The recent nuclear test ban treaty concluded by this Government, England and Russia is a feather in the cap of the Kennedy administration and a move which should increase the popularity of our President. Recent surveys show the President slipping in popularity due to the racial integration issue, something for which he is not directly responsible but an offspring of the previous administration. At any rate, we believe the consummated treaty a good thing and a step in the right direction towards peace. We know that the Russians are "battering" us up a bit because they have lost face with the Red Chinese, but as long as we are talking peace we are not fighting and when we are not fighting our sons are not being slaughtered. The real thing to guard in my opinion, is any disarmament measures, if and when any action is to be taken.

Vandalism apparently is on the increase here and officials are planning a crackdown to curb it. Half a dozen youths were rounded up Wednesday and carted off to Frederick for juvenile authorities to deal with. The vandals upset picnic tables, broke out light bulbs and did other damage to Kump's Dam Park, a local garage and a local orchard building where they stole gasoline and upset crates of apples, smashing them on the floor. Chief Law worked diligently on the case and Wednesday rounded up a handful of suspects. Bands of these youths are seen nightly prowling the streets and alleys apparently "casing" places to wreak their destruction and vengeance. The people have a right to and will insist that the juvenile authorities in Frederick take more drastic action in dealing with these youthful culprits. Time and again police have taken local juveniles to Frederick only to see them released in the custody of their parents and returned home before the police. We demand a stop to this preferential treatment of repeat offenders before someone really gets hurt. Several weeks ago the Lutheran Church was desecrated and just recently extensive damage was done to the National Shrine Grotto at Mt. St. Mary's. How long can the people of Emmitsburg be expected to endure such actions?

Victor Cullen Hospital will be with us for some time to come it was announced this week when State authorities promised once again to keep the hospital in usage for the time being. The hospital provides good employment for many of our citizens here and also offers those afflicted with tuberculosis a place where there is good fresh mountain air and care while on the road to recovery.

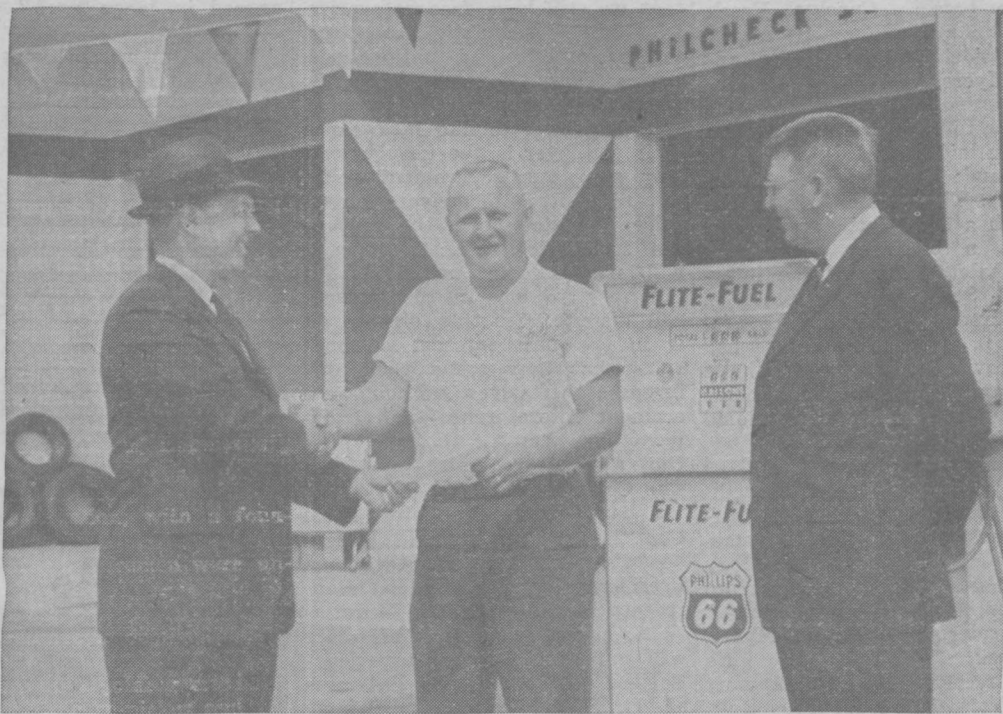

Some of us citizens are perturbed over a little rust in our local water system. The condition is a temporary one I can assure you and when the new system is completed in the near future we will have one of the finest water systems in the State. This coupled with our modern disposal plant gives us two real assets of which we can well be proud. Take Sykesville, for example. A town of comparable size it has condemned water and sewerage. So bad is the drinking water that the State Health Dept. has condemned it and ordered the town to tap onto the Springfield Hospital water supply. The lack of adequate sewerage there also is a health menace to the entire community. So folks when our plant is flooded by an extra heavy rainfall or the water has a little rust in it don't be too harsh on our town officials because we really do have it good here. Just think of the miseries and woes of Sykesville and count the blessings you have here, and I'm certain you will see the light.

Wins Service Award Form Petroleum Company

A $50 award was presented to Paul A. Dudash of Dudash's 66 Service Station, Emmitsburg, by D. F. Hawkland, Jr., assistant division manager of Phillips Petroleum Co. F. W. Higinbotham, president of Blue Ridge Oil Company, local distributor of Phillips Petroleum products, looks on.

The award was given by Phillips Petroleum Company for giving outstanding driveway service to a Phillips "Mystery Motorist." The unexpected but well-deserved award was made when the "Mystery Motorist" made an unheralded visit to Dudash's Service Station recently.

To win the award, Mr. Dudash appeared in proper uniform and gave the "Mystery Motorist" the six steps of Phillips Golden Approach service. This included: 1. friendly approach; 2. checking under hood of car; 3. cleaning all the car windows; 4. using a vacuum cleaner or whiskbroom to clean floor mats; 5. checking the tires; thanking the customer for his purchases. At the conclusion of this service, the customer identified himself as a Phillips "Mystery Motorist" and left a $50 certificate at the station.

The "Mystery Motorist" is one of hundreds of men and women who will this year be rewarding Phillips 66 dealers and their service salesmen for giving outstanding service on the driveways. Dealers and their personnel of more than 19,500 Phillips 66 Service Stations operating in 47 states and the District of Columbia are eligible to win this $50 award by being in proper uniform and giving the Golden Approach service.

Town Officials Meet With School Board; Seek Site

In an effort to make some progress in the selection of a site for the proposed new North County High School which would accommodate almost 800 students from northern Frederick County, Mayor Ralph F. Ireland and Town Commissioner J. Norman Flax met with the Frederick County School Board for several hours Wednesday.

Recent information indicates that the proposed site owned by Wivell and Jamison on Payne's Hill might not be available as other interests are said to have made higher offers for the ground, some of which is zoned agricultural and some commercial. It is believed the Jamison land has been zoned commercial and a much higher price is being asked for it.

The Town Officials said they represented the community of Emmitsburg and not the local PTA group. The reiterated their previous contention and demand that the new school should be located conveniently and to the best interests of both Emmitsburg and Thurmont. They suggested several sites for the school including the entire Wivell farm and the Prongas land on the Old Frederick Road. The two officials said they believed some progress had been made with the School Board.

A group from Washington is negotiating with Charles H. Jamison of Poolesville, for the purchase of ten acres of land along U. S. 15 north of Thurmont, it was learned this week.

The land, which has been approved by the Board of Zoning Appeals as a site for a motel, is the same property which the Board of Education has been dickering to buy as a site for a new high school to serve Emmitsburg and Thurmont.

The Board of Education had voted to purchase the Jamison property and adjoining land owned by J. Norbert Wivell, but the County Commissioners said Jamison's price of $1,000 an acre was too much.

