I am going to dwell on a very delicate and "touchy" subject this week and possibly one on which I will be highly criticized. The subject has been in newspapers, on radio and television for some time. This particular subject is racial integration. The United States Government is encountering a number of embarrassing situations and incidents which could have international repercussions.

It must be realized by many now that old colonialism in Africa has been pretty well disintegrated. For centuries many European countries have had almost complete control of colonies in Africa. Today many of these colonies are independent and have governments of their own. Two thirds of the world's population has colored skin and we all must live in this one world with all races.

To get down with the problem at hand quite a number of African delegates from their new countries have been invited to this country. Naturally they land in New York City. However the nature of their business takes them to Washington which most of them travel by automobile. And quite naturally, they being human beings the same as you and I, they must stop for food and accommodations. Many have been refused service for the simple reason that their skin was black. They have been publicly embarrassed by being told to leave restaurants or that they would have to take their food out on the streets in a paper bag. This comes as quite a shock to them after being told that the great United States was a haven for all races and creeds; that the principle of this country was no racial or religious prejudice. They left Africa to come here on diplomatic business only to have the door slammed in their faces so to speak. Could you possibly do business with an individual or concern who wouldn't even welcome you in a public place of business or even sit in the same room with you? You well know the answer to that question. We have spent millions of dollars cultivating these foreigners' friendship only to deny them privileges we would actually extend to a mongrel. The young diplomats and visitors come here as guests of our Government. They have read about the United States and America and have been instilled with our supposedly great ideals. Can you imagine their feelings when they get here? Quite a disappointment. Such action on our part can well turn them to the side of the Russians who offer them nothing either but promise everything and deliver nothing.

Anyway folks, it is a serious problem, one that must be solved. There is one way that would go a long way to help bond an enduring friendship with these new countries in Africa and that is for our public service institutions such as restaurants and hotels to provide accommodations by serving them while enroute to Washington and other sundry destinations. It is known that many of these people travel U. S. 15 which goes right through Emmitsburg. This brings the problem right to our very own front door. Are we going to be bigoted and prejudiced? That is up to our local places of business. However if and when these business places do accept the problem confronted by them and do serve colored people we shouldn't rise up in arms and boycott them. We should commend them for doing the Christian thing and by so doing they would be doing their country a big favor... one possibly that many of us could not do. Who knows, some day we might need these black people's help to meet the threatening challenges to world peace and maybe the world's very existence. Think it over folks, our President and high officials have issued a plea to the public to meet the problem. Will you do your part?

First appearing in Boston in August 7, 1921, the New England Courant was the first American newspaper established in any colony which openly opposed recognized leaders of the time.

The first meeting of the Faculty Discussion Program, a monthly series of book discussions held by the faculties of Mount St. Mary's and St. Joseph's Colleges, met Sunday evening, Sept. 24 at the home of Dr. and Mrs. John W. Richards. The topic for the evening's discussion was Greek Comedy; four plays were considered: Antigone, Aecstis, Andromache, and Lysistrata.

Dr. Robert T. Marshall, professor of classical languages, described the historical background while Mr. Donald J. Waters, professor of dramatics, evaluated the literary merits of the plays.

The discussion that ensued was chiefly concerned with the role of the Athenian woman in Greek democracy and drama. Thurmont Enforcing New Curfew

Mayor Donald L. Lewis of Thurmont has reported that the curfew put into effect in that town earlier this month has proven to be very effective.

The curfew ordinance, which requires children under 18 years of age to be off the street by midnight, was enacted after town authorities had encountered some problems with youngsters loafing on the streets sometimes until 2 or 3 a. m.

Mayor Lewis stated, however, that the loafing youngsters had not created any serious problem but it was felt that a curfew should be enacted so that if the problem became serious the law officers would be able to act under the law.

He said the new ordinance should also prove beneficial in getting rid of the hot-rod nuisances who speed through the town in the early morning hours.

The curfew states that it is unlawful for children under 18 to loiter on foot, in automobiles, or otherwise in the streets or other public places within the town after midnight.

If a child under 18 is found loitering after midnight, the police are authorized to deliver him to his home. A record will be kept and not only the child but the parent faces punishment.

If one child is escorted home by the police more than once, his parent or guardian is subject to a fine of not more than $50 and if a child is picked up more than three times it shall be reported to the county probation officer.

Mayor Lewis said he believes that most other towns in the county have similar ordinances but doubted if they had been advertised. He said the ordinance has to be advertised to be legal.

Other news emanating from Thurmont deals with the appointment of an additional police officer. Mayor Lewis reported that Clarence S. Hagelin Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence S. Hagelin of R2, Thurmont, has been hired to assist the present police officer, James Dubel.

This is reportedly the first time in the town's history that there have been two police officers serving at once.

Fire Destroys Vacant Hotel

Fire of undetermined origin early last Wednesday consumed a historic 30-room vacation hotel astride the Pennsylvania - Maryland line.

Blue Ridge Summit Fire Chief Harry McClain said the unoccupied three-story structure was engulfed in flames when firemen arrived and they were unable to do anything but wet down the area to keep the fire from spreading to the nearby Hiram Hotel and other buildings in the area.

He estimated the loss at about $30,000, although he said the building could not be constructed for anything near that figure.

Known as Vacation Lodge, the building was established in 1892 as a summer resort hotel for Baltimore women workers and was owned and operated by the Baltimore Cooperative Workers.

The organization turned the building over to Goodwill Industries of Baltimore in 1949 and Goodwill Industries operated it as a summer vacation lodge until a few years ago.

President Asks Racial Tolerance

President John F. Kennedy Tuesday issued a direct plea to Maryland newspaper editors to help induce restaurant and hotel owners to end race segregation in restaurants and other places of public service. The President's personal message was read to approximately 70 newspapermen at a meeting held in the State Dept. Bldg., Washington, where they had gathered at a luncheon meeting at which Under Secretary of State Chester Bowles was the principal speaker. Present from Emmitsburg were Arthur Elder, editor of the Emmitsburg Chronicle and Guy A. Baker Jr., registrar of Mount St. Mary's College.

The president's direct call was read to leaders of communities along U. S. 40, the main highway between New York and Washington, where Negroes have been refused public accommodations.

