Following one of the hottest elections we have experienced here in many a moon we are presently enduring a cold spell. Starting with Monday's rain, wind and hail, the temperatures started dropping rapidly. By Wednesday it was decidedly colder and snow flurries were widespread throughout the area with the temperatures dwindling in the low thirties. Statistics I have read reveal the fact that it was the coldest May 1 in some 40 years. This coincides with the fact that the past winter was the coldest one we have had in 40 years also. So much for the weather, now let's get back to our own little election.

This year's race for town offices, developed into a sizzler and the outcome was never certain until the last ballot was counted. Just three weeks ago we had no candidates and it appeared the townfolk would have to "draft" someone to save face. Just about then "Chick" put his name on the dotted line and for almost a week he was the lone candidate. "Doc" by this time had made up his mind to seek re-election and tossed his hat into the ring. This was fine and we thought we had the election taken care of once more. However, later on, several days before the deadline for filing, Jim and Ralph stepped into the line of fire and the battle was on. It was a good clean fight, people chose sides and some make-believe issues were dropped into the hopper just for bait. It made for a good contest and created a healthy interest. As with every election there have to be losers and victors. The contest, in my opinion was clean, and the voters have acted very commendably and we hope there are no hard feelings anywhere. The losers put up a very courageous battle and we take this opportunity to thank them in appreciation for their community spirit. On the other hand we wish to extend our best wishes to the new Town Officials and hope they have a very successful tenure of office.

While on the subject of local elections the tenure of office of our local Mayor has been brought into focus by considerable conversation on the part of many individuals. Presently the term is for one year only. This should be changed to either two or three years. It is my opinion, and that of many others, that the present Board should take this proposed change into consideration and act without haste. There is hardly another town around that has a one-year term for its top official. It just doesn't make sense and dates back to the horse and buggy days. Another change I advocate would be to enlarge the Board of Commissioners from three to five, thereby distributing the work load more equitably which should make for better all around town government.

Parents' Day At Mount Sunday

The tenth annual Parents Day will be held at Mount St. Mary's College on Sunday, May 5, beginning with a Mass at the Mount Grotto at 11:00 A.M. Over 2,000 persons are expected for the day, according to Rev. Carl J. Fives, Dean of Academic Studies.

Over the years the Parents Day program has been expanded into a spring weekend by the student body, highlighted by a name-band dance on Saturday evening. This year the committee under the leadership of Michael J. Henly, junior from Ridgewood, N. J., and Richard J. Higerson, junior, Richmond, Va., have selected the Glenn Miller Orchestra under the direction of Ray McKinley. The affair will be held in Memorial Gymnasium from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Following the Sunday Mass at the Grotto, parents, students, faculty and guests will be served a "typical Mountaineer" brunch in the dining room of the new Cogan Union. At 2 p.m. an informal reception by the President and Faculty of the college will be held in the Cogan Union lounge. Benediction will be held at 3:30 p.m. in the College Chapel.

Father Fives stated that Sunday's schedule has been shortened this year to allow the parents more free time to tour the campus with their sons. The program has also been planned to honor Blessed Elizabeth Ann Seton. Rt. Rev. George D. Mulcahy, rector of the Seminary, will deliver a sermon on "Mother Seton and the Mount" at the Grotto Mass.

Pre-school registration will be held at Emmitsburg Public School on Wednesday afternoon, May 8, 1963 at 2:30 p.m. The County Health Nurse will be at the school to meet the parents of all pre-school children who will be six years of age on or before January 1, 1964.

At that time registration papers will be given to the parents and explanations will be made of the regulations necessary before the children enter school in September.

Parents are requested to bring the birth certificate for their child so that the date of birth can be officially recorded by the teacher. Parents are also urged to bring the child to school to meet the nurse, teacher, and principal and receive instructions for seeing their doctor or attending the local Health Center.

Mount Sets Bloodmobile Record

Mr. Frank Ligorano, student union director at Mount Saint Mary's College, Emmitsburg, reported that the American Red Cross Bloodmobile held at the Mount on Monday.

Frederick County. This surpassed the 221 pints set by Ft. Detrick previously.