In confirming a report that the property is about to be sold, Mr. Jamison indicated that the purchase price will be considerably more than the price he offered the School Board. He said "When they see the stamps (tax stamps attached to the deed) they'll open their eyes." He refused to say just how much the land will bring since negotiations have not yet been completed.

Mr. Jamison said since his land is zoned for a motel that is why he wanted more money than an agricultural land price. He said he thought his offer to the Board of Education was reasonable. He also said that he offered to trade the land for any other ten acre tract along Route 15 between Thurmont and Frederick, but this offer was not pursued. "Now I have a better proposition," he stated.

J. Alfred Cutsail, executive secretary of the Planning Commission, clarified the zoning of the land. He said it is listed on the map as A-1 agriculture, but at a hearing the Board of Zoning Appeals in June, 1960, the officials approved building a motel on the site as a conditional use.

A committee of citizens from the two towns is still on record as favoring the County Commissioners to purchase the Jamison-Wivell site even though the officials have said "no" to the proposition.

Resident Hall Construction Begun At St. Joseph's

Construction of a new 150-student residence hall is under way at St. Joseph College, the first project in a 10-year program of expansion envisioned by the college authorities.

Of modified modern architecture to blend with existing structures, the new residence hall will feature TV, study, laundry and vending rooms, a counselor's office, and telephone booths on each of the three floors. An elevator is included in building plans.

The rooms will be double rooms, equipped with built-in desks and chests of drawers.

Plans are also progressing for the erection of the new science building, for which a Maryland State grant of $750,000 was received last spring. The science hall will include air conditioning, an arena type auditorium with built-in visual aid equipment and lecture demonstration tables; chemistry, microbiology and plant research laboratories. There will also be instrumentation rooms, a terrarium and an aquarium, mechanical control of equipment in the physics lecture room for the lecturer's desk, general and faculty offices and lounges, and extra classroom space.

The new residence hall is being erected on the front campus along the main entrance and west of the Student Union.

We know we can't take it with us, but we wish Uncle Sam would let us take a little more of it home.

Account Numbers Government Must

Recent laws passed by Congress require banks, savings and loan associations, corporations and other payers of interest and dividends to obtain the taxpayer account number from each depositor and shareholder. The numbers are to be used in reporting to Internal Revenue Service payments of interest or dividends, according to Irving Machiz, District Director of Internal Revenue for the Baltimore District which comprises Maryland and District of Columbia.

Account numbers are needed in processing tax returns under Internal Revenue's automatic data processing system. This is important, Machiz said, to insure proper crediting of each taxpayer's account.

The Director urged receivers of income from these sources to promptly comply when they receive these requests for their account numbers from the paying organizations.

The deadline for reporting taxpayer account numbers is September 30, 1963, he added.

All taxpayers will be required by law to list their taxpayer account number in the proper block when filing their 1963 tax return.

A necessary evil is one we like so well we don't care to abolish it.

COMMISSIONER FLAX ACCEPTS WATER BLAME

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

The Town is very sorry about the inconvenience caused recently due to rust and odor in the water system. I don't know who started the malicious rumors about what foreign matter was found in the reservoir we cleaned but many witnesses were present when the work of cleaning Reservoir No. 1 was done.

The flare-up started when mud drained into Reservoirs Nos. 1 and 2, from Crystal Fountain Road which was recently graded. In addition increasing pressure in the lines to get more water to the Town caused additional sediment. Copper sulphate and chlorine crystals were used and loosened algae in the mains. These chemicals, harmless to humans when used in regulated quantities, purifies the water which was absolutely necessary when the chlorinator machine went out of action for some unknown reason. A representative of the Fisher - Porter Co. was called to check the chlorinator and it was found the machine was useless. A quick repair job by a local electrician, David Ohler, put into action a pump which produced water for Reservoir No. 2.

The Board of Health obtained samples of the water on July 26 when it was called in to check. Working crews stayed on the job day and night to improve the condition of the water and the system. The Town plans to replace almost the entire old water system with a new one, plus a filtration system and a reserve for fire protection which the Town does not have at this time. We are not certain if we can improve on the quality of local water which has always been good, but we do plan to give the Town more of it. It was my own idea to fully open the valves which caused the flare-up and I accept full responsibility for my action. No other officials were involved and they are not to be blamed for the condition of the water. The rusty water was not the result of logging operations on the watershed as some have said. This action is centered around Reservoir No. 3 where the water is as blue as indigo and which does not receive any water from Rainbow Lake but from Turkey Run. There are numerous repairs and improvements to be made to the reservoirs which will give more and better service to water customers in the future. If you, the public, will kindly bear with us during this repair interim I promise to try and to prevent any future disturbance and inconvenience.

Sickles' Bill Would Aid Fire Co.

Congressman Carlton R. Sickles (D-Md.), this week introduced legislation enabling volunteer fire-fighting companies to receive donations of government surplus equipment.

"The present law allows donations of government surplus equipment for purposes of education, public health, research, or civil defense," Sickles said, "but under a narrow interpretation of the law, volunteer fire companies have been unable to receive surplus equipment."

The Sickles bill would amend the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, allowing volunteer fire companies to receive equipment because of their vital role in civil defense.

"We have 296 volunteer fire-fighting organizations in Maryland," Sickles said, "and my bill would enable these companies to receive much-needed truck chassis and tanks, to replace out-moded engines, and to supplement existing equipment which is, in many cases, inadequate to the needs of the community."

Sickles lauded the "cooperative" spirit of the volunteer fire-fighting organizations, saying, "I know of no other type of organization which would be a more worthy recipient of surplus government equipment or make better use of it."

Scout Camp Successful

Camp Emmitsburg closed recently with a campfire ceremony witnessed by parents and friends. As the guests assembled they inspected the camp site which was located at Saint Anthony's Grove a few miles south of Emmitsburg.

The program opened with the lowering of the Colors by the camp council which was composed of two representatives from each of the three units of the camp and were Carolyn Frock, Donna Eckard, Nancy Hitchcock, Linda Seidel, Martha Miller and Olivia Myers.

The center of interest was then changed to the campfire which had been laid by the Intermediate Scouts under the direction of senior aides. The senior girls lit the fire with a fire-lighting ceremony. Against a backdrop picture of "Our Chalet," which is the international Scout meeting place in Switzerland, the rest of the program took place. This picture had been drawn by Carolyn Keilholz and Juanita Lindsey. The theme of the evening was International Friendship.

Following a procession of flags of many nations, the Intermediates presented articles from different countries and told something interesting about each. They sang, "Come Out, Come Out Into the Open Air" and "Our Chalet." Their leader, Mrs. Robert Myers, announced the following girls would receive their Campercraft Badge from their local troop leader since they had met all the requirements in camp: Debbie Baker, Jackie Balmer, Beverly Davis, Pam Dickson, Pat Dickson, Diane Dutrow, Carolyn Frock, Linda Gillespie, Mary Margaret Koonz, Dorothy Marshall, Juanita Lindsey, Glenda McLaughlin, Barbara Myers, Lynn Miller Mary Kay Sherwin, Rose Ricketts, Pam Topper, Karen Warthen, Beverly Wetzel, Mary Beth Eckenrode, Barbara Hitchcock, Sharon Kelly, Joan Alexander, Donna Eckard, Susan Miller, Bernadette Pinkas, Anne Thompson and Carol Stevens.

The one Brownie unit under direction of Mrs. Ralph D. Lindsey, presented a little skit "Magic Mud," in which they discovered the many things that can be found in a small parcel of muddy ground. Mrs. George Danner's Brownie unit acted out a song from Australia, "Kookaburra" and then the two units sang "Tie Me Kangaroo Down."

Camp Director Mrs. Harold Curry, introduced the members of the staff at the opening of the program and directed many of the songs that were learned in camp. The program closed with the singing of "Dona Nobis Pacem" and "Evening Taps."

