You might not believe it but the town already is decorated for Christmas. We used to gripe that we were the last town to be decorated but now that's all in the past. Early this week workmen installed the decorations and the Xmas rush is under way. Instead of being last I believe we could almost catch first place. Oh well, I guess our Town Council is going modern and has joined the mad pace. Some like it and some do not. Just thought I'd let you know I saw the decorations.

Comes this interesting bit of information from Howard Tull, a former resident of this community and now residing in the Frederick area: Howard has three children, all born on the 15th of the month. Linda Diane, Sept. 15; Howard Joseph, Oct. 15 and Kimberly Sue, January 15. This is a bit phenomenal Howard, and I might add, interesting.

Many of you thought I was kidding about our water supply these past several weeks when I urged extra care in its usage. To tell you the truth you have never been closer to a waterless situation than you are right at this moment. Regardless of the conserving methods employed by the Town, colleges, and the general public, the Town Fathers reluctantly advised us here in this print shop, that unless we have rain, and plenty of it, the Town will be without water within two weeks! That's not a pretty picture folks but you can't say you weren't warned long in advance. The situation is critical, I have been told and some remedial action must be taken to alleviate the condition . . . and soon. The Town has engaged a contractor to enlarge the reservoir but that will not give us any water at the present time. The capacity of Rainbow Lake is being increased by excavating the shallow upper north end and re-enforcing the breast of the spillway. Despite efforts to save water by cutting back force on the newly installed pipe mains the supply has dwindled and continues to do so. Cedar trees being uprooted by the excavation are being brought to town and replanted at the local sewage disposal plant. A new well is to be put into action at Reservoir 3 and plans are under way to haul water from Tom's Creek and dumping it into Reservoir 2. How much this will increase our reserves is conjectural but something has to be, and is being, done to guarantee Emmitsburg an adequate water supply during this prolonged drought. With the work going on now Town Officials warn that the water may become a bit cloudy, due mainly to the excavating, but if the populace will be a bit tolerant, the condition will remedy itself in a very short time. Meanwhile, you can rest assured that our Town Officials are going all out to insure the community of adequate water supplies. They in turn, ask your indulgence and urge you to continue conserving water in every possible way. We know we can depend on you!

Emmitsburg appears to be experiencing a little building boom. At present there are at least half a dozen new homes under construction. There are three in the process of erection on the Tract Road and two in Emmitt Gardens. There are several others in this area either under construction or planned in the near future. Information has it that the new development east of town will get under way in the near future or at the latest next spring. This is a healthy sign and one that shows people have a confidence in the future of Emmitsburg. While the boom isn't a fantastic one, it is steady and is an indication that we are gaining both in numerical as well as economic strength.

TRESPASS SUIT SCHEDULED FOR SATURDAY

The Adams County court has set November 21 at 11 a.m. as the time for a hearing on a proposed settlement, for $1,544.64, of a trespass action brought by Major Thomas E. Brines, Emmitsburg, R2, against David Anthony Lingg, Emmitsburg R1.

The suit stems from the death last Memorial Day of the 14-year-old son of Maj. Brines who was struck by a car operated by Lingg on the old Emmitsburg Rd., north of the Maryland line.

Both the action in trespass brought by Maj. Brines as administrator of the estate of his son, Stuart David Brines, against Lingg, and the petition for a compromise of the action were filed by the law firm of Bigham and Raffensperger.

The court was asked to set an early date for the hearing because of scheduled transfer of Maj. Brines to duties elsewhere.

The child was killed instantly by a compound fracture of the skull at 7 o'clock on the night of May 30 when his bicycle was struck by a southbound car operated by the 21-year-old Lingg. The youth was enroute to Middle Creek to go fishing when the accident occurred.

According to the petition to compromise, Lingg will pay $1,544.64 plus the costs in the case and all administrative costs.

HIT-RUNNER NABBED AFTER DEATH

The body of a U. S. Navy man, struck by a New Jersey man near Thurmont Nov. 3, had been run over by another car about 15 minutes previously, an autopsy has revealed.

The hit-and-run driver has been apprehended.

Cpl. Henry I. Stafford, who is investigating for State Police, said that through investigation it was learned Monday that the body of Jerry L. Misenheimer, 30, U. S. Navy, which was struck by Douglas H. Williams, 20, of West Hollywood, N. Y., was struck about 15 minutes previously by an auto driven by Donald Doty, also of the Navy.

Doty told police that Misenheimer was walking along Park Central Road, about three miles west of Thurmont and just north of the Md. 77 intersection, when the accident occurred. Police charged that he did not stop after striking Misenheimer.

Pleads Guilty To Minor Charge

Frederick W. Trent, 22, Fairfield R2, this week pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder, Gettysburg, to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors brought by Gettysburg police. He posted $500 bail to appear before the Adams County court for sentence December 14.

Holiday Hours Announced For Postoffice

Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26, 1964 shall be observed as a legal holiday by the Emmitsburg Post Office. There will be two dispatches of mail at 7:30 a.m. and 9:15 a.m. No window service will be provided that day and there will be no rural deliveries. Incoming mails at 6:15 a.m., 7:30 a.m. and 9:15 a.m. will be distributed and put into the Post Office boxes. Boxholders may call and receive their mail.

Special delivery mail will be delivered and the Post Office Lobby will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Library Receives New Books

Some very interesting reading has just been received from County services, headquarters in C. Burr Artz Library, in the Emmitsburg Library. Among them—"Go Tell it on the Mountain," by James Baldwin—A first novel about Negroes to be written from a non-racial point of view.

"Babbitt," by Sinclair Lewis. The story of George F. Babbitt, realtor, booster, one hundred percent—the man who added a new word to the language. In this sharp portrait of a hustling, prosperous real-estate broker in an average American city, we find a reflection of ourselves, our homes, and the people we know best. Sinclair Lewis was the first American to be awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature.

"A Song of Sixpence," by A. J. Cronin. This novel is enriched by Cronin's vivid childhood memories, set in the beautiful western highlands of Scotland, complex currents of his social surroundings. The bigotry of the Scottish Protestants, the rigid class consciousness. Laurie is an outsider. The only child of a middle class Catholic couple, he suffers the pangs of isolation in a staunchly Puritan town.

"The Fall," by Albert Camus. In a shady bar in Amsterdam, the man who does the talking in The Fall is indulging in a calculated confession. He recalls his past life as a respected Parisian lawyer, a pleader of noble causes, secure in his self-esteem, privately a libertine, yet apparently immune to judgment—the portrait of a modern man.

"Winesburg, Ohio," by Sherwood Anderson. Winesburg, Ohio is like that wheel of many colors, of which Anatole France writes, which had only to revolve to give a harmony of all parts, which becomes the truth. These separate fragments of mid-American society combine to make a picture of American life which carries the inescapable conviction of reality.

"The Age of Innocence," by Edith Wharton. This story of New York before it became of age captures the spirit of the metropolis and preserves for us the social history of an era, in the decade of the 1870's when elegance and gallantry were on display on gas-lit Fifth Avenue.

Benefit Card Party Tuesday Evening

A card party for the benefit of the Emmitsburg Softball League will be held Tuesday evening, November 24, it has been announced.

