One of the most overworked and perhaps most unappreciated individuals is our local storekeeper. This subject has been treated before in this column but nothing has ever come out of it beneficial to these individuals. They're making a living you're apt to remark. Sure they are, but they're working like horses, not human beings, to eke out this livelihood. The average fellow puts in his 40 hours and gripes about working overtime so he has more leisure time available. Not so with the storekeeper. His leisure time is not his at all. It belongs to his business and the public. Now then, the average storekeeper, or small businessman, commences his day at about seven o'clock in the a. m. and continues until nine o'clock that night. This requires about 13 hours of his time daily. If he works Tuesday and Thursday only 10 hours, he has 20 hours in. Add to this Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday at 13 hours a day and he has 62 more hours in providing his store is open in the evenings. This brings his total hours in action for the week to 72. In the meantime he has hours of bookwork and stocking and ordering to do which easily runs his total weekly hours to over 80. Compare this with the average man and it isn't hard to see that the storekeeper has over twice as much time in for the week as does the average man. Should these businessmen decide to do something about this crushing burden I'm certain the public will cooperate. I myself can't see why the stores have to be open four nights a week. A number of businessmen have been talking about reducing the number of nights open and I heartily concur with their idea and the sooner it happens the better off they will be. No help would be laid off, just a few more hours' rest will be realized by these slaves to the public. More power to you boys.

Back to my old Chronicles for a few paragraphs. The issue is one of January 17, 1902, 56 years ago and the editor was William H. Troxell. Some of the prices of food and produce at the time were: butter, 18c, eggs, 24c, chicken, 7c, potatoes 65c a bushel, steers (live), 4c, hogs, 6c. Vincent Sebald was running an advertisement as an attorney-at-law then and Jacob Topper and Daniel Sweeney were the undertakers. Hoke and Annan operated a marble yard and E. E. Zimmerman was the main furniture dealer. Miracle products or medicines of the era were Kodol which cured dyspepsia, Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh, Cascarets (cathartic) and No-to-Bac for those attempting to quit smoking and chewing. I S. Annan was advertising the latest New York styles of boots, shoes, rubbers, etc. Also horse blankets, steel spring leggings (buggies) awarding free bed sheets every month to some lucky customer.

I simply must compliment the Sportsmen's Club for the way they readied the grounds for the carnival which is closing Saturday night. Everything was neatly placed and tidied up and almost all equipment and stands, pavilions, etc., freshly painted. The attendance has been hampered somewhat by the chilly evenings but it is apparent that the affair will be a financial success, and I do hope so. If you haven't already attended the event better do so tonight or tomorrow. Topnotch entertainment has been provided the entire week and two big nights still remain.

Regardless of the number of appeals made to motorists hundreds of them are slaughtered almost every holiday. The Labor Day weekend total hit the usual 400 mark. I would venture to say had these warnings been heeded few if any of these fatalities would have occurred. If only the dead could be brought back to life so they could crusade against this sort of thing it might sink in on some of the car operators, but I doubt it. Regardless of the volume of traffic on these days, or any day for that matter, you can't take your car out for a few miles unless you witness violations of all sorts, either Fairfield and Blue Ridge will be the home teams Sunday when the semifinals for the playoff championship of the Pen-Mar League open, it was decided at a meeting of officers and representatives of the four top teams at the Emmitsburg VFW Home Tuesday evening.

Blue Ridge and Taneytown finished the regular season in a tie for second place. After Taneytown rejected an offer of Blue Ridge to play a game this week to decide positions because of the lateness of the season, President Al Waterfield designated Blue Ridge as the second place team and Taneytown as the third-place team.

COUNTY CIVIL DEFENSE WILL OFFER "HOME PROTECTION" COURSE

There is a great need in this nuclear age for the American public to have more knowledge regarding home protection.

Frederick County citizens are no exception. This need for home protection knowledge is being emphasized at all levels of Civil Defense, Federal, State and local.

Not only would there be need for such knowledge, should we be subject to an enemy attack, but in times of natural disaster such as hurricanes, tornadoes, floods, etc., this knowledge would be valuable.

With this need in mind, the office of Frederick County Civil Defense, in conjunction with the Maryland Civil Defense Agency, has arranged for an instructors' "Home Protection" training course to be given in Frederick County on Sept. 17 and 18.

The purpose of this "Home Protection" Instructors' Course is to train individual citizens, particularly women, from all sections of the county and city, who are able and willing, after taking this course, to teach the course in their respective localities during the coming fall and winter.

The agenda for this Instructors' Training Course is as follows:

- 1—Civil Defense, Federal, State and local—30 minutes.
- 2—Radioactive Fallout—1½ hrs.
- 3—Elementary First Aid—2 hrs.
- 4—Elementary Rescue and Fire Fighting—2 hours.
- 5—Safe Food and Water and Emergency Sanitation, 2 hours.