Mr. James A. Grove, Frederick County chairman of the Red Cross Blood Program, commended the students, seminarians, and members of the administration and faculty for their support of the program. He stated that the medical staff and local volunteers worked an hour overtime as the students sought to set a new county record. From the enthusiasm engendered by this visit, the first since the end of the Korean hostilities in 1952, the anticipated 1964 visit to the Mount campus could easily far surpass the 224 pints donated on this visit, according to Mr. Grove.

WIVELL—PITTINGER

A pretty spring wedding was held on Saturday, April 20 at 9:30 a. m. in St. Anthony's Shrine, Emmitsburg, when Miss Mary Frances Pittinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Pittinger, Taneytown, became the bride of Paul J. Wivell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Wivell, Emmitsburg. The nuptial Mass and double ring ceremony was performed by their pastor, Rev. Vincent J. Tomalski, before an altar decorated with white Easter lilies and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Alma Seltzer, church organist, played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Eugene Rosensteel who sang, "Mother at Your Feet is Kneeling," as the bride presented her bouquet to the Blessed Mother, and also "I Need the Precious Jesus" and "Oh Lord I Am Not Worthy."

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of chantilly lace over net and satin with a chapel train. The fitted bodice had an insert of net at the neckline which was graced with iridescent sequins and long sleeves that came to a point over the hands. The neckline was trimmed with a mandarin collar. Her only jewelry was a two-string necklace of pearls with matching earrings, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Joan Wivell, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and wore a blue chiffon dress over taffeta with a matching lace jacket. She wore a matching blue headpiece with an attached veil and carried a bouquet of pink, blue and white carnations.

Bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Pittinger and Miss Dorothy Pittinger, both sisters of the bride. They each wore pink dresses identical to that of the maid of honor. They also wore matching pink headpieces and carried bouquets of blue, white and pink carnations.

Flower girls were Connie and Cathy Markle, twin nieces of the bride. They wore yellow satin dresses with matching net headpieces and they each carried bouquets of mixed spring garden flowers.

Eugene Wivell, brother of the groom, served as the best man. The ushers were Roland Pittinger, brother of the bride, and David Wivell, brother of the groom. Henry Wivell Jr., nephew of the groom, served as ring bearer.

For her daughter's wedding the bride's mother wore a blue lace over blue satin dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white pompons. The bridegroom's mother chose a blue and white rayon dress with matching accessories and also wore a white pompon corsage.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents. Music was furnished by Lee and Dottie, the Carroll County Ramblers, uncle and aunt of the bride.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, New York and Luray Caverns in Virginia. For traveling, the bride wore a light cotton dress and the white orchid corsage lifted from her prayerbook.

Mrs. Wivell is a graduate of Taneytown High School, class of 1961. The groom graduated from St. Joseph's High School, Emmitsburg and is self-employed as a dairy farmer.

The couple is residing in their newly furnished home on R2, Emmitsburg.

For truth is unwelcome, however divine.—Cowper.

Irean And Houser Win Close Election

In one of the closest elections held here in many years, Dr. J. W. Houser managed to outdistance his opponent, James Welty, in the race for Town Commissioner.

The annual Town Election was held Tuesday from 12 noon to 7 p.m. in the town office near the Square. Of the 512 persons eligible to vote, about two thirds, or 373, turned out despite a torrential downpour which lasted several hours.

Dr. Houser was the incumbent Commissioner and Welty was a newcomer to local politics. Houser received 174 votes to Welty's 173. It is understood that five ballots were invalidated.

In the contest for Mayor, Ralph F. Irean, local businessman, defeated his opponent, Charles D. Gillelan, present Town Clerk and Tax Collector, by a vote of 199 to 151. Mayor J. Allen Bouey did not seek re-election. Interest in the election developed considerably during the past week as the candidates went about the business of campaigning. In commenting on the outcome of the election, Mayor-elect Irean said: "It was a good clean election, there was a big turnout and that I will work in the best interests of the town."

The newly-elected officials have 10 days in which to qualify by taking the oath of office and the new Town Board will organize at the regular monthly meeting Monday night. In addition to Irean and Houser, other remaining, or holdover members of the Board are J. Norman Flax and John S. Hollinger. Judges of election were Lloyd G. Ohler, chief, Miss Josephine Steinberger and Mrs. Kate Warthen.

