The need for a revived Chamber of Commerce is becoming more apparent each year here. With the possible canonization of Mother Seton, the increasing recognition of the Mount Grotto, the nearness of the town to the historic battlefield of Gettysburg and the growth of the town itself, there should be some body available to pass out information and answer the many questions that are being asked about Emmitsburg. In fact there should be informative brochures available giving pertinent information concerning the assets of our fair community, colleges and other landmarks. It is hard to understand the apathy of local businessmen, and other individuals too, who have stood aside and watched the local Chamber of Commerce die a slow death. All that is needed is for a few 'live' wires to take hold of the group and spur the membership into action. Dues are only $10 a year and anyone with the interest of the community at heart is welcome to join. . . . You need not be a businessman to be eligible. Membership also is open to women.

Today you can go sailing over that new stretch of highway you've been waiting to try for so long. Yep, the new road to Gettysburg is now open for business. With the opening of this stretch of highway, Emmitsburg remains the only 'bottleneck' from Washington to Harrisburg, a distance of over 100 miles. Every town between the Capital and Harrisburg has been by-passed with the exception of little old Emmitsburg. Why we were saved to the very last is not known, but then it is promised that we'll not be forgotten for too long a spell as plans call for work to commence on the Emmitsburg by-pass next spring, however this will take over a year to complete. In the meantime the traffic will roll on by all the others and we Emmitsburgians will still experience difficulty in crossing the streets for another year or so.

A warning has been issued by Town Officials that the tossing of bottles, cans and other trash on Community Field must cease. At the present time the Town is trying to obtain Federal funds for recreational purposes. Federal representatives have been here to inspect the town and their eyes were really opened by the amount of trash that had been tossed on our formerly beautiful Community Field. Several truckloads of beer bottles, cans, etc. were gathered up last week prior to another Federal inspection. The field has been cleaned and weeds cut and other work done and the Town really means to keep it that way. It has been announced that violators will be punished, and they should be. No federal funds are available for any junk yard. Better keep it clean fellows.

Route 15 By-Pass Opens

After waiting patiently for over a year motorists will get the opportunity to travel over the new Route 15 by-pass of Gettysburg beginning this morning.

Emmitsburgians traveling to Gettysburg will find the best method is to take the new Route 15 to Fairplay (Spriggs) and turn left on old 15 to Gettysburg. Straight through traffic going north should continue on new Rt. 15.

The Pennsylvania State Highway Department said it will open the 15-mile by-pass of Gettysburg Friday, in time for the 100th anniversary observance of the three days' Battle of Gettysburg.

Highways Secretary Henry D. Harral said the new artery, a relocation of Route 15, is expected to save one-half hour travel time for those going through Gettysburg.

"We are pleased this section will open in time for the centennial observance," Harral said. "This by-pass will greatly alleviate the traffic burden on the borough of Gettysburg," he said.

The nearly $8 million by-pass begins north of Gettysburg, near Shriver's Corner, skirts east of the borough and rejoins existing Route 15, south of Gettysburg. Four interchanges will connect with major highway routes leading to York, Hanover and Baltimore and Taneytown.

Harral said the new highway was designed for future expansion to four lanes, but because of the immediate need for the road-way two lanes were built in an effort to meet traffic demands.

The new by-pass will enable Washington, D. C., traffic to connect with Interstate 240 at Frederick and eliminate the "reduce speed" zones through Gettysburg. Legal speed limits for the by-pass are 50 miles an hour for passenger cars and 40 miles an hour for commercial vehicles.

Car Crash Hurts Three Here

Three persons were treated and released at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, Friday night as a result of a two-car accident on Route 97 about one mile west of Emmitsburg.

State police said a 1962 Chevrolet driven by Roy A. McGlaughlin, 22, Fairfield R2, traveling east on Route 97, attempted to cross the highway into a private drive and entered the path of a west-bound 1963 Ford operated by William Rombin, 39, also of Fairfield R2.

Both autos received considerable damage, said investigating Trooper R. E. Snyder. Damage to the Rombin vehicle totaled $1,000 and the McGlaughlin car estimated to be $800.

Two passengers in the McGlaughlin auto, 17-year-old Constance J. Houck and Darlene M. McGlaughlin, 18, sister of the driver, were slightly hurt with minor brush burns and lacerations, it was reported.

The Houck girl also suffered shock.

Trooper Snyder said McGlaughlin was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way. The accident occurred about 7:20 p.m.

Want Water Co.

Union Bridge Mayor Edward L. Williar said Tuesday that the town is once again making an offer of $235,000 for the purchase of the Union Bridge Water Works.

"There was no action taken on a similar offer made three years ago," the Mayor said, "and at this time we're very much interested in purchasing the property for our own municipal water works. We feel that by buying the works, we can offer our residents a little better service."

District Man Suicide Victim

Roy Galen Hann, 27, Fairfield R2, was found dead Friday evening at 5:45 o'clock in a field near his home along the Tract Rd., a half mile north of the Maryland line.

The Adams County coroner, Dr. C. G. Crist, said death was a suicide.

According to the coroner, Mrs. Hann heard a shot about a half mile from the house near some woods on the Hann farm. She went to investigate and found her husband dead.

Dr. Crist, who was assisted by Pennsylvania State Police in the investigation, said Hann had used a 30-30 calibre rifle, placing it alongside his head at the neck. The charge went through his head. Dr. Crist and state police said there was no note found with the body indicating a cause for the suicide.

He was born July 25, 1936, in Ohio, a son of Emmert Clarence and Jennie (Riley) Hann.

Among survivors are his wife, the former Caroline Baker, and a daughter, Donna Darlene.

The science hall is to be built with $500,000 from the state on a matching grant basis. The college recently conducted a fund drive which raised $800,000 which will be used for the project.

The new building will be of pseudo-colonial construction as are two other recently constructed buildings on the campus. A rather coincidental event was reported this week by Mr. Charles Bollinger. Charley reported that two years ago on June 21, his son, Henry, while making hay with his mother and father, lost a wallet containing $10.31. Exactly two years to the day, Mrs. Bollinger, while raking hay, discovered the wallet in the same field, while doing the same job.

Henry's wallet was intact and all $10.31, including paper money which was well preserved, was restored to the owner.

