Emmitsburg's hopes of thwarting the erection of a new consolidated public school in Thurmont to accommodate students from this area were jolted this week when the Maryland State Board of Education refused to grant Emmitsburg residents a hearing on the matter. It seems that everywhere our citizens turn for help and assistance to get this matter ironed out in an equitable manner, they are slapped in the face. But the fight isn't over yet folks. There remains possibly one other alternative and that is to go to the courts where a hearing must be granted. This is the only remaining thing to do and from where a final and binding decision will emanate. While following the results of the recent primary election here I had a chance to gander over some registration figures and to my surprise I found out that there were more registered voters in the Emmitsburg District than in Thurmont District. The figures show 1,581 registered here as compared to 1,530 for the Thurmont District... a total of 51 voters in favor of Emmitsburg. Breaking down these figures, party-wise, I found 992 Democrats as compared to 589 Republicans here in Emmitsburg, while Thurmont figures disclosed 593 Democrats as compared to 937 Republicans. This should really be interesting to our three County Commissioners, Irvin Renn, Lawrence Dorsey and Russell Horman. Even though we are a larger voting district and larger in population by several hundred we must suffer the loss of our school to a smaller town... and for what reason might I ask? But then our duly elected officials have chosen to slam the door in our faces and refuse to listen to reason, facts and figures so all we can do is wait until 1966 and vote them OUT.

Shryock, George O. Brown, Susan S. Rice, Marie E. Wivell and Bernard J. Fink. Second row, top: Mary M. Oster, Rebecca Ann Norris, Mary E. May, Gary L. Filler, Sandra J. Leach, Susan L. Hobbs and Rose Mary Lewis. Third row from top: William T. Merritt, Elizabeth Knox, Theresa D. Kelly, Mary M. O'Brien, Patricia A. Caput, Jeannette M. Chrismer and George N. Blanchard. Bottom row: William E. Sanders, Theresa A. Long, Patricia E. Ott, Frances D. Randolph, Bernard W. Knox, Kathleen M. Tannin, Joan C. Williams and Douglas S. Tschiffley.

GROTTO DRAWS 50,000 PILGRIMS HERE IN YEAR

Rev. Hugh J. Phillips, Director of the National Shrine Grotto at Mount Saint Mary's College, will address the Holy Name Society at New Cumberland, Pa., on June 14. Father Phillips will speak on the growth of the Grotto and the Layman's Retreat Movement in the Harrisburg Diocese.

The National Shrine Grotto, which is the oldest replica of the world famous Lourdes Shrine in the United States, attracted over 50,000 pilgrims during the past year. Many organized pilgrimages have been scheduled since the beginning of the 1964 spring season.

The restoration of the Grotto and its designation as a National Shrine was undertaken under the late Pope John XXIII at the encouragement of the present Secretary of State for the Vatican, Amleto Cardinal Cicognani. His Eminence, who was Apostolic Delegate to this country for many years, was a frequent visitor to the Shrine.

Thus far there have been 44 pilgrimages to the Grotto. For further information contact the Director of the National Shrine Grotto, Emmitsburg, Md. 21727.

SCHOOL BOARD DENIES HEARING TO DELEGATION

The Maryland State Board of Education Tuesday voted unanimously to deny a hearing to a group of Emmitsburg residents challenging a Frederick County Board of Education decision to build a high school at Thurmont to serve the north county area.

The Emmitsburg group urged instead that the school be erected about midway between Emmitsburg and Thurmont.

Richard Schifter of Bethesda, acting president of the state board, said he was "generally in favor of granting hearings."

"But after reading all the material, I've come to the conclusion that there's nothing there," he said. "When it's purely a matter of one side or another, I don't think we ought to get involved."

Dr. James A. Sensenbaugh, former superintendent of Frederick County schools and newly appointed state school superintendent, sat in on the discussion but did not participate. His abstention was noted in the official minutes of the meeting.

The state board similarly refused to enter the controversy over the Carroll County education board's decision on the location of a new high school to serve the Mt. Airy and Sykesville areas.