100 YEARS AGO

JACKSON SHOT FATALLY AT CHANCELLORSVILLE

By Lon K. Savage

Gen. Robert E. Lee fought what is known as his greatest battle—Chancellorsville—100 years ago this week, but the battle cost him his top general.

In the tangled woods west of Fredericksburg, Va., around a home called Chancellorsville, Lee and Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson saved the Confederate Army of Northern Virginia from what appeared to be a trap and defeated a Federal army twice the size of their army. It was a case of superior tactics by Lee and Jackson, inferior tactics by their opponent, Federal Gen. "Fighting Joe" Hooker. When the fighting ended, Lee had a victory, but Jackson was mortally wounded.

Hooker planned the battle, and when it came time to fight, it appeared that he should win it. In late April, he had brought 80,000 men across the Rappahannock River 25 miles west of the Fredericksburg trenches, where Lee's 60,000 were dug in. At the same time, Hookers sent another 20,000 charging across the river at Fredericksburg and kept still another 20,000 in reserve. Lee had to make a choice: stay where he was—caught between Hooker's forces, or come out of his entrenchments and fight on open ground.

The Choice

Lee chose the open ground. On May 1, he pulled his men out and headed west toward Chancellorsville, leaving 10,000 behind to hold off Hooker's smaller force. That same day, Lee's and Hooker's armies collided at Chancellorsville, and the battle was on.

Then, Hooker began his mistakes. Instead of attacking, he pulled back into some hastily dug trenches in the woods and waited, while Lee and Jackson planned their victory.

Next morning, Jackson's men—22,000 strong—moved silently out of the Confederate camp, heading southwest, and disappeared into the brush. All day they made their way through the wilderness, circling in behind Hooker's waiting army. By evening, they were lined up a few hundred yards behind Hooker's right wing, which still had not caught on to what was happening.

The Charge

Jackson gave a nod; bugles blew, and Rebel yells went up as his men hurtled out of the underbrush into Hooker's Eleventh Corps. The Eleventh tried to turn, failed, and finally fled in panic as hundreds fell dead or wounded. The attack continued until after nightfall when Hooker's army finally regrouped and stopped the push.

That night, Jackson rode forth from his front lines to survey the situation, and his own men mistook him and his staff for Federals. Shots rang out, and Jackson reeled from his saddle, hit twice in one arm and once in the other. He was carried immediately to the rear; one arm was amputated, but within a week, pneumonia and pleurisy set in and he was dead.

But the victory had been won. Hooker headed back across the Rappahannock next day. Lee, having disposed of that threat, now turned on Hooker's smaller force, then coming from Fredericksburg, and drove it back across the river. Seventeen thousand Federals and 12,000 Confederates were lost in the battle. By dividing his army, Lee had won a brilliant victory, but with the loss of 12,000 men, including "Stonewall" Jackson, it was a victory that hurt his army almost as much as it had hurt Hooker's.

Next week: Grant's Invasion.

Nowhere else in the world is States; nowhere else is there so advertising used so effectively and high a standard of living. That so extensively as in the United is more than a coincidence.

Most Maryland Autos Insured

John R. Jewell, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, has announced that approximately one thousand motorists paid the $70.00 uninsured fee during the 1963 tag sale. This indicates that virtually all Maryland motorists carried automobile liability insurance in the amounts of 10/20/5,000 on April 1.

However, from past experience of the Unsatisfied Claim and Judgement Fund many motorists become uninsured during the tag year and continue to operate their motor vehicles without paying the $70.00 uninsured fee.

The Maryland Law provides that if a vehicle becomes uninsured during the tag year, the uninsured fee of $70.00 must be paid or the tags turned in immediately to the Department of Motor Vehicles. Retaining the tags for a period of even one day after becoming uninsured subjects the motorist to the fee even if the vehicle is laid up for repairs or is not being used.

