With this issue of your Chronicle, the paper observes its 80th birthday. Founded by the late Samuel Motter, the paper was born in 1879 and has continued uninterrupted throughout the interim except for a period of five years, during World War II, when the late editor, John D. Elder, passed away in 1943. It was during this period that the paper was suspended for five years.

From its infancy to the present time the paper has become an integral part of this community's life, reporting community events, deaths, births, tragedies, times of prosperity and depression. It has weathered bad and good times and has emerged as one of the finest weekly papers in the state. There were times when editors had to fear for their safety after some irate reader had become incensed over an article pertinent to him and a number of times libel suits have been threatened. Fortunately though, the editors have been fairly accurate and in many cases of trouble handled the situation diplomatically, eventually avoiding any suit and ill feelings. From a financial point of view the town is too small to support a newspaper and it has been only through the ingenuity and business acumen of the owners that the paper has been able to weather the storm. If it weren't for out-of-town advertising and job printing your favorite newspaper would have been out of existence many many years ago.

Because today is our birthday, 80 years old, we feel that perhaps an abbreviated history of the Emmitsburg Chronicle would be interesting to read so we devote the balance of this week's column to the paper's chronology.

The first newspaper was edited by Mr. McClain, and was published by Mr. Riley, who afterwards moved to Annapolis. This was about 1840. It was called the Emmitsburg Banner. No copies of this paper are available.

The Emmitsburg Star, with C. Grate, editor and proprietor, was first published in 1845. The copy for February 23, 1850, number 46, of volume one is preserved at the Emmitsburg Chronicle now.

Mr. Grate's office was situated where Mr. Lansinger used to live. He continued its publication for a few years.

Mr. Samuel Motter, a graduate of Princeton University, in response to repeated suggestions for the publication of a newspaper in Emmitsburg, on June 14, 1879, issued the first number of the Emmitsburg Chronicle.

The force at that time consisted of Samuel Motter, editor and publisher; Harry Quinn, foreman; Paul Motter, compositor, and John O. Johnston, devil. The plant embraced a Washington hand press and several fonts of type, part of which was purchased in Littlestown and brought here on wagons. The room above Mr. James A. Rowe's shoe store was its home for the first 27 years of its existence.

On March 21, 1889, Mr. Motter died and his widow, Mrs. C. Motter, took charge of the paper. Paul Motter & Co., again Mrs. Motter and Mr. W. H. Troxell were successive publishers of the paper before it was purchased in 1899 by Mr. W. H. Troxell, who in 1906 sold it to Mr. Sterling Galt.

Through the influence of The Chronicle under Mr. Samuel Motter, the correct spelling of the name of this place was established. By carelessness, the original name Emmitsburg became Emmittsburg. The Chronicle insisted on the single "t" and for sometime its efforts were unsuccessful, but at last it proved its contention and the postoffice department made the change.

On June 8, 1906, The Chronicle was taken over by Mr. Sterling Galt as editor and publisher. Then, in 1909, the name of the paper was amended to The Weekly Chronicle.

Following Mr. Galt's demise, Mr. William Sugars bought the paper, followed by a combine of three local businessmen, Henry M. Warrenfeltz, J. Ward Kerrigan, and Michael J. Thompson.

On January 16, 1922, this combine was dissolved and John D. Elder and Michael J. Thompson (Continued on Page Eight)

The next regular meeting night of the club has been cancelled in lieu of charternight activities.

Believe Seton Sainthood Near

Pope John XXIII used the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the American Catholic Seminary in Rome Sunday to announce that there is "reason to hope" that Mother Elizabeth Seton, who founded the Sisters of Charity in 1809, soon will be beatified as the first native American raised to Roman Catholicism's altars.

One other American citizen already has been beatified and canonized as a saint but she was a naturalized immigrant from Italy, Mother Frances Cabrini.

Francis Cardinal Spellman of

New York, Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston, and John Cardinal O'Hara of Philadelphia, 60 other American archbishops and bishops and 300 other American priests applauded the news. Mother Seton's beatification as a blessed and her eventual canonization long has been an objective of American Catholicism.

The 78-year-old Pope clearly realized the effect of his announcement for he saved it carefully to the end of a long address and for the culmination of a lengthy benediction service. The first part of his speech was in Latin, the second in a rather painfully enunciated English. That, too, was in itself a long prepared pleasant surprise for it was the first lengthy address in English the Pope has made since beginning intensive study of the language soon after his election to the papacy a year ago.

The American bishops and priests cheered the Pope's effort in English almost as warmly as the announcement of the approach of the beatification.

council home was burned and the toastmaster introduced a number of charter members and past grand knights. Following the buffet supper, dancing took place.

College Lauded

United States Air Force in a special release recently commended the educational program of Mt. St. Mary's College and announced the selection of six Mt. St. Mary's June graduates for the first Officers' Training School program at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

The release stated: "As only ninety - one college graduates throughout the United States have been selected from well over a thousand qualified applicants for the first class, the nomination of six men from Mount St. Mary's is a testimonial to the outstanding curriculum of the college." The announcement also stated that, since six graduates of the Mount were selected from seven who applied, the percentage of those accepted was greater for the college than for any other institution in the nation.

Graduates selected were Joseph E. Daylor, Harrisburg, Pa.; Kenneth E. Phillips, South Plainfield, N. J.; August Seiler II, Wilmington, Del.; Joseph C. Vane, Wyncote, Pa.; James J. Roche, Jr., Camp Hill, Pa.; and Frank W. Scribblor Jr., East Rochester, N. Y. All will begin training in November.