"It is most important that there be no discrimination of any kind based on race, creed or color against any American citizen or visitor from abroad," the president said.

"That is basic to our moral strength here at home and the nation's leadership in the world. I would deeply appreciate your individual support on this matter."

President Kennedy's telegram was read by John G. Field, executive director of the Committee for Equal Employment Opportunities. "There are now an increasing number of diplomatic officials from Africa, Asia and other parts of the world stationed in the nation's capital," the president said.

"They frequently drive through Maryland's scenic countryside, sightseeing or on official duty. I am most anxious that they have access to all public services and other accommodations, including particularly restaurants and other needs they may have while traveling.

"Even more fundamentally, I want them to see that this country fully lives the principles of freedom and equality of opportunity for which we are striving in the world."

The luncheon meeting, held at the State Dept., was somewhat of a pilot effort by the White House to arouse local public sentiment in favor of voluntary desegregation in public eating and sleeping establishments.

Pedro Sanjuan, assistant chief of protocol for the State Department, described it as "part of a nationwide campaign which is being undertaken in more than 30 states with the cooperation of the governors of those states.

"At this very moment the department's message is being delivered at the Southern Governors' Conference" (in Tennessee).

While the State Department has been urging Maryland to open its public accommodations to all because of a few recent incidents of denial, Sanjuan said "it does not mean to single out this state.

"Similar unfortunate situations have occurred in northern and southern states alike," he said.

Sanjuan concluded by renewing an urge that the Maryland General Assembly at its annual session in February pass a bill making it unlawful for owners of public accommodations establishments to refuse service on the basis of color.

A similar bill had failed at the 1961 Legislature.

Delbert Null Will Run For State Senator

Adopting a platform of "Progress Without Penalty," Delbert S. Null made official this week his intentions to run as a candidate for State Senator.

Null filed as a candidate with the Board of Election Supervisors at the Court House in Frederick. He is striving for the seat being vacated by Samuel W. Barrick, announced candidate for Attorney General.

Null, president of the Board of County Commissioners and completing his second term in that office, is the first announced candidate for the senatorial post. His candidacy is subject to the Democratic Primary in May.

In a statement prepared for release in connection with filing for office Null said "There are a few things I would like to emphasize if I am successful in my efforts to be the Frederick County senatorial representative at Annapolis."

He said, "I feel that the burden of real estate taxes has reached its zenith and other ways and means of raising revenue — after economy measures have been instituted — should be found to pay the bill. The property owners of Frederick County can no longer be called upon to stand all of the costs of government. There has to be found other methods of raising tax dollars or broadening the taxing powers that we already have in effect."

He continued, "That every effort should be made by the government body at Annapolis to strive to put into effect a standardization of plans for school buildings. I am aware that this cannot be accomplished one hundred percent, but it is not at all unreasonable to expect that steps should be taken in this direction."

Continuing his discussion of the school problems, which takes the "major bite" out of county revenues, Null suggests that "Frederick County should employ a full-time engineer to advise both the Board of Education and the County Government on matters pertaining to construction and maintenance of buildings, and in related fields. If the above is instituted, there would be a great savings to the taxpayers of Frederick County."

Null also said that "every effort should be made in the very near future to eliminate the inventory tax and its like, which is now in existence in this county, and if successful, I will make this effort to the tenth degree."

"As an elected representative of this county, I would feel that my foremost duties would be to represent the interests of the people of Frederick County. I would be deeply concerned with the benefits that can come to this county by appropriate legislation, taking also under due consideration those matters that concern the state as a whole."

Town Streets May Be Resurfaced

Town officials announced this week that there is a good possibility that both Routes 15 and 97 might be resurfaced. So great was the damage caused by last winter's snow and freezing that it is being considered by the State Roads Commission to give the both main streets a general resurfacing job. Tar and chips have been added to the roads lately but at present they remain in an unsatisfactory condition, Street Commissioner J. Norman Flax reports.

During the past two weeks tree trimming crews have been at work in the town and some complaints have been received. It is explained by the Town Solons that the trimming is beneficial both as to looks and giving greater street lighting which had become smothered by the growth of the trees. The Town Council announces that six new street lights will be erected at various locations sometime in the near future. The practice of throwing bottles, cans and other debris in the streets continues, it has been reported. Officials threaten to prosecute those responsible for throwing this trash into the streets.

Confederates Decide Against Fall Invasion

Brig. Gen. Stonewall Jackson already something of a hero in the Confederate army received a pleasant surprise 100 years ago this week while riding by the train station at Fairfax Courthouse, some 10 miles southeast of Washington.

As Jackson watched, a one-car train pulled in, and a tall, slender, dignified man descended from the car. Troops in the area suddenly began cheering. To Jackson's amazement, it was Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, visiting his troops almost within sight of the capital of the United States.

It was time for decision for Davis and the South. In Washington, Davis' young, former friend, Gen. George B. McClellan, was rebuilding the United States army that had been so badly beaten at Bull Run, and each day saw McClellan's strength grow. At the same time, the Confederate army under Gens. Joseph E. Johnston and P. G. T. Beauregard that had whipped the Yankees at Bull Run was growing little or not at all. Winter was coming on, and the possibility for going on the offensive would soon end. The question: Should the South attack Washington?

Council Of War
On his first night at Fairfax Courthouse, Davis called a council of war. Johnston, Beauregard and Maj. Gen. Gustavus W. Smith—who had resigned as New York's street commissioner that same month—attended.

Surprisingly, it was Smith who led the discussion. Could not Davis strip other points of battle to the minimum, "even risking defeat at all points," to build up Johnston's army for a move on Washington, Smith asked.

He elaborated on the plan. The Southerners could cross the potomac river, occupy Baltimore, cut off Washington and force the Union to abandon its capital, then whip McClellan when and if he came out in the open to fight.

Impossible Task
The proposition was bold, and it was one that Davis had considered seriously before coming to the front. He had many questions, many doubts.

How many men would it take? At least fifty thousand, the three generals said—preferably sixty thousand. At the time, there were scarcely forty thousand Confederate troops in northern Virginia. And even sixty thousand would face a mighty task, while McClellan's army reported at 150,000 and with inadequate armament in the South to equip such an invading force.