OUTDOOR SPORTS TIPS

Lipstick Minnows

This tip requires cooperation from your wife in the form of an almost-but-not-quite used lipstick. Having procured same, dab a slab on the side of your minnows when fishing. Fish see the red slash mark, figure the minnow for a cripple and BAM! If your wife won't cooperate, that's your problem.

Deflate In Bed

Campers know deflating an air mattress takes several minutes and no small amount of work. It can rob needed minutes at a time when you're roaring to go. The easy way to do this job is on the morning you plan to break camp. As you lie in bed, turn the air valve and take 40 winks while the mattress lets you down. When the air is gone, roll 'er up and go.

Four Fast Ones

(1) Take off burrs and stick-ers by wiping with a wad of cotton. (2) Toss the grill from an old oven in your car trunk for a good campfire grill. (3) Rub shells that don't eject from your gun with a candle. (4) Fill egg cartons with charcoal and soak in paraffin. A match lights the fire.

On & Off Sinker

Attach sinkers with a pipe cleaner cut in half and you can twist 'em on and off in less time than it takes to tell it.

Comb Your Sights

A quick way to experiment with raising the comb on the stock of your shotgun is to cut the toe off the tip section of a heavy wooden stocking and slip it over the stock. Sock's bulk lifts your cheek a slight bit higher, may put your eyes in exactly the right spot to improve your shooting.

Sunflower Baitbox

If you'll check out sunflowers later on in the season, you'll find an inch-long light-colored worm inside the seed part. Good bait for bream and other panfish.

Cool Vacant Cabins

A clever way to keep hot sun from cooking up a vacant cabin or trailer is to tack aluminum foil at the windows. Shiny surface throws the sun's rays away, prevents temperatures from rising in interior.

Cut-Rate Matches

If you cut the stems from matches, you can carry twice as many in your waterproof match container.

Your Personal Health

It's now about a decade since that famous malefactor known as cholesterol started getting itself recognized as one of the major health menaces. Not all experts have seen eye to eye on the importance of the fatty substance, which has a way of depositing itself along the inner lining of blood vessels. But all agree that it can be a vital contributing cause of arteriosclerosis (or hardening of the arteries) and heart disease.

What many authorities are now insisting on is that cholesterol is only one of the many factors that can lead to these major health mishaps. And they're afraid that unless the current fashion of emphasizing it is brought under control, those other factors are apt to get lost to the public view.

They point out that even if the cholesterol blood level is normal in a given person, he can still be subject to hardening of the arteries or heart disease of he does not get the right amount of exercise, keep his weight within bounds, avoid excessive smoking, and in general "live right" from the health standpoint. Heredity, too, can be important in determining who is susceptible to these diseases—but so far nobody has figured out what you can do about that, once you've been born. As the fellow said who tried to build a 40-foot yacht in his 30-foot barn. It's all a matter of proportion. Everybody has some cholesterol in his blood. And everybody needs it, because for one thing it's involved in the production of certain hormones.

So, if you're going to worry about cholesterol, better worry about it as part of the total picture. And if you should wonder about the need of dieting to control it, don't go by hunches or gossip. Serious dieting should be Read Acts 15:22-27.

Barnabas and Paul, men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. (Acts 15:25-26.)

Though these words of our text refer specifically to Barnabas and Paul, they aptly describe the apostles who were in the upper room on the day of Pentecost. From then onward, they gave themselves utterly to Christ. He used them to confront the pagan world with His gospel. They did this, though the price of obedience to their Master was costly.

The key to having a great Christian church is found in the Book of the Acts. It takes waiting and longing for the Holy Spirit, and being endowed with His power to continue the work Jesus began.

Other requirements are supremely loving Christ, loving one another, and having great faith. Discipleship demands boldly His Word and seeking to do His will wholeheartedly.

The discipleship of the apostles meant giving their lives entirely to Christ. This same spirit has been evident in Christ's follow-undertaken under the supervision of a doctor.

ers in every age and generation.

Prayer

Dear God, we thank Thee for Jesus, for the powerful beginning of His church, and for the Christian church of today. Help us to be faithful in our discipleship, living according to Christ's teachings and example. In His name we pray. Amen.

Thought For The Day

Discipleship requires that we forget self and put Christ and His kingdom first.

Vets Qualify For Dividend

More than 150,000 holders of GI "RS" insurance policies have three months remaining in which to qualify for a special dividend by exchanging for "W" term policies or converting to permanent insurance, the Veterans Administration said today.

The special dividend, authorized for this purpose, expires on September 13, 1963, according to Mr. F. E. Quinn, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Baltimore.

After that date, "RS" policyholders may still convert or exchange their policies but they will no longer be eligible for the dividend payment, Mr. Quinn pointed out.

Only GI insurance policyholders with "RS" insurance that was issued to Korean Conflict servicemen are concerned in this program, the VA said. On or before September 13, 1963, they must:

1. Exchange the "RS" term policy for a "W" term policy, generally costing about one-third of what they are now paying; or
2. Convert the "RS" policy to a low-cost permanent plan of inurance.

The "W" term insurance cannot be renewed after age 50 but the insured may at any time while term insurance is in force, convert to any of six permanent plans. These have fixed premiums higher than for term insurance but they do not increase in cost every five years as term insurance premiums do.

Mr. Quinn said the six permanent plans are: ordinary life, twenty payment life, thirty payment life, twenty-year endowment, endowment at age 60, and endowment at age 65.

Policyholders need not write to the VA since information, premium rates and application forms are being sent by the VA to each veteran still holding an "RS" policy.

Use Of Fireworks Prohibited

A warning about the dangers of fireworks was issued this week by Dr. Richard E. Hoover, president of the Maryland Society for Prevention of Blindness.

A marked reduction in the number of eye injuries due to fireworks has been observed nationally as forty-one states have enacted legislation controlling their sale and use according to this Community Chest agency president. "Violation of both state and federal law are responsible for the accidents now occurring," Dr. Hoover explained.

Permanently impaired vision or loss of sight are often the result of fireworks eye injuries. Dr. Hoover stated. He urged parents to guard their children against such tragedy by observing and supporting the state and federal safety regulations governing fireworks.