All of the Maryland licensed insurance companies will report all of their cancellations and terminations to the Department of Motor Vehicles and each one of these cancellations will be checked out by the Department to ascertain if the fee is due. There is the further warning that one who knowingly operates a motor vehicle without having paid the fee is subject to a fine of not less than $100.00, nor more than $500.00, or imprisonment for not more than thirty days, at the discretion of the court. The Unsatisfied Claim and Judgement Fund Board is requesting the State and local police to vigorously enforce Section 177.

Prayer

May we never be guilty, our Father, of placing a stumbling block in the way of any who seek to worship Thee in spirit and in truth. Help us to keep in mind always the example of the apostles as they carried out Thy command to "make disciples of all nations." In Jesus' name. Amen.

Read Acts 8:4-8, 14-17.

When the apostles at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent to them Peter and John. (Acts 8:14, RSV.)

Our Bible reading today tells of missionary work done among the Samaritans by the early church. The decision of the apostles to send Peter and John to Samaria was all the more significant because the Jews had "no dealings with the Samaritans." The Holy Spirit taught the apostles that the gospel was not reserved for them but was to be offered to all men everywhere.

John Wesley preached in the fields to those who had forgotten; to the miners, to other underprivileged groups, to the despised "Samaritans" of his day. The final outcome was a revival of religion credited with saving England from a revolution such as that which swept France.

Let us remember that our own ancestors were converted because the early church leaders had the vision to realize that the church

TOTAL PERFORMANCE:

FORD GALAXIE 500/XL SPORTS HARDTOP

IF YOU KNEW WHAT HE KNOWS...YOU'D BE DRIVING THE 1963 TOTAL PERFORMANCE FORD

Ford is traditionally the nation's Number One police car. The reason: Total Performance!

When it comes to cars the police don't take chances. Put yourself in a State Trooper's shoes. Every day you must patrol hundreds of miles in your cruiser. Mileage and time grind into a man and his machine, but when the bell rings you've got to be ready. Chase. Turn. Corner. Quick stop. You've got to be able to do it all if you're going to do your job.

Listen to a trooper list the reasons why he prefers a Ford and you realize how difficult it is for any car to measure up to his standards. The car must be strong... it has to stand up to big mileage. It must be silent... when you practically live in a car a rattle can sound like a kettle drum. It must be swift... powerful enough to catch any car on the road. It must be sure... dependable even in the face of the unexpected. Strong. Silent. Swift. Sure. A four-word outline of total performance. The police demand it. That is why they choose the total performance Ford. Why should you settle for anything less?

Whatever your special demands and needs, the total performance Ford is the car most likely to satisfy you all the way down the line. You can prove this for yourself.

First, look at Ford's astounding record in open competition this year in the grueling Daytona, Riverside and Atlanta 500's, and in the demanding Pure Oil Performance Trials. Only a car with total performance could roll up so many impressive wins.

Second, before you buy any new car, test-drive the solid, silent Super Torque Ford. If you haven't driven one lately, you can't really know what a new Ford is like. Make this important discovery—if it's built by Ford, it's built for performance... total performance.

YOUNG IDEAS
from Polly Ponds

Q: "My hands have become awfully chapped and rough. Is there any way of clearing this up in a hurry?"

A: Here's a trick that will help smooth and soften weather-beaten hands almost overnight.

Before you go to bed, coat the chapped areas thickly with a layer of Angel Skin hand cream, then slip your hands into a pair of clean white cotton gloves—and wear them while you sleep. In the morning the skin will feel softer, less abused and will be well on its way toward healing.

You'll also avoid future damage if you remember to massage a small amount of cream into your hands after they've been in soap and water. This is all that's needed to keep them looking well-tended—and it only takes a second of your time!

"OPINIONS FROM THE FIELD"

Not too many of us realize how fortunate we are to live in a little, smoke-free town close to many great cities but nearer still to some of the prettiest sights that Nature affords. In a matter of minutes one can drive along quiet mountain roads and enjoy the wondrous beauty of Judas and Dogwood trees in bloom. A late evening drive may even reveal a group of feeding deer and a stop might bring the tell-tale sound of a "drumming" Grouse. There are many more treats awaiting those who will take the time for a short drive in our nearby mountains. With this thought in mind, I'd like to suggest a few pretty drives that you can take after supper.

