As we approach the very eve of Halloween, most local residents concur with the decree of the Town Council that "Trick or Treating" be limited to one night this year. The practice of children carrying this Halloween endeavor too far by starting days in advance and continuing for several days after, will be prohibited. They will be permitted to have their clean and honest fun Monday evening only. This is parade night and it will be Halloween . . . period. Parents are asked to cooperate with the idea and see that the children confine their activities to this single evening of fun. In previous years numerous complaints were received concerning the prolonged activities of Halloween by local kiddies and we sort of have to go along with the tenor of these complaints. So, a little fun before and following the parade will wind it up this year, folks, and this should take some of the "sting" out of the occasion . . . but not the fun.

It's inevitable, on a small newspaper, that sometimes embarrassing things creep into print. Two weeks ago we started a Favorite Recipe column and just when we thought we had something interesting and entertaining for our readers, this unpleasantness cropped up. Seems as though the Linotype operator misread the copy and all broke loose. Irate housewives have threatened us and we have been embarrassed publicly. I do hope time heals this present wave of animosity presently directed at us. After all, all we did was misprint the quantity of a certain ingredient for the recipe. Instead of using 2 tablespoons of flour we made it two pounds! Here's a sampling of the letters we are receiving:

Dear Abigail:
 Congratulations on publishing "Favorite Recipes" of Emmitsburgians and friends! It is a delightful idea. I hope the donors will lend their signatures to these Culinary Gems.
 I know, as a former Emmitsburg gal, I will derive a certain pleasure from the fact that a particular recipe is from home; doubly so, if I should recognize a familiar name of an old friend.

Now—Ye gods, please have your Home Economics Department edit said recipes before subjecting the unsuspecting, inexperienced or preoccupied (me) fall victim to an error such as the one in the first of a series, name, "Tropical Salad."
 I will not go into detail but—picture, if you can, a poor soul, struggling to mix 2 lbs. of flour with 1 cup of liquid.
 I demand satisfaction! Sentence: Firstly . . . You, yourself perpetrate this feat. Secondly . . . Remunerate me, the injured party, for ruined ingredients. Thirdly . . . reprint this recipe with correction to wit: 2 Tabs. of flour not 2 lbs.

Genevieve Smith
Timonium, Maryland

P.S.—Readers, the corrected recipe "Tropical Salad" is truly delicious. Congratulations to whoever volunteered this gourmet's delight.

World Community Day At Local Church

World Community Day will be observed at Trinity Methodist Church on Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m. This annual observance is sponsored by the United Church Women of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.

The theme is Laity: Rights, Resources, Responsibilities. A service of worship has been prepared by Sister Mary Luke Tobin who is the Superior General of the Sisters of Loretto at the Foot of the Cross, in Nerinx, Kentucky. Priest To Conduct Volunteer Program At St. Joseph's Recruiters for the Extension Volunteer program will be at St. Joseph College on Nov. 3, 1966 from one to five p.m.

The recruiting team is led by Father John J. Sullivan, National Director of the volunteer program. Appearing with him are two veterans of lay mission work, Barbara Dugan and Susan Leusch.

Father Sullivan has headed the Volunteer program since its organization in 1960. He was one of the first priests to experiment with programs for lay missionaries in his home diocese of Oklahoma City-Tulsa.

Miss Leusch, a 1963 graduate of Duquesne University, worked in biological research before joining Extension Volunteers. As a Volunteer she served last year as a parish worker in southwest Kansas.

Miss Dugan is a graduate of Malloy College. As a Volunteer she taught in a parochial school in Leesville, La.

The recruiters are seeking laymen and women, 21 to 45 years of age, to serve in the home missions in the United States for at least one year. Volunteers work as teachers, parish workers, nurses, medical technicians, and Newman aides.

The recruiting presentation includes a filmstrip, "There's This Banquet", which uses very unusual art and photography to present the philosophy of the Volunteer program. The filmstrip will be shown at 3:30 and at 4:30; Father Sullivan and the Volunteers will be in the Student Center from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. to answer any questions.

The recruiting program is being sponsored by the Mission Apostolate of the Marion Association under the direction of Kathleen Foley whose committee includes Genevieve Hines, Patricia Fitzgibbons, Linda Metzler, and Elizabeth Estrada.

At present two of St. Joseph's graduates, Charlotte Blatt and Mary Long, are serving as Extension Volunteers.

