Future Teachers

The December meeting of the FTA of Emmitsburg High School was called to order by the president, Joyce Meadows.

Donna Saylor, Joyce Meadows and Lona Frock gave short talks on their trip to Towson State Teachers College to attend the Maryland Future Teachers Convention.

Lona Frock was selected as the chairman of the program committee.

tee. Her fellow-workers are Sue Borst, Donna Saylor and Patty Hyde. Committees were appointed to make bulletin boards for the main hall of the school. This year's FTA Christmas project was called "Operation Toys."

A movie was shown to the group to help them learn more about teaching. The movie was entitled "Focus On the Future." It pertained mostly to the FTA clubs in Pennsylvania and their projects. With the conclusion of the movie the meeting was adjourned.

Oilers Upset Mount In Exhibition Game

The Phillips 66 Oilers exploded for 36 points in the first 7:38 minutes of the second half to defeat the Mt. St. Mary's basketball team 98-77 Friday night on the New Oxford High School floor before a near capacity crowd of 1,500 fans. The contest was an exhibition affair staged for the benefit of the New Oxford High School athletic fund.

The Mountaineers battled their taller and more experienced opponents on even terms during the first half and trailed by a slim 43-39 margin at intermission. The touring Oilers came through with their brilliant cage ability in the opening minutes of the second 20 minutes of play and moved to a commanding lead which was never threatened.

The Liners scored 16 points in the second, third and fourth periods to offset a surge by Taneytown which carried the Carroll County team within seven points of Emmitsburg going into the final quarter.

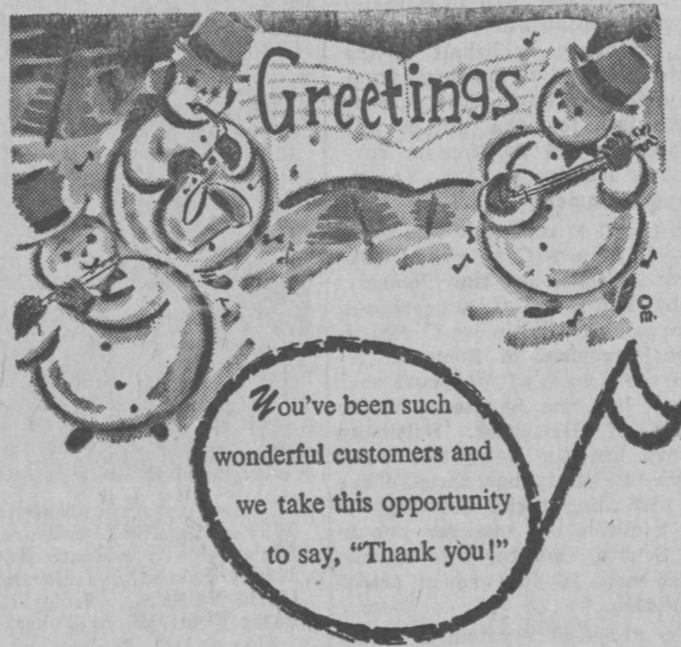

Bill Zimmerman, who sat out most of the second half with four fouls, led the Liners scoring with 22 points. Jim Hewitt took up the slack in the second half getting 11 of his 16 points while the big center was on the bench.

For Taneytown, Copenhagen was high man with 12 points.

100 YEARS AGO

'JEB' STUART DEFEATED; McCLELLAN GETS TYPHOID

By Lon K. Savage

James Ewell Brown Stuart, perhaps more than any other Confederate general, personified the cavalier, gay, chivalrous Southern gentleman of popular imagination. Beyond that, "Jeb" Stuart, by his daring and lightning-quick military movements, gained a reputation as one of the ablest of the Civil War generals.

But 100 years ago this week, even young, romantic "Jeb" Stuart—the man who could laugh as he rode into battle with his black plume waving—found that all was not gay adventure in the Civil War. Stuart suffered his first defeat.

The battle occurred in the muddy fields around Dranesville, Va., near Washington. It occurred because both Northern and Southern armies in the area were hungry.

On December 20, both armies sent out large foraging expeditions toward Dranesville to gather food for their men. Stuart, with 1,600 men, was assigned to protect the Confederate wagons being filled with food.