For Judas and Dogwood blooms take the Hampton Valley Road up past Rainbow Lake to the Eyer's Valley Church. Turn right and proceed toward Friend's Creek but keep your eyes open for deer feeding in the fields near the back entrance to Camp Pioneer. At Friend's Creek turn right and follow downstream to the Hornet's Nest Road. Follow Hornet's Nest Road to Annandale and back to Emmitsburg. (Very pretty at this time of year).

For apple blossoms and rugged Troutstream beauty take the Kel-baugh Road at St. Anthony's and drive thru Black's Orchards to the Sabillasville Road. Turn right along Owen's Creek to the stop sign at Lantz and cross the railroad tracks and drive up into Catoctin Mountain Park to Foxville. Turn left and come down along Hunting Creek to Thurmont. (Many apple blossoms and rushing water).

A variation of this drive would be to take Rt. 15 to Thurmont, turn right and follow Hunting Creek to fork just beyond entrance to Camp David. Take left fork toward West Picnic Grounds and come down along Little Hunting Creek and back to Rt. 15 at Catoctin Furnace. This drive is always cool on a warm evening and in addition to some pretty water, will give you a glimpse of several lovely mountain lodges.

Your best chance to see deer would most likely be found on the Gettysburg Battlefield. Try turning right on Confederate Avenue where it crosses Rt. 15 near the Guide Station. Look for deer on the left immediately after turning and on both sides as you proceed past the Round Top Museum to the Weikert Place. Turn left and come back toward Rt. 15, turn left at first road this side of highway and again at Peach Orchard. This will take you back past Round Top Museum to the Harney Road. Turn right toward Harney via Barlow and another right in Harney will bring you back to Emmitsburg. Just recently my wife and I saw 13 deer, 5 pheasants, 1 rabbit, and a pair of quail on this trip. Last Fall we counted 97 deer while making this drive thru the Battlefield.

These are but a few of the many scenic and interesting drives that one can make in an hour or so. Why don't you pile the kids in the car and see for yourself? Some people drive hundreds of miles to see such sights and we have them right at our doorstep. The first American poultry incubator was invented in 1844.

Travel Log by Waldman

At the end of a day's trek, westward-bound wagon trains were drawn into a tight circle. This makeshift campsite also served as a theater-in-the-round where pioneers danced and sang. Main purpose, however, was to provide protection against Indian attack.

Road-side inns appeared along stage-coach routes after the West was won. A simple meal, a few hours of sleep were all the road-weary could expect. Many considered themselves lucky to get a seat near the fireplace.

Today, mobile Americans can count on clean, comfortable lodging at Imperial '400' Motels. Partnership management between operator and the chain and modern decor have made Imperial '400' the fourth largest motel chain in the country.

Where To Cut Spending
President Kennedy, losing patience with anybody who suggests the federal government might spend less than $98.8 billion in the forthcoming fiscal year, throws out the challenge to critics to show him just where the budget may be cut.
We hope by now his mail is heavy with ideas from citizens.

The magazine Parade finds Washington mail ruing heavily against tax cutting, if it has to show up in deficits. (This is the right answer about what one can do for his country!) The public does not want a handout from a budget deficit of nearly $12 billion that is being forecast for the next year!

Answering Mr. Kennedy's question may certainly involve the "Puritan ethic," as Economic Advisor Walter Heller has put it. There is a morality even in the tone of voice that says, in effect: "We have cut this budget to the bone. We know it's your money, but what can we do? The burdens are heavy, the risks are great, but we must spend more. Meeting the challenge is your part."

But the people do consider these interminable deficits immoral.
The Puritan ethic (nothing to run away from in an age that needs religion) tells us that there can be no such thing as a "strong deficit."

Rhetorical Question
The President really did not want an answer to his query.

He knows that Senator Harry Byrd comes up each year with a realistic "Byrd Budget" that demonstrates what statesmanship plus Puritan morality can accomplish. Other leaders in both parties have made suggestions on economy from time to time, but the real purpose of the Administration is to spend as much as possible. Actually, Mr. Kennedy does not want to be shown how to eliminate billions, for saving money runs counter to the Keynesian theories to which the Administration seems dedicated.