The victory was the fourth in a row for the Liners.

A Viewpoint

By Thomas C. Callahan

Last spring, a widely read sportswriter from Baltimore, Md., intimated in his column that the Mount's Jim Phelan had come close to being offered the head coaching task with the Bullets of the National Basketball Association. I can't imagine Mr. Phelan even considering the insecure "manager for this year" proposition that pro coaching involves, especially in Baltimore. No man has ever coached the Bullets two years in succession. One man, in fact, held the reins for only one solitary game. He happened to win it and is the only undefeated pro coach immortalized in the record books. (His name—Ed Hargaden. He has been a successful high school coach for over 20 years in Baltimore.) When last year's coach, Paul Seymour, resigned during the playoffs, I do not doubt that Phelan's name was near the top of possible successors. Most of the names near the top started bailing-out of contention as soon as they heard of Seymour's move. A one year contract on that team is tantamount to rookie-of-the-year honors; you ain't gonna get it twice. Even a boorish and witless radio announcer, who best qualification for the post was that he once refereed a game between a local radio station and the Playboy Bunnies, flatly refused.

Well, somewhere on that list (and most conceivably several names down from Phelan) was a man by the name of Farmer. His appointment was greeted with a resounding, "Who's he?", from the local fans, who look to pro-ball as a means of keeping the larynx intuned for football season and Pimlico. His identity will possibly remain unknown, for he probably won't be around long enough to get on a first name basis with even the ballplayers. Sadly enough, the Bullets themselves may go with him. Mike Farmer can't really be blamed. He hasn't got the horses, and is working under an even more irking handicap—an inept front office. During the summer, the Bullet front office obtained seven-foot Mel Counts from the Boston Celtics, from a reportedly reluctant "Red" Auerbach. Counts has been Bill Russell's back-up man for the past few seasons and little trader savvy is required to realize that when you have a 32 year-old center, saddler with the added duty of being player-coach, you don't trade young seven-footers who can make it in the N.B.A. Obviously, General Manager Auerbach figures Counts cannot. In return, the Baltimore hoopsters gave up sturdy, steady Bailey Howell, which practically insures the Celtics repeating for the um-tenth time. So, Counts has been a zero and so have the Bullets, with an 0 and 5 skein. New York, with rookie Cazzie Russell, figures to lift it self above the Bullets and into the playoffs for the first time in nine years. Fine for the Knicks, but if Baltimoreans find themselves fielding a doormat while trying to cajole the world into calling B-more the sports capital of same, then hands might be thrown up in furor and basketball might have to sneak out of town.

An interesting sidelight in tomorrow night's contest between the present Varsity and former Mount standouts, will be a duel between player and former coach. Springy-shooter, Jerry Savage, is the J.V. coach at Mount Saint Joe's in Baltimore and assists Gene Nieberlein with the varsity five. An alumnus of that quint is stocky Dick Dohler. Dick will have to disguise any moves familiar to Jerry and pray for victory over the 'old men' if he is to escape the needles that a loss would surely bring. Game time is 8 p.m.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson's Point Of View On: Copper

BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 27—Copper is one of the oldest metals known to man. Unexcelled as a conductor of electricity and of heat, it is noted also for its corrosion resistance and for the ease with which it can be fabricated. In any list of essential raw materials, copper ranks near the top. It is much in the news today in a world which is simultaneously expanding its industrial production, further electrifying its services, and still re-arming. Domestic And World Output

As recently as 40 years ago, U. S. smelter output of copper amounted to more than half the total output for the world, and production in North America accounted for considerably more than that (62.5%). Five years later—in 1931 when our economy was sinking ever deeper into depression—U. S. copper production dipped down to 35% of the world total. But by 1942 it had regained some of the loss, climbing back to 40%.

In later years, the ratio has been declining again. Domestic smelter production of copper in 1965 totaled only 25% of world output. The important point is that the U. S. is no longer the dominant factor in world copper production, though she still is an important producer.

Consumption Trends
Copper usage has been expanding all over the world in very recent years. But, barring all-out war, it will rise less rapidly in the coming decade. The increase in consumption will be limited by competition from aluminum and other substitutes, but the 1970's will see good growth in copper usage generally—especially in Latin America, Africa, and Asia.

