The two recent deaths of swimmers via the vicious shark has thrown a real scare into beach vacationers. Easterners, it is felt, have little to fear from the present invasion of the sharks because to date no incidents or fatalities have been recorded. Two deaths have occurred off the coast of California though. Just a few weeks ago a swimmer was attacked by one of the ocean tigers and lost a leg which resulted in his death, following his rescue by an 18-year-old girl companion. This week another male swimmer was completely devoured by a shark estimated at 12 feet long. Authorities there attribute the migration of the maneating sharks to the mysterious warm water which has been bathing the shores of sunny Cal-

At long last a precious dream of mine has been realized. This week workmen for the town have painted the steel poles on the Square on which the traffic light hangs suspended. The poles are bedecked in a new coat of bright aluminum paint and really stand out. My compliments to the Town Council for this belated

Will a drunken driver be inebriated to such an extent that he'll convict himself? That's the question that confronts the general public brought about by the recent Legislature enacting a law which would make a drunken driver submit, voluntarily, to a test to determine the amount or degree of the state of drunkenness he is in. He now can submit to tests of the breath, blood or urine, just as a supposedly doped race horse is compelled to au The only hitch to the plan is that the drunk has the decision to make and naturally if he is in that state he will not submit to the test. There's only one good point about the legislation that I can see and that is it protects a driver who might have taken some type of medicine for sickness which could make him dizzy and appear to be drunk. Should he be accused by a law officer of could readily submit to the test and be proven innocent of the charge in a matter of moments. About the drunks though, I almost feel the law will be fruitless and in vain.

* * * The decision this week of the County Commissioners to reject a bid on some county road construction is to be commended. The Commissioners have once again demonstrated their ability to guard the taxpayers' money with real businesslike acumen. The bid rejected was the lowest of a number submitted. was at least 40% higher than county engineers' estimates, so the county will do the work itself. I have always maintained that it would be too easy for a number of contractors to get their heads together, inflate bids and take turns as to who would get such a contract, at the expense of the taxpayers. The Commissioners' action has saved the county many thousands of dollars. Nice work boys.

As of now, there are an esti-mated 2,400,000 Federal civilian employees, of which in round numbers 70,000 are in the territories and possessions, and 130,-000 in foreign lands.

Altogether, all government civilian employ-ment is estimated as now running well in excess of 7,500,000. Thus of the present employed ranks, about one out of every nine people taking home pay checks are deriving them from government.

This explains why the Federal government and the many state governments are in serious financial difficulties.

The Federal government is employing alone three times as many people in civilian jobs as the nation's entire mining industry, almost twice as many as are employed on the nation's farms, slightly more than are employed by all the nation's financial houses, banks, insurance companies and real estate firms, and almost as many as the total employees of all the construcemployees of tion contractors.

Not only is this vast army of government employees sopping up huge chunks of tax money, but they are so numerous they constantly get in hair of those trying to make a dollar out of private enterprise.

This fact was brought out quite succintly in a recent sub comhearing of the En e Small Business committee on the growing profession in those legging industry which was pro-I over by Sen. Russell Long. | Chia. ..

Testimony stated "Big government is one of the greatest problems of small business . . . the small operator who asks how in the world he can be expected to make a living with so many government people continually try-ing to find something wrong or information."

A partial list of the government agencies a small sawmill operator has to contend with was entered into the testimony.

This partial list includes Inter-

Federal Reserve Board, Department of Agriculture, Office of Defense Mobilization.

As already stated, this is just a partial list of the Federal agencies that swarm around the small sawmill operator.

Have Your Car Safety Checked

By Martha Johnson Dodge Safety Consultant

If you live in one of the 2,000 communities that have regular safety check programs, the few minutes it takes to run through the safety check lane may save you, other motorists and pedes-trians from being injured.

Even though you may think your car is in perfect operating condition, chances are there's still something that could cause an accident.

Last year, among the three million vehicles checked in this program, one out of five was found to need safety service. Safety check lanes are set up at convenient locations to offer you a free check of about 10 major items of your car. A lot of work goes into setting up the lanes and a lot of people give their time and service so all of us will have safe cars to drive. Manning the lanes are mechan-ics loaned from automobile and tire dealers and independent garages and service stations. According to Charles C. Freed, chairman of the Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee, the 10 items most often checked on each car are brakes, front lights, rear lights, steering, tires, ex-haust system, glass, windshield wipers, rear view mirror and

What would be your guess on this question: What is the labor cost in an automobile selling for $2,000? Most people no doubt would guess the labor cost at 25 to 30 per cent of the selling price. A few might guess as high as 50 per cent. Actually, after direct and indirect taxes are deducted, labor costs amount to approximately 80 per cent of the selling price of a new car. And that's about what it amounts to in any manufactured product-80 per cent. This fact emphasizes the part wage raises play in the price of products to consumers.