This Instructors' Training Course will be held on the dates specified above in the Extension Conference room on the third floor of the west wing of Winchester Hall in Frederick, from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., with an hour intervening for lunch.

The office of Frederick County Civil Defense has been working through the County Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Beatrice Fehr, in promoting this Instructors' Course in all Homemakers Clubs in the county. Federated Women's Clubs and subordinate Granges also have been solicited to enroll personnel in this Instructors' Training Course.

The County Civil Defense Director appeals to any and all organizations to enroll a member or members in this course. Also individual citizens who are willing to instruct their friends and neighbors in their respective communities to avail themselves of this opportunity for community service.

Any organization or individual, not already contacted through their organization and wishing to enroll, may do so by calling the Frederick County Civil Defense office, Monument 2-4161, not later than Monday, Sept. 15, between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m.

Those who take the course, may when they instruct this "Home Protection" course in their respective communities, set the course up in any way best suited for the instructor and enrollees; for example, they could hold a two-hour session one evening a week for four consecutive weeks.

Posters and promotional pamphlets are available at the Frederick County Civil Defense office for use in connection with this course. For further or more detailed information call Monument 24161.

Ronald Allen Cogar, 23, pleaded guilty to unauthorized use of a motor vehicle on April 25, 1957.

Tfc. Robert T. Storer, who preferred the charge, said that the defendant and two other inmates at the reformatory escaped, came to Frederick and took the car of Mrs. Harold Frushour, Frederick. Storer said they proceeded toward Elliott City where they were picked up later the same day and taken into custody.

Cogar just finished serving an 18-month term in the reformatory for stealing a motorcycle and one-year term for escaping.

Hood College Will Conduct Financial Drive This Fall

FREDERICK — Hood College will launch a major fund-raising campaign this fall, College officials announced this week.

The program, to be called "Hood Looks Ahead", calls for a three-year effort to raise $692,000 to strengthen the academic aspects of this women's college in Frederick, Md. Over $500,000 of this amount will be earmarked for endowment to provide funds for increasing faculty salaries.

R. Paul Smith of Hagerstown, retired president of the Potomac Edison Company and president of the College Board of Trustees, has been named general chairman for the program. With preliminary planning under way, several meetings and events have been tentatively scheduled, including a special convocation late in October.

The proposal which initiated the program originated in Hood's Policy Development Council and was tentatively approved by the Board of Trustees at their June meeting. When a survey report showed the College's potential for raising this fund to be favorable, the executive committee of the Board voted to proceed with the campaign this fall.

Seen as the most pressing need of the College is the increasing of the level of faculty salaries. The program allots $525,000 for endowment to further supplement the increases in faculty scales already achieved over the past years through the general budget.

Another $125,000 of the program's goal has been earmarked for an addition to the Joseph Henry Apple Library. Built in 1940, this building has never been enlarged and now houses 50,000 volumes. Additional space must be provided if the College is to continue to build its book collections.

The architect's plans for the new alumnae headquarters, which will be financed as a part of the program, are nearly completed. To cost an estimated $20,000, this project will be submitted for bids in September. Other improvements included in the program are $15,000 for interior improvements in Brodbeck Hall, which houses music and art studios and the college auditorium, and $7,000 for minor additions to Strawn home management house.

The College is being advised in the campaign by the firm of Marts and Lundy of New York. Their representative, Frank J. Coleman, will be at Hood until about March 1 to direct the program.

Your Personal Health

Citizen Of The World

Looking down from their distant vantage point the Martians must be wondering this summer about the strange American expeditionary force. Fanning out by plane and ship to every corner of the world, hundreds of thousands of Americans are on the move. Armed with cameras, golf clubs, and tennis rackets, they march in platoons to take over the hotels of Europe, Asia, Africa and South America.

It might be difficult to explain to dwellers in distant planets that the American tourist is out to see the world, not conquer it. Most of the year he's busy with his own affairs at home, but in a few weeks he learns how closely his life is bound up with the lives of millions of strangers.

He carries with his passport a World Health Organization record of vaccinations. He fills out forms that he learns are part of an international effort to track down the spread of infectious diseases and to prevent epidemics. On a Mexican highway he passes a mounted cavalry "spray team" out to eradicate mosquitoes. He realizes that efforts to control tuberculosis, malaria and other diseases and to improve sanitary conditions throughout the world concern him directly.

It's a satisfaction to him to know that he has helped make the global attack on disease possible. His government contributes to the support of WHO financially and with the loan of experts. A small part of his Christmas Seal contribution helps support the International Union Against Tuberculosis and the U. S. Citizens Committee for the World Health Organization.

