President Johnson made a wonderful speech to the Nation Wednesday but it is highly doubtful if many of his ideas will materialize, at least not as rapidly as he expects. Debt reduction, racial equality, tax cutting, defense spending and war on poverty were just a few projects he would like to see effected in the next few short months. All of President Kennedy's program and a few choice ones of his own, were incorporated into the speech. In short it was not a report of the condition of the Nation; it was what is to be striven for during the next year. Were we to achieve most of these aims we would be living in a veritable Utopia. We can't blame the President for setting his goal high, especially during an election year, but we are realistic individuals and as such realize that we will be sadly disappointed when many of these things do not come about. The President's ideas are good, we grant, but there are many unfortunately, who will do their best to hamstring the program. Well, we don't blame him for trying.

One of the town's old landmarks is about to vanish from this earth. A familiar sight, to both young and old, the old Blacksmith Shop's days are numbered. Operating for nearly a century, under three of four owners, the shop will be razed in the near future. It has been purchased by Bucher's Motel and Restaurant and is to be removed due to an expansion movement of the purchasing concern. A familiar sight, a favorite loitering spot for many to wile away the hours and hear the "latest", a place to get "anything" fixed, the old shop will be missed by untold numbers. Probably the saddest of the lot will be the local horses who now will have to go barefooted. The last of the shoeing places has vanished just as the once popular smithy disappears from the scene. Joe Wivell, the last of this vanishing race to operate the establishment, says he won't let the folks down and more than likely will find some other place to carry on this tradition.

It was startling news this week when it was discovered that a Frederick County farmer's herd had been infected with tuberculosis. This discovery was made by Doc Green, local state veterinarian. Of the farmer's 73 cows, 67 were infected with the malady and will have to be destroyed. You can imagine what a terrific financial loss this will inflict on the dairyman. The case bears close scrutiny by health authorities. Let's hope it can be kept isolated.

Route 15 continues to be the most dangerous in Frederick County. Year-end statistics show the road had the highest number of accidents in the county. Emmitsburg continues to be the only bottleneck from Harrisburg to Washington. The by-pass has not been effected and no one knows just when it will be. The spotlight on the Square is the only one a motorist encounters the whole way from Harrisburg to the Nation's Capital, a distance of about 115 miles. No one knows the reason why except our lame-brained State Reads Commission.

PTA Card Party Tuesday

A card party will be sponsored by the St. Joseph's High School PTA in the school auditorium, Tuesday evening, January 14, at 8 o'clock. Refreshments will be on sale and admission is 50 cents per person. Three hams will be awarded as door prizes. The public is invited to attend.

Comedienne To Be Featured In Show At Local College

Anna Russell, international concert comedienne, opera, stage, screen, television and recording star, will appear in her "One-Woman Show" this Monday at St. Joseph College, under the auspices of the Cultural Arts program, cosponsored by St. Joseph's and Mount Saint Mary's College. This is one stop on Miss Russell's 11th coast-to-coast tour of the United States.

Mounties Set Winning Pace; Here Fri.-Sat.

Mount St. Mary's College basketball squad had little difficulty subduing Shepherd College Wednesday night, 93-63, at the Emmitsburg gym. The victory was the eighth of the season for Jim Phelan's crew as compared with three losses.

The Phelanmen, playing a series of three home games on the local court this week began the series Tuesday evening by polishing off Western Maryland College in Westminster, 99-85.

Although out-rebounded in the first half by the taller Mounts, Western Maryland used its fast break and Jim Shaw's hot hand to stay close. In fact, they held a 40-32 lead with just four minutes to play in the first half. But Carrell found the range and pulled the Mounts to within two points. With the Mounts trailing by 43-39, Mike Johnston made two foul shots and Folk made a jump shot and the game was even at 53-all. The Terrers regained the lead again on a couple of fouls, but their lead was short-lived as Carrell hit on a jump shot, Folk made two fouls and Dave Spewak made a lay-up to give the Mounts a lead they never relinquished.

Western Maryland kept it interesting until fouls and an injury to Buck Kelley, a promising Freshman, got them in trouble. Kelley injured an ankle and was carried to the locker room with five minutes remaining.

Freshman Ed Sarmir helped Folk and Carrell in the scoring column with 19 points, as the three took up the scoring slack when high scorer, Mike Costello, was held to a single field goal and wound up with seven points for the night.

The Mount led Shepherd Wednesday evening 52-27 at half-time. Four Mount men hit the double scoring figures and the game ended 93-63. Tonight the Blue and White encounters Old Dominion here in a Mason-Dixon Conference contest and Saturday they meet their ancient foe, Loyola, here in Emmitsburg. Game time is 8 p.m.

Rocky Ridge 4-H Club Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Northern Cloverettes 4-H Club was held on Friday, January 3, at the home of Becky and Mary Ann Keilholtz. A short business meeting was held, followed by the election of officers for 1964.

The new officers are as follows: Becky Keilholtz, president; Mildred Orndorff, vice president; Bonnie Fuss, secretary; Phyllis Wivell, treasurer; and Sylvia Brauer, delegate to girls' county council. The meeting was adjourned and the postponed Christmas party was held. The next meeting will be held on January 24, at the home of Vivian Hines.

Saturday morning Becky Keilholtz, Bonnie Fuss and Sylvia Brauer attended the officers' training school at Winchester Hall, in Frederick.

BINGO

A series of Bingo games will be sponsored by the Rocky Ridge Fire Co., commencing Saturday night. The games will start every Saturday night at 8 p.m. in the Rocky Ridge Fire Hall and the general public is cordially invited.

Doe Killed

Tfc. Earl F. Tracey said Friday that a 140-pound doe was killed in the morning after being struck by an unidentified motorist on Md. 81, about one mile west of Thurmont. Trooper Tracey said a passing motorist called State Police and reported finding the deer along side the road around 8 a.m.

SNOW BALL

The Alumni Association of St. Joseph's High School will sponsor a snow ball serenade Saturday, January 18, from 9 to 12 p.m. in the VFW Annex. Music will be by The Little German Band. Admission is $2 per couple.

Mr. and Mrs. James Richards, Camp Lejeune, N. C., are visiting with Mrs. Richards' mother, Mrs. Clara Mae Ott and family. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pitzer and family, Elmira, N. Y., visited during the weekend with Mrs. Pitzer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Arnold.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rodgers and family have moved from the apartment in the VFW building, to their newly purchased home on North Seton Avenue.

Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence I. Shorb, North Seton Ave., announce the engagement of their daughter, Gwendolyn Margaret, to Pfc. Anthony David Topper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis D. Topper, Route 2, Emmitsburg.

Miss Shorb was graduated from St. Joseph's High School in 1962 and is now employed by the FBI in Washington, D. C.

Pfc. Topper was graduated from the same school in 1962, and is in the U. S. Army, stationed at Fort Hamilton, N. Y.

No date has been set for the wedding.

County Teachers' Raise Approved

The Frederick County School Board has unanimously approved a raise for the present $4,500 to a $5,000 minimum teachers' salary for every public school teacher in Frederick County. However, the board refused to grant a similar overall raise to principals and supervisors.

The teacher raises must still be approved by the Frederick County Commissioners before they can go into effect. A state raise of $4,900 is also pending.

In an unusual action taken at the request of School Board vice president C. Gordon Smith of Ljamsville, the School Board removed principals and supervisors from the teacher salary raises and agreed to consider them separately and individually, name by name, in a closed executive session.

The principals and supervisors will also receive theoretical minimum salary increase since they are also considered to be "teachers" but all of them are receiving more than the new teacher minimums, so this will do them no practical good.

The teachers salary increase accounts for $650,000 of the proposed million dollar pay raise included in the budget for the first fiscal year from July 1, 1964 through June 30, 1965 proposed by the school administration.

Another $250,000 is accounted for by automatic pay raises for seniority and additional education and degrees under the old salary scale which would have been necessary without any teacher salary raises.