Among those who have shown where to save money is Senator Stephen M. Young of Ohio, who recently returned disgusted from a United Nations conference in Geneva on underdeveloped countries. Senator Young said he was fed up with our taxpayers having to spend billions on wasteful foreign aid, and that it could be cut 20 percent without any harm at all.
Some of the U. S. aid representatives who had been swarming over the place showing no competence at all might then go home and make a gainful living, he said.

Another Virginian
Senator A. Willis Robertson of Virginia, told the Senate on March 7 how $6 billion of spending could be eliminated from the President's request. He, too, would cut foreign aid. Taking out $1.8 billion would "reflect a public recognition that we have not been getting our dollars' worth from this expensive . . . and confused undertaking." He would also reduce sharply future defense spending totaling $1.3 billions.
This would cut back procurement for conventional weapons, military assistance to allies, civil defense, and military housing and construction.

Senator Robertson estimated that $2 billion could be saved by postponing or rejecting most of the Administration's new spending proposals, such as transit improvements, recreational facilities, youth programs, and aid to education.
Requests for other lending-spending authority would also be cut back. Perhaps his most remarkable suggestion was that federal personnel in every department should be cut by 5 per cent.

Use The Axe
Other experts in and out of Washington are calling for $6 to $15 billions of reductions in spending and authorizations.
Some are looking at research programs in space, at various public works, proposals, at veterans services, at agriculture, and are suggesting reappraisals with substantial cuts. As long as the President insists upon spending proposals that would create a $12 billion deficit for the coming year, his tax cut is going to be suspect, unpopular, and unwelcome.

The Keynesian economists back of so much White House fantasy thinking are not facing the realities of the American system. Our economy, the world's best, was not built by wild indulgence in nostrums that somebody thought would create perpetual booms. Why should the American people now become guinea pigs or laboratory specimens for untried and impractical experimentation that promises only to lead to government planning and controls under state socialism? The President's request for spending authority amounting to $107.9 billions for the forthcoming year ought to get the meat axe from the Congress, and I believe it will.

Science In The News

A recent report by a California scientist gives hope that the cockroach, bane of housewives everywhere may soon be brought under control.

Dr. Barry Tarshis of the University of California at Los Angeles reports that a dust developed originally to fight termites, enabled him to cut roach infestation of a Los Angeles housing project by 70 percent. At the same time, the incidence of infectious hepatitis—attributed to the roaches—was cut to zero for the first nine months of 1962.

Called Dri-Die, the dust works by absorbing the thin layer of wax that covers the roach's body.
When the insect loses the wax, its body fluids evaporate. It dries out and dies!

The dust—a fluffy, white odorless powder—requires about 90 minutes to kill a roach. But Fairfield Chemicals, FMC Corporation, N.Y.C., pioneer insecticide maker, has reduced the time by adding to the dust an equally safe insecticide named Fairfield Pyrene. Pyrene speeds control and flushes roaches from their hiding places into contact with the dust.

Known as Driene, the combination also works on roaches that have built up resistance or immunity to many widely used insecticides.

The success of Dr. Tarshis gives cause for optimism in man's battle against the disease carrying roach. A pest to man since the dawn of history, the roach may be on the way out at last.

Remember The Real Thing?
Somewhere in the development of fishing techniques and tackle to today's standards, the ancient art of dunking a worm got sidetracked.

The bait fisherman has become an outcast in his own camp, comment the folks at Mercury outboards. Disdain for the use of live insects, rodents, amphibians and other forms of water creatures is universally reflected by tackle boxes bulging with lures of every shape, size and color.

In relying heavily on arti-ficials, most anglers have neglected a method of fishing that is every bit as fascinating and demanding. Understanding baits and their use is one sure approach to mastering the funda-mentals of the sport, yet quite a few fishermen have blithely ignored this step of training.

With the exception of worms and minnows, resorted to when everything else fails, little evidence is seen of the other natural foods that constitute the bulk of fish diets. Yet there are dozens of other creatures which will take fish of every species with amazing results.