Explosion in the Arts

WE SEEM TO LIVE in an age of explosions. On the heels of the population explosion—of which we have heard so much recently—we now have what is commonly referred to as the "cultural explosion." All across the country there is an increasing interest in the arts—drama, music, poetry, the dance, painting and sculpture.

THIS INTEREST reflects man's desire for creative fulfillment. In underprivileged societies this quest is unfortunately submerged in the struggle for mere survival. However, in a prosperous country like ours, where most of us have achieved a comfortable standard of living and increased leisure time, the need to enrich our daily existence through creative expression asserts itself.

TO GIVE national encouragement to this "grass roots" enthusiasm for the arts, Congress has designated a site in our capital for a National Cultural Center, stipulating that the buildings be erected with the public contributions. The Center would serve as a stage for the performing arts, providing appropriate facilities for performances by talented American artists and groups and, celebrated artists from abroad.

SUPPORT for the National Cultural Center by all the American people is an investment in the future for ourselves and our children. It will provide a stage for many fine performers who will come from this community and hundreds of others throughout the land. It will enrich the "after working hours" lives of millions. But perhaps the greatest benefactors will be future generations, who will find the climate more conducive than ever before to careers in the performing arts.

AND WHEN the Center is built, it will enhance our image overseas, for our national values often are judged for better or for worse by what foreigners see in our capital. As Prime Minister Nehru once said to Martha Graham: "Your dancing and artistry will do more than all the planes and dollars in gaining understanding of the United States."

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day

They Ran It "Backwards"

The Belmont Stakes, third jewel of the Triple Crown, will be run at Aqueduct this year, but actually the famed race is not literally a refugee from its home base. It may come as a surprise to some racing fans, but the Belmont Stakes did not originate at Belmont Park. The Belmont was 38 years old and had had two homes before Belmont Park opened on May 4, 1905. The first Belmont was run at Jerome Park, in the Bronx, in 1867. In 1890, the race was shifted to Morris Park. The ill-fated filly Ruthless, who was to be the victim of a deer-hunter in need of glasses, won the first Belmont and it was also a filly, Harry Payne Whitney's Tanya, that won the first Belmont Stakes run at Belmont Park. The Belmont Stakes has survived other changes. From 1905 until 1921, Grey Lag's year, it was run clockwise or "English" style. Nor was it always a distance of 1 1/2 miles; it started off at a mile and five furlongs, but was also run at 1-3/8 miles, 1-1/4 miles and 1-1/8 miles. It was even run as a handicap in 1895 and 1913 when Belmar (119) and Prince Eugene (109) were the respective winners. One change to which no one objected has been its increase in value from $1,500 added in 1867 to the $125,000 added today.

Savory Ham-Veal Ring

Flavor it up and dress it up . . . meat loaf, that is . . . and you'll have a sure winner for your next summertime supper party. In fact, you'll probably have this Savory Ham-Veal Ring.

For the "flavor up", add canned apple sauce to the meat mixture. That joins the zesty tang of apple to the robust taste of ham and the bland flavor of veal. The apple sauce also helps give a rich and savory juiciness.

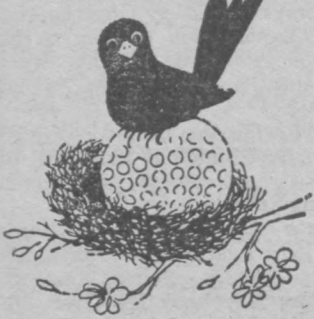

For the "dress up", bake the loaf in a big ring. In the last minutes of baking, crown it dramatically with more of the apple sauce. Then, after the ring is on the platter, you might place a buttered whole cauliflower in the center. To serve, cut in husky wedges right through the meat to the center of the vegetable.

This ham-veal loaf can be served hot, as suggested here. Or cold, sliced down and accompanied by salad. And it's easy to put together:

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 3 eggs | 1 1/2 pounds ground ham shoulder |
| 2 cups canned apple sauce | 1 1/2 pounds ground veal shoulder |
| 3 cups soft bread crumbs | Cooked cauliflower |
| 1/4 cup ketchup | 1/4 cup melted butter |
| 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce | Salt |
| 1/2 cup minced onion | Paprika |
| Dash pepper | Parsley sprigs |

Beat eggs; add 3/4 cup apple sauce and bread crumbs; let stand 10 minutes. Add ketchup, Worcestershire sauce, onion and pepper. Add ham and veal; mix well. Pack into 10 inch greased ring mold. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 1 1/2 hours. Unmold on baking pan. Spread with remaining apple sauce. Bake 30 minutes longer. Place on platter. Arrange cauliflower in center of ring; pour over melted butter and sprinkle with salt and paprika. Garnish with parsley. Makes 8-10 servings.

100 YEARS AGO

LEE NEARS GETTYSBURG, FACES MEADE'S ARMY

By Lon K. Savage

A gentle rain fell on the Potomac River 100 years ago this week as Confederate General Robert E. Lee, astride his horse, splashed across the shallow Potomac River into Maryland. As he rode, factories were closing down in Pittsburgh, Pa., so that the workers could dig trenches around the city; in Philadelphia, veterans of the War of 1812 formed a regiment to protect their city, and in southeastern Pennsylvania farmers fled their homes and drove their cattle northward.

It was June 25, and Lee was in the midst of his most important invasion of the Civil War. Ahead of him, his army of 80,000 was stretched out through Western Maryland and southeastern Pennsylvania, causing panic in dozens of towns and cities and threatening, it seemed, the entire northeast. Dick Ewell, leading the most advanced corps, already was at Chambersburg, Pa., having moved through Sharpsburg, Md. Lee's other two corps—commanded by James Longstreet and A. P. Hill—were spreading out into the Maryland countryside. A London Times correspondent predicted Lee might soon be riding triumphantly up Broadway in New York City.

City Ransomed

Indeed, Lee's army moved as if it were about to capture the entire northeast. Ewell pushed on to Carlisle, 20 miles east of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania's capital, and Lee told him to go ahead and capture it if he could. Ewell sent "Old Jubilation" Early farther east where he captured York, Pa., and held it under ransom, collecting 1,200 pairs of shoes, 1,000 hats, three days' rations and $28,000 in money. Early cut railroads and looked as if he might move north on Philadelphia or south on Baltimore or Washington. Ewell pushed up the river across from Harrisburg, and the people listened in horror as cannons boomed around their town.

