Emmitsburgians are becoming quite concerned over the lack of adequate police coverage for Northern Frederick County. With no local policeman on the job and no State Police near citizens fear that nefarious predators will increase their activity, especially with Halloween in the offing. Already vandals are operating in the area well in advance of Halloween and it is feared it will become progressively worse. It is understood there is no State Trooper in the whole Northern Frederick County area from one to seven o'clock in the morning. A quick glance will tell you that this is practically all night and we can see absolutely no excuse for such negligence on the part of state authorities. Should a robbery or attempted robbery, accident or even murder occur it would be half an hour before help could arrive from Frederick. This is asking for trouble and we sincerely hope the Frederick Barracks takes remedial measures before it is too late. With the State Police force augmented by additional troopers these past years we feel that it is not asking too much to ask that at least one be assigned here for night duty.

A water ban was inevitable and it was just a matter as to when it should start. With many communities in dire straights as far as water supplies are concerned it was felt necessary by our Town Officials this week to put a springling and car washing ban into effect. As the officials pointed out it was not necessarily a shortage of the precious commodity that prompted their decision, but it was felt it prudent to conserve on the present supply, just in case. Most laws are read from the drought anyway and it is just about useless to waste water on them. It is your civic duty folks to help conserve our water supply because it is highly possible this drought could continue for quite some time.

With many states cancelling or delaying their game hunting seasons until rain comes it seems almost certain that Maryland will follow along with the program. With the woods and fields as dry as they are at the present time they represent a veritable tinderbox. I feel it would be sheer folly to turn thousands of hunters loose in the fields and woods at this time or in the near future when the small game season gets into full swing. Should we be fortunate enough to get a good soaking rain in the near future it would minimize the fire danger. Firemen throughout the county have been quite busy in recent weeks fighting forest fires and I feel certain that most property owners will breathe a sigh of relief when a postponement of the hunting season comes through.

Quite a few letters have been received by the County Commissioners pertinent to the proposed removal of our Public School by the Frederick County Board of Education. This plan calls for removing our senior high school to Thurmont. I don't feel the Commissioners will see any benefit by the removal and will nip the move by not appropriating the necessary funds. I am certain these letters by responsible citizens and organizations will help the Commissioners make up their mind in our behalf. By the way, have you written yours yet? There is no time to waste as a decision is likely to be forthcoming any time now.

Sr. Mary Ellen, College Dean, Dies Suddenly

Sister Mary Ellen Kelley, D.C., Dean of Students at Saint Joseph College, Emmitsburg, died suddenly of a heart attack Tuesday afternoon in the college infirmary. Active in her duties until an hour before her death, she had dedicated the last eight of her twenty-two years at St. Joseph's to lavishing devoted and loving care on the students in her charge. Alumnae returning to campus for reunions looked first for their "own Sister with her smile and greeting, all-embracing and large as her heart."

Sister Mary Ellen was born on July 29, 1911, in Sioux City, Iowa, daughter of the late James E. and Mary Ellen Murphy Kelley. After graduation from St. Joseph College in 1932, she taught English at Seton High School in Baltimore. She entered the community of the Daughters of Charity on July 19, 1935, the feast of St. Vincent de Paul. During the early years of her community life, she taught at Cathedral High School in Syracuse, New York, and later at St. Martin's High School in Baltimore. In 1943 she was assigned to her alma mater in Emmitsburg to teach English and Journalism. In 1955 she was appointed Dean of Students devoting her energies to the welfare of the students. Sister Mary Ellen was moderator of the student Cooperative Government Association, the Children of Mary, and the "Valley Echo," the college newspaper. Under her direction as Alumnae moderator, the alumnae spearheaded a drive for a modern Student Center on Campus and assumed the financial obligation for its construction. She was enthusiastic in her praise of her "girls," alumnae whom she was convinced were the most responsive and dedicated alumnae group of any college in the country.

Sister Mary Ellen received her master's degree in education from Villanova University, and also attended Syracuse University, Catholic University, and the University of Denver. She was a member of the National Association of Deans of Women, the National Educational Association, and the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, an association which was founded by St. Joseph College alumnae.

Surviving are a brother, Joseph E. Kelley of Sidney, Nebraska, and a sister, Mrs. E. E. Ranney, of Burbank, California.

A requiem Mass will be offered by Father Martin Sleasman, C.M., at 8 a.m. Friday in the campus chapel for the student body. The Community Mass to which alumnae and friends are invited will be offered at 10:30 a.m. by Father William Sheldon, C.M. Interment will be in the Community cemetery adjoining the campus. Honorary pallbearers from the college faculty and staff will be Dr. Adolf Wasilifsky, Donald Waters, Richard Plante, Dr. Joseph Solomon, Dr. Victor Antolin, Charles Unglesbee, Harold Sanders, Louis Cool and Albert Cool. Friends may pay their respects at Burlando Hall adjoining the chapel until 10 a.m. Friday.

Banks, Taneytown and Mrs. Russell Wantz, Emmitsburg, and three brothers, Howard and Earl Gigeous, Baltimore, and Ray Gigeous, Emmitsburg. Two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren also survive.

RONNIE E. STONESIFER accident early Sunday morning, Oct. 6, in Emmitsburg. The Adams County coroner, Dr. C. G. Crist, said Stonesifer's death was caused by a ruptured duodenum, a portion of the intestines.

According to Maryland State Police, Stonesifer was going east on East Main St., at 1:10 o'clock Sunday morning when he apparently fell asleep. His car, according to the officers, struck a parked auto owned by Florence Catherine Hobbs, 410 East Main St., Emmitsburg, on the south side of the street, driving the Hobbs convertible eastward 80 feet. After striking the Hobbs' vehicle, and causing $500 damage to it, Stonesifer's car continued east climbing an embankment and crashing into a steel utility pole. Stonesifer's 1956 sedan was demolished. He was taken to the Warner Hospital where surgery was performed in the attempt to save his life. A lifelong resident of Frederick County, he was a son of Edgar and Ruth Wood Stonesifer, Emmitsburg R2, with whom he resided and was an employee of the H. O. Toor Shoe Corporation in Emmitsburg.

