A poignant warning was issued this week by the Town Council denouncing those individuals who persist in wasting precious water commodities by excessive sprinkling of lawns and gardens. Many weeks ago the Council asked the cooperation of the citizens in conserving our water supplies but apparently the warning fell on deaf ears. A number of citizens is known to have continued this practice in defiance of orders and requests. Several have been confronted with violations but still the practice goes on. A careful watch has been established and those who are nabbed in the act of sprinkling during the day or night at unsanctioned times will have their water turned off by the Town. Light sprinkling is permitted only between the hours of seven and nine o'clock in the evening. So remember, folks, don't say you weren't warned. You know this drought could continue on through the winter so the time to conserve is right now!

Apparently the new School Superintendent, with the aid of our County Commissioners, is dedicated to spending this county into insolvency and is following an almost identical pattern of his predecessor, Dr. Sensenbaugh. His projection for the next five years will cost us another seven million dollars for new schools alone, and not a single dollar earmarked for dear old Emmitsburg. Among the projected projects will be a consolidated school for the Burkittsville - Jefferson area, built right smack between the two towns. Not so for Emmitsburg. He intends to build the new school in Thurmont, hell or high water and opinions bedamned! Certainly the new Super doesn't believe in the Dale Carnegie theory of winning friends and influencing people and regardless of what amount of tax money Emmitsburg pays to the County it will receive nothing for it. But that's the way it has got to be I guess... until 1966 when we get a chance to throw the bums out of office!

We note with deep regret the passing along this week of Prof. McCullough, Mount math instructor and trial magistrate. The "Judge" as he was familiarly dubbed, was a familiar figure around these parts and taught at the Mount for over 40 years. Always interested in the civic welfare of the community he took a deep pride in guiding the Little League as its president for the past decade and was well-known for his many acts of charity. Just as he gave many a student a "break", he tempered justice in his courtroom with mercy, many times. His passing represents a distinct loss to this community.

Friends are wondering just how long "Bill" Chase will stick to his recently adopted vanilla ice cream diet.

Fire Co. Feast August 20

President John S. Hollinger presided over the regular monthly meeting of the Vigilant Hose Co. held Tuesday evening in the Fire Hall. Chief Sterling H. White reported four fires handled since the last meeting.

7 Millions For Schools Planned

The second phase of the school construction program in Frederick County, extending to 1970, will cost approximately $7,050,000, School Superintendent Dr. John L. Carnochan said this week.

The first priority is the erection of the consolidated high school for Thurmont. A site has been selected in Thurmont.

This school, whose location is still disputed by officials and civic club leaders in Emmitsburg, will provide room for all of the students in grades nine through 12 residing in the Thurmont District and for all Emmitsburg District residents in grades 10 through 12, Dr. Carnochan said.

An elementary school addition in Urbana is the second priority in the program, Dr. Carnochan said.

The long-disputed consolidated elementary school for the Burkittsville and Jefferson districts is third on the list. Calling the physical facilities at the present Burkittsville and Jefferson schools "among the worst in the county" he said the new consolidated school would be located between the two communities by September 1, 1966.

The fourth priority is a renovation at the Frederick High School, to be completed by school opening in 1966, as soon as the use of the new Thomas Johnson High School ends the present overcrowded conditions at Frederick High.

Fifth is the renovation of the old Elm Street School which will be converted into an elementary school as soon as the Thomas Johnson High School opens.

The sixth priority is the erection of a new elementary school in the Old Braddock area on Alt. U. S. 40 for the elementary students of the Shookstown Road, Feagaville, Braddock Heights and Linden Hills sections.

This 16 classroom, 480-pupil school will provide relief for the Middletown, Elm Street and Parkway elementaries.

Seventh priority will be an addition to the present Woodsboro Elementary School, increasing the facilities there by two classrooms and a library by September 1, 1967.

The eighth priority is the addition of a library to the Yellow Springs Elementary School, freeing the present library room for use as an extra classroom by Sept. 1, 1967.