PROMOTED

Mr. John E. Baumgardner, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Baumgardner, R2, Emmitsburg, has recently been promoted to Sales Manager of the Philadelphia Branch of the Upjohn Drug Company. Mr. Baumgardner is a graduate of the Emmitsburg High School and the University of Md. This is one in a series of promotions Mr. Baumgardner has received since joining the Upjohn Company in 1950.

Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wivell were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoff and family, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wivell and daughter, and Miss Betty Moser.

We're all equal but different, and different but equal.

The Town of Emmitsburg should go all out in an effort to have Governor Tawes look into the present situation of the Route 15 by-pass which is disturbing properties right in the corporation limits of the community. It seems incredible that the by-pass, which is intended to take traffic away from the Town, should come right into the Town limits. This section some day, could be the heart of Emmitsburg but it is being destroyed by the ruthless and senseless decision of the State Roads Commission to locate the new road where it is scheduled to go. With several hundred acres of ground in the area with nary a house on it, the Commission has chosen to come right into the Corporation limits with the road and destroy the only housing development in existence here. There appears no sane reason for the action of the Commission in damaging the value of the nice houses in that area and once again I say that the Town of Emmitsburg should look into the matter immediately. Undoubtedly the Governor is unaware of the doings and machinations of the vast Commission and its plans and it is about time he is fully informed of what is transpiring, both in Emmitsburg and the State.

100 YEARS AGO

LINCOLN RENOMINATED AS FIGHTING CONTINUES

By Lon K. Savage

"I do not allow myself to suppose that either the Convention or the League have concluded that I am either the greatest or the best man in America, but rather they have concluded it is not best to swap horses while crossing the river."

So said Abraham Lincoln—in a statement that has since become famous and somewhat misquoted—after his nomination 100 years ago this week for a second term as President of the United States.

Lincoln's re-nomination, made June 7, 1863, at the Republican national convention in Baltimore, came at a time when the Civil War was raging on three fronts. In fact, he had hardly returned to Washington when word came of a Federal disaster in Mississippi inflicted by Nathan Bedford Forrest, of a radical change in the plans of General Ulysses S. Grant in Virginia and of slow but continuing success by General William Tecumseh Sherman in Georgia.

The Convention
Lincoln's re-nomination was short and unanimous, although it had appeared earlier there might be fireworks. Back in March, there had been considerable rumbling of new Republican contenders for the nomination, notably Salmon P. Chase, the Treasury secretary, and Grant, but that had died down.

On the first ballot, all the voter but the 22 from Missouri were cast for Lincoln, and before the count was announced, the Missourians switched (from Grant) to Lincoln. Then, in a change that would prove vital, the convention nominated Andrew Johnson of Tennessee for vice president, replacing Hannibal Hamlin of Maine.

On the very day that he was receiving Missouri's votes for the presidential nomination, Grant was revamping his plans in his drive for Richmond against the army of Robert E. Lee.

Staggered by the loss of more than 50,000 soldiers in a month-long campaign against Lee, Grant decided to sloop east and south of Richmond. "I will move the army", he wrote in a dispatch to Washington, "to the south side of the James River . . . Once on the south side . . . I can cut all sources of supply to the enemy except what is furnished by the canal."

Simultaneously, Grant sent his cavalry commander, Phil Sheridan, off to the west of the city to wreck the railroads leading into Richmond. Sheridan, in another one of his bloody raids amongst the Confederates, succeeded to a large degree in doing this.

In Georgia
In Georgia, meanwhile, Sherman still was edging toward Atlanta, taking mountain by mountain, as his opponent, General Joseph E. Johnston, successively entrenched his army, fought a while, then fell back to entrench again. It was very slow progress for the Federals, but it was progress.

Sherman was concerned about that old nemesis of the Federals in the deep South, Forrest, who was operating in northeastern Mississippi, and he had ordered out a detachment to defeat Forrest. The Federals—under General Samuel D. Sturgis—therefore moved out from Memphis into Mississippi and soon found their quarry at Brice's Crossroads, 25 miles south of Ripley.

They lived to regret it. In a day-long battle on June 10, Forrest's foot cavalry ripped through Sturgis' lines and made a wreck of the Federals, killing many and driving off the rest in complete humiliation and despair.

Next week: Heavy fighting on all fronts.