And so Davis made his decision that the Confederacy could wage no major offensive that fall against the Union. It was a decision forced partly by necessity, partly by Davis' controversial policy to keep his forces scattered on every front.

The decision made, Davis returned to Richmond, deeply discouraged.
Next week: Sherman takes command in Kentucky.

Promoted By Power Utility

Martin J. Urner has been elected a Vice President of The Potomac Edison Company, it was announced following the meeting of the Company's Board of Directors in Frederick this week.

He will fill the post of Vice President—Engineering and Power Production, succeeding Henry H. Startzman who retired on Aug. 1. Mr. Urner had been serving as Assistant Vice President since March, 1960.

A veteran of over 35 years of service with Potomac Edison, Urner is a native of Frederick and a graduate in electrical engineering of Johns Hopkins University. He joined PE as a member of the substation construction department at Hagerstown shortly after his graduation in 1925.

In 1926 Urner was named District Engineer at Frederick. Two years later he was transferred to Hagerstown as Assistant Distribution Engineer. In subsequent years he was involved in a series of appointments, each bringing increased responsibilities, until 1958 he was made Manager, Transmission and Distribution.

He held this post until March, 1960 when he was elected Assistant Vice President, in which capacity he served until the Board's action this week.

Mr. Urner is a member of the Presbyterian Church and served as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Hagerstown congregation. He is an enthusiastic hunter and is active in gun collecting circles.

He is also active in civic and community affairs, and this year is serving as a member of the budget and admissions committee of the Washington County United Fund.

A registered professional engineer in the State of Maryland, Mr. Urner is a member of the Maryland Society of Professional Engineers and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Mr. and Mrs. Urner reside at Preston Road in Fountain Head Heights near Hagerstown. They have two children, a daughter, who is now teaching in San Francisco, and a son, who this year graduated from Johns Hopkins University and is now enrolled at the University of Maryland Law School.

The smartest person is not the one quickest to see through a thing, but to see a thing through.

Workers' Survivors Could Draw Benefits

"We are still looking for survivors of workers who died before 1940 who may now be eligible for monthly payments," states W. S. King, manager of the Hagerstown Social Security Office.

He explained that the original Social Security Act provided benefit payments only for retired workers. When the law was changed in 1939 to make benefits payable to the survivors and dependents of workers, no provision was made to pay monthly benefits to the survivors of a worker who died before 1940.

Due to recent changes in the law, payments can now be made to the widows of workers who died after March 31, 1938, and before January 1, 1940, with at least a year and a half work under social security before their death; to the aged dependent widower or parents of these workers; and to their sons and daughters with severe disabilities which began before age 18.

Mr. King emphasized, however, that survivors who could receive these payments must file an application not later than October 31, 1961, to avoid losing out on some of these payments.

Survivors who think they might qualify, including those who have inquired before the change in the law, should contact their local social security office.

Garden Club Gets New Members

The Silver Fancy Garden Club opened its fall season with a meeting on Thursday, Sept. 21, at the home of Mrs. Allen Feeser of Taneytown, with President, Mrs. A. A. Koswick, presiding. Mrs. Koswick and members of the club extended welcome to the following new members: Mrs. Robert Simpson and Mrs. Vernon Keilholtz, both of Emmitsburg, and Mrs. Dorothy Koons of Taneytown.

The members will again donate plants to the elementary schools in Emmitsburg, Taneytown and Littlestown. In place of the October meeting, members will attend the meeting and luncheon of the District 5 Federation of Garden Clubs at the Turf Valley Country Club in Howard County.

Route 15 Bypass Bids To Be Let

Setting aside a departmental policy announced several months ago, the Pennsylvania State Department of Highways revealed this week that it is asking bids now for the construction of only the southbound lane of the first link of the Route 15 bypass around Gettysburg.

Early this summer, department officials had said the complete dual highway would be constructed from the Maryland line.

The call for bids to be opened October 27 follows:

"Gettysburg Bypass, Freedom Twp., construction of the southbound lanes only, construction of northbound lanes will follow at a later date; two prestressed concrete bridges, plate girder bridge over Middle Creek, service roads and ramps, grading for northbound lanes, from state line northwesterly, 2.17 miles."

On the same date bids will be opened for the construction of two 12-foot lanes on each side of median strip, for 8.09 miles, widening of existing pavement with two alternate bridge structures. This will carry Route 15 through sections of Carroll, Franklin and Latimore Twp., of York and Adams Counties between Dillsburg and the present York Springs bypass.

This will complete the four-lane section from a point south of York Springs to Harrisburg.

New Fords Stress Economy Operations

Ford Division of Ford Motor Company has concentrated its entire 1962 light truck engineering effort on reducing truck operating costs.

John F. McLean, truck marketing manager for the Ford Division, said "in a deliberate effort to help businessmen combat inflationary-type operating costs, Ford has focused its prime attention on engineering improvements rather than body changes."

Mr. McLean explained that the continued movement of our population into vast suburban areas has made it necessary for businessmen to travel greater distances in delivering consumer goods. As a result, he said, the increase in total truck mileage and delivery man-hours required is adversely affecting business profits.

"In our efforts to help businessmen offset this inflationary-type operating expense, we have developed what might literally be termed a light-and medium-duty truck 'Business Fleet,'" Mr. McLean said. "The Ford 'Business Fleet' includes a complete selection of commercial vehicles that are designed to give maximum fuel economy and reduce required maintenance, while offering increased durability and reliability."

In Ford's 1962 Business Fleet, truck buyers may select any of six economy-type engines, ranging in size and horsepower from a 144-cubic inch 85 horsepower 6-cylinder to a 292-cubic inch 170 horsepower V-8. Each engine has been designed to provide maximum economy and power for specific types of hauling jobs.

Typical of the many truck engineering advancements that have been incorporated into the Ford Business Fleet are those built into the 1962 Falcon Ranchero and Sedan Delivery trucks.