4,000 Federals The federal foraging expedition, 4,000 men led by Gen. Edward O. Ord, moved on Dranesville, drove a few pickets from the town and occupied it. A short time later, Stuart discovered the federal advance and realized the Confederate wagon train he was to protect was in danger. His reaction was typical: he decided to attack.

Stuart ordered his infantry forward, followed by artillery. They moved directly toward the town on both sides of a road. Both sides opened fire.

Ord's artillery, well handled and strategically located, blasted into the Southerners. One of Stuart's caissons blew up; the horses pulling another fell and the gun had to be pulled manually to the rear. A South Carolina unit and a Confederate Kentucky unit mistook each other for enemies and began firing into each other. Stuart, writing of it later, said, "Men and horses fell around me like tenpins."

After two hours, Stuart realized the federals soon would be reinforced and he would be cut to pieces. Gradually, his men withdrew and the battle ended. Stuart suffered an aggregate loss of 194 men killed, wounded and missing to Ord's 68.

The defeat failed to dampen Stuart's spirits. Considering his inferior force, Stuart later was able to write his wife, "Our side therefore came out first best."

McClellan's Illness A few miles away in Washington, the credit for the victory at Dranesville eventually went to the federal commander, Gen. George B. McClellan. But McClellan was in no condition to receive it. On the same day of the battle, McClellan was stricken with the dreaded typhoid disease and was rushed to a hospital.

For the following three weeks, McClellan directed the war's operations as best he could from his bedside. But his absence had its effects: he had not delegated his powers, and his father-in-law and chief of staff, Gen. Randolph B. Marcy was afraid to act definitely while the young general was ill.

The end result: still more delay in McClellan's plans for an offensive against Richmond.

Next week: Christmas season in the Civil War.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Intangibles BABSON PARK, Mass., Dec. 21, 1961—As the last weekly column which I shall write you before my "Business and Financial Forecast for 1962" appears in this news paper, I wish to say an important word to you. In short, your future as an investor or businessman, — especially as a manufacturer or retailer—depends upon certain intangibles which cannot be reduced to statistics. Let me mention four of these.

Personal Relations And Dealing With Others

From year to year, the labor situation will become more difficult. Firms which do not deal with labor unions will ultimately have to come to it, while those which already are dealing with labor unions will be subject to more and more demands. In order to be successful, you must be able to deal with employees successfully.

Some people naturally can do this, while others naturally cannot. This means that you must meet every employee with a smile, and must always take some time to talk with employees personally. It absolutely requires a sunny disposition and considerable patience.

Importance Of Judgment

In studying the history of a corporation—in terms of employment or the purchase or sale of its stock—you cannot depend on statistics or on any of the other guides which I have mentioned in earlier columns. People succeeded and failed in business before there were any such things as statistics, or credit reports, or any other form of printed information. My grandfather actually kept his accounts on his shirt-sleeve during the week and they were copied by one of his daughters in a rough notebook on Sundays. The various manuals and financial services now available are of help, but you must determine how they are to be used.

I have great respect for accountants. The President of the Babson Institute is an accountant. The work of the accountant however, is largely that of a doctor making a "post-mortem" examination. Very seldom is an accountant able to forecast the future any more than a doctor can. He compares more to one who dissects or analyzes a man after death. The beginning of each year starts a new life for the accountant.

Courage Most Important

Going back to the days of Venice and Athens, when trading first started, courage was the main asset a successful man had to have. This applied to trading by sea in small vessels without chart or compass, and by pack caravans which went over the mountains with valuable goods. Courage was indispensable, and it still is.

Today, the businessman has the advantage of telephones, airplanes, and even stock holders' tickers; but none of these things take the place of courage. The reason is obvious; namely, that all can use airplanes, all can subscribe to Dun & Bradstreet or Moody's reports or any other business aids. Hence, it all comes down to the fact that it is the one having the best judgment plus the best courage who will be the successful man.

Religion And Prayer

By religion, I do not mean theology. It does not interest me how old a denomination is, or how large is its membership. Many religious people do not attend Church, except at Christmas and Easter. Throughout history, people have been religious and non-religious. I even feel that some who call themselves atheists may be truly religious.