The ninth priority is the construction of an entirely new 16-room elementary school for the Monocacy Village area to reduce overcrowding at the North Frederick and the East Frederick elementary schools and at the Walkersville Elementary School.

Tenth priority is a central supply office and warehouse for the school system, including underground gasoline storage tanks to improve the efficiency of receiving, storing and distributing school supplies, to be completed as soon as possible.

Next-to-last on the list is the creation of the separate full-time Frederick Community College on a campus location already chosen.

It is planned to use the North Market Street School, which will cease to be an elementary school when the Thomas Johnson High School is completed, as a temporary location for the junior college, transferring the Community College to its permanent site no later than 1970, with all college facilities erected by that time.

The 12th and final item in the School Superintendent's list is the addition of an auditorium to the Walkersville High School.

Some of these new school facilities can be financed from the sale of old and now unused school buildings and some will be paid for from funds supplied under the National Defense Act, but most must come from the county and state school funds or school bond issues, Dr. Carnochan told the Frederick County Commissioners.

Conewago Council Makes Pilgrimage To Seton Tomb

Approximately 150 members of the Conewago Deanery Council of Catholic Women, accompanied by their families, participated in the annual pilgrimage in honor of Mother Seton on Sunday at St. Joseph College, Emmitsburg.

The group gathered at 2 o'clock, traveling by private car from the four corners of the deanery. They proceeded first to the Stone House where Mother Seton set up residence when she came to Emmitsburg. They next visited the college chapel and prayed for the canonization of Mother Seton, before visiting the White House, where Mother Seton established the first school. A visit to the cemetery where other members of the Seton family are buried concluded this portion of the pilgrimage. While walking from one building to another the group was led in the recitation of the rosary by one of the Sisters from the college. Several of the nuns joined the pilgrimage and told about the early life of Mother Seton.

The caravan then went to the national Shrine Grotto of Lourdes at Mt. St. Mary's College, where Mother Seton and her nuns and students attended Mass and taught and learned religion. Here the Rev. Hugh Phillips, director of the shrine, spoke to the group on the early history of Mt. St. Mary's and then offered benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The pilgrims joined in the singing of the benediction hymns and again offered prayers for the canonization of Mother Seton. The cause for canonization has been a spiritual project of the Conewago Deanery for the last 20 years.

R. J. McCULLOUGH, PROF. - JUDGE, DIES SUDDENLY

Richard J. McCullough, 68, Associate Professor of Mathematics and chairman of the Department of Mathematics at Mount Saint Mary's College, died Saturday evening in Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, where he had been a patient for two weeks.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Lodato, New Orleans, La.; one sister, Mrs. Cecilia Dougherty, Mt. Carmel, Pa.; two grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held from the Wilson Funeral Home, Emmitsburg, at 10 a.m. Tuesday, with a solemn Mass of Requiem in the Chapel of the Immaculate Conception at Mount Saint Mary's College at 10:30. Burial was made in St. Anthony's Cemetery near the college.

Rev. Louis Dougherty, a nephew of the deceased, was the celebrant. Rev. John J. Conway and Rev. James F. Kelly, of the college faculty, acted as deacon and sub-deacon, respectively of the Mass. Rev. Carl J. Fives, dean of the college, delivered the sermon.

Several monsignori and priests were seated in the sanctuary, and a delegation from the Maryland State Police and the Emmitsburg Police Department also attended. McCullough had been trial magistrate of the Emmitsburg District for several years.

In his eulogy of Professor McCullough, Rev. Fr. Fives paid tribute to his 43 years of service in Catholic education, of which 40 years were spent at Mount Saint Mary's College. He praised McCullough as a man devoted to his family, his church and his Alma Mater, as one who never was too busy to give of his time to community activities even outside his family interests. He also mentioned the numerous acts of charity performed by McCullough during his lifetime and praised him for the exemplary life he led.

Active pallbearers, all Fourth Degree members of the Knights of Columbus, Brute Council, were Paul A. Keepers, Quinn F. Topper, Guy A. Baker, Sr., Raymond R. Lauer, Robert A. Seidel and Joseph M. Haley. Lay members of the faculty of Mount Saint Mary's College served as honorary pallbearers.