The need for accurate time-of-travel information was illustrated by the recent accident in which several railroad carloads of oil and caustic soda were spilled into the river above Hancock. Existing data based on flow characteristics at several points between Cumberland and Washington, are inadequate for accurate predictions of time of travel. A tracer, such as Rhodamine B, stimulates the behavior of a contaminant and reflects the flow characteristics along the entire reach of river.

Using the results of such studies hydrologists may predict the following:

1. Arrival time of the contaminant.
2. Magnitude of concentration.
3. Average velocity of the water and contaminant.
4. Passage time of contaminant in concentrations above a critical level.

Rhodamine B is a bright red organic dye which is strongly fluorescent. It is sometimes used as a coloring agent in cosmetics. There will be no danger to public water supplies, fish, or plants. Injection points have been selected at Cumberland, Paw Paw, Hancock, Shepherdstown, and Point of Rocks. The river below these points will be quite red at first. The dye gradually becomes invisible as it disperses downstream. A sensitive instrument called a fluorometer will be used to detect the dye in concentrations as low as one part dye in ten billion parts water. The maximum concentrations which reach Paw Paw, Hancock, Shepherdstown, Point of Rocks and Washington, respectively, are expected to be between four and ten parts per billion, well below the minimum concentrations which can be seen or tasted.

If the medium-flow study is successful, similar low-flow study may be made early next fall. The results of the two studies may then be inter-polated to obtain time-of-travel information for a wide range of river discharges.

Fishermen Are Smart!

It seems there is no end to the ingenuity of fishermen as they devise ways to outsmart a fish. And this applies whether it's a live bait man down on the crick, or a researcher at Heddon.

For instance, there's the man who caught more crappies by putting his sinker inside of his minnow, instead of on the line where it hampers the minnow's action. How? Well, this country boy just put the BB shot inside the minnow's mouth, and hooked it thru both lips to seal in the BB. The BB is too big for the minnow to swallow, and it's just heavy enough to slow the minnow down so it looks enticing to a crappie which likes an easy meal.

Then, there's the man who trims the tail fin off his shiner minnows so they have to work harder to stay upright. Being livelier, they attract bigger bass which like a friskier meal.

And finally, take Heddon's researchers . . . always seeking a new way to induce a game fish to strike an artificial lure—like a vibrating body, pulsating spinner, flashing finish, or contrasty color.

"Maybe this kind of thinking is why some fishermen, or some lures catch more fish than others," commented Edwin M. Barry, Chief of Fish Mgt., Md. Dept. of Games & Inland Fish. At least it proves one point . . . thinking helps, whether you're a fish or fisherman!

Laurel Raceway Opens Monday

That June is "bustin' out all over" is a proud, plump fact around Laurel Raceway where the stage is set for the 17th annual trotting and pacing meet opening Monday, June 15, for 32 nights through July 21.

It promises to be the best meet in the pioneer Maryland track's history, the array of on-and-off-turf attractions being real hum-dingers from the word "go".

Post time nightly will be 8:30 o'clock, and of course there'll be that ever-popular Twin Double to further whet the appetite of fans.

First and foremost in the stream of racing classics which will hold sway during the season are the time-honored Reading Futurities, inaugurated in Pennsylvania in 1926. President Dick Hutchison, Jr., used every means to encourage stronger-than-ever participation in the old Dutch Fair races, and from all indications his efforts will be well rewarded.

No less than 117 two-year-olds and a total of 62 three-year-olds were kept in nomination. These include three national pacing champs of 1963 and five Reading winners of last year.

The season's champions whose names appear on the eligibility roster are Vicar Hanover, Poplar Wick and Sand Tart. Vicar Hanover, sensational Torpid colt under the tutelage of Billy Haughton, was fastest in his class not only in the nation but in the world. The powerful colt inked an amazing 2:00.3 at Delaware, Ohio, an all-time record for pacing colts on a half-mile track.

Sand Tart, Tar Heel filly from the Del Miller string, was 1963's fastest two-year-old distaffer on a half-miler in 2:03.1, while Del Insko's Popular Wick, a Gene Abbe daughter, took national mile-track honors in her class in a glittering 1:59.3.