When was the last time you saw anyone digging lampreys from the bottom of a stream?
Or pulling leeches from the underside of a sunken log? Or harnessing up live salamanders?
Maybe you did these things as a youngster and caught fish.
Maybe not.

Today it's unusual to hear of these methods, rarer, still, to actually use them.

The fishermen who know natural foods, where to obtain them, and how they must be fished is a man of considerable angling knowledge. When he does snap on an artificial, note the Mercury people, he can usually fish circles around companions.

A good bait fisherman should be admired, not scorned; after all, he's simply giving the fish what they prefer.

Babson Discusses Job Responsibility And Dropouts

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 2—In this unsettling day and age, many workers feel that their job is of no real importance. They think of it only as a source of income, and they don't care much whether they do their level best or not.

How It Works

Naturally, this attitude doesn't afflict all workers, but I do think that far too many employed men and women consider Individualism may be a good thing in our private lives; but when it comes to making a living, teamwork is all-important. Only through perfect teamwork can employers, employees, and stockholders all get the most out of any operation. A man who makes a tiny electric switch may think his job very unimportant when contrasted with that of a brilliant scientific engineer who designs a space ship. But a multi-million-dollar space ship could fail at take-off, could plunge into the ocean or could just plain blow up if anything should go wrong with that tiny switch. So, if you happen to be the man making that small switch, don't think that you are less important than the big-salaried engineer. If you are not responsible on your part of the team, it won't do the engineer any good to be brilliantly responsible on his part of that team.

Doing a job badly hurts not only yourself but everybody in your entire organization. Those involved in turning out any product or presenting any service are—and must be—interdependent upon one another in order to achieve top results. If anybody lets down, all are injured. In an automotive company, for example, all steps are equally important: Manufacture of the various materials, assembling of the parts, painting, upholstering, cleaning, showing and demonstrating. Necessary and significant, too, is inspection of each step in the complicated process of taking an automobile or truck from its initial stages through to the ultimate customer. Nobody can say that the inspector's job is less crucial than any along the line.

Why Each Job Is Equally Important

A craftsman's mistake could travel right to the customer and botch a sale if it were not for the inspectors' "craft" in checking the work through all its phases. Disappointment because of a faulty product breeds dissatisfaction with the company itself. No amount of advertising can convince a customer that a company's prestige is deserved when he has encountered something drastically wrong in its products.

ers are deadset against hiring school "dropouts." This is a time of specialization. There is 20% less demand right now for common labor than in 1950; and certainly nobody can expect any rise in the going wage rate for those in unskilled categories. Best opportunities are in engineering, advanced mathematics, physics, electronics, data processing, and communications. If you let your children or your grandchildren drop out of school, they will probably never acquire any needed responsibility; and they will never get the training that will make them prospects for the big jobs—perhaps even for any job—of tomorrow. Don't let your child become a "dropout."

gastrointestinal tract, and may be spitting up, vomiting, bowel upsets, abnormal or unusual stools, colic, excessive crying. They are most often caused by one of the basic foods in the infant's diet, milk, cereals or egg. At a few months of age, skin rashes, particularly on the face, forehead, arms, legs, may be the result of allergy to foods. In older children these rashes may also be due to inhaled substances such as dust.

ALL ABOUT BABIES

A Public Service of the National Baby Care Council

Allergy In Infants

By Susan C. Dees, M.D. Director, Pediatric Allergy Clinic Duke University Medical Center

The allergic disorders, eczema, hives, hayfever, or allergic 'colds,' asthma, and gastrointestinal allergy often begin in the first few months of life. Babies whose parents and very close relatives are allergic apparently have a greater chance of showing signs of allergy at an early age, than those whose families have few allergic members.

The earliest symptoms of allergy in an infant usually affect the Various medicines may also be given to control symptoms and to make the child comfortable. Very few children spontaneously outgrow allergy if they are continually exposed to their allergens in any significant degree. Allergy is a great imitator, with symptoms which are common to many other disorders, and which at times, do not differ much from some of the minor complaints normal healthy babies often have. It is important for a mother to report her baby's symptoms to her doctor, who can help Allergic respiratory symptoms usually appear during the second six months of life. These are chronic and recurring "colds," runny nose, violent sneezing spells, nose rubbing, chronic cough, wheezing or actual difficulty in breathing. Sensitivity to household dusts, and pets, feathers, molds, infection and certain plant pollens and other airborne allergens are major causes, although foods may also cause these symptoms.