The affair will get under way promptly at 8 p.m. and will be held in the VFW Annex. Lovely prizes will be offered and refreshments served.

K of C Holds Memorial Mass

Grand Knight Lumen F. Norris presided over the regular meeting of Brute Council 1860, Knights of Columbus, held Monday evening in the Council Home.

District Warden Paul A. Keepers announced the second degree will be exemplified Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Mt. St. Mary's College, with the Hagerstown Council degree team in charge. Four members of Brute Council will take the degree.

Carl A. Wetzel, general activities chairman, gave a report on the recent Knight of the Year banquet and stated it was a grand social success with 85 in attendance. The application for membership of Sgt. Stanley McIntyre, Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., was approved. Dr. Joseph Rhode was named medical insurance examiner for the Council. Members of the Council attended a memorial Mass Thursday evening in Pangborn Chapel, Mt. St. Mary's College, in memory of deceased members and President Kennedy, a member of the Knights of Columbus. The meeting closed with prayer led by the chaplain, Rev. Robert S. Grace.

Local Girl Medical Secretary Graduate

Miss Stephanie Ann Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond M. Baker, Emmitsburg, was one of 118 students graduated from the Maryland Medical Secretarial School, Hagerstown, on November 13, 1964. Miss Baker received her diploma in the 14-month Technical Medical Secretarial Course.

She completed courses in the secretarial sciences as well as training in the terminology of the medical profession and basic medical courses such as anatomy, diseases, medical office practice, and laboratory technique. She also received ten weeks' internship training at Hershey Hospital, Hershey, Pa., which is one of nine such institutions engaged in a cooperative training with the school. Graduates of the school are prepared to work as secretaries and medical assistants to physicians in private practice, hospitals, government medical installations, and industrial medical positions. Miss Baker graduated from Saint Joseph's High School in 1963.

BISHOP WILL BLESS KELLEY HALL MONDAY

Saint Joseph College will hold the formal opening and blessing of Kelley Hall, recently completed student residence, on Monday, Nov. 23.

The Most Rev. Lambert A. Hoch, D.D., bishop of the diocese of Sioux Falls, S. D., will bless the building after a convocation which will open the dedicatory program.

The convocation will begin at 2:30 p. m. in DePaul Auditorium with an academic procession and welcome by Sister Rosemary Pfaff, D.C., college president.

Mrs. Albert E. Hammel of Baltimore, national alumnae president, will unveil a portrait of the late Sister Mary Ellen Kelley, a gift of the alumnae to the college. The portrait, which will be exhibited in the lobby of Kelley Hall, after the dedication ceremonies, is the work of Adrian Lamb. Claire Mauer '64, will pay tribute to Sister Mary Ellen, and His Excellency, Bishop Hoch, will deliver the main address.

Following the convocation, the student body, in academic attire, will form an honor guard for Bishop Hoch along the walk to Kelley Hall where he will preside at the blessing ceremony. Tours of the residence will be conducted for the guests after the blessing. A reception will be held in the Student Center, and Benediction in the college chapel at 4:30 p.m. will close the program.

Announcing the formal opening, Sister Rosemary said, "Our new residence hall has been named 'Kelley Hall' in memory of Sister Mary Ellen Kelley, our late dean of students and alumnae moderator. She was beloved by our collegiate family for her devotion and self-sacrifice. With her sudden death in October 1963, she bequeathed to us at St. Joseph's her tremendous spirit of love which flows over our campus for all to emulate."

Bishop Hoch will arrive at the Emmitsburg campus on Sunday directly from the closing of the Vatican Council in Rome. He is a close friend of the Kelley family who were long-time residents of the cathedral parish of Sioux Falls.

Did You Know?

1789—A HISTORIC YEAR

In the Spring 175 years ago Congress met for the first time and selected George Washington for our first president. The hero of the American Revolution took the oath of office on a balcony of Federal Hall in New York City.

The first Thanksgiving Day was celebrated on November 26 of the same year, Washington, at the instance of Congress, had proclaimed it a day of thanksgiving for the Constitution. The holiday met with popular acceptance and quickly became a national tradition.

The year 1789 was a productive one for the young republic. One of the most notable achievements was the discovery of Bourbon whiskey which was distilled for the first time by Baptist Preacher Elijah Craig in Bourbon County, Kentucky. This September Bourbon celebrates it's 175th birthday.

In a bucket of hot water laced with a half-cup of detergent. Breaks the natural oil seal, keeps feathers from blowing all over.
Flooded Motor
When your motor floods and won't start, disconnect fuel line and turn the engine over several times. Often this will pump gas out of carburetor and the next pull will start it with fuel line attached.
Cool Crawlers
If you want to keep night-crawlers alive for a good while and can't use a worm box, put them in your refrigerator next to (but not in) the freezing unit. They'll live for two weeks.
Flash Light
Take a three cell flashlight to camp but store a two cell bulb in handle holder. When light fades, restore it by switching to the two-cell.
Thirst Quencher
On hot days when you can't seem to get enough to drink, add a pinch of salt to your water. Lack of salt, curiously enough, causes the thirst.
Barbecue
Clean barbecue grills quickly by starting the fire with a layer of sand. Add coals to this. When you want to clean the grill, sand spills out easily takes grease, burned coals etc. with it.
Magnetic Needle
Magnetize a needle in your sewing kit by rubbing it over regular magnet. Float on a twig in woods and it will tell you which way is north.

Golden Minnows
Dye minnows a different color to get bites during dog days. Gold is most often chosen, but red and even blue also works. Just add vegetable dye from 10-cent store to minnow bucket water. Skin from orange onions gives gold color.
Quick Sack
An empty oat sack can make an emergency pack. Fasten a strap over and for a trumpline add two cords alongside for shoulder straps.

Hagerstown, reminded beneficiaries this week. Failure to report an event promptly might cause inconvenience to the beneficiary and may delay his benefit checks.
Change of address should be reported to social security as well as to the post office. Any beneficiary under age 72 who works and expects to earn more than $1200 during a year must report this fact. Often some benefits are still payable even though a person earns more than $1200. A woman receiving benefits as a wife must report a divorce from her husband or the death of her husband. A widow must report remarriage if her benefits are being paid on her deceased husband's account. Any person receiving checks for a child must also advise the Social Security Administration if the child marries, dies, or leaves his custody.
If benefits are being paid to an individual because of a disability, a prompt report must be made if the disabled person engages in any work, or if his condition improves enough so he could return to work.
Anyone who has a question as to whether or not a particular event must be reported should write, phone, or come into the local social security office at 59 North Cannon Avenue, Hagerstown.

Moist curing for at least five days is all-important for strong, durable watertight concrete. A chemical reaction between cement and water causes concrete to harden, and if it dries too fast the chemical reaction does not take place completely.

The Flaming Arrows two-game total was Larry, 148; Frank, 126, James 147; Gerald, 134; Jimmy, 121; Rodney, 104; Doug, 171; Cathy, 126; Linda, 105; Horace, 132; Paul, 179. The Little Jets posted as follows: Davy, 114; Jimmie, 107; Rodney, 110 and Harold, 100.