On the wall surrounding the Great World Globe on the campus of the Babson Institute are these words in large letters, "For What Is A Man Profited, If He Shall Gain The Whole World and Lose His Own Soul?" The greatest intangible of all is a sane religion. A man may accumulate property without religion; but he is successful only as he is happy and his children turn out well. I believe in sane prayer. I read my Bible every day. Those who know me probably feel I am a hypocrite because I make so many mistakes.

However, I would be of much less value to myself and everyone else if I did not have a sane religion.

OUTDOOR SPORTING TIPS

Hunting

Every hunter gives off human scent. This scent is carried thru the wood by the wind, and that's why a hunter must be downwind from his game. But what happens when there is no breeze, when the day is perfectly calm. The scent is still present. It travels out from the hunter in a circle so that the hunter is "surrounded" by the scent. Therefore, on a calm day it's a good idea for a deer hunter to change stands every 20 minutes. This breaks up the scent pattern and confuses the deer so it doesn't know for sure just where the scent is coming from.

Deer are curious critters. If you take up a stand in a deer path, try this method of decoy. Hang your hat on a brightly colored piece of cloth on a branch or twig. Upon seeing the unusual object hanging in his terrain, Mr. Buck may just get noseey enough to start investigating and momentarily drop his guard. That's the moment you've been waiting for!

Don't put away your fish stringer when the fishing season is over. It can be put to equally good use afield. A fish stringer makes an excellent carrier for squirrels. Hook the squirrel in the hind leg between bone and tendon and suspend the stringer from your belt. You'll have an easy way to carry your downed game afield and both hands will be free to tend to the business of the day.

Fishing

While you're waiting for next spring to roll around you have the chance to save up a few items that will come in handy when the big ones are biting again. Toothpaste tubes, shaving cream tubes, and the like, make good emergency sinkers. You can cut them to size for various weights. No tackle boy should be without 'em.

Save those cigarette butts too. Now don't go raising your eyebrows wondering if we've popped a cork. The filter part of filtered cigarettes can be put to good use for fishhooks. Just slip the filter over the hook and you are sure of not getting stuck. Wintertime will give you a chance to store these "corks" unless you've switched your brand.

Speaking of cigarettes, here's one way a lighted cigarette can help you catch more fish. If you touch the cigarette to the loose ends of monofilament knots, the end will flare and form knots that will not slip. A knotty problem easily solved. (Try for a $50 prize. Send your A.A. tip to A.A. Contest, 959 8th Avenue, New York 19, N. Y.)

Printing Center of the World is Chicago which does more than one-sixth of the nations commercial printing in more than two thousand printing plants employing more than 75,000 people with a $200 million payroll annually and a printing sales volume of more than one billion dollars.

Let the spirit of hope, and peace and love prevail in our hearts and homes to give this Holy Day its fullest meaning.

A Tough Little Book

One of the most significant books published in 1961 was a thin volume (150 pages) that was perhaps not expected to make the best seller lists. Its impact, however, ought to have been generally ignored by the reviewers, for it carries a message which, if heeded, could save the nation from calamity of tragic proportions. This calamity is not nuclear war, yet the effects of it are as ruinous as the destruction of real property in the hottest kind of war. The little book warns us again of an abyss toward which we have been creeping for 20 years.

This kind of chaos is economic. We teeter dangerously on the brink over which lies the inflationary collapse of our national financial structure. The book is fairly easy reading, but prophetically as tough as Jeremiah. It is Dr. Melchior Palyi's An Inflation Primer (Chicago: Henry Regnery Company, $4). Written for the ordinary reader by a great economist of our time, the book goes right to the heart of the problem with no words to spare and no equivocation. Its arguments are both cogent and pointed. Perhaps more important: They are urgent.

Knows Inflation

Dr. Palyi was teaching in Berlin during the post World War I runaway inflation that in Germany prepared the way for Hitler. He has known inflation first hand. But for the past 25 years he has taught in colleges and universities in this country (including Harding College), serving also as an economic and financial consultant. During this time he has turned his keen, incisive intellect upon American facts and statistics. His diagnoses and predictions have been amazingly accurate. More than 10 years ago, for example, Dr. Palyi was talking about a possible "dollar crisis" that recently became so critical.