This leaves $100,000 in proposed raises for principals and supervisors which was argued behind closed doors as the School Board went into executive session "because personalities and names are to be discussed."

College Raises Tuition Rate

Gettysburg College has announced an increase in tuition for the 1965-66 term. The increase was deemed necessary by the board of trustees "to meet the sharply increased costs of operation."

The comprehensive fee which covers all academic expenses, except books, will be increased from $1,300 to $1,500. Board will go up from $448 to $480 per year and $30 will be added to yearly room rents.

Jaycees Tackle School Battle

A firm stand against the removal of the Public High School to Thurmont was made this week by the Emmitsburg Jaycees when they announced they would make every effort to thwart the move by the Frederick County Commissioners and the County School Board, to remove the school from Emmitsburg.

The school dilemma which has been "cooking" for almost a decade, has been sort of dormant since the Town was shocked and stunned by the action of the County Commissioners recently when they approved money for the Staub site for the new consolidated school in Thurmont. The School Board this week engaged surveyors to lay out the site and have taken an option to purchase the ground.

The Jaycees will unite their efforts with the Town Council to try and stop the efforts of the School Board and County Commissioners. Legal action could be employed if it is deemed necessary and any acquired expenses will be met by a public subscription.

This announcement was made this week by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in a prepared letter to the Citizens of Emmitsburg District, which reads as follows:

We, the members of the Greater Emmitsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce, have taken on the burden of trying to prevent our school from being "stolen" from us by certain groups and individuals with selfish interests. To accomplish this task we are going to need the assistance of every citizen and organization, church or social. You might raise the question as to our whereabouts in the past. To be honest with you, we have been sort of dormant or inactive. We recently have reorganized and have added new and younger blood to the group and we are now ready for the fight ahead. To do this we will need funds, not just from businessmen and groups, but from every single citizen in the Emmitsburg District.

If you are interested in helping us win this fight for the retention and improvement of our local school, please contact any of the members of the Jaycees. From there on we will carry the "ball", with of course, the cooperation of the Town Council.

The citizens of Emmitsburg District will not forget this "stab in the back" by our elected officials and when the time comes their names will be prominently mentioned, printed, discussed and voted against.

PATRICK B. BOYLE, Sec.-Treas.

Route 15 County's Most Dangerous Road In 1963

Motorists in Frederick County were involved in seven more accidents this past year than in 1962 but one less person died according to figures released this week by Lt. Carroll E. Cook, commander of Barracks "B," State Police.

On the whole, troopers from the local barracks covered 886 accidents during 1963 compared with 879 accidents investigated in 1962. Of these accidents, 17 this past year were fatalities in which 22 persons lost their lives. In 1962, 21 fatal accidents were reported taking 23 lives.

This past year, as in '62, U. S. 15 north claimed the greatest number of accidents with 101 being investigated. In 1962, 136 accidents occurred on this highway. Close behind 15 north this past year was U. S. 40 west where 100 accidents occurred and U. S. 340 south where 98 accidents were investigated. U. S. 40 east was the scene of 60 accidents and 53 accidents occurred on U. S. 15 south.

K-C Third Degree Sunday

The annual Communion Breakfast of Brute Council 1860, Knights of Columbus, will be held on Sunday, February 2, following the 8:30 Mass it was announced at the regular meeting of that group held Monday night in the Council Home. J. Everett Christner is chairman of the event.

Grand Knight Lumen F. Norris presided over the meeting with 32 members in attendance. Curtis D. Topper, chairman of the recent oyster feast reported the affair a social success.

General activities chairman Carl A. Wetzel gave a report on the first month's operation of the first bar. An application for membership was received from Martin T. Goltbart and the transfer from Kansas to Emmitsburg Council of Patrick F. McGucken, was approved. A get-well card was ordered sent to Francis Sanders, a member, who is a patient at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg. The closing prayer was led by the chaplain, Rev. Fr. Robert S. Grace. The third degree will be exemplified Sunday afternoon at Mount St. Mary's College.

MRS. WILLIAM E. WATKINS

Mrs. Myrtle Estelle Watkins, 80, West Main Street, died Monday at 6:50 p.m. at the Annie Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, after an illness of three weeks.

She was born in Frederick County, widow of William Ernest Watkins and a daughter of the late John E. and Martha E. Linthicum King.

She was a retired school teacher, having taught schools in Maryland for 20 years. She was a teacher and school superintendent for 19 years in Honturas, C. A., for the United Fruit Company.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Wilhite, Emmitsburg, one son, William E. Lawson, Towson, six grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Lorene Smith of Miami, Fla. She was a member of Trinity Methodist Church in Emmitsburg and a past president of the Emmitsburg Homemakers Club.

Funeral services were held yesterday (Thursday) afternoon at 1:30 p.m. at the Methodist Church. Rev. Martin A. Case was in charge of the services. Interment was in the Bethesda Church Cemetery, Browningsville. Wilson Funeral Home, Emmitsburg, was in charge of arrangements.

ENGAGED

Mrs. Anna Hatfield, New Windsor, announces the engagement of her daughter, Patsy Carlene, to Earl R. Anders, son of Mrs. Lillie Anders, Emmitsburg, and William Anders, Lewistown. Her fiancé is in the U. S. Navy at Jacksonville, Fla. A March wedding is planned.

Half Million Town Bond Sale Made

A bond issue totalling almost half a million dollars was floated by the Town of Emmitsburg this week when Alexander Brown & Son, Baltimore financial concern, was announced the lowest bidder and received the subsequent award. The bond issue was necessary to pay off the Town's indebtedness incurred by the recent acquisition of the Emmitsburg Water Company and for extensive improvements and modernization of the system.

A. B. Collmus and Dwight Collmus of Frederick headed a group of firms which obtained the $475,000 major Emmitsburg bond issue with a low average interest rate of 3.5545 at the bid openings Tuesday morning in the Town Office.

The Collmus firm bid in combination with the Legg and Company, Mead Miller and the C. T. Williams financial firms, all of Baltimore, in offering the lowest interest rate on the Emmitsburg water system bonds, which mature annually over a period from 1965 to 1998.

Other bidders on the major bond issue were the Robert Garrett Company of Baltimore, which bid alone on the bond issue, without other firms involved, at a 3.5645 interest rate and a combination of Baker, Watts and Company, Stein Brothers and Boyce, all of Baltimore, which offered a 3.81725 interest rate on the bonds.

A second bond issue of only $40,000, not interest bearing, was purchased from Emmitsburg by the Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph's College in Emmitsburg. These bonds mature at the rate of $4,000 per year over a period from 1965 through 1974.

Dwight Collmus said this week that the Alex Brown and Sons office in Frederick had sold $445,000 worth of the $475,000 bond issue by the close of the first business day that the local firm handled the bonds at 5 p.m.

The Alex Brown office in Frederick had been acting as financial advisor to the town of Emmitsburg previous to the sale of the bond issue to them, Mr. Collmus said.

The new bond issues cover the expense of retiring the remaining $180,000 in previous notes obtained by Emmitsburg as a result of the purchase by the town of a previously private water system some time ago.

They also cover the additional expenses required to modernize, improve and expand this water system to serve the growing need of this north county town for water.

Among these expenses are $156,000 for new water mains and valves; $137,000 for a filtration tank and sediment basin; $17,000 for engineering costs; $16,200 for meters, mains and vaults and $8,000 for inspection and legal fees, totaling $515,000, the total amount of both bond issues, with the notes retired included.

Mount To Install Computing System

Classes resumed at Mount Saint Mary's College on Monday, following the Christmas holidays. According to the Dean of Studies, Rev. Carl J. Fives, registration for the second semester will be held in the Cogan Union from January 13-16 between the hours of 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4:30 p.m. The spring semester officially begins on February 3 following the semester examination period which begins on January 21.

A new system of registration will be utilized for the forthcoming spring term in anticipation of the conversion of the present records system to one utilizing an IBM computer system. Father Fives stated that it is hoped that such a conversion will be completed by the fall registration. At the present time college officials including the Dean of Studies, the Registrar, and the Alumni Secretary have been inspecting the computer facilities of other institutions.