He returns home from the expedition not only with souvenirs (bought and paid for) but also with the realization that he is a citizen of the world.

County Census Takers Will Receive Training

A test of procedures being developed to train the 30,000 census takers needed for the nation-wide 1959 Census of Agriculture will be conducted in Frederick County during the week of September 15, it was announced this week by the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce.

Primary purpose of the test will be to determine if sufficient training time has been allotted for census takers to learn their duties, if the instructions are easily understood, and are adequate. About 400 Frederick County farms will be covered in the test. These farms are located in the area northeast of Frederick, southeast of Thurmont, and northwest of Mount Airy.

Fifteen residents of the area will be employed as census takers plus a supervisor. Four-hour training sessions will be staged on Monday and Tuesday mornings, September 15 and 16. On Wednesday, the trainees will engage in practice interviewing of farmers. On Thursday morning, they will return to the classroom for a review of their practice work and additional training. Thursday afternoon and all day Friday will be devoted to visiting farms and filling out the census questionnaires.

Cooperation of Frederick County farmers in answering the test census questions is asked by Census Bureau officials who point out that all confidential features of regular census-taking operations will apply. All information about individuals or their farming activities furnished to the Census Bureau will be kept in strict confidence under federal law and any statistical totals and averages can be published. Information obtained by the Census Bureau cannot be furnished to any other government agency or used for purposes of investigation, regulation, or taxation.

Davidson

THIS WEEK —In Washington With Clinton Davidson WHERE TO FIND A HUSBAND

When we started writing this column three years ago we had no idea that it might become a sort of matrimonial bureau, but now we feel compelled to pass on a tip from the Alaska Chamber of Commerce.

Girls, the A. C. of C. reports, there are eight unmarried men in Alaska for every unmarried woman. This startling news, it is expected, may cause a stampede that would make the gold rush look like an afternoon stroll in the park.

Throw away those uncouth pictures you have of Alaska men with a six-months growth of beard and rough clothing. They are out of date. In Alaska one out of 12 men is a college graduate, a third higher percentage than in the continental U. S.

And, if you are thinking of what a terrible place the 49th state is to live in, forget it. Alaska has a lower death rate and a higher birth rate than any of the 48 states now in the Union.

Three Out Of Four Have One

In the United States proper only two out of every three women have found a man to vow to love, honor, cherish and pay the grocery bill. Alaska women have been much more successful. Three out of four have, like the Northwest Mounties, got their man.

The fourth one, so the statistics would indicate, either is a confirmed old maid or mighty choosy. These statistics, of course do not include the native Eskimos who are busy raising families in their snug little igloes.

Husbands are not hard to find in Alaska, we are told, despite spaces so wide open that they make Texas look like a New York suburb. There are four square miles per person, compared with 57 persons per square mile in the United States.

Texans, of course, will have to eat some of their bragging words if and when Alaska becomes the 49th state. You could put the whole state of Texas in a corner of Alaska's 586,000 square miles, and all it would do would be cool off.

Growing Like Topsy

Alaska has been experiencing some phenomenal growth, populationwise. Between the 1940 and 1950 censuses the population increased by 77%, five times the rate of the continental U. S.

About two-thirds of this increase was accounted for by natural causes—excess of births over deaths—and about one-third by net immigration. The birth rate is one-third larger than in the U. S., and the death rate is only a little more than half.

This, the A. C. of C. modestly concedes, is due not to the climate but to the fact that most people in Alaska are younger than in the U. S. The median age is 26 years, five years below that of the U. S.

There are no large cities in Alaska, mainly because three people live in the country for every city dweller, a reversal of the U. S. ratio. Anchorage is the largest city with a population of 32,000, and Fairbanks is second with 16,000. Juneau, the capital, and Ketchikan each have less than 10,000.

Ice Capades Stars Beat The Heat

Despite 300 tons of ice in the Atlantic City, N. J. arena, when the summer temperature hit 95 degrees, skating stars Bobby Specht and Cathy Machado took time off between rehearsing acts for the New 1959 Ice Capades which opens in New York on September 3rd. Their pick-me-up is a drink recipe calling for one 6-ounce can of frozen orange juice, 3 cans of water, and one banana, whirled for 30 seconds in a Waring drink mixer. The nineteenth edition of the Ice Capades which will tour the nation has 36 new numbers ranging from grand opera to Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. Bobby Specht is a U. S. national champion and Cathy Machado is world's champion professional singles skater.

ODDLY ENOUGH by WALDMAN

Cyrus, king of all Persia, found his chariots were faster and quieter when animal fat was put on the axles. He also had sharp scythes fitted to the axles to clip off the legs of the enemy when riding in battle.