The deceased was born in Carlisle, Pa., son of the late James and Eleanor Parker McCullough. He attended Mount Saint Mary's College, majoring in mathematics, and received his bachelor of arts degree in 1919. In 1920-1921 he did graduate work at the University of Pittsburgh and also studied at Penn State University and Johns Hopkins University. He joined the faculty of Duquesne University High School in 1921, where he taught mathematics until 1924. In 1923 he received his master of arts degree from Duquesne University.

He returned to Mount Saint Mary's in 1924 to teach mathematics, first in the Prep School, and then, in 1936, in the college, where he continued in the Mathematics Department until his death. A member of the faculty of Mount Saint Mary's for forty years, he had the distinction of being dean of the lay faculty.

Professor McCullough was a charter member of the Mount Saint Mary's College Council 1965 of the Knights of Columbus and was a member of the Brute Council, K. of C., Emmitsburg, and Bishop McNamara Assembly, 4th Degree K. of C., Frederick. He was a former moderator of the Shamrock Club at the college, a member of the American Mathematical Society, past commander of Francis X. Elder Post 121, American Legion, Emmitsburg, and a member of the Forty-and-Eight Organization, and for the past several years he served as trial magistrate of the Emmitsburg District.

Catholic Women Plan "Day" At St. Joseph's

A day at Saint Joseph College has been arranged by the Maryland Chapter of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae in conjunction with the IFCA's Golden Jubilee Convention which is being held in Washington, D. C. from August 18 to 23. The pilgrimage to the Emmitsburg campus to visit Mother Seton's shrine is planned for Thursday, August 20.

The visitors will be taken on a guided tour of the Stone House, Mother Seton's original home in the valley; the White House, her original school credited with being the birthplace of the parochial school system in America; and the tomb marking Mother Seton's first resting place. At noon, the pilgrims will attend a Pontifical Low Mass celebrated by the Most Reverend Lawrence J. Shehan, D.D., Archbishop of Baltimore, in the campus chapel in which Mother Seton's remains are enshrined over the main altar. Following the Mass, the Jubilee Luncheon will be served in the college dining room in DuBois Hall. Each guest will receive a "touched" relic of Mother Seton as a souvenir of the occasion. Father Joseph I. Dirvin, C.M., author and biographer of Blessed Elizabeth Ann Seton, will be the luncheon speaker. The visitors will return to their convention headquarters in Washington in late afternoon to resume business sessions.

The IFCA was founded 50 years ago by two alumnae of Saint Joseph College, the late Mrs. James J. Sheeran (Clara Douglas) and the late Sister Mary de Paul, O.P. (Clara I. Cogan). The organization had the approval of James Cardinal Gibbons, John Cardinal Farley, William Cardinal O'Connell, and thirty-seven other members of the hierarchy. Founded in New York City in November, 1914, the IFCA was chartered under the laws of the District of Columbia in 1924 with international headquarters at the Catholic University of America. The IFCA, composed of the alumnae associations of Catholic high schools, colleges, and universities, aims to bring the members into communication with each other in support of the ideals of Catholic womanhood and, in united effort, to promote Catholic education, literature, and social service.

ATLANTA BOMBARDED; CIVILIANS ARE KILLED

By Lon K. Savage

It was about breakfast time in Atlanta when the first shell exploded on the morning of August 9, 1864, 100 years ago this week. The people of the city were not too surprised; shells had been falling on the city for weeks, and already civilians had been killed. But there had not been a day like this one.

Outside the city, Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman with his army of 100,000 Federals was tightening his grip on the city and on the Confederate army of Gen. John B. Hood who was defending it.

Hood's artillery answered the Federal fire, and soon the full firepower of both armies was lobbing shells back and forth, as the people of Atlanta suffered tragic losses.