Surviving in addition to his parents are these brothers and sisters: Walter Stonesifer, at home; Mrs. Ruth Unger, Wheaton; Donald Stonesifer, Emmitsburg, R2; Richard Stonesifer, Thurmont, R.D.; Mrs. Susan Stultz, at home, and Diane Stonesifer, at home. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the Wilson Funeral Home, Emmitsburg, with the Rev. Martin A. Case officiating. Interment was in Mountainview Cemetery, Emmitsburg. Pallbearers were: Patrick Ott, Richard Stahley, Donald E. Shorb, Michael Shorb, Sterling Myers and Ivan Jeffcoat, Jr.

advice is not to burn anything at the present time due to the extreme dryness of the fields and woods. The company and the Guardian Hose Company of Thurmont were called out Saturday at 12:45 p.m. when a brush fire occurred behind St. Anthony's about two miles south of here. A small section of wooded area was scorched and firemen speculated that hunters might possibly have caused the blaze. Saturday, according to Frederick County Forest Warden Herman D. Toms, there was strong suspicion that three fires were deliberately set. The largest fire occurred partly on the property of Charles Jamieson of Poolesville, and partly on property belonging to a Mr. Marsh of Chevy Chase, said Warden Toms, across from the Brewster farm on the Mink Farm Road, near Thurmont. About seven acres of wooded area was destroyed in this blaze and the Vigilant Hose Company brought this blaze under control at about 3 a.m. Sunday.

On Tuesday afternoon a grass fire was extinguished with little difficulty at the Thomas Leonard property about a mile and a half south of town on old Rt. 15.

GRANT, THOMAS TAKE COMMANDS IN WEST

By Lon K. Savage

The train from Cairo, Illinois, to Louisville, Kentucky, chugged to a stop in the Indianapolis station 100 years ago this week, paused a minute, then got up steam to depart again. Suddenly, a messenger ran up to stop the train, boarded it and reported to a bearded man inside.

It was October 17, 1863, and the bearded man was newly promoted Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, the Union hero of Vicksburg who had cut the Confederacy in two. The messenger had important information: Edwin M. Staunton, Secretary of War, was in the station.

Grant immediately went to Staunton. It was their first meeting; introductions were made; they spoke briefly, and Staunton dismissed the special train that had brought him from Washington. Then he and Grant boarded Grant's train for Louisville together.

Two Orders

As Grant describes it in his memoirs, Staunton handed him two orders on the train and told him he could choose the one he wished to obey. Grant read them: both created a new "Military Division of the Mississippi," encompassing nearly all the war territory west of the Alleghenies to the Mississippi River; both also put Grant in charge of the new division—a healthy promotion for him.

But there was one big difference: one order left the department commanders intact; the other relieved Gen. William S. Rosecrans of command of the Army of the Cumberland at Chattanooga and replaced him with Gen. George H. Thomas, "the Rock of Chickamauga."

"I accepted the latter," Grant wrote later. And with that decision, Rosecrans' military career took a tumble from which it never recovered, while Thomas climbed into the ranks of the top Civil War generals.

In Louisville, Grant and Staunton talked for hours over the situation in Grant's new command and especially the situation at Chattanooga: how Rosecrans' (now Thomas') Army of the Cumberland was cut off from its supply line; how the men were hungry and ill-clothed; how Braxton Bragg's Confederates waited for the army to be starved from its position.

After two days of talk, Grant and his wife (who had accompanied him) called on relatives at Louisville one night. As they returned to their hotel about 11 o'clock, each person they met on the street told Grant to hurry to the hotel, that Staunton was impatient to see him on an urgent matter.

A Message

Grant found Staunton in his room, pacing up and down in a dressing gown. Staunton turned to Grant and showed him a message. Rosecrans, the message said, was about to abandon Chattanooga. (The message, actually, was not correct.)

Grant reacted immediately. He fired off a telegram to Rosecrans announcing his (Grant's) new command. He fired off another telegram to Rosecrans, relaying the order from Washington that relieved Rosecrans of his command. He fired off a telegram to Thomas, placing him in command and ordering him to hold Chattanooga at all costs, until he, Grant, arrived.

Then he prepared to leave for Chattanooga. Before he left, a reply came in from Thomas: "We will hold the town till we starve."

Next week: Elections strengthen Lincoln.

Kitchen Queens' Royal Dish Is Easy Tuna Crown Salad

Here's a pretty switch on a perennial summer favorite—tuna salad goes glamorous West Coast style. Crowned with bright fruits, this nutritious main-dish salad is a cinch to make and a positive pleasure to serve.

For all its elegant appearance, Tuna Crown Salad rates just as high in nutrition as it does in looks. A serving of canned tuna provides more first-class protein than a comparable serving of red meat, plus valuable vitamins and minerals. Tuna is high in poly-unsaturates, and it's easily digestible, due to a minimum of connective tissue. Wise choice for weight-watchers, drained tuna solids contain less calories than equivalent quantities of popular meat cuts.

Tuna Crown Salad

- 1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
- ½ cup each diced celery, diced cantaloupe and sliced grapes
- 1 tablespoon capers, optional
- 1 teaspoon minced onion
- ¾ teaspoon ginger
- 3 tablespoons mayonnaise

Combine drained tuna and remaining ingredients. Reserve oil for cooking purposes. Pack tuna mixture into a 2-cup measure. Invert on bed of shredded lettuce. Garnish with avocado slices and orange sections. YIELD: 2 to 3 servings.

BABSON

Writes . . .

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses The Value Of Newspapers BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 17—This is National Newspaper Week, an ideal time for me to talk with you about how tremendously important I feel newspapers are in our daily lives. In fact, I believe the future of the Free World depends on four equally fundamental features of our democratic way: (1) Our role as responsible parents, (2)

our churches, (3) our schools and colleges, and (4) our newspapers.

Influence Of The Press Ever since I can remember, I have urged people to support and encourage our newspapers in every way. Ten years ago I completed at Babson Park the World's Greatest Revolving Globe, which I unhesitatingly dedicated to the newspapers of the Free World. My attitude toward the value of the press is the same today.