If wage raises come as a result of increased productivity, because of improved machine tools, manufacturing techniques and worker efficiency, then the consumers as well as the workers have a chance to benefit. In this situation prices can be lowered or quality and service improved - or both. If wage raises, on the other hand, are not based on increased productivity then the price of the product manufactured goes up. And when prices go up, the very people who got the wage raises soon find that their dollars are not buying as much as they previously did, so they begin thinking about another raise. Wages Boosting Prices

This is the process of leapfrogging-wages going up, then prices going up, then wages going up again, and so on and on. The people who are not on industrial payrolls suffer to a greater degree than the wage earners, and the people on retirement or other fixed income are terrifically hard hit. This situation is out of character with the traditional American way of life which, for a century, has been producing more and more goods, of higher and higher quality at lower and lower prices-thereby constantly improving the living standard of a profit unless the product he manufactures, or the service he renders, attracts buyers in the competitive market. Consumers won't buy if the quality is lower or cost is higher than a competitor's wares, or if they can't afford it. The market is not likely to expand unless there is a constant improvement in quality and/or reduction in price. Henry Ford started selling his Model T's at nearly $1,000, but each year as he mastered his mass production techniques and added machine tools, he cut the selling price - and each year people could afford to drive Model T's. Within a few years he was selling the cars for less than $300—and millions of people could buy them. Most manufactured items have a similar history. But today prices on many items are continuing

Recently we made a study of a $2,000 automobile— to see what made it cost $2,000. You'll no doubt be surprised at what we found: It takes 41/2 tons of coal, 234 tons of iron iron ore, 50 pounds of cotton, 14 pounds of finished wool, or synthetic materials, aluminum, zinc, lead, copper, and countless ohter raw materials to make an automobile. Without the addition of labor costs, these things are worth about $22. But these raw materials require the accumulated labor of thousands of people in countless crafts to transfirm them into a finished automobile.

Many, Many Workers Minors dig the coal and iron ore; railroad and maritime workers transport these materials to the steel mill where other workers convert the ore into steel. Then the fabricating plant workers come into the picture. The cotton accumulates labor cost when the farmer tills the soil; the workers sow the seed, and others cultivate and harvest the crop. Other workers transport it to the textile mills-and finally the cloth reaches the auto plant. When all of the parts and materials finally reach the factory for assembly, the labor costs of automobile workers, of course, must be added to the price of the car. In the $2,000 automobile, taxes can be figured at about $500. Direct and indirect labor costs add up to approximately $1200 of the $1500 balance—or 80 per cent. And who gets the $300? Water Rights Bill Being Studied

Two major problems relating to water rights in this country are the relationship of state and federal authority, and the need for and character of state water right laws.

These were the major points presented at the sixth National organizations and groups in the all citizens. field of agriculture and land and water use.

Farm Bureau is currently supporting two water rights bills, S. 1416 and H.R. 5555 which, if enacted by Congress, would definitely establish state water rights and individual water rights acquired under state law.

Mr. Triggs pointed out that "historically, the responsibility for allocating water between compettitive uses and users has been that of the state."

according to W. S. King, district manager of the Hagerstown social of this increase in the number of

However, many disabled workers made eligible under this change have still not applied for their disability payments. If they delay, their applications until after

September 1959, King pointed out, they may lose one or more months workers who file applications now may receive payments back as far as the month of September, 1958. But after September, pay-vantages. Much depends upon the health of the parents and children,-whether they should go to a dry climate or a normal climate,—to a hot climate or a cool climate. This is something you should talk over with your local doctor before making a decision.

Large vs. Small Cities Or Towns

I, however, will take the responsibility of advising you to avoid big cities such as New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, New Orleans, Cleveland, Detroit, and perhaps San Francisco and Los Angeles. If you have young children, I would advise you not to locate even in any of the suburbs of these. With a total population of over 20,000,000 people, they could all expect destruction in event of World War III. Only a few cities might be destroyed; but no one knows which ones.

I do not expect to see a World War III for at least ten or more years, but the chances are that the United States will sometime be in some major war. Such a war will be fought by missiles of various kinds carrying atomic warheads. This means that one or more of the above cities will be wiped out during the first 24 hours of the war. No advance notice will be given. The surprise attacks will come as suddenly as that on Pearl Harbor. In the same way, our enemies will strike while our delegates and theirs are discussing possible peace. Advantages Of Small Cities

Were I looking for a job today, I should choose some small | were a young couple, all else city or town fifty to one hundred miles from one of the ten big cities mentioned thove. My reasons: (1) Such smaller places will never be targets of intercontinental missiles. (2) Their churches, schools, and clubs are much better for your family's future. (3) The costof-living is less than in a big city. (4) Your living conditions-whether in a small house or an apartment-will be much better for the rent you pay. (5) Your children will make better friends - espcially if you join some church and the children attend Sunday School.

Land Prices And Profits The price of land varies largely with the population of the community. This means you will get more real health and joy for a dollar invested in a small city. Furthermore, land in most large cities is at its peak for this cycle; while land in smaller cities should still be on the way up. Be sure to settle in a progressive and growing location, not one that has seen its best days.