AMBULANCE REBORT

Removed this week by the VFW ambulance to the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, were: Mrs. Earl Sullivan and Mr. John Morrison. Drivers were Leo M. Boyle and Paul Humerick.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Heading south this winter? Doubtless there'll be fishing water at your destination — and that means trailing your boat if you are going by automobile.

On the way, take time to stop for "boating breaks." Although many don't realize it, there isn't a major highway through the South or Southwest that doesn't have some good waters for trailer boats within easy driving distance. It wasn't always that way, of course; but now there are many new manmade bodies of water, and more are being opened every year.

Most of these are in mountain or hill country. High dams here form deep lakes. Such water does not offer underwater obstructions for boats plying the surface. These dams force water back into every incoming stream. With the high banks natural to hills, myriad waters, well sheltered from wind sweep, are formed. Only in the farthest reaches, generally, will you find dead trees, boulders and other obstructions. Such sections, however, are comparatively easy for the touring boatman to avoid.

High banks and deep water often mean a lack of good natural trailer-launching spots, according to Willard Crandall, Boats Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. But that problem is being alleviated, too; and good launching ramps are becoming more common everywhere. The southbound boatman should always make local inquiries about launching spots in hill country and never try to ferret them out for himself.

It is possible to tell much about the waterways of any area without actually seeing them, by inspecting the passing countryside as you drive along. For instance, many rocks, especially in rather level country, mean that the near by waters probably have more. If the soil is sandy along the highway, then the local river or lake bottoms are likely to be, too.

Well-wooded country usually indicates solid banks and bottoms — but an exception should be made for swamp trees. Water height should be checked in wooded areas: high water can mean drifting logs or other floating debris.

YOUR PERSONAL HEALTH

"Tired? Run Down?"
That celebrated tired-and-rundown feeling, contrary to popular legend, is seldom the result of an overworked body or overstrained nerves. Even more seldom, if and when it overtakes you, can it be thrown off with a fast bottle of "health tonic" or a feast of vitamin pills.

The reason is simple. That feeling may be a sign not of general weariness or boredom, but of a quite specific disorder known as anemia.

Some doctors consider anemia the body's most common danger signal next to fever, and the most misunderstood and neglected as well. Untreated anemia can be a serious threat to health.

More people have this disorder than is generally realized. At least 20% of all patients admitted to general hospitals are anemic.

So are nearly one-third of seemingly healthy babies, and up to 70% of expectant mothers. The teenage girl down the street — the one who's always tired and whose hair is coarse and stringy — may very well be showing the effects of a fad diet that depleted her body's supply of iron.

But anemia can mean much more than a simple lack of iron. It is basically a deficiency of life-supporting red blood cells and of the oxygen-bearing red-pigment of those cells called hemoglobin. Anemia may be caused by poor diet in the adult female; in the adult male it practically always blood loss, blood destruction, or an underlying disease such as that of the kidney, the liver, or the thyroid, possibly an infection, or even cancer.

SPEAKING & CARDS

ELKS COLLECTING USED PLAYING CARDS

Just about everyone likes to play cards. Many of the hospitalized depend on cards. When activities are limited, a card game is the ideal opportunity for entertainment and relaxation. You can make sure patients have playing cards to enjoy by contributing your used decks to the Elks drive for used playing cards, now underway throughout the United States.

Although playing cards are inexpensive enough, hospitals cannot afford to obtain them in the quantities needed. The Elks National Service Commission distributes used playing cards to veterans and civilian hospitals. Used decks also go to homes for the aged, to senior citizens centers and, after Braille, to the blind.

Card games are fun anywhere, but in a hospital they may be a primary source of recreation. Patients are restricted physically and/or mentally. The sociability in a game of cards whiles away hours of what could have been boredom.

Playing cards also provide intellectual exercise. They can even aid in physical therapy. Shuffling, dealing and holding the cards perfects manual dexterity.

Cards used in these ways need not be brand new. Why not scout around for decks which are overlooked in favor of fresher ones? There are probably one or two in the back of a desk drawer, under the old magazines in the hall closet, or in back of the novels in the family room.

One word of caution: no one can use playing cards which are dog-eared, dirty and generally disreputable. Contributions to the Elks drive must be complete decks in fairly good condition.

Your donations to the Elks drive go first to the institutions near your home. When their needs are met, the remaining decks are distributed throughout the country. The better decks are Brailled for the blind.

Take a look in the corners of your home. When you turn up playing cards, mail or drop them off at your local Elks lodge or collection point in your neighborhood.

What in the WORLD! by TED

In Memoriam

The United Nations broke all precedents in its expressions of sorrow at the tragic death of President John F. Kennedy. On the day of the funeral, the U.N. closed its headquarters in mourning for the first time in its 18-year history. The following day, all meetings were cancelled while the General Assembly convened to hear eulogies delivered by Secretary-General U Thant and other U.N. dignitaries.

Tributes were spoken from the same rostrum where, only two months before, the late President had said: "Twenty-four months ago, when I last had the honor of addressing this body, the shadow of fear lay darkly across the world... The United Nations helped to reduce the tensions and helped to hold back the darkness."

Even before the official eulogies, delegations of every political persuasion voiced shock and sorrow. Messages of condolence sped to the Kennedy family. Diplomats stood quietly in line to sign the "book of condolences" set up in the U.S. Mission to the U.N. The organization's flag flew at half-staff.

As U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson told the 111-nation General Assembly: "Our grief is the more bearable because it is so widely and so genuinely shared."

100 YEARS AGO

GRANT, MAN OF HOUR, BOOMED FOR PRESIDENT

By Lon K. Savage

Ulysses S. Grant, the man of the hour in the United States of America, was riding through the mountains of northeast Tennessee and southeast Kentucky 100 years ago this week, and everywhere he went, crowds of mountaineers gathered to see him. As his party rode into the villages, the townsfolk would point and cheer at a distinguished, gray-haired man surrounded by a host of less prepossessing federal officers. As the people oohed and aghed, Grant—a short, bearded, rather scribey man in his early 40's—rode on unobtrusively, not bothering to inform the people that they were cheering the general's surgeon rather than the general, himself.

Such was the position in which Grant found himself in early 1864. His name was on every lip; he was the hero of the United States army; the man who had split the Confederacy in two and had driven the Confederates from Chattanooga into Georgia. Yet few persons knew anything else about him; few knew what he looked like, and he, himself, made no attempt to correct the situation.

Herald Favors Him

Even as Grant rode through the mountains (he was inspecting a supply line through Cumberland Gap), his name was being mentioned in New York City as the man to succeed Abraham Lincoln as President of the United States.

The "boomlet" for Grant was being led by James Gordon Bennett, editor of the spicy, scandal-filled "New York Herald," the largest circulating paper in the nation.

"The Herald" had little use for President Lincoln; he could not bring rebellion to a close quickly, according to Bennett, and when the war was over, Lincoln was not the man to rebuild the Union. The candidate, Bennett asserted, must be a man who stood clear of partisan politics and whose popularity was of such magnitude that it would unite all behind him. Such a man was Grant.

Grant's View

But Grant, himself, had no such views. At first, he only joked at the talk: "I aspire only to one political office. When this war is over, I mean to run for Mayor of Galena (his home town in Illinois), and if elected, I intend to have the sidewalk fixed up between my house and the depot."

Later, he became more serious about the matter. In a letter to his father in February he stated categorically: "I am not a candidate for any office. All I want is to be left alone to fight this war out."

Next week: Politicking Picks Up.

Annual FBI Report Shows Much Activity

In a year-end report to Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, Director J. Edgar Hoover revealed this week that the FBI has recorded increases in all major categories of FBI accomplishments during the past year. According to Mr. Hoover, final tabulations for 1963 will reflect more than 12,900 convictions in FBI cases as compared with 12,813 last year, and the apprehension of some 12,000 FBI fugitives compared with 11,690 in 1962. Said Mr. Hoover, "Fines, savings and recoveries increased to more than 210 million dollars, a figure far exceeding the amount of funds spent to operate the FBI during 1963."