The present acutely tight supply-demand position in copper stems from two distinct causes: (1) A series of strikes which have curtailed production at important mining and smelter operations here in the U. S., in Chile, in Rhodesia, and in Zambia; (2) the world-wide scramble for copper, sparked by several years of record automobile production and girding construction in the U. S.—upon which Viet war demand has been superimposed—and by a vastly increased industrial activity in Western Europe.

Will Prices Go Up Or Down?
Here in our country we can produce about two-thirds of our copper needs. The remainder must be imported and it comes chiefly from Chile, Peru, and Canada, though some sizable shipments do come in from Africa, too. Because we import so much, copper price changes on the London Metal Exchange are usually reflected rather promptly in our American metal markets. Once upon a time we could get all the copper we needed, over and above our own production, from Chile. But for some years now, heavier demand from Europe and the willingness of European users to pay premium prices has attracted more and more Chilean copper to European ports.

In an effort to stabilize prices, the U. S. copper industry has held the domestic quote to 36¢ per pound. But because of heavier demand abroad, world prices are substantially above those of the U. S. As a result, we too must pay more for the copper we need from abroad. If we can prevent the Viet war from spreading any farther and if we can achieve labor peace in the industry, then world copper prices should settle back in 1967. But when this happens, do not look for easing in the U. S. list price; that will likely hold at 36¢. However, the higher prices we are now paying in the gray market for copper will come down—and in time the gray market itself will fade away.

Better Balance Ahead
Present tight supply-demand ratios in copper are temporary. Long-range programs for upping mine and smelter production of the red metal have been under way for some years. The opening of new mines is a slow process entailing costly construction and development work and—sometimes—erection of sizable transportation facilities. But within the next five years free world copper output may well be nearly 40% larger than it is now. Hence a much better supply balance lies ahead.

Added output should spur applications research. In the coming five years, copper usage in the desalination of water should increase tremendously. And the initial success of copper as a material for use in sheathing wharf pilings gives promise of other important new uses for this metal.

Our Gravest Danger
The climate for law-breaking in America has been cultivated throughout the summer of 1966 as never before. Political expediency has, in many southern and northern cities, contributed to making a mockery of law and order. Anti-Viet Nam War protest leaders arrogantly proclaimed to a Congressional Committee their Communist identity and their allegiance to this nation's enemy in Viet Nam. Columns of "Civil Rights" marchers almost daily erupted in mass violence endangering national security. Only in a few of the hundreds of law violations has law enforcement prevailed. Defiance of law has spread. This is our nation's gravest danger.

Bayard Rustin, Negro "Civil Rights" leader, organizer of the 1963 "Civil Rights" March on Washington, speaking last month in Chicago, one of many cities where "Civil Rights" marches exploded into violence and wanton destruction, said: "Any Negro youngster who doesn't believe now that the way to get something is through violence obviously is not intelligent." He said that he himself advocates non-violence. He added: "The need is not to talk about civil rights but about an economic and social revolution."

Loose Talk
Mass protesting and even violence have undoubtedly been agitated by statements from U. S. governmental leaders and "Civil Rights" personalities such as Rustin. President Lyndon Johnson, speaking to a group of youth leaders at the White House, Aug. 3, 1965, said, "I am proud this morning to salute you as fellow revolutionaries. Neither you nor I are willing to accept the tyranny of poverty, nor the dictatorship of ignorance, nor the despotism of ill health, nor the oppression of bias and prejudice and bigotry. . . . I hope that you will go out into the hinterland and arouse the masses and blow the bugles and tell them that the hour has arrived and their day is here; that we are on the march against the ancient enemies and we are going to be successful."

Vice President Hubert Humphrey (describing on July 18, 1966, what he would do if he had to live in "a slum neighborhood") said: "I think you'd have more trouble than you have had already, because I've got enough spark left in me to lead a mighty revolt under those conditions." (Just 30 days later he was expressing shock at what was going on.)

Justifying Violence
Robert C. Weaver, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, at a July 20, 1966 news conference: "If the average white American put himself in the shoes of the average black American, he would be just as angry, just as prone to violence as the Negro is today. The thing that surprises me is that it hasn't happened before."

Senator Robert F. Kennedy said, on Aug. 18, 1965: "There is no point in telling Negroes to obey the law" because "to many Negroes the law is the enemy."

