From all indications we are going right on into the fall or winter season without our favorite "Indian" summer. This year has been a strange one in many ways and we hope the winter months don't follow the extreme pattern that the past nine months has. Beginning with a blizzard of extreme intensity early last winter we have had extremes of dryness, wetness, heat and cold and you name it. Weather experts almost unanimously agree though, that the five-year drought cycle has run its course and if that is true it is good news indeed.

The Senior Citizens Club, or group, appears to be making good progress and is fast proving a community asset. With humble beginnings the membership is expanding and more and more of the older folks are finding that sociability and fun are paying off for them in their twilight years. The rocking chair gang is rapidly diminishing as the older folks are getting together and doing things that brings them many moments of happiness heretofore never dreamed of. It appears highly probable that the group might even maintain its own permanent headquarters in town. This we do hope does materialize.

As the tree leaves begin to take on their familiar beautiful pattern and we are beginning to turn on our furnaces these chilly evenings, Emmitsburg, belatedly is fast attaining a summery appearance. Shrubbery has sprung to life and lawns are as green and refreshing as they were early last spring. It's remarkable to witness the life that is springing into the landscape and it makes one think that perhaps the seasons are confused. Lawnmowers that haven't operated all summer long are now being brought into service.

Our local VFW boys are furthering their community welfare work within the next few weeks by planning to send some type of gift to local men of the Emmitsburg District now serving in Vietnam. The group is anxious to learn the names and addresses of those now serving over there and try to bring a little happiness to our fighting men. The plan is primarily targeted at making Christmas a little brighter for the boys over there and therefore it is necessary for an early mailing. Packages must be mailed from the States by Oct. 25 so any of you interested in helping along the project by sending in the names and addresses of loved ones or friends, send in their names before that date, please. You can mail them either to the Chronicle or the local VFW, but please hurry!

Feed Program Okayed For Drought Counties

The U. S. Department of Agriculture, acting in response to a request from Maryland Governor J. Millard Tawes, has approved a Livestock Feed Program in the drought stricken counties of Carroll, Frederick and Washington, according to James M. Voss, Chairman, Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee.

Under severe drought, flood or similar conditions, the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to make available Commodity Credit Corporation-owned feed grains to eligible farmers in affected areas for assistance in the preservation and maintenance of foundation herds and other eligible livestock. In these circumstances, feed grains are made available to eligible farmers at reduced prices and in keeping with local support levels for the feed grains supplied.

Because of currently higher market prices, the price at which feed grains will be available to eligible farmers in the designated counties this year has been raised from 75 to 90 per cent of the local support level for foundation herds of livestock, including producing dairy cattle, sheep and goats. For other eligible livestock the price to eligible farmers has been advanced from 100 to 115 per cent of the local support level.

Although prices at which eligible farmers may purchase grain are at a higher percentage of price support than last year, eligible farmers will be able to buy grain at about the same discount below market price as last year in terms of cents per bushel.

In addition, because of reduced stocks of feed grains, maximum daily allowances of CCC-owned feed grain have been reduced from 10 pounds to 5 pounds per animal unit.

Mr. Voss points out that reduced stocks of feed grain inventories reflect the success of USDA supply-adjustment programs in cutting down the burdensome surpluses of these grains in the past few years. The price changes indicated today make feed grain owned by CCC available in disaster areas at levels commensurate with market prices in non-emergency areas.

The CCC-owned feed grains, as available, will be offered under the livestock feed program through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) county offices. These offices are charged with responsibility for determining eligibility of producers for assistance.

College Offers Open House To Secondary Students

High school students and their parents interested in knowing more about St. Joseph College's curriculum, faculty, and student body, are invited to visit the campus during Open House slated for October 15, 1966. The Open House program includes a get-acquainted gathering in the college auditorium, tour of the campus, interview with the Director of Admissions if necessary, consultations with faculty representatives, luncheon in the college cafeteria, and a chat with students in the Student Center.