Hooker Replaced

But "Fighting Joe" Hooker, who had been left behind with his Federal army in Virginia, was racing northward to get between Lee's army and Washington. On June 27th, as Ewell reached Carlisle, Hooker completed the job of moving his army across the Potomac into Maryland just west of Washington, and as he crossed he called out for re-enforcements—demanded, in fact, that either he get re-enforcements or he would resign.

President Lincoln quickly complied—not by sending re-enforcements but by accepting Hooker's resignation. He had grown tired of Hooker's indecision, and he sent an aide into the Federal camp, where the aide awoke scholarly General George C. Meade and informed him he was now commander of the Army of the Potomac, succeeding Hooker.

Meanwhile, Lee had run into trouble. His infantry now was ranging across the Pennsylvania countryside, but his cavalry—the "eyes" of his army—was nowhere to be seen. Dashing "Jeb" Stuart, his cavalry commander, somehow had gotten in between Hooker's army and Washington (Stuart was in sight of the nation's capital once) and was busy capturing and plundering Federal supply trains.

But Lee needed information about Hooker's movements, and Stuart was not there to give it. It was not until June 28th that Lee learned of Hooker's movements, and he realized that he must consolidate his army. Orders went out, and the three Confederate corps began converging, Early moving south, Longstreet and Hill moving east.

Their roads came together at a little town called Gettysburg, Pa., and when they arrived there, they found Federals waiting. The scene had been set for the western hemisphere's greatest battle.

Next week: Gettysburg.

Cozy Sleeper

The youngest member of the family will be snug as a bunny all winter long, tucked into this adorable sleeper made in a new washed knit fabric of "Orlon" acrylic fiber and stretch nylon. The blanket-weight fabric actually stretches in both directions, so that the garment grows as the little one grows. Called "Souffle", this cozy-warm garment designed by Kapart is exceptionally well made. There are no shoulder seams, and one continuous piece of fabric is used for the front, sleeves and top of the back. The sleeper, which comes in yellow, blue or pink, washes easily by hand or by machine, and dries as soft and fluffy as down.

Favors For Socialism

To what extent should the U. S. use its foreign aid money to finance socialized industrial projects in under-developed countries? Should we officially favor the capitalistic systems with our aid? Some believe that since Uncle Sam is trying to make friends by lending (a difficult thing to do), the borrower should be allowed to do whatever he pleases with the money. If a need exists in India for steel, for example, and India wants a government-owned mill, then we ought to let them have the money to build it.

"I think we ought to do it," President Kennedy told a press conference recently. His Ambassador to India, Harvard economist J. K. Galbraith, who has an ideological record of partiality toward socialism, is strongly in favor. The Nehru government has asked for loans that over the next decade or more will total $891 million to finance the giant mill at Bokaro, north of Calcutta. It would be the country's fourth government-operated mill. Mr. Nehru considers India's steel industry too important to remain in private hands. He wants the mill to fit into the government's pattern of socialism.

Public vs. Private

India needs more steel mill capacity, and there are vast resources of coal, iron ore, and limestone well-located to support it. The U. S. Steel Corporation has completed a long technical feasibility study of the proposed project, without advising what the U. S. should do. At this writing, negotiations are continuing between Indian officials and A.I.D. officers. Some of the Americans are thought to favor placing part of the ownership of the mill into private hands through stock issues.

India has two privately owned and operated steel mills. And here is an interesting fact: in comparison with the government plants, the private mills are producing steel at costs 15 per cent lower than the government mills. The private concerns want to expand, but like our own industry they have not been allowed to accumulate enough profit for healthy growth and expansion. Despite recommendations that the private companies be allowed to keep more of their profits, the Indian government has refused.

Public Incompetence

And so it remains. The Indian government wants to siphon off the profits of private industry to subsidize the inefficiency of its government operations. There are some subtleties here not yet discovered by Mr. Kennedy, who pointed out that building a new government plant is not the same as taking over one that is already constructed. The President showed some spirit in defending public ownership and made it clear that he would favor U. S. financial backing for state-owned projects in other countries.

A WORD ON WARDENS

If you tend to regard game wardens as a new breed which only came on the woodland scene when an expanding population threatened to exterminate the nation's game, you're in for a surprise.

The Mercury outdoor people offer some evidence to indicate the warden isn't the late-comer some disgruntled game law violators proclaim.

They found that one of the first written records, the Mosaic law of Moses, dating many centuries before the birth of Christ, forbade the taking of game in such quantities which would reduce basic breeding stock. Other noteworthy records include the 13th century decrees of Kublai, "The Great Khan." He enforced closed seasons during breeding periods of many game animals and birds in his empire. The Magna Charta, signed in 1215, recognized the importance of wildlife to the people of England. It provided that the king would own the game only in his sovereign capacity as trustee for his subjects. Enforcement of the regulations applying to the "King's deer" has been a well worn subject in English legend.

The first American colonists relied heavily on game as a prime source of food, and accordingly, some of the Plymouth Colony's earliest laws dealt with the harvest of wild animals. In 1646, the Rhode Island town of Portsmouth closed the "deere" hunting season from May until November; any violator would be fined five pounds — one half to go to the person who brought the culprit to court and the other half to the town's treasury.

It's apparent, states Mercury, that the "old days" really never existed at all. Game wardens or fish and game agents have been around for quite a spell, and, from all indications, they'll be even more important in years to come.

Surely the best kind of aid we could give would be to show them the superiority of the private enterprise system. We ought to insist upon private control and operation of the mill, as well as sound amortization of the loan in years to come. But with the President and the Ambassador sold on socialism, one wonders about the future of private industry anywhere in the world. Even here.

Government steel mills already built in India by Russia, West Germany, and Great Britain all have experienced an abundance of snafu. The Russian mill remains in the hands of Soviet personnel and is producing steel. The German mill was virtually sabotaged by Indian incompetence and bungling, and the British mill also has had troubles. In contrast, the two privately controlled mills have continued to operate economically, although they have not been allowed to use their own resources for expansion.