When buying a home be sure to get enough land. Buy a small house, but get an extra adjoining lot if possible. Buy them on the right side of a welldrained and growing city or town. Every community has its growing and most 'aristocratic" portion. Start out with the prestige of living in the right section with the best neighborswho own their homes.

Athlete's Foot The Bane of Civilization

Athlete's foot is not only the most common of the superficial fungus infections which plague mankind, but also the most costly in man hours lost. It is a disease due to civilization, or at any rate to wearing shoes, and is more common in men than in women. Medical statistics reveal that at least 85% of the population is affected.

The name of the disease is derived from the fact that it is often spread among athletes sharing common shower baths. Athlete's foot, however, is by no means limited to persons using shower baths. Re-infection or shower baths. Re-infection or flare-ups may come from contaminated footwear, swimming pools, bathing beaches, etc.

This disease is more annoying than dangerous. It can become dangerous, however, when it causes a break in the skin setting up an ideal condition for other bacteria to invade and inother bacteria to invade and infect the area. Athlete's foot is caused by a low form of plant life called a fungus. Some of it is almost always on everyone's feet. It causes no trouble unless it grows. This fungus, like mold on food, grows in warm, moist and poorly ventilated places. The spaces between the toes make ideal places for a fungus growth.

When this fungus on the feet grows, it causes athlete's foot. The symptoms are: increased sogginess between the toes, scaling, itching (in most cases), small blisters on the feet. When the disease continues and be-comes worse, there can be larger blisters and raw places, swelling and redness.

A new potent drug, Fungacetin, researched and developed by The Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation has been found to be most effective in the treatment and prevention of all forms of athlete's foot. In a clini-cal test recently conducted by the Department of Dermatology, University of Wisconsin Medical School, on 36 patients suffering with varying degrees of athlete's | day.

foot, they found that treatment with Fungacetin ointment resulted in 32 cures within a period of eight weeks. Moreover, Fungacetin, which is available also as a liquid and powder, was found to be completely nonirri-tating.

The following rules may help you to maintain good foot

1. Keep your feet dry and free from soggy dead skin.

Across From Courthouse BALTIMORE STREET - GETTYSBURG, PA. That Holiday Itch!

ALMOST EVERYONE, and particularly the junior mem-bers of the family have had vacations spoiled with violent "holiday itches" . . . caused by poison ivy, mosquito and bee bites, hornet stings, bramble scratches, cuts, abrasions, heat rash, athlete's foot or the hundreds of other bugaboos faced during vacation. These can be most painful and scratching can result in torn skin and even develop and spread infection. Well, here's good news. Your druggist has, or can easily procure for you, a new liquid formulated by Cuticura to cope with common skin injuries and irritations. It's cooling, soothing and possesses quadruple anesthetic-antiseptic power. A bottle included as regular equipment for your beach or camping trips, your picnics and vacations is a "must." This pleasantly scented jade green liquid will halt any tendency to itch and scratch . . . is your insurance for a trouble free

Corn Silage or Corn Fodder For Steers

Some years ago while still connected with the Ohio Experiment Station, I was visited by a large-scale cattle feeder operating south of Columbus. This feeder expressed himself enthusiastically about feeding cut corn fodder, ears and all, just as it comes out of corn shocks in the field. It was, of course, prop-erly supple-mented with This catso much sort than they ever had on corn silage that he thought he would quit making silage in the future. This was a little after the New Year.

On a return visit around the first of April he had another story to tell. He said his corn crop was nearly gone and his calves were far from ready for

What had happened, he said, was that with the precipitation and advent of warmer weather toward spring, the chopped corn stalks had become less and less palatable, just at the time that the steers had become increasingly choosy of their feed. They refused more and more of the cut stalks and leaves, so that increasingly larger proportions of the forage part of the corn went in the ground and into the manure. The steers had simply picked out the corn grain and, while it lasted, had made good gains made good gains.

He said, "I've learned my lesson. When I fed corn silage in previous years, the steer calves came along somewhat more slowly because they had to eat the entire silage and not pick out merely the grain portions. But, they did not waste a bit of feed that way and the silage lasted until they were ready for market."

This feeder's experience is a verification of tests carried on many years before at both the Missouri and Illinois Experiment Stations showing that a corn crop put into a silo had from 30 to 50 per cent more feed value than the same crop put up and fed out of the shock.

Question: For avoiding "thumps" or anemia in suckling pigs, we have been swabbing the underline of the sow with a copperas solution but would like to get away from a messy condition that develops as soon as her belly touches the bedding. What new methods bedding. What new methods are recommended?

Answer: Iron-copper pills are available for this purpose. One pill may be given a pig when three days old and another pill when the pig is ten days old. A "balling gum" will do the trick. Still another effective method has been found to be an iron deutron solution in be an iron-dextran solution, injecting 2 cc. into a pig at three days of age. In some of the tests, a second injection at three weeks of age has given further benefit. A simple home remedy for avoiding anemic pigs is to throw a shovelful of clean soil in a corner of the pen or creep where the little pigs love to chew it and benefit from its iron and copper.