For years the natives of India refused to grease the axles of their carts because the animal fat they used was contrary to their religious principles. Of course, the dry hubs created a terrible noise whenever the cart was in use.

Just recently a revolutionary new concept in lubricants was introduced to U.S. motorists. Moly Grease when applied to the chassis of cars, produces dramatic reduction in wear of parts, shimmying, and squeaky noises — makes for easier steering, too.

ALL ABOUT BIRDS by WALDMAN

THE DOVE The dove has come to symbolize peace because it was the bird sent out by Noah to see whether the flood had subsided. When it returned, bearing an olive leaf, Noah knew that land had once again appeared on the face of the earth.

Aphrodite, the Greek Goddess of Love, held the dove sacred. Hence, to this day, the identification of the dove with love and our phrase, "billing and cooing."

The modern woman knows that a dove stands for beauty, for it's the symbol on every gold and blue box of Dove, the new sculptured beauty bar that contains one-quarter cleansing cream.

Hall auction may, by the time PMTA's Fall Meeting of 1961 rolls around, have presented eight pigs of premium stock to the breeders of his county. And the cycle continues to roll.

Will PMTA make a profit on this auction and those it plans to run at subsequent meetings? Well, if it does, Vice-President and General Manager Edward Gogolin says, the profits will be deposited in a fund from which PMTA hopes to found an annual agricultural scholarship at Pennsylvania State University.

Does it ever seem to you that life's becoming too complicated? Well, it sometimes seems that way to me—but I always comfort myself by thinking that, as life gets too complex for me, there are specialists who can take care of things I'm not quite capable of handling.

My automobile, for example. Time was when a man could lift the hood of any car, tinker with it, kick it and coax it, and have it run perfectly. But the modern auto is complicated—and requires a specialist to take care of it.

How many people would even attempt to correct the kinks in an automatic transmission, or reline the power brakes? Or take up the excessive play in the power steering mechanism?

Not many, I'll bet. But the comforting thought is that, as your car has become more complex, your auto mechanic has become a real professional—a kind of a "doctor" of autos.

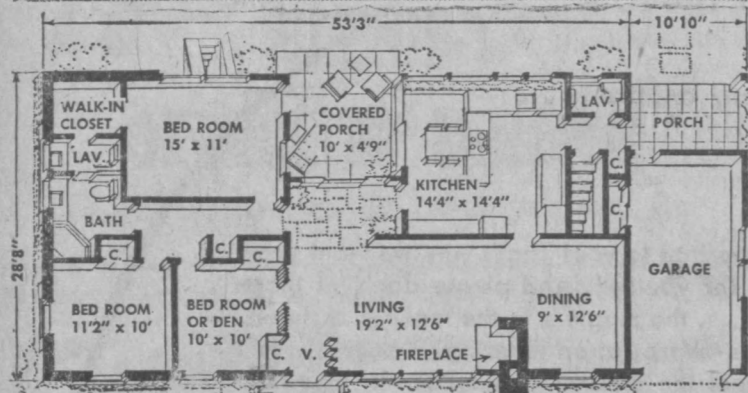

He can not only correct your automobile's faults, he can prevent trouble from happening. This takes real training and study on his part. There's more to what he does than just aptitude; what he has to learn is every bit as complicated as your automobile.

Give him credit; he's a specialist... a true "pro". And you can rely on him to take care of your car just as you rely on your doctor to soothe the kinks in your body.

Plan Loaded With Luxury Aimed to Keep Costs Low

A house that comes as close to offering luxury living at low cost as any ever designed is shown in this plan by architect Rudolph A. Matern, of Jamaica, N.Y.

It is compact and can be built on a small lot, yet it has such features for graceful living as two complete lavatories in addition to a complete bathroom, two porches, a 28-foot living-dining area, fireplace, separate entrance foyer, breakfast nook, and combination den-bedroom.

Outside, the house has that "solid citizen" look that makes a home welcome in any neighborhood. To enhance this appearance, Matern designed a low, hip-style roof with a wide overhang. The deep green blend of asphalt shingles specified by the architect helps maintain the long, low look, yet gives the house the distinction of more exterior color.

Louver shutters of ponderosa pine flank windows and the entrance door. They add more outside color and help make the house seem bigger by accentuating the horizontal line. Painted in a color to harmonize with the roof, the shutters help unify the entire structure. These are stock pine shutters, available from building material dealers.

Thick Insulation Now Means Lower Cooling Costs Later

Workman uses pneumatic equipment to install a 6-inch thickness of mineral wool in the attic floor of a house in preparation for central air conditioning. The 6-inch thickness, recommended by engineers for ceilings of air-conditioned homes, also is available in batts of mineral wool.