The Best Aid

Various Congressmen have become concerned about the push we have given to socialism abroad. They are making an effort to put restrictions into legislation on foreign aid that would prevent further encouragement to socialism. If foreign aid is worth anything at all to us, it should earn a measure of respect for freedom of enterprise wherever it is used. After all, this particular kind of freedom is one of the basic foundation stones of the American Way.

Here, undoubtedly, lies an opportunity that the U. S. government may fail to grasp. If the mill is given to India, it will be the largest single U. S. aid project that any under-developed nation has enjoyed.

Entertains At Luncheon
Miss Liza Carpenter entertained the Silver Fancy Garden Club at a beautiful luncheon in her lovely home near Taneytown, on June 20 at 12:30 p.m. Fifteen members and one guest were present. After lunch, a business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Andrew Eyster, president of the club. Plans were discussed for a forthcoming flower arrangement workshop to be open to the public. Mrs. Simon Klosky and Mrs. T. J. Frailey acted as co-hostesses.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. John D. White, Emmitsburg, on July 18 with Mrs. Andrew Eyster and Mrs. Elwood Baumgardner as co-hostesses.

FORD GALAXIE 500/XL SPORTS HARDTOP

IF YOU KNEW WHAT THIS "CAR KILLER" KNOWS...YOU'D BE DRIVING A SOLID, SILENT SUPER TORQUE FORD

This steel-edged pothole is probably the world's toughest test of a car's suspension. We drive into this car killer at 30 mph, locking our brakes as we go so the wheels can't roll through the hole as they normally would. The car slams against the far edge of the hole with such impact that it literally bounds out.

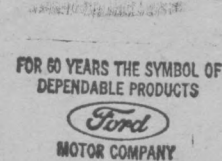

If you added up the cumulative effect of all the jars and jolts your car's suspension system experiences in years of normal driving, it wouldn't match the impact of one trip through the hole. Yet—a Ford must run this test three times to prove its strength.

How can a Ford take it? Because Ford's front suspension has extra beef in spindles, springs, suspension arms—in fact, it's about 20 pounds heavier than the front suspension of our principal competitor's car.

We don't expect you to abuse your car the way we do our test cars. But, however you drive, you'll welcome the extra strength of a total performance Ford. Ford strength is tested in a thousand ways in Ford's laboratories and proving grounds—and in open competition in the world's toughest rallies and stock car events.

Look at Ford's astounding record in open competition this year in the grueling Daytona, Riverside, and Atlanta 500's, the World 600 at Charlotte, N.C., and in the demanding Pure Oil Performance Trials. Only a car with total performance—the best combination of strength, balance, precision control and road-clinging suspension—could roll up so many wins.

Before you buy any new car, test-drive the solid, silent Super Torque Ford. If you haven't driven one lately, you can't really know what a new Ford is like. Make this important discovery: if it's built by Ford, it's built for performance...total performance.

Said Rep. Bennett:—It is my position that "In God We Trust" is the best possible phrase for us to officially designate as the national motto of the United States. Our forefathers had a deep and abiding trust in God, the greatest heritage left to us, their descendants. But when nations become prosperous, the people tend to think of themselves as self-sufficient, as masters of their own destiny. The phrase "In God We Trust" simply but forcefully expresses our humble acknowledgement of the wisdom and power and mercy of God. In these days when imperialism and materialism seek to destroy freedom, we should continually look for ways to strengthen the foundations of our freedom. At the head should be America's faith in God and our desire to live by His will and guidance . . . (as was emphasized by Major Cooper in his recent talk before Congress).

What About The Result?
I wish our dollar bills and other currency could read, "In God We Should Trust", but I expect that Mr. Bennett would not have succeeded in persuading Congress to enact this into law; therefore, I certainly commend what he has done. I must also, however, be frank with my readers—although I may be wrong. Here is my reasoning:

With the huge amounts of money which we are now spending on armaments, the motto "In God We Trust" must seem rather hypocritical to many nations of the West. Also, nations such as Russia, China, and other Communist countries and their satellites, including Cuba, as well as perhaps some Central and South American countries, must likewise think us hypocrites.

In Jesus' View
It certainly seems as if Jesus must look with great despair when He sees us use the motto "In God We Trust" when we are really trusting in our missiles, bombers, and almost everything else except God. Although the majority of individuals are still putting their trust in God, last year we as a nation spent over $40 billion trusting in armaments compared with less than $5 billion to build and maintain churches, hospitals, and other helpful or charitable structures and organizations.

Many of my older readers will remember the teachings of Thomas Nixon Carver, who was a prominent clergyman and also secretary of the National Statistical Association of America. One of Mr. Carver's books which had a great circulation discusses the different religions and what is meant by God, making the point that the nation which will finally survive will be that nation whose citizens produce the most worthwhile people, irrespective of creed, race, color, or wealth.

Beware Of Hypocrisy
When I personally visited Moscow five years ago, I found that Communism was the result of the cruelty practiced by the priests of the old Russian Church. These government priests talked about God and Jesus' Gospel, but absolutely ignored them in practice. This caused the Russian people to suppose that all religions would be cruel. This is really what started Communism. This cruelty has again arisen under the leadership of Castro in Cuba.

I hope I am wrong; but I fear that our adopting the motto "In God We Trust" and having it printed on our currency will not give the poor countries of the world the correct idea of what Jesus' teachings really were. What we should do is to conduct a real campaign—supported by our embassies in all countries—to demonstrate our belief in the teachings of Jesus. Then we can with good conscious display the motto which our nation officially adopted through Mt. Bennett's Public Law 140.

Research Okays Cold Feeding — Summer Boon
By Margaret Mott
Consumer Service Director
Clapp's Baby Foods

Baby can enjoy a picnic—or a boat ride, cook-out, or a day at the beach—as much as any member of the family. The newest research in child feeding makes it simpler for mother to take baby on a family trip, because baby's food is now so easy to take along with safety. At Bellevue Hospital, New York City, researchers have established that even premature babies do as well with cold - formula feedings as those which are warmed. We'll bet this is extra-refreshing on a hot day, too!