Wallace Reed, young Atlanta writer, described the bombardment as follows, according to A. A. Hoehling in his book, "Last Train From Atlanta," (Thomas Yoseloff, Publisher).

Shells Rain

"Shot and shell rained in every direction," Reed wrote. "Great volumes of sulphurous smoke rolled over the town, trailing down to the ground, and through this stinging gloom the sun glared down like a great red eye peering through a bronze colored cloud. It was on this day of horrors that the destruction of human life was greatest among the citizens."

A Confederate officer was talking to a lady and her little boy when a shell struck, killing the officer and the boy. Another lady was struck and killed by a shell while doing her ironing. A well known city barber was wounded while standing on a street corner, and he died from shock after a leg had been amputated. A young lady was struck and fatally injured while on the way to a shed.

Many families in the city long since had dug bomb proofs in their yards, and they spent much of the day in them. Hoehling wrote of an unconfirmed report that one bombproof, with a family of six and several neighbors inside it, was the target of a direct hit that crashed through the bombproof's roof.

Buildings Fall

Houses and buildings crumbled under the artillery fire. A well known mansion, a button factory, an office building, stores and churches were among the buildings that were wrecked.

The day, Hood wrote later, "was made memorable by the most furious cannonading which the city sustained during the siege."

The war in Atlanta had become total war, and it appeared only a matter of time before the city fell. Outside the city, Sherman edged his army farther and farther around the city, hoping to choke off aid from other areas.

Two days earlier, Sherman had written to army headquarters in Washington: "We keep hammering away all the time, and there is no peace inside or outside of Atlanta . . . One thing certain, whether we get inside Atlanta or not, it will be a used-up community when we are done with it."

Next week: Burning in the Shenandoah Valley.

What We Really Want

How many of the delegates think in terms of what Centerville, Anystate, can do for Washington, rather than the other way around? How many hope to see the winner in the national election espouse a program of doing things for the states? It will be interesting to compare platforms from this point of view, to determine whether we really want a nation of free and sovereign states with communities that believe in doing things, or whether the parties prefer one big government that ramrods everything from Washington.

In other words, it may be our lack of responsibility in the community and state that allows the federal establishment to grow to vast proportions. Obviously, many matters of national concern require a strong national government for national action. But are we not contributing to a broadening of federal interest by failure to act on the local level? When we fail to do what can be done locally and run instead to Washington for help, the state and the nation both lose. A condition of atrophy may well take over.

Topics Of Interest

The governor's conference at Cleveland in June seemed to be more a gathering of national politicians than a meeting of leaders of the several commonwealths. The coming elections were high on the agenda, naturally, but this need not have prevented the governors from dealing with questions of importance to state governments. Judging from the reports of matters discussed, the chief topic (besides how to stop Goldwater) was how to attract more federal money to the states.

Some governors are devoted to states rights and are willing to oppose the trend of federal tax, spend, and control. But, despite wide agreement with the view of former President Eisenhower, who advised them to stem "the continuing drift toward aggregating ever more influence in Washington," the state leaders showed themselves to be wanting more from the federal government, not less. Already, according to Gov. Connally of Texas, more than $10 billion of what the states will spend in the next 12 months will be federal money.

They Ask And Receive

A great many of the governors have no apology for their reach toward the federal treasury. They welcome new spending programs, for poverty or anything else. The money comes from the states, so why not join the game to see how much it is possible to get back. If Texas has done well in aerospace, why shouldn't the mid-western governors push hard for their share of contracts. Gov. Fannin of Arizona wants federal funds to maintain the big highways it helps to build. Gov. Dempsey of Connecticut suggests federal buildings for the old folks. It's easy to find ideas!

But who will take the initiative in getting the country back to the habit of grassroots responsibility and action? Have we gone so far toward centralized power that no town hall is left but Washington? Is there no way to take the initiative away from the federals and learn to take care of ourselves? Can we find ways to support our proper governmental functions thru taxes that are collected from local sources for local needs without having it circulated through Washington? When will Centerville quit demanding slices of the federal pie?

Doctors normally class a premature infant as one whose birth weight is under 5.5 pounds.