It is made clear in this little book that we have reached the end of an era. It will not be possible much longer to continue "rolling over" the national debt, printing more cheap money, and indulging in deficit spending. Yet, powerful politicians and pressure groups do not and will not recognize that this is the case. They seem determined to continue spending and borrowing, heedless of warnings of the coming chaos.

"Legalized Robbery"
These spenders also seem determined to continue spending and borrowing regardless of moral and ethical responsibility, which ought to be implicit in government, for maintenance of the stability of our economy and the value of the dollar. The masses of the people are the willing victims. Those owning insurance and having an interest in Social Security funds (and that's nearly everyone) have watched helplessly while their dollars lose half their purchasing power.

This is clearly a form of "legalized robbery," but as Dr. Palyi says, "you can't put the government in its own penitentiary." In a most immoral fashion, it not only takes away the purchasing power of the people who permit it, it also saddles future generations with debts they did not create. Fixed-dollar-assets held by individuals (savings such as mortgages, bonds, paid-up insurance, saving accounts), which account for 60 percent of the annual accumulation of capital, have lost through inflation in the past 20 years more than $200 billion of purchasing power, Dr. Palyi shows.

Policies Lack Morality

Congress has continued to allow the misuse of the Federal Reserve System for monetization of the national debt. As Dr. Palyi so unerringly shows,

Business Services

PATRONIZE our Advertisers. These firms are reliable and have proven through years that they handle only quality products and offer skilled professional service and advice to their patrons.

this is the crux of the problem. Over and over the Congress votes to spend, without having the revenues to cover the spending. This action, itself lacking in moral basis, serves another wretched cause, that of inflating our currency. The government keeps "rolling the debt over," borrowing more and more and swelling the currency, so that price levels are forced up and up.

Apparently Dr. Palyi is convinced that we have already reached the point where it is most unsafe to keep refinancing the debt and printing more money. If the politicians are going to keep on spending at a rate so fierce that balanced budgets are unattainable, then we can be sure that "adjustments" will come. They may be drastic in nature. Let us hope we come to our senses, taking what steps are necessary to achieve fiscal sanity. The only possible remedy—if we can do it soon enough—is to balance the budget and stop monetizing the national debt.

Safety Urged At Christmas

Each Christmas season for the past three years, the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission has appealed to the persons who attend Christmas parties directing their attention to the fact that the National Council now has evidence to prove that the early hours of the Holiday period brought the greatest number of traffic crashes, and many of these deaths and injuries were traced directly to these parties.

We wish to assure you that we do not want to dampen the traditional Christmas spirit but we are again making a special appeal that the customary parties omit the use of spirited beverages and instead—in the spirit of charity—contribute to some worthy cause the money that might otherwise be spent for the intoxicating drinks.

We want you to know that we are all in favor of everyone enjoying each other's company and exchanging gifts and greetings at Christmas parties, but we are also most anxious to prevent accidents that completely ruin the Holiday for everyone in the family of those involved in these tragedies.

Every good wish for a safe and merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

2,258 Farms In Wheat Program

Through December 1, growers on a total of 2,258 farms in Maryland had signed up to take part in the 1962 winter wheat stabilization program, according to William L. Dudley, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. December 1 was the deadline for signing up under the winter wheat program.

The Chairman said that the farms signed up for inclusion in the program represent about 15.0 per cent of the total farms in the State which produce winter wheat.

Applications filed through the deadline call for the diversion of 17,753 acres from the production of wheat on these farms. The acreage so diverted must be devoted to an approved conservation use as one requirement in qualifying for the special program payments. Participation in the program also is required in order to qualify for price support on the 1962 wheat crop.

W. S. King, District Manager of the Hagerstown Social Security
Office, said this week.

Under the social security law,
Mr. King pointed out, a severely disabled worker is eligible for cash benefits at the end of a six-month waiting period, or starting with the 7th month of his disability.
Back disability payments may be made for up to 12 months after the worker is eligible for his first check, or 18 months from the time
his disability first began.