For families with get-up-and-go spirit, this means freedom from toting warmed foods which are subject to spoilage, or looking for a place to heat baby's food outdoors. It is perfectly safe to extend the findings on cold feeding to other foods as well. This should help perk up baby's appetite, on even the hottest day.

Remember that baby is as likely as anyone else to get hungry en route, and that the meal on arrival will be happier if he isn't fussy-hungry. Carry a handy bottle of baby juice for the road. Orange-apple and prune-orange-apple juices now come in sterile nursing bottles, ready for you to add your nipple, either screw-on of narrow - necked. What could be easier while traveling! When the bottle is empty, save it for re-use as an extra formula bottle.

In selecting foods to take for a trip, choose baby's favorites. Even with the distraction of a new place to eat, you minimize feeding problems. Remember that baby is likely to get hungrier outdoors, too, so pack an extra snack-jar, possibly the new oatmeal with apricots. Cereals completely prepared, combined with fruit and

PROTECTIVE REFLEXES
OF THE EYE

There are many examples of eye protection reflexes. Blinking, for instance, is a protective reflex. In a wink the eyelids can be closed to shut out excessive light, or a foreign object.

Many contact lens wearers become more conscious of dust in the air. Sometimes they will close their eyes so rapidly they will catch a dust particle before it strikes the eye and they can feel it between the lid margins. The contact lens wearer's lid reaction is more sensitive because dust underneath the lens can result in great discomfort.

We have all seen photographs taken with a flash bulb that reveals someone with their eyes closed. It is incredible how fast the eye can react. Tearing is another good example of protective reflex. If a foreign object finds its way into the eye, the tears will well up immediately to wash out the particle. Tears are antiseptic and tend to negate the action of the foreign object. In warmer or dryer weather the tears increase automatically. This action is also protective.

The pupil of the eye will react to different degrees of light. If there is very little light, the pupil will enlarge and if there is too much, it will dilate, or grow smaller. The reflex to dilate the pupil takes a little longer than the contracting action.

Tourist Attraction

"We don't see many Americans from Alaska or Hawaii," a United Nations Visitors Service official apologized.

But the other 48 states send a flow of visitors onto the park-like grounds and into the glass-and-marble U.N. headquarters buildings in New York. About 134,000 come yearly in groups representing fraternal orders, churches, schools, scouting and an endless variety of other organizations.

On a typical visit, 31 high school pupils from Ferndale, Mich., toured the General Assembly, Secretariat and Conference Buildings, sat in on a council session and met a U.N. delegate from India and a representative of the U.N. Children's Fund (UNICEF). Other recent groups represented the Methodist Seminary of Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia and Hanover College, Indiana.

However, most visitors come on their own. Over 2 million a year wander in and around the international enclave.

In fact, municipal authorities rate the U.N. as one of New York's top five attractions, along with the Statue of Liberty, Empire State Building, Rockefeller Center and Times Square.

"OPINIONS FROM THE FIELD"

Last week we talked about how hunting and archery in general so this week I thought it would be appropriate to talk about the game itself, the White-tailed deer. Not too many hunters, this writer included, could call themselves experts in the study of deer and their habits so I submit the following discourse only after reading a book on the subject written by an expert. From this book
"The World of the White-tailed Deer," by Leonard Lee Rue III, this writer learned many things about deer that he never knew even after 25 or more years of hunting them.

Late Spring in a deer's life means that the birthing time of the fawns is approaching. This creates a problem for the yearling fawns who have accompanied their mother since birth because she suddenly wants nothing to do with them and repeatedly drives them away. Finally when the doe is alone she carefully chooses a spot for the birth of her fawn or fawns. After their birth the doe will lead them away from the place of birth as soon as they can walk so as not to attract predators. At this time the fawns are very inactive and lie motionless awaiting visits from the doe for feeding. The doe stays away as much as possible to prevent her scent from giving away the location of the fawns but still has to return 8 to 10 times in a 24-hour period. This practice is followed until the fawns are about 3-weeks-old and then they accompany their mother and learn to eat other foods in preparation for weaning time. So much for the does and the miracle of birth.

Also at this time of year a strange thing happens to the male of the species. It is at this time the buck is starting to grow his yearly set of antlers and believe it or not, this growth begins because of the increasing hours of daylight. In order to explain this I shall quote from Mr. Rue's book: "This is known as photoperiodism, and it causes birds to seek their ancestral nesting ground in the north, animals to shed their hair, and is responsible for many of the other seasonal phenomena of wildlife. The increased daylight is picked up by the eyes of the adult buck deer and transmitted to the pituitary gland at the base of the skull. The pituitary gland then stimulates the release of testosterone. The pedicel, the base from which the antler starts to grow, has been covered with a layer of skin since the previous antlers were shed earlier. As the testosterone acts upon the deer's body, this skin starts to swell, due to the calcium deposits forming the antler. The velvet, as this network of veins is called, is nothing more than a kind of modified skin. It nourishes the antler from the outside, instead of from the center as in the growth of true horns such as cattle have. The antlers bleed really because all the veins are on the surface. They are hot to touch and covered with short, bristly hair."

From this point on, the antler development depends a great deal upon the food the buck consumes.
If food is abundant and contains plenty of calcium and phosphorus, then the buck will grow an impressive set of antlers. This growing period is usually over by the end of August and then a cluster of cells forms at the base of the antler and grows outward shutting off the blood supply. Then the velvet dries and starts to peel. This peeling apparently causes an itching sensation and the buck will attempt to remove the velvet by rubbing his antlers on saplings and bushes. Finally they are clean and polished and ready for the combat that is surely to come in the mating season.

This article only scratches the surface in covering one season in a deer's life, that of Spring. As Fall approaches I'll tell you more about "The World of the White-tailed Deer". . . .

Eye-Openers

Americans do 60% of their driving in the warm months, which means you'll probably be behind the wheel more hours this month than any month since last winter. Unless you've got "60 mph vision," keep your speed down...90% of driving decisions are based on sight.

Motorists' Vision and Highway Safety Committee of the A.O.A. says safe driving requires ability to focus and see clearly with each eye separately and both together—to judge distance correctly—to see over a large area without moving eyes or head—to point eyes simultaneously with ease at an object—to see under low illumination beyond the range of your headlights, to see against glare and to recover quickly from glare.