OUTDOOR SPORT TIPS

Loose Laces

Walk through briars or other rough brush and you know what happens to boot laces. They untie, over and over again. Stop that quick by tying large bows, then tying the bows. Looping one bow through the other holds laces fast, yet still they untie easily at day's end.

Ouch, That's Hot!

Camp burns can be treated with at least two common substances that doctors suggest. First is tea. Tannic acid in tea soothes blistered skin, is excellent for sunburn. Second is the white of egg. Albumen is the stuff in eggs that dyes and heals. Apply one or the other and let dry. Repeat.

Cluster Eggs

Keeping cluster eggs from washing off hook in fast water is a problem . . . but one that's solved with a ball of red thread. Wrap eggs several times with light thread and eggs will stay put.

Pork Rind Trailer

Often when trolling pork rind, especially from a lure equipped with a treble hook, the fish will strike short. Two ways to fix this. First is buy tail-hook pork-rind. Second, open the eye of another hook and attach it to a shank of one of the treble hooks.

Boot Strap

Some fishermen use shower curtain rings to attach hip boots to their belt. These are non-corrosive, won't stick and freeze as regular boot strap snaps often do.

Hose Scaler

Tips keep coming in suggesting that fish can be scaled with a hose. Apparently good water pressure is required and only some species have light enough scales for this tip to work. Anyone want to clarify?

Rod Case

Make a serviceable rod carrier out of unwanted cardboard rug tubes with tin cans (pinned to fit) to close the ends. Soak cardboard in cheap paint and it will last a long time.

"Tired" Storage

Don't dismount when the tractor is moving. Keep mounting steps clean. Reprint From Booklet — Tractor Safety.

Neatest trick of the week! Store fresh fish in your spare tire well. Remove tire, pack fish in on layers of ice. As ice melts, it drains out of holes in bottom of well. No mess problem and a hose flushes well out at the end of the line.

Washington Or Centerville

Hardly anyone is cold toward the idea of maximum local civic and political action, in an effort to solve local problems in local ways with local responsibility and local financial resources. No one decries the town-hall approach to democratic self-government. At least, in theory, most Americans view democratic processes as working best down where the people live. There have been some notable exceptions, but mostly we have built the nation by building from the grass roots. But are we losing this concept? Are we now making Washington the town hall, ignoring Centerville?

We are witnessing this summer two of the nation's strongest attachments to the grass roots: the national conventions of our two major parties. If it is true that politics draws up the issues, selects the personnel, conducts the dialog and the debates, and then offers the alternatives, then we should experience some action that is even closer to the people than the sessions of our legislatures. Delegates to the conventions are only a short trip removed from the folks who sent them. Yet the question might be asked whether these "national" assemblies are close enough to