The 144 cubic inch engine, standard on the Falcon trucks, incorporates all of the features that in 1961 enabled it to record the greatest gas mileage ever achieved for an "6" or "8" in the 25-year history of the Mobilgas Economy Run. In addition to its excellent mileage performance, the engine operates on regular fuel for lower cost per transportation mile.

A new standard transmission interlock mechanism prevents drivers from "clashing gears." Increased use of asphalt deadener and other material provides an added sound absorption package.

Also built into every Ranchero and Sedan Delivery truck are such proven owner-convenience features as low loading height, easy-to-operate tailgate and level cargo floor with a full 800 pound capacity.

In addition to the Falcon Ranchero and Sedan Delivery, trucks comprising Ford's 1962 Business Fleet include the Econoline van and pickup, the light duty one-half, three-quarter, and one ton pickups, and the one-half and three-quarter ton 4-wheel drive. Medium duty trucks in the Ford Business Fleet include the conventional and tilt-cab series with gross vehicle weights ranging from 15,000 to 21,000 pounds.

Outselling every competitive make economy truck in 1961, the popular Econoline maintains its distinctive appearance and quality for 1962. Both van and pickup feature a flat, all-steel floor, and the van has full 4' by 4' doors to both side and rear for easy loading and unloading.

Drivers of 1962 Ford pickups will ride more comfortably and experience less fatigue, in "driverized" cabs. Thick foam rubber seat pads provide standard pickup cabs with built-in comfort. In addition, the Ranchero has new standard and deluxe upholstery and trim combinations.

Ford's 1962 parcel delivery line includes four economy leaders, ideal for "stop and go" deliveries with gross vehicle weights from 5,000 to 15,000 pounds.

A third body style is offered in the light pickup series in 1962. In addition to the Styleside body with integral cab-and-box construction that is standard on the one-half and three-quarter ton series, a separate "Styleside" pickup body is standard on the one-ton pickup and one-half and three-quarter ton 4-wheel drive pickups. The Flaerside boy, with running boards and wooden floor, is optional on all pickup models and is available in 6½ and 8-foot lengths.

Providing greater durability and more economy is stop-and-go operation, a heavy duty 11½-inch clutch is available as a production option on medium-duty trucks with Ford's 262-cubic inch 6-cylinder engine.

Including the heavy and extra-heavy duty gasoline and diesel-powered trucks, Ford Division offers over 600 separate truck models for 1962.

Falcon Proves Popular Choice

The Ford Falcon, most successful new car ever launched, will reach another milestone before the end of 1961—the sale of the one millionth Falcon.

Ford dealers sold 778,086 Falcons in the first 21 months since the introduction of the compact car on October 8, 1959.

Pointing out that 1961 year-to-date sales are running well ahead of 1960, Lee A. Iacocca, Ford Motor Company vice president and Ford Division general manager, stated "with the introduction of the 1962 Falcon models, we anticipate even greater sales gains by the industry's top-selling compact."

"We expect to reach the 1,000,000 sales mark by late November or early December, giving the Falcon an unparalleled sales record in the automotive industry," Mr. Iacocca said.

Mr. Iacocca also pointed out that the Falcon is not only the No. 1 selling compact in the industry, a position it has held since three months after its introduction, but is also the third best selling car in the industry.

The Falcon station wagon is the No. 1 compact station wagon in sales. The Falcon Futura, the luxury compact with bucket seats, has accounted for better than one of every five Falcons sold since its introduction in April, 1961.

Bridal Shower Tips

Honeymoon rhymes with June, but songwriters may soon be changing their tunes.

August and September are fast becoming as popular as June for weddings.

This is all very convenient for shower and wedding gift shoppers, who can take advantage of the wonderful linen values during the August White Sales.

At these savings, a group of the bride's friends can give her a well-stocked linen closet, or at least the start toward one—depending on the size of the party.

First, go over the following list of contents for the ideal linen closet. Have each guest choose the items she would like to give:

- 8 sheets per bed (4 fitted bottom sheets, 4 flat tops);
- 10 pillowcases;
- 2 winter weight blankets or 1 automatic blanket;
- 2 summer weight blankets;
- 2 blanket covers (printed sheets are perfect);
- 2 bed spreads (although some of the new non-shed printed blankets are pretty enough for bedspreads);
- 12 bath towels, hand towels, wash cloths, guest towels;
- 1 shower curtain; 2 lid and rug sets.

Now the fun begins! Find out the bride's bed-and-bath colors and the size of her bed. Then you're ready to begin building your ensemble of go-togethers.

Choose a print, such as Bridal Rose... and Solo Stripe... and combine with a solid color in her chosen shade. Blankets, sheets and pillowcases all mix-match. Bath accessories in stripes and solid colors also coordinate.

You could shop and shop and never find more colorful, beautiful or welcome gifts than the gay printed sheets and blankets in the stores today.

COLOR IN THE HOME

By Jacquelin L. McConaughy, Du Pont Color Stylist

THE ease of application of the new emulsion paints (water-thinned) encourages their use on walls and ceilings for which they are not best suited. Although the emulsions are considered by most users to be superior in appearance to conventional oil paints for living rooms, dining rooms, bedrooms, family rooms, dens, and even basement game rooms, the proper material for kitchens and bathrooms is a satin sheen, semi-gloss enamel, according to Du Pont paint experts.

The reason for this, it is explained, is that excessive moisture-vapor conditions in both kitchens and baths, plus the oily vapors from cooking in kitchens, call for a paint with maximum adhesion and washability. This means an alkyd resin enamel with good body and a surface that is smooth although not highly glossy. In other words, one of the satin sheen enamels.

There was a time when full gloss enamels were preferred for kitchens and woodwork, generally because of their notably superior washability. Today, however, there is no appreciable margin of difference in washability between the gloss and satin sheen (semi-gloss) coatings. Since most people like the softer appearance of the latter, semi-gloss is increasingly used.

Another very good reason for favoring semi-gloss is the avoidance of glare, which is at the least annoying and can actually lead to eye fatigue, even headaches.

The excellent water resistance of a satin sheen, alkyd resin enamel not only means a lovely, long-lasting surface in the bath, but gives washing-after-washing life in the kitchen, where durability and resistance to water and grease vapors are important.