The college has been presented with a Certificate of Appreciation by the U. S. Air Force Recruiting Service in recognition of the courtesy and cooperation afforded the Air Force team.

Three Fined For Nonconformity With Sanitation Ordinance

Three Emmitsburg property-owners received fines of $300 each at a hearing last Saturday morning before Magistrate Richard J. McCullough. The three were fined for not complying with a local ordinance making it mandatory to hook onto the sewer line. The Town Council had set a deadline of Oct. 1 for property-owners to comply with the ordinance. Warrants were signed by Sewer Commissioner J. Norman Flax and the three were arraigned for hearing Saturday. Magistrate McCullough held the fine in abeyance until October 31 thereby giving the violators sufficient time in which to have the work completed. All promised to meet the deadline.

WOMAN DIES AFTER ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING

An Emmitsburg District 39-year-old woman was fatally wounded Saturday when the gun she was cleaning accidentally discharged and pierced her chest. The deceased woman was Mrs. Aileen Carroll Schwartz of 4010 Virgilia St., Chevy Chase, Md., who also maintained a summer-home near here on the Old Frederick Road.

State Police reported Mrs. Schwartz was helping her husband clean guns Saturday afternoon at about 4:45 when the mishap occurred. The bullet entered the chest and heart and she died almost instantly.

According to police reports Mrs. Schwartz was attempting to clean an Army .30 caliber carbine rifle in a one-room summer cottage at the farm on Mud College Road near Rocky Ridge when she accidentally pulled the trigger with her hand, or knocked it on nearby furniture.

Sitting across the room from her was her husband, 43-year-old U. S. Government worker, Harold Francis Schwartz, co-owner of the 300-acre farm, which is rented to a tenant farmer. Schwartz was cleaning another gun which did not discharge, police said.

Frederick County Medical Examiner Dr. B. O. Thomas pronounced the cause of death as a self-inflicted accidental bullet wound in the chest. State Police, after spending the weekend investigating the shooting with State's Attorney Edwin F. Nikirk, said they were convinced the shooting was entirely accidental.

The Schwartz family had spent the summer in their Frederick County cottage until Labor Day. Since then, they have been coming here only on weekends. They arrived Friday night and were planning to leave Saturday night. Their 11-year-old son, Paul Francis Xavier Schwartz, was playing on a neighboring farm when the shooting occurred. Another son, Peter Carroll Schwartz, had remained at home in Chevy Chase over the weekend.

Mrs. Schwartz was wiping the Army rifle when it discharged in her hands, State Police theorized.

Mrs. Schwartz, the former Aileen M. Rial of Emmitsburg, was the daughter of Dr. Bruce Poole Rial of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Marie Gloninger Rial of St. Anthony's. She had been a member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church and was a graduate of St. Joseph College, Emmitsburg.

In addition to her husband, parents and two sons, she is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Edward G. Borst of Vienna, Austria; Mrs. James McKenna of Chevy Chase and Mrs. John L. Cunningham of Baltimore.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday morning at 9:30 a. m. with Requiem Mass in St. Anthony's Church, Rev. Fr. Hugh Gloninger of Pittsburgh, Pa., cousin of the deceased, officiating. Interment was in St. Anthony's Catholic Cemetery. M. L. Creager and Son, funeral director.

Halloween Parade Planned By Legion

The Francis X. Elder Post 121, American Legion, announced this week that its annual Halloween parade will take place on Saturday night, October 31.

It is the hope of the committee, Harold M. Hoke and Curtis D. Topper, to expand the affair this year by adding various units to the line of march. An invitation is extended to the general public and business groups, as well as organizations, to enter floats, contestants, etc., in the parade.

As usual the parade will form at the Doughboy in West End at 6 o'clock and march-off time will be promptly at 7 p. m. The parade will march down W. Main and E. Main Streets to Federal Avenue and from there to the intersection of Federal Ave. and DePaul St., where it will make a left turn and proceed to St. Joseph's Rectory grounds where refreshments will be served. Following termination of the parade a free dance will be held in the Legion Home with the public being invited, dress being optional.

The committee announces the following prizes to be awarded: Funniest costume, $5, $2, and $1; best looking costume, $5, $2, and $1; most original costume, $5, $2, and $1; best decorated wagon, bicycle or tricycle, $5, $2, and $1. Also to be awarded will be two mystery prizes of $5 each.

Mount Soccer Mentor Experimenting With Platoon System

Mount St. Mary's soccer coach Jim Deegan is experimenting with platoon play this season in the hope of raising the Mountaineer standing in Mason-Dixon Conference play. As in the past, Deegan finds himself with a squad that boasts only four men through the first two teams who have had prior experience. As a result the former West Chester star has to start again with fundamental skills while trying to stave off the experienced booters from the conference's strong teams.

Against American U. in the season's opener Deegan played his platoons in alternate quarters. Trailing at the end of the half on a goal scored against his second quarter team, Deegan saw his starting group come back with two quick goals. The Mountaineers lost their advantage in the fourth quarter when a freshman handled the ball in the penalty area and regulation play ended in a tie. Eventually the fresher Mountaineer starting squad was able to edge the Eagles 4-3 in the second overtime.

