As we approach the finish wire of our coming election interest has reached a high peak and come next Tuesday evening there will be some highly disappointed candidates and voters, but then, that's the way it has to be when you go through an election. There must be winners and losers and we hope that any bitterness or animosity that might exist as an aftermath of the election is not of a long-lasting nature. We are blessed with a splendid crop of candidates, six in all, and there are only two seats to be filled. There have been several letters of endorsements of several candidates, etc., but absolutely none provided by the editorial staff of this paper. Some writers have preferred to remain anonymous for reasons of their own, and they have a perfect right to do so. We do not attempt to tell our staff how to vote or influence their vote or that of their family and we have never actually sponsored any candidate for office in a local election. This has been our policy and will continue to be. We have devoted space to those candidates and their friends who have asked for it. Some didn't want it and were willing to fight the race without assistance. That was their choice . . . not ours. There are no real political issues at stake and there is no partisan action being taken as far as we are aware. We leave the selection of officeholders entirely up to the citizens voting, and the responsibility for selecting the right qualified candidates is singularly theirs. So far it has been a good clean campaign and we feel reasonably certain that it will continue on such a level until after the election. As we said before, we have an outstanding crop of public-spirited citizens seeking office and we urge you to vote for the ones you think will do the best job. There is much work to be done for the betterment of this community and the right officeholders are essential to be able to accomplish what has to be done for improving this growing community, so scan your candidates, review their qualifications and cast your vote accordingly. See you at the polls?

Word has reached your writer that final approval for our new Postoffice has been granted and that work could start any day now. The site selection is the Town's lot adjacent to the Elizabeth Neck property. The confirmation has come from one of our U. S. Senators, Daniel Brewster, so it should be authentic. Along this line of thinking we feel that the Town should take some action on numbering houses preparatory to receiving mail carrier service. This has been mentioned numerous times in these columns and delegations have appeared before the Town Board requesting action but exactly nothing has been done to date, and this is not to our liking by any means. We feel that the new Town Council, after its organizational meeting, should make this project the first item on its agenda. Another project dragging its feet is the proposed annexation of approximately 100 acres east of Town which includes the 3-D and Emmitt Gardens acreage. Already many tax dollars have been lost by our community by lack of action on the part of the Town Council. Let's make this Project No. 2, fellas! Come July 1 we will lose another year's taxes on this ground so let's beat the deadline.

Library Sponsors Art Contest

The Art Contest sponsored by the Emmitsburg Public Library, will have its exhibition Sunday, April 25, at St. Euphemia's Hall. The exhibition will start at 2:00 p.m. and continue during the afternoon. The library wishes to extend a welcome to all parents, teachers and interested persons who wish to attend. Refreshments will be served by the Board of Trustees.

Mrs. Cleveland Hoke and Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kiggins and son, of Baltimore, visited last Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wivell.

Library Expanded; Services Improved

During the past few weeks the Emmitsburg Public Library has been receiving a steady flow of "white elephant" and rummage items from the local citizens. When enough items have been accumulated to hold an auction, the date and place will be announced. At a recent meeting of the Board of Trustees it was decided that the proceeds will be placed in a fund toward the purchase of a 16mm sound movie projector. This projector will be available to churches, clubs and organizations of the community free of charge. The Enoch Pratt Free Library Film Catalogue is now available at our library. The film collection covers a wide range of subjects for all age groups with emphasis on subjects of adult education and artistic value. Hundreds of films covering almost any subject of interest are in the collection. Other film catalogues listing films produced by manufacturers covering timely subjects, world events, sports and national interests are also available.

Upon the purchase of the 16mm projector, each organization desiring the use of this service will present a person to become a licensed operator. A training program on the operation and maintenance of the projector will be held. Upon completion of the course, a card will be issued, authorizing the person to pick up and use the projector for his respective organization. Only authorized personnel will be allowed to use the equipment.

William C. Ryder, president of the Board of Trustees, said, "From my observation, it seems that the projector is greatly needed in the community. Heads of organizations I have talked to have expressed their desire to have this service available in order to show films that they may obtain thru their organization."

The librarians, Mrs. John Warthen and Mrs. Vernon Keiholtz, are planning a film program to show in the library. A special film series for children will be set up once a month, preferably on Saturday morning. An adult series will be planned if desired by the citizens.

During the past year the library has been improved and enlarged. This project has been in charge of Mrs. William Carr. Donations collected by "The Friends of the Library" have greatly defrayed this expenditure. Mrs. Carr expresses her deepest thanks. Those having anything to donate to the White Elephant and Rummage Sale project may call the library, HI 7-2682, for pick-up service or bring them to the library during open hours.

PANGBORN MEMORIAL DEDICATION SATURDAY, MAY 1

The Pangborn Memorial Campanile, located at the National Shrine Grotto, Mount Saint Mary's College, will be dedicated by His Eminence Lawrence Cardinal Shehan, Archbishop of Baltimore, on Saturday afternoon, May 1. The dedication program is scheduled to begin at 3 p.m.

Donated by the Pangborn Foundation and its chairman, His Excellency, Papal Count Thomas W. Pangborn, Hagerstown industrialist and Philanthropist, the Campanile or bell tower is topped by the 26-foot gold-leafed bronze statue of "Our Lady of the Mountain." This bronze sculpture is reported to be the largest statue imported into this country in a single piece. It is the work of the noted Italian sculptor, Tommasi, and was cast from a full size plaster model in Pietrasanto, Italy.

The statue rests on an Indiana limestone pedestal atop a ten-story tower of rough hewn mountain stone, quarried at the site. From its vantage point on St. Mary's Mount, it is visible for miles.

The memorial, which stands on the site of the Church of St. Mary, erected in 1805 by Father John Dubois, will be dedicated to the "glory of God and His Blessed Mother." This theme is engraved on the bronze plaque which is found at the base of the tower.