Mount Runners Victorious
Tom Neidhart and John McKee tied the Catholic University cross-country course record by racing home in a tie for first place and the Mountaineers defeated Catholic 20-38 Saturday. They were clocked in 15:51.
Other top finishers for the Mount were Phil Banasheck, 4th; Joe Murphy, 5th; Frank Zarnowski, 8th, and Pete Sartori, 9th.
During the season Coach Jim Deegan's runners won seven of eight dual meets. They will compete in the Mason-Dixon Conference championships at Bridgewater on Saturday.

GEORGIA RANSACKED BY SHERMAN'S ARMY

BY LON K. SAVAGE

As the people of the United States waited in ignorance, Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman's army of 60,000 marched through Georgia 700 years ago this week, cutting a path of destruction and despair for the South.

Only the Georgians who witnessed the events knew really what was happening, for Sherman had cut all communication between his army and the North. In Washington, President Lincoln paced the floor nervously, hoping somehow to get some word of success from his second-most-important general. In both North and South, false rumors spread that Sherman was beaten; that his army was starving; that he had been captured.

But Sherman and his "bummers" were far from beaten; in fact, they were in no danger. Each day through late November, they marched in fine weather eastward from Atlanta toward the sea, tearing up the countryside, devastating buildings, homes, crops and livestock, eating sumptuously of Southern foodstuffs, sleeping peacefully on Southern soil or, at times, in Southern homes.

Destruction
The war was one of total destruction. Sherman's men tore up railroads, burned the ties, heated the rails until they could be twisted into "Sherman's hairpins" around trees. Mills, factories, barns—any building that could produce any good—were burned. Homes were ransacked, and many of them were burned. Fruit trees were chopped down. Soldiers barged into private homes, making off with everything they could carry—foods, jewelry, even family heirlooms.

To a Southern lady who protested against the plundering, Sherman answered: "War is war, and you can make nothing else of it."

Slaves came to Sherman as if he were their Savior, and despite his protestations, they followed his armies to they knew not where.

By the 23d, Sherman was in Milledgeville, Georgia's capital, he occupied the Governor's mansion, himself. Some of his officers occupied the state capital, and in a mock representative assembly full of flowery speeches in imitation Southern accents they elected a speaker and voted to repeal Georgia's ordinance of secession. After destroying most of Milledgeville's important buildings, the army pushed on.

Resistance
Resistance was slight. Confederate Gen. Joe Wheeler, with a cavalry force of 6,000, harassed the Federals but was too heavily outnumbered to even delay the march. Georgia militia—mostly young boys and old men—also opposed the march with little effect. Southern leaders issued proclamations calling upon the Georgians to repel the invaders, but they did little good for the Southern cause.

By December 3, Sherman had reached Millen, the second of his three objectives. The third—Savannah and the sea—was within a few days' march.

Next week: Tennessee invaded.

Strides Made In Stroke Research

In September, 1960, medical writer Alexander Gifford of the Baltimore News-Post suffered a stroke. Thirteen months later, in a series of five articles, he writes of his experience and what he learned about stroke.

Part 2

Early in the morning of Sept. 18, 1960 I reached the parking space on the News-Post's Pratt St. pier at the customary time.

I tried to reverse my automobile to get into my space, but moved the lever the wrong way and bumped into the car ahead. I made a second effort, a third, a fourth, with the same result. It was impossible for me to move the lever into the reverse position.

A woman cashier arrived in her car, saw my trouble and when I told her what it was, she went for help.

I was taken to the hospital. The verdict was that I had suffered a stroke.

A small fuse had "blown" in my brain, and the right side of my body just wouldn't work properly.

We Americans are so dependent on electrical current that a "fuse blowing" is the best way to understand what happens when a stroke hits you.

You know—part of the house is plunged into darkness, the TV won't work, and the refrigerator starts defrosting.

Suppose a storm like "Esther" strikes, blowing down whole power lines—another "stroke" occurs, only more widespread, with elevators halted in mid-floor, traffic signals out, and general chaos resulting.

Such is the affect on the brain of a "stroke".

Certain areas of the brain control the body, arms, legs, face, speech, reading, sight.

In my case, speech was only slightly affected, but my gait was clumsy, and I could not even sign my name. Typing was out of the question. My left hand knew the keys, but the right hand wrote an illegible mess.

Several factors control the severity of a stroke.

If a large area or a large blood vessel is closed off, then the blood will fail to reach the brain for a longer span of time.

Massive strokes may paralyze an entire side of the body, and may clear up remarkably within a few days, weeks or months—or may cause death within a few days.

By far the commonest stroke is the so-called "little stroke" of the type which I suffered. Some of them last only seconds or minutes—just a short numbness or weakness of a side of the face, an arm or leg, temporary loss of vision or blurring of speech.

Mine began clearing up within days, but the typing remained poor, even now, more than a year later, being far below normal.

The symptoms of "little" strokes should not be disregarded.

They should be reported to your doctor, for they may be a signal that more serious strokes are in the making, and something may be done to ward them off.

My stroke was severe enough to warrant hospitalization at the Veterans Hospital in Ft. Howard, where four weeks of most intensive treatment restored my health and "ruled out" the most fearful of possibilities, that my stroke had been caused by pressure of a malignant brain tumor.

In the hospital stroke patients are turned over to "neurology", and an important part of the treatment consists of rehabilitation, usually through a program of exercise which improves circulation of the blood and helps prevent muscles from deteriorating and joints from stiffening.

At first this may be passive exercise, and later the patient may undertake to do active exercise himself.

Early in my treatment I was ordered to walk—discarding the wheel-chair, and I did as much writing as I could, handwriting that is, trying to work crossword puzzles. It was nearly a week before I could make a letter S, which proved my toughest letter—it always came out two C's on top of each other. I just couldn't make that lower loop reverse itself!

It was more than a week before I could sign my name legibly, and even then, it ran real droopy on the blackboard.

At the hospital we saw much successful rehabilitation.

Speech therapists were teaching patients to talk again who had lost the power of speech, and physical therapists were helping stroke patients to walk, reach, carry, and become more or less self sufficient again.

Many of these retraining exercises can be done at home, but make sure the doctor's instructions are carried out precisely.

Medical research during the past 10 years, particularly in the field of polio, has provided effective methods of treating strokes and restoring patients.

The picture for the stroke sufferer is much, much brighter today than it was formerly.

What Kind Of "Great Society?"

And so it develops that in this election year 1964, the most piercing battle crises resulted not from the clash over issues but from labels of convenience ranging toward the extremes. Even President Johnson proclaimed himself in the center, with any possible opposition off on the "fringe." The heart of the American Way was under attack, he declared, and any who live it should go forth and save it. Similar words were uttered by Senator Goldwater. We ourselves had said as much. That is exactly what any patriotic citizen can say and should do.

These tactics did not help much, however, in making election year choices. The personality images were scarcely reliable. Statements of personal wealth seemed only remote useful to the voter. Whether we "like" a candidate may not qualify or disqualify him. Even the catch-all phrases of politics, such as New Deal, New Frontier, and now the Great Society, that try to wrap up the whole package for propaganda purposes, may fail to provide satisfactory instruction to the voter.

The Meaning Of Life

The idea of a great society, envisioned from Pericles down to Johnson, includes the concept that men may have a part in ordering their own destiny. Obviously, also, where some change is welcomed, not merely for the sake of change but for improvement, even greater societies might prevail. But these adjustments must contribute to the climate of freedom, else men would enslave themselves. And free men will look backward to build upon the past, even as they move forward.