Last year's juvenile Reading winners due back for a crack at the three-year-old money are Check Me, Lou's Star, Smart Rodney, Duane's Dream and Special Hanover.

Orioles Prepare For Big Homestand

One of the biggest homestands of the season will begin Monday when the Orioles return home to face the White Sox in the opener of their 12-game homestand.

The Orioles first night back will be the fourth Annual Shrine Night, which has taken its place as one of the most colorful attractions on the Orioles schedule.

The following night, Tuesday, June 16, marks the introduction of a new promotion on the Oriole schedule — Brooklyn-Curtis Bay Night.

Two of the most successful "nights" of the season will be held Thursday and Friday, June 18 and 19 when the Bethlehem Steel Co. and the Westinghouse Corporation stage their annual "nights."

After the Red Sox complete their four game series, the American League Champion New York Yankees will be coming to Memorial Stadium to open a three-game set with the Orioles. Dates for the series, all night games, are June 23, 24 and 25.

Have you ever seen 7,000 grown men cry? You'd think success would make them happy, but ever since Mustang came out, seven thousand Ford Dealers all over the country have been weeping and wringing their hands. They can't get as many Mustangs as they would like. All this would upset us, too, except it's happened to us before. You see, this was the hottest sales year in Ford Division history even before Mustang came out. At the beginning of the model-year, dealers couldn't get enough of our big, hot Super Torque Ford Hardtops (sales up 54%)... or luxurious Thunderbirds (sales up 68%). Falcon sales are almost as big as Chevy II and Valiant combined. Fairlane continues to be a leader in its field. So, even though some people would like us to put all our plants to work on Mustang, we can't let down our hundreds of thousands of Ford, Thunderbird, Falcon and Fairlane lovers. Why don't you come see what all the shouting's about? Ask your Ford Dealer for a test drive. (You might even get him to smile.)

Fishing violations during April outnumbered all other kinds combined in an arrest report released recently by the Department of Game & Inland Fish.

LOOKING AHEAD
by GEORGE S. BENSON President—Hagerstown College Hagerstown, Md.

The Marxist Myth
Until recently, wide credibility was given to reports of adequate growth rates in Soviet industry and agriculture. Even if production was not always up to expectations of the various 5-year plans, certainly investment rates showed growth that was phenomenal. This was the general treatment, to give them the benefit of the doubt. Some of our economists were perhaps not observant enough to discover that growth rates do not equal performance. Undependable Soviet information also obscured the truth, but now the full story is beginning to come out. The Soviet fable is becoming quite transparent.

Even Radio Free Europe and such interested Western observers-at-first-hand as the U. S.

Secretary of Agriculture have provided glowing reports of growth rates in recent years.
Even Mr. Freeman thought that Russian agriculture should be leading most of the world. But the facts are now revealed as otherwise. Even Mr. Khrushchev himself has admitted, as if the wheat sales were not sufficient evidence, that Soviet agriculture has failed to provide the food required by the Russian people. All the while, various propagandists and virtu-osus have been praising the viciousness of central planning. Their faces are getting red, an appropriate color.

Expert Testimony
The U. S. News & World Report has recently, in a copyrighted interview with an acknowledged expert (no amateur apologist for socialism), brought out the facts that Soviet production has yet to approach half that of the U. S. despite all the claims to the contrary. The periodical interviewed Professor G. Warran Nutter, head of the economics department at the University of Virginia, who has been exposing the myth of Soviet power for many years. Some of Professor Nutter's information, the magazine says, is just now being attested by the CIA.

He estimates that industrial production in Soviet Russia is now only about 30 per cent of ours.

Even in 1950, he says, per capita food production in Russia was below what it was when the Communists took over in 1918. Socialized agriculture was doing no better in the postwar period than socialized industry.
By now, the closed society, the walled-in, modern serfdom, has gotten itself into the dilemma of requiring change. It has come up against the realities, but the tyranny will not let go.
The rulers cannot change the system without sacrificing themselves. That would be too much revolution.

A Big Challenge
What will Russia do? Shall she enter another reactionary period with renewed Stalinist terror, stir up trouble outside so as to raid and despoil some neighbor, or attempt reforms that would make changes possible without bloodshed? Of course, the free world would like to encourage the latter.
Whether it can be done represents one of the biggest challenges of this century. So far, Mr. Khrushchev seems to prefer reform, if he can stay in office. In this, he does not find full agreement with the Chinese Communists.