SENATE CLOAKROOM

By J. Glenn Beall, U. S. Senator From Maryland

Debt Is A Vice: Basic American Principle Ben Franklin, one of our Founding Fathers, set forth in his "Poor Richard's Almanack" many of the honorable principles on which the United States of America was founded. At a time when deficit spending and a mounting national debt are actually being defended in some quarters, it is well to recall wise Ben Franklin sayings—such as: "The second Vice is Lying; the first is running in Debt."

Rail Settlement Held Possible The Senate Commerce Committee, of which I am a member, has been hearing testimony on the dispute between railroad management and railroad employees' unions over new work rules which the management proposed to put into effect and which caused the unions to plan a nationwide railway strike. One of the new rules objected to is one referring to "featherbedding", the employing of more persons than needed. Labor union representatives say that jobs classified by railroad management as "featherbedding" are not "featherbedding", that the employees in those jobs are performing essential services. The railroads agreed to postpone the new work rules to allow more time for arriving at an agreement with the unions and thereby avoid a strike which no doubt would cripple many industries and cause widespread unemployment. President Kennedy proposed to let the Interstate Commerce Commission deal with the key work rules dispute, a proposal the unions do not like, and the matter was referred to the Congress.

After listening to testimony before our committee, I am of the opinion that the parties to the dispute are not as far apart as has been assumed. Both railway management and railway labor unions are responsible units of our society, and their basic interest is the same. The railroads cannot operate successfully without contented, loyal employees, and the employees cannot expect to have jobs unless the railroads can operate with a profit. George Meany, President of the AFL-CIO, said before our committee that the railway employees do not want to be paid for doing nothing, for "featherbedding"—that what they want is work. Here is another instance where employees and employers in private enterprise should get together and solve their own problems without government interference. The more we can keep the Federal government out of the give-and-take flow of private enterprise, the better our economy will be. The Government's role should be that of promoting the atmosphere in which free enterprise can flourish—for free enterprise is the rock on which our society, our economy and our nation are built.

"Compulsory arbitration" has been suggested. The term is an abuse of the language; there can be nothing compulsory about arbitration in a free society. The railway workers can be thankful that we still have free enterprise. In 100% - socialistic countries, where industry is nationalized, the workers have no redress; what their employer says goes and they have to like it, because their employer is the government. Any step our government takes toward control of private enterprise is a step down the road to the socialistic state. I hope it will not become necessary for Congress to act in the present rail dispute. In this dispute, it is in the best interest of both sides that they settle their differences themselves, without government interference—and I believe they can do it.

Our Agriculture And The Common Market

I have received a letter from Christian Herter, President Eisenhower's Secretary of State and President Kennedy's Special Representative for Trade Negotiations, assuring me that his office will enter into agriculture negotiations that are in the interests of U. S. agriculture, and none others. Several of my colleagues and I had expressed concern over protectionist tendencies manifested by the European Common Market, particularly with reference to agriculture trade. The Common Market organization had taken the position that it could not negotiate on agricultural products until its own "internal policy with regard to these products has been resolved." Mr. Herter informed me that he was hopeful that this could be done within a very few months. His letter went on to say:

"We have made it very clear that any negotiations undertaken must include agricultural trade as well as industrial products, and that no agreement can be concluded unless agricultural trade is included in a comprehensive manner. This is a matter of simple justice to our farmers. It also involves a vital national interest. Our agricultural exports in the Common Market in 1962 amounted to $1,200,000,000, compared with $200,000,000 in imports; they accounted for almost all our trade surplus with the Common Market, out of which our defense commitments there are financed in large part."

Temperament is temper that is too old to spank.

YOUR CHILDREN MAY BE SWIMMING IN A POOL FULL OF BACTERIA

Your pool looks clean. You chlorinate it every so often. But between treatments, it may be crawling with bacteria. Everyday protection is simple and cheap. Normally a daily dose of HTH dry chlorine is all it takes. You can mix a solution with ordinary water in a few minutes. Or, you can add it to the pool straight from the container. One 100-lb. metal drum of HTH usually is enough for the entire season.

HTH also is available in 1-lb. and 3 1/2-lb. plastic bottles and 35-lb. pails. We'd like to help keep your pool healthy. Call or come in for all the facts about pool chlorination.

100 YEARS AGO

SOUTHERNERS IN GLOOM AFTER JULY DEFEATS

By Lon K. Savage

July, 1863, had been a great month for the Union but a catastrophic one for the Confederacy, and as the month came to an end 100 years ago this week, a pall of gloom spread throughout the South.

The losses of the month had been momentous. General Robert E. Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania had been hurled back with terrible slaughter at Gettysburg. Vicksburg, and 30,000 Confederate troops, had surrendered to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, cutting the Confederacy in two. General John Hunt Morgan, the guerilla fighter, had marched north from Tennessee and invaded Indiana and Ohio, only to be captured and to lose all but 250 of his 3,000 men. And in Tennessee, Gen. Braxton Bragg had been forced to abandon the central part of the state to the Federals and fall back to Chattanooga, next to the Georgia line.

"The momentary gloom, hanging like the pall of death over our affairs, cannot be dispelled without a decisive victory somewhere," wrote John B. Jones, the Confederate war clerk in Richmond, in his diary of August 2.

Diary Entries

Jones' diary entries as July ended and August began told a vivid story.

"Lee is falling back on this side of the Rappahannock (in central Virginia)," he wrote on August 4. "His army has been diminished by desertions." And on August 3, he wrote: "More than a thousand deserters from Lee's army have crossed (the James River near Richmond) within the last fortnight. This is awful. . ."

On July 31st, Jones noted a letter from a Confederate congressman in Mobile, Ala.: "Mississippi is nearly subdued, and Alabama is almost exhausted. . . Our recent disasters, and Lee's failure in Pennsylvania, have nearly ruined us."

And on July 29th, Jones noted a report "that Western and Middle Tennessee are in the hands of the enemy, and that about half the people in East Tennessee sympathize with the North!"

Other Woes

There were still other woes. Federals were hammering away with big guns on historic Fort Sumter at Charleston, S. C. In North Carolina, 33-year-old Governor Zebulon Vance was arguing heatedly against Confederate policies and was showing signs of Union sympathy. There also was growing Union sympathy in Arkansas. On July 27th, Jones had written: "Nothing but disaster to chronicle now. Natchez and Yazoo City, all gone the way of Vicksburg. . ."

Two deaths that week heightened the sadness. The famous Sam Houston, former president and governor of Texas, died July 26. (This was no blow to the Confederacy, however, Houston had opposed secession consistently). In Alabama, William L. Yancey, Confederate senator and former Confederate diplomat, died the following day.

In the western war theater, Gen. Joseph E. Johnston had become a thorn in the side of President Davis and finally had asked to be relieved of command of the Department of Tennessee and given command only of the forces in Mississippi. The request was granted.

And in Virginia came an even more momentous request: Lee asked Davis to be relieved of command of the Army of Northern Virginia so that "a younger and abler man than myself" could take over. Davis found that request impossible to grant.

WAR ACTION SHIFTS TO EAST TENNESSEE

"Your forces must move forward without delay," the telegram read. "You will daily report the movement of each corps till you cross the Tennessee River."

The telegram was sent 100 years ago this week from Federal Gen. Henry W. Halleck in Washington to Gen. William S. Rosencrans, commander of the United States Army of the Cumberland, at Winchester in south-central Tennessee. It marked a sudden Civil War change that took place in early August of 1863—a shift of action from the Mississippi River and from Virginia to a place between the two, East Tennessee.

The telegram, dated August 4, opened a campaign that would result in important battles, the Federal conquest of East Tennessee and the opening of a Federal passageway into Georgia.

Background

Rosencrans had been in Tennessee throughout 1863, but he had done little fighting. After Murfreesboro at the beginning of the year, his army had pitched camp facing the army of Confederate Gen. Braxton Bragg, then headquartered at Tullahoma, 40 miles to the south.