Newspaper publishers often are not given the regard and consideration that they deserve. This lack of appreciation is especially unfortunate since, in many ways, these publishers are even more important to the future of America than are bankers, manufacturers, or shopkeepers. Newspapers are a key factor in helping the people elect the right leaders, and then in guiding these leaders along the difficult and treacherous political paths of today.

Newspapers Stimulate Business The advertising columns of papers like this one you are reading right now greatly influence employment conditions. Editorial writers pretty well determine what the preachers and teachers are going to talk about and, sometimes even, what they actually say! In order to realize what newspapers really mean to a city, you need only have been living in New York last winter during the strike that closed up all the dailies for many weeks. In no time the theaters were reporting a terrific slump in attendance; restaurants and other service establishments watched in dismay while their business dried up.

Finally, it seemed that practically all New York City enterprises were hurt by the newspaper strike, even though some of the difficulties must have been psychological. Radio and TV stations were trying their best to provide the same news coverage that usually is given in newspapers. But the result was different. People did not want to have to listen to radio or TV at all hours. They were used to reaching for a newspaper and finding exactly what they wanted—set down in black and white so they could read it carefully and refer to it again and again . . . even clip it if they wished.

Ever-Widening Circles When I say that newspapers are important, I mean in a thousand indirect ways as well as the obvious ways. There are few endeavors in the world today that are not influenced by our papers. When I speak of newspapers, I consider everybody connected with them: The woodsmen who cut the trees in the forest; the mill workers who turn the logs into pulp, the pulp into newsprint; those who make the ink; the publishers, reporters, writers, and printers; and all associated employees, including the young boys (or girls) who deliver the papers to your very door.

As important as anything in such an analysis is the part played by advertisers, and their advertising. Without such stimulation to buy, without newspaper reminders of special sales and notices of new merchandise—and also available services—both the local economy and our whole industrial system would suffer. Little wonder that now and again I rally to the cause of the newspapers of the nation! This present National Newspaper Week gives me an excellent chance to do so in today's column.

Newspapers A Vital Force In 1962 about 46 million of the 52 million households in the U. S. bought 59 million copies of newspapers every day. Remember—newspapers give you "more for your money" than just about anything else you can buy! Radio and TV can never displace our newspapers; they supplement them . . . and in this they do a very effective job. But perhaps the most important role of all those undertaken by the papers is their vital part

Tips on car care MODERN MOTORIST

by W. A. "Red" HALL . . . Automotive Specialist

Considering the natural tendency nowadays to neglect personal attention to auto maintenance, it's not too soon to set a date for giving your car a good wax job for winter protection.

When it comes to keeping cars in top condition, we modern motorists have it pretty soft, compared with those of earlier generations.

We drive better built cars faster and farther over better roads. There's more power in our gasoline, more life in our oil, more miles in our tires, more safety in our brakes, better upholstery inside the car, and better paint on the body.

With all these improvements to increase the fun of driving and reduce the work involved, we should not forget that even today's superior finishes need personal care to stay clean and bright. Cleaning and waxing smooths rough areas, prevents scratches, reduces dirt accumulation, and enhances the depth of gloss.

Most of us wash our cars often throughout the spring, summer, and fall—and occasionally we give them an extra shine with some easy-to-use product that enables washing and waxing or cleaning and waxing at the same time. But as days are getting shorter and cooler, we soon will have to depend on breaks in the weather for wash jobs—and "Old Man Winter" may cut off the waxing altogether.

Now is the time, then, for that final effort to provide a truly durable coat to shield the car against ice, snow, and cold in months ahead. Just as our grandparents used to "lay in" supplies, we should "lay in" a beautiful, lasting shine.

Best way to do it is by separate cleaning and waxing operations. After dirt, tar, and small scratches are removed, use a wax such as Du Pont's Shield, a liquid, or New Car Wax, a paste. Both are easy to apply. They are time-tested for beauty and preservation—and they'll last "for the duration!"

in building up the moral, political, and social responsibility of a community. They surely deserve our support. If you people didn't believe this, you wouldn't be reading this column now!

I, however, have one warning for newspaper owners. When the power and circulation of newspapers was the greatest, the leading journals were run by strong, hard-hitting individualists. This day must return.

What in the WORLD! by TED

Dear United Nations:

From every corner of the globe—and mostly from school children—the United Nations Public Inquiries Unit receives well over 75,000 letters a year. "People write for all sorts of things," says Alice Van R. Smith, the unit's chief. "Most children want flags, stamps, posters and pamphlets. Many ask how they can share personally in the U.N.'s work. Businessmen want to know about economic and trade statistics. Libraries and teachers are steady customers."

Miss Smith's seven-member staff consists of two Americans, an Argentine, a Canadian, a Hollander, a Mexican and a Pakistani.

Each letter is answered conscientiously. When available, free printed material is enclosed.

In 1960, the peak year, the unit answered nearly 80,000 letters. Miss Smith attributes that record number of queries to curiosity aroused by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's appearance at the U.N. that year.

Incidentally, while few questions stump the unit, Miss Smith and her staff—as international civil servants—never answer political questions concerning governments or individual delegations. Instead, they pass such queries on to the delegations concerned.

Read Psalm 34:1-8.

I will bless the Lord at all times: his praise shall continually be in my mouth. (Psalm 34:1.) A little blind boy on returning home from a circus said, "Oh, I felt so sorry for those deaf children who were there. They couldn't hear the band play, and they couldn't hear the thud, thud of the elephant as he went by."

Although the little fellow had lost the precious gift of sight, how grateful he was that he could hear!

How grateful we should be as we count the blessings that our heavenly Father has granted to us! What would we give in exchange for them—for health and good homes, for loved ones and friends? How often we take them for granted instead of appreciating them with gratitude!

Robert Louis Stevenson once said a very striking thing: "The man who forgets to be thankful has fallen asleep in life." How beautiful the life of the person who is always thankful to God, receives everything as an instance of God's goodness, and has a heart always ready to praise God for it!

Prayer
Help us, dear Lord, to rejoice evermore, to pray without ceasing, and in everything to give thanks. So may we grow more and more into the likeness of Thy dear Son, in whose name we pray. Amen.