Since most of the popular and fashionable colors in emulsion materials (such as the very new heavy-bodied "Lucite" wall paint) are duplicated exactly in the satin sheen enamels, there is never a question of good taste in their use. They combine good looks and durability in a way that makes them the ideal material for bright, pleasant bathrooms and colorful kitchens.

ALL ABOUT BABIES...

A Public Service of the National Baby Care Council

By William Kitay
Member, National Association of Science Writers
Editor, All About Babies

Good Diaper Hygiene

That baby has diaper rash is readily apparent. Baby's skin is red and irritated. Baby is unusually fussy. There's undue wakefulness and, in some cases, frequent and prolonged crying. The prevention of diaper rash should rate high among your routines of good baby care. At every diaper change, you should watch for even the slightest sign of oncoming rash, though redness may also be due to allergy or prickly heat.

If you don't have your doctor's advice about diaper rash, call him. Diaper rashes respond promptly to proper treatment. Avoid the use of remedies recommended by relatives or neighbors. Medication belongs to the doctor.

Diaper rash can be prevented by good diaper hygiene. Good diaper hygiene can be practiced simply and surely in the home by diapering your baby with correctly processed diapers and by following a fastidious diapering routine as long as the baby wears diapers.

If you use a professional diaper service, your baby's diapers are given a complete scientific treatment. Professional diaper processing is done under strict laboratory control, using specialized washing and rinsing equipment. Continual, independent laboratory tests are made on the processed diapers to check the quality of the finished product. Diapers are inspected, folded, stacked and packaged for delivery under hygienic conditions.

Good diaper hygiene for the prevention of diaper rash begins as soon as you are aware that baby has wet or soiled the diaper. Remove the diaper. Clean the entire diaper area thoroughly using a fresh wash cloth or fresh cotton each time. As a cleansing agent, lukewarm water is advised, followed by thorough drying of the area and perhaps by a light application of a protective baby lotion or powder.

If baby is wearing waterproof baby panties, check baby's diapers at half-hour intervals during the time baby is awake. Waterproof panties keep baby's skin in closer contact with the wet and soiled diaper.

Since it is neither desirable nor convenient to continually disturb baby's sleep, all diapers for night and nap time use should be treated with a special diaper antiseptic which dries into the diaper and substantially delays the formation of ammonia, the most common cause of diaper rash. Your physician will suggest a special diaper antiseptic with which to treat your diapers, if you do them at home. If you use a diaper service, you can be rest assured that all diapers have been protected with such an antiseptic.

Chevrolet Styles

Will Please Public

DETROIT—Chevrolet this week introduces the Chevy II, a complete new line of cars with new dimensions in size and function for the American motoring public.

Chevy II is larger than the Corvair but smaller than Chevrolet's standard cars. It will feature nine models, including station wagons, a hardtop sport coupe and a convertible.

The new models, which represent the most complete line of smaller-than-standard cars introduced in recent years, will go on display at Chevrolet dealerships Friday, Sept. 29.

Chevrolet General Manager E. N. Cole said the new line features "maximum functionalism with thrift."

He said "the Chevy II was designed to provide good basic transportation for the average American family and at the most reasonable cost. This includes not only the original purchase price but also more economical operating and maintenance expenses."

Styling features "refined simplicity." This is accentuated by long, smooth flowing lines plus subtle sculpturing of the sheet metal. The front end is distinguished by single headlamps and a lattice-type grille.

While the design of the Chevy II is generally along conventional lines, the car includes several outstanding mechanical features differing from standard models:

- (1) Tapered plate springs, exclusive to the U. S. auto industry.
- (2) New four-cylinder and six-cylinder engines developed for the new line.
- (3) Integral frame and body construction with bolt-on front end.

The nine Chevy II models are divided into three series. The standard, called the 100, will include two-and four-door sedans and a two-seat station wagon. The deluxe series, called the 300, will contain two-and four-door sedans and a three-seat station wagon. Top series of the line, the Nova 400, will contain a two-seat station wagon, plus a two-door sport coupe and a convertible.

While slightly larger than the Corvair all around in exterior dimensions, Chevy II has passenger room and luggage space more nearly equal to the standard car. In comparison with the Corvair, the Chevy II four-door sedans are almost four inches wider, 3.5 inches higher and the wheelbase is two inches longer. They contain 13.3 cubic feet of usable trunk space.

Introduction of the tapered plate spring on the Chevy II fulfills a long-time objective of the auto industry. It climaxes years of research for rear axle cushioning, which would cut the weight and assembly time of multi-leaf and coil suspensions and provide friction-free ride quality. On the Chevy II, the tapered plate springs are mounted in heavy rubber insulators for maximum noise isolation. Coil springs are used in front. The new spring is a five-foot, shot peened steel bar which varies in thickness and width to provide uniform stress distribution.

The Chevy II line offers two new in-line engines designed for front mounting, both of which feature maximum economy in operation. Larger of the two is a six-cylinder, 194 cu. in. engine rated at 120 horsepower. The other is a four-cylinder power plant, the first offered by Chevrolet since 1928. It has 153 cu. in. displacement and develops 90 horsepower.

The body-frame integral design used by Chevy II provides unusual strength and torsional rigidity along with weight savings. The highly functional design of the entire car allows maximum conversion of exterior size to interior roominess. In addition, the unitized front end structure with bolt-on fenders provides easier access to components and parts for repair or replacement.

Further accenting the wide customer choice available in the Chevy II, 14 exterior colors will be offered with color-keyed interiors. Transmissions include a three-speed manual and a new lightweight Powerglide especially designed for this line of cars.

A full line of comfort and safety options will be available, including power steering, power brakes, air conditioning and the Positraction rear axle.

Togetherness For Compacts

Dwarfed in comparison to large household van, newly introduced compact rental trailer is designed for easy towing by smaller cars and to facilitate transporting household furnishings.

Compact trailers for compact cars is one of the newest developments in rental trailers and represents another major advance in this rapidly growing industry.

Manufactured by the U-Haul system with owners of compact cars in mind, the new rental trailers are 8-1/2 by 6 feet in size. Wheel base, frame and other construction features are designed for easy towing by the lower horsepower cars.