A second plaque dedicating the fourteen carillon bells to distinguished religious and lay leaders has been placed within the tower. The bells were cast in Aarle-Rixtel, Holland, by Petit and Frisken, Ltd. They range in diameter from 16" to 40", weighing 99 to 1,408 pounds; each with a solenoid striker. Other features of the carillon are a program clock for automatic ringing of the chimes, a Westminster chime and hour strike, an automatic toll player, and a key board console.

The statue and tower are lighted each day from dusk until dawn by a special lighting system developed by the Sylvania Electric Corp., utilizing methods recently incorporated in the lighting of the Empire State Building in New York City.

Adjacent to the Campanile is the oldest grotto replica of the Shrine at Lourdes, France, in this country. Since it was designated as a National Shrine by the Holy See in 1958, many thousands of pilgrims, privately or in organized groups, have visited the site. The Shrine is operated under the supervision of Rev. Hugh J. Phillips, National Shrine Grotto Director and college chaplain.

Cardinal Shehan, who earlier in the day will dedicate the St. Joseph Provincial House at Emmitsburg, will be accompanied by many members of the Catholic hierarchy as well as distinguished national, state, and local government officials and guests.

EHS Seniors Plan Play

The Senior Class of Emmitsburg High School has chosen 'Tom Jones' as its class play. They are busily preparing for the presentation which will be May 15. It is a three act comedy by David Rogers and based upon the novel by Henry Fielding.

The romantic lover, Tom, will be played by Gary Valentine, while his true love, Sophia Western, will be portrayed by Frances Webb. Sophia's aunt and father are played by Phyllis Chatlos and Jeff Valentine. Squire Alworthy will be characterized by James Martin. With the addition of other actors and actresses, the play promises excitement and humor.

Don't you miss this adventurous and laughing Saturday evening at E.H.S., May 15th at 8:00 p.m. Get your tickets now! Call 447-2270 or contact any of the cast. Adults are $1 and children, 50c.

Town Election Tuesday; Six Candidates Listed In Race

Well over 500 Emmitsburg voters will have the opportunity to cast their ballots in next Tuesday's Town Election. The voters will make their selection for the two Commissionerships up for grabs from a total of six candidates.

Mrs. Yonnie Baker, town clerk, reported feverish activity to register before the deadline last Saturday. An additional 18 managed to sign up as the deadline neared. Registration books will not be reopened until after Tuesday's election. Total registration, as reported by the Town Clerk, is 549.

Starting out as what was thought would be a rather tame election a six-way race has developed and there is politicking aplenty as the election deadline approaches.

A change in the Town's Charter provides for an extra Commissioner on the Town Council this year and he will be elected for a three-year term. In addition the seat of incumbent Commissioner J. Norman Flax is open for filling.

Flax is seeking re-election.

Mayor Ralph F. Irelan who has another year to serve out his two-year term, announced this week that the ballots were being prepared and that candidates would be listed in alphabetical order, as prescribed by law.

Officially filing for the offices are these candidates and the order in which they will be listed on the ballots:

BOLLINGER, CHARLES
BOYLE, BERNARD H.
FLAX, J. NORMAN
RYDER, WILLIAM
STOUTER, CHARLES F.
TOPPER, QUINN F.

A quick glance at the candidates shows their occupations as follows: Charles Bollinger, retired farmer; Bernard Boyle, businessman for 30 years; Norman Flax, present Commissioner with six years of experience; William Ryder, printer and Linotype operator at Moore Business Forms, Inc., Thurmont; Charles F. Stouter, oil distributor and Quinn F. Topper, retired orchardist and bank director.

Balloting will take place in the Town Office (former Water Co. Bldg.), Tuesday, April 27 starting at 12 noon. The polls will be open until 7:00 p.m. (DST). Judges are William Strickhouser, Josephine Steinberger and Mrs. Roger Adams. In view of the intense interest displayed and the large number of candidates filing it is anticipated that voters will turn out in sizeable numbers Tuesday.

Latest citizens registering for Tuesday's voting include:

Says Flax, Boyle Make Good Team

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

When each one of you as an eligible voter in this community cast your ballot on April 27th, you will have participated in one of the most important elections ever held in Emmitsburg.

Our community has reached the point where it is absolutely vital that we have the guidance of truly qualified officials. Without such leadership, we shall never realize the continuing growth and expansion already existing in many of our neighboring communities.

Difficult to believe, there have been cases of our highly esteemed commissioners being shoved into office by others who have lacked both the knowledge and the courage to run themselves. These political "backers" have also assumed the forms of organizations and groups, which considered the growth of the town not nearly so important as their own selfish desires for success. The saddest aspect of these elections has been the pathetic waste of leadership potential in the losing candidates. We will never know and can only imagine how much more prosperous our community might now be had we just given the right men for the job a fair chance to show what they could do.

Can't we use this election as a new beginning and weed out the laggards, the popularity seekers and the "Yes Men?" Now at last, we have the opportunity to elect two commissioners who are aggressive, progressive and above all, who will have the good of the community at heart.

Among the names of several men appearing on the ballot, two are outstanding and deserve your confidence and your vote. Both J. Norman Flax and Bernard H. Boyle have served the townspeople for many years.

A very persistent Mr. Flax has certainly proved that no amount of criticism can sway him or stop him from working for the community. A good commissioner cannot allow himself to be influenced by adverse public opinion if he is to effectively accomplish what he sets out to do.

Mr. Boyle, while engaged in private enterprise, has also served the public for many years. Certainly few other men in Emmitsburg have more contact with the people than does Mr. Boyle. And these frequent day-to-day contacts have provided him with a keen awareness of their problems and an insight into the needs of the town.

The coming election can and will affect our town for years to come. For this reason it is so important that we select the right men. Separate the unqualified from the qualified and then make your choice.

But please vote!

Believe Topper Well-Qualified

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

After scanning the lists of candidates for the coming Town Election we have come to the conclusion that the election of Candidate Quinn F. Topper is highly essential to the welfare of our community.

Today's town government requires the services of intelligent and frugal individuals. The work load has increased tremendously during the past decade and we must select qualified representatives to see the job is completed to our satisfaction.