Six months passed before Rosencrans moved out of Murfreesboro toward Bragg, with his highly able lieutenants, Phil Sheridan, George H. Thomas and Thomas L. Crittenden leading the way. That was in late June, and Bragg, seeing the advance, tried to resist and then fell back behind the Cumberland Mountains and the Tennessee River to Chattanooga in the state's southeastern corner.

Rosencrans advanced his army to the south and east and occupied Tullahoma, and there things bogged down again.

But now, Rosencrans was being compelled to move. Every day, letters and telegrams came in from Washington, prodding him to action. Rosencrans offered to resign, but from Washington came only more requests that he move out against Bragg. Even President Lincoln got into the act by urging Rosencrans to move.

At Chattanooga

Bragg, meanwhile, was also exchanging telegrams and letters from Chattanooga with his superiors at Richmond.

Man About Baltimore

By H. George Hahn

The rouges' gallery of Andersonian grotesques and lusty wench-esses of Tennessee Williams' mind in A Streetcar Named Desire was exhibited brilliantly by the Spotlighters, a promising amateur theatrical group in the city.

Let us parrot time-worn clichés and exhume religiously typed opinions of Williams' approach to and meaning of life. We shall merely mention that Streetcar is the typical Williams' recipe flavored with more or less spice—according to one's tastes.

But Director Vernon Belt's production was served on a platter of fresh enthusiasm, an ingredient long dissociated with any Williams' fare.

Audrey Herman as Blanche, the traumatically impelled wanderer, piloted her role with such intensity and tragic effect that she evoked the all-important illusion of reality from her fellow players. Woody Moates' characterization of Stanley was splendidly natural as he injected that caustic and sometimes all-too-subtle Williams' wit into the tragedy.

Plaudits need be heaped. The entire effort was brilliant; the whole effect captivating. If Streetcar is an appetizer to a Williams' summer menu, then the coming of Summer And Smoke which next appears on the Spotlighters' boards at 817 St. Paul Street, should provide a most delicious main course.

Topic Of The Times

We sometimes wonder just how long this three ring circus of demonstration, integration, and segregation will run.

From Oxford to Cambridge, Birmingham to Danville the course of events follows the same pattern. A formula might be set down which would yield a reaction with the same scientific recurrence and precision as a chemical equation. A demonstration stirs tempers. Violence may erupt. In time all is placated by a thin balm of good will. Ridiculous and half-witted demands and solutions follow.

Were all citizens to realize that this hybrid thorn called civil rights pricking at a nation's heart is a bilateral issue, many minds would be assuaged.

Human rights and property rights must exist together in a fluid blend of harmony. Neither must be scrapped. But both must be tempered. And in that mollification lies the answer to an internal coexistence.

Radicals must be silenced. We must distinguish between public and private. What is more ridiculous than a citizen being barred entry to a tax-supported school? Perhaps only a demand to write or force a Negro role into every radio, television, and movie script. Freedom of choice bends in two directions.

We must realize a distinction between moral right and legal right. We cannot judge morals by human laws; morals are judged by moral law, the law of the Creator. A government legislates laws, not morals.

To be particular: If a storeowner discriminates, he may be morally wrong, but under our Constitution he is legally right. We must act as individuals and resolve the moral-law conflict within ourselves. But to prevent anarchy the law must be preserved, whether it be a trespass law or a discrimination ruling.

Your Personal Health

Hay Fever

Aaaaaachooooooo!
Here comes the hay fever season!

If you're one of the several million in this country who have annual bouts with hay fever, or other millions who undergo severe asthma attacks during the hay fever season, watch out, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association. It's rough sledding ahead.

From the middle of August through mid-September, those sensitive to ragweed pollen suffer their most agonizing time. That's when the ragweed pollen count is highest.

Hay fever is not caused by hay and it isn't a fever.

Hay fever is an allergy. Your body becomes sensitive to a foreign substance. This can be almost anything for various individuals, but is most likely to be ragweed pollen. The results also vary, but most commonly are sneezing, watery eyes, runny nose and general miserable discomfort.

Atlanta, he reported, was in great danger, and he did not have enough men to beat Rosencrans. Richmond answered: if Joe Johnston's army from Mississippi were to re-enforce Bragg, could he, Bragg, then attack Rosencrans and defeat him?

Bragg's answer: a river and "rugged and sterile" mountain range separated him from Rosencrans; to cross these obstacles and attack "would be rashness." Better, he said, to wait and let Rosencrans "present himself on this side of the mountains. . ."

Bragg would not have long to wait. That very day, August 5, Rosencrans was preparing at long last to move across the mountains. And at the same time, another army under Gen. Ambrose Burnside of the Department of Ohio was preparing to move into East Tennessee with Knoxville as its target.

Next week: Rosencrans moves out.

There is nothing sadder than a fisherman returning home with an empty creel — and nothing limper (unless it's his casting arm) than his excuse that there used to be plenty of fish "until everybody and his cousin took up fishing."

It's true that the number of anglers is sharply rising. But the fishing fraternity would have to quadruple before it made a sizable dent in the fish population.

While some species are disappearing, this is due more to natural and industrial influences than to the intrusion of sportmen. Besides, conservation services and fish hatcheries are constantly replenishing popular fishing waters. Evidence is the recent announcement by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service that nearly a million year-old silver salmon were released in just one river by the Oregon Fish Commission in the first part of 1963 — or that five million fingerling trout and salmon were air-dropped in 789 California lakes in 1962.

More likely, the empty creel can be blamed on poor judgment, or unsatisfactory weather conditions, or a violation of some fundamental fishing technique. Location is a key factor. Fish don't operate uniformly in any given body of water, but they do have favorite congregating spots. Experienced fishermen know, for example, that a partly submerged tree or a weed bed under water or a connecting channel between two lakes is a popular haunt for fish.

Choice of tackle is another factor that can make a day's outing a success or failure. Mismatched tackle is difficult to use. Rod, reel, line, and lure weight must work together for best results. For example, a good combination for landing muskellunge would be a Garcia 2222 rod with an Ambassador 6000 bait-casting reel and a 20-pound line, all designed for rugged action. Matching lures with line is equally important. The snook fisherman working with a Conolon 2704 rod is going to want a fairly substantial lure in the 5-oz. to 1-oz. range, preferably with 8- to 15-pound test Platyl line. Chances are he'd be most comfortable using a Mitchell 306 reel for this type of salt-water fishing.

The variations on balanced tackle are almost endless, of course, but the fisherman who is "down on his luck" would be well-advised to take stock of the equipment he is using when seeking his favorite game.

A veteran casting champion once pointed out that one formula for successful fishing is 10 per cent luck, 20 per cent "fish sense" and 70 per cent "horse sense." No one can control the luck, and the fish sense is inherent — but the horse sense can be acquired by reading the right books and listening to the right people.

Tolerance to pollens sometimes can be built up by injecting a dilute solution of them under the skin. These shots must be medically prescribed to meet individual needs. In some cases your doctor may prescribe one of the antihistamines for temporary relief.

The most common preventive measures against hay fever are:

Get specific anti-fever shots well ahead of the season.

Avoid exposure to ragweed pollen by keeping away from areas where it is prevalent.

Air condition the home and work in air-conditioned surroundings, if possible.

Antihistaminic drugs to lessen the nasal and sinus congestion.

Keep the home as dust free as possible during the height of the hay fever season and throughout the rest of the year.

Timonium Fair Prize List Out

Prospective exhibitors throughout Maryland and surrounding areas this week received a copy of the 1963 Premium List Book for the Timonium Fair.

Twelve thousand 220-page illustrated premium list books for the Maryland State Fair have been printed and copies of the list may be obtained, free of charge, by calling Clearbrook 2-0200, or by writing to the Maryland State Fair and Agricultural Society at Timonium, Maryland.