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Changing Consumer Habits BABSON PARK, Mass., Aug. 13—Consumer markets are being re-shaped so fast, so dramatically, and on such a wide geographic scale that I sometimes wonder how many of my readers recognize the extent of the "revolution." The people I most want to talk to about this are, of course, those of you involved in manufacturing, retailing, the services, advertising, or promotion in general. Personal Incomes Climbing Fast One of the key reasons why consumer habits are experiencing such a dynamic change is the unprecedented growth in personal incomes. During 1963, for instance, about a million family units were newly raised into the income bracket of $10,000 a year or better, carrying the total for this secure economic group of buyer units to an all-time high of 12.3 million. It should be noted, in fact, that at least a third of these had incomes of over $15,000. Also important is the knowledge that 1963 saw a reduction of 700,000 in marketing families earning less than $4,000 a year. The thing I want to stress about this trend is that it does not mean that families simply buy more of what they have always bought, but that they are learning to look for better-quality goods. The tendency toward luxuries and toward higher living standards is also strongly on the increase. More money is being laid out for foreign travel, better automobiles, boats, and—probably most important of all—higher education. As a matter of fact, the educational "explosion" is having a tremendous effect on buying habits, and will continue to do so over the years ahead. Education's Effect On Sales Searching out the latest statistics, I have found that, while the population of our nation contained only 7.5 million college-educated men and women 20 years ago, it now has 16 million. And this uptrend is gaining speed at a great rate. In fact, government observers anticipate that the college-educated will total 20 million by 1970, and will reach as high as 28 million during the following decade. Already, estimates have it that 20% of our households are headed by at least one parent with a higher education. Add these facts to the increasing personal incomes and you have a buying public with far more sophisticated tastes than ever before, especially when you consider that the college-educated people are almost always in the best salary brackets. Hence this growing part of the consuming public must be an important consideration in your planning for future goods, promotion programs, packaging, and sales attitudes generally. Circling Out From This Center Whenever there is a revolutionary social trend, as in the current outburst of enthusiasm for higher education, its effects circle out and sweep along those not directly involved. While millions are going to college, other millions not college-bred are becoming sympathetically interested in cultural objectives. Self-learning is strongly on the upgrade, as is evidenced by a massive turnover in paperback books, bigger attendance at concerts and art centers, increased library use, more educational TV programs, higher record sales. Free seminars on science, law, painting, sculpture, and even more highly specialized subjects are attracting larger numbers, both in person and by way of TV. This is true not only in the big cities, but throughout virtually all parts of the country. Summer theaters, rare and just unknown not too many years ago, now flourish everywhere. I hope that my emphasis on this change of perspective in an ever-wider section of the purchasing public will be taken seriously by all connected with distribution. Those who pay no heed to the surge will get caught short in the years ahead. Women Still Good Sales Target My final word of advice: The enormous number of working wives has helped bring up family incomes substantially, and their pay-check independence makes them interested in purchases previously left more commonly to the menfolk. So it would be smart to direct more attention to the women than ever before when you are staging promotions for merchandise usually aimed at the nation's males.

ton embraces Miss Gardner, not in victory, but to join with her in companionship against the depraved world. Because she has added real humanity to her role, Burton then does not surrender to a symbol of that depraved world, but joins with an insecure woman to embrace at least a modicum of courage. Despite an overdrawn first half, the show is brilliant.

Support Price Set For Barley

Prices for the 1964 crop of barley will be supported at $0.94 a bushel in all Maryland counties, George B. Reeves, Chairman, Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee has announced. The basic rate is for barley grading No. 2 or better. It is adjusted by discounts for grade and quality to determine support prices for individual producers. Discounts are the same as for the 1963-crop program. For major producing areas, county support rates reflect terminal rates less the freight and

Man About Baltimore

By H. George Hahn

The pennant plague is spreading and is taking its toll quite liberally. Unlike 1960's, 1964's malady is not just hypochondria; the symptoms are strikingly real. And the prognosis is all-too-clear in the minds of Baltimore's patients.

The illness became prevalent when Baltimore's Birds failed to pass the June Swoon checkup. June's condition effected a temporary fever and excited chills which gave way soon to a higher temperature when Yankee treatments failed.

Of course the germ of the disease belongs to the genus World-Seriosis. Its species include some twenty-five varieties of the volatile Orioli Baltimoreensis the more famous of which breed are Brooks Robinson, John Powell, Jack Brandt, Wally Bunker, and a Latin extract, Luis Aparicio. Contracted by medium exposure to the infectious area of Thirty-third Street and Babe Ruth Plaza, and even indirectly by average consumption of a Baltimore staple, the sports page, ultra-skeptics advise considered abstinence from exposure.

Striking with renewed vigor after every winning game, it is inconceivable that the malady can be checked. Oh, there are wild hopes by some for a Louisville Slugger strike, or half-mile centerfield fences, but those are grasping at straws. Only a concentrated dose of World Series serum can recur—maybe next summer, maybe this fall with a football variation.

John Huston's movie version of Tennessee Williams' "Night of the Igauna" is almost a religious experience when studied in the continuum of the playwright's development on the boards. Like Williams' other works, "Igauna" exhibits the same corrupting world, which with all its liquor, sex, and delusion is a relentless predator before the helpless individual. But "Igauna" offers a note of hope in at least a positive feeling of courage.