Other noteworthy achievements disclosed by the FBI Director were the location of 19,100 stolen automobiles in investigations under the Interstate Transportation of Stolen Motor Vehicles Statute, and the apprehension of over 2,700 persons who were sought at the specific request of state and local authorities for fleeing across state lines in violation of the Fugitive Felon Act.

Commenting on the continued increase in violations of the Federal Bank Robbery and Incidental Crimes Statute, Mr. Hoover stated, ed, "An average of 125 robberies, burglaries and larcenies of banks and other financial institutions covered by the Statute have been reported to the FBI each month this year. This figure represents an increase of 20 per cent over the number of offenses in this category committed in 1962."

He continued, "Following the tragic assassination of John F. Kennedy on November 22, the full resources of the FBI were marshaled and an intensive investigation was launched concerning all phases of the assassination itself and the subsequent shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald. A detailed report on these matters was prepared and furnished to the Attorney General for transmittal to the President's Commission investigating the assassination."

Other accomplishments singled out for special mention by Mr. Hoover were:

The arrests of three men in California and the recovery of more than $237,000 in connection with the kidnapping of Frank Sinatra, Jr., 19-year-old son of the prominent singer-actor;

The arrest of Byron De La Beckwith by FBI Agents on civil rights charges arising from the ambush slaying of Medgar Evers, Mississippi Field Secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. De La Beckwith subsequently was turned over to Mississippi authorities, and is awaiting trial for murder; and

The arrests of Angelo Bruno, reputed La Cosa Nostra chieftain, and 10 other notorious individuals in the Philadelphia-New Jersey-New York areas on charges of conspiring to violate the Interstate Transportation in Aid of Racketeering Statute.

Mr. Hoover reported that during the past year, more than 150,000 items of criminal intelligence data were referred to other law enforcement agencies. Among these items was information received from FBI confidential informants which resulted in the arrests of more than 3,800 persons, and the recovery of contraband and stolen merchandise totaling almost $14,000,000.

In stressing the continued danger represented by the Communist Party, USA, and other subversive organizations within the United States, the FBI Director declared, "The Communist Party, USA, has continued its unswerving allegiance to the Soviet Union, which is committed to the goal of world domination by communism."

"In October, Communist Party delegates met in Chicago, Illinois, to lay the groundwork for a new national youth organization aimed at exploitation of what the Party describes as a rift toward the left among young people. Gus Hall, General Secretary, Communist Party, USA, in approving this youth movement, has stipulated that it should avoid the appearance of a Soviet-style organization; however, it should not tolerate anti-Soviet or anti-Communist Party thinking," reported Mr.

Hoover.

Single out for special mention among FBI accomplishments in the domestic intelligence field during the year were:

The arrests of an American engineer and an employee of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, a Soviet agency, at Englewood, New Jersey, for espionage conspiracy. Additionally, two Russians employed by the Soviet Mission to the United Nations, both of whom enjoyed the protection of diplomatic immunity, were declared persona non grata as a result of this case;

The thwarting of a plot, directed by Gennadiy Sevastyanov, Attache of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D. C., to recruit for espionage purposes a Russian defector now employed by the Federal Government. Sevastyanov was declared persona non grata and ordered to leave the country; and

The arrests of four persons in New York and Washington, D. C., in July, on charges of conspiring to spy for Russia. Two of the arrested persons, Ivan Dmitrievich Egorov, who was employed as a Personnel Officer by the United Nations Secretariat, and his wife, Aleksandra, were allowed to return to the Soviet Union in exchange for two Americans held by the Soviet Government.

In expressing his gratitude for the assistance rendered the FBI by the law enforcement agencies, Mr. Hoover stressed the need for the continued growth of mutual cooperation in the interest of effective law enforcement. "Never in the history of the Nation has the need for cooperation among law enforcement agencies been greater than now," stated Mr. Hoover. "The steady increase of criminal activity, both individual and organized, is taxing law enforcement to its limits. It is impossible for any law enforcement agency to operate efficiently without some assistance from another. The FBI is dedicated to improving law enforcement at all levels. The full facilities of the FBI Laboratory and the Identification Division, as well as trained instructors in various phases of law enforcement, are available to enforcement agencies throughout the country."

The cooperative services rendered by the FBI include cost-free examinations of evidence, assistance in training schools and comparisons in identification of fingerprints. The FBI Laboratory received specimens of evidence from authorities in all of the 50 states and conducted over 240,000 examinations during the past year. Many of these examinations resulted in the identification of wrong-doers for local police agencies. Others were helpful in establishing the innocence of persons considered suspects in particular crimes.

The FBI Identification Division, which serves as a national repository for fingerprint identification data, received over 23,000 fingerprint cards daily during 1963. As the year ended, its files contained over 169,000,000 sets of fingerprints representing over 77,500,000 persons.

Mr. Hoover reported that the FBI Disaster Squad, consisting of a team of experts from the FBI Identification Division, was sent to the scenes of air crashes in Florida, Maryland and Missouri as well as to the location of a tragic hotel fire in Atlantic City, New Jersey, to the Moab, Utah, mining disaster and to the tragic train-bus crash near Chualar, California, to assist in identifying the bodies of victims.

At the request of law enforcement agencies in all parts of the United States, the FBI conducted nearly 4,000 local and regional police training schools. In addition, two sessions of the FBI National Academy were held with 196 officers in attendance. The graduation of these men brought to 4,454 the total number of officers who have completed this 12-week course of specialized instruction since the FBI National Academy was founded in 1935.

Be extra alert during twilight driving hours, the AAA Automobile Club of Maryland warns. Visibility is not as good as it sometimes seems, and the low sun creates a glare problem.

This is my commandment, that ye love one another, even as I have loved you.

—(John 15:12)

When we follow Jesus' example we are filled with love—so much so that we express understanding and forgiveness and handle every situation and circumstance with love.

Winter Driving

The automobile has become so much a part of the life of the typical American family that most of us feel handicapped when the family car is out of commission even for a few hours. When a severe winter storm brings highway travel to a halt, the individual family's frustration is multiplied many thousandfold.

The inconvenience of being snow-bound is bad enough, but the hazards of driving on icy or snow-covered roads are even worse. States, counties and municipalities are meeting the public demand by extending and improving their winter maintenance programs.

The fight against the elements is well worth the cost. In Ohio, for example, researchers calculated that every dollar spent for snow and ice removal in that State—using snow-plows, chemicals and abrasives—returned more than $2 in benefits to highway users in the form of lower operating costs, time savings and the reduction of accidents. There are also extensive indirect benefits to retailers and other businessmen when good winter maintenance makes "business as usual" possible.

Despite all that is being done by States, counties and municipalities to improve the effectiveness of winter maintenance operations, extra caution is still recommended when cold weather er strikes, and this is true even in the areas where snowfall is a rarity. Icing conditions can be tricky. For example, water freezes faster on bridge decks because these surfaces are exposed to the air from beneath as well as from above. This means that a bridge may be icy at times when the road at either end is merely wet.

To do your part in avoiding accidents and inconvenience in driving on ice or snow, I suggest that you follow these "ten commandments."

1. Remove ice and snow from windshield and windows before you start, and keep them clear.
2. Start easy. Apply power gradually to avoid spinning the wheels and digging in.
3. Stop easy. Let the engine slow you down. Anticipate stops and avoid quick braking that causes skidding.
4. Drive slowly and avoid braking on curves.
5. Keep plenty of distance between you and the car ahead.
6. Keep your gas tank at least half filled.
7. Invest in snow tires and put them on before the first snow.
8. Avoid chance of carbon monoxide poisoning by checking exhaust pipe and muffler for leaks.
9. If you must use alcohol, use it only in the radiator.
10. If your car has dual transmission, drive in D2.