Howard W. Clark, newly appointed President of the Maryland State Fair and Agricultural Society, announced that an amount in excess of $94,000.00 in premiums, awards, and ribbons will be distributed at the forthcoming Fair, August 26 to September 4, inclusive, at Timonium.

The 1963 premium list is an illustrated catalog of daily programs and events and has been expanded over last year's list to include the many new classes, rules and regulations, as well as this year's activities.

All entries in the dairy cattle, beef cattle, swine, sheep, horse and pony shows closed yesterday.

The annual State Fair in Timonium has long been a traditional event and 1963 marks the 82nd year for this tremendous exploit. As always, farmers and the 4-H boys and girls, Future Farmers of America, will present to the general public displays and demonstrations which have been featured during the year.

In the near future we will publish an enlarged calendar of events for old and young visiting the Fair this year. Many new features have been added. The Midway will be fun and thrills for all, under the direction of Ben Weiss and Dave Endy, stated Toward W. Clark, President.

SPORTING TIPS

Pop Bottle Fly Case

Hey! Here's a good one for the fly fishing fraternity. Even though you have a permanent fly box that holds a lot of varieties you seldom use, fishing conditions sometimes call for using a few varieties but switching them a lot. These times it's a bother to keep going back into your big box. So . . . punch a hole in a pop bottle cap and sew it to your fishing jacket. Sinking fly hooks in corks hold 'em securely and there is room there for several of your favorites.

Tips For Mounting Fish

Surely this season you're going to land Old Buster, legendary monster of the waters you fish. Here is the way to be sure your taxidermist can do the big fellow justice when it comes time to make a trophy mount. Ready for the tip, Freeze the fish. That's all you have to do, freeze it, just as soon as possible after you've caught it. Don't try to clean or remove anything, just freeze and tip for the mounting man.

Tip For Rough-Road Trailers

Hit for the roughest roads you can find. Clothes in your trailer (or camper) closets will never bounce off hangers if you hang each item on two hangers facing opposite directions. Crossed hooks can't be thrown.

Fish Curry

We are advised there is no better fish sealer made for hard-scaled fish than a curry comb used to rub down horses.

Bike Tube Tie Downs

You'll anchor your car top boat to the racks more quickly with two 26-inch bicycle inner tubes. Put one end around rack, pull loop across boat and slip other end of loop over rack on opposite side. No danger of scratching with strap buckles. Power of rubber tube holds boat securely.

Quiet The Frogs

Okay, so cleaning frogs isn't exactly our national sport. Have you ever tried it, what with them leaping and jumping around? Solve that problem with this tip. Just dump your catch in a bucket of ice water. Numbs them so they can be handled with ease for cleaning.

Lengthen Battery Life

Leave your summer flashlights in the refrigerator if you are going away for any length of time. (And you are going to keep the power on in your refrigerator.) Cold cuts down electrical activity, will keep the batteries at top strength longer.

When you broil fish, do it quickly, so that they come to your table juicy, not dry and tasteless. Minutes, seconds even, is the time gauge with fish. Two minutes too long can ruin the finest piscatorial delight and the memory that goes with a good catch.—Sports Afield.

Combine Haul Away System To Speed Tractors

Ford Motor Company announced it has integrated tractors into its national automobile distribution system and now offers the quickest factory-to-customer delivery in the industry.

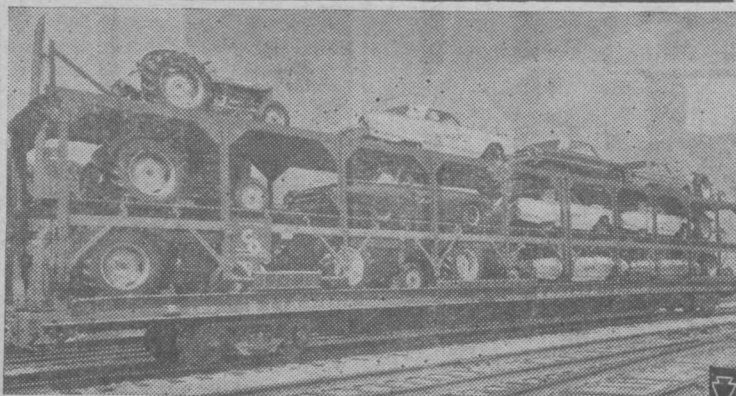

"We now provide delivery to industrial and agricultural customers within 10 days in rush situations and within 30 days under normal conditions," said Emery Dearborn, general operations manager of Ford's Tractor and Implement Operations.

Tractors are now taken from the company's Highland Park, Mich., tractor plant to its Wixom, Mich., automobile assembly plant where combination loads of tractors and cars then go by rail or truck to any of 39 distribution centers.

From these centers, tractors are delivered direct to dealers, eliminating the need for former stops at distributorships.

"Throughout the tractor industry, buyers normally can expect to wait up to 90 days for delivery from the factory while dealers and distributors accumulate sufficient orders to fill out rail cars or trucks in order to minimize shipping costs," Mr. Dearborn said. "Our tractors now are shipped daily—fed immediately into the distribution system.

"Since Ford is the only tractor manufacturer with such a distribution system at its disposal, we alone can offer such rapid service."

It is virtually impossible for dealers to stock complete tractor lines because of the wide range of tractor models and options, he explained. The result has been that some customers, just to save time, often settle for tractors which are not exactly suited to their needs.

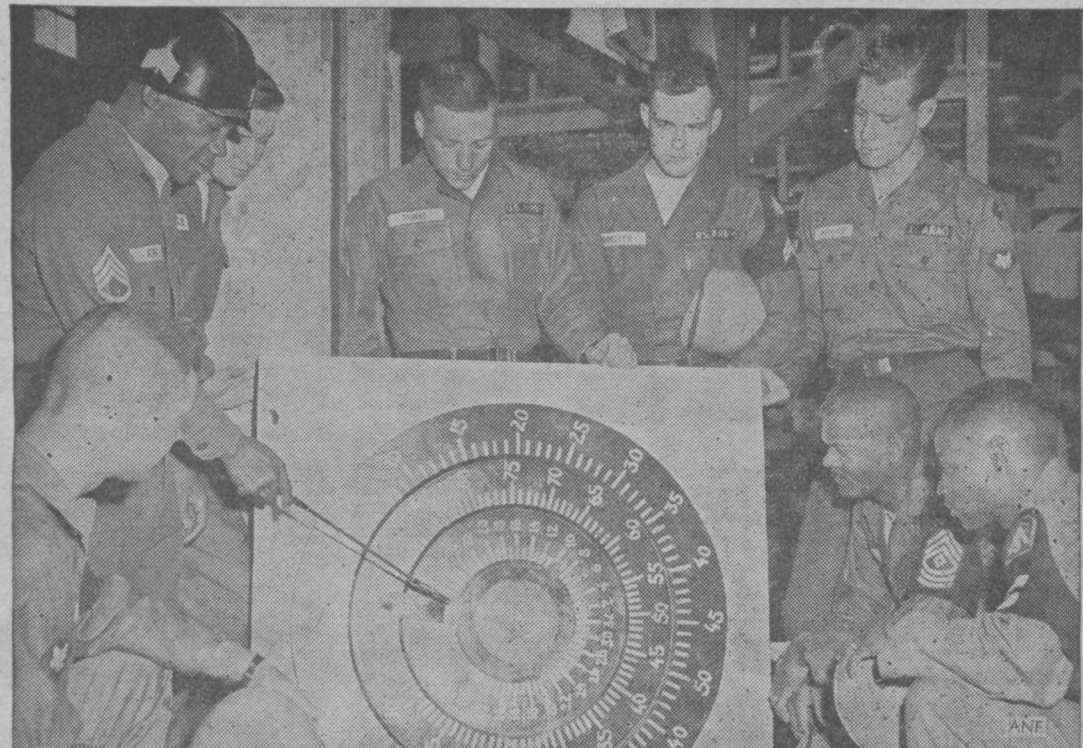

"We have eliminated this problem," Mr. Dearborn added. "Our customers now can order tractors to their exact specifications and have delivery pretty nearly when they want it.