Deegan hopes that by running the opposition and keeping the pressure on, his green outfit may be able to pull out those games in which his team is only a goal down starting the final quarter. At the same time his inexperienced players will learn under fire and improve more quickly than in the past.

The Schedule follows: Oct. 16, Loyola, H; 19, Roanoke, H; 21, Washington, H; 23, Randolph - Macon, A; 31, Howard, A; Nov. 7, Towson, A.

OUR STATE UNIVERSITY

In an effort to eliminate the tremendous expense of processing student admission applications at the University of Maryland each year, the university will now require a fee of $10 with each application.

The fee requirement was established because of the large number of students who apply for admission at the university, but do not enroll after they have received certification for admission.

Each application received by the university requires many hours of study, as well as correspondence, and an examination of the student's high school transcript (a photostat of grades sent to the university by the high school).

An example of the enormity of the task can be found in statistics recently issued by one high school: "For our class of 540 seniors we have sent out 2500 transcripts to 300 colleges."

This year the university received approximately 8000 applications. Of this number 4700 were approved for admission, and only 50% of this number annually registered in September.

The non-refundable application fee will not increase the fees of the student who applies for admission and later enrolls. The fee will be applied to the existing matriculation fee at the time of registration.

its heavy clay, it will pay to mix in peat or some other kind of organic matter. Dig deep, 12 inches, or more if the soil is heavy. Break up the lumps. Mix in about 1 pound of 5-10-5 fertilizer for each 25 square feet.

Smaller growing bulbs like crocuses, squills or snowdrops can be planted 2 to 3 inches deep, hyacinths, 4 inches; tulips, 6-7 inches; daffodils, 6-8 inches. If your soil is sandy and light, better plant a few inches deeper.

Set the bulbs firmly in the ground, right side up.

Then firm the soil over the bulb. If you plant them in clusters, 3 to 4 inches apart, one color to a cluster, you can get nice masses of color.

If you want to try this, buy your bulbs from a dealer who has sorted them for colors. Of keep track of the colors of your home grown bulbs. One way to do this is to place a label in the middle of each clump.

There is one catch to planting in clusters—you'll have to separate the bulbs a year or so sooner to keep them from becoming overcrowded.

If they're planted in a row, you needn't pay much attention to color.

Water the ground after planting to dissolve the fertilizer and settle the bulbs.

If you want more information, ask your county agent for USDA Leaflet 439, "Spring - Flowering Bulbs."

Dig Those Roots

It's time to take up roots of dahlia, canna, caladium, gladiolus, tuberous, begonia and tuberose. Here again, it'll pay if you sort and mark them according to color.

Dry them for a day or two. Then place them in winter storage of dry sand or dry peat moss. Store them in a cool, dry place, but one that won't be colder than 45° F.

Garden Notes

If you haven't re-seeded bare spots in your lawn by now, better hold off until early spring. Most grasses won't make enough growth before cold weather.

Get early-picked apples into a cool, humid, well-ventilated storage space as quickly as you can. They'll last longer. If you can't store them, maybe it'd be best to give them away or make apple sauce or cider, maybe even old-fashioned apple butter.

Don't let the cool weather fool you. You still need to keep after plant diseases with fungicide sprays. A general-purpose mixture will protect hollyhocks from rust, and roses against black spot and powdery mildew. Sulfur or Karathane will protect lilacs and zinnias.

Tune to WBAL-TV, Channel 11, each Saturday for Garden Living, 1:30-2:00 p. m.

Bulb Planting Time

If you're buying bulbs, look for ones that are heavy and firm and free from gouges or splits.

Don't plant diseased bulbs, which are moldy, discolored or soft. If you're planting home-grown bulbs, select them on the same basis.

Spring flowering bulbs are ideal for border treatments. They'll grow well in shade, too. Or they look equally as good in flower beds or foundation plantings.

You can plant pansies or other small flowers among the clumps of bulbs to fill in the gaps, and give you longer lasting color effects.

GOD ANSWERS PRAYER IN HIS OWN WAY

"Why didn't God answer my prayer, Preacher?" the man asked his pastor. "I thought God was generous. He didn't give me what I asked for!"

The preacher replied: "Brother, God did answer your prayer. His answer was 'No!'"

Yes, God answers prayer . . . but He answers prayer in His own way.

Many times people expect God to do great things for them, without their doing anything for God in return.

God shares His abundance with us, but He expects us to give Him something in return . . . our time, our talent and our means.

Humility is essential when dealing with God. The man who questions God's generosity does not possess humility. His attitude in questioning God clearly shows this.

In this modern age, whatever belongs to the father belongs to the child, too. The only difference is in the right to personal use. We possess no resource that we would not gladly spend to protect or to help our children in time of need.

There are only two kinds of requests our children could make that we would deny them: (1) for something we know will do them harm, and (2) for things which we know we cannot afford.

God knows no lack! His wisdom of what is good for us far surpasses ours.

God is a better Father than we are, and He makes it possible for us to share in all His goodness, His Wealth and His benefits. While it is true God reserves the right to administer His goods, God withholds nothing from us that we actually need.

To claim God as our Father and in the next breath to declare that there are needs in our lives which cannot be met would be to accuse our heavenly Father of being stingy!

God is not stingy! He is kind and He is generous. He loves His children. He is ready to hear us and to grant our requests.

But when we ask God for anything, we must remember that He knows what is best for us.