What of President Johnson's Great Society? He did not spell out what may be involved except to say at Atlantic City that it is "a place where the meaning of man's life matches the marvels of man's labor." This seems to point toward a peaceful period of contentment and leisure in which pursuits of the spirit and intellect may receive first attention, without one having to be concerned with the drudgery of balancing the economic realities with the needs of body and soul. What kind of meaning it is that the state would put into life remains rather a mystery.

Kind Of Freedom

It is true that there are those who predict a day when machines will do all the work, freeing men to play at whatever is most appealing. If men are freed from the economic realities, it is said, they can have their bread as birthright and go enjoy freedom. The government will make up the payroll for everyone, tell us all where to work, how to do it, and presumably, what to think. But man is not liberated by such a society as this. This would be the pre-planned, computerized society, where none is an individual. This is the prison life of numbers, like some kind of fictionalized social order.

It is obvious that in a society thus orientated, the central government will be the designer as well as supervisor. President Johnson's America, therefore, might well be a government managed society where the political powers at the central level are fully capable of doing almost everything for whatever segment of population should be selected for favored treatment by the party. Already envisioned is the Medicare plan that will bring total social security taxes for many far past the income tax. The Great Society may want to run things for you, brother!

False Altruism

The grossly materialistic basis of such a great society as this is enough to doom it to failure. If the ministry of necessities and luxuries is its chief end, then it asks what it can do for the people not what the people can do for it. Our own history has shown that a private enterprise economy is vastly superior to the collective, government-run economy. All this is misdirected altruism. It is false to human nature, as well as false to the laws of economics.

President Johnson was apparently not fooling when he declared last January that it would be his purpose to take from the "haves" and give to the "have nots" that "need it so badly." If he can reduce defense spending without balancing the budget, he can certainly control the way the ball bounces. But this is no way to national greatness. A collectivized society in the 20th century is regression to a dark age of decay, in which the prime example is the Goddess, materialistic, centrally planned Communist state, with poor housing and never quite enough to eat.

Not my will, but thine, be done.—(Luke 22:42).

God's will, for all His children, is good. If we wish for good in our life we should be eager to live in accord with the Divine will—to let God's wishes be done in all that concerns us.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses UNESCO
 BABSON PARK, Mass., Nov. 16—One of the most valuable of the 14 agencies associated with the UN is UNESCO—the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. Its aim as expressed in its charter is “to contribute to peace and security by promoting collaboration among the nations through education, science, and culture, in order to further universal respect for justice, for the rule of law and for the human rights and fundamental freedoms which are affirmed for the peoples of the world, without distinction of race, sex, language, or religion by the Charter of the United Nations.”
 Universal Education
 The Universal Declaration of Human Rights asserts that everyone has the right to education. Yet, half the world's population cannot even read or write. To meet this challenge of illiteracy, UNESCO has undertaken major programs in Latin America, Asia, and Africa.

 The problem is not one that can be solved quickly. Before education of the illiterate can begin, teachers must be trained and schools constructed. Technical and vocational education is needed at all levels. Also, after one learns to read one has to have materials to read—books, papers, pamphlets. UNESCO has planned a program also to help solve this problem. It has sent out more than 200 international specialists to work in national systems of education.
 Natural Sciences
 A nation's economic, social, and cultural life is directly related to the level of its knowledge of the basic sciences—mathematics, physics, chemistry, biology, geology—and their applications. Offices in Latin America, the Middle East, South and Southeast Asia advise UNESCO of the scientific needs in the different regions.
 For example, the Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission is advancing the knowledge of marine science. The Indian Ocean Expedition is a five-year venture for study of the world's largest least-known ocean.

 Social Sciences
 The principal objectives of the programs in the field of the social sciences are to contribute to the social and economic development of countries, and to study and promote such legal, political, and economic aspects as will lead to greater extension of human rights.
 UNESCO assigns social scientists to various areas, and also maintains research centers in South Asia and Latin America and a clearing house in Paris for exchange of information among member states of the United Nations.
 Cultural Activities
 By encouraging members of all nations and of all races to know and understand one another, this organization hopes to develop the spirit of peace among the various peoples of the world.
 It endeavors to cultivate an appreciation of the art and literature of the many nations by exchanging the cultural material of each nation with the others.
 Mass Communication
 The organization is also working to provide all possible means of communication among the people of the underdeveloped countries. A group is now working on development of a low-price radio receiver for mass production and distribution. This would be particularly useful in regions where most of the people cannot read or write and where they will not be able to do so for a long time to come.
 Wherever radio and television are operative they can spread the messages of peace more quickly.
 International Exchange Service
 Some 800 fellowships in education, science, and the arts have been granted in 1963 and 1964. Opportunities are being provided for people in all walks of life to meet people in other countries. Grants are being made to workers in many fields to travel in other lands.
 The general purpose of all of UNESCO's program is to make the world a more enlightened, better, safer, and more peaceful place in which all the peoples of the earth may live.

this year include the Laurel Turf Cup and the Boardwalk, Oceanport, and Kelly-Olympic Handicaps.
 Montpelier's Mongo, who climaxed his campaign to gain the grass performer's crown by winning the Washington D.C. International last fall, won the Trenton Handicap on November 11, setting a new track record of two minutes for the mile and one-quarter. He also won the J. B. Campbell, Diamond State and Monmouth Handicaps this year.
 Mrs. Marion duPont Scott, owner of Mongo, will stand the Royal Charger stallion at stud in Virginia next year.
 Jerry Basta's Cedar Key has won four turf stakes as many tracks this season. He won the Bowling Green at Aqueduct, the Laurel Handicap in Maryland, the Donn Handicap at Gulfstream, and the San Juan Capistrano at Santa Anita.

Nathan L. Cohen's Twice as Gay set a Laurel track record of 1:34 2/5 in winning the one-mile Maryland Handicap on the turf. Earlier he was second to Turbo Jet II in the Laurel Turf Cup, and third behind Roman Brother in the Discovery Handicap.
 Edward and H. N. Seltzer's Going Aboard, winner of the Manhattan Handicap, has also been named to the Dixie. He has won the Hawthorne Gold Cup, Michigan Mile and One-Sixteenth, and Buckeye Handicap this year.
 Others eligible for the Dixie include F. Eugene Dixon, Jr.'s Will I Rule, winner of the Canadian Championship; Mrs. Henry Ibre's Lucky Turn, winner of a division of the Tercentenary Handicap; Montpelier's Sheldrake, who won the Senatorial Stakes last spring; and J. H. Stewart's Lewisburg, winner of the James E. Dooley Memorial Handicap.
 Wise Ship, Milton Ritzberg's winner of the 1962 Dixie renewal, has been named again this year. Ritzberg also has nominated Mr. Steu, who finished second in this race last year.

of causes that probably can be identified and treated satisfactorily. It could be due to poor stomach motility, perhaps a partial obstruction, again, identifiable and treatable. It could be due to an ulcer, which surely will be helped by proper treatment, but not by home remedies. Cancer of the stomach can and does cause indigestion, and its progress could be masked by the vague, ineffective “antacid” routine.