Mr. Topper, a retired orchardist who took a primitive acreage and turned it into one of the finest orchards in this area, has demonstrated his ability to manage and earn a profit. In addition he has been a member of the board of directors of the Farmers State Bank since its beginning some 35 years ago. Among his other qualifications, he is a member of the advisory board of The Gettysburg Farm Bureau and has been for 15 years. One cannot overlook such qualifications lightly and in our mind there more than qualify Candidate Topper for the office he is seeking.

In the best interests of Emmitsburg we urge that when you cast your ballot in next Tuesday's election, you would do well to vote for Mr. Topper.

EHS Future Teachers Honored

The Emmitsburg Chapter of the Future Teachers of America Club recently overreached their goal in their annual "Bundle Days" clothing drive. For the past several years the Future Teachers have had the collection of clean usable clothing to be sent to the Save the Children Federation as their main project for the year. They announce the drive to the elementary and high school classes, distribute bags, and then collect, sort, pack and weigh the garments contributed.

They had a special goal this year. In January they were delighted to receive a bronze plaque from a Save the Children Federation official for having collected more pounds of clothing per capita than any school in Maryland with the exception of one other school in Montgomery County. Emmitsburg was the only school in Maryland with an enrollment under 500 pupils to ever receive this award.

In this year's drive, the FTA collected 65 bags or 911 pounds of clothing—this was 19 bags or 111 pounds more than last year. They hope to reach a 1000 pound goal next year.

The FTA would like to thank all students, parents, teachers, and others for their generous contributions to the less fortunate people of our country.

In December, the FTA had an equally successful project when they collected many toys to be distributed to local needy children for Christmas.

Benefits paid on behalf of Blue Shield subscribers and dependents in the 83 Blue Shield Plans during the first half of 1964 amounted to $615 million.

Candidate Views Opinions

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

As a candidate for Commissioner of the Town of Emmitsburg, I pledge myself to the following:

If I am elected, I will work for—

Publishing of facts and figures on the cost of projects undertaken by the Town.

Quarterly special town meetings (these being in addition to the regular town meetings) for any and every citizen to attend, for the purpose of presenting his complaint, requests, suggestions and support of any problem or issue which affects or benefits the individual and community as a whole. This is the right and duty of every taxpayer and in this way the town officials and private citizens can operate as a combined force to improve our community and aid its growth.

Careful handling of the tax dollar, being fully aware that our community is made up largely of retired people living on a fixed budget.

Town support of Youth Programs. This is greatly needed in our community today. Taking a quote from "Scouter Weekly Digest," a Boy Scouts of America publication, "It has been estimated that one juvenile delinquent can cost the taxpayers as much as $25,000."

Your vote will be appreciated on Tuesday, April 27.

Big Write-In For Thurmont

The "sticky" situation in the Thurmont election campaign is not so sticky anymore. At least not to the candidate who brought about the situation.

Roy W. Lookingbill, Thurmont barber, who hopes to paste incumbent Mayor Donald L. Lewis in Monday's election said that he is proceeding with plans to print several thousand stickers to be stuck on ballots by his supporters.

The sticker situation came about when Lookingbill announced his candidacy for the mayor's post after nominations were closed.

Last week he asked the Frederick County State's Attorney office whether it would be legal for voters in Thurmont to paste his name on the ballots rather than writing it in.

When he was unable to obtain a legal opinion from anyone in authority Lookingbill decided to go ahead with having the several thousands stickers printed. They will be distributed throughout the town Friday.

Charles R. Angell, Lookingbill's campaign chairman, said this week there is no law against stickers being pasted on ballots. Unless someone produces a law forbidding it, the stickers with Lookingbill's name on them will be used at the polls, he added.

VFW AMBULANCE

John Paden, Myersville, Md., and Mr. Kotchick, Endicott, N. Y., were transported this week to the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, via the VFW ambulance. Mrs. Russell Andrew and Gordon Parks, Emmitsburg, were transferred home from the hospital via the ambulance. Drivers were: Paul E. Humerick, Donald Byard and Leo M. Boyle.

Legion Auxiliary Has 77 Members

The chaplain reported several get-well, and sympathy cards had been sent; several personal visits to the sick had been made, and several thank-you notes were read from members. The group voted to make donations to the Easter Seal and Cancer Funds and to the local Library. Members reported babysitting hours and the hours spent helping the men of the Post with their annual party. The Auxiliary room used for the Public Health Clinic was used 85 hours, 43 children were treated and 12 maternity cases were handled. A donation will also be made towards the tuition of a local retarded child, and to the Department President's Project, which this year is the Veterans at Springfield Hospital.

100 YEARS AGO

JOHNSTON SURRENDERS AS CIVIL WAR ENDS

BY LON K. SAVAGE

(Editor's note: This is the last in a series of Civil War articles that has been running during the past four Civil War Centennial years.)

Confederate General Joseph E. Johnston surrendered his army to Federal General William Tecumseh Sherman in North Carolina 100 years ago this week, and the fires of four years of Civil War sputtered out.

Johnston's surrender was made without a fight; it was just so much bookwork, in fact after the surrender of Robert E. Lee at Appomattox on April 9. But with Johnston's surrender, the war could be called legally at an end, although other Confederates continued fighting in isolated pockets for weeks thereafter.

Even before Appomattox, Johnston knew his little army could not defeat Sherman's 60,000 veterans, and now that Lee was gone, he had to face both Sherman and Ulysses S. Grant. On April 12, Johnston had conferred with Jefferson Davis, president of the now-dead Confederacy, who was fleeing South from Richmond, and they had agreed that Johnston must follow Lee's example.

Surrender

So Johnston sent a message from Durham to Sherman at Raleigh suggesting the surrender, and Sherman immediately began the negotiations. Messages went back and forth, and the two men met April 17 and 18 near Durham to work out the details.

The agreement they worked out brought only trouble for Sherman. The terms treated of political and civil matters; they allowed the Confederate soldiers to stack their arms in their own state capitals, and they gave certain recognition to state governments of the South.