If the Open House date is inconvenient, visiting days are scheduled in 1966 on November 19, and December 4; in 1967 on February 25, March 18, April 29, and May 13. During visiting days, interviews with the Director of Admissions are scheduled between 10 and 11:30 a.m. and from 1-3 p.m., followed by student-conducted tours of the campus.

Sister Marie Therese, Director of Admissions, requests that interested persons write for an appointment no later than one week prior to the preferred date, indicating time of arrival and number of visitors in the party. Luncheon will not be served in the cafeteria on Visiting Days. At any other time other than Open House or Visiting Days, especially on Sundays, class days, and during extended vacation periods, interviews and tours cannot be arranged.

The Admissions Committee suggests that the prospective student prepare for her interview by having the following information: present high school average; rank in class; exact results of any college board tests she may have taken; would her high school principal or counselor recommend her for college; has she decided on her major; what her primary purpose is in seeking higher education, and in particular in considering St. Joseph College.

The Don Cossacks, world-renowned White Russian singers and dancers, return to St. Joseph's stage on Monday, October 10, for the season's opening concert. "The Three Tabards of Shakespearean authority," is scheduled for November. Dramatic selections from the great tragedies, comedies, and histories of the Bard are included in the presentation. December's offerings will feature performances by the colleges' own groups in concerts to be announced later.

C., presenting selections of both classic ballet and modern dance; and Ulrico Schettini, muralist, will lecture on "The Architecture of Christopher Wren in London." Mr. Schettini will spend the week of April 10 on St. Joseph's campus, during which he will hold an informal convocation to discuss the composition of images and the theory of ornamentation colors, and will execute an original mural, allowing students and guests to follow the work as it progresses.

George Mahoney Issues Statement

George P. Mahoney, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, this week made the following public statement:
The primary election is over. For all of us, it was an arduous campaign but I am happy to say that during the pre-election months never once did I say anything in any way which reflected upon the character or integrity of any other candidate, and in the main, the reverse was true.

I intend to wage a vigorous general election campaign and I look forward to the support of every voter who believes with me that Maryland needs a governor who will serve all of the people all of the time. I will make my position clear on every major issue affecting our state.

I must repeat that at no time during the campaign did I ever, in any way, attempt to inject racial intolerance or bigotry into the minds of the voters. This element was supplied by others whose aims and views, I believe are inimical to the best interests of all of us.

Congressman Sickles and I did not agree on the subject of open housing legislation—but this is certainly no discredit to either of us. And I am convinced that difference of opinion on one issue, in view of the many, many problems which confront us, cannot be allowed to stand in the way of party unity—and more important—the desire of all of us to achieve a government for Maryland which will at the same time be progressive and be run on a sound business basis.

Let me emphasize that unlike the other candidates in the general election, I am not a lawyer. This is in no way a disparagement of the legal profession. Their's is a fine profession and one which serves a great need. But the Governor of Maryland needs not be trained in the complexities of the law. The Governor has the Attorney-General and his entire legal staff to attend to any legal matters.

I am a business man, and I promise to apply the same methods and procedures which every successful business, including my own, has employed for years, and which can very easily be applied to our own state government.

I welcome the support of every voter who agrees with my views and look forward to a vigorous and successful campaign, climaxed by a Democratic Victory in November.

State Road Fatalities Continue Uphill

Eight persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police. Six of those killed were drivers and two were pedestrians. Alcohol was a contributing factor in three of the deaths; speed in three; and "driver error" was present in all of the fatalities. Maryland's highway death rate is now up to 546—just about 7% more than for the same period in 1965.

"Last week's highway fatality picture again focused attention on the hazards created by operators failing to grant right-of-way," commented Colonel Carey Jarman, Superintendent of the Maryland State Police. "In fact, violations of this type accounted for five of the eight deaths.

"Granting right-of-way is one of the basic precepts of safe driving and one which, unfortunately, is too often disregarded. It is a problem a driver faces many times whenever he is operating his car."

Colonel Jarman concluded: "Each driver has a responsibility for granting right-of-way to others when such is indicated, and, also, he should always be on the alert for the mistakes of the other fellow who ignores the law. This is good defensive driving and will do much to reduce the deaths on our highways."