The case of Howard Anderson illustrates how the law works in this instance. Mr. Anderson was severely injured in an automobile accident on May 1, 1959. He applied for social security disability benefits on November 15, 1960.
The decision in his case was favorable, i.e., he was found to be disabled within the meaning of the law, and entitled to monthly benefits. December 1959, the 7th month after he was injured, was the beginning month for his payments, and he received back payments for the months from December 1959, through November 1960. Had he waited to apply for his benefits any time after December 1960, he and his dependents would have lost one month's cash benefits for every month he delayed.

"We do not know why people wait so long before applying for social security disability benefits," Mr. King said. "Perhaps they do not know about the social security disability program or perhaps they think they are not eligible."
The Hagerstown Social Security
District Office will explain to disabled workers and members of their families their rights under the law. "Come in and see us," Mr. King urged. "Do not risk losing disability insurance benefits to which you are entitled because

Heart Association Meets

A high point of the Annual Meeting of the Heart Association of Maryland held last week at Baltimore was the presentation of awards to individuals who have given exceptional leadership to the Association during 1960-61.

One of the persons honored was
Mr. Bruce Crum of Frederick, past and present chairman of the Fred-

Crum received an engraved medal-ion in thanks for his leadership to the Heart cause. The award was given by Dr. Helen B. Tausig, world-recognized heart specialist, inventor of the famed "blue-baby" operation, and vice president of the American Heart Association.

Also honored but unable to be present to accept the award, was Dr. James B. Thomas of Frederick, chairman of the Professional Education Committee for Frederick County.

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day

Back from the "Dead"

At Fort Erie, Canada, this Spring a race horse "came back from the dead" to win a race, thanks to the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau's lip-tattoo system of identification. Last winter the Edgors Ridge Stable sent two horses back to the farm. One, Edgors Lane, a good allowance horse, was supposed to get the firing irons applied to infirm legs, the other a plater named Edgors Warrior was just there for a rest. The horses looked alike and the farm help applied the firing iron to the wrong horse.
Edgors Warrior took violent exception to the treatment, reared up, hit his head on a cross beam and died. Edgors Lane was therefore reported dead and the horse thought to be the cheap Edgors Warrior was sent back to the stable at Fort Erie in April. There he was entered in a $2,500 claiming race but fortunately the routine tattoo check revealed that the wrong horse had been reported dead and he was scratched from the race. Shortly thereafter Edgors Lane won an allowance race. The liptattoo system was introduced by the TRPB on August 15, 1946 at Saratoga and since that date one of the biggest headaches of racing officials,

the Ringer (the substitution of a fast horse in the identity of a slow one) has been eliminated. In a seven and a half month period prior to the introduction of the lip-tattoo 22 ringer cases were uncovered on American tracks.

ALL ABOUT BABIES ...

Diaper Rash Fallacies

Does diaper rash occur more often in tiny infants than in babies a year or more old? Is it more common during the hot summer months than during the winter?

Most mothers will answer that diaper rash occurs more often in infants and that it is more common in the summertime.

Both these answers are not so, according to studies reported in the American Medical Association Journal of Diseases of Children.

The studies show that not only is there greater incidence of diaper rash in older babies but the most distressing cases occur in babies a year or more old. More cases also occur in the winter months. There are several reasons for this.

During baby's early months, a mother fusses more with her baby. She's fastidious and prompt in changing baby's diapers, almost the very moment they're wet or soiled. She's alert for diaper rash and the slightest skin blemish is a cause for alarm and prompt attention. She uses a diaper service, aware that professional diaper processing is done under strict laboratory control, thus providing protection against diaper rash.

As baby gets older, mother fusses less. Yet, in the older baby, the conditions that contribute to diaper rash are more acute. Baby's diet now, with its solid food and its protein, effects the composition of the urine increasing the amounts of diaper rash causing ammonia. The quantity of urine that is now passed at one time is enough to soak a diaper instead of merely making it damp. The danger of bacterial infection through skin damaged by diaper rash increases as baby wins freedom of the floor and the lawn.

As for the higher incidence of diaper rash in the winter, it's due to mother relaxing her standards because of the erroneous belief that the distressing skin irritation occurs only during the summer. Yet, during the winter, baby wets more. In the summer most of the fluids that leave baby's body, leave as perspiration. In the winter, baby is also bundled up more, thus encouraging a tendency not to change the diaper as often.