God in His infinite wisdom sees all, hears all, knows all. Often He answers prayers in such a way that we may feel the answer has not been given. But we may feel this way because we have already formulated in our minds the answer we want God to give us!

No, we cannot command God to give us any certain thing. We must not order Him to do anything. Rather, we must ask Him in faith according to His will, then it shall be done.

Whatever the answer, we can always rest assured it is the best answer.

All prayers are answered. . . God answers them in His own way!

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Read Psalm 19:9-14.
It pleased the Father that in him (Jesus Christ) should all fullness dwell. (Colossians 1:19).
Two of us, a Pacific Islander and I, were talking of God's goodness. He could not understand why beauty in the world meant so much to me. He said everything was beautiful in his islands. There was nothing harsh or ugly. He grew up knowing only beauty. He took it for granted.
On this earth the evidence of God's goodness is unending. The amazing wonders of His creation stagger us in their complexity. The beauty of the work of His hands is perfect. He became so accustomed to His works, however, that our sense of wonder is dulled. The whole world is shining with the love of God, but we are too busy to notice. We take for granted the laughter of a child, the perfection of a sunset, the grace of a bird.

The giver of all this loveliness saw fit to give to the world His Son, that we might be freed from the ugliness of sin and the deforming power of selfishness. Let us rejoice because we have been given this greatest and most wonderful of all God's gifts. His Son.
Prayer
O God, our Father, we pray that we may never lose our sense of wonder and indebtedness to Thee. Help us to open our hearts to Christ, so that His beauty may shine continually in our lives. In His blessed name we pray. Amen.
Thought For The Day
Today I will open my eyes and my heart to God's goodness and mercy.

A Crisis Developing
The government of the United States is faced with a critical financial crisis, one of the most dangerous in the history of our Republic. Most citizens will be surprised at this statement; many will find it hard to believe. It is human nature to cast off unpleasant thoughts. In our wonderful America today, with all its abundance and pulsating economic strength, a dark spot of danger and a word of warning of its presence are likely to be smothered out of sight and sound by the brilliance of our "good times" sun.
But the truth is that the whole structure of our unparalleled prosperity and economic strength could come tumbling down if the American people do not face up to the cold facts of the Government's financial crisis, and make the right decisions. In a nutshell, the problem is this: The Federal government hasn't any cash to meet its bills; it must borrow $85 billion in the next 12 months, and with the present restrictions and conditions in the money markets, it must practice short-term, high interest financing that could lead to heavy inflation, to the crippling of the nation's productive capacity and a ruinous depression.
President Alarmed
The President, the Budget Director, the Secretary of the Treasury, sound-thinking leaders in Congress and other financial experts view the situation as a mounting crisis. The crisis can be traced to the fundamental fact that the Federal government has been spending more than it takes in, has been getting deeper and deeper in the "hole," and is managing its budget almost altogether by borrowing. Now it has run into trouble borrowing enough.

The source of money to borrow is the savings of individual corporations. A bank can't loan money unless it has depositors; an insurance company can't until it has an accumulation of premiums paid in by policy holders. It is estimated that total savings of corporations and individuals in liquid form today is approximately $27 billion. In other words there is that much money for loans and investments. But there is a demand for almost twice that amount of loans. This great demand pushes up the interest rate.
Difficult To Borrow
Under legal restrictions, the Government can pay no more than 4 1/4% interest for long term borrowings. Industry and private individuals can, under present competitive conditions, afford to pay more. Therefore, the Government cannot sell its long-term bonds with their fixed 4 1/4% interest rate. The President tried to get Congress to raise the long term interest ceiling; Congress refused. Therefore, the Government must now borrow great sums on short-term paper. There is no ceiling on short term interest, and the Government soon will be obliged to pay more than 4 1/2 per cent. The financial experts expect the short term interest to jump to 5% or higher.
Short term government securities usually mature in 13 weeks or 26 weeks. Therefore, stop-gap financing must be practiced. No long-range management of the big debt and annual money requirements of the Government is possible under present laws. The proper word for the management of our Government's fiscal affairs today is "frenzied." And the situation is growing worse.

Big Deficits
In the last 10 years, there have been seven years in which the Federal Government spent more than it took in. The total deficit spending for these seven years, including fiscal 1959's $12.9 billion deficit, was $39.5 billion. The yearly Federal Budget now is running approximately $80 billion. The Federal debt has climbed to approximately $290 billion. This isn't just a vague figure. It is a real debt, costing interest at the rate of nearly $8 billion a year, and having to be constantly refinanced.
If the interest rate which the government is obliged to pay continues to climb, in view of the tremendous sums which the Government must re-finance every few weeks, it may be forced into the destructive practice of forcing the Federal Reserve system to issue "printing press" money. This would rob every citizen through inflation and endanger the whole structure supporting our economic well-being and our freedom. One solution to this dangerous developing crisis would be to drastically raise taxes. One of these—or sharp, perhaps runaway inflation! Which shall it be? It is your decision to make.

with your God."—Micah 6:8.