Sherman sent the agreement to Grant, and it came back with a firm disapproval by both Grant and the cabinet in Washington. Moreover, it was published throughout the nation and criticized as being too lenient on the South.

Grant Arrives

Grant, himself, came to Raleigh to oversee the final surrender, and it was achieved without further ado, on the same terms that Grant had given to Lee at Appomattox. Except for Sherman's reputation, the fuss over the surrender meant little.

There still were loose ends to be wrapped up in the war, and first among these was the capture of Davis. That, too, came about in due time.

Davis, his cabinet and a detachment of troops had steadily moved South after Appomattox, and at every city, the traveling party grew smaller. Once in Georgia, Davis dismissed his cavalry escort and made his way farther South with his wife and a small retinue.

On May 10, Davis' party was surprised in camp near Irwinsville, Ga., by Federal troops, and he was captured. He made one last attempt to escape by running from the camp, wearing his wife's shawl and cloak which he had thrown around him in the haste of his departure. The incident gave rise to the widely published report that he was trying to escape the country disguised as a woman.

And so the war ended. Soldiers, cabinet members and officials of the Confederacy made their way to their homes or were captured; Judah P. Benjamin, Secretary of State, fled the country to England. The last of the Confederate soldiers gradually disappeared; the last of the Confederate ships were hunted down, and the experiment in rebellion slowly did away.

Ford Mustang Sets Sales Record

On its way to establishing a record as the most successful new car ever introduced in the United States, the Ford Mustang outsold all but three other car lines in the first year following its public introduction on April 17, 1964.

Overcoming such obstacles as lack of availability and a half-month strike which halted Mustang production, the sporty new car chalked up more first-year sales than any other car in automotive history.

"The only problem we've had with the Mustang all year is making them fast enough," Donald N. Frey, Ford Motor Company vice president and Ford Division general manager, reported.

More than 22,000 Mustangs were ordered by Ford dealer showroom visitors on April 17-18—the first weekend the new car was publicly introduced—and a record four-million persons visited the showrooms during introduction week-end.

Original production schedules called for approximately 1,300 Mustangs to be built daily at the company's Dearborn (Mich.) assembly plant. But even before the car was introduced to the public, reaction from selected groups which previewed the Mustang induced the company to plan the conversion of its San Jose (Calif.) assembly plant to Mustang production.

Even with San Jose's added capacity boosting total Mustang output to 10,000 a week, production of the new car still proved inadequate. As Mustang sales climbed to the 100,000 mark in early August—only 92 selling days after the car's appearance on the market—Ford dealers clamored for "more Mustangs." By late October, when the 200,000th Mustang was produced, the new car had surpassed 18 domestic car lines in calendar-year sales despite the fact it had spotted them a 3½-month lead.

A "2+2" fastback model joined the original hardtop and convertible models in late September, but a two-week strike in November idled most Ford plants across the country and seriously limited supplies of the already scarce Mustang. It was not until mid-December that the 250,000th Mustang was available for sale.

However, an ever-growing backlog of orders strained Mustang's two-plant production capacity to the point that, on December 18, the company announced plans to convert still another plant—in Metuchen, N. J.—to Mustang assembly. By this time, the Mustang was outselling all but three other car lines in its short time on the market.

With addition of the Metuchen plant hiking Mustang production capacity to more than 50,000 a month, Ford dealers finally were able to start meeting the demand. Sales climbed to record highs in March, prompting Mr. Frey to observe that "we would have reached these sales levels long ago but we simply didn't have enough Mustangs to sell."

The increasing availability enabled Mustang to surpass the previous first-year sales record of 417,174 established by the Ford Falcon in 1959-60 and become the most successful new car ever introduced in this country.

"The Mustang's first year on the automotive scene cannot be told only in sales statistics," Mr. Frey noted. "It also had an unprecedented emotional impact on the motoring public."

He pointed out that the company has received more than 4,000 letters from Mustang customers relating how the new car influenced their lives and those of their families and friends.

"This kind of personal identification with a product is a rare and real tribute to the impression it has made on the public," Mr. Frey said.

He termed another phenomenon associated with the car "Mustang Mania," noting that various business organizations had sought permission during the year to use the Mustang name on their products.

"Today, a man can dress virtually from head to toe in 'Mustang' clothes and a young lady can wear a wide assortment of 'Mustang' jewelry," Mr. Frey said.

The Mustang also has become extremely popular as a first prize or sales premium, with hundreds awarded throughout the country by various associations or conventions.

Although the base retail price of the standard Mustang has remained under $2,400, customers have ordered so much optional equipment that the average price has been $2,760. Most popular extras thus far have been white sidewall tires, installed on 84 per cent of units built; radios, 81 per cent; eight-cylinder engines, 71 per cent; automatic transmissions, 52 per cent; power steering, 26 per cent; and air conditioning, 10 per cent.

Who are the Mustang buyers? Records show that:

Median age of Mustang buyers is 31, with 62 per cent under 35 years of age.

37 per cent of all buyers are women.

Median income of buyers is $9,100.

About 60 per cent of all buyers have some college education.

Many people make some kind of plans to protect themselves and their families against lost income caused by retirement or death. But few ever take precautions against the time when they may be faced with a loss of earnings due to a severe, long-lasting disability.

The planners of the social security program were well aware of this. In 1956, the Social Security Act was amended to provide added protection against the misfortune of disability for those covered by the law.

Two kinds of disability protection are provided under the social security program:

Poverty War Experiment

Last August the New York Daily News, exercising only a little reportorial initiative, discovered in Manhattan a multi-million dollar slum project lavishly subsidized by federal, city, and private (Ford Foundation) money and liberally infested with Communists and Communist-fronters. Mobilization for Youth, Inc., built on the latest social theory to be had from the city's universities, had neglected to safeguard itself against Red infiltration and political scandal.