Compact trailers are ideal for all kinds of utility purposes and for one-way cross-country moves. Tops are open or protected by tarps.

For bigger hauls, the compact trailer has many big brothers -- as large as 6 by 14-foot household vans. These large vans, equipped with automatic brakes, are capable of carrying five rooms of furnishings. Like the compact, the larger trailers and their tires are fully guaranteed. In addition, U-Haul provides cargo insurance and free road service for cross-country hauls.

Rental trailer dealers representing the larger companies will attach a trailer hitch to your bumper and connect trailer lights with those on your car, including turn signals, at no extra cost.

You can find names and addresses of trailer rental dealers in yellow pages of telephone directories under "Trailers -- renting," or by calling Western Union's operator 25.

HIF Reports

2 1/2 Million Health Workers in U.S.

The number of health workers in this country is growing rapidly in terms of the nation's total manpower. According to Health Information Foundation, "the 1960 Census may very well show that within the last decade the health field has risen from seventh to third place among major U.S. industries in numbers of persons employed."

The Foundation estimates that about 2.5 million people—one out of every 30 persons employed in this country—now work in "health service industries," as defined by the U.S. Bureau of the Census. As the chart indicates, this is an increase of about 150 per cent in the last two decades.

Currently about three-fifths of all persons who work in health service industries are connected with hospitals or related institutions, the Foundation reports. In recent years "there has been an increased diversification and specialization in health occupations, as well as growth in the number of persons college-educated or professionally-trained." An example of this trend, the Foundation points out, is the fact that the medical profession has become much more specialized in recent years. In addition, many of the simpler duties once performed by physicians are now handled by professional nurses, technicians, and other members of the health team. This trend has increased the doctor's productivity and effectiveness.

However, comments Foundation President George Bugbee, new medical knowledge has also placed new demands on the physician. "If current physician-population ratios are to be maintained," he adds, "many more medical schools must be established, or physicians must turn over more duties to specially trained technical and professional workers."

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Read Matthew 23:1-12.

We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to his purpose. (Romans 8:28.)

In my home town in Argentina, we used one of the rooms of an old two-roomed house as a sanctuary for worship. It proved too small for the congregation. We decided to enlarge it by tearing down the partition.

There was not enough money to hire men for this job. Therefore, some men of the congregation gave of their time and work to do it. Many of the women did their share by painting the ceiling and walls and cleaning the floor.

Thus both men and women took part in changing the interior of our place of worship.

At the same time we were doing something for our church, we had a chance to get much better acquainted with one another. By this experience we have improved the worshipful atmosphere of our church and deepened our feeling of brotherhood in Christ.

Prayer

Our Father, we thank Thee for every opportunity we have to do something in Thy name. We rejoice in having many and varied ways by which we can express our gratitude for all the blessings we receive from Thee. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Looking Ahead

DIRECTOR - NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM

Muffling The Patriots

The hassle over the question of military men speaking out on issues of the day has underscored several important points that may have been overlooked in all the smoke and thunder. Admiral Arleigh Burke, himself once a victim of a censorship that thought Mr. Khrushchev might be annoyed by his warnings against Communism, has come to grips with several aspects of the issue in a speech to the National Press Club. It's a difficult problem, for as the Admiral says, the officers either speak or don't speak; you don't turn them off and on like a faucet.

Admiral Burke believes that military officers ought not be active in party politics, but at the same time he thinks they ought to be much concerned with the nation's security, which is their life work. This security, he so well said, depends on what's in the hearts of our citizens, on their understanding of freedom and their willingness to fight for it. Said he: "You cannot teach too much patriotism to the youth of America." This covers a lot of territory, any way you say it.

Labels Can Limit

There was a time when patriotic statements were described as patriotism. In these curious times, however, a citizen, a statesman, or even a soldier is labeled "radical right winger" or even "fascist" if he speaks his mind about preserving America's security and well-being. Political lines have been drawn up and barriers so sturdily erected that one must be very careful lest, when he charges into America's enemies or warns of dangerous trends, someone call him traitorous. Paying too much attention to this excess of caution could limit or curtail our freedom of speech.

Some who call themselves "liberal" used to heap abuse upon the late Senator McCarthy for pointing the finger at Fifth Amendment takers and other assorted special pleaders. Today, these persons follow the technique they once so loudly deplored when they try to label and then muzzle those who put them at disadvantage. Choosing sides in politics ought not prevent free speech nor prohibit patriotism.

Divide To Conquer

After all, there should be a common ground upon which all Americans, whether ordinary citizens, congressmen, or military officers, should be able to stand. All of us ought to be able to rise above label and above political bias whenever the nation's very survival is at stake. It does no service to call an anti-Communist a "right wing radical." It does a particular dis-service, for this is exactly what the Reds want.

One of the stratagems of International Communism is to try to divide, create disension, and then conquer. In this dispute about military, there is evidence that they hope to get us arguing so hotly that we shall overlook their real objectives. Articles in The Worker, a Communist paper, are revealing that a prime objective is to weaken and destroy anti-Communist activities. Specifically, the Reds want to remove what is left of the Radford Directive that in 1958 authorized the military to participate in anti-Communist programs and seminars.

This policy is apparently being altered by the present administration. Whether it is being accomplished by Moscow agents, by Norman Thomas and followers, or by our misguided liberals, the results are the same. Pleasure and satisfaction in Moscow. Mr. Khrushchev enjoys seeing us snarling at each other about this. His long range objective is to disarm us, mentally and morally, against Communism. In the battle for minds, he knows that we can be softened psychologically whenever we become neutral. We've got to be against him all the way!

I am not surprised that Admiral Burke voiced the need of high principles. He reminded us that the boys in Korea needed strong principles, which they didn't always have. The services realized then their need of men with strong principles, who believe in what the country stands for. But it is getting late, as the Admiral said, when the services have to teach patriotism to the recruits. We had principles and teaching them. We must speak out our piece and hold our ground. All of us.

SPORTING TIPS

Fishing

Everything has its purpose — even those pesky overhanging branches on your favorite fishing stream. Here's one way to put those branches to use and catch more fish while doing it. A gaff hook makes a handy anchor where there are overhanging branches or stumps popping up from underwater or along the shore. This neatly does away with dropping an anchor into the water every time you've hit a hotspot and taking the chance of killing the fish there by being too noisy.