YOUR PERSONAL HEALTH

Indigestion is a common complaint. It occurs at all ages from infancy to eighty, and probably nobody has failed to experience indigestion. That's why we call it “common.”
 “There are various forms and degrees of indigestion,” says a publication of the American Medical Association.
 Food poisoning is a dramatic, extreme type in which the stomach contents are evacuated by violent vomiting.
 It isn't natural to take some form of antacid as a part of daily living, the AMA publication declares.
 The natural digestive process is such that there is a balance that does not require our getting into the act with the bicarbonate bottle. Such dosing has two drawbacks: First, we are “treating” ourselves in an aimless way without knowing what really is wrong; second, we are interfering with natural digestive processes which may result in undesirable side-effects such as constipation or perhaps even an imbalance of electrolytes (minerals) in the blood and body fluids.
 What may be wrong? Well, it could be inflammation of the stomach lining, due to a variety

LAKE, SEA & RIVER

BY GEORGE ROUNDS

Be Prepared

Mid-Fall marks the end of the season for many boatmen throughout the nation. It should also be the time to start preparing your boat for the next season. Even if you do not intend to haul your boat or to put it in wet storage for the winter, go over the entire rig and put all gear in top shape. If you haul, or have hauled, the first task is to clean the entire boat thoroughly. The hull should be scrubbed with a detergent and rinsed with clear water. Any growth that remains should be scraped off. Tar, algae, and who-knows-what has an affinity for hull bottoms. The longer you leave it on the hull after the boat is hauled the harder it is to get off.

Go over the bottom of your boat with a fine-toothed comb. After all, it's the bottom that keeps you on top. Any major trouble will likely be visible and should be tended to promptly. If you've got a wood boat, keep an eye peeled for signs of rot, worms, loose fastenings, and galvanic corrosion of underwater metal fittings. If any of these are present, now's the time to undertake corrective measures.

On a wood, in fair shape, give it a light sanding to take out uneven spots. Fill and sand down all gouges and nicks and major voids in the seams. Before leaving the bottom for the winter, give it a sealer coat of linseed oil mixed with varnish to keep it from drying out too much and protect it during the layup period.

With an aluminum boat, you should find very little to do. But now is as good a time as any to bump out any dents you may have picked up during the season.

If yours is a sailboat, you'll be unstepping the mast. When the mast comes down, inspect all the standing rigging thoroughly with an eye to wear. Any frayed cables or badly corroded fittings will need attention during the winter to have them ready for spring launching. Coil all the standing rigging neatly and tag each shroud for quick identification next spring.

Your running rigging will need general overhaul during the winter. This will mean a close examination of all lines, as well as reconditioning the blocks and sheaves. Any worn line should be replaced. Blocks and sheaves should be cleaned and well lubricated before setting them on the shelf for the winter.

Sails must be cleaned and completely dried before rolling and storing in a dry place until next season. Before packing them away, check the stitching along the bolt ropes, at the head, foot, clew, and around the battens pockets. These are spots that get terrific strain and frequently are the first to go from fatigue. Get out the needle and thread if you find any weak spots here.

And don't forget to clean out the insides. It never ceases to amaze me just how much junk can accumulate below decks during an active boating season. The cabin area (or forepeak on an open boat) should be stripped of everything that's not tied down. Have a couple of boxes in the cockpit as you do this, with the largest one labeled "throw out." This will keep the many odds and ends sorted out, but still prevent loss of small but essential gear.

When all loose gear is off the boat, grab the scrub brush and pail and really clean her out. A little disinfectant in the water will go along way in keeping odors down during the layup period. Once the interior is clean and dry, it won't hurt to take care of any touch-up work on paint or varnish now. It'll be one less job for next spring.

Before leaving the cabin area for the winter, be sure that the lockers, drawers, cabin doors, cupboards, etc. are left open so air can circulate. Also, double-check all plumbing and through-hull fittings to be sure they are completely dry. A little water can do a lot of damage when freezing weather hits. Valves and faucets should be removed, cleaned, and lubricated before closing up the boat for the winter.

Any metal, such as hardware, window frames, portlights, hatch fittings, etc., could stand a coating of rustproof compound. This goes for on-deck hardware and fittings, too. Make sure things like deck plates, winches, blocks, and window brackets — in fact anything that must operate during the boating season — are not corroded solid. Clean 'em up and lubricate them generously. Then give the exposed metal a coating of rust-proofing or wax before going on to other things.

Last, but very far from least, be sure the bilge is bone dry and the drain plug is out. The slightest water in the bilge during the winter has a nasty habit of freezing and prying things apart.

P.S.: I'd like to hear any personal thoughts you might have on winter layup, too. Maybe you have a few handy tricks up your sleeve that you'd like to share with others. Drop me a line. The address is: P. O. Box 1845, Grand Central Station, New York, New York 10017. Any boating problems? Let's hear about them! Coming up—engine winterizing to make that first spin next spring a success.

knows Christ as his Savior and follows Him as his Master.

The young man named Saul of Tarsus proved one can achieve this kind of life by surrendering his life in obedience to the call of Christ. In so doing Saul became the great apostle Paul. This was his testimony, "I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me."

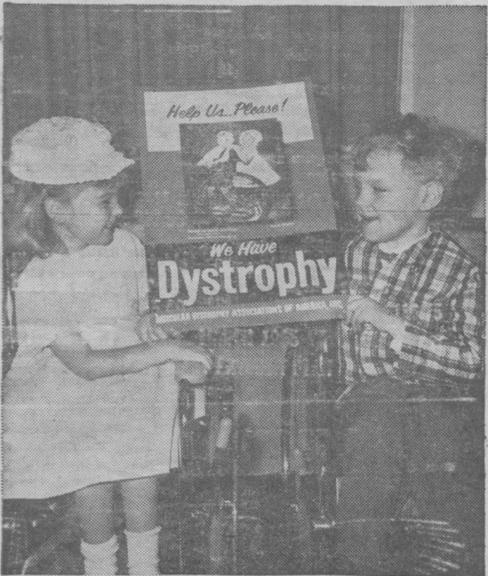

Jesus said, "I am the way; I am the truth and I am the life." He would have us believe in Him and put His way of life to the best.

Prayer
O Lord, giver of life, help me to know and experience now that eternal life which is the gift to all who accept Thy presence, power, and purpose within. In Thy name we pray. Amen.

Thought For The Day
We lack life at its fullest and best until we surrender our lives to Jesus Christ.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION
The Bill of Complaint is a suit for the partition of real estate.