If the U. S. should decide to stand by and see the Soviet Union through some of its crises, whether a loan is required or not, some concessions should be demanded. Already Mr.
Khrushchev has been so busy that he has forgotten to create any tension over Berlin for some months. He also could do the same with regard to Cuba and South America, even revise Communist aims in other parts of the world. The whole imperialist apparatus should go.
The appeasers will no doubt be on hand, however, to bail him out without making any demands whatever.

What Changes Ahead?
There may not be any way for the leopard to change his spots. It has mostly been the same tyrannical governments.
The dilemma is that the Russians find themselves in need of more change than they have been prepared for or can reasonably undertake. All this is part of the Cold War, or should be, and need not require a new period of international buddy-hood with Marxism. It does require faith in American principles, a foreign policy that is firm toward Communism everywhere, and plenty of courage. Now that the Russian people are on the glimmering edge of truth, we must do nothing to help their leaders deceive them further.

The present temper of the East European satellites offers much hope. Some are reported thoroughly fed up with Communism, despite the most thorough efforts of Moscow to Sovietize them. People in these countries, too, will be better off in the long run if the U. S. adopts a policy of strength.

urge them to continue playing classical music on their phonographs, radios or home instruments while their infants are in the nursery. Make the first sounds your baby can distinguish musical sounds. A little later, as he grows bigger, play rhythm games with him—even the traditional Pat-a-Cake can develop his feeling for musical rhythms. Sing to him, play to him, and encourage his own tiny attempts to sing or to exercise the family piano.

All kinds of homemade instruments can be improvised for the toddler's delight and instruction.
If mother can stand it, pots and pans make marvelous practice drums. Incidentally, if the mother is a pianist herself, there is definitely no reason why she should not help her young child explore the keyboard.

Giving a youngster his own phonograph records is another excellent psychological maneuver to foster his interest in good music.
When my son was four, I started presenting him with his own recordings of Mozart, Bach, Beethoven and the other great composers. The records were worn-out specimens from my library but my son coveted them and developed a lasting appreciation of music that was once considered "unappealing" to the young.

If children are accustomed to good music, they can also appreciate concerts as a surprisingly early age. Perhaps you live near a large city with a symphony that schedules youth concerts. Also, take advantage of the recitals by touring soloists and ensembles.

With God all things are possible.—(Matt. 19:26).

There is within all of us a Spirit that will, if we call upon it, enable us to accomplish the seemingly impossible; to make changes, to walk a new and better pathway of life.

NO. 20,652 EQUITY IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR FREDER-ICK COUNTY, MARYLAND
JANE R. HOOD
VS.
DONALD WAYNE HOOD

The object of this Bill is to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the Complainant, Jane R. Hood, from the Defendant, Donald Wayne Hood.
The Bill states in substance that the parties were married on August 16, 1963, by Reverend W. W.
Weaver, a regularly Ordained Minister of the Gospel; that the Complainant is a resident of the State of Maryland, having resided in Frederick County for more than one year last past; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, believed to be residing at 1876 Buckingham Road, Apartment #8, Los Angeles 19, California; that one child was born as a result of the marriage, being David Moxley Hood, aged four months, who is in the care and custody of the Complainant, and whose care and custody she seeks; that the Defendant has committed the crime of adultery with women who are unknown to the Complainant at this time and that the Complainant has not condoned said adultery in any way, nor has she cohabited with the Defendant since discovering the same. The Bill prays that the Complainant be divorced A VINCULO MATRI-MONII from the Defendant, that the legal care and custody of the said infant child be awarded to the Complainant, and for general relief.

It is thereupon this 22nd day of May, 1964, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, sitting as a Court of Equity, ORDERED that the Complainant give notice to the said non-resident Defendant of the objects and substance of this Bill by causing a copy of the same to be published in some newspaper published in Frederick County, once a week for four successive weeks prior to the 27th day of June, 1964, commanding him to be and appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor, on or before the 28th day of July, 1964, and show cause, if any he has, why a Decree should not be passed as prayed.