OUTDOOR SPORTS TIPS

Fix A Tip

Have you ever been bothered by a glass rod tip that keeps breaking off? Try this way of making a permanent repair that puts strength back where you need it, yet doesn't appreciably alter the casting action of the rod. Take the tip to a hardware store and buy a drill bit that is exactly the size to fit snugly inside the broken tube. Now soak the two broken sections and the bit with epoxy glue and slip the parts together. End of problem.

Don't Throw Away Leaky Boots

Before you donate your leaky old boots to the trash man, consider cutting the feet off and using the legs as waterproof hunting leggings. On rainy days, you will be glad to have something that shuttles the water past, rather than down, your hunting shoes. Marked For Action

Some wood chuck hunters that work over hillsides year after year ease spotting chores by cutting branches and sticking near especially productive chuck holes. Decoys By The Cotton Sack

Sacks the cotton pickers use—we are informed—make the absolute ultimate in things to carry decoys in. Sacks are light, easily folded and hold enough decoys to make two bunches at either end of the sack. Middle part goes over your shoulder for easy carrying.

Rod Winding

This tip isn't much use if you are merely going to dress up a guide or two with new windings. But if this winter you are going to get serious about re-finishing a new rod, it might be worth investigating your wife's sewing machine. We think you'll find there that the tension attachment for the thread spool will be exactly the right thing to keep rod winding thread under light but steady pressure. And if you can't rig a turning platform out of some inexpensive wheels, we'll be mighty surprised.

Fishing In The Rain

So maybe you don't feature fishing in the rain. But plenty of guys do and under certain dry conditions the release of new oxygen into lakes and streams from falling rain sends fish prowling. BUT spin fishermen can be bothered by wispy monofilament sticking to the wet rod surface. Stop that quick by rubbing rod down with flyline dressing. Line will never stick again and non-greasy dressing is not objectionable.

No Slip Sinkers
If you bait fish with monofilament lines you may have exercised your excited vocabulary as a result of clinch-type sinkers sliding down the line and not staying where they should. Here's how to fix that. Clinch one end of the sinker, take a turn around the sinker before you come back to the clinch part, then clinch the other end. Hitch in the line is enough to hold.

"I'll bet if I was married I'd be boss and tell my wife where to head in," declared the bachelor. "Yes," retorted the old married man, "and I suppose when you get to a railroad crossing you honk your horn to warn the oncoming express to get out of your way, don't you?"

Tetanus Deaths Unnecessary, Says AMA Health Official

Despite the outpouring of new "wonder" drugs, man's ancient enemy, tetanus, has not yet succumbed to a cure.

Even so, death from tetanus, or "lockjaw" as it is commonly called, is "almost entirely unnecessary," says Raymond L. White, M.D., Director of Environmental Medicine for the American Medical Association.

"As a disease, tetanus is completely preventable," Dr. White noted. "The only reason it persists is that people fail to get immunized, or fail to maintain their immunity. Out of sheer neglect, three-fourths of the people don't have the protection they need."

"If it weren't for medicine's continual concern over the possibility of tetanus—if practically every time a physician saw a wound he didn't take precautions against tetanus—the disease would rank much higher among human killers."

Tetanus is caused by a deadly poison emitted by certain bacteria which contaminate certain types of wounds—especially puncture wounds, or wounds with imbedded dirt.

The bacteria itself cannot survive long enough in the open air to infect wounds. But its seeds or spores can.

Tetanus spores are usually produced by bacteria growing within the air-free intestinal tracts of mammals, including man, and reach the ground in animal manure. Within the intestines, bacteria cause no harm to their host, other than to serve as factories for the production of spores.

Once on the ground the spores, which are unaffected by air, and are borne great distances on the wind, can survive for as long as 11 years. Besides cultivated land, they are commonly found in household dust and the grime of city streets. Some have even been detected in hospital operating rooms—tracked in on street shoes.

Puncture wounds are a common cause of tetanus.

The spores in some sections of the country are nearly as common as dirt, and await only the right kind of wound to start their chain of infection.

Because of its peculiar nature, tetanus has never been a mass killer like some infectious diseases. It is, however, a vicious enemy, killing 60 per cent of those it strikes.

Development of immunity against tetanus, says Dr. White, requires a series of inoculations —three injections four weeks apart, followed within six to twelve months by a booster dose. To maintain this protection, additional booster shots are necessary every four years.

"Protection," he said, "should begin early in life—one to two months after birth—for the scrapes and falls of childhood offer tetanus many opportunities."

"But adults need protection too. With the new emphasis on outdoor living, with accidents on the increase and with the spore of tetanus in the dust and dirt all about us, we can only look forward to an increase in this deadly disease unless we make better use of our good sense, get immunized and keep immunized."

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesing

The use of boats for hunting is on the increase. They are used not only to shoot from, but even more as transportation to the shooting area.

One chief reason is the improvement in boats and motors. Outboard-powered craft now come wider and larger. They offer more seaworthiness and steadiness, more room for gunners and their guns. Yet they will navigate obstructed water and are easy to transport overland in various ways. And they'll stand up and stay leak-proof in and out of water in all kinds of weather. Motors are now more reliable—and much quieter.

Hunters are taking to boats for other reasons as well. On land, the sportsman's actions and movements are being increasingly restricted. But on the water there are no fences, no signs reading "No Trespassing." Also, expanding population around cities, even around towns, ruins, fields and woods. But marshes always are affected last, if at all. Increasingly, these swamp or near-swamp regions and adjacent waters are the last refuge of wildlife and hunter alike. Since before the days of the cave-man hunted, game has tended to congregate around water.

Boats now often serve as headquarters, replacing the old hunting camp, according to Willard Crandall, Boats Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. Houseboats ranging from the modern and elaborate to only degrees above sharks are prime favorites, but cabin cruisers are becoming increasingly popular. The platform-pontoon boat, its summer canopy replaced by anything from tent to portable cabin, may be an on-the-spot hunters' camp. These craft move easily under power and don't draw too much water. They serve to shoot from, too, as they are very steady and are adaptable to camouflage.

For transportation to the hunting grounds, any type of boat that is suited to the waterway and will carry the load properly can be used.