The Bill recites that your Complainants and the Respondents in these proceedings are adults, sui juris, and that the following parties to this proceeding are residents of the State of Maryland:

Margaret Woerner Carmack, and Emory L. Carmack, her husband, 222 East Church Street, Frederick, Maryland; Eloise Woerner Haines, widow, 101 West 14th Street, Frederick, Maryland; Mary Alice Woerner Harley, and P. Theodore Harley, her husband, 904 Pin Oak Road, Hagerstown, Maryland; Mildred V. Kirby, and Robert D. Kirby, her husband, 111 Locust Street, Frederick, Maryland; Calvin C. Wilhide, and Virginia M. Wilhide, his wife, 6206 Fairdel Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland; Pauline R. Phelps, widow, Route 6, Frederick, Maryland; and John M. Shuff, and Curtis W. Shuff, Executors of the Last Will and Testament of Leonard A. Shuff, deceased, Frederick County, Maryland; that the following parties to this proceeding are non-residents of the State of Maryland, residing at the addresses indicated: Kenneth Wilhide, and Nellie Wilhide, his wife, Route 1, Shippensburg, Pennsylvania; Kathleen Mickley, and Richard Mickley, her husband, Box 113, Marion, Pennsylvania; Iona Shaffer, and Welty Shaffer, her husband, 1911 Lincoln Way East, Chambersburg, Pennsylvania; and Betty Herr, and Kenneth Herr, her husband, 547 Cumberland Avenue, Chambersburg, Pennsylvania; that all of the parties to this proceeding, with the exception of John M. Shuff, and Curtis W. Shuff, Executors of the Last Will and Testament of Leonard A. Shuff, deceased, are first cousins, and the closest living heirs at law and next of kin of Mary Lorraine Shuff, deceased, who departed from this life intestate on July 23, 1963, seized and possessed of all that piece or parcel of land, situate, lying and being on the south side of East Second Street, in Frederick City, Frederick County, State of Maryland, known as 22 East Second Street, in said City, County, and State, fronting nineteen (19) feet, more or less, on East Second Street, and extending back for a depth of eighty-seven (87) feet, more or less, to Market Space, said piece or parcel of land being duly described in a deed recorded in Liber 401, at folio 32, one of the Land Records of Frederick County, Maryland, a certified copy of said deed being filed in these proceedings, and marked Complainants' Exhibit "A", and prayed to be taken as a part hereof; that Leonard A. Shuff, deceased, surviving husband of Mary Lorraine Shuff, departed from this life testate on August 1, 1963, and by the terms of the Last Will and Testament of the said Leonard A. Shuff, deceased, he did devise and bequeath all of his estate, real, personal, and mixed unto his wife, Mary Lorraine Shuff, deceased, a certified copy of said Will being filed in these proceedings, and marked Complainants' Exhibit "B", and prayed to be taken as a part hereof; that upon the death of the said Mary Lorraine Shuff, deceased, and Leonard A. Shuff, deceased, as foreshaid, all of the right, title, and interest in and to the aforementioned real estate, with the improvements thereon, did, by operation of law, vest in the closest living heirs at law and next of kin of the said Mary Lorraine Shuff, deceased, at the time of her demise, all being first cousins, namely, William C. Woerner, and Eva Martha Woerner, his wife; Kenneth M. Woerner, and Ethel M. Woerner, his wife; Lorraine C. Zimmerman, widow;

Margaret Woerner Carmack, and Emory L. Carmack, her husband; Eloise Woerner Haines, widow; Mary Alice Woerner Harley, and B. Theodore Harley, her husband; Mildred V. Kirby, and Robert D. Kirby, her husband; Calvin C. Wilhide, and Virginia M. Wilhide, his wife; Pauline R. Phelps, widow; Kenneth Wilhide, and Nellie Wilhide, his wife; Kathleen Mickley, and Richard Mickley, her husband; Iona Shaffer, and Welty Shaffer, her husband; Betty Herr, and Kenneth Herr, her husband; and that your Complainants respectfully represent unto your Honorable Court that the land and improvements thereon herein described is not susceptible to division in kind between the parties entitled thereto according to their respective interests without great loss and damage, and that it would be to the best interest and advantage to the parties to this cause that the land be sold under an Order of your Honorable Court, and after the payment of the usual Court costs and expenses, the proceeds therefrom be distributed between the parties to this cause according to their respective interests.

The Bill then prays that your Honorable Court, upon the usual examination in these premises, will appoint a Trustee or Trustees for the sale of the real estate, with the improvements thereon, mentioned herein, and to divide the proceeds of said sale, under the direction of your Honorable Court, to the parties entitled thereto according to their respective interests; and for such other and further relief as of the nature of this case may require.

ORDER OF COURT
It is thereupon this 5th day of November, 1964, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Maryland, sitting as a Court of Equity, ORDERED that the Complainants give notice to the non-resident Defendants of the object and substance of this Bill, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the County of Frederick, once each week for four successive weeks prior to the 12th day of December, 1964, commanding them to be and appear in this Court, in person, or by solicitor, on or before the 12th day of January, 1965, and show cause, if any they have, why a Decree should not be passed as prayed.

LA-Z-BOY'S
RECLINA-ROCKER

WENTZ'S
BALTIMORE STREET GETTYSBURG, PA.

Like always, Freddy dashed home right after school to walk very-best-friend MacDuff. Not in the usual place (Pop's favorite chair), not the kitchen, MacDuff wasn't anywhere Freddy looked.

Mom was about as upset as Freddy. She hurried to the phone, first calling neighbors. Then she called Grandfather, who lived a few blocks away. Right away she got an assuring, "Don't worry now, I'll drive around and find the pup."

Problems have a way of disappearing when you lift your phone.

Freddy calmed down, too, when Mom told him with equal certainty that Grandpa would find MacDuff.

Sure enough, in less than an hour... up the walk they came. A very pleased scotty (he'd had a great ride) in the arms of Freddy's smiling grandpa. "Well, here he is. I found he'd hiked all the way to town."

So another day ends happily. Just by making that one phone call? Yes... and the quick, sympathetic response to it that reunited a boy and his very best friend.

For emergencies of any size—for pleasure any day—phones are your best friends.

Precaution Urged In Preparing Turkey

Turkey meat is an excellent source of many essential nutrients and is especially valuable for body-building protein content; nevertheless, certain precautions should be observed in preparation and cooking of this popular holiday fowl, C. S. Brinsfield, State Health Department Food Control Chief, advised today.

Harmful bacteria such as salmonella and poisons due to spoilage of meat contaminated with staphylococcus may be transmitted to humans through undercooked or inadequately refrigerated meat and poultry, the food expert said. In order to avoid the possibility of food poisoning, turkey should be cooked thoroughly, served hot and refrigerated promptly after use. Mr. Brinsfield recommended that dressing be cooked outside the bird. He explained that dressing prepared in advance or left in the turkey overnight may become too compact and too cold to be sure that oven heat can penetrate its density and destroy any bacteria present.

Thorough cooking will destroy the bacteria, Mr. Brinsfield explained. However, he pointed out that cooked meat may be recontaminated if allowed to stand too long before being served or refrigerated, and bacteria can grow at room temperature. He suggested the following safeguards:

Wash hands with warm water and soap before preparing, serving or eating food.

Clean fresh turkeys thoroughly and wash inside and out; be sure that all internal organs are removed.

Allow sufficient time for frozen turkeys to thaw under refrigeration; a large bird may require three days, a small bird two days.

Wash inside and out.

Additional thawing or cooking time is required for commercially frozen stuffed birds.

Cook turkey on the same day that it is to be served.

Insert a thermometer in the turkey before cooking so that the bulb rest at the center of the dressing. Up to 18 pounds, roast until the temperature reads 165 degrees and allow to sit for 20 minutes at room temperature after removal from the oven and before opening the body cavity. This permits the temperature to rise 10 to 15 degrees and to penetrate the center of the dressing. Over 18 pounds, temperature should be brought to 170 degrees and the turkey allowed to stand for 20 minutes.