TODAY'S Meditation

from
The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

© THE UPPER ROOM, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Read Luke 9:18-25.

Now it happened that as he was praying alone the disciples were with him. (Luke 9:18. RSV.)

The Bible reading and text for today tell of an occasion when Jesus was at prayer. It may be that He became so absorbed in prayer that He forgot His disciples were near. Perhaps they so little understood His feelings that He seemed to them to be alone among them.

No matter how "lost in the crowd" we may feel, no matter how our best friends sometimes fail to understand us, we can know God is near us if we pray.
Indeed, He will never seem nearer than when we are in the midst of our enemies—if we pray.

Whether we pray at home, at work, in church privately before the service, or with a group, we are always assured that God is ready to listen—and to speak to us.

Prayer

May we, O Lord, even when our closest friends seem far away, find ourselves near to Thee in prayer. May we learn more and more to hear Thee speak and then to do Thy will. In the name of our Lord and Master, Thy Son, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven... Amen."
Thought For The Day
God is ever ready to hear us. It is for us to speak to Him—and to listen.

brarian (Pennsylvania)

Your Child And Music
By Max Aronoff, Director
The New School Of Music Philadelphia, Pa.

Preparing your child to love music is one of your most important responsibilities as a parent. Every child is musical; the vital question is whether you as a parent are willing to take the trouble to train his ear, develop his sense of rhythm, and, above all, accustom him to beautiful musical sounds.

I see scores of young children in our preparatory courses each year. The amazing difference is quite evident between a youngster who is growing up in a musical environment and the one who comes from a home where music is never performed and rarely heard. Every exposure to classical music is extremely important, more important than parents generally recognize.

When new parents come to members of our faculty for advice, we

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Long-Distance Transmission of Electrical Power

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 11, 1964—In the early 'fifties, in the flush of the "atomic age", and with some evidence of limited reserves of fossil fuels to meet an expanding demand for energy, it was logical to suggest that nuclear power would be called on to fill the deficiency. Bernard McGarva, of Babson's Canadian Reports, disagrees; let me give you his reasoning.

Need Of More Power

Engineering analysis had indicated that if, under this rising demand, prices for fossil fuels followed their projected rising pattern, the cost of thermal power would increase to over 6 mills per kw-hr.

Only, then, if costs for nuclear power could be lowered to that level would it become competitive. Further factors militating against nuclear power have been engineering developments that increased the efficiency of the conventional methods of electric generation. By design improvements, plus vast increasing the size of individual generating units so as to obtain efficiencies of scale, thermal power can still be generated at an appreciably lower cost than nuclear.

Better Location Of Plants

This differential should be maintained, or even increased, by the current trend toward construction of super-large generating plants located at the pit head of coal mines or under developed large water falls. Similar benefits are likely to derive from recent developments in the field of extra-high-voltage transmission equipment. This, by reducing power losses, would enable electricity to be transmitted economically over much greater distances.

In contrast to the previous Canadian maximum of around 330,000 volts, power from the Manicouagan development now under way—but not completed—will be transmitted to Montreal at 500,000 volts, over equipment of Canadian design on the Hamilton River Falls in Labrador. (Lines in Russia are said to be currently operating at this voltage.)

The Hamilton River

These techniques would permit the six million horsepower from the Hamilton River to be transmitted to New York City. (Note that Consolidated Edison made engineering analysis of the cost of purchasing power from Labrador against that from nuclear installations relatively near N.Y.C.; cost factors favored import of the Canadian power.)

There are a number of possible river developments of large size in the Canadian north that could, via extra-high-voltage, supply power to Chicago, New York, and Richmond. However, nuclear power would appear more practicable for Florida than attempting to bring anything from Labrador or the north on wires. Hence Florida should give careful attention to all nuclear developments, however slowly they may occur.

New Developments

One final word: The time may be coming when wires will not be needed to send these 500,000 or more volts from Labrador to New York, or Chicago, or other points. This may come about through wireless or through the development of lasers or other experimental processes which could make the use of such high-voltage wires wholly or partly unnecessary. Progress here should be carefully watched.

E. H. V. transmission techniques also strengthen the economic advantages of large-size mine-mouth thermal plants over the extensive coal reserves in the depressed Appalachia area.