Richard Shaull, professor of ecumenics, Princeton Theological Seminary, at World Conference on Church and Society, Geneva, Switzerland, July 1966 (and reported widely in America): "There may in fact be some situations in which only the threat of use of violence can set the process of change in motion. Students and leaders of the poor in the urban ghettos in the United States soon find that they cannot solve their problems until fundamental changes occur in the whole structure."

Invitation To Violence
Stokely Carmichael, chairman, Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee ("SNICK"), in The National Guardian, June 4, 1966: "Negroes certainly see that this is the richest country in the world, and they want to share in the wealth. And the feeling—whether or not the white press likes this, whether or not the white liberals like it—is that if (Negroes) cannot enjoy part of that dream, they're going to burn the country down!"

Martin Luther King, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, at Negro rally, Chicago, July 10, 1966: "This day we must commit ourselves to make any sacrifice necessary to change Chicago. This day we must decide to fill up the jails of Chicago if necessary in order to end slums."

William Booth, chairman of the New York City Commission on Human Rights, at convention of NAACP, July 5, 1966: "I don't preach violence. But if the people aren't getting what they need they should go out and take it."

Revolutionary Action Movement (RAM), in pamphlets distributed in tens of thousands in northern city Negro areas: "Weapons of defense employed by Afro-American freedom fighters must consist of a poor man's arsenal. Gasoline fire bombs (Molotov cocktails) lye or acid bombs (made by injecting lye or acid in the metal end of light bulbs) can be used extensively. . . . Extensive sabotage is possible."

Such attitude, unstrained, can lead to the destruction of America.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

By Louise Chase
Women's Medical News Service

Pre-Pregnancy Care May Avert Tragedy
Women who have miscarried or who have had one complicated pregnancy and delivery, or who have given birth prematurely, or whose babies died at birth, are likely to be repeaters.

This warning was sounded by Prof. J. Yerushalmy, Ph.D., director of the University of California's Child Health and Development Studies, at a national conference on infant mortality held in San Francisco recently. An estimated 800,000 pregnancies a year—one out of every five—end in miscarriages and stillbirths, according to Dr. James L.

Goddard, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration.

One way to avoid a second disastrous pregnancy, Dr. Yerushalmy maintained, is to identify such high-risk women before they became pregnant again. Then appropriate preventive and curative measures could be taken between pregnancies to improve the chances of a successful outcome. "What must be attempted is to prevent a woman from reaching pregnancy in a state of high risk," Prof. Yerushalmy said.

Although the causes of some pregnancy problems may be obscure, some are well known and can be treated ahead of time. Among the latter are nutritional deficiencies, certain physical defects, chronic high blood pressure, some forms of heart disease, and diabetes.

Once the high-risk woman has been identified and treated she must then be meticulous about prenatal care.

Other Causes
Other factors may also contribute to the designation of a woman as a potential high pregnancy risk, Dr. Yerushalmy noted. Age at which pregnancy occurs is significant. Very young women (under 16) and women in their late 30's and 40's experience pregnancy complications more frequently than women in their 20's and early 30's.

The frequency of pregnancy and the interval between pregnancies are also known to contribute to complications, as are poverty and lack of education. Prematurity and infant mortality are far more frequent, for instance, among the poor and uneducated than among white middle class Americans.

Vigorous between-pregnancy care of all high risk women, the experts agreed, may contribute significantly to reducing what Prof. Yerushalmy called "the casualties of reproduction."

The professor told Women's Medical News Service that "The main purpose of this between-pregnancy care is to attempt to achieve the next pregnancy at the most optimal time from the point

Churches Plan
Reformation Sunday
A Community Reformation Service for all of the Protestant Churches of Emmitsburg will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, October 30, at Incarnation United Church of Christ. The Reverend W. Ronald Fearer, Pastor of Elias Evangelical Lutheran Church, will bring the Reformation Message of the evening, and the Rev. John C. Chatlos, Pastor of the host church, will preside at the service. This community service is one of the many services in which all of the Protestant Churches of Emmitsburg cooperate.
The occasion of the service is the 449th Anniversary Celebration of the posting of Martin Luther's Ninety-five Theses on the door of the castle church in Wittenberg, Germany on October 31, 1517. This door served as the university bulletin board in Wittenberg. The posting of Luther's theses proved to be the spark which kindled the explosion of the Protestant Reformation. The word "protest" from which Protestant is derived, in Latin means to "stand for" or to "testify for" something. Martin Luther and the other Protestant Reformers stood for the original principles of the Christian Faith on which the Church was founded—namely the Biblical principle of salvation by the grace of God rather than by the ritual or ceremony of the established church of the 16th century. It is on this positive note of Protestantism that Pastor Fearer will base his Reformation Sermon Sunday evening.
All members of the following churches of Emmitsburg are cordially invited and urged to attend this Community Reformation Service: Elias Lutheran Church, Trinity and Tom's Creek Methodist Churches, and Incarnation United Church of Christ.