Babson Urges Support For "Independent" Companies

BABSON PARK, Mass., Jan. 9—When you are looking for a share in a good business venture, don't bypass the possibilities among the "independent" firms.

In my years of counseling, I have many times pointed out that there are more hidden opportunities for sound profits among independents than is generally recognized.

Big Business vs. Independents
I believe that the future of our country depends to a considerable extent on encouragement of the independents in all lines of endeavor. Some investors buy only "blue chip" stocks, or perhaps just those in the Dow-Jones Industrial group. But, in a sense, such investors are "cutting their own throats" by contributing only to the already established concerns.

In fact, it is to the interest of our system of democratic free enterprise to support smaller companies, — for a number of valid reasons. For one thing, competition of a healthy sort can be fostered only in a climate where the independent is not overwhelmed and blotted out by the giants. During the birth of the electronics industry, many firms now leaders in our nation first saw the light of day in somebody's garage or in a make-shift laboratory in somebody's attic.

Many Improvements From Small Companies
An amazing number of products now known throughout the world were the brainchild, originally, of small independents. Here are a few items which were invented and first marketed by such establishments: Penicillin, colored motion pictures, electric light bulbs, automobiles, long-playing records, instant coffee, fountain pens, frozen foods, zippers, toasters, hearing aids, vacuum cleaners, irons, Kodak—and Polaroid—cameras, electric heating pads, radios, flashlights, paper towels, and a great galaxy of household appliances. Then, in most instances, the big companies came along and swallowed them up, along with their markets.

It is still tough sledding for the small pioneers. For instance, magazine, radio, and TV advertising rates are the same for the smalls as they are for the giants. It is easy to see how this handicaps the independents in their efforts to raise capital and to sell their names and products. There is no question, either, but that bigness creates power and a kind of bureaucracy that breed a difficult climate for the smalls to weather.

A Good Place To Invest
It is always worth while, when you have funds to place, to look into the prospects for some of your local enterprises, such as banks and chain stores. When considering income, safety, and growth possibilities, I can think of few better opportunities than the telephone company that serves your locality. For years I have recommended to readers that they invest in their local telephone company, whether it be a Bell or an independent.

If you are not served by a Bell or independent unit, you can always buy into the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which supplies the whole country—including Bell and the independents — with long-distance coverage. The telephone industry has been one of the fastest-growing of them all, and I expect still further expansion in this field as our population fans out. Also, innovations that mean more efficient service, more time savings, and more convenience will be constantly developed over coming years.

A Final Word For Independents
It should be kept in mind that while the big Bell companies serve most of the large cities, the independent phone companies serve nearly twice as many individual communities. Most of these firms are locally owned and contribute directly to the economic welfare of their areas. They have a built-in monopoly for their districts which consist. It is considered preferable not only from an esthetic standpoint because it eliminates above-ground poles and overhead wires (both electrical and telephone) but it is also free from storm and other above-ground destructive forces.

almost no other industries possess. For the reasons given above, my investment sense has always drawn me toward the independents. But be careful . . . Investigate before you take any action!

with Christians around the world. Help us to find more things in common and bless our efforts. Help us through prayer to find answers to the problems of the world today. In the name of the Savior of the world. Amen.

Thought For The Day
We help work out our own salvation by praying for others.
Beatrice B. Telfer (Ontario)

THE UPPER ROOM, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Read John 17:20-26.

Neither pray I for those alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word. (John 17:20.)

An old proverb says, "Help thy brother's boat across, and lo, thine own has reached the shore."

This applies to our prayers as well. When we are concerned for others enough to pray for them, we not only help to bring blessings into their lives but also help to bring blessings into our own lives. Jesus set an example for us when He prayed not only for Himself and His disciples but for all who would believe on Him.

In 1962, I had the privilege of helping with a World Day of Prayer service. We prayed for people of all countries and races. We prayed for leaders in world affairs, for families, ministers, teachers, for people in every walk of life. The same service, used by Christians in all parts of the world, surely brought great blessings.

When we remember that this is our Father's world and we are His children, we are drawn closer together in love and fellowship.

Catholics go to Confession to a priest for one reason only: to obtain divine forgiveness for their sins.

But why, you ask, go to a priest? Why not confess our sins directly to God?

Ask the man who goes to confession and here's what he will tell you: Sin is an offense against God; it must be forgiven by God. It is God, not man, who determines how forgiveness must be obtained. Christ plainly pointed this out when He empowered His Apostles and their successors to forgive sins or to refuse forgiveness.

"Whose sins you shall forgive," Christ said, "they are forgiven them; whose sins you shall retain, they are retained" (John 20:22, 23). Thus Christ authorized the Apostles and their successors to pardon or to deny pardon, as they judge the sinner worthy or unworthy. To do this they had to know what they were forgiving . . . the secret dispositions of the sinner . . . his sorrow and willingness to repair the wrong done to his neighbor by his sins. Who could make this known but the sinner himself—and what is this but Confession?

But Confession—the Sacrament of Penance—is only one of the seven Sacraments Christ left in His Church. Yes, seven—no more and no less! Christ's religion is not merely a message to be accepted, but a life to be lived—from the cradle to the grave. Christ's seven Sacraments are the answer to man's seven basic needs.

Wiring Goes Underground Communities Get New Clear Sky View

JANESVILLE, Wis. — Underground wiring for a residential subdivision is not unique, but the installation technique used in a new development here is the first of its kind in the state.

The subdivision, Second Claremont Park, was laced with a network of trenches dug about three feet deep. Electric power and telephone cable then were laid in together without regard to separation by type. Separation of the cables is no longer required, since the state's public service commission has amended its code covering such installations.

Allis-Chalmers undertook the project on a "turnkey" basis. In acting as general contractor, the company not only supplied pad-mounted distribution transformers, but provided trenching service and handled procurement and installation of cable.

The project called for 12,000 lineal feet of trenching, including 2,500 feet to accommodate telephone cable. A small portion of the telephone cable was put into a separate trench — most went into a common trench with the electric cable.

Allis-Chalmers used the smallest crawler tractor in its line, an HD-3 equipped with front loader and rear backhoe, for some of the trench cutting and filling.

The company's 25 kilovolt ampere transformers, designed to be inconspicuous and resting on concrete bases, are positioned throughout the 708-lot subdivision.

The subdivision is situated on Weighing only 666 pounds and 28 1/2-inches high, an Allis-Chalmers transformer installed in a Janesville, Wis., subdivision is easily maneuvered into place on its concrete pad. The subdivision is the first in the state with both electrical and telephone wires buried together in a common trench. Allis-Chalmers acted as general contractor for the entire project.

the city's northeast side, and utility services are being supplied by the Wisconsin Power & Light Company and Wisconsin Telephone Company.

Underground residential wiring is not unique in itself, but it is far from commonplace in Wisconsin. It is considered preferable not only from an esthetic standpoint because it eliminates above-ground poles and overhead wires (both electrical and telephone) but it is also free from storm and other above-ground destructive forces.

Business Backs 4-H Clubs Nation-Wide

Incentives Help Make Best Better

U.S. business firms contributed $1.25 million in 1963 toward recognition and encouragement of the nation's 2,225,000 4-H Club members, the director of the National 4-H Service Committee has announced.

Norman C. Mindrum, director of the committee, said the record figure made possible awarding of college scholarships and fellowships valued at $145,000. They were presented this year to 275 of the nation's most outstanding 4-H youths and to young adults who once were 4-H'ers.

The financial support also was used for more than 180,000 other awards to members of the nation's more than 94,000 local 4-H Clubs. The clubs are in about 3,100 counties in all 50 states and Puerto Rico.

The national committee, headquartered in Chicago, utilizes the funds to assist the Cooperative Extension Service advance the 4-H program.

Awards Since 1900

"Awards are an integral part of 4-H," Mindrum said, "and have been provided as incentives and recognition for young people since the early 1900s."

Help from 57 business firms now backing 4-H dates back in some cases to the 1920s. The average tenure for all donors is 18 years.