Small throw rugs that have a tendency to slip along the floor can be cured by attaching several jar rubbers to the underside or by shellacking the reverse side.

State Scholarships To Be Held

The Maryland State Scholarship Board announces plans for conducting the state-wide competitive examination for the three State Scholarship Programs. The examination will be held Saturday, Nov. 19 in test centers located throughout the state.

A student who takes this competitive examination may qualify himself as an eligible candidate for a General State Tuition, a Teacher Education or a Senatorial scholarship. A student who has not previously attended a school or college rank may compete for any one or all three of these State scholarships. Students already attending college may compete only for a Teacher Education or a Senatorial scholarship.

Registration for the examination will take place during the month of October at all public and non-public high schools in the State and at all institutions eligible to participate in one of the scholarship programs.

Further information may be obtained from the counselor or principal in each high school. A pamphlet describing in detail the three State Scholarship Programs may be obtained from the State Scholarship Board, 2100 Guilford Ave., Baltimore, Md. 21218.

A MASLAND MATCHMATES BROADLOOM 100% Herculon® Polypropylene Olefin fiber pile
POLYDUO has been especially styled by Masland to add to family pride in the home by creating the exceptional in carpet beauty, color and texture. Here are POLYDUO'S decorating features:
THE SURFACE: POLYDUO is tightly made in an all-loop, over-all tweed effect. Created for the young-at-heart who plan to decorate in Early American or Danish Modern. The surface effect is exciting, new, interesting in hue and color.
THE CONSTRUCTION: The carpet pile is fashioned of three-ply, three-color moresque yarns in Herculon polypropylene olefin fibers—fiber that is fade resistant, highly non-absorbent and free from static build-up. Fiber that is low in specific gravity—so there is more actual yarn per pound and more carpet pile per square yard. This marvelous pile is backed again by polypropylene and then double backed with lamination to assure dimensional stability underfoot.
THE COLORS: Distinctive—Tweed colorings that meet the taste of the modern-minded. Colors that won't fade and hide soiling and footprints. Colors that blend easily with your choice of decor.
THE VALUE: Hard to beat—an outstanding value for those badgered by tight budgets.
From the Masland Matchmates Collection—the only carpet collection designed by a woman for women who love decorating their own homes. See POLYDUO today!

New Books

The following titles were added to the Juvenile collection at your local library:

"Run, Westy Run," by Gudrun Alcock. This could be the story of almost any unhappy boy who lacks companionship and stimulating things to do. Its happy turning point comes when a wise judge shows how much can be gained when a family faces its problems together. For then Westy finds out that there are better ways to fight than running away, and his parents learn that you can't budget happiness or even postpone it too long—especially for growing children.

"Roller Skates, Scooter and Bokie," by Dorothy Clewes. Rory, Kay and Gerald all agreed. Wheels were more fun than anything. But one day while the three escaped the rain in a night watchman's hut, Rory's scooter and Gerald's racing bike disappeared. Dorothy Clewes has created an engaging adventure that's fun from start to finish.

"The Giant Who Drank From His Shoes," and other stories by Leonce Bourliaguet. Most of these tales are set in France. Wise as well as witty, with a great sense of fun, the book is a treasure for the story teller, and a fine example of the work of one of France's best-loved children's writers.

"Mr. Wizard's Science Secrets," by Don Herbert. These experiments have been approved by educators and scientists; but more important, they have been applauded by the youngsters themselves.

"The Second Witch," by Jack Sendak. Strange things began to happen in the village of Platenhausen. Smoke streamed from a little house in the woods, empty for years. A little girl with long black hair was seen running thru the forest, a bear at her side. And one morning the villagers awoke to find that they had all turned blue.

Poetry for Holidays," selected by Nancy Larrick. Poetry suggested for Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's Day, Saint Valentine's Day, Saint Patrick's Day, Easter, May Day, the Fourth of July, and your birthday.

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day

Closing the Gap

Man won't ever outrun the Thoroughbred, but a look at the record for one mile shows that he has, over the past 100 years, been "creeping" up on him.