In order to assure the emergency delivery time, an inventory of tractors is maintained ready to fill rush orders.

Another important advantage of the new system is that tractors delivered to customers are "factory fresh" and contain all of the engineering refinements and improvements that, as a matter of policy, are immediately included in regular production.

Disappointing Trip To Record Shop Results In Collecting 12,000 Disks

By Don Wilson
A disappointing trip to a record shop in 1949 started a young Frederick, Maryland man on the fascinating hobby of collecting records of the 1920-30 era; the sounds of blue grass and the picking and singing of original folk music, one of the three kinds of native American music.
It all began when Joe Bussard Jr., of Fleming Ave., Frederick, couldn't locate a certain copy of an old Jimmy Roger's release in any of the local music or record shops. The great want for the record gave Joe the idea to start looking for it. Success on his first treasure hunt encouraged him to seek greater goals.
He continued without let up until he had collected the entire Jimmy Roger's 1920-30 catalogue. Then he began looking for recordings by the Original Carter Family done in this same era.

In his search for records by Rogers and the Carter Family, he uncovered other releases by various artists and added these to his ever-growing collection of old 78 r.p.m. records, which to date numbers close to 12,000.
Joe's searching for new and challenging releases to add to his catalogue has taken him through the back woods and in the hill country of Georgia, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Western Maryland and Pennsylvania. The majority of the time he is accompanied on these jaunts by Dave Freelan, another serious collector from New York.
News of this outstanding collection spread like wildfire to the four corners of the globe and in very short time Joe was receiving requests from announcers at short wave stations around the world. They all wanted the same thing . . . Joe to tape some of this fabulous collection so that they could play them for their listeners.

At present Joe corresponds, via tape, with two shortwave station announcers. One works for Radio Berlin and the other is heard on the North American Service of Radio Melbourne, in the down under country of Australia.

Besides collecting records, Joe is also the president of Fonotone Recording Company with offices and studios in Frederick, Md. The Fonotone records the majority of its catalogues in the old 78 r.p.m. fashion.

Local Performers
Two local groups are featured exclusively on this local label. They are the Possum Holler Boys and the Carroll County Ramblers. Records produced by these two groups have proven to be very popular and Joe receives many requests from the international disk jockeys for their records for air play on the foreign shortwave stations.

Recently the Possum Holler Boys received national and international recognition when their picture appeared on the cover of "The Disk Collector" magazine, a world wide trade magazine for the music and recording industry. This magazine also contains the complete disk-o-graphy of the Fonotone Record Company.

Has Letter From Astronaut
Another talent of the versatile Joe Bussard is song writing. And for this bit of talent he received a handsome autographed picture and a personal letter form America's first orbiting astronaut, Col. John Glenn, USMC.

The letter came to the Bussard's Fleming Avenue address after Joe had composed, recorded and shipped a song commemorating the Astronaut's seven orbit flight, to Cape Canaveral, Fla.
Also Disk Jockey

Joe also hosts his own series of radio programs called "Country Music Classics" on which he features only the old-time picking and singing. The program is taped at the Fonotone Studios and broadcast over stations WELD, Fisher, W. Va. and WSIG, Mt. Jackson, Va. His mail pull from these broadcasts is well over 200 pieces a week.

Besides his interest in music and record collecting, he is also active in Citizen Band Radio and recently made the newspapers when he and a group of local C.B.'ers helped to locate a school bus carrying members of an area high school band.

Joe closed his own story by saying, "There is never an end to collecting the old sounds. When you think you have enough . . . something else comes along to catch your fancy and you're off combing the hills again."

Listing The Culprits

Some of the columnists including Edith K. Roosevelt, have been looking into the background, activities and apparent intentions of a so-called "educational" and "research" organization that has been operating for more than a year in Washington, D. C. Columnist Roosevelt became interested in this "educational" and "non-profit" organization, Group Research, Inc., when she discovered that it held a dossier on her with information that she had "discussed the folly of shipping foreign aid to India."

She found, despite an icy reception and orders to leave the premises, that listed along with her was an eminent company of writers, scholars, and educators of world renown. These included Dr. William Roepke, the widely respected conservative scholar who helped keep the West German economy free for an amazing postwar economic recovery. Others having to do with Young Americans for Freedom and publications like Modern Age, a scholarly but conservative journal, were fully dosiered.

The Usual Smear

An office chart, she related, listed a dozen organizations opposed to Communism, such as the Farm Bureau Federation, the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, and even Harding College. Above the list were found smear labels such as: "racism," "book-burners," "bogey-of-inflation—the balanced budget," "pro-military," "anti-cuban extremists," "anti-semitic," "anti-medicare," "states rights primitives," and "anti-federal aid to education."

She also found some of the officials of Group Research, Inc., to be presently or formerly associated with the National Farmers Union and the American Civil Liberties Union. Certainly the latter is known as vigorously opposing anything that looks like dossiers on fellow-travelers or pro-Communists. An official, asking her to leave, explained that the organization did not want publicity. We can understand why. Open and free discussion is not in this group's best interests.

Uses Of Democracy

It now develops that among the best customers of Group Research, Inc., is labor's Committee on Political Education and other labor union publications. COPE has in fact urged labor officials to use this outfit's materials to "head off" and "dry up" anything that looks like "right-wing" or "extremist" activity before any damage is done. It urges preventive action "to alert democratic groups to the possibility of trouble." This democratic approach calls for smearing and discrediting conservative speakers and writers before they have had a chance to have their say.

M. Stanton Evans, writing in the National Review, has reported a few examples of the use of this material by "liberal" figures in Congress, mostly involving attacks on conservative groups and individuals, such as Americans for Constitutional Action and the publication Human Events. He points out that its findings are being put to political uses, that it freely uses the guilt-by-association techniques, and that it is far less educational than many of the groups it calls "extremist." Who Is Behind It?

Earlier, Mr. Evans said of Group Research, Inc.: "A nationwide blitz is under way via all available media 'to expose' conservatives as the minions of 'hate.' He who opposes statism at home and appeasement abroad is to be portrayed as the familiar of anti-Semites, black-hearted tormentors of school teachers, and devotees of the anonymous phone-call. The effort is being made to connect all conservatives and anti-Communists with the most deranged specimens of political eccentricity and so to bring them all down in common ruin."

One wonders if it is mere accident that this activity is synchronized so well with other efforts to smear anti-Communist activity and to dry up interest and financial support for an effective anti-Red groups. It may not be a mere coincidence that this and other developments have come about since the November 1960 summit conference at Moscow of the 81 Communist Parties thru-out the world, including Gus Hall and the American communists, who got their orders there to enlist every resource in battling anti-Communism.

The primary purpose of a newspaper is to bring you the news and enable you to keep that news with you as long as you wish.

35 Years Of Winged Rocket Flight

The age of manned rocket flight began on a spring day in 1928 when German auto manufacturer Fritz von Opel piloted a rocket-rigged glider more than a mile. The glider was towed aloft before the rockets fired.

To protect its oil refineries during the last days of World War II, Germany built an all-rocket powered fighter. Known as the Komet, the craft was capable of 6 to 8 minutes of powered flight at speeds over 500 mph.

On October 14, 1947, America's first modern rocket plane, the X-1, carried a pilot faster than the speed of sound for the first time in history. The power plant was the first of a series built by Reaction Motors Division of Thiokol Chemical Corp.

The most powerful aircraft rocket engine flown is Thiokol's 57,000-pound thrust liquid engine now powering the famous history making X-15. This craft has been piloted to the edge of space at speeds of 4,000 mph.