Candidate Bryson Welcomed Here

Mary B. Bryson, candidate for the Maryland Senate, spent several days recently visiting parochial schools in the area in preparation for a radio presentation on public education.
Mrs. Bryson conducted a seminar-type discussion for an hour at St. John's Catholic School in Westminster and afterwards expressed pleasure at the interest and competence demonstrated by the students in dealing with such subjects as local taxes, the Vietnam war, and inequity in the draft system.
Later, Mrs. Bryson visited St. Joseph College at Emmitsburg, where Sister Rosemary Pfaff, president of the college, took her on a tour of the campus and facilities, including the new Science Center, which Mrs. Bryson found most impressive.
Later in the day, she also visited at Mt. St. Mary's College at Emmitsburg, conferring with Monsignor Robert R. Kline, the president of the college, and Guy A. Baker, Jr., who is both registrar of Mt. St. Mary's and mayor of Emmitsburg.
In her radio broadcast, Mrs. Bryson stated that she is a Methodist, and she feels that all non-Catholics should be thankful for the parochial schools.
"If the public school system had to absorb the educational responsibility discharged by parochial schools, the added cost would be intolerable; the whole system would suffer," she said.
She added that the parochial schools afford education of very high quality, and that we should not hesitate to extend to them as-mosphere induced by good music and will, also, include hourly newscasts from the various CBS Newsrooms.

The decision to put WFMD-FM on a full broadcasting schedule was made because of a lack of such an advertising, entertaining and educating medium in mid-Maryland. With well-known broadcasting personalities on parade via the new full time FM radio station in Frederick County, radio listening will be of such varied content that there will be something to appeal to listeners of all inclinations. WFMD-FM takes her place with WFMD-AM and creates another first in Frederick County.

Cong. Mathias Plans Action On Draft Bill

U. S. Rep. Charles McC. Mathias criticized the military draft as being "inequitable, inefficient, and sometimes incomprehensible," and called for comprehensive reforms of the system.

Addressing the student body at Mount St. Mary's College, Mathias said a recent poll of people in the Sixth Congressional District showed "over 54 per cent of those responding (to a questionnaire) . . . were not satisfied with the present Selective Service rules and policies."

"Only 28 per cent—one-quarter of those who replied—were able to say that they were satisfied," he said.

"This response is not just a vote of no 'confidence.' It is a clear mandate for prompt and thoroughgoing change."

"The Pentagon has resisted many calls for draft reform, and the president has not exactly hurried to change this standpat attitude."

A Pentagon study of the draft begun three years ago was "shelved and not released," he said, "until pressure from many members of Congress, including myself, compelled the House Armed Services Committee to open hearings on the subject in June. The report then presented to the committee was too short and superficial to be the product of the intensive review which the Defense Department has advertised."

Mathias commended the president for "finally" establishing a blue-ribbon citizens advisory committee to study the draft, and said he "wondered whether it was just coincidence that this committee was appointed just when the House began its inquiry."

The present Selective Service laws expire next July, and the congressman said "my colleagues and I are determined to press the overwhelming case for reform. We shall resist any attempt to slip through a simple extension of the present defective system."

He listed several areas "in which reforms are overdue:

"Old-fashioned, inefficient record-keeping should be replaced by modern, automated methods, to reduce delays and confusion;

"The present grants of absolute autonomy to local boards and their clerks should be modified to reduce the present tremendous differences in policies followed by various boards."

"When a law student who lives in some state is drafted, and one from another state is not, the system should be straightened out;

"The process for appealing draft classifications and induction notices should be thoroughly revised to end the frantic, last-minute appeals produced by existing procedures;

"The system of exemption needs reform. Present policies place unequal burdens on some groups, perpetuate inefficient military use of manpower, and talents, and actually provoke deception and dishonesty;

I have full confidence in the ability of American youth to accept their obligations to serve," he continued, "but I can also understand their desire to have the mittee on the draft, and said he "wondered whether it was just coincidence that this committee was appointed just when the House began its inquiry."

