran legislation to be enacted by Congress would be a bill to equalize widows benefits. He advised National Commander John S. Gleason Jr., of the American Legion, that he will move to have the committee consider the widows and orphans parity legislation as soon as action has been taken to correct the hospital situation.

A strongly worded resolution adopted by the National Executive Committee of the American Legion on May 1 urged the President to call a halt to the Bureau of the Budget's whittling away at the VA hospital program. The Legion has also been on record for many years to equalize pension benefits for war widows of World Wars I and II and the Korean Conflict.

gion on May 1 urged the President to call a halt to the Bureau of the Budget's whittling away at the VA hospital program. The Legion has also been on record for many years to equalize pension benefits for war widows of World Wars I and II and the Korean Conflict.

Teague has drafted bills for consideration by the committee which would direct the VA Administrator to provide medical care to veterans through the operation of a specific number of beds.

Two VA hospitals servicing Maryland veterans are presently undergoing extreme remodeling programs and have reduced the number of beds by 15 per cent. The American Legion has been assured by the VA officials that this is a temporary reduction and upon completion of the renovation of the hospitals the beds will be restored to service. The two hospitals being remodeled are Perry Point VA Hospital at Perryville, Maryland, and the Newton D. Baker VA Hospital in Martinsburg, West Virginia.

The Legion's legislative and rehabilitation staffs in Washington have also been consulting with the staff of the House Veterans Affairs on pending disability pension legislation. While the committee has been studying revision of pension legislation during the past year, no report has yet been published.

The Elias Evangelical Lutheran Church of Emmitsburg will hold its Annual Festival and Ham Supper on Saturday, August 16, from 4 o'clock on.

Fireworks Ban
Is State-wide

The Maryland Society for Prevention of Blindness is hopeful that this paper will not have to report any fireworks injuries this Fourth of July. The absence of such tragic news items is really newsworthy.

In the four years prior to 1941 when Maryland's law governing the sale and use of fireworks was passed, three children and one adult were killed and over 1,200 persons were seriously enough injured by fireworks to require medical attention or hospitalization. Two-thirds of these were children under sixteen years of age. Many of the injuries resulted in impaired vision or loss of sight.

A marked reduction in the number of injuries due to this cause has been observed nationally as forty-two of the forty-eight states have enacted protective legislation.

The occasional fireworks accidents which now occur during this holiday are the result of bootleg fireworks carried into the state in violation of the Federal Law prohibiting their transportation into states such as Maryland.

Violators of this law are liable to fine of $1,000, a year in prison, or both, and there is the possibility of personal and property liability, but the individual afflicted and the community charged with the responsibility of rehabilitating the handicapped bear the real burden.

Personal observance of the law and support of local enforcement efforts can eliminate this unnecessary loss of sight and life.

Mount Students May Reside Off Campus

Authorities at Mount St. Mary's College, announced this week that the college was accepting, for admittance, qualified students on its waiting list who could find approved residence off campus. The college had originally limited incoming registration to 180 students, but because of the exceptional number of students with good records asking admittance, decided to raise the figure. Registration for the original 180 places has been closed since March.

Injures Head In Fall Off Truck

Harold Kurtz, Union S. C., was taken to the Warner Hospital last Friday evening by the Emmitsburg VFW ambulance, suffering from concussion and forehead lacerations. Kurtz, a truck driver, was hauling a load of tomatoes from South Carolina to Altoona. He parked his truck near the Mason and Dixon Inn on the Gettysburg Rd. and when he attempted to climb to the back of the truck, he slipped, fell from the truck and struck his head causing the concussion and lacerations. He was released from the hospital Saturday.

Local Youths