MFY was launched auspiciously some two years ago by the late President Kennedy, who described it as "the most advanced program yet devised to combat delinquency on a broad scale." The New York Times, then, was calling it "part of a program designed to strike eventually at the roots of the national juvenile delinquency problem." As late as last July, President Johnson was announcing a $1.5 million federal grant to MFY for training school drop-outs and declaring it had his "deep interest and support."

New Methods

Thus the panacea that was to have ended poverty and delinquency on Lower East Side was under the aegis of Washington from its beginning. But until recently neither the federal government nor the press, and therefore the public, knew anything about what was taking place within this experimental war on poverty. After two years and $8 millions of taxpayers' money largely wasted, about all that is left is investigations and reports. An FBI report sustained the charge that the project was Communist-ridden, while a report of sociologists to the White House cited its "outstanding contributions" in demonstrating "new and effective methods."

What had this prototype for the anti-poverty bill done, besides squandering several millions of what may have been a five year budget of nearly $27 million? It sponsored or made available facilities for radical political action such as rent strikes led by Communists, promoted demonstrations such as the Washington march, and set up school boycotts, all of which were supposed to give slum kids "participation" in community life. Its executives had lavish expense accounts, and its subversives had refuge as well as financing. The Times finally dutifully reported that the FBI found in MFY two Communists, three Chinese-type Reds, and 32 others with past Communist connections.

Next, The Poverty Bill President Johnson signed the poverty bill a short time after the explosion rocked New York City. The investigations were slowed down "until after the elections," but a city board eventually came up with a long list of grievances such as "loose and shoddy administrative practices," "improper spending," and "hiring of individuals of questionable background and activities." In the meantime, those with such backgrounds fled the shelter of MFY, like rats from a burning building.

As the scandal exploded MFY officials were boasting of the distinction they were achieving as Mr. Johnson's pioneers. They bragged of staffing a similar Harlem organization that proposes to spend $118 million in three years, and were sending personnel to other organizations outside the state. Scores of MFY staff members were fleeing the premises, and the rush was on among politicians such as Javits, Johnson, and Wagner to dissociate themselves.

Whose Ideas Behind It? The liberals running the MFY pilot plant did not believe in inquiring into the background of its employees' political beliefs. The truth very likely is that they were ideologically unable to distinguish Marxism from liberalism, in those surroundings. The whole basis of MFY's approach was to challenge the existing American concepts, defying law and order as well as traditional institutions, in the style and manner of Marxist revolutionaries. The full extent of its Communist penetration may not be known unless Congress investigates it.

The scandal of irresponsible waste of public funds is bad enough. Worse, certainly, was the idea of devoting effort, energy, and treasure to such admirable purposes in such an un-American manner. No wonder Norman Thomas could rub hands gleefully and praise the windfall that socialism received in the poverty bill. On the basis of this evidence provided by MFY, the newest theories of the sociologists are impossible to implement, even with assistance from Marxists. Will it be the

OUTDOOR SPORTING TIPS

Nylon Rope

Always carry a short length of light strong nylon rope when you are deer hunting. Makes tire-some hauling job easy.

Rat Trap

Nail a rat trap to a board and you have a fine tail holder for cleaning small fish.

Handy Binoculars

When you are trying to see distant objects, sometimes it helps to form hands into binocular shape and look through finger "tubes." Centers vision.

Sharpen Hook

A few swipes at a smooth rock will sharpen points of a hook that have been dulled by striking something.

Nailed Sinker

If lead sinker isn't holding well, drive two nails through in the shape of an X.

Waterproof Line

Punch a hole in the bottom of a shoe polish can and run fly line through it. Colors, preserves and waterproofs line.

Surf Sinker

California surf fishermen tired of losing sinkers fill small cloth bags with sand. They do the job, don't get stuck.

Fishy Squirrels

Carry a ball of fish line with you next squirrel hunt. If you can't spring a bushytail into the open, tie line to a bush on one side of tree and hide on other. A yank sends squirrel scurrying from movement, you've got him.

Small Game Freeze

Empty cardboard milk cartons make fine freezer units for any small game that will fit in them. Just fill carton with game, then fill with water and freeze.

SPRING TACKLE "TRAINING"

Anglers can take a tip from the pre-season warmups and training now underway in the baseball camps.

Seeing that equipment functions perfectly is just as important to a fisherman as good physical condition is to a touted 20-game winner or the team's "big stick."

Getting gear in shape after a winter's layoff is vital to the success of early trips afloat, state the folks at Mercury outboards. If you don't, you're likely to discover all sorts of problems... and all at the wrong time.

While most of us were admonished to prepare our gear last fall, such good advice has a strange habit of falling on closed ears... particularly if the geese were flying. So haul out the tackle box NOW, while you have the time.

Thoroughly clean reels, re-lubricating according to the maker's specs... but use greases sparingly. Check lines for signs of weakness; snip off 10 feet of monofilament, if you haven't already done so. Remove that fly line from the spool and hang in loose coils, if only for a short period.

Lures should be touched up with paint, if needed. Hone hooks to needle sharpness. Polish spoons and spinners like fine silver — if they don't take a bright shine, replace them.

Though reels are the most critical elements in tackle, inspect rods carefully. Look for loose wrappings, ferrules and reel seats. Observe carefully the condition of the tip where the line rubs against the guide; any indication of furrowing calls for immediate replacement.

Plenty of soap and water, mixed with a generous portion of old-fashioned "elbow grease," will do the job on most other items, say the Mercury folks.

Spring conditioning prevents excuses. Get started now!

Urged To Support 'MS' Campaign

To the man on the street, the initials "M . . . S" can stand for many things: a manuscript, a master of science, a master in surgery. To an estimated 500,000 of our fellow Americans, though, stricken and disabled in the years between 20 and 40, the initials MS stand for just one thing . . . multiple sclerosis, a disabling disease of the brain and spinal cord, known as the great crippler of young adults.

These young men and women, mothers and fathers, husbands and wives, face a future filled with the burdens the MS-imposed chronic disability brings: a future marked by increased inability to work, to play, to enjoy those pleasures of young adulthood which most of us take completely for granted.