Richard Burton in his inimitable style is superb. He summons all of his talents in portraying a not-incredible tragic hero. As Shannon the minister he has fallen; as Shannon the human being he crawls and craves to hope for hope and rise to courage. He realizes his flaw and prays, then drinks, then prays again. And there is a sprite of hope in all this, for Shannon is an honorable character.

Then there is Ava Gardner, another representation of the decadent life that is all life for Williams. As proprietress of the hotel, for Williams she is a type—the oversexed fun lover—but Miss Gardner humanizes her character admirably and thus transcends the type. Deborah Kerr's performance marks her, it seems, for the high stage. She is the all-good realist who is not above a dream, and her down-to-earth obstinance allows Shannon to stumble upon his almost-redemption. For Miss Kerr travels about with her aged grandfather—a poet who has not invoked the Muses in some twenty years. And here it seems that Williams draws at least a tenuous parallel between Shannon and the grandfather. As Shannon searches for something to grasp, the hoary poet searches for words to create his masterpiece. And their quests dovetail in the final of that poem:

O Courage, could you not as well Select a second place for me to dwell Not only in that golden tree But in the frightened heart of me?

The old man then dies in peace for his search is ended, and Bur-

School Inspection Committee Named

School Board members Ross V. Smith of Thurmont and C. Gordon Smith of Ijamsville and School Superintendent Dr. John L. Carnochan have been chosen as a committee to inspect Montgomery County schools and compare them in construction and cost with the proposed new high school to be located at Thurmont.

At the suggestion of Ross Smith, the school system will open negotiations with the Claire Frock Company of Thurmont for the lease or rental of an empty building it owns adjacent to the Thurmont High School, to relieve overcrowding there until the new high school is opened.

School for Thurmont is opened.
The School Board also authorized a state-suggested increase of tuition fees for out-of-state students in Frederick County schools to $400 per year for high schools and $300 for elementary schools. They also increased out-of-county student fees in local high schools to $200 for high school students and $150 for elementary students.

State Police Promotions Announced

Four promotions and transfers of personnel were announced this week by State Police, effective at once.

Capt. W. W. Corbin has been named Assistant Chief of Operations at Maryland State Police headquarters in Pikesville.

Corbin, with 25 years of service with the State Police, for the past year has been commanding the newly formed Troop "E" including the Annapolis and Waldorf Barracks. Prior to that assignment, Corbin, known in the local area for years as 'Speedy', was Western Maryland Troop Commander of all State Police in Frederick, Washington, Garret and Allegany Counties, a post he held from June, 1961.

Captain Carroll E. Cook of Walkersville, commander of State Police Barracks "B" of Frederick and holding rank of Lieutenant since August 15, 1961, has been named commander of Troop "E", Waldorf-Annapolis.

Capt. Cook, who placed first in a class of 100 in a 12-week law enforcement course at the Federal Bureau of Investigation Academy in Washington last November, began his police career in August of 1941.

Former First Sergeant Samuel R. Dorsey, now Lt. Dorsey, will command the Frederick Barracks "B", replacing Capt. Cook.
Lt. Dorsey has been 1st Sgt. at Frederick since September, 1961, after serving as sergeant in Waterloo Barracks since 1957.
Dorsey, originally from Mount Airy, joined the State Police in 1946.
First Sergeant W. H. Wahl, who has served as supervisor at Waldorf State Police Barracks since 1959, assumes duties as Assistant Barracks Commander at Frederick Barracks "B", replacing Lt. Dorsey.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ott, Jr., and family, Baltimore, visited recently with relatives and friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mick and children have returned to their home in Milford, Del., after visiting some time with Mrs. Mick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sanders.
Father Leo Wetzel, Washington, is visiting with his mother, Mrs. Nora Wetzel and family.
Harry Ashbaugh and daughter, Cheryl, Wheaton, are spending some time with his mother, Mrs. George Ashbaugh.