Arthritis Meets Its Match In New Drug

Before long arthritis may relinquish its title as the nation's number one crippler.
We may never learn the cause of this mysterious and terrible disease that victimizes some 11,000,000 Americans of whom more than half are women. The disease in various forms strikes individuals of all ages.
We may never discover a cure for it, but the conquest of arthritis is coming about through its control by medication.
Just as insulin has given new life to those stricken with diabetes — formerly a fatal disease — scientists are now certain a drug will be found that will alleviate the pain and suffering of arthritis and that will let a person live comfortably.
Long strides in this direction have already been made. Salicylates, as in aspirin, have again become the mainstay of arthritis therapy, but aspirin causes gastric distress and may result in gastric ulcers and even serious gastric bleeding.
A new form of salicylate, without these side effects, was therefore necessary and a new drug, Arthropan, was introduced last Spring to overcome this problem. This sweet tasting, cherry flavored liquid was described as "the most potent salicylate found so far for the rapid relief of pain in various types of arthritis."
The tests with the new drug were carried out at medical institutions by groups of specialists in the field of arthritis and related disorders.
In the entire group of patients treated with Arthropan the doctors reported that
• this drug was far superior to any other salicylate,
• it was absorbed 5 times faster than aspirin and reached its peak blood level 12 times faster than aspirin,
• it was well tolerated with no side reactions,
• it was most consistent in the relief of stiffness and joint pain, which allowed significant increase in comfortable physical activity,
• it could be used by patients with active peptic ulcers.
It is far too soon to call Arthropan the long sought drug that will control arthritis. But dramatic reports to date which cover groups of patients on the drug continuously for so long as 6 months, point out that the drug has more advantages than the combination of steroids and ordinary salicylates (aspirin) in suppressing the symptoms of arthritis.

Lutherans To Meet In Baltimore
The seventy-seventh Annual Convention of United Lutheran Church Women of the Maryland Synod (UCLA), will be held at Epiphany Lutheran Church, Marluth and Raspe Avenues, Baltimore, Maryland, on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 21 and 22, 1959. Presiding at all sessions will be Mrs. H. Dwight Wahaus of Baltimore, president.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"
By C. WILSON HARDER

Readers of this column often write to ask a question somewhat along these lines, "Why is it that there is so often a delay in stopping a monopolistic practice when it is so readily apparent to any one with any business knowledge that such a practice is going on?"
Probably the answer requires many different factors to be explained. Perhaps one is that in the huge mass of legislation that goes before every session of Congress, a committee can fail to understand the need for a remedy proposed by certain legislation. Then, too often, the committee does not receive the proper counsel from the government bureau that is relied upon to furnish advice.
A recent case in point was the failure of the House Interstate and Commerce Committee's subcommittee headed by Rep. Peter Mack Jr. to approve HR 2729.
It is felt that undoubtedly had this bill come onto the floor of Congress it would have passed this session, instead of later.
This bill, called the Equal Pricing Bill, was designed to make it necessary for manufacturers to give their independent dealers the same pricing as they give their own owned and operated retail outlets.
In a nationwide poll of the nation's independent business conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business, 86% of the businessmen approved of this legislation to correct a flagrant and growing abuse of free enterprise.

GOOD VALUES IN TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

The recent dip in stock prices has caused apprehension on the part of some investors. On the other hand, selected issues have been depressed to a point where they appear relatively attractive. The purpose of this study is to point out some of these issues for investors with idle investment funds.
In making investments in this currently unsettled market, the following factors should be taken into consideration:
1—The stock market is still selling at a traditionally high level statistically and there are several forces that might cause it to go lower including: tight money, after-effects from the steel strike and general apprehension of a continuation of the "peace offensive."
2—There are large sums of money awaiting investment and undervalued situations are being constantly sought out.
3—Sufficient investment interest could maintain stocks offering good values near current levels even in the event of a further market decline.
4—These same stocks might advance rapidly in the event of any strong market recovery.
To meet the needs of various investment objectives we have selected a few stocks in several different categories in the hopes of filling various investment needs. Some stocks are known as "sleepers". These are stocks without large followings which we believe offer rather attractive values because of lack of market interest: Aro Equipment Corp., Copperfield Steel, Northwest Airlines, Parker Rust Proof and Ranco.
There are some undervalued high-grade issues which are at-

Reporting Our Weather Conditions

Last week I attempted to give the readers of this column some facts on the causes of hurricanes, tornadoes, cyclones, thunderstorms, etc. This week I should like to touch upon the subject of reporting our weather conditions and of some of the instruments used in collecting these reports. I mention the word 'touch' because each day methods are being used in reporting the weather conditions and space does not allow me to cover the complete subject. Then too, I am not a meteorologist and their methods of reporting the weather conditions are rather complicated for the average person to fully understand.

Meteorology of the ancients was little more than the study of climate without instruments. Nothing was known about the movement of weather from place to place or of the gases that make up the atmosphere. Aristotle was the ancient authority on weather.

After Aristotle, meteorology practically stood still for two thousand years. With the invention of the barometer by Torricelli in 1643 and of the hermetically sealed glass thermometer at about the same time, the science surged forward again. By the end of the eighteenth century much had been learned about the winds of the earth and the distribution of heat and rainfall of the world. The next important step came early in the nineteenth century with the gathering of weather reports by mail. These showed that the great storms of the earth are rotary wind systems which move from place to place. In 1844 when the first telegraph line was constructed it was possible to get simultaneous reports of weather from many sections of the country and to keep up with its movements and changes. The next logical step was to try to predict the weather. Success of these early ventures led to the establishment of government storm-warning services in the larger countries of the world. The government weather service in the United States began in 1870 as a branch of the Army Signal Corps. In 1891 it became known as the United States Weather Bureau.