Has disability robbed you of your earning capacity? If so, you should check with your social security office, according to W. S. King, District Manager in Hagerstown.

Monthly benefits can be paid at any age to working people who have become unable to work by reason of a severe disability that is expected to last for a long time. Benefits begin with the seventh month of disability, but an application may be made before that time. To be eligible, the disabled worker must have social security credit for at least five years' work in the ten year period before he became disabled.

When you make your application, the social security office will assist you in securing the medical evidence necessary. When this evidence has been obtained, along with other facts, a decision will be made as to whether your condition is severe enough to qualify you as "disabled" under the terms of the law.

If you think you meet the requirements or know of anyone who may be eligible, get in touch with the social security office in Hagerstown as soon as possible.
Delay may result in a loss of benefits.

County Population To Show Increase

Frederick County must make room for 19,070 more residents in 1980 than were enumerated in the county by the 1960 U. S. Census.

The "Maryland Projections Study", prepared by economics consultants Leon Henderson and Martin Taitel for the Maryland Department of Economic Development, shows a trend which should increase the county's population during the 20 years ending in 1980 by 26.5%. This would give the county a 1980 population of 91,000. The U. S. Census total for 1960 was 71,930. Ten years earlier it was 62,287.

The projections study shows a population growth of 50.4 percent for the state as a whole, compared with the county's rate of 26.5 percent.

The projection of per capita personal income of Frederick County brings it up from $1,974 in 1960 to $2,920 in 1980.

For the state as a whole the projection shows a 1980 per capita personal income of $3,254 or $865 above that for 1960.

Maryland's percentage of national personal income increased from 1.6 percent in 1948 to 1.9 percent in 1961, while the state's percentage of gross national product jumped from 1.63 percent in 1950 to 1.88 percent in 1961. The state's percentage of the country's population increased from 1.6 percent in 1950 to 1.7 percent in 1960.

Maryland's total State Income on Product, which corresponds with Gross National Product, will compound, according to the Projections Study, year after year until 1980 at 3.6 percent per year which is greater than the 50-year national rate of 3 percent. While the Gross National Product was growing since the Korean War at the annual rate of 2.7 percent the Total State Income and Product was increasing at the annual rate of 5.5 percent.

The survey describes Maryland's economic pace in recent years as "outstanding and exciting" and forecasts that this pace will continue during the next 20 years. It sees the Maryland economy growing during this period at a higher rate than that for the country as a whole because of a "tightly-knit set of production and exchange relationships which constitutes the Maryland economy."

Seeking the reasons for the state's vigor and stability the projections study states:

"The extent of Maryland's industrialization, and its unusual diversification, are factors which contribute to the explanation of past growth and stability, and which bode well for the future. . . .

"Maryland's farmers will also share in the state's progress. . . . in future years they will be working larger, more profitable operations. . . .

"One of the most important factors contributing to the future development of the state will be Maryland's modern and expanding highway system. . . .

"Maryland is in the enviable position of being fiscally sound because of the energetic activity of her industries, and being able to supply the facilities and services these industries need for growth because the state is fiscally sound. The fiscal health of Maryland is almost unique in these times of deficit budgets. . . .

"Maryland's resources are many, and with these are the resourcefulness to keep the dynamic expansion on the move."

Police Give Warning On Fireworks

In a statement issued this week, Colonel Carey Jarman, Superintendent of the Maryland State Police, expressed alarm at the large number of persons who are injured each year by the illegal and indiscriminate use of fireworks.

"In Maryland," Colonel Jarman pointed out, "the sale and use of fireworks is prohibited unless a permit has been issued by a State Insurance Commissioner. Federal law bans bringing fireworks into Maryland from another State."

"Last year over 100 authorized public displays were held in Maryland, handled by skilled persons and with necessary safety precautions provided. Notification of these displays are generally well publicized by the news media or information can be obtained by calling the nearest State Police installation."

"It should be emphasized," continued Colonel Jarman, "that the law prohibits the use of homemade fireworks as well as those which are commercially manufactured."

Colonel Jarman said that all State Troopers have been directed to give close attention to this serious problem during the July 4th holiday and to cooperate with local police in the enforcement of the law.

The Maryland law specifically prohibits the use of firecrackers, squibs, rockets, Roman candles, sparklers, torpedoes, bombs, grenades, fire balloons, signal lights, and any combustible or explosive composition, or any substance or combination of substances, or article prepared for the purpose of producing a visible or an audible effect by combustion, explosion, deflagration or detonation.

One of a series of reports by this newspaper and the Print Advertising Association on the advantages of print media.

Don't you read before you buy?

Most people do.

They count on advertising in print to give them the information they want on products that interest them—information on features . . . designs . . . and prices, for example.

People not only read about products and services, they show ads to their family and friends; they clip coupons for information and samples; they tear out ads to take along when they go shopping.

When you add it all up, print advertising—the kind you read in the pages of this newspaper—makes sense.

And because it measures up to the buying habits of most consumers, print makes sales.

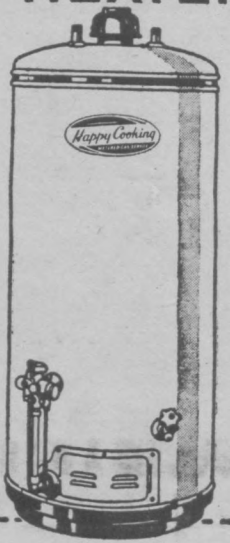

Most people read—and then buy. Don't you?

Picnic Foods Should Be Cared For Properly

The great American holiday—the July 4th weekend—is almost here again.

For millions of American families it will be a four-day holiday this year. And for almost every family the long holiday weekend will bring at least one family picnic.

The July 4th picnic is as traditional in America as the hot dog—which often is a main staple of the picnic lunch. Even the flies and the ants have a big time at picnics.

But now and then picnics end in tragedy—the tragedy of food poisoning. Most foods spoil quickly in hot weather and away from refrigeration. If there are a few staphylococci bacteria present, they need only a few hours of time and a warm temperature to grow rapidly. Some foods can become poisoned in as little as five or six hours on a hot day.