In spite of carefully engineered track surfaces and electronic timing devices the Thoroughbred speed for one mile has improved by only 12 seconds since 1866.

According to a tabulation of "The Quickest Time on Record" in Turf Field and Farm the best time for a mile in 1866 ranged from 1:44 1/4 to 1:50 1/4, the fastest and slowest of four 1-mile heats run by a horse named Revolver at Cincinnati, Ohio. At the inaugural meeting at Jerome Park that same year, Ruthless (the filly that was to win the first Belmont Stakes in 1867), won the Nursery Stakes, a 1-mile dash for 2-year-olds in 1:49. The record today is 1:32 3/4 set by Ogden Phipps' 3-year-old, Buckpasser.

As for the two-legged runner, the record in 1866 was 4:36 1/4 held by an Englishman named Richard Webster, and the "four-minute mile" was undreamed of. Man finally broke the four-minute barrier in 1954 when Roger Bannister was clocked in 3:59.4. The human record today, held by Lanky Jim Ryun, is 3:51.3, an improvement of some 45 seconds and about half a minute better than the Thoroughbred. There's quite a gap to close, however. Jim Ryun was traveling at a bit better than 15 miles per hour, while Buckpasser was doing 38.88 miles per hour.

THE HISTORY OF GLASS

Making plate glass in the 18th century required speed and minute attention from every workman. Here the molten glass is poured onto a large table, where two men move a copper roller over it. Other assistants catch and pluck out any bits of dust which might fall on the still soft surface.

Safety glass in aluminum patio doors is now becoming standard; interestingly, it was only 350 years ago that windows which provided some control over room temperature and ventilation became standard. These were crude devices, usually consisting of 15 to 20 square panes divided by horizontal and vertical lead bars. A wrought-iron frame, hinged on one side, allowed the window to swing open.

Glass, itself, is even centuries older. The first man-made glasses were glazes, used as decorative coatings on stone beads; the earliest known examples, found in Egypt, date from 12,000 B.C. The oldest pure glass object in the world, a tiny blue amulet, is 9,000 years old.

To the ancient Egyptians, glass was a luxury item, so expensive that glass beads were considered as precious as natural gems! Glassblowing was unknown. Early Egyptian artisans made glass vessels by winding rods of hot, softened glass around a central core of sand built up on a metal rod.

When the Romans conquered Egypt, they took back to Rome samples of glassware and secrets of glassmaking.

During the Middle Ages, no church was complete without beautiful stained glass windows. The first glass mirrors and crude eyeglasses date from about the 13th century.

Plate glass with the clarity we take for granted today, was unknown less than 100 years ago. Today, glass is not only clearer, but safer. Aluminum patio doors which contain safety glass help insure that your youngsters will not be cut should they fall against the glass. If safety glass should break under heavy impact, it crumbles into small granular fragments rather than large, sharp-edged pieces, minimizing the danger of serious personal injury.

Other new ideas in glass include window panes that automatically regulate heat and light. Tomorrow, entire cities may be enclosed in glass domes that can regulate the weather!

Mathias Offers New Plan For Drought Relief

Congressman Charles McC. Mathias, Jr., (R-Md. 6th) this week proposed a seven-point program of reforms in the Agriculture Department's programs for drought relief.

In a major speech on the floor of the House, Mathias declared that "the current policies are ineffective, inefficient and inequitable. They do not help the farmer's income, and they wound his dignity."

The Sixth District Congressman told the House that "many Maryland farmers are now in deep economic trouble, caused by the quirks of weather and compounded by the vagaries of Agriculture Department policies. Because of drought, their production is down. Because of the inexorable rules of dwindling supply and increasing demand, the cost of feed grains and other overhead is up. Because of the rigidity of USDA regulations, no real relief can be obtained."

"This summer," Mathias continued, "I have talked with countless farm groups and individuals about the immediate and long-range problems they face. These meetings have reaffirmed my conviction that bold leadership is necessary, now, to reform present programs for immediate drought relief, and to develop new general policies to help American farmers become truly self-sufficient, so that no special crisis programs need be invoked in the future."