The scholarships, nearly all for $500 each, were awarded Dec. 1-5 during the 42nd National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, attended by more than 1,500 delegates. Their expense-paid trips, considered both educational and cultural, were awarded by more than 30 of these firms.

Funds for programs ranging from bread baking to entomology are channeled through the 4-H committee, incorporated in

Rich Harvest for 4-H'ers

1923 when a handful of business firms provided $3,400 to help the growing club program. In the last 10 years alone, the number of county medals awarded has increased from about 85,000 to nearly 180,000.

"Each donor has an interest in boys and girls, an appreciation of the need for youth development and a feeling that the organization can serve 4-H in a wholesome manner with limited self-gain," Mindrum said.

Diversified Support

Among the business firms supporting 4-H in 1963 are American Forest Products Industries, Inc.; American Oil Foundation; Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway System; California Chemical Company-Ortho Division; Cities Service Oil Co.; Chicago and North Western Railway Co.; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Co.; The Conrad Hilton Hotel; Chicago Board of Trade, and Cudahy Packing Company.

The Expectant Cat

Motherhood comes naturally to cats. You needn't do much to help them, but a few precautions make an expectant cat's job easier.

About a week before kittens are due, Mama cat is likely to search for a suitable place to have her kittens. To simplify her search, take a box, line it with a clean old towel, and place it in a warm, dark, quiet corner of the house.

Next, bring the cat to the box. Place her in it and pet her reassuringly. She may welcome this "maternity ward" — but don't be surprised if she decides that another spot is more to her liking. Cats can be extremely independent about these matters.

The Purina Cat Care Center recommends leaving a cat alone for a few hours after she has given birth. Her box may be a trifle soiled but don't let this bother you, this is normal.

After about three days, however, your efforts to aid in house-cleaning will be welcomed by the new mother — and she'll do her part by washing the kittens and disposing of any mess they make. New kittens should remain in semi-darkness for about 2 weeks because light can hurt their eyes.

For the first week or two, bring your pet's food to the box. Mother cat is busy with her offspring, and your attention will save her trouble and enable her to spend more time bringing up her children.

LOOKING AHEAD

George & Benson
The Rich Americans
Around the turn of the century a socialist oriented author named Thorstein Veblen wrote eloquently—and critically—of the effects of the industrial revolution. Especially, in a book many college students read, The Theory of the Leisure Class, he made American a pecuniary society, a fact to which no economics teacher could object. But one of Veblen's catchwords, "conspicuous consumption," a phrase he used to describe one of the uses of money, has stuck with two or three generations of college trained critics of free enterprise.

Even historian Arnold Toynbee is able to claim that our affluence shunts aside the real American "revolution." We are getting so rich, he says, that we are forgetting our ideals.
Our standard of living is doubtless the envy of the rest of the world, although not many of us are rich in our own relative use of that term. At times we forget our basic idealism, but it is possible that this British historian underestimates our strength in crisis. Too many Americans probably do forget that our abundance comes not from acts of Congress or White House magic.

Whence Our Wealth?
Our affluence has been made possible mostly because of the complex of freedoms granted by our American Constitution, not the least of which is freedom of individual opportunity and enterprise. Economist John K.
Galbraith, now returned to Harvard from White House service, has also focused our attention on the "affluent" society.
Americans have too much money, as his image has it. This view admits that consumers control the nation's economy, but it does not find it good. This view argues that a larger portion of the economy should be funneled to government spending for education, medical care, and public housing.

Because of the fact that our free economy depends on the demands of consumers, goods will not be produced unless people want them. It is the accumulated demand of people that drives our industry to produce. Not only does this pressure get out the goods, it also makes tax revenues possible, providing whatever services that a federal budget of nearly $100 billion provides.

No Limit On Growth
If there is any reason for our not having enough hospitals and schools, it certainly does not lie in the charge that private wealth robs the public treasury.
This is the outmoded view that there is only a given amount of wealth or work. If we can improve our rate of growth, so as to move the whole economy ahead at a faster rate, then the so-called "public sector" will lie entitled to a proportionate share, and even private philanthropy also will be working harder to provide those hospitals and schools.

Such curious critics have developed myths that are a direct affront to the American Way.
These myths add up to an attack on the right to own, as well as on the freedom to determine what constitutes the good life for ourselves and hence the freedom to use our money as we choose. Besides denying individual freedom, from this comes the notion that ownership of goods or money is anti-social.
To foster the idea that to be "rich"—even average-American rich—is bad does the whole world a great disservice.

The Power Of Consumers
We may condemn waste as well as some self-indulgence, but to put our free economy under suspicion is a great mistake. A mass consumption society, placing as it does on freedom, wants everyone to enjoy a similar advantage. It is possible that we may be getting these notions across, gradually, to the people behind the Iron Curtain. Either here or there, the demands of free consumers can produce more wants than can ever be satisfied.

If the Russian people, for example, are able to show greater and greater interest in consumer goods, the world is better and safer. If their system does not provide the goods and services they read about in Sears Roebuck catalog, it may lead them to want a better system.
It will be a happier day when America is known all over the world not as a squanderer of resources, but as a nation where the consumer is king. The world may then come to know that the liberty and freedom we enjoy has made possible the American Way, and that the enterprise system undergirds the whole of it.

We are still going to provide help to those who actually need it and we shall again stress our telephone assistance program, which will enable taxpayers with one or two problems to call us for a quick answer designed to enable them to complete preparation of their returns. Office assistance will be available where required but will naturally entail considerably more of the taxpayer's time.

office assistance is to have all of his 1963 financial records at hand and to have all the necessary facts in mind. And again let me remind taxpayers that it will be much easier to prepare a return or to obtain any help needed early in the filing period, rather than waiting until the late stages of the season when telephone lines are jammed and offices are crowded.
If you have a tax problem, call your local Internal Revenue office. In Baltimore the telephone number is 837-1040. Ask for Tax Information Service.

SYMBOL OF A FALLEN COMMANDER—Pfc Arthur A. Carlson leads Blackjack, a 16-year-old stallion, through Arlington National Cemetery. The black, riderless horse symbolized the lost leader in the funeral procession of the late President Kennedy, and has 10 years of service in similar duties. The sword used to dress the saddle was strapped in its scabbard to the side, while the stirrups and the boots in them were reversed as a sign that a commander had fallen and would ride no more. The Fort Myer, Va., soldier won the admiration of all who witnessed his expert handling of the spirited and sometimes difficult steed. Private Carlson is from Robertsdale, Ala.

March of Dimes Lends a Hand, To Silence Child's Tormentors

When Lori Nelson blew out the candles on her fourth-birthday cake recently, it seemed that every youngster her age in Rosalie, Neb., turned out for her party.

Only a few months before, the remarkably pretty child had been the butt of taunts and giggles from these same children. Lori was born with a rare birthmark—a thick, unsightly covering of hair extending from her right shoulder to mid-forearm. Instead of finding playmates among the other boys and girls, all she ever encountered were finger-pointers and name-callers.

Lori found these gibes, when severely out of infancy and the crib, more than any sensitive child could endure. So did her parents, Marlene and Chester Nelson, an attractive farming couple, who for almost three years searched unsuccessfully for a medical answer to the problem.

Brother Also Heartsick
Also heartsick was David, 6, Lori's brother, who more than once came home with a black eye because he fought all the heartless kids in town who poked fun at his "hairy" sister. "Chester and I were almost out of our minds with this terrible affliction," the mother explained. "Lori, a frightened and confused little girl, withdrew into a shell. The present picture was painful enough, but my husband and I looked with dread into the future when our pretty child, like any young woman, would want to go to dances and have dates and fun and, in time, a husband and family.

"No one gave us any reason for hope. Then I read someplace that the March of Dimes was planning a birth defects center in Omaha. We were waiting at the door when it opened a year and a half ago."

The center, supported by March of Dimes contributions from chapters throughout Nebraska, is at Children's Memorial Hospital and is directed by Dr. Theodore R. Pfundt, chairman of the pediatrics department of Creighton University School of Medicine. It is one of 48 such centers across the nation.