Local Scouts Hold Pack Meeting

Cub Scout Pack 1060 held its monthly Pack meeting on Friday, Oct. 21 at 7:30 in the VFW Annex. Cubmaster Raymond Baker welcomed the group. The meeting opened with the singing of My Country 'Tis of Thee. Mike Rosensteel, dressed as Uncle Sam held the flag during the Pledge to the Flag.

John Hollinger, Den Chief of Den 1, acted as Master of Ceremonies. In connection with Fire Prevention Week a short skit, Fireman Save My Child, was presented. Donald Stoner and Roy Adelsberger were firemen and Perry Wivell was the child they saved.

The first group of entertainers was a singing group known as the Sad Tones from way out yonder. The singers were Eddie Seidel, on cardboard guitar; Tim Keepers, Steve Sprankle, Jimmy Deegan and John Walter. They sang Home on the Range and were dressed as cowboys with a background of a campfire, a cactus and a full moon. The scenery was made by the boys.

Next a magician named "Something the Great", alias Steve Hollinger, gave secret wishes to the following Cubs and friends: Kevin Ray looked like the kangaroo he wanted to be; Roy Adelsberger and Micky Stoner were given 50 candy suckers which they generously threw to the audience; Steve Sprankle was given a loaded wallet even if it was loaded with gunpowder; Dennis Vaughn only wanted to play a small part in the show and was allowed to wave to everyone in the place; Perry Joy wanted a trip to Alaska and was allowed to ride a scooter around the stage; Steve Stoner, David Vaughn and Greg Adelsberger wanted to be invisible men. Their parents still feel there is something missing around their homes; Bruce Hollinger threw a baseball a mile high in the air and while he was waiting for it to come down a siren rang for a surprise fire drill. The place was emptied in a few minutes in an orderly manner. An alarm clock was set to go off during the show and no one knew for sure exactly what time it would go off.

During intermission refreshments were served under the guidance of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Joy. The Gone Boys started the second half of the show. They included Harold Englester, Eric Rosensteel, Cecil Richardson, and Mike Rosensteel who played home made banjos.

The final act of the evening and the highlight, was a group of dancing girls which included Donnie Stoner, Denny Vaughn, Paul Antolin, Randy Wivell, Tom Antolin and Perry Wivell. They were dressed in pink hats and short pink skirts and wore black tights. These costumes were made by Mrs. Clarence Wivell and Mrs. Allen Stoner.

The show was a joint program of all Dens directed by Mrs. Clarence Wivell, Mrs. Allen Stoner and Mrs. James Adelsberger.

Halloween Safety Is Stressed

"Halloween will present special dangers to motorists," Paul E. Burke, Executive Director of the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission warned this week. "The after-dark activity of witches and goblins increases at this time of the year because of Halloween, and so do the real hazards of nighttime traffic," Burke cautioned. "Countless youngsters will be out for several hours on the evening they have looked forward to for a long time. They will be so absorbed in the fun of 'Trick or Treat' that they may forget to exercise the caution they ordinarily use when going to and from school," he added. "Motorists, therefore, must adapt a more solicitous attitude toward these juvenile fun makers, remembering the youth of these celebrants and the holiday air pervading."

"What disturbs safety officials even more is the inclination of a comparatively small percentage of older youths to make Halloween the excuse for pranks which can prove dangerous to drivers," the executive director pointed out. He urged that would-be vandals resist the temptation to deface highway warning signs, to twist stop signs or remove them, or to place obstructions of any sort in a roadway. Such interference with regulatory aids for the efficient movement of traffic cannot be countenanced with any mercy, he said. When lives are at stake, those who gamble with the safety of the driving public are setting the stage for tragedy. These are not common occurrences; however, just a few—even one—could have tragic consequences. Burke urged motorists to place themselves on the "treat-team" rather than on the "trick-team" of drivers. "Tricksters of the road," he said, "are those who merely slow down for stop signs, run traffic lights, follow others too closely, refuse to dim their lights for approaching cars at night, weave from lane to lane or dare others to race them on the road."

Every driver should treat fellow motorists with respect, treat his passengers to a safe, comfortable ride, and treat his own god-given life as a gift worth protecting, he declared. Motorists are requested to be especially careful of children on Halloween night. Watch for them! Think for them! Protect them!