Mathias' seven-point reform program, based on suggestions from many farmers and on his own observations, embraced the following steps:

- 1) asking Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman to abolish the nuisance fees charged for use of diverted acreage for grazing and haying;
- 2) introducing a bill to repeal the requirement that farmers in disaster areas may purchase surplus feed grains at reduced prices only if they cannot obtain needed supplies commercially without undue financial hardship;

3) urging Secretary Freeman to permit county ASC committees to extend short-term credit for direct purchase of surplus feed grains;

4) introducing legislation authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to reimburse farmers in drought areas for one-half the cost of shipping hay by any common carrier;

5) asking Secretary Freeman to issue new regulations defining eligibility for low-cost FHA credit, to remove the need for detailed and divergent "means tests" and proof of credit rejection;

6) calling on the Agricultural Department to review alternate sources of low-cost, long-term credit, including possible loan guarantee programs;

7) urging Secretary Freeman to study the feasibility of a new crop insurance program covering all major crops produced in drought disaster areas.

Congressman Mathias also renewed his request for immediate USDA approval of the livestock feed program, which has not been authorized for any Maryland counties "despite clear evidence that crops are scant and feed grains are in short supply, and despite the urgent requests of at least eleven county ASC committees and the certification of the State Disaster Committee."

Referring to his recent correspondence with the Department, Mathias stated that Secretary Freeman's decision to withhold the livestock program "is apparently based on several arguments unsupported, and actually contradicted, by the facts." For example, he noted that many Maryland dairy farmers have been on winter feed since July, with fast-windup supplies, yet Washington officials still said the situation was not yet acute.

Mathias noted that "more of Maryland's rich farm acreage is for sale right now than at any other time in recent years. Due to rising land values and the shortage of farmers' capital, much of this land is being purchased for conversion to non-agricultural use." He warned that "this accelerating shortage of farms and farmers, if not reversed, will have serious consequences in the years ahead, as the demand for all commodities rises sharply in this area, in the nation and throughout the world."

"The storms of September," the Congressman concluded, "cannot solve the problems which began in June, July and August, and which will plague many farmers next January, February and March. . . There are few signs that the persistent effects of the long northeastern drought will be ending soon. Even after normal year-round rainfall resumes, farmers will need assistance in recouping the losses they have suffered during the past five years."

"The recommendations I have made today," he summarized, "would be immediate advances toward effectiveness and equity in our drought assistance programs. I will continue to work for more basic changes, and for general policies through which the American farmer can achieve his proper role as a full and free partner in American prosperity."

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Babson's Point Of View On:
More People Working
Longer Hours

BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 6 — Most people take it for granted that more and more of the regularly employed are enjoying a steadily shorter workweek. They assume this from the fact that the Fair Labor Standards Act has set a 40-hour week for so many millions of the nation's workers. The feeling is that most people prefer leisure time to a higher income from working longer.

Actual Facts A Big Surprise
Studies made by the Labor Department, however, indicate that a significant and growing portion of our working force actually works more than 48 hours a week. Measuring the trend from 1948 to 1965, the total of men and women employed in nonfarm occupations for more than 48 hours a week has nearly doubled.

While these people do not make up a majority of the nation's workers, they are important. In 1948 some 4.8 million nonfarm employees were putting in more than 48 hours a week, and by 1965 this number had jumped to 9.4 million. This was an impressive jump from 12.9% of the entire full-time nonfarm work force to 19.7%.

Comparison With Other Labor Groups
For the same time period, there was a fair increase in the number of full-time nonfarm employees working between 35 and 40 hours, mostly the result of the Fair Labor statute. This proportion of the total non-agricultural labor reservoir moved ahead from 4.8% to 8.2%. The gain here was chiefly a result of the slide-off in the number working from 41 to 48 hours a week. Evidently many companies preferred to take on more workers or cut back personnel rather than pay time and a half.

The total of those working over 48 hours a week has increased sufficiently however since 1948 to offset the statistical changes in the other categories. Surprising result: Average weekly hours for the full-time nonfarm labor force have held at about 45, roughly the same in 1965 as in 1948. This is surely counter to the general impression.