Dr. Pfundt consulted with Dr.

Albert S. Black, a noted Omaha cosmetic surgeon, who is a "team member" of the March of Dimes-supported center and an associate professor of surgery at the University of Nebraska Medical School. He saw no reason for despair.

Lori underwent four surgical procedures by Dr. Black. He removed the hairy surface of the right arm which was then replaced by grafts of skin from her right thigh.

Lori Now Carefree
"Essentially what we did," Dr. Black explains, "was to excise the cause of Lori's fears and torments, and restore a whole little girl to the carefree

One day all on his own Billy started learning how to ride a bike (his older brother's). The straightaway was a breeze, but the first corner cost Billy a badly skinned knee.

His mother felt the doctor ought to take a look at it. She picked up her phone. "Bring him right over," said Doctor Williams.

Problems have a way of disappearing when you lift your phone. After the doctor treated the battle-scarred knee, Billy's mother relaxed. She really was proud of Billy's feat.

Maybe a bike for his birthday? The phone call? Certainly not the major event of the day, but still an important one. It brought peace of mind to a conscientious mother. For emergencies of any size—for pleasure any day—phones are friends.

Constipation In Infants

By John Lester Reichert, M.D.
Chicago Pediatrician

The complaint of constipation in infants seems to mean different things to different parents. To some it means long intervals between baby's bowel movements. To others it means a particular type of stool.

Actually, a baby should be considered to be constipated only when he has hard and dry stools that are passed with difficulty. The number of movements a day is not important, even if it's only one every 24 hours. Some babies with one or two movements a week are not constipated.

The cause of constipation in infants is their diet. It may result from underfeeding or too little roughage. It occurs when solid foods are withheld or strained foods continued too long. In the bottle fed baby it may be due to an unbalanced diet; too high in protein and fat, too low in carbohydrate.

Regulating the diet will correct almost all cases of constipation in the infant. It is just as important in the young child, though at this age, it is complicated by poor bowel training. The parent of a constipated infant or child should seek the advice of the family pediatrician or physician. If the regulation of the diet is indicated, the physician usually will recommend any of a number of corrective procedures and roughly in the following sequence:

1. Increase the quantity of food if it is inadequate. Mild constipation is often the first indication of a grossly inadequate diet.
2. Increase the carbohydrate if the volume of food is adequate or if making it adequate does not correct the constipation. Excessive amounts of carbohydrate, however, may aggravate constipation.
3. Change slowly adsorbed car-

Beer Can Stove
Here's how you can use a beer can as a temporary camp stove. First empty can. (That's the easy part.) Next cut out and remove the top of can. Then using an opener, cut V notches around the side and fold metal triangle upward. Holes left by notches function as air draughts for fire. Now fill bottom of can with sand or dirt and gasoline and light. Pot sits on ring of metal teeth made by notches.
No Glare Gun
If sun glinting off the barrel or receiver of your shotgun or rifle is spoiling game, an inexpensive temporary way to stop it is with strips of black electrician's tape over offending areas.

Do you have a marker bouy in your boat at all times ready to toss over the side and unwind itself? It not, here's two ways to make one. First way is to cut a 3 inch by 5 inch piece of styrofoam and shape into an hourglass. Wind 40 feet of old line around it and bend a sinker on each. Second way: Wrap a plastic bleach bottle the same way so sinker will spin the bottle when she hits the water.

If you want to customize your gun stock . . . but aren't up to snuff in the woodcarving department . . . try using leathercraft tools. SPECIAL WASHINGTON REPORT

Plans To Purify Water Urged By Sen. Muskie

By U.S. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D., Maine)

One hundred years ago, Americans laughed at any suggestion there could ever be a shortage of our country's vast land, forest or mineral resources. Since then, propelled by a population explosion from 30 million to over 180 million American citizens, we have taken steps to insure the preservation of those natural resources.

Today, Americans have come to realize that our water supplies are also limited. While the supply of water is relatively stable, the demand is growing at an incredible rate. By 1980, our supply will not be sufficient to meet the demand. There will be over 250 million Americans using over 600 billion gallons of water every day. Experts estimate that in 1980 the total available supply of fresh water will approximate only $15 billion gallons per day.

EDMUND S. MUSKIE

The answer to our problem lies in the re-use of existing water supplies. The principal solution centers around the construction of effective pollution treatment plants. Some steps have been taken to establish an effective partnership between local, State and Federal governments to attack this problem. A total of $22 billion, including a Federal share of $370 million, has been expended on treatment plant construction since 1956. Unfortunately this effort has met only a small portion of our needs. Estimates are that a combined expenditure of $830 million annually will be required to meet overall needs through 1970.

Pollution of our water supplies is among the most critical domestic problems confronting the United States today. President Kennedy recognizes this. He has urged an all-out attack on pollution as a major national problem. Legislation has been presented in Congress to get to the root of the issue. I have introduced a bill which provides the necessary machinery to expand the present anti-pollution program to a realistic level. Senator Ribicoff of Connecticut has sponsored legislation providing low-cost loans to small businesses for the construction of industrial waste treatment facilities. Other bills introduced by Senators Neuberger of Oregon and Metcalf of Montana would require that all detergents meet certain standards of rapid decomposition, thus eliminating the accumulation of detergent foams in our water faucets and our rivers.

Clean water is everybody's business. The impact of water pollution can be found in every one of the 50 states, in every large city, and in almost every small town. It is a national problem. It is a problem which can only be solved through the full and complete cooperation of Federal, State, and local governments. The initiative must remain in the hands of local governments. State and Federal governments must assist in bearing the financial burden involved in the construction of costly treatment plants. In providing a solution to this problem, Americans can once again demonstrate that a democracy can rise to meet a national problem in a manner consistent with our heritage and yet sufficient to do the job.

The Space Needle, built as the symbol of the 1963 Seattle World's Fair, continues to draw 1600 daily to its restaurant and many thousands more to its observation tower, the AAA Automobile Club of Maryland reported.

WORLD'S FAIR ON TV

The New York World's Fair is scheduled to open its doors to the public for its two-year run on April 22, 1964. One of the integral parts of the Fair, certainly in the eyes of citizens of the "Free State", is the exhibit known as the Maryland Pavilion.

As the days become fewer before the crowds descend on Flushing Meadow in New York City, the subject of many Maryland conversations will doubtless concern themselves with the home state contribution.

At 3:30 p.m. on Sunday, January 12, WJZ-TV will offer its viewers an insight into the type of art to be featured at the Maryland Pavilion. Among the participants in this discussion will be Charles Parkhurst, Director of the Baltimore Museum of Art; Louis E. 30 Years Of Repeal Finds Nation Continuing Trend To Moderation

New York — Thirty years ago this month, the ill-fated "noble experiment"—Prohibition — ended with repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Only a small minority of Americans today still mourn its passing on December 5, 1933.

Shocked by the lawlessness, organized crime and disrespect for law which 13 years of Prohibition had bred, an outraged public voted overwhelmingly to return to social order and moderation.

And a look at the record will show that the public is getting what it voted for.

For example, instead of drying up the country, Prohibition actually touched off a drinking spree — and per capita consumption of distilled spirits was authoritatively estimated at 1.95 gallons for the so-called "dry era," as compared with a 1.61 gallon per capita for 1910. And today, at the height employed by this industry, which annually purchases more than $7.3 billion in materials and services from other industries.

It spends approximately one-quarter of a billion dollars annually for farm produce. It pays wages and salaries of more than $5 billion a year and provides the major portion of commodity revenue for the U.S. Government.

More than one-half million dollars every hour, every day of the week—that's the amount of public revenues contributed to Federal, state and local treasuries by today's alcoholic beverage industry. Since Repeal, the industry has contributed more than $59 billion in Federal taxes — more than enough to have paid all of the Federal government's expenses for 130 years — from 1789 to 1918.