Insulate for air conditioning when you build or remodel a home, even if the house doesn't have a cooling system.

This is the advice of leading home comfort authorities, based on predictions that within a few years central air conditioning will become almost as important to the average family as their automobile is today.

This means that chances are good you'll be in the market for an air-conditioning system in the future. Proper insulation now will make it possible for you to save money when that day comes on both equipment and its operation.

The recommended thicknesses of insulation for central air conditioning are 6 inches of mineral wool in ceilings, a minimum of 3 inches in walls, and 2 inches in floors where needed.

Research has shown that these thicknesses of mineral wool make it possible for a smaller, less expensive air-conditioning system to do an efficient cooling job. Without mineral wool, or with significantly lesser amounts, a bigger, costlier system would be required for adequate cooling.

Cyprus—A Center of Gravity in Middle East Crisis

AMERICAN MARINES are on the beaches of the Biblical lands. Consequently, the island of Cyprus where Paul and Barnabas embarked on their journey to spread Christianity to the West is now a kingpin in the defense of the democratic world against Communism.

There are two communities on Cyprus—Turks and Greeks—and Greek demands for the annexation of the Island have thrown them into strife, jeopardizing the position of the West.

The conflicting claims are as follows: the Greeks assert that since they are in the majority, the Island should be joined to Greece. The Turks state that the Island was Turkish for 350 years and has never been Greek. Moreover, it is 600 miles from Greece but only 40 from Turkey, and is an extension of the Turkish coastline guarding Turkey's life-line with the West. In addition, Turks own 40% of the land, and are equally entitled to self-determination.

At this critical juncture in the Middle East, it would appear that the best solution of these divergent claims is the partitioning of the Island between Greeks and Turks, since self-determination on which opposing claims are essentially based would be met in full for both parties.

Salt Prevents Abortions Caused by Weeds

It has been found that cattle that are starved for salt frequently resort to eating weeds to satisfy their strong craving for salt or anything that approximates the taste of salt. Quite a number of weeds contain large amounts of nitrates and are known to cause abortion in cows.

To avoid abortions and other forms of weed poisoning losses, it is essential that your cattle and other livestock on pasture have free access to all the salt they may want. This holds true regardless of the kind of pasture and in all periods of the growing season.

The Wisconsin Experiment Station last year reported that many mysterious abortions occurred in otherwise healthy cows that were grazing on unimproved marshland pastures. The station workers traced the abortions to weeds. The weeds most often found responsible for abortions were red-berried elder, certain species of goldenrod, stinging nettle, and white and purple boneset. Other weeds found high in nitrates and potential causes of abortion are: Bull thistle, Canada thistle, burdock, lambs quarters, pigweed and young plants of cinquefoil.

area aborted, the rest having healthy calves. However, seven out of eight heifers on the untreated pasture aborted.

In continued tests 10 out of 12 heifers aborted on wild, weedy marshland pastures while only one aborted on pasture without weeds. Proper fertilization as well as spraying for weeds is recommended.

There are many areas throughout the country where the pasture conditions are similar to the test areas in Wisconsin and good farmers will prevent abortions in their stock by taking care in fertilizing and by spraying for weed control. Even in the range country where weed killers and proper fertilization may be out of the question, ample and convenient salt supplies will reduce the danger of abortion caused by these troublesome weeds.

Question: We have been using a direct-cut forage harvester for making grass silage and we have a problem in portioning a given amount of preservative for each ton of forage. We have no means of weighing the forage. Can you suggest a way of closely estimating the weight of a wagon load of chopped green hay?

Answer: Loose chopped green forage as it is hauled in from the field will weigh about 15 pounds per cubic foot. With this weight estimate it should not be difficult to determine the cubic content and the approximate weight of your truck or wagon load of chopped forage.

VA said the allowance is payable for: (1) Veterans of any war or the Korean Conflict; or (2) Peacetime veterans who were receiving VA compensation at time of death, or who were discharged or retired for disabilities incurred in line of duty.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Bonds
BABSON PARK, Mass., Sept. 4—While stocks have been firming moderately in recent months, the trend in bond prices has been weaker. It must be remembered, however, that in bonds, the maturity—as well as price—must be given due consideration in determining yield.

Government Bonds
Government bonds are bought mostly by banks and insurance companies. Because the yield is so small and they are subject to taxation without benefit of any dividend credit, private investors as a rule do not make very heavy commitments in these issues. When they do buy governments, they usually look for very short maturities selling around par. However, elderly people often buy certain maturities of government bonds which are selling at a discount and which the (federal) government will accept at par upon death for estate taxes. Your broker can give you a list of the special issues which have this privilege.