The physical processes that form weather extend over the earth and for many thousands of feet up through the atmosphere. As a result, the professional practice of weather forecasting requires observations from many stations both on the surface and in the skies above the earth's surface. Weather and the atmosphere know no national boundaries so that all national weather services exchange data for common usage. The real key to success in weather study is an ability to observe significant elements while neglecting the trivial, and to combine observations with physical and mathematical knowledge of the atmosphere.

The selection of a site where the proper exposure can be given to meteorological equipment is indeed very important, since weather observations must be representative of the true atmospheric conditions. An instrument shelter is used to house both the direct reading and recording equipment.

An important instrument in weather observation is the hygrometer. This is a clock-driven recorder, which produces simultaneous records of temperature and humidity on the same chart. Another important instrument used by our meteorologists is the anemometer. This, as I understand it, is constructed of three light metal cups attached radially and equidistant from each other on arms which extend from a vertical spindle. The force of the wind flowing into the cups determines the rate at which the spindle revolves. By means of proper gear reductions, the rotation of the cups is calibrated in terms of wind speed.

Often we hear that so many inches of rain had fallen in a given period of time, or the snowfall amounted to so many inches. These are measured by special gauges. Snowfall is measured in two ways; by depth and by water equivalent. Both snow and rain can also be measured by weight.

Earlier I mentioned about the weather station, the place the weather is under observation 24 hours a day. These stations must make detailed reports at a given time. These reports include many things such as the station number or designation, total amount of cloud, true direction from which the wind is blowing, wind speed in knots, visibility, present weather, past weather, the atmospheric pressure, temperature of the air, and the types of clouds present at the observation point. Some stations also report the amount of precipitation for the six-hour period preceding the observation.

The recent hurricane, Gracie, packed winds up to 125 miles per hour, and had it not been for the many men in our weather observation stations, keeping a close watch on the progress of this hurricane and posting warnings along the coastal areas and informing the public of its course, many more lives would have been

By Ted Kestner

It is decidedly not safe to travel through mountains or a trailless forest after dark. You are liable to run branches into your eyes, to stumble over unseen obstacles, or to fall over a cliff if you do not have a flashlight. Also, it is difficult to keep on a straight course back to camp unless you have a compass and a light to read it by. In such an event it is always wisest to bivouac where you are for the night. "Siwash" it as they say in the Northwest. But that means spending the night in the cold and dark; no bedding and no shelter. How can you do it and endure?

There is nothing difficult about bivouacking says Col. Townsend Whelen, Camping Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. It is not a hardlost than was reported. Keeping this in mind, we must remember that the weather bureau is indeed an important part in our daily living, and must never be taken for granted. The next time you hear the weather report on radio or TV, or read the latest forecast in your daily newspaper, remember the men who made such a report possible. Without them our daily pattern of living would be just a bit more complicated and our lives a bit more endangered in the face of a storm that would come without warning.

rowing experience but rather one to look back on with pleasure if you know to do it. Of course there is little to it if you plan in advance and carry with you on your back everything that is necessary for an overnight camp. Sometimes you will do this intentionally—a planned bivouac. But most often the necessity of bunking down for the night where you are comes on you unexpectedly.

You should always be prepared for this possibility when you hunt or wander far afield in a day's hunt in a wild, unsettled country. There are thus certain things you should always have with you on your person to avoid its being an experience you will never wish to repeat.

Of course you know that you should never leave your camp in a wild and trailless country without certain things in your pocket—a waterproof match box with a supply of dry matches in it, a sharp jackknife and a compass. There are also other things you will almost certainly want to have with you even if you are not planning on the possibility of having to bivouac overnight somewhere far from camp. These are roughly: a lunch; a camera; a light poncho in case of a rain or shower; and probably a few extra rounds of ammunition for your rifle. In a country where the temperature is liable to sudden changes you may want some sort of coat. To carry all these in your pockets or belt, or dangling by straps over your shoulders, is most inconvenient and uncomfortable.

God hangs the greatest weights upon the smallest wires.—Bacon

It will not hurt an outboard motor to store it in an unheated place—even in below-zero temperatures. Just be sure to get all the water out of it in the fall, so it can't freeze up, and protect it from the weather so that even sifting snow can't reach it. —Sports Afield

YOUNG IDEAS
from Polly Ponds

Q: "I have very heavy eyebrows and think I should pluck them. Is there any special way of doing this?"

A: Yes. There's a right way and a wrong way. Don't go wild with the tweezers. Plucking is just a temporary measure and the hairs often grow back darker and stronger than ever.

Therefore, limit yourself to pulling out the strays that straggle underneath the eyebrows or wander too far across the bridge of your nose. Never pluck hairs from the top of the brow where they're apt to look really wild and woolly when they grow back in again.

Instead, train your eyebrows to lie back into a natural arch by brushing the hairs with a mascara brush or fingertip dipped in cold cream. If you remember to give your eyebrows this treatment at least once a day, they'll soon become well-shaped accents to your eyes.

way from bicycles to motorboats, with automobiles, of course, leading the way. Surely new autos made in the U. S. will not stop the flow of new cars coming from Europe. Today I saw a new Dauphine car selling in Paris for $835 (with U. S. models priced from about $950—$1100). (These are Renault built).

Not only are the European Common Market and Outer Seven countries competing with the United States, but they are competing with each other to give our U. S. manufacturers both higher quality and lower prices. These European manufacturers pay eighty cents to one dollar per hour for skilled male employees and from sixty cents to seventy-five cents per hour for female employees, who apparently can do the work just as well. Executives who would secure annual salaries of $25,000 per year in the U. S. receive only about $5,000 here in Europe. They, moreover, are very able men.