Swamp-grass areas are where airboats excel; the inboard models for nice speed, the less powerful outboard ones for portability and easier concealment. Much the same can be said of the jets, except that since they need clear water to form a good stream and not create intake clogging problems, they will probably be better in water that's shallow or has solid obstructions in preference to marsh regions.

Your Personal Health

Airborne Disease

One way not to keep healthy is to inhale automobile fumes as a steady breathing diet. Practically everybody has known this all along, but now it has achieved ultimate status as a fact verified by research.

Investigators from the U. S. Public Health Service and the Harvard School of Public Health got together and fired some searching questions at sixty toll collectors employed at a traffic tunnel in Boston. From the answers they were able to determine that 22, or 36.7 per cent, of the men had some form of chronic respiratory disease—damage to the breathing apparatus.

This rate of chronic respiratory illness is more than double the rate that exists among the general population. In a large number of cases it took the form of chronic bronchitis.

...OF BEARDS AND BLADES...

New York — The arrival on the marketplace of stainless steel razor blades has stirred an astonishing amount of new press and public interest in a subject almost as old as man himself — shaving.

With the appearance on the stainless scene of Gillette, the major manufacturer in the field, the new stainless blades are becoming available in retail stores across the country and shavers will be able to decide for themselves whether they're all they're cracked up to be.

Perhaps all this interest is not too surprising. After all, a typical man may spend over 50 hours a year — that's over 2500 hours in an average lifetime — in his whisker-removal routine, and a new product that seems to offer greater comfort and convenience has inevitable appeal.

"EDGE THAT COUNTS" Shaving's a big business, too. Americans spent in the neighborhood of $124,000,000 last year on blades and razors, $61,000,000 on electric shavers, $43,000,000 on shaving cream and $29,000,000 on after shave lotions. The United States, with only six percent of the world's population, in 1962 used 3,200,000,000 razor blades, almost 40 percent, of the 8,300,000,000 blades produced throughout the world.

Actually, stainless steel blades have been on the market for decades, but it wasn't until a few years ago, when Gillette developed a means of specially treating razor blade edges, that stainless could be made to offer comfortable shaves as well as durability. According to metallurgists, on stainless or any other steel, it's the edge that counts.

It's Time For... EYE CARE

Dr. Newton K. Wesley
THE EYE— AN EXTENSION OF THE BRAIN

Many people do not realize that the eye is an extension of the brain and, because of this, all the senses are connected. Sometimes one sense is anesthetized, temporarily, while another one takes command. I have seen patients who could not see well because they couldn't hear well. I have seen patients remove their glasses and, because their vision was blurred, for the instant, could not hear well! When you burn your hand you feel "blinding" pain and cannot see. At times of extreme anger, your sight is impaired. We can all add our own instances of this.

It is important, therefore, to keep in tune with the world, that all your senses function properly. Regular checks on eyesight, hearing, etc., will insure your general efficiency. All sorts of little known acts can impair this efficiency. Poor posture, tight shoes, bad teeth, lack of exercise, improper diet, etc., are but a few.

Good health requires constant vigilance if we are to have the maximum use of our faculties. The most important sense and, in fact, your most precious possession, sight, deserves an equally important part of your physical care program.

The National Eye Research Foundation recommends an eye examination every six months. Many serious cases of eye trouble that end in blindness could have been prevented if this were done.

A further fact underlying the connection between gasoline fumes and breathing ailments is that employees who had worked more than ten years at the traffic tunnel showed a proportionately higher number of cases of disease than those who had worked a shorter time, according to the investigators. In other words — the more fumes inhaled over the years, the greater the likelihood of illness. Possible results of smoking were not ruled out; but when all pertinent factors were added up, a decisive role in the production of disease was assigned to the effects of automobile exhaust gases.

What should one make of it all? First, that "air pollution" is more than just a phrase representing vaguely undesirable practices: it can refer to something that makes people sick and, in the case of a certain percentage, inevitably kills them. Second, that air pollution often occurs in forms — such as automobile exhaust fumes — that can be remedied through public and private measures if enough people will try hard enough to get the job done.

Farm Group

Questions Wheat Sale

Farmers will receive short-term economic benefits from U. S. wheat sales to the Reds, but will the nation benefit? This is a question raised by A. Kenneth Miller, a spokesman for Maryland's largest farmers' group, the Farm Bureau.

"Russia proves again that it can take advantage of existing trade channels to meet or eliminate any internal need or crises," said Miller.

"We, in the U. S., have such humanitarian and peace-loving beliefs that activities like this trade deal and the nuclear test ban create false impressions of co-existence and peace," noted Miller. "We tend to forget that Soviet leaders have frankly declared they would buy, copy or steal our Western achievements."

"Justifying the wheat sales on reduced burdensome surplus stock and aid to the U. S. balance-of-payments deficit, the Administration ignores the real culprits which have caused these conditions," stated Miller.

The farm leader pointed out that our huge grain stocks were created by government through its high price support policy.

"If there is sincere concern over this problem," said Miller, "efforts would be put forth to seek passage of a farmer-supported program to adjust wheat and feed grains production within the framework of the market system, which was introduced in Congress this past Spring."

Miller said that Russia's need for wheat illustrates "that trade is a crucial weapon in the cold war." "We need to realize and utilize this economic force to put communism on the defensive."

Buick Special Is Bigger In 1964

Three inches have been added to the wheelbase and almost a foot to the length of the all-new Buick Special for 1964, which for the first time is built on a solid steel frame. The Special is not only longer, but is also wider, roomier and has more door space for easier entrance and exit. An improved new V-6 engine with displacement increased to 225 cubic inches is standard equipment. Options include the new Super Turbine 300 torque converter transmission; the four-speed synchromesh transmission, and also the new 300 cubic inch displacement aluminum V-8 engine. Styling highlights include curved glass in side and rear windows.

STYLE LEADER — Heading Pontiac's parade of 1964 cars is this Grand Prix sports coupe above. With its "over and under" headlamps and new rectangular front parking and turn signal lenses, the Grand Prix commands immediate attention. From every angle the Grand Prix uses its clean lines to suggest a longer, lower, wider look. The profile is highlighted by a thin roof line and large concave rear window. Floor console, bucket seats and special instrument panel treatment add a sports car flair. The 1964 Pontiac Catalina four-door sedan below is completely restyled while retaining a strong Pontiac identity. In addition to new styling, colors and interiors, the 1964 Pontiacs feature a wide range of high-performance V-8 engines, improved suspension system and a complete group of accessories for added safety and comfort. Other Catalina models are a two-door sedan, a two-door sports coupe, a four-door hardtop, a convertible and six and nine-passenger station wagons.