As long as diapers are worn, medical authorities warn that the possibility of diaper rash remains. The best preventive still remains good diaper hygiene. Even when baby reaches that stage when training pants are worn by day and diapers only for naps and at night, the diapers should be processed just as correctly as when baby was a tiny infant and a fastidious diapering routine should be followed just as carefully.

Savings And Loan Associations In Good Financial Shape

The FSLIC-insured savings and loan industry in Maryland is in healthy financial condition, the Maryland Savings and Loan League reports in a statement issued from its office in Baltimore.

The League release emphasizes the fact that there are 85 such associations throughout Maryland whose savings accounts are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation—a permanent agency of the United States Government—and that the total savings invested with them on June 30, 1961, was $1,164,000,000, or over 85% of all the savings held by the entire industry in this State.

Recent publicity concerning some few associations that have run afoul of the law, continues the statement, thus does not take into consideration the fact that the overwhelming preponderance of savings and loan investments is in associations where the accounts are insured up to $10,000 for each member-saver.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation was created by Congress in 1934. It now protects over 28,000,000 savers in nearly 4,200 insured thrift and home-financing institutions all over the United States. No saver in an FSLIC-insured institution anywhere has even lost even one cent of his FSLIC-insured savings.

Associations whose accounts are insured by the FSLIC are governed by stringent regulations that look to the protection of the saver's dollar and must submit to regular examinations by the Federal Home Loan Bank System.

It is regrettable, the League statement noted, that some irresponsible associations have recently sprung up and so conducted their affairs as to threaten the reputation of a basically sound business—particularly in view of the great contribution to the economy of Maryland that the savings and loan industry has made over a long period of years, and is continuing to make.

earthly life, for most of us the journey to Bethlehem will be in spirit, a journey of faith. Perhaps that is the most important manner in which to make this pilgrimage. It is one we should all make this Christmas season.

On our journey we rediscover some basic elements in our faith. This is what Christmas should help us to do. We are reassured of God's love in that He came to earth in the form of a babe to redeem mankind. It is helpful for us to know that we are considered of such value in the sight of God that He would take action on our behalf.

We discover, too, that God is in his human situation—that we are not alone, nor entirely on our own. We are living in a friendly relation to God, who cares about what happens to us.

Prayer
Almighty God, giver of all good gifts, we bless Thee for all Thy goodness and Thy love for us. May this anniversary of Thy Son's coming renew our hope, quicken our faith, and deepen our love. In His name we pray, and to Thy name by glory evermore. Amen.

Enlarge School

The Fairfield Joint School board Monday night gave unanimous approval for construction of additional rooms to give the Fairfield joint school district facilities for 1,000 pupils.

Estimated to cost $470,000, the construction will include the building of eight elementary rooms, two high school rooms and a cafeteria. The work, if all goes well with preliminary planning, will begin next summer.

Approval by the board, authorizing the Burchart Engineers of York to begin preliminary plans at once, came after the board heard the reading of a letter from the state Department of Public Instruction giving Fairfield Jointure the authority to go ahead with its plans for construction.

million to its assessable base (this includes about $8.5 million in the city reassessment) accounting for an increase in income from real estate and personal property taxes of $320,000.

However, by curtailing operating expenses and an increase in anticipated revenue over that estimated for 1961, the county ended up with a surplus of $117,000, which is being applied for use in the 1962 budget.

The county share of the state-shared cigarette tax also is exceeding expectations with the county slated to receive about $280,000 from that source in 1962. A $10,000 increase is also expected in licenses and permits, along with an increase in some other state-shared taxes.

Anticipated total revenue for 1962 is as follows: general property tax, from county sources, $4,087,900; from state sources $621,300 (including $280,000 expected from the cigarette tax).

Licenses and permits, $231,500; magistrates fines, etc., $23,000; interest and rents, $32,500; other agencies (such as county shares from state taxes, public health, forests and parks) $280,400 (with $2250,900 of this figure earmarked specifically by the State to be applied to the debt service).