More Modern Machinery Being Used In Europe

It is not only a difference of wages, but also of spirit and ambition of the workers and of the models of the machinery used. Recently, I had dinner in Halmstad, Sweden at the lovely home of the Swedish manufacturer of razor blades for the Shick-Eversharp Injector razor, which I personally use. He is making and wrapping these blades on new high-speed machines not yet introduced in the U. S. Incidentally, I am told that the "Gripsholm," the newest passenger ship now sailing the Atlantic Ocean, was constructed in Italy, furnished in France, all with money raised in Sweden.

er tariffs. Our State Department tells our U. S. manufacturers that such higher tariffs would eventually result in World War III.

Large merchandisers such as Sears, Roebuck & Co. are making big profits importing finished household products from all European countries and also from Japan. They want tariffs kept low. They praise our State Department for their present stand. Therefore, my conclusion is that present tariff relations will continue and will result in much more unemployment in the U. S. This, however, should teach us all a good lesson—both wageworkers and employers; it may be a "blessing in disguise."

Farm Census To Be Taken

The 1959 census of agriculture, which will be conducted during October and November, is the largest agricultural statistical project of the past five years. It is a count of all the farms and agricultural operations carried on in this country during the census year.

To answer the census questions, farmers will need a few simple records. The Bureau of the Census is urging each farmer to bring up to date the record of his harvest, the products sold, and major farm expenses, so that he can easily and accurately fill out his census report. The record keeping desirable for census purposes will also be worthwhile for the farmer's management purposes.

The Census Bureau will use a new definition of a farm this year. It is this—a farm must have 10 or more acres with agricultural sales of $50 or more per year. Or, if it is less than 10 acres, it must have minimum sales of $250 a year. The former definition of a farm for census purposes was a place of more than three acres that produced commodities worth at least $150 whether they were sold or not; or, if it was less than three acres, it had actual total sales of products worth $150.

What About Labor Unions?

Many in the U. S. think that Europe has no labor unions. This is not true. All the countries have labor unions and, I am told, this even applies to Russia. The fact also is that the labor leaders who operate these unions are intelligent and reasonable. They are sometimes government appointed. These unions are subject to the same laws and taxes to which the management associations are subject.

The main difference between the European unions and those in the U. S. is that labor leaders and unions members in the U. S. appear to have very little interest in either their employers or the consumers who are to use their products. In Europe these labor leaders and members are anxious for their employers to make fair profits and for the consumers to enjoy their products. This difference is the main reason why U. S. manufacturers are buying so many parts in Europe to put into products to sell in the U. S., and are even making the entire products to sell in Europe and various countries abroad.

What About Tariffs?

All these U. S. manufacturers who are visiting Europe—at least those whom I meet—are griping against our State Department in Washington. They claim that our State Department is even rude to them, telling them that if they cannot compete with Europe in manufacturing costs they had better "sell out" and "retire from business." Of course, what our manufacturers want is high-

Firemen May Revise Bylaws

Thirty-one members were present at the regular monthly meeting of the Vigilant Hose Co. held Tuesday evening in the Fire Hall, President John J. Hollinger presiding.

Fire Chief John S. Hollinger reported three miscellaneous fires had been handled during the past month and George L. Danner was highly commended for the excellent work he did as chairman of the recent convention parade. Paul A. Keppers reported a bowling team had been organized and would be entered in league competition in the near future. The recreation room committee announced that new equipment for the room had been purchased and was ready for installation.

A committee was appointed to promote a 50-50 drawing to take place before Christmas. This committee comprises George Danner, Broke Damuth and Carroll Eyer. Two social members, Daniel J. Kaas and Joseph Elliott, have been transferred to the active list.

Discussed during the meeting was the possible revision of the company's by-laws and the following committee was appointed to make a study of the matter: Guy A. Baker Sr., chairman, John S. Hollinger, J. Edward Houck, Guy R. McGlaughlin and Guy A. Baker Jr. J. E. Houck, local Scoutmaster, appeared before the meeting and suggested the group sponsor the local Explorer Scout Troop which has been unsponsored for some time. The firemen voted unanimously to accept the sponsorship.

The next meeting of the organization will be held on Nov. 9 at 7:30, instead of 8:00, due to the state returning to Standard Time. During the meeting the company left the hall in a body and viewed the remains of George H. Ashbaugh at the Wilson Funeral Home. Mr. Ashbaugh had been a member of the organization for many years.

Christianity's oldest Passion Play, the 325 year old dramatization of the lowly man of Nazareth, first produced in Oberammergau, Bavaria, Germany, in 1634, is now brought to America Praised by Clergy of all churches, as well as by stage critics, as offering the most enriching dramatic experience ever staged before the American public, the production has been brought to Frederick as a civic project.

Appearing as the Christ is Val Balfour who has won acclaim as being the world's outstanding portrayer of this difficult part. He brings to the stage a never-to-be-forgotten interpretation of history's greatest personality.

Hailed as a modern miracle and as the greatest drama produced on the American stage today by such outstanding critics as Robert Casey of the Chicago Daily News, Robert Collins of the Chicago Tribune, Time Magazine and many others, this production should be a must for every "theatre goer" in Frederick County.