Have trouble with your tackle box sliding around on the bottom of the boat making a lot of noise and getting into where it shouldn't? Try gluing a few mason jar rings—the kind used for jams and jellies—onto the bottom of the tackle box and you won't be in this kind of jam again.

Extra fishing lines are a necessity—but they can also be a problem. Namely, where to put them so they won't tangle or unravel or be in the way. An empty adhesive plaster roll does the trick. Just wrap the line around the spool and snap the cover back on, and you have a perfect holder in case of an emergency.

The peace and quiet of a day's fishing may be the fisherman's dream but too much silence can keep the fish on a lake or stream. So if things aren't lively, here's a good way to start the action. Toss a few rocks or pebbles into likely-looking spots — and then toss a few more until you've worked up a storm. Now sit back, relax, light a cigarette and wait. After half an hour try casting again and you'll have a pleasant supply in store—and soon in your creel. The noise will make the fish active, and when fish are active they feed. All you have to do is be on hand to feed 'em the right line.

Dogs
Here's a way to collar your hunting dog so he won't become collared or hung up by protruding branches or stumps. Cut a piece of inner tubing a couple of inches wide and slip it over Rover's neck. Your name and address can be painted on the tubing with no trouble at all. And if the dog happens to get snagged while he's chasing down your downed game, it's no problem for him at all to pull free.

Guns
Every sportsman worth his ammunition knows that two different gauge shotgun shells fitted inside one another make a perfect waterproof container for matches. Here's a slight innovation on this old gimmick that may not be so well known. Instead of the matches, roll up an oily cloth and fit it inside the cases. Most gunners have use for an oily cloth sometime during a day afield and here's a perfect way to store one until you're ready to put it to work.

Fashion and 4-H Are Winning Combination

WHETHER it's back to school or back to work, a last minute search for clothes will not hamper 4-H girls who have just completed their 1961 dress revue project. They'll be attired in clothes of their own making.

Three lovely examples of what the modern girl can do with fabric, pattern, needle and thread are pictured here in prize-winning ensembles. They have counterparts in every state.

ing when she dons the gold satin evening coat she is carrying. Dress revue entrants are judged on personality, poise and grooming as well as sewing skills. Results achieved by this pretty trio are not uncommon among the more advanced 4-H members.

Beginners learn to sew from the age of 10, and they are likely to exhibit aprons, shirred skirts or simple blouses at local revues.

Joy of accomplishment seems reward enough, but there are some extra special rewards and recognition for the most outstanding girls. These are provided by the Simplicity Pattern Company of New York, which has sponsored the 4-H dress revue program for 15 years.

A gay anniversary fashion event will be held during the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago the last week in November, when 4-H'ers from all 50 states and Puerto Rico will model their best costumes.

The national dress revue is an undertaking involving the Cooperative Extension Service, National 4-H Service Committee and Simplicity. More than 1800 delegates and leaders will be in the audience.

All set to cheer the home team on to victory is Patricia Clickener who showed off her colorful sports outfit at the Illinois state fair.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Fallout

BABSON PARK, Mass., Sept. 28—A featured article in Life Magazine for September 15, 1961 makes some statements regarding "fallout" which need careful checking and analysis. What President Kennedy Did Not Say

In the President's letter which preceded the article, the President said: "The government is moving to improve the protection afforded you in your communities through civil defense. We have begun, and will be continuing throughout the next year and a half, a survey of all public buildings with fallout shelter potential, and the marking of those with adequate shelter for 50 persons or more. We are providing fallout shelter in new and in some existing federal buildings. We are stocking these shelters with one week's food and medical supplies and two week's water supply for the shelter occupants . . ."

Neither the President nor Life Magazine made clear the difference between the effect of the explosion of an H-Bomb and the resultant fallout. If an H-Bomb should strike a city, the blast would probably kill 97% of the people. No ordinary "fallout shelter" would be of any use. But the fallout which would drift from this explosion would also be deadly. However, if all the nation's people had proper shelters, 97% of the people not killed by the blast might survive the fallout drifts.

Cost of Fallout Shelters Even 3% of those in shelters who might die from fright or from other causes in the course of two weeks amount to about 5,000,000 people. Hence, the scope of the entire project of shelters is stupendous. I have had a survey made of an average home shelter; the minimum cost quoted is $1850. This is for a shelter in a basement 100 miles from the center of a large city which might be bombed. As the distance becomes less than 150 miles, the price of the shelter increases. No shelter within five miles of where the bomb hits would be of any use. At least 90% of those within this radius of five miles would be killed under any conditions—shelters or no shelters.

What Do Inhabitants Of Berlin Want?

We are constantly told what Mr. Khrushchev wants; also what President Kennedy wants; but we have never heard what the people of Berlin want, or do not want. Of course they want food, water, and heat. They feel that the West Germans will see that they get these. But they certainly do not want a "shooting war" between Russia and the Western Allies, with Berlin getting the worst of it all in the center of the fighting.

Therefore, as a practical matter, should one build a shelter here in the USA until it is learned that the well-to-do families in Berlin (both West and East Berlin) are building shelters? Another awkward question: How many people should such a shelter be built to accommodate for two weeks?

Those living on farms and having no near neighbors can answer this question quickly; but in small cities or towns the answer is very difficult, where all are neighbors and friends of one another. It is one thing for a neighborhood or community to build a shelter which would accommodate several hundred; but to build for just one's own small family would, I should think, make one feel rather selfish.

Will There Be A Nuclear World War III?

All of the above boils down to the question of whether missiles with hydrogen bomb heads will be thrown at cities of the USA to cause their destruction? I don't believe they will be for many years to come. When I was in Berlin, Poland, and Russia two years ago, I was told by high Berlin officials that there must first be developed an accurate anti-missile missile.

There is none such now. Only bombs launched from airplanes or submarines have an accurate enough aim to destroy a large city. Such a city must be relatively near the seacoast. We are building up the defenses of these cities as fast as possible so that we will be in a position to use "anti-missile missiles" when we have them in storage. Such defense missiles are what Russia is now testing and it is silly to talk about such tests underground either by Russia or by the USA.