Current services: sheriff's fees, patients at Chronic Hospital and Montevue, etc., $34,000; miscellaneous income, $25,000; anticipated revenue, $5,317,600 on to which is added the surplus of $117,000 for a total of $5,434,909.18.

Expenditures: general government which includes County Commissioners Judicial system, election board finance operation, planning and zoning, Court House operation, and Winchester Hall, $468,573; public safety (contributions to volunteer fire companies, sheriff's office, Civil Defense etc.) $102,765; sanitation, (for the newly formed Sanitary Commission and for garbage disposal) $25,000; health, $120,000; hospitals mental and chronic and Frederick Memorial $19,250.

Welfare, (includes County Board of Welfare, $96,755.67 and Children's Aid Society, $60,550; also Chronic Hospital and Montevue) $297,355.67.

Correction (jail, delinquents, probation officer) $44,020.

Schools, previously outlined for a total of $4,205,440; cultural and recreational, (including C. Burr Artz grant, of $45,000) $48,450, extension service, $18,805.

Miscellaneous (including teachers pension and retirement, grants to Chamber of Commerce, Hood College, Frederick Memorial Hospital building fund and Civil War Centennial) $20,250; emergency fund, $10,000; general purposes, $15,000 for a total in expenditures of $5,434,909.18.

as an assurance of fair treatment to the rural counties.

What would be the beneficial effects of such an authorization for statutory reapportionment of the House?

In addition to simplifying the procedure for minor refinements that may be needed in the future, it would greatly facilitate the enactment of a basic reapportionment in 1963. A reapportionment statute would pass each House with a simple majority instead of the three-fifths majority that is needed for a constitutional amendment.

In other words, it would need 62 votes instead of 74 in the House and 15 votes instead of 18 in the Senate. That makes quite a difference.

I am not prepared to spell out the details of the reapportionment bill that I would present to the 1963 session of the Legislature, because the action of the Supreme Court in the pending Tennessee case may have a significant bearing on the matter. I can, however, suggest certain broad outlines.

The bill should provide for a guaranteed minimum of two seats in the House for each county, no matter how small it may be. This is needed for the proper review of the great volume of local legislation that is handled by our Legislature.

The bill should provide for automatic reapportionment of the House after every Federal census, and the law should have teeth in it to make sure that this provision is carried out. Otherwise, Maryland will be agitated by the reapportionment issue for the rest of all time.

Finally, the bill should limit the over-all size of the House of Delegates to something in the neighborhood of its present size.

What I have described is a two-phase approach to the problem of reapportionment—first a constitutional amendment authorizing the General Assembly to provide by law for reapportionment and then, a year later, a law would actually do it.

The first power-producing public utility was built in New York City in 1882.

Any author can tell you that writing is easy. The hard job is to get somebody to read the stuff.

Social Security Rate To Advance

The average worker's take-home pay will be some 12 cents lighter each week beginning Jan. 1 when a new Social Security tax rate goes into effect.

The 1962 rate will be 3 1/2 per cent, an increase of 1/4 of one per cent but half is paid by the employer.

Congress provided for the increased rates to finance four changes in benefits which became effective last June. The changes:

Enable men to receive reduced benefits at 62 rather than 65. Increase monthly benefits ten per cent for widows 62 or older, dependent widowers and dependent parents.

Raise minimum benefits for retired workers 65 or older or for sole survivors of workers from $33 to $44 per month.

Reduce the amount of work required to qualify for benefits.

The rate for self-employed persons will increase 3/16 of 1 per cent to a total tax of 4.7 per cent. The maximum taxable income for both employes and self-employed will remain at $4,800 per year.

Cars Damaged In Collision

Two cars received minor damage in a passing accident at 4:45 p. m. Tuesday on U. S. 15 near Harmony Grove. State Police said that both cars, a 1958 Ford operated by Edna Fulmer Harwood, 61, Braddock Heights, and a 1954 Ford driven by Robert M. Stouter, 25, R1, Emmitsburg, were proceeding south on 15 at the time of the collision.

Mrs. Harwood was attempting to pass the Stouter vehicle when Stouter began to change lanes, causing her car to strike his car on the left side, police said. Neither driver was injured.