Why This Strong Unexpected Tendency?
Why are between 9 and 10 million people, almost one-fifth of the full-time nonagricultural working force, at their jobs 49 hours or more every week? Why is the number climbing steadily? Who are these employees? Studies suggest that extraordinarily long hours prevail among employees in the trade and service industries, and in managerial, professional, sales, and private-household fields. In government and manufacturing, there are seldom opportunities for working longer than 48 hours a week, so frequently second or "moonlighting" jobs serve to raise the average of weekly hours worked.

There appear to be a good many, also, who are so interested in their work that they put in long hours consistently. This doubtless accounts for the sizable proportion of professional and technical employees, whose hours often range to 70-a-week and more. Many men and women in especially responsible positions are either required or expected to be on the job most of their waking hours. This would explain the high incidence of particularly long workweeks among managerial employees.

One Feature: Rising Living Standards
There is one classification, mostly married men between 25 and 44, who work all possible extra hours because they need more income. In this category are many in low-pay industries and occupations, especially services and trades, who take more than one job to support a wife and children.

As long as living costs and living standards continue to climb, there is reason to look for further increases in the proportion of our labor force working above-average hours each week. Reducing permissible hours of work for more people is bound to mean more "overtime" and more "moonlighting." So the trend will continue toward longer hours a week for a large part of the work force.

ANTIQUES...

The longer you keep them, the more they're worth.

If you bought a U.S. Savings Bond in 1941, it would now be worth more than twice the money you paid for it.

Series E Bonds, you see, have never stopped growing. And now that the interest rate on new E and H Bonds has been raised to 4.15%, your older bonds will earn proportionately more, too, for their remaining period to next maturity. So Savings Bonds are better to buy, and hold, than ever. But that's only one reason why you should buy Savings Bonds.

You see, while Savings Bonds are building your financial security, they're also building your country's security. Because as your money grows, it helps support our fighting men in Vietnam—and keeps our economy strong.

Buying Bonds is easy!

Simply sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. This way, money is automatically set aside from your paycheck—and applied toward the purchase of a Savings Bond. And you can also buy Bonds automatically through the Bond-a-Month Plan at your bank.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS O Lord, how great are thy works!—(Psalms 92:5) The quickest and easiest way to focus thoughts on good is to give thanks. And when we think about the good things, we have happy thoughts. There is not one of us who does not have something right now for which to be thankful. The best way to begin is with a prayer of thanks. What became of the young man who started to live according to unselfish principles?

A Viewpoint

By Thomas C. Callahan

Mount Saint Mary's learned a lesson Saturday at the hands, or perhaps feet, of visiting American University in one of the most interesting soccer games from a spectator's point of view ever staged in Emmitsburg. The lesson, though, was not in soccer. It was in attitude. Down 3-1 at half, American failed to return from the locker room content to concede victory to the Mounts, a concession which apparently figured in the home team's game plan. The game began and ended in a steady rain and all but the goalies were khaki-colored by half. A pool of mud developed early in the center of the field and the splashing and bumping there took on the appearance of the omnipresent fight scene of a John Wayne movie. Before three minutes had elapsed, John Dragon had tallied a Don Baubles "pass" to put the white-shirted Mounties on the board. Nine minutes of beautiful soccer followed in which A. U. didn't even manage a shot. Baubles, third-team All-American last season, then pumped in an effortless penalty shot and the Eagles of American stood silent. Finally, at the nineteen minute mark, John Trencher and John Kramon teamed up for an Eagle score—the first shot of the day for the blue-shirts—and the quarter end-

League? Saint Mary's cites injuries to the Baltimore pitching staff, particularly to ace hurler Steve Barber; and the girls at Saint Joseph's reach the same conclusions through a different reasoning process: "Randy Koufax is such an uncompromising sufferer." "Dave Drysdale is cute," and "Andy Etchebarren's eye-brows are ugly." The chief reason, however, for the world picking Los Angeles to again be world champions is a feeling that any of the top tear in the National League could whip the "inferior" American League representative. This logic is a throwback from the explanation given in the senior circuit during those Yankee dominated years. "Sure New York stands alone, but except for them..." On paper, the Dodgers are a shoe-in. But, the erratic, often exciting, sometimes depressing, and always unnerving Baltimore Orioles will win because they just don't feel inferior.