And what of their families? . . .

husbands financially devastated by a wife's need for special, round-the-clock nursing service . . . wives who must turn breadwinners simply to provide life's bare necessities . . . children who must—do—assume the responsibilities of the adult world long before their time. If there are about a half-million actual victims of MS and related diseases, then, by today's population figures alone, there are more than two-and-a-half million Americans either directly or indirectly afflicted with multiple sclerosis.

Cause, cure and prevention for MS remain unknown. Scientists do, however, know what happens when MS strikes. Briefly, and in layman's terms, multiple sclerosis attacks the substance which protects nerve fibers in the brain and spinal cord. Patches of this substance break down and seem to disappear into the surrounding tissue. Scar tissue plaques form over the denuded nerve fibers. During the process nerve message impulses are shorted out, distorted, sometimes even blocked. Functions of seeing, walking, speaking, movement and balance are affected. Total disability can be the result.

No one disputes the fact that multiple sclerosis must be conquered, and soon, if succeeding generations are to be spared its physical and emotional torment. Last year, President Lyndon Johnson himself inaugurated the campaign against MS with these words: "Multiple sclerosis is a crippler and we cannot rest in this country until we have conquered it." Wonderful words for a noteworthy cause.

It remains, however, for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and its chapters to assume the total task of conquest over MS. The only national voluntary health agency concerned with the whole problem of MS, the Society has spent nearly sixty cents out of every dollar received at national headquarters for its research and scientific programs. Since its inception in 1946, the Society has spent more than four-and-a-half million dollars on research, has provided research fellowship grants to swell the ranks of researchers and educators.

Now the goal is in sight. At last, researchers are convinced MS will be conquered sometime in the not-too-distant future, perhaps in all of our lifetimes. That will be a happy day, indeed. But there's no value to us—to you or me—in our sitting back simply to let that happen. Since the Society has undertaken to conquer MS and has dedicated that victory to all of us, then all of us must make ourselves worthy of that dedication and that victory. We must support the Society this year as never before either with money or our time, to share the cause, the fight, the victory over multiple sclerosis—the great crippler of young adults.

A new type of GI insurance will be available May 1, to many disabled veterans who were originally eligible for NSLI insurance, in amounts from $1,000 to $10,000.

Refreshment, Recreation, Relaxation

Your lawn's the place to enjoy all three R's — a place to set up a picnic table and refresh the birds as in this picture, your friends or yourselves. Food tastes better outdoors.

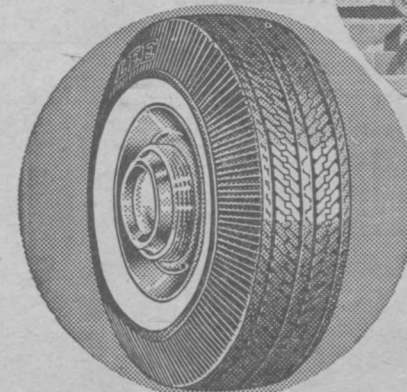

Your lawn is also the place to play — perfect for such games as croquet, badminton, tether ball, volley ball or tennis. Outdoor recreation is both enjoyable and healthful.

And, of course, the lawn's the place to relax, sitting on the soft grass and, perhaps, wriggling your bare toes in its coolness or, loling in a reclining chair and reading.

Zing into spring! Chevrolet Impala

Chevrolet Impala Super Sport Coupe—one of two bucket-seated beauties for '65.

People who buy other big expensive-looking cars get one thing you won't (big expensive-looking payments)

It looks like a big car. And is—by almost any standard you want to apply.

Width? Nobody builds a car as much as one inch wider. Length? It grew three inches this year. Roominess? Every closed model's got three inches more shoulder room, front and rear, and more leg and foot room up front too. Luxury? Nice little touches like the look of mellow walnut across the Impala's instrument panel. And big touches. Like the fineness of the same Body by Fisher workmanship that makes some of America's most expensive cars look so expensive. How about the ride? Chevrolet engineers took the Jet-smooth one and smoothed it out even more this year. Also made it more stable by widening the wheel stance. Price? That's where Chevrolets fall way short of the other big expensive-looking cars. But we wouldn't have it any other way. Would you?

One last question: How soon can you make a good spring buy on a Chevrolet? One last answer: Just as soon as you can get down to your Chevrolet dealer's.

EDUCATION PROGRAM AIDS SOLDIER, ARMY

FORT MEADE, Md. (ANF)—It is often said that education "pays off." The truth of this statement has been proven by Sp5 Julian Keehne, an electronic repairman stationed with the Signal Missile Master Support Detachment (SMMSD) at Fort Meade.

The young soldier enrolled in off-duty correspondence courses through the Army's GED program and was awarded a BS degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of Alabama.

When the need arose for an improved Electronic Countermeasure Simulator, Specialist Keehne put his education and ingenuity to work. The result was the design and fabrication of a simulator which has aroused great interest as a training device.

The device can provide jamming or electronic countermeasure patterns almost identical to those now supplied by four large simulators costing $22,500. Dubbed the "Black Box," the new model would cost approximately $150.

Simulators are used to give radar operators practice in evading jamming and electronic clutter similar to that which would be used by incoming enemy aircraft.

Specialist Keehne's "Black Box," provides all known electronic jamming patterns and has proved to be highly mobile and simple to operate. Its use may result in substantial dollar-savings in the training of radar and missile master operators.

Specialist Keehne's home is in Piedmont, Ala.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson's Point Of View On: Harvesting The Ocean's Riches. BABSON PARK, Mass., April 22—The population of the earth is expanding at such a pace that it may not be too long before the land resources alone will not be able to provide man with sufficient food and industrial commodities. Hence the mounting scientific interest in the endless supplies of nearly all basic human industrial requirements that are there for the taking in the 153 million square miles of water covering three-quarters of the earth's surface.