Many investors buy government bonds only in time of war or other national emergency as a patriotic duty. But the large numbers who do wish governments primarily for safety, or for liquidity, usually buy the Savings Bonds (Series E and G). Most municipal and revenue bonds should be attractive for investors in high income brackets.

Corporate Bonds
Ordinarily, business firms issuing corporate bonds look to the life insurance companies for support. The life companies periodically figure when (and in what amounts) they will need cash at a given future date to fulfill their underwriting obligations as indicated by actuarial tables. Their bond buying is pegged to these requirements. Life insurance companies are also heavy bond purchasers because the kind and number of stocks they can buy are restricted by law. Fire underwriters, however, are free to buy common stocks without restriction; but in practice they usually hold sizable quantities of high-grade corporate bonds.

As a rule, corporate bonds should be avoided by the ordinary investor when inflation is on the uptrend because the money thus invested will buy less when the bonds come due. The only corporate bonds I recommend at the moment for private investors are "convertibles." With these you can "have your cake and eat it too." If deflation should come and stocks go down, you can forget the convertible feature and insist on payment in cash. Or inflation comes and stocks go up, you can turn these bonds into stocks. Unfortunately, however, there are not many good convertible bond issues available. Most of these sell at quite a premium.

Prices And Outlook
During the past year, the Dow-Jones corporate bond average fluctuated from a low of 84 in November to a high of 91 in June 1958; at the present time this index is 88. As to future price: This depends almost wholly on the price of money and the trend of general business. It is certainly not wise to buy bonds—even the highest grade—when your banker feels sure money rates will go higher. However, it is a mistake to think that money rates alone will determine the trend of bond prices. It is true that bond prices are not usually so quickly responsive to general business trends as are stocks. But it is foolhardy to believe that bond prices will not or cannot be affected by sharp changes in the over-all business picture, no matter what the prevailing interest rate.

A Final Word of Advice
However attractive bonds may seem to you, don't build an investment reserve of long-term maturity bonds. Long-term, even those of the very highest quality, are poor risks at any time. A 1% rise in interest can wipe out a number of years' income on long-term bonds. Try to stick to short-term governments, good convertibles, and tax-exempts that you expect to hold to maturity. Before you invest your corporation's money in bonds, be sure you realize your Corporation must pay 52% of any profit to the federal government. There is no tax relief or "credit" as is the case with dividends you receive on stocks.

Before buying any bonds, consult your banker who will give you his frank appraisal of interest rates and business trends. Before buying stocks, consult an investment counselor. Any free advice about the stock worth just about what it costs or bond markets is usually you—nothing! Roger W. Babson.

the world-wide Communist movement have been impressed with the zeal with which the Communists dedicate themselves to their "cause." They contrast this with the apathy of so many Americans toward the cause of freedom, and some of them wonder whether our way of life can survive when its enemies give themselves over entirely to their "cause" while patriotism in the United States has declined in scope and intensity.

We need to revitalize our patriotism. One of the vital areas for cultivating a forceful love of country is the schools. No school administration is fulfilling its responsibility if it is failing to stimulate in the hearts and minds of children under its care a profound respect and deep loyalty to our nation. The best way to accomplish this is to teach the children the facts about our nation, its dramatic history, its unparalleled progress and all about the political and economic institutions that have made possible its progress and our individual prosperity and freedom.

Reverence For America
Every American school child, besides learning that our nation is founded on faith in God, should be given the opportunity to generate a reverence for our flag; our National Anthem, the Star Spangled Banner; the Declaration of Independence; the United States Constitution; and to be thrilled at the long list of highlights in our nation's forward progress. Every school should have the Stars and Stripes displayed and hold periodic ceremonies to dramatize the significance of patriotism. One of the most inspiring stories in the literature of the nations of the world is the story of the writing of the Star Spangled Banner.

This year the American Heritage Foundation asked the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra to record the Star Spangled Banner on a high fidelity RCA Victor record (78 RPM). The results are two tremendous renditions of our stirring national anthem. The Heritage Foundation has made a gift of the record to every urban high school, grammar school, and elementary school in the nation.

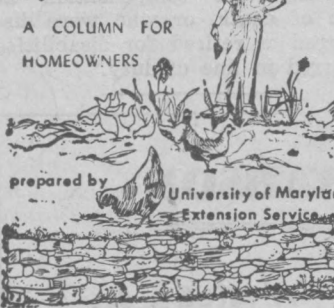

To Rural Schools
The American Farm Bureau Federation has joined with the Heritage Foundation and now every rural and community school in the nation is getting one of the records. Farm Bureau local officials in every community and county are making formal presentations of the records to their colleges and schools. This record distribution is a part of the Farm Bureau's nationwide Good Citizenship Program. The full program sets an example for every other organization in the nation. Through the full program every one of the approximately 8,000,000 men, women and children in Farm Bureau families across the nation are stimulated to be active citizens—getting an understanding of citizenship responsibilities in our great Constitutional Republic and learning how to intelligently participate in its political and governmental life.