The best treatment for allergy is to discover the allergen troublemaker, and to keep it away from the infant or child. In some children a few weeks or months of avoidance will result in loss of sensitivity, and eventually a tolerance will develop.

In some more sensitive children the allergens must be avoided for a long time, or indefinitely if symptoms are to be prevented. When this is the case with airborne allergens which are difficult to avoid, "allergy shots" are helpful. This consists of a series of injections of gradually increasing strength to improve the child's tolerance, or decrease his sensitivity.

her sort out those which may be early signs of allergy, to forest all future trouble.

Wood Is Best For Window Insulation

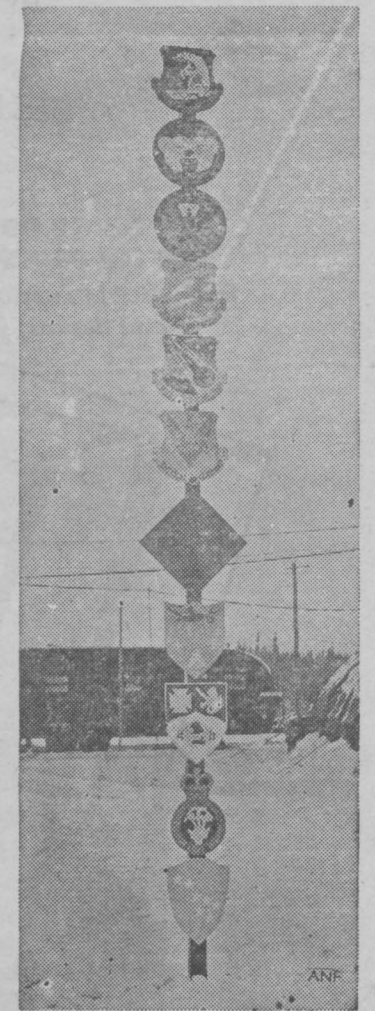

Windows made of wood rate highest in ability to retain heat and, as a result, cut fuel bills.

That's a conclusion drawn from statistics published by the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air-Conditioning Engineers. In its Guide and Data Book, the society lists figures on heat loss by conduction for both wood and various types of metal windows. Wood windows are shown to be at least 9.3 per cent more effective in retaining heat.

The U. S. Department of Commerce estimates that 15 to 30 cents of every heating dollar can be lost through the windows even when they are closed. Some of this heat is bound to escape. But choosing materials most resistant to its transfer, such as ponderosa pine windows, will cut annual fuel costs proportionately.

Another table in the Guide and Data Book indicates that when wood windows are fitted with storm sash the heat loss can be reduced by almost 50 per cent. Insulating value of the storm window is due to "dead" air trapped between it and the window. The same principle applies to permanently-installed insulating glass, which has two panes with an air space between them.

A third way to limit heat loss is to select windows that fit tightly. Window units of ponderosa pine are weatherstripped at the factory so that air leakage will be kept at a minimum.

AMAZING DEMONSTRATION!

SHOWS HOW TO CUT OIL COSTS UP TO 50%

WITH THE NEW WINKLER LP OIL BURNER

Before you say "It can't be done", see this demonstration of a Winkler LP Oil Burner—see why it's completely different. Conventional burners are frequently oversized to prevent nozzle-clogging troubles—hence waste excess heat up the chimney. The Winkler LP can be sized exactly to your heating requirements . . . because it operates on low pressure and has a non-clog nozzle. You'll see it burn crank-case drainings, unrefined oil, oil and water mixture—all without nozzle clogging. That's why this burner ends service troubles.

CLOG-PROOF TURBA-NOZZLE Eliminates costly service calls. Guaranteed 10 years.

NEW HEAT-KEEPER Automatically stops draft through the burner during "off" cycle . . . holds heat in furnace or boiler.