Federal taxes on distilled spirits are currently five times the cost of production, while of national prosperity, the average American consumes 29.3 per cent less — or 1.97 gallons per capita during 1962 — than he did in the "dry" years. For the 15-year period of 1947-1962, the per capita consumption figure is 1.25 gallons.

Even though overall consumption has risen steadily with an expanding adult population enjoying more leisure time and more money to spend, the percentage share of the consumer dollar spent on distilled spirits has declined along with the per capita figure — from 4.34 per cent of the consumer dollar spent for distilled spirits during the Prohibition years, to 1.76 per cent for the 1947-1962 period.

Today, one out of every 52 working Americans is em-

Liners Win Two Contests

Emmitsburg High School rallied in the second half Tuesday evening to defeat the Brunswick Railroaders, 65-57.
 The Liners, trailing 33-30 at halftime, put on an offensive spurt in the final 16 minutes to win their sixth straight scholastic contest.

Led by the trio of Gene Eyer, Harry Harner and Craig Stoops, Emmitsburg outscored the Railroaders, 22-14 in the third period, and 13-10 in the final eight minutes.

Emmitsburg also put on a fine defensive performance. The Liners held Mike Kelley, Brunswick's high scoring center, to one field goal in the first half of play. Craig Stoops led the Liners in rebounds as the senior pulled in 15 stray shots.

The Liners stopped Smithsburg last Friday for the second time this year, by a score of 69-46 at Smithsburg. The Liners placed seven men in the scoring column.

High man for the Liners was Craig Stoops with 18 points. Other players in double figures were Harry Harner and Bob Zimmerman with 13 points each and Gene Eyer who added 12 markers. Stoops also added 17 rebounds to lead the winners.

Farmers Should File For Ag Program Soon

Farmers who have been considering soil- and water-conservation practices to be established on their farms with Agricultural Conservation Program cooperation next spring and summer should file their requests for program assistance as soon as possible, William L. Dudley, Chairman, Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, has suggested. The 1964 ACP was drawn up several months ago, and applications are being accepted at the ASCS County Office.

The Chairman explained that the sooner the application is filed, the easier it will be to obtain approval of the practice and take care of other program details before the work is begun.

Under the 1964 program, cost-share program assistance averages about half the cost of carrying out such conservation practices as establishing and improving vegetative cover of grasses, legumes, or trees for soil protection; installing erosion control structures; and practices for the conservation or more efficient use of water.

In addition, the 1964 program provides for similar cost-share assistance to farmers in developing soil- and water-conservation practices primarily for the benefit of wildlife. These include the establishment of wildlife food plots or habitat and shallow water areas, which provide important wildlife conservation benefits.

The Agricultural Conservation Program has been in continuous operation since 1936, when it was authorized by national legislation to encourage farmers to protect soil, water, and woodland resources on the farms of the Nation by sharing the costs of needed conservation measures.

"ACP program assistance has been singularly effective in introducing conservative practices on privately owned cropland, pasture, or woodland," Mr. Dudley said. "and this applies particularly to practices which provide little or no immediate return."

Ford Sales Set New Record

An all-time record for Ford car and truck sales, capped by December highs, was established during 1963 by Ford Division's Washington sales district, C. W. Ramsay, district manager, reported today.

A total of 55,160 Ford cars were sold in the district, an increase of about 10 per cent over the previous record year of 1962 when sales amounted to 50,288. Truck sales increased by more than 10 per cent with 3,186 units sold last year compared with 7,353 in 1962.

The record - setting year was marked by the highest December sales totals in the history of the district. Car sales of 3,635 and truck sales of 623 units were recorded, compared with 3,457 and 554 trucks sold in December a year ago.

Ford Division's Washington sales district includes the District of Columbia, Maryland, the northern half of Virginia, and parts of southern Pennsylvania and eastern West Virginia.

Alcohol Blamed In Road Fatalities

Eleven persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police.

Five of those killed were drivers; four were passengers; and two were pedestrians.

Alcohol was a contributing factor in six of the deaths; speed in seven; and "driver error" was present in ten of the fatalities.

"In dealing with the highway safety problem, there are many areas which we would like to see strengthened," commented Colonel Carey Jarman, Superintendent of the Maryland State Police. "These areas vary in importance. Some can be accomplished quickly; others take time. This focuses attention on the importance of establishing the highest priorities among the things to be done. Once the highest priority is established there should be an all-out effort to accomplish it, and then go on to the next item of importance."

"In view of the prominent part that alcohol plays in the highway fatality picture, the strengthening of our laws to deal with this facet of the problem is of highest priority."

"It is hoped that such legislation will be passed at the February session of the Legislature. Certainly when we see alcohol as a contributing factor in 40% of highway fatalities, we have a situation which is screaming for attention."

Human Heart Can Be Muscle-Bound

The human heart can be muscle-bound as well as the body but not from overexercised, according to a report from West Virginia University Hospital where, it has been discovered, naturally occurring "muscle bundles" in the heart profoundly affect blood flow. An affected heart is unable to accept and purify all the impure venous blood returning from the body. Surgical removal of these muscle bundles have restored a number of patients, particularly children, to full, active lives.

Jet transportation and dry ice teamed up recently to make possibly the first real snowball ever packed in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. One hundred pounds of Chicago snow, refrigerated by Cardox dry ice, was jetted to the balmy Florida city for use in a downtown business promotion. The engineer overseeing the project was, appropriately, Ralph Frost.

'Hard' detergents, those that don't break down chemically in water, will not be sold in Wisconsin after Dec. 31, 1965. A state law will ban these detergents which have been blamed for foam in surface and ground water making it unfit for human consumption.

Ever vigilant against foreign plant pests is the Agricultural Research Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In 1963 ARS agents stationed at major U. S. airports, seaports and border crossings intercepted damaging insects, nematodes, diseases and other plant pests 31,439 times and found 394,915 lots of prohibited plant materials. . . . An electric razor leaves hair ends ragged and split while a blade razor leaves them smooth, according to a report from the American Medical Association. In general, the report said, with routine shaving, the blade method cuts the hair closer to the skin surface than the electric.

Vast deposits of low-grade uranium and thorium can be tapped instead of extracting scarce and expensive U-235 thanks to fast "breeder reactors" which produce more fuel (plutonium) than they consume and produce power at the same time. Breeding manmade fuels in a power reactor—plutonium and Uranium-233 (from thorium)—promises the vast amount of needed future fuel at a relatively low cost, says Dr. Albert V. Crewe, director of Argonne (Ill.) National Laboratory.

A new drill press shuts itself off when the operator yells, "Ouch!" Purpose of the voice-operated switch is operator safety. It responds to any sharp vocal sound but is unaffected by normal environmental noise.

873,000 a month, according to W. S. King, District Manager for the Social Security Administration in Hagerstown. "This represents an increase in the number of beneficiaries of about 6 per cent over the same month last year," he said.

The social security program was 28 years old last August 14. In reviewing the growth of the program, King noted that at the close of 1940, the first year in which monthly payments were made, only 200,000 people in the nation were receiving payments. In December 1963, over 19 million were on the social security benefit rolls.

Many changes have been made in the program since its rather modest beginning. At first, only workers in commerce and industry were covered. Now, more than 9 out of 10 working Americans are covered by the program. Nine out of every 10 children and their mothers can count on monthly benefits if the family breadwinner dies. Nearly 90 per cent of the people reaching 65 in 1963 were eligible for benefits.

The basic idea of the Social Security Law is a simple one, King said. During working years employees, their employers, and self-employed people pay social security taxes which go into special funds. When earnings stop because the worker has retired, or died, or is disabled, payments are made from the funds to replace part of the earnings the family has lost.

"Many people have a very hazy idea of just what to expect from social security at death, disability, or retirement," he said, "and that's why we encourage folks to come see us and get firsthand information on this program that means so much to so many."

The Hagerstown Social Security Office is located at 59 North Cannon Avenue.

Adams Services Held

Funeral services were held from the Wilson Funeral Home, Emmitsburg followed by a Requiem