Next step in manned rocket craft is the X-20, which will be boosted into space by multi-stage launch vehicles, maneuver above the earth's atmosphere and return to land on a dry lake bed in California.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

If anyone finds themselves unable to pay their note at the bank, pay their utility bills, pay wages, pay suppliers, or perhaps even pay taxes, they should explain to their creditors that their inability to meet their obligations shows they are operating with great strength.

And there is authority to back up this position.

For as Congressman John A. Ashbrook points out, operating at a deficit is now considered a measure of strength.

He quotes no less an authority than Walter Heller, the government's chief economic advisor. Mr. Heller, who has more than a modicum of what used to be called "book larnin'" is not at all concerned about proposed budget close to $100 billion creating an estimated deficit of $11 billion.

In fact, his reply to this matter perhaps will go down in history as a classic bon mot of left economics.

He merely says this deficit, as well as the estimated $7 billion deficit for the fiscal year just ending are "deficits of strength."

This is a wonderful phrase. It is too bad for people in past that Heller's statement was not issued in an earlier era.

Think how it would have warmed the hearts of the people in the old fashioned country poor houses who could have pointed to their condition as a position of strength.

Think how many bankrupts could have faced their creditors with the greatest of sang froid just by pointing out to them that they were now in a position of strength.

The only fly in this delightful conjecture is that if Mr. Heller had been around to make such an utterance forty to fifty years ago the men in white coats would have picked him up.

It is a question as to how long a people can remain moral with an immoral government. History shows that peoples have maintained their moral standards for quite some time despite the example set by their government. But eventually, there has always been an explosion created by the people finally losing their own moral standards.

The Hellers, the Galbraiths and the rest of these orbiting theorists have apparently not yet succeeded in destroying the moral fiber of all the people.

The best evidence of that is the nationwide surveys of independent businessmen taken by the National Federation of Independent Business.

Even though the independent proprietors of America not only want, but badly need a reduction in taxes, they have strongly expressed themselves that they only want a tax reduction if there are slashes in government spending. They fail to recognize that there is strength in any deficit. Thus, government has not yet destroyed the morality that built America, despite its consistent efforts.

Babson Discusses Buying Household Needs
 BABSON PARK, Mass., Aug. 8—Not for quite a long time have I discussed the best time of year to buy foods, fuels, and other household necessities. Yet, there is a best time to buy each item, and you may save considerable money if you know when it is, particularly if you are responsible for a large, healthy family.

Importance Of Freezing Units
 The biggest part of the family budget goes for food, so that should get the most attention. Food expenditures for the average family heavily emphasize meat. Of course, you cannot get the really big savings unless you have a freezer of considerable capacity,—so I heartily recommend your buying one if you have not yet done so. Otherwise, you can rent a unit in a public freezing storehouse, although that is not so cheap in the long run nor so convenient as it is to have your own. An emergency generator is probably a good idea, too, to protect your food in the event of a public power failure.

First, let us take a look at seasonal trends in meat and poultry prices. The best time to buy is usually during November and December when vs.

VIRGINIA PALMER CROSS
 Route 1, Walkersville, Maryland

CHARLES UPTON CROSS
 c/o Mrs. Iona Bryant
 1128 North Jackson Street
 Arlington, Arlington County, Virginia

The object of this Bill is to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the Complainant, Virginia Palmer Cross, from the Defendant, Charles Upton Cross.

The Bill states in substance that the parties were married on the 14th day of September, 1946, in Washington, D. C., by a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel; that they lived together as man and wife in Montgomery County, Maryland, in Washington, D. C., and in Frederick County, Maryland; that the Defendant deserted the Complainant; that there is no hope or expectation of a reconciliation; that the Defendant has drunk excessively and has frequently inflicted physical cruelty upon the Complainant; that no children were born as a result of said marriage; that the Complainant is a resident of Frederick County and has been for more than one year last past; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland and that his last known place of residence was in Arlington, Virginia. The Bill prays that the Complainant be divorced A VINCULO MATRIMONII.

It is thereupon this 15th day of July, 1963, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, sitting as a Court of Equity, ORDERED that the Complainant give notice to the said non-resident Defendant of the object and substance of this Bill by causing a copy of the same to be published in some newspaper published in Frederick County, once a week for four successive weeks prior to the 17th day of August, 1963, commanding him to be and appear in this court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 17th day of September, 1963, and show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

marketing of hogs, cattle, and chickens are seasonally very heavy. The big influx of supplies at this time forces price concessions at retail counters. However, if you want the finest grades of heavy steer beef, I advise you to wait until late winter or even early spring. The best cuts can usually be bought then at the lowest prices.

Watch For "Wholesale" Prices
 In the past few years there has been an increase in "discount outlets" where you can buy meat and poultry at any time of the year considerably below the retail level. Practically every large city or community has at least one such dealer. Cuts of pork, lamb, and beef are packaged in marked containers so that you can easily see what you have in your freezer. Poultry sections can also be bought packaged separately, and they are clearly labeled.

Along with the sale of freezing units today, there are often food-buying programs that will arrange to keep your freezer stocked at prices well below the prevailing retail rate. Some of these systems are genuine cost-savers, especially if your family is large; but be careful not to get tied up with a fly-by-night outfit if you go in for such a program. Personally, under most conditions I would prefer to do my own buying, taking advantage of seasonal bargains.

Dairy Products And Eggs
 The heaviest laying season for hens is still March, April, and May. This means that egg prices are at their seasonal low point usually during the spring. Readers should also note that spring eggs are the most successfully stored.

Prices of dairy products generally are closely related to the milk flow, which reaches its seasonal high about June. If you are interested in storing dairy products, the best buys in butter can normally be expected in June or July. Cheese buying opportunities are delayed because of the long curing period; November seems about the best time for this commodity.

Fuels And Miscellaneous Items
 In fuels, seasonal factors also play an important part in terms of prices. If you are heating with coal, you will save money by taking advantage of summer reductions. Heating oils and kerosene are usually cheapest during the summer because of mounting refiners' stocks, low demand, and intensive competition. Gasoline prices generally dip lowest in mid-winter.

Put down the best seasonal buying time for a few other items: Canned peas, June; canned corn, July; canned tomatoes, August; canned salmon, usually August and September; dry beans, November and December; potatoes, late fall; rice and flour, August or September; lard, December; citrus fruits, January or early February; furniture, during February sales; furs, August; and soft goods, at January "white sales." But most important of all: Study the advertisements in your local newspapers. I wish every high school would have a compulsory course on "Studying Newspaper Ads."

Prayer
 Our heavenly Father, help us to understand the great importance of spreading the gospel among men on earth. Give us wisdom, courage, and strength to lead others on to the path of righteousness. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.
Thought For The Day

when the northeast storms drive the fish inshore.
 The rocks are natural feeding grounds for various fish that are attracted by the mussels, crabs and baitfish that live in such surroundings. The most successful lures appear to be a rigged eel, a blue mullet plug and a metal squid with a porkrind tail hook. The majority of striped bass caught from the rocks are usually taken during the early morning hours after the peak of a flood tide. During the day the blackfish, or tautog, are predominant. These are caught on a variety of baits, such as mussels, worms, crabs, squid and clams.

 About 75% of all electrical appliances are bought by people who had no intention of buying them at the beginning of the year. And since 88% of American families receive a newspaper every day, the chances are that a newspaper ad gave them the idea.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kestine

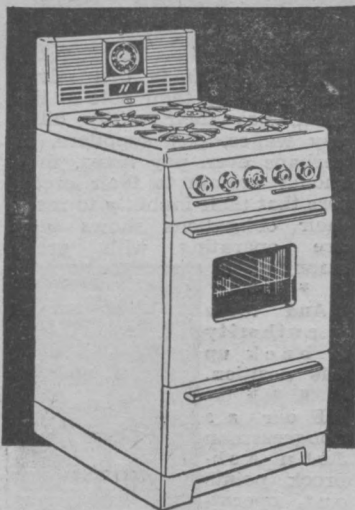

Fresh-water spinning equipment is now the accepted tackle for bay fishing in many areas, according to Robert D. Hall, Salt-Water Fishing Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. This gear has become very popular along the salt marshes, where strippers move in with the tide to feed at night, and where such light tackle can be used to advantage in chumming. The favorite-weight line used in bay fishing with a spinning reel is ten-pound test, which as a general rule can land any size fish that inhabits the bays.