School officials are urged by the Farm Bureau to use the new hi-fi Star Spangled Banner recording as a daily or weekly stimulator for a program in American citizenship: (A) to focus attention on a significant phase of our heritage; (B) to stimulate a study of our heritage of freedom and what it means; (C) to help students acquire a new appreciation of our National Anthem.

Full Courses Needed
Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said: "It is hoped that this new high-fidelity recording will instill in the thousands of young Americans attending our schools a deeper appreciation of our National Anthem, and a greater understanding of the rights and responsibilities of our treasured American heritage. I hope that it will stimulate a study of the true basic freedoms that we have, how we got them, and why they need to be defended by Americans everywhere."

Kenneth W. Ingwalson, chairman of the AFBF Citizenship Committee, told me that Farm Bureau officials were thrilled with the receptive attitude of the school toward this project. Those schools which want to go a big step further and establish full American citizenship courses can obtain course outlines developed in the Harding Academy at Searcy in American History, American Government, American Economics, Civics and World History—are available at printing costs, 10c each.

Lawn And Shrubbery
If you are starting a new lawn this is the month for it, although an earlier start may be advisable for the more northern counties of the state.

Lawns started in fall have a better chance for survival for several reasons. Nights are cooler, the soil is warmer and there is less evaporation of moisture. The grass roots penetrate more deeply in preparation for winter and there is less competition from weeds which generally are going into dormancy at this time.

Most lawn grasses like a well-limed soil. If lime is needed, apply one 80 pound bag of ground limestone or a 50 pound bag of hydrated lime for each 1000 sq. feet of lawn area. Work the lime well into the top six inches of the soil before seeding.

If you want to be sure to induce good root growth, add phosphate to the soil at the same time that you lime. Bone meal can be added at the rate of 25 to 40 pounds of 1000 square feet of area or use the same amount of 18 to 20 per cent superphosphate.

An application of commercial fertilizer at the rate of 25 pounds to each 1000 sq. feet can be added just before seeding. Use 4-12-4 or a similar grade of fertilizer, working it into the surface to a depth of 1 or 2 inches and spreading it evenly so that it will not burn the seedlings.

Do not seed too heavily. One or two pounds of a high grade seed mixture should be sufficient for each 1000 sq. feet. It is more important for the soil to be fertile and in good condition than to have a thick growth of grass that may not be able to survive.

Most grass seed mixtures for fall will contain Kentucky Bluegrass with some domestic rye and some White Clover. For areas that are partially shaded by trees and shrubs, the amount of bluegrass should be reduced and an equal amount of fescue added—Chewing's fescue is usually used.

If a quick cover is desirable, overseed with an additional quarter-pound of domestic rye grass for each 1000 sq. feet.

Cover the seed lightly, using a rake. Rolling the seeded area makes a good firm seed bed.

Easy Way To Learn Water-Skiing

What with satellites, rockets and such—launching devices for space travel are becoming common in the news. However at Cypress Gardens they have come up with a launching device to conquer water travel—it teaches a novice to waterski in seconds. As lovely "Tweedles" Becker stands on the launching ramp, Buddy Boyle lowers the ramp hydraulically and then gently lets her out with the brake on the Powerwinch. The winch, also used later to Retrieve Tweedles, operates on 12 volt battery and has a pull of 3,000 pounds.

Thick Insulation for Cooling May Cost Not a Red Cent

If you are planning to build a house with air conditioning, or to install a cooling system in an existing house, properly installed insulation may not cost you a cent, says Andrew C. Lang, author of books about the home.

"It's a fact," says Lang, "that mineral wool insulation in thick enough amounts so efficiently keeps heat outside in summer that it's possible to install a smaller, lower-cost cooling system than you'd need without insulation or with just a little of it."

Often, Lang points out, the money you can save on a smaller central air conditioning system is at least as much as the complete cost of the insulation.

Adequate insulation also reduces the cost of operating the system. It can save as much as 40 percent annually on heating-fuel bills.

"The cash saving isn't the only value of insulation," Lang adds. "You get a bonus in comfort, since mineral wool keeps room temperatures at a more even level all year round and cuts chill drafts in winter."

Some "do's" and "don'ts" recommended by Lang for an air-conditioned house are:

Do insist on thick insulation. Recommendations for mineral wool are at least 6 inches in the ceiling, a minimum of 3 inches in walls, and 2 inches in floors over areas such as crawl spaces, attached garages, and porches.

Do insist on proper installation. A qualified contractor has the know-how and equipment to do the job right.