TIPS FROM THE TACKLE BOX

by B. F. GLADDING

Two Lines, More Fish!

NO QUESTION about it! Dry flies should float, while wet bottom and nymphs need to skim bottom to get in their best ticks. This being the case, no single fly line can possibly do justice to both jobs. That's why fishermen with real savvy carry two reels. One reel holds a floating line, and the other a line designed for quick sinking. When these fishermen use the floating line and a dry fly. But when fish are bottom-grubbing for nymphs they simply switch reels and go on down after them.

The fly fisherman should select a pair of fly lines that have been carefully designed to meet these contrasting needs: Gladding makes two beauts—the Aerofloat and the Aqua-Sink. Fly lines must have these features: true diameter taper, a choice of weights to match all fly rod actions and a sleek, durable finish that makes for easy pick-ups and long "shoots."

The nylon Aerofloat has a specific density of only 0.93 throughout its length. It floats for the very same reason a cork floats: it's lighter than water! Consequently, it requires no "greasing." The dactron Aqua-Sink has a much higher density. This is achieved by use of the heavier material, dactron, plus a weighted core. This line sinks quickly and deeply, making possible the close-to-bottom retrieves that are so important when fishing a wet fly or nymph.

Be sure to make the most of this "sinker" by casting a bit upstream and then making a slow, "creep" retrieve. The upstream cast gives the line maximum opportunity to sink, and the slow retrieve will keep your fly near bottom. Better still, the slow crawl imitates the true action of the nymphs and larvae upon which fish feed.

An extra reel takes up mighty little space in a fishing vest. But the difference it makes can fill a creel!

Any fishing questions? Send them to me, in care of this newspaper.

LOOKING AHEAD

By GEORGE S. BENSON, President—Maryland Outlets Store, Arkansas

Employment Where?

Some 16 to 20 million workers are to be added to our labor force during the next ten years. Finding jobs for them is one of the problems that will concern everyone. This does not mean, however, that the only solution will be to turn the unemployed over to the federal government, either for the dole, for retraining, or for employment. This is hardly the answer, in view of the fact that one out of eight workers today is already on the public payroll: some 9.5 million civilians working for the rest of us. In other words, it would appear that even the federal government, with its 2.5 million employees, has as much employment as we can afford to pay for. But Labor Secretary Wirtz tells us that private business must grow faster, so that more government growth can be supported. We recently reported that total public employment should increase to a total of 13.5 million during the next 15 years. Other sources have estimated already that if present trends of government employment continue, the present ratio of one government job to eight private jobs will become one to five by 1970 and one to four by 1980.

Government Can't Do It

The point is that the economy cannot tolerate this kind of burden. The horde of government workers, largely non-productive, thus predicted would in itself produce a state of near-socialism. Instead of sapping the strength of the whole economy to support such a large proportion of our labor force, the government ought to encourage private business through policies that will make job opportunities. It hasn't been that way. One of every two new non-farm jobs in the past five years has been created by federal, state and local governments. Is this the nation we think we have?

No, and we must make it possible for private enterprise to provide the bulk of the jobs we shall require. Private industry can provide the 16 or 20 million jobs in the next ten years if allowed to do so. On the average, $18,000 to $25,000 is required in tools and invested capital to create a job. Accordingly, it will take $400 to $500 billion to make jobs that are really productive. This is more than the government can possibly do, short of socialism.

Stop Deficits

A recent Brookings Institution report points to our balance of payments deficit as a limitation on employment, because it keeps the government from taking steps it might otherwise take to stimulate the economy. Apparently these economists would have the government be as profligate at home as it has been abroad, a policy which would only increase and heighten our troubles. The U. S. helped to stimulate the economy of Western Europe in years past; now, it attempts to prevent private overseas investments that are more attractive than those at home.

We are going to have to stop running deficits of any kind, foreign or domestic. Easy money and big deficits, however, are being urged upon the nation by the Administration. Heavy spending in the Thirties (or what was considered heavy then) was tried as a cure for unemployment, but it failed to rouse the economy. In 1939 our unemployed still amounted to 9.4 million. The cure for unemployment is not simple, but it will not come about until our producers can compete in the markets of the world. Nor will jobs be plentiful unless entrepreneurs are encouraged to invest and expand in hopes of earning a fair profit.

Encourage Initiative

We shall not find $400 or $500 billion with which to create jobs as long as unwise laws or union pressures cast doubt upon the success of new undertakings. Owners of capital will not be persuaded to risk their savings under impossible handicaps. If the labor market is artificially bolstered by union demands or government rulings, so that available workers are priced out of the market, unemployment is bound to come. If taxes are kept as high as to confiscate capital, growth and expansion will not be able to create jobs.

Millions of displaced persons flooded into West Germany after World War II. But jobs were found for them and for many others called in from adjacent countries. What policies made this possible? Sound money, balanced budgets, no indebtedness, no inflation, decreased control and regulation of business. Capital flowed into West Germany and production hit new highs. Good sense, freedom in the market place, and plenty of trade brought prosperity to West Germany. It can do the same for us.

Brewster Bill

Favors County

Senator Daniel B. Brewster (D, Md.) last week introduced in the Senate a bill which provides for the establishment and operation of an analytical research experiment station at Frederick, Md.

If authorized by the Congress, the new laboratory will advance the conservation, development, and utilization of minerals. Bureau of Mines personnel, who will operate the station, will conduct investigations of precise analytical techniques essential to the effective pursuit of metallurgical research, and will apply newly developed knowledge in the preparation and identification of mineral substances of extraordinary purity and exact composition.

The Senator's bill would authorize an appropriation of $2.5 million for the erection and equipment of buildings, and additional amounts necessary for maintenance and operation of the station. It is estimated that the annual appropriation for the first five years will be just under $1 million. Approximately 100 Bureau of Mines personnel will be employed at the new Frederick center.