Keep turkey and dressing very hot until ready to eat, and refrigerate both immediately after the meal.

Refrigerate sliced turkey in small packages so that all slices will be thoroughly chilled.

Remove meat which is to be eaten cold from the refrigerator just before mealtime so that it will not become too warm before serving. Food to be served hot should be removed from the oven shortly before serving and not allowed to become cool.

If there is any doubt as to whether meat has become contaminated, discard it.

Cook large quantities of dressing—for church suppers or other large social gatherings—in shallow pans so that the heat is distributed evenly.

Food poisoning outbreaks should be reported promptly to family physicians and to the Health Department, Mr. Brinsfield stated. He noted that the Health Department has traced food poisoning outbreaks to food served in commercial establishments and at large public or private gatherings and emphasized the importance of strict observation of sanitary precautions by all who have any part in food preparation.

Indication of food poisoning may include sudden onset of headache, abdominal pain, nausea and vomiting, diarrhea and fever from 2 to 48 hours after eating. Although many cases of food poisoning are mild, some result in serious illness and a physician should be consulted if there is any reason to suspect food poisoning.

Color in the Home:

Do-It-Yourself Antique Finish Transforms Your Old Furniture

by Jacqueline McConoughey, Color Stylist

If you've shopped the furniture stores or read the current home decorating magazines lately, you can imagine you're living back in the 19th century. For traditional furniture is back in a big way. Not only Colonial but French Provincial as well.

It's so easy to imitate the antique finish of the French Provincial style that it's surprising more homemakers aren't doing it. It's an ideal way to transform worn and scarred furniture. The other day I saw a paint dealer displaying an old oaken dresser, circa 1910, that he had transformed—with the aid of a little paint—into a charming old-world chest. Naturally, I was curious, so I asked him how he did it.

"Take one worse-for-wear bureau," the dealer explained, "and remove the hardware. You don't even have to remove the old finish. Thoroughly sandpaper the old finish and wash it with a paint cleaner. Wipe with turpentine to get rid of dirt, old wax, furniture polish, etc. Then apply two coats of white 'Ovalite' enamel undercoat. Allow this to dry at least 24 hours.

"I mix the antiquing glaze myself," continued the dealer, "by adding two teaspoonfuls of raw umber oil color to a half pint of 'Dulux' satin-sheen varnish. I then apply this to the white-coated surface by brush or rag. But make sure you don't do too much of an area at one time. This coat looks dark brown and pretty ugly. Let it stand 10 minutes. Then gradually wipe off with old rags or cheesecloth, using straight sweeping strokes. The harder you wipe, the more you remove. Shade it from light in the center to a darker tone at the edges of each drawer, panel, top, etc. The inner edges of carvings, moldings, ridges should be left dark. The beautiful part of this job is that if you don't like what you see, wipe it all off with turpentine and start over.

"After your antiquing glaze has dried overnight, apply a clear coat of satin-sheen varnish. Then replace the hardware and drawers. I guarantee," concluded the expert, "that you'll be proud as punch, whatever that is."

And what if you don't have an old bureau to start with? At most furniture stores, they have unfinished furniture that is well styled—and inexpensive. It's surprising how an antique piece like this fits in with either traditional or modern furniture.

A little paint mixed with the right amount of know-how, and you can produce an antique finish that makes worse-for-wear like new.

FRANK'S TAVERN CHESAPEAKE AVE. Home-Style PIZZA SHRIMP (Steamed or Fried) T-BONE STEAKS CHICKEN PLATTERS GOOD EATIN' NO. 20,814 EQUITY In The Circuit Court For Frederick County, Maryland DARLENE S. TRUAX Route 4 Frederick, Maryland vs. ROGER J. TRUAX Route 1 Ulysses, Pennsylvania, 16948 ORDER OF PUBLICATION The Bill of Complaint is a suit to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Roger J. Truax. The Bill recites that the Complainant is a resident of Frederick County, State of Maryland, where she has resided for more than one year last past; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, whose last known address was Route 1, Ulysses, Pennsylvania, 16948; that the parties to this cause were married on the 30th day of November, 1957, at Frederick, Maryland, by Rev. Trunk, a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel; that as a result of the said marriage three children were born, namely, Roger Michael Truax, six years of age, Teresa Jean Truax, four years of age, and Debra Colleen Truax, three years of age; that the parties to this cause have voluntarily lived separate and apart without any cohabitation for more than eight months prior to the filing of this Bill of Complaint, and that the separation between the parties is beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation. The Bill then prays that the Complainant, Darlene S. Truax, be divorced A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Roger J. Truax; that she be awarded the care and custody of the infant children in these proceedings mentioned; that she be awarded a sum or sums of money for the support and maintenance of said infant children, and for such other and further relief as the nature of her case may require. ORDER OF COURT It is thereupon this 16th day of November, 1964, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Maryland, sitting as a Court of Equity, ORDERED that the Complainant give notice to the Defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the County of Frederick, once each week for four successive weeks prior to the 19th day of December, 1964, commanding him to be and appear in this Court, in person, or by solicitor, on or before the 19th day of January, 1965, and show cause, if any he has, why a Decree should not be passed as prayed. Lime Plays Major Role In Agriculture

Someone once said, "If starved plants could only squeal like hungry pigs, we would pay more attention to their fertilizer needs." Even though plants cannot squeal, they have means of telling us of their plant food deficiencies, which we speak of as hunger signs. Of the 92 elements of which the earth is composed, plants require for proper growth considerable amounts of only 10 major elements and minute amounts of a number of others. The major elements are carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and nitrogen and nitrogen which come directly or indirectly from the air and water, and phosphorus, potassium, calcium, sulphur, magnesium and iron which come directly from the soil. Copper, zinc, boron, manganese, and perhaps others which come directly from the soil, are required only in minute amounts but are important from the standpoint of plant growth or the well-being of those animals that consume the plants. The symptoms of a mineral deficiency in the soil may be regarded as the language plants use to tell us of their lacking in proper nourishment. At times, it is very difficult to correctly interpret the symptoms of plant food deficiency in the field, due to other environmental factors constantly affecting the plants. Prolonged periods of adverse weather, insects and diseases may cause symptoms very similar to plant food deficiencies, but where there is a question concerning the deficiencies, chemical tests can be made for calcium, nitrogen, phosphate and potash—the four elements most likely to be deficient. Correction of these deficiencies can be made by applying the amounts of liming and fertilizer materials recommended by soils technicians on the basis of these tests.

A Summer Visit In Western Europe

Anabel E. Hartman

Before starting on the memorable cruise along Norway's west coast I must add a brief note on Bergen's modern developments. There are many of these, some, like the hotel where I stayed, close to relics of a long-distant past but mainly in sections beyond the quay and neighboring streets: other hotels, private residences, office buildings, specialty shops, local government headquarters, and especially a great number of museums of different kinds, some of these in large open spaces with beautifully landscaped grounds. From a special booklet describing these (more than a dozen besides the old places mainly already noted) I give as examples just the three which I selected to visit, knowing that I was missing many others well worth seeing (Norwegian titles as printed and English translation of the description):

1. Vestlandske Kundindustrimuseum—antique and modern arts and crafts. Specialties porcelain, pottery, silver, and ancient Chinese art.
2. Fiskerimuseet I Bergen — the development of Norwegian fisheries from ancient times to our own day. Models of fishing vessels.