Word About Uranium

Dealing now specifically with the Canadian scene, let me point out that uranium production in Canada is presently only a fraction of that experienced in 1960-61, as a result of termination of government contracts and producers operating under the government-inspired stretchout program. It is said that only Rio Algom and Stanrock will be operating after July 1st of this year.

Consensus of the experts is, however, that there will be sufficient demand for uranium for peaceful purposes by the mid-1970's to allow mining at a profit. In fact, one French company has been in Canada investigating the possibility of purchasing an interest in a concern with large reserves of uranium, in order to assure itself of sufficient supplies in the years to come.

Oriole Personalities

When his baseball playing days are over, which he hopes will not be for quite a few years, Baltimore Oriole outfielder Jack Brandt would like to become a golf pro.

JACK BRANDT

Brandt, whose coverage of centerfield and timely hitting have been important factors in the Orioles' excellent start this season, enjoys swinging a golf club as much as swinging a baseball bat. Although his golf playing time is tightly restricted during the baseball season, he normally shoots a scratch handicap game.

With ability to play the game this well, it seems logical that Jack's desires to eventually become a golf pro are well founded.

"Sure, I would like to be a golf pro after I'm through with baseball. I'm not talking about becoming a tournament pro, but to work as a pro with a club," Brandt noted. "You don't have to be a great golfer to be a club pro," he pointed out. "All it takes is to be able to shoot par golf, get along with people and to give lessons. That's what most of the club pros do—give lessons."

Brandt the professional baseball player sincerely believes he would have no trouble becoming Brandt the professional golfer. As with most excellent golfers, he spent a considerable part of his adolescent life on the courses around his Omaha, Nebr., home.

"Every summer from the time I was 10 until I was 18 I worked around golf courses," he said. "I caddied, took care of the greens and worked in the pro shop. Heck, I learned everything there was to know about golf equipment."

To Jack, golf means more than just a form of exercise and recreation. He puts as much into the game as any of the touring professionals, several of whom he counts among his closest friends.

One of his best friends among the pro golfers' fraternity is Bob Rosburg, who has been a consistent winner on the tournament trail over the past few years. The Brandt-Rosburg friendship was formed a number of years ago when Jack was playing for the San Francisco Giants and living in the same Bay area neighborhood as Rosburg.

It was through Rosburg, serving as an official of the Professional Golfers' Association, that Jack was invited the past two years to play in Bing Crosby's pro-am tournament at Monterey, Calif. The first time Brandt and his partner finished far, far down the list. This past year he and his partner placed "about thirtieth," according to Jack.

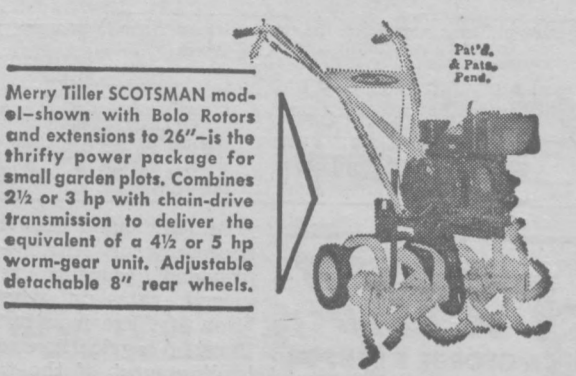

With baseball now taking most of his time, Brandt rarely gets a chance to pursue his avocation. He was asked what policy the ball club — more precisely, Manager Hank Bauer—has about mixing baseball and golf. "He doesn't want us to play on days we have ball games, but it's all right to play when we have open dates," Brandt replied.

As soon as the baseball season ends, and the weather remains nice, Jack is an almost daily visitor to courses in and around Baltimore.

There lies another reason for Jack leaning toward a golfing career when he plays his last baseball game. Many professional athletes have outside interests to which they can turn when their playing days end, but not Brandt. "Athletics are the only thing I know. I never went to college and I've never done anything but play ball. Man, if I had to work in an office eight hours a day, it would kill me," he wryly observed.

The women I used to know so well seem to think that I am eager to retire to a plantation where we will grow old together, and die amid the scent of sweet peas.