In a statement accompanying introduction of the bill, the Senator said, "The Bureau of Mines has proposed the establishment of a new center where talents and efforts can be concentrated. The program at Frederick would encourage and sustain United States leadership in minerals production and utilization. It will enable us to produce metals with a unique strength at extreme temperatures, a heavier impact resistance in frigid cold, an increased ability to sustain repeated and prolonged shocks and loads, and added durability in corrosive and erosive environments. Such metals are essential to our continued pre-eminence in electronic and nuclear development and in defense capability."

This legislation has already been approved by the Department of the Interior and the Bureau of the Budget.

Newsprint Mills Sponsor Newspaper Ad Research

New York — The Newsprint Information Committee has announced sponsorship of a third major advertising research project on behalf of newspapers.

Designed to unearth information never before available on the relation between newspaper advertising readership and consumer buying habits, the study is now under way. The Bureau of Advertising, ANPA, proposed and designed the project.

A nation-wide sampling of newspaper readers, involving thousands of interviews and re-interviews, will be carried out over many weeks. Results are expected to be available next Spring and will be distributed to advertisers, their agencies, and newspapers.

Cost of the research will be approximately $80,000.

This brings to nearly $200,000 the total expenditure of the Committee for research helpful to newspapers.

NEW EFFORT

The Newsprint Information Committee is made up of four leading Canadian newsprint companies: Abitibi Power & Paper Co., Anglo-Canadian Pulp & Paper Mills, Ltd., Domtar Newsprint, Ltd., and MacMillan, Bloedel & Powell River, Ltd.

Charles T. Lipscomb, president of the Bureau of Advertising, said that the new effort of the Newsprint Information Committee would bring added advertising benefit to most newspapers in the country.

One previous NIC-financed readership study, "The Daily Newspaper and Its Reading Public," has been an especially effective selling tool for the Bureau, he added. That data was used in more than 200 target-account selling presentations to important national advertisers. Lipscomb said the data helped produce at least $27 million in advertising for newspapers.

ANSWERS FOR ALL

The new study will begin where the earlier one left off, according to Dr. Leo Bogart, vice president of the Bureau for marketing planning and research.

It is expected to provide the potential advertiser with answers to the following questions, among others: How many readers have the opportunity to see a given ad? Will the ad reach the right kinds of people — those able to and inclined to buy? What are the readers' reactions to the kind, size and location (in the page and in the newspaper) of the advertising?

What in the WORLD! by TED Guests of UNICEF

Time was when you could be pretty certain that kitchen flour had been milled from wheat or — more rarely — from corn, rye, barley or even rice. Today you can't be so sure.

Not long ago, the U.S. Committee for UNICEF (United Nations Children's Fund) headquarters building. Guests nibbled doughnuts and cookies — and sent their compliments to the chef.

The cookies contained over 16 percent of peanut flour, a similar amount of cottonseed grits and a pinch of soya grits. Some of the doughnuts were baked with soya flour. Others contained nearly 12 percent of flour refined from fish filets! But this was no gimmick. Through UNICEF, millions of undernourished children are getting healthy on just such local protein sources never previously exploited fully.

UNICEF teaches that in the absence of meat and other conventional high-nutrient foods, you get your protein where you can. Coconut flour is 19 percent protein. The percentages range upward to 57 for cottonseed flour, 62 for sesame flour and 96 for fish-flillet flour.

Part of the secret is refining. Roasted peanuts, for instance, yield 23 percent protein. But when they're concentrated into a white flour, the figure zooms to 90 percent!

New Section Rt. 15 Now Open

Relocated U. S. 15 between Lewistown and Catoctin Furnace has been put into use by the State Roads Commission. Traffic was first let onto the new strip of highway last week.

Crossovers on the new road are being placed at the minimum distance for safety. Such intersections are at Lewistown, at Spahr's road, at the location at the southern end of Catoctin Furnace where work is now being done, and at Catoctin Hollow road.

With the completion of this section of the roadway, U. S. 15 has been entirely relocated from Frederick to Emmitsburg except for one section from the Mountain-dale road to Tuscarora Creek. Grading work on this project is still under way and the road will probably be completed next year. This will result in the completion of one leg of the ultimate dual road.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kugler and step-mother, Mrs. Carrie Kugler, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lantz, Union Bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith, Timonium, spent Sunday here visiting with Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Genevieve R. Elder.

Prof. Gerald C. Orosz, Mt. St. Edward Hollingsworth, Washington, Mary's College, and Mr. and Mrs. Iton, D. C., were weekend guests

Will Honor Mount Grad Here Saturday

Rt. Rev. Louis J. Mendelis, S.T.D., LL.D., pastor of Saint Alphonsus Church, Baltimore, has been chosen as the 1963 recipient of the John DuBois Medal by the National Alumni Association of Mount Saint Mary's College. The medal is awarded annually to one who has distinguished himself by outstanding service to his country and Church.

The medal is named for the founder of the college, Bishop John DuBois, French emigre priest, who started the mountain school in 1808. It is the second oldest Catholic institution in the United States.

Monsignor Mendelis is a graduate of the college's class of 1924. He was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree by his alma mater in 1949. He is a native of Sharil, Lithuania, coming to this country when twelve years old with his parents and settling in Inkerman, Pa.

He was educated in St. Mary's High School, Wilkes-Barre, working in the coal mines during the last three years of his high school education. He received his high school diploma while still on crutches after receiving an injury in the mines.

Being a brilliant student but unable to afford the cost of a higher education upon graduation he worked as an agent for a life insurance company and attended night school taking a course in the Wharton School of Finance, an extension school of the University of Pennsylvania. In 1920 he entered Mt. St. Mary's College where he achieved academic excellence and graduated in 1924 with the highest honors. Having decided upon the holy priesthood as a profession he was sent to Rome to continue his studies.

He was ordained in Rome in 1928 by the late Archbishop Palica in the Lateran Seminary Chapel. He received his doctorate in sacred theology that year having completed his course work with the highest honors. On September 1, 1928 he assumed the assignment of assistant pastor of St. Alphonsus parish where he has remained for the past thirty-five years. He has been pastor since 1943.