Wednesday, the 1966 World Series will have opened in L. A., putting the axiom "good pitching beats good hitting" to what most regard as a test with a predictable outcome. The students at Mount Saint Mary's and Saint Joseph's colleges have not so varied opinions on the matter. In fact, excluding those who pick on mere sentiment, nobody likes the Orioles. Many of the Mount students guess it will go 4 or 5 games and as equally as large a consensus figure Sandy Koufax for three wins. Can things be so thoroughly dominated the American

Football Fans' Choice

Ask the teen-age football fans at your house: What's better than a hamburger or a hot dog? The answer is easy, of course. The only thing better is a combination of the two, as in this Coney Island Corn Bread.

Ground beef, onion, vieners and a tomato-ey sauce, ingredients of the popular Coney Island sandwich, are also combined in this tasty casserole. A golden corn bread topping, quickly made with corn muffin mix, adds flavor appeal.

Serve Coney Island Corn Bread for supper before the big game or as a hearty snack after the contest. The entire family will cheer its spicy goodness.

CONEY ISLAND CORN BREAD Makes 6 servings 1 lb. ground beef 1/2 cup chopped onion 4 vieners, cut diagonally in 1/2-inch pieces One 10-3/4-oz. can condensed tomato soup 1/2 cup chili sauce 1/2 teaspoon salt 3/4 teaspoon pepper Toppings: One 12-oz. pkg. Flako Corn Muffin Mix 1 egg 3/4 cup milk

Heat oven to hot (400°F.). Brown ground beef in large fry pan; drain. Add onion; cook until tender. Add vieners, tomato soup, chili sauce, salt and pepper, mixing thoroughly. Simmer about 5 minutes. Pour ground beef mixture into 8-inch square baking pan.

For topping, empty contents of package into bowl. Add egg and milk, mixing lightly. Spread batter over hot ground beef base. Bake in preheated oven (400°F.) 20 to 25 minutes.

Miss Marshall Receives Letter Of Commendation

A Letter of Commendation honoring high performance on the 1966 National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMQT) has been awarded to Ann Marshall at St. Joseph's High School, Principal Sister Edwina has announced.

Ann is among 38,000 students in the United States who scored in the upper two percent of those who will graduate from high school in 1967. The commended students rank just below the 14,000 semifinalists announced earlier this month by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Presentation of this award was made at a student assembly which had the promotion of education as its theme. Guest speaker was Guy A. Baker, Jr., Mayor of Emmitsburg and Registrar of Mount St. Mary's College. In his talk, Mr. Baker stressed the great improvements in education in the past few years, the significant contribution of the Sisters in this area, and the endless opportunities in education today. The talk was followed by a question and answer period.

On October 4, the student assembly of St. Joseph's, in response to Pope Paul's plea for peace, participated in the Sacrifice of the Mass and Benediction at St. Joseph's Church. The upper grades of Mother Seton School also attended the services. Fr. Storms, in his sermon, asked the students to pray fervently for the end of the war in Viet Nam and the es-

The peace of Jesus Christ is here now, in our minds and hearts, and in the hearts of the people all over the world. His power is working now to remake the earth. "Let not your heart be troubled: believe in God, believe also in me."

WATCH YOUR TEMPER!

By "tempering" glass— heating it and then cooling it in a special way—scientists have developed a new thin safety glass many times stronger under impact than ordinary glass.

Because of new technological developments, tempered glass— should it break under severe duress— would "fall safe" by crumbling into small granular particles, rather than large jagged pieces that cause severe injury.

Tempered glass is already available in sliding glass doors, shower stalls and bathtub enclosures, and will soon have many other applications where impact resistance is a factor. Aluminum storm doors which contain tempered glass also help increase your family's safety.