The great Oberammergau Passion Play will be seen at the Frederick High School Auditorium Starting Thursday, Oct. 15 at 8 p. m. The parochial and private schools will have special student matinees at 1:30 p. m. Thursday and Friday, with the public schools excluding those students whose parents are desirous of having their children seeing the show at 1:45 p. m., Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 19 and 20. Tie Exists In Playoffs Fairfield knotted its championship playoff series with Taneytown for the Pen-Mar League title at one game each Sunday afternoon by taking a 10-0 decision at Taneytown.

This Sunday at 2 o'clock the teams will clash in the third and deciding game at Taneytown, the site having been decided by a flip of a coin.

Guy Weikert, star Fairfield hurler, permitted Taneytown six widely scattered hits and fanned eight batsmen enroute to the triumph.

Fairfield smacked out 11 hits off two Taneytown hurlers with Spence and R. Weikert each collecting three.

The winners packed their scoring into three innings, tabbing three in the first, four in the third and three more in the sixth.

Each employee was presented a wallet, suitably engraved, to mark the occasion. The District also received a pictorial salute in the company's employee newspaper, the PE NEWS.

Work Started On New Mount St. Mary's Library

Rt. Rev. Msgr. John L. Sheridan, president of Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, turned the first spadeful of soil Saturday in ground-breaking ceremonies for a new $500,000 library at the college.

Msgr. Sheridan then outlined to an assembled crowd, composed of faculty members, students, seminarians and returning alumni, the plans for this newest addition to the 151-year-old school. The ground-breaking ceremonies coincided with the Mt. St. Mary's annual home-coming weekend. Blessing of a new seminary annex was also a highlight.

The new library, designed by Architect F. Edward Tormey Jr., of Baltimore, will be modeled after Harvard's famed Lamont Library. It will be a three-story granite building, trimmed in Indiana limestone. The new building will accommodate 50 per cent of the student body at one time and will house 100,000 volumes.

Like the Lamont Library, the new building will use the divisional arrangement plan rather than the much used stack system. Book sections will be arranged according to subject fields, such as humanities, literature, social sciences, etc.

Construction features of the library include an elevator for transporting materials, plastic-shielded fluorescent ceiling lights, acoustical tile ceiling and plaster and rubber tile flooring.

The motto: "Per Verbum Ad Verbum" (Through written words men may be brought to the Word of God) will be carved on the limestone trim over the front son operated the paper on a partnership basis, during which time the paper was moved from East Main Street to the Elder Building on South Seton Ave.

These two owners maintained this partnership until 1927, when Mr. Elder purchased sole ownership of the publication and continued until his demise on January 31, 1943. The ownership of Mr. Elder is believed to be the longest span of operation for a single owner, than any of his predecessors—21 years. It is to be noted here that during this ownership the paper survived one of the Nation's worst depressions—1929 to 1937. After Mr. Elder's demise the Chronicle remained suspended for five years during World War II. Resumption of publication was begun on September 16, 1948, when Charles A. Elder, son of the previous owner, purchased the business from the estate.

The combined gross receipts for the months of July through September, 1959, the first three months of the current Fiscal Year ending June 30, 1960, totalled $14,730,112.36 and refunds to taxpayers for the same period totalled $818,490.76. The net receipts of $13,911,621.60 exceeded the net receipts of $13,142,063.44 in the three months ended September 30, 1958, by $769,558.16 or 5.86%.

Football Had Early Beginning

Cheering coeds and klieg lights have brought football a long way from the days when the English stubbed their toes kicking around the skull of a Dane.

That's one theory of how the game started, according to research experts with The World Book Encyclopedia.

The Danes occupied England from 1016 to 1042. A few years after they left, some workmen digging in an old battlefield uncovered a Danish skull and started kicking it back and forth. Several boys who had been watching dug up another skull and soon everybody was "kicking the Dane's head."

They were also getting bruised toes. Some precocious youngster substituted an inflated cow bladder . . . and the game of football was born.

In the 1100's, the "game" was more of a riot. Teams from neighboring towns — sometimes with hundreds of players on each side—met at some midway point. The bladder was thrown down and the free-for-all was on. The object of the game was to kick the ball into the center of the rival town. When the yelling horde descended on the town, pedestrians ran for their lives and shopkeepers bolted their doors.

Eventually the players were ordered to play in some vacant area or give up the sport. The teams retired to a field marked off with boundaries similar to those of a soccer field. And the towns—and football—were saved.

Hunting Lodge Planned For Eyer's Valley

A 60-acre hunting and fishing camp for adults will be opened next June in Thurmont, the Building Permit Office in Frederick reveals.

The operator of the new hunting lodge will be Bernard John Hummel of Route 2, Thurmont, a former Pennsylvania research worker who said that his "life's ambition" was to operate such a sporting facility.

Hummel bought the property, on Eyer's Valley Road one-half mile south of Hampton Valley Road, from Bud Kelbaugh in 1951.

The main hunting lodge will be a 26-by-72-foot building with stone foundation, wood siding and an asbestos shingle roof, heated by oil and with an oak flooring. It will contain 10 rooms for sportsmen and a large combined kitchen area and recreation room.

In addition, there will be 10 individual cabins, also built of stone and wood asphalt, contained on two to four-acre lots each. The property also contains a 3/4-acre man-made fishing pond which will be stocked regularly with bass and bluegills and possibly with trout during the colder months.