Do deal with a qualified air conditioning contractor who has a good reputation. His skill in installation is just as important as the brand of equipment he sells.

Don't forget the importance of shade and orientation of the house on its site. Trees, high fences, and awnings on the east and west sides of the house will help keep the house cool. If you're building a house, insist on wide overhangs on the south. Place the house on the lot so that broad sides face north and south, and large window areas are away from the late afternoon sun.

Don't guess and gamble when you repaint, reroof, or redecorate the exterior of your home in other ways, says Margara Hargreaves, a leading California home color stylist.

If you can't afford the services of a professional color stylist, says Miss Hargreaves, try a number of color combinations on enlarged photographs of your house. Here are steps to follow for an exterior color scheme everyone will like:

1. Take—or have taken—a good photo of the house, and order at least a dozen 8 by 10-inch enlargements made on matt-surfaced paper.

2. Sit down under a good light with the photographs and a box of quality water colors and start thinking of colors you honestly like. Color one photo at a time.

3. Miss Hargreaves says good color stylists always start with the roof because this is a large, important color area, and provides a color "key" for the other components of the house. Since asphalt shingles are available in almost every color imaginable, you can "let yourself go." Keep in mind, however, that if your house is tall and boxy it will look better with a dark roof color. If it's small and low, a light color will make it seem bigger.

4. Choose any sidewall color that appeals to you, as long as it doesn't clash with the roof color. A good idea is to start on the first photo with a sharp color, and work toward softer shades as you go along. This will give you a range of contrasts.

5. Trim, windows, shutters, flower boxes, and doors are important color areas. Color stylists have found that trim and windows painted the same color as the roof can give unity to the color scheme. Doors, shutters and flower boxes are good spots to use sharp accent colors.

Workman carefully fits section of 6-inch mineral wool batt into place between two adjacent batts to give full, gap-free protection in the ceiling of this house being insulated for air conditioning. This goes along with the advice of home building authority Andrew C. Lang, who says: "Insist on proper installation of insulation to get full value from air conditioning."

Do not be in a hurry to cut the lawn after the seedlings are up. A better lawn will result if the seedlings are allowed to grow to 3 or 4 inches before the first cutting.

Let's see now, what sport is next Marbles, tidley winks, checkers, football, "ootball" that's it, let's talk about football. What did you say? How did the "Crumbs" make out? "Crumbs," let's see, is that something to eat? "No," oh yessir, I know now who you mean. Yessir, they made out." No they didn't win the pennant. Second?, third?, fourth?, "wait a minute sir, they finished last and they made out all season they were going to finish higher." "Sir", oh, six. What was that?, oh yes, let's see, uh-hu, fifteen." "Par-don, eh, that's the cellar, yessir that's where you don't have to worry about another team finishing lower than you do." "Sir, how do you think the Coits will make out this year? Sir, how do you think the Coits will make out this year? Sir, wel how do you like that, walked away without answering my question, after I was good enough to scoop him on the local scene." "Ma'am, it's just a saying for the last place team, What's that ma'am? Yes, ha-ha, I guess you could say that." Let me ask my fans about that? "Is basement replacements the same as cellar-dwellers?" "What's that Sonny, oh, you want me to answer that? You'll have to wait sonny, these other people have questions. Sonny, will you be a good boy and get lost. Now Sir, what? Pardon me sir, Sonny, here's a brand new baseball, now git. Now what was tha—. Just a minute, Sir. Listen kid, you got a ball, what do you want now?, a bat. It's not polite to interrupt. Now don't start crying, kid, I'll answer your question. What was it again? Will the little-leaguers who are too old to play in the little league next year be able to sign up with the Crumbs? Here take this new bat kid, while I read over the by-laws of the Pen-Mar League. You're welcome, kid, hey! wait a minute, you forgot your ball. Well, guess I better read up on the by-laws. Some of these questions stump me. Can't keep "Bub" waiting, have to go now. Next week, I'll have the players averages and some statistics and season's highlights. Regardless of records, this team was tops.

C. D. Advises Food Storage

Canned Foods Month—September—has the support of the Maryland Civil Defense Agency, says its Director Sherley Ewing. Such a special event gives us an excellent opportunity to call to the attention of the people of Maryland the necessity for storing canned foods for emergency use, he said. Scientists, according to Mr.

Ewing, predict that it may be necessary for persons to stay under cover for as much as two weeks following a hydrogen bomb attack to escape the danger of deadly radioactive fallout. Persons who will survive such a period, said the Director, are those who have provided adequate shelter and have stored food and water supplies. Such food storage would be helpful not only for war-caused emergencies but could be very useful in peacetime emergencies such as the severe snows of last winter.