3. Rasmus Meyers Samlinger — Norwegian art from the 19th century. — Interiors from Bergen homes. I must regretfully leave specific exhibits to the reader's imagination and go on to the most outstanding experience of this summer's visit in Europe, the 12-day round-trip cruise from Bergen to the North Cape and beyond.

The West Coast Cruise

This cruise was made, not in a luxury-cruise ship with much on-board entertainment and an extensive itinerary, including stops in several other countries, but in one of the regular coastal express steamers, comfortable small ships carrying freight and mail as well as passengers, and a constantly changing group of these traveling between the various coastal villages and towns, in addition to the round-trip-cruise group (of which I was a member) with its special courier, in this case an efficient young law student who spoke almost perfectly correct English and was a good musician on the piano and accom-dion. The so-called express stops at more than thirty ports (some quite small) up and down the coast, where members of the cruise group may alight to stroll along the dock or farther if time permits, and at most of the more important places they have a planned conducted tour by bus or otherwise, taking them to special places of interest in the town or beyond it. Some of these unusual trips will be reported presently, but first something about the remarkable nature of this West Coast, called one of the Seven Natural Wonders of the World.

Norway, it may be recalled, is on the north-west tip of Europe, in the same latitude as Iceland and the southern part of Greenland, and anyone not aware of a certain additional natural fact might well think that a trip up it coast to considerably beyond the Arctic Circle surely suggests not only especially warm clothing but a heating pad. Yet it happens that there is no threat of chilling temperatures on a coastal trip, for, as one writer puts it, the U. S. is kind enough to send its Gulf Stream across the Atlantic and all the way along the Norwegian coast, facing three areas of ocean: the North Sea, the Norwegian Sea, the Arctic Ocean; so the temperature is moderated and the special protection against cold that might have seemed necessary for a cruise to the Far North is not needed.

The coast-line itself is the world-famous combination of fjords (our nearest word is 'bay') and rocky peaks sometimes rising straight up from the water's edge to the height of several thousand feet and sometimes running along in ridges far enough back of the water's edge to permit flat or hilly stretches of land large enough for farms or good-sized towns; and parallel to the mainland almost all the way along it a chain of islands (estimated at 150,000), some flat with houses and other buildings, also whole villages, others huge walls of rock like those on the mainland, and still others mere rocky tips. The different sizes and shapes of the fjords and their many smaller and still smaller arms indenting the mainland are part of the wonder of this coast. And here and there (actually six times) the island-chain is broken and there is "stretch of open sea" announced in the itinerary (with a consequent bit of rougher, but not too rough, sailing). Now and then, too, there are tops of mountain-peaks covered with snow, glaciers on the mountain-sides, and waterfalls, and finally many remarkable rock-formations, some of them having associations with primitive folk-lore explanations involving the activities of trolls and giants (for example the seven peaks called "The Seven Sisters" from the old myth of the flight of seven daughters of a mainland king from the dare-devil son of a troll-king on the Lofoten Islands).

But I have omitted and should add here to the list of nature's contributions to the wonder of this cruise the other natural phenomenon that makes it, along with the fjords, especially famous, namely, the Midnight Sun. We get into the part of the world where this occurs after crossing the Arctic Circle, and soon after we did this on July 1st our cruise members began watching for the sun not to set. At Bodo, a short distance above the Circle, the period for this is between June 3rd and July 7th, but farther up at North Cape it is much longer, from May 12th to July 29th. So we were around at the right time to see the sun descend to the edge of the horizon and at once begin rising again in the same spot, and we never had any really dark nights; but I am compelled to say that the high peaks of the islands and the almost ever-present clouds interfered considerably with our getting the dazzling glow shown in many pictures. (Readers may know that in winter there is no sun in the sky for a couple of months, November 18th to January 23rd at North Cape.)

Finally, something about the other source besides nature's contributions, of the pleasure and interest of this cruise — the programmed and other land trips which, as I said above, went on up and down the coast. Before mentioning any particular ones, two things may be said about practically all the places visited: (1) that various activities connected with fish and fishing are the main source of income, while in many places there is also increasingly great industrial development in various fields; and (2) that altho now rebuilt and thriving they were badly damaged or completely destroyed by Nazi bombing in World War II.

With my generously-allotted space falling fast I must just list, in the order visited, a few of the dozen places with which we were given opportunity to make some interesting contact, with mention of what I especially recall for each: Alesund. By cars to the church with perhaps the finest organ in Norway, with a brief but thrilling recital, then to the top of nearby Mt. Aksla and beautiful view of the town below with surrounding waters and mountains. Molde and Kristiansund. By coach thru Molde with great view of Romsdal mountains and its many snow-capped peaks, then by coach and ferry (across fjord) to Kristiansund, built on three islands and especially noted for its trade in clip-fish (dried salted codfish), which we saw drying on wooden racks (covered at night under waterproof "hats"). Reminded by some tourists of Venice, with narrow fjord-arms and water-taxis instead of canals and gondolas. Trondheim. Coach trip to one place outside Trondheim—remarkable Museum of Music History developed by Norwegian-born widow of wealthy Russian who had begun this before his untimely death: collections, arranged attractively in homelike rooms, of musical instruments of great variety and from many parts of the world, shown by a talented young musician-guide who played beautifully suitable selections on the pianos in different rooms associated with certain composers (this followed by refreshments in a quaint room across a courtyard). Tromso. Another island town, having close connections in the past with Arctic explorations, and with a huge white polar bear with open jaws on the pavement in front of one of its attractive souvenir shops (no danger, only a stuffed one). Having a cable lift which carries visitors across the water and above a mountain-side to a large lookout at the top with a restaurant and a thrilling view of the town far below and surrounding mountain peaks, some covered with snow. (Yes, I went up with some of our group.) (To Be Continued)

MOTEL SOLD

The Colton Motel, Steinwehr Ave., Gettysburg, has been sold by Joseph A. and Jane Z. Bous to Emory N. and Westanna C. Young, formerly of Lewisburg, for $133,000, according to a property transfer recorded in the Adams County courthouse. Possession was given November 1. The new owners said they may make some changes but declined to state what they may be.

Over $400 in Electric Bills "Cools" N. Y. Homeowner
Bernard Blomquist had electric heating installed in his new Staten Island, N. Y. home late last year. Despite unusually warm weather from November, 1963 to March of '64 he discovered his electric bills ran over $400 for this four-month period. This occurred even after insulating the ceiling, walls and floor, in addition to installing thermopane windows.
"The heat was extremely uncomfortable, particularly in the babies' room where it had to be kept at 75° for any warmth at all, and even at this high setting, it was uncomfortable," complained Blomquist.
This "cooled" him toward electric heating, so he switched to LP gas heat. Brooklyn Union's New Development salesman, Marty Curran, signed him up for a gas-fired LP house heating boiler to be used in a hot-water baseboard heating installation, a 40-gallon hot water LP gas heater and a Caloric deluxe built-in gas range. And they lived happily ever after!