Research Findings Highly Promising. Oceanographic research is coming up with new and fascinating possibilities every day, probing all the way from the continental shelves stretching out from the land masses to the ocean's deep abysses. The bathyscaphe is a vessel that can explore as far as 36,000 feet below the surface; sonar, oil, and geological drillers, complicatedly equipped divers, and other ingenious devices are investigating the riches of the ocean depths. While a cubic mile of sea water contains some $93 million worth of gold, millions of tons of magnesium, sodium, and sulfur, and vast quantities of cobalt, nickel, silver, and other valuable elements, the big problem is still how to extract these treasures profitably — or at least economically.

The solution may come eventually. Meanwhile, attention is being focused on the vast storehouse of minerals on the ocean floor of the continental shelves. There is as yet no public or private U. S. program for exploring the shelves in search of valuable lodes of metals and minerals, despite the fact that ocean-bottom oil and gas supplies have been successfully obtained for a long while. It is encouraging to note, however, that last June an international convention agreed to each country's having exclusive jurisdiction over and access to the resources of its own continental shelves.

The Way Will Be Opened

For the United States, this means that commercially exploitable ocean floors reaching out from ten miles to as far as 300 miles assure this country of some 850,000 square miles of underwater land believed to be fantastically rich in minerals and metals. Some legislators are aware of the unlimited addition to national wealth and resources that could come from off-shore deposits, and are urging federal support for the necessary research and exploration. Fortunately, too, several large private companies are working on the problem, emphasizing the technological means of locating heavy quarries of requisite materials and exploiting them at a reasonable cost.

Mining of the sea floor is bound to come, despite the skepticism that always accompanies such new ideas. Pioneers with ingenuity and vision are already giving their attention to this matter, and others will join forces as the "fool's venture" becomes an ever-nearer reality. Keep in mind that less than a hundred years ago few believed that phosphate from the earth could be used to fertilize our agricultural land. But chemists who knew enough never to underestimate the future kept at it, and now phosphate fertilizing is a generally valuable and rewarding practice.

Undersea Mining Feasible

Despite the half-hearted efforts that have been made thus far in techniques for finding and bringing up minerals and metals from the coastal shallows, at least a few hopeful steps have been reported. In fact, dredging is said to be used at present in Japan to surface iron-bearing sand deposits, in South Africa to raise diamonds from the coastal shelf, in Malaysia to obtain tin. The U. S. Bureau of Mines has contracted with two domestic corporations to develop a means of recovering nodules of gold and silver from the continental shelf, with costs expected to be much lower than land methods.

Humanity's needs will be steadily more difficult to supply as the population explosion becomes ever more critical. With the resources of the continents strained to take care of requirements, interest in the infinite potential of the ocean floor will quicken. Geologists, technologists, and chemists will rally to the cause, and it may not be more than a few decades before mining the ocean bottom will be as natural and profitable an activity as operating our land excavations now is.

In the military age bracket, 317,500 men were rejected for service in World War II because of cardiovascular ailments, and 40,000 more during the 12 months of recruiting for the Korean conflict. An additional 90,000 were given disability discharges from the Armed Forces because of these ailments.

If you've got a pocketful of empty, here's a little trick millions of Americans use: save money before you get it. Then forget it. The Payroll Savings Plan supplies the will power.

Just give your employer the go-ahead to set aside a small amount from each paycheck and apply it to the purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds.

Before you know it, the Bonds will start rolling in. It's a mighty good way to put those loose coins to work. The ones that always seem to burn a hole in your pocket.

The theory behind the Plan is simple: what you can't see, you won't miss. And it works—for millions of Americans.

If you think it hurts a little, you'll only think so at first. And remember that this is probably the only part of your take-home pay you'll ever see again.

Then the next time you pass your payroll department, stop in and see how pleasant it is to start hanging on to some of your money—with U. S. Savings Bonds.

In loving memory of my dear mother, Nellie G. Hess, who passed away April 22, 1933. April twenty-second is here again The day your suffering came to an end. Dear God in wisdom and His love Opened the pearly gates above. Gone dear Mother gone forever How we miss your smiling face But you left us to remember None on earth can take your place. What would I give her hand to clasp Her patient face to see To hear her voice, to see that smile As in the days that used to be But some sweet day we'll meet again Beyond the toil and strife And clasp each other's hand once more In Heaven that happy life God gave us strength to bear it and Courage to meet the blow But what it meant to lose you, the world will never know. loving daughter Mrs. Charles R. Rocky Ridge 4-H Club Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Rocky Ridge Progressive 4-H Club was held recently at the home of Jerry Orndorff. The meeting was called to order by the president, Jeff Valentine, with the 4-H Pledge and the Pledge to the American Flag. Thirty members answered the roll call with a "safety rule for the highway."

It was reported that the 4-H scrap drive held March 27 and April 3 amounted to $82.00.

Reports were given by Fred Keilholtz and Darlyn Valentine on the tours held on March 19 to Alpha Portland Cement Co. and Ideal Dairy in Frederick. Even though the weather was poor on this day, the tour was a wonderful success.

Gary Valentine, and Bobby and Dale Sharrer represented the club in the County Tractor Driving Contest held April 3 at the Frederick Fairgrounds. Gary placed 3rd, Dale 8th and Bobby 11th.

Mr. Keilholtz, Mr. James Long and Tom Keilholtz, planted 3,000 trees for the 4-H Club April 5. The rest of the trees will be planted at a later date. The other boys will be called upon to finish helping with this project.

Jeff Valentine brought before the club the idea of starting a project ring. This is giving one member a lamb or pig with the understanding that he will give another 4-H member one of the offspring of his project. It was voted upon and decided to do so.

Fred Keilholtz gave an interesting demonstration on "Saddling and Bridling a Horse."

Following the meeting, refreshments were served.

College To Observe French Day

French Day at St. Joseph College on Tuesday, April 27, will center around Le Treteau de Paris, the French theatrical troupe performing on the Emmitsburg campus that day. Members of Pi Delta Phi and students of the French Department will host the troupe during its visit. Presently on tour of American and Canadian universities, the performance at St. Joseph's marks the return engagement.