The surf anglers are somewhat divided in their opinion of surf spinning; some still prefer the conventional rod and reel, while others are strong advocates of spinning equipment under average conditions. There is a place and time for each method of fishing. When the sea is mild and where the various species of fish may average only two or three pounds, spinning is ideal. The condition of the ocean largely governs the type of tackle that is recommended. During a severe northeast blow, when heavy, white-capped seas are rolling upon the beach, the conventional surf tackle is more desirable to use for large-sized strippers that are usually found inhabiting the rough, in-shore waters during such a time. Spinning gear is somewhat difficult to use when the backwash or undertow is unusually strong and when it is necessary to use a heavy sinker.

Success in surf fishing along the northern Atlantic coast is usually somewhat uncertain during the summer. Fluke and kingfish, mixed with an assortment of skates, dogfish and sea robins, are the usual catch.
 The jetty fishermen who venture forth upon the wet and hazardous, moss-covered rock piles catch a large number of striped bass from May until late fall.

Read Matthew 18:7-14.
 If a man have a hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth into the mountains, and seeketh that which is gone astray? (Matthew 18:12.)

A small boy strayed from a vacation camp and became lost. When found, he asked his mother, "What would have happened if you had not found me?"

There could, of course, be no positive answer. We know the search would have continued, the parents would have worried and grieved, and memories of the tragedy would have lingered with those who loved him. Probably someone would have felt the guilt of negligence, too.

A similar question comes to mind concerning the lost—those without Christ. What will happen if they are not rescued?

As professed Christians, it is our duty to search out those who are "out of the fold" and lead them to salvation. It will take time, prayer, patience, even personal sacrifice. We are accountable for carrying on the work of our Lord. Our Christian duty de-

Who buys more Savings Bonds?

As statistical-minded as we are today, the Treasury Department can't answer that question.

The Treasury does know that U.S. Savings Bonds are owned by tens of millions of families. So it might be safe to assume that people in every walk of life belong to this "savings club."

This is a happy fact for the United States, and for the free peoples of the earth. For Savings Bond dollars are playing an important role in the making of history.

This $46 billion reserve in the government's hands is working vigorously today to help our country in the major struggle to defend freedom.

At the same time, Savings Bonds help build your personal purchasing power by paying good interest and providing a method of saving that's unconditionally safe and readily cashable. And the higher your purchasing power, the better it speaks for our system.

It all adds up to one of the best ways you can save money and at the same time help your country. Start buying Bonds next payday—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or from any bank—and see if you don't feel pretty good about it.

Keep freedom in your future with U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

College Choir Tours Europe

The Gettysburg College Choir sang to a capacity house in Heidelberg recently. A number of Americans, including Gettysburg alumni who were stationed in the military services nearby, attended the concert.

Visits to castles in the Heidelberg-Mannheim area have highlighted the choir's itinerary in this part of Europe. At the Hohenkingen Castle where according to custom all visiting dignitaries drink from a 300 year old silver goblet, the choir had the distinction of being the first Americans to participate in this custom, a truly significant gesture of recognition for them.

During the visit to Bonn, Bishop Hermann Kunst, who received a Doctor of Divinity at Gettysburg College this spring entertained the choir at a lavish banquet. The invitation to this banquet had been extended by Bishop Kunst during his visit to Gettysburg in early June. Bishop Kunst is the chief of chaplains of the West German Military Organization.

Concluding its visit in Germany the Gettysburg College Choir will sing at the Kirchentag in Dortmund, Germany. This is a mass rally of young Christians from West Germany and neighboring countries. The choir will participate in an evening of music and present concerts for two days at Dortmund.

Departing Germany from Dortmund the choir will proceed to Copenhagen where they will present concerts and sight-see in the lovely Venice of the north.

Our Library . . .

Saturday morning, Aug. 10 will be the last day on which any member of the Summer Reading Club may make a report on books that were read for the club. These reports may be made to those in charge of the Library during the hours of 10 and 12 noon. There will be a short story hour at 10:30 for all the children. Certificates, given to those members of the club who have read eight books from the list of "Around the World" books, will be presented to those who earned them on the following Saturday at a special watermelon party. This party will be held at 2:00 p. m. Saturday, Aug. 17 and is for all the members of the club who have read at least one book on the list. The children will gather at the Library at 2 o'clock and further instructions about the party will be given as well as admission tickets.

Other business transacted at the recent board of trustees meeting was the reorganization of the board. William Ryder was elected chairman, Mrs. Glenn Gillespie the corresponding secretary, Mrs. John Chatlos the recording secretary and Robert Simpson, treasurer. Mrs. John Warthen continues for another year as li-

An improvements committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. Paul Beale, chairman, Mrs. John Warthen and John Wagerman, to study the Library situation and its physical properties and bring recommendations to the next board meeting which will be held Friday, Aug. 30 at 10 a. m. At this time a budget for the coming year will be formulated in order that any requests which the board might make to the County Commissioners can be forwarded to them by Sept. 13.

Mrs. Warthen will be taking special training at the C. Burr Artz Library in Frederick during the month of August in order to help the students of our community with reference work in our own Library. The County Library System is at present adding to our reference library to bring it up to date with the latest editions of good reference books and to add new books which are needed for a good library.

Local Softballers Close Winners

Highway Fatals Climb In State

Sixteen persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police.

Four of those killed were drivers; six were passengers; and six were pedestrians.

Alcohol was a contributing factor in five of the deaths; speed in six; and "driver error" was present in all but three of the fatalities.

Major G. E. Davidson, Field Commander of the Maryland State Police, made the following comment on last week's deaths: "Again, speed and alcohol, separately or combined, were present in the greater percentage of accidents. The situation would be serious even if the alcohol-speed pattern was infrequent. However, week after week, the same deadly pattern is repeated and it is evident that more stringent methods will have to be employed if we hope to curtail this needless highway slaughter.

"We are all granted many privileges in our society," continued Major Davidson, "and one of these privileges is the license to drive. It is not an automatic, inherent right; it is a privilege which we must earn—at the outset and everytime we get behind the wheel of a car. It is incumbent upon each driver, and, also, upon those whose official responsibility is directed toward the public welfare, to insure that this privilege is not abused."

Series Of Thurmont Robberies Solved

The first cases of breaking-and-entering in Thurmont in eighteen months have been solved by Chief of Police Clarence Hagelin.

Seven different establishments were broken into within a span of a few days, all centering around July 21. Four juveniles were arrested on Tuesday, July 30, in connection with the crimes.

Officer Hagelin said a total of $185 was taken from the Gall & Smith Mill, Trout's Hardware, E. Guy Hobb's Store, Thurmont High School, Late's Butcher Shop, the Thurmont Pool Room and Lewis' Restaurant.

Two of the establishments were broken into twice, Hagelin said, and it was on the third attempt that two of the youths were apprehended.

The other two were picked up when it seemed that they had a great deal of money to "throw around" the community and upon further questioning the boys confessed.

Officer Hagelin said he tried to tie in these burglaries with the $100 robbery of Fitzgerald's Shamrock Restaurant on July 21 but no progress in this direction has been made. The youths are of high school age it is said and all reside in or near Thurmont. They have been placed on probation by Mrs. Nan K. Roderick, the county probation officer.