The 20th anniversary of U. S. Savings Bonds saw people owning more of them than ever before. Today Americans have nearly 43.6 billion dollars worth of E and H bonds put away for the future.

Recruiters Will Visit College Government officials and armed service personnel will be among the variety of representatives from business and the professions who will participate in a Recruiters Day program at Saint Joseph College on October 2. The program, directed by Mrs. Gloria Murray, Vocational Guidance Director of the college, is held annually to provide information on career opportunities for the students. Among the businesses and institutions represented will be the Girl Scouts of America; the American Red Cross; United States Air Force; representatives from the Board of Education of both Baltimore City and Baltimore County; the Association of Catholic Charities; and the Baltimore Public Welfare Department. The students will hear job descriptions, and will have an opportunity to meet individually with the representatives of the field or organization in which they have a particular interest.

The Recruiters' Day activities, which will take place in the Student Center on the Saint Joseph College campus, will begin at 11 a. m. and will continue until 5 p. m. on Monday, October 2.

Community College Announces Class Registrations Duval W. Sweacher, president of Frederick Community College and supervisor of adult education, has announced that registration for adult education classes will be held from Oct. 3-6 inclusive and that classes will start during the week of Oct. 16 and will run until the middle of April.

The classes to be offered will be determined by the number of persons registering for them. Funds for operating these classes come from the County, the state and the Federal government. The most important of these regulations is that a class must be discontinued when the average attendance falls below 10. For this reason an enrollment of approximately 15 is required before a class can be organized.

During the 1960-61 year more than 600 persons were enrolled in approximately 30 different classes which were organized to meet the needs and interests expressed by the county citizens at registration. Some of the classes taught last year were art, agriculture, bookkeeping, electricity, home economics, review for high school equivalence examination, shorthand, typing and woodwork- ing. Information from the Dept. of Justice, Immigration and Naturalization Services indicates a number of recent arrivals in our area, so it is hoped that a course in American citizenship can be organized.

The cost of each class is a registration fee of $2.00 plus the cost of books and other necessary materials. A person may enroll in more than one course and may attend classes in any of the centers.

The people of Frederick County will have an opportunity to indicate the course or courses they wish to attend this year by going to the regional centers on the designated dates for registration and signing for the courses they desire.

Everyone who registers will be sent a schedule of all classes as soon as possible after registration. The dates for registering in the various centers are: Frederick High School, Room 222, Tues., Oct. 3, 7-9 P. M. Lincoln High School, Tuesday, Oct. 3, 7-9 P. M. Thurmont High School, Wednesday, Oct. 4, 7-9 P. M. Walkersville High School, Wednesday, Oct. 4, 7-9 P. M. Middletown High School, Friday, Oct. 6, 7-9 P. M. Brunswick High School, Friday, Oct. 6, 7-9 P. M. West Frederick Junior High School, Shop Area, woodworking and electricity only, Tues., October 3, 7-9 P. M.

SCHOOL MENU The school lunch menu for the week beginning Monday, Oct. 2 at the Emmitsburg Public School, has been announced as follows: Monday: Chili con carni, crackers, sliced cheese, tossed salad with cabbage and tomatoes, fruit, and cookie.

Tuesday: Beef stew with vegetables, sunset salad, corn muffins, jelly, graham cracker custard.

Wednesday: Hamburger on bun, buttered lima's, lettuce and tomato salad, pumpkin pie.

Thursday: Franks on buttered roll, mashed potatoes, sauerkraut, jello and raisin squares.

Friday: Orange juice, fish sticks, baked beans, salad, apple sauce and gingerbread.

Milk, bread and butter served each day.

MAHONEY DEMANDS TAWES' ANSWER George P. Mahoney, Democratic candidate for Governor, today demanded that Governor Tawes give the people of Maryland an answer as to his exact whereabouts and the nature of the "pressing business" which prevented Tawes' attending the Southern Governor's Conference which opened in Nashville, Tennessee on Sunday.

"Why," asked Mr. Mahoney, "with fifteen Southern Governors in attendance, was it necessary for Maryland's Governor to be the only member of the conference who found business so pressing he couldn't be on hand?"

"Was his business more pressing than the agenda of the conference, which includes the problems of preparing for possible hostilities, including Civil Defense and fallout survival, Reserve and National Guard unit deferments, economic development, road building, nuclear energy for peacetime use, higher education and narcotics."

"The international situation alone is of such paramount concern that Vice President Johnson will bring a personal message from the President to the conference."

"These are indeed serious matters which demand the presence of Maryland's Chief Executive in Nashville, a matter of approximately 2 hours flying time. It is interesting to note that no such flurry of "pressing business" was in evidence when the Governor and staff traveled nearly 11,000 miles to attend the National Conference of Governors, held in the vacation paradise of Hawaii last June 24-30.

"I am seriously concerned with this demonstration of indifference on the part of Governor Tawes. I feel that his avoidance of the Southern Governor's Conference is a violation of the trust the voters placed in him some three years ago."

expenditures totaling nearly $59,000,000 according to L. M. Smith, vice president and a director of the company.
This total includes $8,500,000 authorized in the board's regular meeting on Sept. 25.
The largest single amount approved in the September meeting was $7,400,000 for a number of small projects throughout the state for the construction and expansion of telephone facilities.
To provide the necessary inter-office channels between Catonsville, Woodlawn and Pikesville to connect with the new long distance switching center at Catonsville, $446,000 was allocated. In preparation for the proposed change to dial operation in Elkridge, $201,000 was approved for the rearrangement of the present lines and cables and to furnish additional lines between exchanges at Elkridge, Catonsville, Arbutus, Baltimore and Laurel.
For Southern Maryland two projects were approved for expenditures totaling $60,000 to provide additional central office equipment at La Plata and Prince Frederick to meet customer demands for new telephone service in these fast growing areas.
To place additional cable from Reisterstown to Westminster and Hampstead, $72,000 was allocated. These project will provide additional inter-office trunks to increase the call carrying capacity between these exchanges and furnish facilities for customers desiring Baltimore Metropolitan Exchange Area telephone service.