Brandywine Gears For Opener

Joe Hylan, of Norristown, Pa., at 72, one of the oldest active trainer-drivers in the harness racing business, shown with another ole timer, 10-year-old pacer Keen's Redcoat, will mark his 13th consecutive season at Brandywine Raceway this year during the 60-night divided meet May 1-June 3 and August 2-September 6. The seegar-smokin' Hylan, who's won 758 races and $881,067 since U.S.-T.A. records were kept starting in 1939, has a 12-horse stable including one sharp two-year-old, R. U. Ready, a son of the great Adios Harry.

ment of the troupe after a successful billing last year.

Under the direction of Pierre Franck, Le Treteau will present Paul Claudel's "L'Annonce Faite A Marie" (The Tidings Brought to Mary) in the evening at 7:30 in DePaul Auditorium.

Madeleine Vimes, as Mara, is one of the brightest new lights on the Parisian stage. The cast also includes Christine Fersen as Violaine, Paul Descombes as Pierre de Craon, Germaine Delbat as La Mere, Jean Bolo as Anne Vercors, Jeana-Claude Berq as Jacques Hury, Jean Pommier as Le Maire de Chevroches, and Robert Sirey-geol as L'Apprenti.

Sister Margaret Flint, chairman of the Modern Language Department and moderator of the Omega chapter of Pi Delta Phi, is coordinator of French Day. Student chairman, Elene Dougherty, is assisted by Anne Sacchet, Elizabeth O'Brien, Margaret Mullaly, and Michelin Gold.

The public is invited to attend the performance which will be presented in French. Reservations may be made through the Modern Language Dept., St. Joseph College, Emmitsburg, Maryland 21727.

Frontier Club Hears Educator

Mr. Paul Fogle, Pupil Personnel Supervisor for Frederick County Schools, was the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of The New Frontier Democratic Women's Club held Monday evening, April 12, at the VFW in Emmitsburg.

Mr. Fogle explained the many duties and purposes of his staff, emphasizing the idea that he and his co-workers make "helping the child" their main objective rather than that of "chasing him" and pulling him by the collar through the school door. Attendance problems are referred to his department by teachers and principals.

A "covered dish social" has been planned for the next meeting, Monday, May 10 at 7 p.m. at the VFW. Tomato juice, roast beef, rolls, peas, apple pie and coffee will be furnished by the club; tossed salad, scalloped potatoes and baked beans are to be brought by individual members.

Those club members who have not made arrangements for the dinner should decide what covered dish they want to bring and tell one of the following members of the committee planning the affair: Mrs. Frances Rosensteel, Mrs. Jane Nolan or Mrs. Ruth Houck. Each member is allowed one guest. Mrs. Ruth Houck will make provision for "dinner music."

Mrs. Jane Bollinger, president, has tickets at $5 apiece for the county Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner to be held Tuesday, May 4, at the Peter Pan Inn in Urbana, beginning at 7 p.m. A social hour will precede the dinner at 6 p.m. and dancing will follow at 9 p.m.

At the March meeting Mrs. Bollinger discussed with the members Bill No. 805 recently passed by the Maryland House of Delegates.

The bill, introduced by Delegate Charles Collins, is one which Mrs. Bollinger and her co-workers have been striving for. It is now Section 38 (b) (6) of Article 33 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1957) Edition and 1964 Supplement) and reads as follows: "Frederick County. In addition to the times and places for registration otherwise required or permitted, the Board of Supervisors of Elections for Frederick County must provide for registration of voters at such times and places as may be requested by the respective chairman of the Republican or Democratic central committee for Frederick County; provided, however, that this section shall not require the Board to provide for such additional registration more often than once every two years in any one election district."

Mt. Airy Loses School Fight

Mount Airy and Sykesville have lost the battle to retain their high schools.

In a decision handed down this week the State Board of Education voted in favor of the Carroll County Board of Education's selection of Winfield as a site for a consolidated high school.

Asked if he had any comment on the decision, Samuel M. Jenness, Carroll County Superintendent of Schools, replied, "Not a word."

Based on the recommendations of a study committee appointed to review the situation, the decision resolved a year-long dispute between citizens organizations from both Carroll County communities and the county board of education. Dr. A. W. Zimmerman, deputy state superintendent of schools, told the board that "no new substantive points" were brought out that were not presented a year ago when the board turned down several individuals' requests for reconsideration of the school site.

"As far as the state board is concerned," he added, "this concludes the whole matter."

The $2,200,000 high school at Winfield, where ground already has been broken, will take care of approximately 694 students from Mount Airy and Sykesville and an additional 100 from Westminster High School in grades 10 through 12.

Cites Merits of Two Local Candidates

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle: Well, Mr. and Mrs. Town Voter, with the town election just a few days away now, and all the candidates signed up that can this year, six in all, we should now stop and think which two of these men are best qualified for the Commissioner's job for the next three years.

With the exception of Mr. Flax, who is seeking re-election and who has done a swell job, we have five candidates who are new to town politics. One is a retired farmer, living in town just a couple of years; another one a retired fruit grower living in town less than two years; another one is in the oil business just out of town, but residing in town; the fourth works at a nearby factory and has lived in town most of his life, and the fifth, is a successful businessman with over 25 years in a successful business, which is still growing and who has lived in the town of Emmitsburg all these years as his business grew.

Years past his friends tried to persuade him to run for local office but to no avail. This year he was asked to file for Commissioner and he did not hesitate to do so. He feels now that he has the time to devote to town business, which is really getting to be a business, and with his knowledge he has gained over the years of the town's needs, etc., he can help to get the job done. Being a large property owner and businessman, he has attended many town meetings of different sorts, because he was interested in what was taking place. I'm not sure I can say this of the other four candidates.

In closing I hope you, the voters will stop and study the candidates as I have and then vote Bernard H. Boyle and J. Norman Flax for Commissioners, to lead our town for another three years of good town business and to protect our tax dollar and get the most out of it.