In 1952 he was raised to the rank of domestic prelate with the title of Right Reverend Monsignor by the late Pope Pius XII. He is best-known as the director of the Miraculous Medal Novena which was inaugurated in 1935. It is estimated that over fifteen million persons have attended these devotions since their inauguration.

During his administration the parish has contributed hundreds of thousands of dollars to the mission work of the Propagation of the Faith and hundreds of converts have been received into the Church.

His interest in the fields of higher education has also produced the endowment of many scholarship funds. At his alma mater, Mt. St. Mary's, with his parishioners he has created ten $10,000 scholarships and five $1,000 honors awards to assist needy students at day for their academic degrees or for the holy priesthood.

His generosity has also contributed to the restoration and beautification of the National Grotto Shrine at the college. This is the oldest grotto shrine in the United States. Recent contributions to this cause have been the six stained glass windows in the Grotto Chapel depicting the early founders and scenes of the first buildings. Now under construction are modern comfort stations for the convenience of the thousands of pilgrims who visit the shrine annually.

From his personal library and those of his parishioners he has donated extensive holdings to the College Library.

Monsignor Mendelis is the third recipient of the medal which was first given to James J. Rowley, secret service chief and presidential bodyguard in 1961. The 1962 medal was awarded to Bishop James E. Walsh, D.D., Maryknoll priest, who is a prisoner of the Chinese Communists. The Bishop is also a graduate of the Mount, Class of 1910.

The award will be made at the annual Alumni Dinner at the college on Saturday, October 19, at 7:30 p.m.

PTA TO MEET

The Emmitsburg High and Elementary School will hold their next PTA meeting Wednesday, October 23, at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria of the school. Parents may visit the classrooms from 7:30 to 8 p.m.

A skit entitled "Don't Be A Drop-Out Parent," is part of the interesting program which has been planned. The Sixth Grade under the direction of Mrs. Mary Scott and Mr. Kenneth Grandstaff, will present "Don't You Wish You Were There?"—a Greenport report.

October is Membership Month and the PTA is striving for 100% membership.

Utility To Honor 25-Year Club

More than 300 active and retired employees are expected to attend the Potomac Edison System's annual Quarter Century Club dinner October 23 at the Venice Restaurant in Hagerstown. The meeting is expected to draw one of the largest turnouts in the 26-year history of the PE employees' organization.

PE President R. G. MacDonald will address the QCC members.

Total membership in the club is 523. This includes 355 active employees and 168 others who have retired. Included in the total figure are 12 employees who have completed their 25th year of service during 1963.

A large group of active and retired employees is expected from the Frederick area. Lewis F. Fagan Jr., 931 Cherokee Trail, has completed his 25th year of service with the company and will join the organization at the dinner meeting.

Fagan began working for PE as a clerk in the Bus Accounting Section of the former Blue Ridge Transportation Company in Frederick in 1938. He was employed there until 1945 when he transferred to the Railway Department and four years later became Senior Clerk. He returned to General Accounting in 1953 and in 1963 was assigned to the newly formed Reproduction Section of the Building Services Department at the Hagerstown General Office, where he is currently working.

Employees from the four-state area served by the power company will attend the meeting. They will welcome new members and recognize other employees who have reached additional milestones in their company history.

PTA Meeting Held

The PTA of St. Joseph's High School met last week in the school auditorium with President William Kelz presiding. The Sisters were in their classrooms at 7:30 for the convenience of parents who wished to inquire of the progress of their children. Officers for the coming year are: President, William Kelz; vice president, Raymond Etheridge; secretary, Mrs. Helen Brown; and treasurer, Mrs. Margaret Myers.

The president welcomed new members, old members and members of the faculty to the first meeting of the school year. Two new faculty members are Sister John Marie and Sister Clare Francis. Sister Antonia, principal, explained the changes that had taken place during the summer, such as moving the workshop, the business department and painting of the entire school.

The president announced that regular meetings will be held on the second Tuesday of each month, and the executive board will meet two weeks prior to regular meetings. Any member of the PTA is welcome to attend the executive board meetings.

Chairmen of the various committees were named and Mrs. Rita Remavege, chairman of the chaparral committee, asked for volunteers. The group voted that a bus should be provided to transport the children to the CSMC meeting to be held in Hagerstown. In former years the children attended these meetings in private cars. Mr. Kelz introduced Father Storms, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, who spoke to the group.

New Frontier Club Meeting Held

The October meeting of the New Frontier Democratic Women's Club was held Monday evening in the VFW Auxiliary Room with Mrs. Jane Bollinger, President, presiding.

The United Democratic Women's Club will have their fall meeting on Nov. 6 and 7 at the Emerson Hotel in Baltimore. Two members from this club will attend.

Mrs. Jane Bollinger announced the following nominating committee: Mrs. Sue Morehead, chairman, Mrs. Katherine Kugler, Mrs. Pat Weddle, Mrs. Janet Newcomer and Mrs. Bonnie Law.

A Bingo Party will be held on Thursday, Nov. 14 in the VFW Annex. Members are asked to bring prizes to the November meeting. Mrs. Mary Joe Wagerman is chairman.

In the absence of the program chairman, Mrs. Ruth Houck of Thurmont, introduced Mr. Charles Collins, a member of the Maryland House of Delegates. Mr. Collins spoke on the "Highlights of the 1963 Legislature."

The next meeting will be held on November 11.

Auxiliary Meets

Mrs. Anna Bushman, president, conducted the monthly meeting of the Auxiliary of Francis X. Elder Post 121, American Legion, recently in the post home. Sixteen members were present and reported clothing donations, hours for clinic, library and baby-sitting work.

The group will sponsor a magazine sales campaign this year so that more hospital equipment can be purchased for use of the people of the community. A tentative date, Wednesday, December 11, has been set for the Christmas party. Members who attended the district meeting in Thurmont recently were Virginia Sanders, Anna Bushman, Melva Hardman, Nettie Ashbaugh, Madeline Harner, Loretta Hardman and Beatrice Umel. The local unit received honorable mention citations in community service and gold star mother services.

Dues were paid for three sick members. The membership chairman reported that to date 26 members had paid dues for next year.