There are some easy and simple ways to avoid food poisoning on a picnic. One valuable item is a good portable icebox. Chill the foods thoroughly in the refrigerator at home. Use plenty of ice. Make sure the lid is tight. This will keep your perishables fresh.

Take along the sandwich ingredients in the original wrappings and containers and make up your picnic lunch on the spot, just before mealtime. Take the ham in a sealed can and open it at mealtime. The same applies to mayonnaise. Keep the boiled eggs and potatoes separate in the ice box, and mix the potato salad at the last minute.

Stick to canned foods and sealed jars and bottles that can be opened just before serving. Be careful about pies and cream-filled bakery items. They spoil very fast on a hot day. Fresh fruits keep better and will make good desserts.

It's actually not very difficult to insure safe picnic meals. Just follow your home practice of refrigerating those foods that need it. If you make up a hamper of sandwiches, load it into your hot auto trunk, head for the beach, and eat many hours later—well, you're asking for trouble.

Gambling Stamps Must Be Obtained

Irving Machiz, District Director of Internal Revenue for the Baltimore District, which comprises Maryland and District of Columbia reminds liquor dealers, professional gamblers, bowling alley, billiard parlor and pool room operators, establishments having coin operated gaming or amusement devices on their premises and certain other businesses, that they must register with and purchase occupational tax stamps from the Internal Revenue Service.

The necessary forms have already been mailed to taxpayers who purchased occupational tax stamps in previous years, Machiz said.

On or before July 1, 1963, gamblers, businesses manufacturing, dealing in or maintaining for use gaming devices, narcotics, marihuana, firearms, stills, distilled

Little League Action . . .

The Giants kept a tight hold on second place as they turned back the Cardinals 15-6 Monday evening in Emmitsburg Little League play.

Ron Bell and Ron Wierman tossed for the winners with Tom Topper doing the catching. Gary Manning and Wierman helped the winner's cause when each blasted a home run. Jim Hess went the distance on the hill for the Cards and John Wivell did the catching.

The Red Sox picked up a full game on the Giants by turning back the second place team 9-8 in a thrilling ball game in the Emmitsburg Little League last Thursday. The Red Sox had to score four times in the top of the sixth and managed to hold off a short Giant rally in the bottom half of the last frame which saw only one desperate run tallied.

Yankees Blast Red Sox
The Yankees increased their league lead by romping to a 25-6 win over the Red Sox Tuesday evening.

The Yankees lashed out a 13-hit attack in the six inning encounter while Mark McKenna handcuffed the Red Sox with six scattered safeties.

Rocky Ridge 4-H
Plans Field Day

The regular meeting of the Rocky Ridge Progressive 4-H Club was held recently at the home of Susan Parks. Twenty-five members answer roll call. It was announced that the club placed 5th in the annual dairy judging contest. Joey Wivell placed 4th in the junior division. A report was given by Jeffrey Valentine on the beef meetings held during the month at the homes of Mary Ann Keilholtz, Debbie Parks and Douglas Valentine.

Reports were also given by Stephen Thomas on the gardening project meetings held at his home and at the homes of Karl J. Smith Jr. and Dale Valtine. Jeffrey Valentine and Fred Keilholtz will represent the club in demonstration day. Dates will be announced later for this event. Ralph Keilholtz and James Hill, leaders, announced that the field day will be held July 6 at the home of Mr. Keilholtz. The meeting was then adjourned and refreshments served.

The field day will begin at 9:00 a.m. and last until 3 p.m. Groups with instructors in dairy, beef, swine, sheep, gardening and horse and pony divisions will meet and learn to fit and show their animals. This will be a group participation meeting so old clothes and boots will be a must for 4-Hers.

Lunch will be sold by the Northern Cloverettes (the Rocky Ridge Girl's 4-H Club). All parents and friends are urged to attend with their families and enjoy themselves throughout the day.

Eight Lose Lives
On State Highways

Eight persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police.

Four of those killed were drivers and four were passengers. Alcohol was a contributing factor in four of the deaths; speed in five; and "driver error" was present in all of the fatalities.

"One of the persons was killed," commented Colonel Carey Jarman, Superintendent of the Maryland State Police, "because the driver of an approaching vehicle failed to dim his headlights."

"Lowering headlights under these circumstances is not simply a courtesy which is extended to other drivers. It is a legal requirement established to provide safety on the highway, but it is one which too many drivers fail to take seriously."

"This emphasizes," Colonel Jarman continued, "the importance of good driving habits and sound driver attitudes in maintaining safety on the highway. Maximum safety cannot be obtained until every driver realizes that every move he makes has some effect on the other motorists, and it is his responsibility to see that these actions add up to a freedom from needless tragedy."

HOUSING PROJECT

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers in Baltimore this week said the Security Company of Richmond, Va., is the apparent low bidder on a project to build 179 family housing units at Ft. Ritchie.

The Virginia company bid $2,752,000 on the project. Frederick Construction Company Inc., one of the six other bidders, submitted a bid of $3,362,064.

Work on the project will begin in mid July, a spokesman for the Corps said. The units are expected to be completed in about 18 months.

Your Retirement Home

Most older folks don't want to be isolated during their retirement years. Being in the middle of things keeps them feeling young. Yet, too many children can be annoying. A moderately active, well-balanced community is best.

The house itself should not be too large. Two bedrooms, a bath, kitchen, dining area and living room are sufficient. A single-story structure with about 1,000 to 1,200 square feet of floor space is just about right.

According to Jim Stone, Safety Engineer of Continental Casualty Company, safety features should include non-slip floors, grab bars on bathroom walls, and doorways without sills. Raised electrical outlets to reduce bending and easy-opening windows are important also.

Astronaut Glenn discusses a down-to-earth problem.

Colonel Glenn has stated that the success of his orbital flight depended as much on his physical and mental fitness as it did on modern technology. Consequently, he has made this appeal: "I call on all parents to urge school officials to provide programs of physical education that stress vigorous activity." Is your child's school doing what Colonel Glenn recommends? Many of our schools aren't. As a result, about one-third of our youngsters can't pass minimum physical achievement tests. Make sure that the school your youngster attends has an adequate fitness program. Talk to your school officials. If you would like more information, write to The President's Council on Physical Fitness, Washington 25, D. C.
